

Yost, Donald J.

FORMER BATH RESIDENT
DOWNED SIX JAP ZEROS

Major Donald J. Yost, of Princeton, N. J., who shot down six Japanese Zero planes in his first encounter with the enemy, a short time ago, is a former resident of Bath. He is a son of Ralph E. Yost, former principal of Bath schools.

The hero bagged planes over Munda, New Georgia Island, in the South Pacific. While in Bath, the family attended the Walnut Street Presbyterian Church, and Donald was a pupil in the class taught by Marion McIlhaney. JAN 14 1943
