Board doles out $5.5M in grants

BY DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Lehigh County Commissioners clashed on whether to authorize grants to Air Products and to Germany-based Evonik, which bought the former Air Products headquarters' building and 41 acres from Air Products.

The grants – $3 million for Air Products and $2.5 million for Evonik – come from the state of Pennsylvania under the Redevelopment Assistance Capital Program.

Republican Commissioner Jeffrey Dutt was for passing through the grants. "We need to focus on jobs, really good jobs. I will support it [the two resolutions]."

"They don't need it," said Democrat Commissioner Bob Elbich. "I will not support either of these two bills.

"I'm very passionate about this," said Elbich. "I listened to the points; I respect them. Air Products is a good corporate citizen. All of these [supporting] points can be said about our small businesses. Our small businesses will create more [jobs]. Our priorities are the wrong priorities."

County Commissioner Dave Harrington, also a Democrat, was split.

While saying he is generally against giving public money for private companies, he voted "no" on the grant to Evonik, but "yes" to the grant to Air Products.

"Air Products has made remarkable stewardship here in the Lehigh Valley," Harrington said.

In the final tally, the Air Products grant was approved 8-1, with Commissioner Elbich voting "no." The Evonik grant was also approved, 7-2, with commissioners Elbich and Harrngton voting "no."

Air Products, according to documents filed with the county commissioners, applied for the grant to assist with new Global Headquarters in Upper Macungie Township between Route 222 bypass and he 2021-22 school year at Liberty HS will be a celebratory one. as the venerable Bethlehem school turns 100 years old. On June 2 school district and elected officials joined in announcing a calendar of activities that will mark the anniversary. Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy noted how the new high school helped to signal the Bethlehem area's growth when it opened in 1923, expansion brought on by the unification of three Bethlehem boroughs, the conclusion of World War I and the industrial expansion of Bethlehem Steel during the war.

"The history of Liberty is the history of Bethlehem," said Roy.

Dr. Harrison Bailey III is the 14th principal at Liberty HS. "This is an opportunity to participate in something that so few people get to do," Harrison said about the planned 100th anniversary celebration.

Liberty Principal Dr. Harrison Bailey III observed that the timing was special because of the timing of emerging from the pandemic and affording an opportunity for celebration.

"We hope our alumni come back and join us," Bailey said.

A series of community events was revealed, beginning with an August preview night in BASD Stadium featuring the Liberty HS Grenadier Band. Athletic and arts related events, the school's 100th commencement in June 2021 and an Oct. 9 community walk-a-thon around the perimeter of the school campus are among many commemorative events scheduled. Information on all events will be available

AARP UPDATES

Make your home cyber secure

With nine in 10 U.S. adults online these days for work, finances, shopping or entertainment, criminals have many opportunities to steal money or sensitive personal information. When you factor in the many devices in our homes linked to the internet - computers, gaming systems, TVs, smartphones — the opportunities grow.

To keep your home network safe from criminals, follow these three home security rules. Keep the operating systems, web browsers and security software on all of your connected devices updated. If your internet router has the same name and password it came with, change both. And engage your firewall — your operating system or antivirus software should come with a firewall that guards your system from uninvited sources; make sure yours is turned on.

Peer-to-peer payment apps

In the time of COVID-19, peer-to-peer payment apps became more popular than ever.

According to a recent AARP survey, more than half of U.S. adults plan to use a peer-to-peer payment app for purchases. It's important to know that some apps are safer than others. PayPal, for example, is set up for users to make purchases with businesses where it's offered. But other popular payment apps like Venmo, Zelle and Cash App, are intended for use among friends and family — to split a dinner bill or pay the babysitter. Fraud losses using these apps to pay for a product that never comes are generally not recoverable. To protect your assets remember the old fashioned ways of using cash or a credit card, which comes with fraud protections,

Lead poisoning an 'insidious threat'

BY CHRIS HARING Special to the Bethlehem Press

Imagine a long-existing illness which affects 9,000 Pennsylvania children annually, causing serious symptoms such as developmental delay, learning difficulties, irritability, loss of appetite, weight loss and even seizures. What if it was found that, with robust, concentrated efforts, it was entirely preventable? Would it not be reasonable to expect reactions from the community ranging from shock to anger that more isn't being done to protect our children? Tragically, this is the reality for a number of people suffering from the effects of lead poisoning in America. Bruce Clash, state director of Fight Crime: Invest in Kids (a subsidiary of national bipartisan nonprofit Council for a Strong America) led a June 2 webinar with elected officials, district attorneys and community leaders discussing the impacts of lead poisoning locally, as well as mitigation and prevention strategies going forward.

Joining Clash were Lehigh and Northampton County district attorneys James Martin and Terence Houck, Bethlehem police chief Michelle Kott, state Representatives Mike Schlossberg of Allentown and Steve Samuelson of Bethlehem, Pa. Senator Mario Scavello and Northampton County Executive Lamont McClure, among others.

Clash opened the session with some background information on the topic. "Perhaps many people think this was an issue only in the 1970s and 80s," he said, as lead-based paints were banned by the federal government in 1978 due to their harmful effects. While structures built after the ban are hopefully lead-based paint-free, the impacts of decades of its heavy use in residential dwellings continue. Martin, Houck and Kott all approached the issue from a crime-prevention perspective, noting the scientific studies showing correlation between lead exposure in children and negative outcomes later in life. 'Helping put young children and their families on positive trajectories" is essential to preventing crime, Martin said, highlighting the importance of the "safety of our families' living environments."

Lead poisoning is an "insidious threat,"

Martin said, as although effects on childhood lead-based paints have been illegal for over four decades, many homes built before the ban are likely to contain multiple layers of lead-based paint. Children can even be poisoned by dust from the lead when the paint breaks down, he

Center City Allentown especially consists of many residences built with lower achievement in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, Martin added, noting how Black and Hispanic/Latinx children in the city are two times likelier to be victims of lead poisoning than white children. "The research and the science all indicate that lead-based poisoning can contribute to criminality both in juveniles and adults,"

he said. Houck added his thoughts on the link between childhood lead poisoning and crime, saying studies "found that populations that had lead in their drinking water had higher homicide rates" than those drinking lead-free water. Additionally, "children committed nearly five times the number of delinquent acts" than those without exposure. He called the statistics "unacceptable and preventable... it's mind-boggling that this still exists.

According to the CDC, Pa. is second in the nation in positive blood tests for lead poisoning among children. Within the state's 67 counties, Houck said, Northampton County is home to the 16th highest number of children affected, while Lehigh is seventh highest. These numbers are almost certainly low because only 16 percent of children have been tested in Northampton (18 percent in Lehigh). The data shows an "ongoing gap between knowledge and practice," he added. "We have to approach this with more urgency.'

Kott highlighted not only lead exposure's behavior, but learning as well. "Direct evidence (exists) tying lead poisoning to criminality later in life, but we can't forget the effects of lead exposure in school performance," she said, pointing to a study of Chicago public schools in which higher levels of lead in third graders' blood were associated in academic subjects Center City such as reading and Allentown esmath. Affected pecially constudents' risk of failsists of many ing classes increased by residences as much as 32 percent, built in the coming alongside a late 19th and higher risk of dropping early 20th centuries.

> A recent study conducted by Atrium Environmental inmates."

Health and Services showed that 15,000 Pa. children currently have elevated levels of lead, Kott said. The estimated combined lifetime cost for these children is $3.1 billion - due to increased spending on health care and education, decreased lifetime productivity and premature mortality.

'It's extremely unsettling to me. We're going to deal with preventable crime in the future because we as a society have been unable to eliminate this," Kott said. "It's so much bigger than one government entity to solve this complex social issue.'

Frank Brooks, administrator with Northampton County Community & Economic Development, provided some information about what is being done and can be done in the future to mitigate the problem. According to the 2019 U.S. Census, he said, Northampton County is home to 72,000 houses built before 1979 - 31,000 of which were built around half of housing in the county may contain lead in some form.

He pointed to the partnership formed between McClure, Bethlehem mayor Robert Donchez and the Bethlehem Health Bureau - the 'Ban Lead Coalition' which has been awarded grants to jumpstart removal programs. The county now has over 85 workers trained in lead safe removal practices. "Now is the time to consider having your family tested for lead exposure, especially if you have very young children and live in an older building," Brooks said.

Heidi Westerman, community housing manager at Allentown Lead Hazard Control, provided similar details regarding the third largest city in Pa. According to her, 62 percent of residential dwellings throughout Allentown were built prior to 1960, while 75 percent of Center City units were built prior to 1939. Lehigh County has 26,000 children under the age of six, with 30 percent of tested children showing an elevated level of lead in their blood. "We only know about this 30 percent... not all of our children have been tested," she said. "I can't imagine the actual number if testing were more mandatory.

Following the pandemic, during which children spent considerably more time at home, Westerman said she expects to see a "significant uptick" in that number. She said the city plans to remediate 310 units over the next five years, but "funding is crucial. We will not claim victory until every child in Allentown has the opportunity to grow up lead-free."

McClure also briefly addressed the panel. "Fight Crime and the DAs need to be commended here," McClure said. "I cannot tell you how critical it is to have law enforcement in our corner when making the arguments for further funding." He stressed how helpful such "science-based conclusions" are, calling these studies "powerful evidence for us to get more money. We are already (conducting remediation efforts) and it is our goal to get even more aggressive."

More details, including Fight Crime's May 2021 lead exposure report, as well as printable, county-specifc fact sheets, can be found at the organization's website, www.strongnation. before 1939. He estimates org/fightcrime.

2021-22 COVID plans undecided

BY CHRIS HARINGSpecial to the Bethlehem Press

With the unprecedented nature of the 2020-21 school year firmly in the rearview, attention turned toward the 2021-22 term at the June 22 Saucon Valley school board meeting.

Assistant to the Superintendent Jaime Vlasaty shared results from a survey of parents/guardians whose children remained in a fully-virtual setting through the end of the academic year. Administrative professionals in each district school reached out to families to gauge their preliminary intent regarding the beginning of the new Butler.

The total number of virtual students at the end of the year across all buildings was 327, Vlasaty said, with 182 families responding for a 56 percent response rate; 94 percent of respondents indicated that their child would be returning, with the remaining six percent undecided or planning on moving about any progress in out of Saucon Valley altogether.

Solehi pitcher Colton Sams followed up with a strikeout, his fourth at that point, and Lehigh pitcher Brayden Kashner, who likes to work quickly on the mound, threw three straight strikeouts to end the third inning.

"My curveball was working tonight and a lot of four-seam fastballs because the ball was really wet," Kashner said. "I like to work fast. I think having the same rhythm is good. I like repetition, and I like to get out of things quick." Solehi manager B.J. Spigelmyer said whether Kashner was quick pitching or not didn't

'He threw strikes all day, and we have to adjust," Spigelmyer said. "Both pitchers are phedidn't one pitch tonight. I let [Sams] do it with the catcher, and not one time did I disagree with anything they were throwing. [Kashner and Sams] both got ahead, and they only walked one guy between the two of them. It's amazing.'

When Sams returned to the mound in the fourth, he threw three consecutive strikeouts of his own.

"That young man threw one heck of a baseball game," said Lehigh manager Mike Kashner. "This game was so eerily similar to when these kids were 10 years old. The field's perfect, we start playing, and then there's rain. The same exact thing happened the last time we played at the end of the first inning with the same two kids pitching, and just about the same roster."

Fitzgerald continued, "Now, those aren't going to be mandated like the orders were this year; those are going to be suggested recommendations... I think districts are going to take that under advisement, but ultimately many districts are indicating that unless it is a specific order or mandate, boards and administrators are going to make decisions on mitigation strategies.'

Butler noted that the administration along with "stakeholders," are working on the plan and will be bringing it to the board in early July. "We have a strong desire to return to the highest state of normalcy as possible," he said. "I think the vast majority of our parents also have that desire."

In other news, the board unanimously voted to adopt the 2021-22 budget in the amount of $50,613,671. Millage will remain steady and $209,300 will be tapped from the fund balance to cover the shortfall.

Business manager David Bonenberger said he'd recently received an email from the Pennsylvania Association of School Business Officials which indicated the possibility of an increase of between $100 million and $300 million in Governor Tom Wolf's state budget. If the $300 million is added, Bonenberger said it would translate to an additional $188,000 coming to Saucon Valley in state funding, while a lesser amount would mean a smaller windfall for all Pennsylvania districts.

ActivArmor plastic casts introduced

The use of 3D-printed, durable plastic casts by ActivArmor of Colorado were debuted by St. Luke's University Health Network's Kristofer Matullo, M.D., in early March in the region. ActivArmor is a custom-made device that form-fits the anatomy: hands, wrists, arms and lower limbs. The plastic used is recyclable and 100 percent biocompatible. SLUHN is the first healthcare organization in Pennsylvania to offer this casting.

A 3D scan of the affected area is taken. A printer creates two halves of the cast, which are then fitted onto the body part. The 3D cast, which can get wet, may be locked on like a cast or removed like a splint to allow swelling of an injured area to subside. The lattice-like spaces allow for wound care, treatment with advanced healing technologies and cleaning of the skin or sanitizing the device to remove pathogens like the coronavirus while the cast is being worn. It will be available to orthopedic patients throughout the St. Luke's network

The Streets of Bethlehem

East into Bethlehem Township

BY JASON REHM Special to the Bethlehem Press

For this street name survey, we'll be starting at the Minsi Trail Bridge and traveling east into Bethlehem Township. Grab a map and drive along! Minsi Trail Street The Minsi Trail was a historic route used by the Lenni Lenape. Part of this trail cut through Gen. William E. Doster's Minsi Trail Farm east of Bethlehem, hence the name.

When a new bridge was started in 1914, Doster suggested calling it the Minsi Trail Bridge and allowed it to cut through his property. The bridge began to the north of East Market Street on a hill above the farmhouse, and ended up at Daly Avenue to the south.

Stefko Boulevard Once called Newton

Avenue, in 1954 city council changed the name to recognize pioneer realtor and developer John F. Stefko's contributions in developing the city. Stefko built more than 1,600 homes in Bethlehem. He and his son Edward ran Stefko Realty Corps. Other streets in Bethlehem named for members of the Stefko family: Elayne Street after Edward's wife, Geraldine Street for Edwards's sister, Jill Street after Edward's daughter, and Irene Street, who was Edward's cousin.

Freemansburg Avenue

Freemansburg was not named for its first settler, as usually is the case, since it was Peter Bachman who first built a tavern there in 1760. The Freeman family arrived soon after and it was through descendant Jacob Freeman's ardent promotion of the town that it was incorporated as the borough of Freemansburg in 1856.

Willow Park Road This area of Bethlehem Township near Butztown was once home to the popular Willow Park, operated by Shelbo and Sons from 1931-1969. The park included a one-million gallon pool, a variety of amusement park rides, as well as dance and picnic pavilions.

> Butztown Road In the 1790s, farmer

George Butz settled in this area along Nancy Run and ran a grist mill, store and tavern. Soon a group of dwellings sprung up and the irea became known as Butztown. Nancy Run was named after an old fortune teller woman who lived in a small

The road leading to Hecktown. A union church built around 1760 was the origin of this village. It is said it received its name after a comment a Moravian preacher made after seeing the poor, filthy and overcrowded cabins: 'Aber sie koennen gut hecken" - at least they breed well!

Farmersville Road This area received its name because farming was the principle occupation of its residents. It had a dozen houses, a school and a church. On one old map from 1830 it was called Lawalts, a family name.

Oakland Road This road was once home to Oakland Park, a well-known trolley park that opened in 1899. It was situated near Farmersville on the trolley line between Bethlehem and Easton. The park was the perfect spot to hold a picnic or family reunion. It contained a number of amenities including woodland walks, refreshment stands, a covered pavilion, and an outdoor stage for vaudeville performances. Park Road is a similarly named side street.

Emrick Boulevard

This road running parallel and west of Route 33 was named for lifelong Bethlehem Township farmer Peter Emrick (1932-1997), who fought state and county officials for years to prevent Route 33 from running through his 800-acres of farmland.

Green Pond Road The original name for Green Pond was Dry

Lands Pond. When German settlers began to appear in the 1730s, the area between Bethlehem and Nazareth was known as the Dry Lands as it had few surface streams. The land was scarcely populated and regarded as barren and fearful.

Local Chamber honors NCC fablab

Northampton Community College's Fab Lab won the Community Partner Award from the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce. The award was presented June 2 at the Bethlehem Chamber Annual Awards Virtual Reception streamed live from ArtsQuest.

The Bethlehem Chamber also honored those they called "Hometown Heroes" who helped the community during the COVID-19 pandemic. When news that health care workers were forced into wearing scarves and bandanas due to a shortage of masks, the Fab Lab sprang into action last spring. During the COVID-19 health crisis, they became a production shop for masks, with Fab Lab volunteers and NCC faculty and staff preparing 13, 816 masks.

'I am very honored for NCC and the Fab Lab to be awarded this achievement," said Fab Lab Director Sean Brandle. "I believe this award stands for everything we strive to be, a resource for our community that promotes innovation and creativity. When we first heard about the mask shortage, our first thoughts were how can we help with our resources. Innovation and creativity were key in our three-person production line. Anything is achievable, the more we work and stand together as a community.

The Fab Lab is an open access space to state-of-the-art technologies ranging from a full metal and woodshop, spray booth, 3D printers, laser cutters, a Sound Lab, guitar-making and repair studio, cold casting and more. Community members are invited to come in and prototype new product ideas, improve on existing ones or crafting for fun, all with the tools and intellectual resources needed to dream, design, and create. Classes are also offered to teach new skills and build on existing ones.

The Pediatric Cancer Foundation of the Lehigh Valley (PCFLV) said aloha to 80 golfers who hit the greens for the fourth annual Luau On The Links Golf Outing May 24 at Green Pond Country Club in Bethlehem Township.

The event included a ceremony awarding eight local pediatric cancer survivors with one-time $3,000 scholarships to colleges or trade schools. Six of the recipients were on hand for the presentation during the luncheon that followed the shotgun start golf outing.

"We are so excited to be able to award these scholarships at the golf outing," said Michelle Zenie, executive director of PCFLV.

"This event is super important because we have a record number of scholarship recipients. We raised $25,000, and since each recipient receives $3,000, we raised almost the exact amount needed" Zenie said.

"We're thrilled we were able to raise the money this year, especially in light of the pandemic. Pediatric cancer didn't stop because of the pandemic – diagnoses were still made, and families still had to deal with everything they needed to because of them.

"We had to keep supporting the families, even though financial support was down with the challenges of the pandemic," Zenie said. The 2021 scholarship recipients are: Rvan Glose, Parkland HS, who will attend West Chester University; Tommy Stackhouse, Bangor HS, who will attend Northampton County Community College; Zenus Francis, Bethlehem Area School District and Kailey Alderfer, Emmaus HS, both of whom will attend Lehigh University; Rowan Milne, Emmaus HS, who will attend Temple University; Travis Reese, Perkiomen School, who will attend Oxford College of Emory University, Oxford, Ga.; Tyler Stasko, Northwestern Lehigh HS, who will attend Penn State University; and Porter Lilly, Northwestern Lehigh HS, who will attend Johnson and Wales University, Charlotte, N.C.

"PCFLV has helped a lot in the past and it's so cool they're helping even after treatment," said Alderfer, who plans to major in biology at Lehigh University.

The venerable Gemeinhaus got a facelift April 22. Eighty-eight wooden exterior shutters had been removed in January 2021 for repair, restoration and repainting with an historically accurate paint color from the 18th century. They were returned and reinstalled at Bethlehem's oldest building on Earth Day.

The iron hardware, including shutter dogs, weas restored as well. Also known as shutter catches, these devices hold the shutters in place during windy conditions. Although currently considered decorative, shutters were once necessary for security, lighting control and ventilation.

Built by the Moravians in 1741, the Ge-meinhaus, German for "community house," is considered to be the largest colonial era log structure in continuous use in the United States.

"It was the everything building back in the 18th century when they first came here," explains Barry Pell, from Historic Bethlehem Museums & Sites. "It was the first place to worship. ### 'Don't ignore the possibilities'

BY DANA GRUBB Special to the Bethlehem Press

The eighth annual Bethlehem Area School District academic signing ceremony June 7 recognized the top Liberty and Freedom high schools' class of 2021 academic scholars. Ten from each school were honored as they signed ceremonial commitment letters to the colleges and universities at which they'll continue their educations. Guest speaker Dr. Michele Moser Deegan outlined her three most important pieces of advice for the scholars. The first was, "do build upon what you've learned in the BASD." Deegan's second piece of advice was, "don't ignore the possibilities, so you can expand yourself." Finally, she recommended that they find their new network. "Who can help you?" Deegan is dean of academic life and a professor of political science at Muhlenberg College.

Her one-woman show explores new hope at Bucks County Playhouse

BY PAUL WILLISTEIN pwillistein@tnonline.com

Bucks County has a legendary role as a mecca for makers of arts, entertainment and culture.

It was a weekend retreat for New York City's Algonquin Round Table and the likes of Dorothy Parker and George S. Kaufman, as well as S.J. Perelman.

The nexus of the New Hope School of the Pennsylvania Impressionists were William Langson Lathrop, Edward Redfield and Daniel Garber, framing an artists' colony that extended to Clarence Carter, Fern Coppedge, Richard Peter Hoffman and Walter Emerson

Oscar Hammerstein II is reputed to have observed that "the cattle are standin' like statues" in a Bucks County pasture at what is now Highland Farm Bed & Breakfast for his and Richard Rodgers' "Oh, What A Beautiful Mornin" from "Oklahoma!," and where he mentored Stephen Sondheim.

Blending disciplines of journalism, television, the motion picture and stage in a new role is Candace Bushnell with her one-woman show, "Is There Still Sex In The City?," in its world premiere through July 18, Bucks County Playhouse.

Bushnell, who wrote and stars in the show based on her 2019 book, joins a list of luminaries debuting on the Bucks Playhouse stage: Grace Kelly, Robert Redford, Liza Minelli, to name a few.

When a rising Chilean attorney Pablo (Joseph Castillo-Midyett) and his pregnant doctoral candidate wife Tania (Gisela Chipe) buy a home next to a well-established Washington, D.C., couple, an innocent disagreement over a long-standing fence turns into an all-out border war.

"The hope is for it to go to New York. I know everybody does streaming, but this is a live stage show. I'm sure there will be some live-capture. But it's not, "Oh, God, this is a Netflix special.' It's not that kind of thing.

"It's really about going out with your girlfriends. It's very especially about women's friendship, sex in your 50s, and what happens to you and your life.

'God blessed us today'

Members of three congregations ioined in worship beneath a tent at Dillingersville School, Schoolhouse Lane, Lower Milford Township, for the 75th annual Dillingersville Pilgrimage. Members of Old Zionsville United Church of Christ, Zions Evangelical Lutheran Church, Old Zionsville and Upper Milford Mennonite Church gathered for service June 27 on the schoolhouse grounds. The congregations joined in mission to support a one-room school, forming the Dillingersville Union School and Church Association in 1799. RIGHT: Millie Kohler, a member of Zionsville UCC and usher for the service, hands a bulletin to Ty Wetzel, a member of Zions Lutheran Church, as he arrives.

Those gathered celebrate attendees whose personal pilgrimage covered the greatest distance to reach Dillingersville as well as the oldest and youngest people attending the event; Florida, 96 years and 22 months, respectively. "God blessed us today with a beautiful space and wonderful weather and people to enjoy the setting," Lori Essinger, the pastor of Old Zionsville UCC who presided at the service, said of the celebration.

COVID-19 cancels the 2020 pilgrimage event and pandemic concerns impact the 2021 celebration, suspending the traditional picnic following the service. However, the annual ringing of the school bell to signal the start of service went off without a hitch.

What legacy will you leave behind?

She's far too young to be thinking about

But ever since a dire diagnosis changed her life, my close friend Ann thinks constantly about her own demise.

To look at the physically fit, attractive blonde, she looks like the perfect picture of health. And that's one reason why she believes doctors didn't take her seriously when she kept saying 'something's wrong.'

They diagnosed her chest pain as anxiety and gave her Xanax.

"They actually kept telling me how good I looked and how healthy I was," she said.

Thinking the chest pain might be related to her heart, she went to the top cardiac practheir conclusion was the same: They could find nothing wrong.

My dear friend Bobbi Sue Burton had the same goal as Ann. Her life was devoted to helping others.

When doctors wanted to give her morphine for the cancer pain that racked her body, she refused because it would make her too groggy to help others.

"I want to do as much good as I can for as much time as I'm given," she said.

When she could no longer stand up because of pain, she still called around until she found a used washing tice in our area where machine urgently needed by a single mother of four small children.

My Aunt Rose was one of those people who helped others constantly, but she shied away from taking credit.

There is a monument to her that will never go away. That monument is the love in my heart for her and the way her life has inspired me to serve others.

You can get an idea about how she refused to take credit for anything by my "no dress"

With two small children and absolutely not one spare dollar in our budget, buying anything new for me was out of the question.

I only had one dress nice enough for a big family wedding. It was black, not suitable for a wedding but it was all I had.

One evening my Aunt Rose called and asked me to stop by to do her a favor. When I ing out time and again got there she literally threw a gorgeous dress at me and asked me After our conver- to "take it out of her sation about being resight." She claimed she bought it for her daughter-in-law who didn't want it.

It was a flimsy story but she would never say, "Here, I bought this for you.'

When she died at 44 from an allergic reaction to penicillin, I thought I would never stop crying.

'F9' very magnetic

Not much sags in "F9: The Fast Saga.

It's fast and furious, AT THE true to the title of the original, "The Fast and Furious" (2001). "F9" is the ninth in the series. There are 10th and 11th movies planned with the final release scheduled

The "Fast and Furious" franchise is Universal Studios' biggest, having grossed more than $6 billion. The latest "F9" des-

The movie's title, "F9," could be interpreted as a tribute to the Grumman F9 Panther (1947-'58) and subsequent Cougar jet fighter

"F9" takes the "Fast and Furious" franchise to new heights of action. The series began with an emphasis on street racing. That comes into play in a scene between Dom and his brother Ja-kob. The "Tokyo Drift" heritage (drifting is a controlled skidding and spinning of a vehicle) is displayed in several chase scenes.

"F9" is more gargantuan than its predecessors in one-on-one combat, chase scenes, special effects, stunts, locations and plot devices. The latest plot device involves electromagnetic machines that cause vehicles to crash, guns to be vanked from the bad guys' hands and silverware to fly off the tables of unsuspecting tourists dining alfresco.

"F9" has huge action set pieces. Several involve martial-arts style hand-to-hand fighting,

When nymphs determine it is the year to emerge, they burrow to about one inch beneath the soil surface in April.

If the ground is too damp, the mature nymphs build a protective earthen turret, which can help identify where cicadas will emerge. When the soil temperature reaches 64 degrees Fahrenheit, the nymphs exit the ground and crawl one foot or more up tree trunks, weeds or other upright objects. In Pennsylvania this usually occurs in late May or early June, depending on how warm or cold spring temperatures were.

The adult cicadas then shed the nymphal exoskeleton, which is left behind, in one hour or less. At this point, the cicadas are soft, white and unable to fly because the exoskeleton takes a few hours to
