Southside LERTA expansion planned

BY MARIEKE-DACIA ANDRONACHES
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

The Community Development Committee discussed a proposed LERTA expansion on the Southside June 28, encompassing the remainder of the Bethlehem Steel Corp. properties, with the possible expansion of existing businesses in the industrial area.

Council member Paige Van Wirt raised the idea of adding solar panels on warehouses as a condition for a Local Economic Revitalization Tax Assistance zone, while an overall discussion about how trying to build affordable housing needs to be examined in greater detail, for which there will be a public hearing July 5.

Officials spent much of the evening detailing for residents the city's programs and tools for fostering economic growth and revitalization.

Planning Director Darlene Heller described the city's land development process and how it seeks to improve contiguous lots, tracts or parcels. Heller explained that developers must follow specific submission guidelines.

 Special to the Bethlehem Press

The courtyard of the Hispanic Center Lehigh Valley at 520 East Fourth St. now has a large mural depicting Roberto Clemente and symbolically linking him in art to his passions during his life: professional baseball and philanthropic works for the world-wide Latino community.

The painting by Lancaster, Pa., artist Salina Almanzar was officially welcomed to the City of Bethlehem June 10 by a ceremony featuring remarks from Mayor

A principal speaker was Rick Anderson, president and CEO of St. Luke's University Health Network.

Anderson shared his childhood memories of listening on his radio to Pittsburgh Pirates baseball games when Roberto Clemente played.

"All of us from Pittsburgh mourned his death," Anderson said. Roberto Clemente died in 1974 in an airplane crash while personally delivering disaster relief supplies. Clemente was heading

YWCA Bethlehem welcomes executive director

YWCA Bethlehem's new executive director, Delia Marrero, is committed to the YWCA's mission and aims to strengthen the organization as a transformative leader who centers on diversity, equity, inclusion, accessibility and belonging.

Marrero is a lifelong resident of the Lehigh Valley and has over 15 years of nonprofit experience. As a community organizer and advocate, she believes in centering the collective voices of marginalized communities. Through her work as a community leader in the Bethlehem area, Marrero has spent several years building and strengthening relationships with community leaders, city staff, and community members.

"I believe in the mission of the YWCA," Marrero explains. "My goal as the executive director would be to imagine an organization with a strong advocacy arm and programming."

"We are so excited to welcome Delia as our new executive director to grow and strengthen our work in the Lehigh Valley," says Mahboobeh Shekari, director of finance, who took a leadership role in the interim period.

 New Executive Director Delia Marrero is a lifelong resident of the Lehigh Valley and has over 15 years of nonprofit experience.

"Over the past year, the board recognizes the leadership of Mahboobeh Shekari, a leader who stabilized the YWCA Bethlehem during a period of leadership transition," says YWCA board member Megan Barnes Briggs. "We applaud Ms. Shekari and all the staff at the YWCA Bethlehem for their outstanding work during this transition."

"This is a critical time in the organization's history – and in this pivotal moment, we have found the right leader who will align YWCA Bethlehem's programs, leadership, and actions with our mission to eliminate racism and empower women," Briggs says. "As a board, we look forward to fully supporting Delia in this role."

Community members shared their enthusiasm about Delia Marrero joining the YWCA.

from zoning regulations to plan reviews.

She made it clear that many consultations and inspections must take place before a project can receive approval by planners. They use all the tools at their disposal, including LERTA, which is seen as a powerful option to help promote economic growth for all of Bethlehem.

LERTA is Pennsylvania's economic development incentive program. The city has greatly benefited from this initiative, from the creation of affordable housing to investments in economically viable projects. Bowery Farming, the largest vertical farming in the U.S., Ecotech Marine and Factory were highlighted as examples of LERTA-based investments that have achieved enormous economic success.

There are currently 28 active projects in the city, with 6,389 employees. Tax revenue for each successful investment helps both the city and the school district.

Board approves bakery's request

BY LANI GOINS

Special to the Bethlehem Press

The Zoning Hearing Board had four cases on its agenda May 25, though the case of multiple properties on Fourth and Morton streets has been continued to the July 27 meeting.

Joshua and Laurel Attanasio requested a setback variance for a patio around their existing pool at 605 W. Geopp St. Todd L. Koenig, architect, testified the patio would be at the rear of the property, which faces Spruce Street. Koenig said the adjacent properties on Spruce Street were mainly garages. The request was approved.

Eric Prostko, owner of 1822 North Boulevard, and surveyor Greg Noll testified they are seeking approval for a roof on the existing patio, with the patio roof attached to the house. The request was approved with the stipulation that the open patio may not be converted into an extension of the house. Chairman Fitzpatrick said "I hope you get a lot of enjoyment out of it in the summer."

The future home of the wholesale Back Door Bakeshop at 402 New Street. The bakeshop will be in the area to the east, or rear, of the structure.

Gail Lehman and Deanna Hall, the proprietor and marketer of the Back Door Bakeshop, testified that they plan to use it as a commercial kitchen for the business.

a commercial kitchen. The kitchen has a self hooded range, already approved by the health department.

There would be one box truck delivery of butter and eggs every two weeks, no customer traffic and Lehman intends to make deliveries in her personal vehicle. Hall added there are, "very few commercial kitchens in the city."

Apple cider donut holes and other baked goods are sold at Scholl's Orchard. The bake shop is in discussions with other small markets.

Neighbor Elaine Nebia said she is, "wholly in their (the bakery's) favor." She requested that they, "always and forever make the apple cider donut holes." Fitzpatrick said the product line was "not in the board's purview."

The landlord, Danielle Gustafson, said she is looking forward to having the Bakeshop occupy her building.

Lehman and Hall's request was approved. "I'm happy you're not abandoning the city," said Fitzpatrick.

"I am pleased to know that Delia will be helping to bring this organization to new heights, and I am so glad that she is in the role," says Winston Alozie, Boys and Girls Club Bethlehem chief executive officer. "I couldn't think of a more pensive, introspective, emotionally salient, driven, intellectual, engaging person for this role."

"Delia lives and breathes community building, connectivity and inclusion. I'm so excited to see her be welcome in a place where her strengths will be honored and used to continue to build community connections." Bethlehem City Councilperson Rachel Leon said.

Delia Marrero's leadership is exactly what the YWCA needs in an executive director.

She is forward thinking, results oriented, passionate and committed to transformational change. Our community will be stronger with her leading the charge. We are so proud of Delia and her achievements and cannot wait to work alongside her," said Carolina Hernandez, assistant dean and community service director at Lehigh University.

Santoro announced input from low-income families is being sought regarding the city's Environmental Justice initiative. Community Area Development Corporation of Bethlehem board member Donna Taggart replied the Hispanic Center Lehigh Valley will be assisting with this.

Interviews for a consultant with expertise on affordable housing and homelessness issues are ongoing.

Topics covered at the end-of-the-month meeting include the Taking Pride in Our Youth panel discussion on services for LGBTQ+ youth held June 1 and the Great Southside Sale held June 4 at Broughal Middle School.

Rev. Suzanne Trump described how St. John's Windish Lutheran Church is assisting with homeless intakes for the Bethlehem Emergency Shelter, as well as an unused church building being utilized for the Boys & Girls Club summer programming.

Attending remotely, Susan Vitez, representing the Steelworkers' Archives, mentioned upcoming events including walking tours and steelworker reunions.

Santoro provided links to Pennsylvania's Real ID process at www.dmv.pa.gov and the Federal Communications Commission's Affordable Connectivity Program at www.fcc.gov/acp.

Alexis Kovacs was granted a certificate of appropriateness for her signage proposal for 77 W. Broad St., Unit 17C from the Historical and Architectural Review Board at the June 1 meeting held at the Rotunda.

The double-sided hanging sign for Electric Cheetah Tattoos measures 36 by 24 inches. The lettering and graphics are white and gold on a black background. The high density urethane foam board (HDU) is to hang from an existing mounted bracket already fastened to the brick wall mortar.

Approval was conditional that the applicant adds a white pinstripe around the edges.

Representing homeowner Mary Louise Brion, Francis Gotzon scored a COA to replace a dilapidated woven wood fence at 415 High St. with a 6 foot high, 100 foot long cedar plank fence. Posts and caps are to be of western red cedar as well.

Their proposal for a vinyl replacement fence had been rejected at a 2021 hearing.

Jaden Myers, representing his vacationing son Jaden and daughter-in-law, won approval for a side wall façade change affected by a planned kitchen renovation at 258 E. Wall St. An entrance door and storm door are to be removed and replaced with "toothed-in" fiber-cement siding to match the existing siding in style and color. This will allow the homeowners to expand a tiny kitchen by creating space for additional cabinets.

When asked about removing an outdoor light near where the doorway is to be sealed, Myers responded his son plans on retaining it.

A MIND FOR THE LAW

At first glance, a psychology degree might seem an unorthodox path to a legal career. But for Jennifer Bolivar, it was just right.

Every day, Bolivar, a 2015 graduate of Penn State Lehigh Valley's Psychology program, puts to work the skills she gained at the campus as an Associate Attorney at Crosson Richetti & Daigle, LLC, a full-service family law firm based in Allentown.

"My degree has allowed me to bring the experience of a case manager, counselor, and state investigator into my career," said Bolivar, 27, of Whitehall. "When clients tell me their story, I'm able to look for and analyze patterns, reasons why my client, the opposition, or third-party acted or reacted the way they did, and consider alternative resolutions. If there is a potential psychological or psychiatric solution, I feel comfortable talking about it. Also, it allows me to understand programs that are provided or can be provided to children, adolescents, adults, and older adults."

Bolivar's dreams of becoming a lawyer go all the way back to middle school, when she would often find herself sticking up for fellow students who were wronged. "The notion that I could give someone a voice and tell their story was appealing to me. You get to help people in some of their most vulnerable times," she said.

"I believe that a psychology degree is beneficial in any aspect of life because we are constantly interacting with people."

After taking a psychology class in high school, Bolivar knew she wanted to major in it in college. It seemed like a logical entry-way to the law, which "regulates human behavior — human behavior that psychology helps you understand," she said.

At PSU-LV, Bolivar found a psychology program and faculty that prepared her well for the real world. Her studies included an internship with the Lehigh County District Attorney's Office.

She was also heavily involved in numerous campus groups, including serving as Student Government Association (SGA) President.

Completing her studies a year early, Bolivar initially decided to postpone law school in order to work in human services, first as a case manager/counselor with Valley Youth House and then as an investigator with Pennsylvania Adult Protective Services.

"My degree also allowed me to help others before law school," Bolivar said. "In school, I had to write a 12-page paper on Prozac, which was given to one of my younger clients and caused more harm than good. With the permission of the client's mother, the psychiatrist agreed to change the client's medication. The conversation revolved around information that I had researched for my 12-page paper. Within a month, all the issues that the medication was causing were resolved and the client no longer needed in-home services."

Eventually, Bolivar enrolled at Widener University Commonwealth Law School in Harrisburg. There, she completed internships with U.S. Magistrate Judge Martin C. Carlson of the Middle District of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania Office of Attorney General.

Bolivar is still waiting to do her first trial. When the time comes, though, she knows that she'll be ready, and that her degree will be a benefit.

"It'll allow me to read the unspoken words of witnesses, the opposing side, and the jury or judge," she said. "I believe that a psychology degree is beneficial in any aspect of life because we are constantly interacting with people. We don't always have to agree with how others act, but it is helpful to take a step back and try to understand why others are acting a certain way, or why we do not agree with their actions."

Versatility is the hallmark of Penn State Lehigh Valley's Psychology program, which provides students with the opportunity to pursue three different four-year degree options: bachelor of arts; bachelor of science – business option; and bachelor of science – science option.

With their degree, graduates of the program can pursue careers in a number of different fields, be it mental health, social work, medicine, drug and alcohol treatment, or the law. Better still, they can complete their studies in a personalized setting that comes with all of the resources of the globally recognized Penn State brand.

When the applicant inquired about installing central air conditioning, he was advised to consult Chief Building Inspector Mike Simonson when planning for it. The AC proposal would then need to come before the commission for approval.

The building is a converted garage with an addition built in circa 1960.

Three "straight forward" roofing replacement projects were approved. The applicants for each property provided proof that the slate shingles were worn out and beyond repair. The replacement roofing followed board specifications for GAF Slateline shingles in antique slate color, with copper flashing and 5-inch half round gutters.

Frank Boyer represented the house he and his wife Beth own at 234 E. Market St. Replacement shingles for the bay window were also approved.

Representing 123 E. Market St., contractor Jeremy Carr from Alan Kunsman Roofing & Siding obtained a COA for a replacement skylight in addition to the roofing replacement proposal. Carr informed the commissioners that the existing slate shingles were so brittle, he could "poke his fingers through them." The property is owned by Lloyd Kemmerer.

An emergency submission by Troy Long from Paul Wright Roofing for 243 E. Church St. received official approval. The GAF Slateline shingles in antique slate color are to cover sloped areas and Ethylene Propylene Diene Monomer (EPDM), a synthetic rubber, is for the flat roof. Brian and Diane Cassel own the brick home.

All voting was unanimous at the meeting chaired by Connie Postupack.

The Historical and Architectural Review Board regularly meets the first Wednesday of every month to review all exterior changes proposed to buildings in the Bethlehem Historic District north of the Lehigh River.

The owner of this converted garage, now a single detached home at 258 E. Wall St., received approval to seal the doorway adjacent to the double windows, at left, to create space for a kitchen expansion.

Yesterday: A look back at the 60s, 70s & 80s

BY JEFF MOELLER
tnsports@tnonline.com

Recently, one of my favorite authors stated that his new book to be released in late September would be based on the lives of three "legends" in pop culture.

I took his lead and decided to base this week's Yesterday column — a trip back in time to the late 1960s, 70s and sometimes dipping into the early 80s and beyond — on "legends" in the sports world, and a few other topics that were back in our day.

Plenty of good ... The debate about "legendary" Philadelphia sports figures can be extensive or exhaustive. There are plenty of candidates from the 60s and 70s.

One really needs to look at the four major sports teams, along with some other possibilities here.

As far as baseball in the 1960s, 70s and 80s, Mike Schmidt and Steve Carlton would have to be the dominant figures. Some may forget that Schmidt took the place of the popular Don Money, and hit just .196 in his rookie year of 1973.

A year earlier, Carlton had a season that hasn't quite been duplicated. He had 27 of the team's 59 victories, winning 45.9% of its games. Carlton had 30 complete games in his 41 starts, a 1.97 ERA, and 310 strikeouts in 346 1/3 innings with 87 walks. He took home the Cy Young Award and was fifth in the MVP balloting.

To me, Wilt Chamberlain always will be a "legendary" figure for his dominance in basketball, and I remember him more as a Laker than a Sixer.

Dr. J could be the "legendary" Sixer of the 1970s, even though he didn't arrive until 1976. The Doc led them to four finals and one championship, and we all had our own "Dr. J" version on the outdoor courts. One Sixer often overlooked was Hal Greer, who was as consistent as they come in the backcourt.

There were plenty of Eagles' candidates in the 70s and 80s, but Harold Carmichael is my "legendary" pick. I remember watching Carmichael in a 1971 preseason game and he stood out with his 6-8 frame. He went on to set the Eagles' club record in receptions (590), yards (8,950) and touchdowns (79). He fittingly was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

One could also make an argument for Randall Cunningham, or "The Ultimate Weapon." Cunningham certainly was the most exciting player to watch in the 80s, but he and head coach Buddy Ryan couldn't get

Pates make deep run at the Bash

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Freedom's basketball team has always turned up their play at Cedar Beach and the Pates kept that trend going over the weekend with their performance at the Bash at the Beach Tournament.

Freedom went 4-2 at the event and reached the winner's bracket final before losing to Muhlenberg Township 52-49 and then falling to eventual champion, Allentown Central Catholic, 33-27 in the elimination bracket final.

Reaching the final stages of the four-day tournament is what Freedom is accustomed to, but head coach Joe Stellato was happy to see his group take a step forward in the tourney.

"I was very pleased with the way we played this weekend," said Stellato. "We had both Muhlenberg and Central beat and because we did not execute in the final minutes of those games it cost us a chance to play in the finals. That was disappointing, but looking back at the weekend, I was very pleased."

Freedom picked up wins over Central York, Berks Catholic, Central Dauphin and an unofficial win over Warren Hills after both teams opponents on opening night forfeited for COVID reasons.

Being able to compete and get wins with a short-handed roster was even better for Stellato.

"We only had eight players with a few major contributors on vacation," he said. "The defensive end of the court looked great, we just did not execute on the offensive side. It is still early and this is normal for summer basketball. But the kids battled and played through the heat. We are looking forward to finishing up the summer league strong and look forward to the Allentown Throw down."

Freedom's Nick Ellis and Josh Smith were named to the all-tournament team as well.

Liberty went 1-2 over the weekend, knocking off Parkland 62-40, but suffering defeats to East Penn Conference foes Central Catholic and Emmaus.

Stingrays get past Quakertown

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

The Bethlehem Stingrays knocked off the Quakertown Dolphins, 352-228, in a Suburban Swim League meet on June 27 at Bethlehem.

"They're definitely a bigger, stronger team, so we had to be ready to go," said Stingrays head coach Evan Kocon, who is assisted by Diana Kocon, Elyssa Kocon, Laurie Muller, Chris Black, and Samantha Taylor.

The Stingrays kicked off the meet with a first-place finish in the girls 8 & Under 100 freestyle relay swum by Alana Darcy, Sophia Lezinsky, Anna Stewart, and Abigail York (1:43.05).

Other winners in 8 & Unders were Stewart in the 25 butterfly (27.81), Landon Black, also in 25 fly (32.24), and Ethan Sperandio in 25 backstroke (32.97).

Bethlehem's 9-10 girls won the 100 medley relay with the foursome of Lena Blazure, Alexandra York, LeLe Waldman, and Liliana Fink (1:21.94), and the 9-10 boys won the same event on the combination of Logan Lech, Theo Collins, Liam Powers, and Jacen Estrella (1:38.40).

In 9-10 individual events, winners included York in the 25 breaststroke (21.33), and Collins in the same event (26.74), Waldman in 25 fly (18.06) and 25 back (20.97), Collins in 25 fly (22.32) and 25 free (18.14), Powers in 25 back (23.05), and Blazure in 25 free (16.54).

"We're pretty level across the board. Our 10 & Under girls are really strong, and most of them are nine, and the 8 & Unders are seven or less and are doing a really good job coming on as young kids. For some, this is their first experience on a swim team ever," Kocon said. "As far as the younger kids, we had to cap our age groups at 8 & Under girls and 10 & Under girls, so as far as numbers go, we're loaded (135)."

The 11-12 boys took first place in the 100 medley relay with Jack Amato, Joshua Baluta, Adam Barlow, and Desmond Murray (1:13.22).

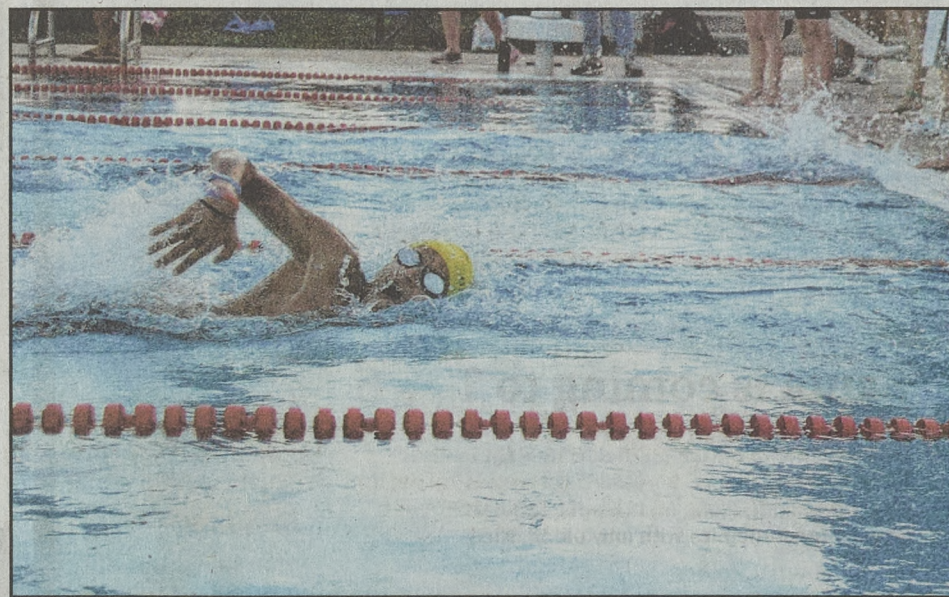

Also in the 11-12 age group, Daisy Stewart was the winner of the 50 breast (45.10), the 100 IM (1:33.57), and the 50 fly (42.90). Barlow also won the 50 fly (37.40). Keira Darcy was the first-place 50 backstroke (46.85), and Barlow won the 50 free (34.01).

In 13-14 events, Christian Hackett swam to a first-place finish in the 50 free (28.57), the 100 IM (1:14.54), and the 50 fly (33.96), Leah

Wanderers looks to get back on top in Legion

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Liberty's playoff run to the state championship was clearly a magical moment for baseball in Bethlehem, but the Wanderers NORCO Legion team now has to deal with the ramifications of a delayed start to the season.

Filled with players mostly from Liberty's roster, the Wanderers, didn't play their first Legion game until June 20 and had to squeeze 17 games in that time span through July 3.

The daunting task for first-year head coach coach Paul Walsh isn't something he was concerned about, but recognizes the challenges.

"There are the obvious challenges here, namely with pitching," said Walsh. "While we do have a good staff, no staff is able to sustain that kind of schedule. The not so obvious is the fact that some of these players had never met each other prior to our first game. We had not even had one practice as a full team prior to our first game. So not only were there the personnel issues, but there was also the more pressing issue of fostering team chemistry as quickly as possible."

Some of the top players from this year's team include Liberty's Hayden O'Neill (pitcher) and Reece D'Amico (catcher). Becahi grad and current Moravian University member, Jaden Clements, returns for a final season, while Freedom pitcher Ryan Hoffman is an integral component.

"In terms of team chemistry I like to think that Hayden, Reece, Jaden, and Ryan (while all very different kids) act as the four chambers of the heart of the team," said Walsh. "Another great aspect of this team is that we also have a bunch of players who did not get a whole lot of varsity playing time but who were on varsity squads. These kids have gotten a lot of opportunities to play for us and have been able to show what they have in ways they may not have during the high school season. It is great to see these kids do well and the varsity starters on our team support them in every way."

After winning last summer's NORCO title, the goal is the same for Walsh and company, especially with a team full of players that just made a PIAA state finals run.

That started on Tuesday when they opened the playoffs against Palmer in a best-of-three series. Semifinals are slated to being either Thursday or Friday.

"As always, our goal is to do the same this year," Walsh said. "While the ultra condensed season in tandem with losing kids to travel ball has provided many more added challenges this year, I am really proud of our guys. Other than this goal, it is really important to me that the Wanderers players build relationships with each other that extend beyond the baseball field and this season. It's these relationships that end up being the difference when it comes to staging a comeback, an extra inning victory, or winning a championship. I want them to come to know what it means when the coaches and I say 'Once a Wanderer, Always a Wanderer.'"

Horvath takes over as Liberty boys soccer coach

kmcDonald@tnonline.com

There's no place like home for Jason Horvath who has returned as Liberty's boys soccer coach after the resignation of Ian Larimer earlier this year.

"It was an opportunity to go back to where I started, where I played and where I coached," Horvath said. "It feels like home, and it was a great opportunity to coach again."

Horvath heard about the opening from his nephew Tanner who plays on the team, updated his resume, and got in touch with Liberty athletic director Fred Harris.

"I think a lot of people were surprised, but you miss a place like Liberty. They're good people in that building, in the administration, and it was such a perfect opportunity. I couldn't be more excited to be back," said Horvath, who was also a building sub at Liberty before his current position in the art department at Phillipsburg High School.

Horvath was the Hurricanes' head coach from 2006-2016 before taking a year off, then assisted with the boys soccer team at Phillipsburg.

Coincidentally, Liberty's first summer league game was a match against Phillipsburg on June 1.

"Liberty hasn't had the best two seasons in a row but certainly have the potential to get it going in the right direction and will do our best to do so," said Horvath, who is assisted by Colin Jupina and Derek Reusser. "A lot of it is getting them to pick their heads up."

Horvath explained that doubt starts to creep in, especially when Liberty loses to teams they don't typically lose to. From there, the players start to question what they're doing there.

But Horvath, Jupina, and Reusser intend to turn that around, and with the Hurricanes' first summer league win on June 29 under their belt, the steps are being made.

"The kids are in a really good place. We're working on the positive and eliminating the negative," Horvath said. "They just have to believe in themselves."

it together offensively to make it to the Super Bowl.

Looking at hockey, Bobby Clarke and Bernie Parent come to mind. They both were integral in getting the team to capture two Stanley Cup championships. They also were the perfect catalysts and tablesetters for a team with an excellent group of role players. It was Clarke's leadership and Parent's steadiness that took them to glory.

Forget that draft ...

With the NBA draft last week, I would be remiss to mention one "legendary" Sixers pick that went badly.

In 1993 with the second overall pick, the Sixers drafted 7-6 Shawn Bradley out of BYU in hopes of turning the franchise around with a dominant big man. Bradley will go down as one of the biggest Sixers busts.

With his frail frame, Bradley could never be a force and averaged 9.7 points and 7.5 rebounds before he was sent to the New Jersey Nets. Bradley was as ineffective as other big men top picks Christian Welp (1987) and Mark McNamara (1982).

Remember that famous song at weddings

... In terms of legendary songs growing up, I can recall at weddings and some other events that featured a band where the song "Wipeout" was played. One knew the band would eventually play it, and it brought everyone to the dance floor, as they would jump around in all different ways for a few minutes.

For the 1960s and 70s music historians like myself, the song was originally released by the Sufaris in 1963.

Cartoon corner ...

To try and name all the "legendary" cartoons that crossed our paths might take a few columns, but I'll pass along a couple.

We can all recall watching episodes of "Bullwinkle" with Rocky the flying squirrel. It was a truly classic cartoon drama with Bullwinkle trying to be thwarted by Boris Badanoff and Natasha that epitomized the US-Russia conflict of the 1960s.

Aside from Bullwinkle and Rocky, the show also featured Dudley Do-Right, who battled to save his betrothed, Nell, from the clutches of the evil Snidely Whiplash; Mr. Peabody and Sherman, who provided a history lesson; and fractured fairy tales, which gave us a quick synopsis of a fairy tale.

In some ways, it actually was an educational show.

There was also "The Flintstones" that debuted in the mid-60s. The cartoon was an offshoot of the famous "Honeymooners" with Jackie Gleason and Art Carney as Fred and Barney.

We all followed the adventures of Fred as a typical working man, who doesn't remember singing the theme song. Pebbles and Bam Bam, their children, helped generate some cereal products as well as their own cartoon episodes in the 70s.

Loved those foods and drinks ...

There seemed to be hundreds of foods and drinks that we enjoyed in our youth, but here are a few "legendary" ones.

For me, a big treat in the late 60s was TV dinners. The uniqueness of it attracted me at the time, and I acquired a taste for them. I remember there were kids TV dinners, and I couldn't recall the name. Upon reference, one brand was "Libbyland" that could feature a hot dog or fried chicken, Tater Tots, a vegetable, and usually chocolate pudding. I also remember there was a Libbyland "Pirates Paradise," which basically was a junk food bonanza, but it was great as a kid.

As far as Swanson's, I still buy my standby Turkey and I also remember the Meatloaf and Fish options.

Along with dinners, I also began an infatuation with frozen pizza. I can recall watching "legendary" sitcoms such as "The Brady Bunch" and "The Odd Couple" on Friday nights while working on my frozen pizza. There with action beginning at 11 a.m.

The event takes place at North Catasauqua Park, 701 Grove St., Catasauqua.

Jess Finlayson was the Northampton girls volleyball varsity coach and 8th grade math teacher at Northampton Middle School. Jess went to Emmaus were a number of Pennsylvania-based companies at the time such as B&H and Tony's.

Aside from the food, all of us indulged in Nestle's Quik at one time or another. There was traditional chocolate, but I preferred strawberry. It was a drink that became "legendary" in our lives.

We also can't forget Tang. It also had the association with a drink of the astronauts, and, again, it was suitable for us at the time. As we got older, we realized we were in taking a lot of sugar, but it tasted good.

Take a ride ...

There were plenty of amusement park rides that were "legendary" during our times. One of my favorites and a relatively calm one was "the Scrambler," which could always be found at fairs, church picnics, and festivals.

A "legendary" ride that I never tried was "the hellhole." It could also be found at some festivals, and it became a staple at the Jersey shore. Have you ever tried it?

The ride was a barrel in which the riders were stuck to the wall of the barrel by the force of friction combined with their inertia. The yellow lines on the barrel wall indicate the level the floor is at during different points of the ride; the higher line is level with the floor when the ride begins.

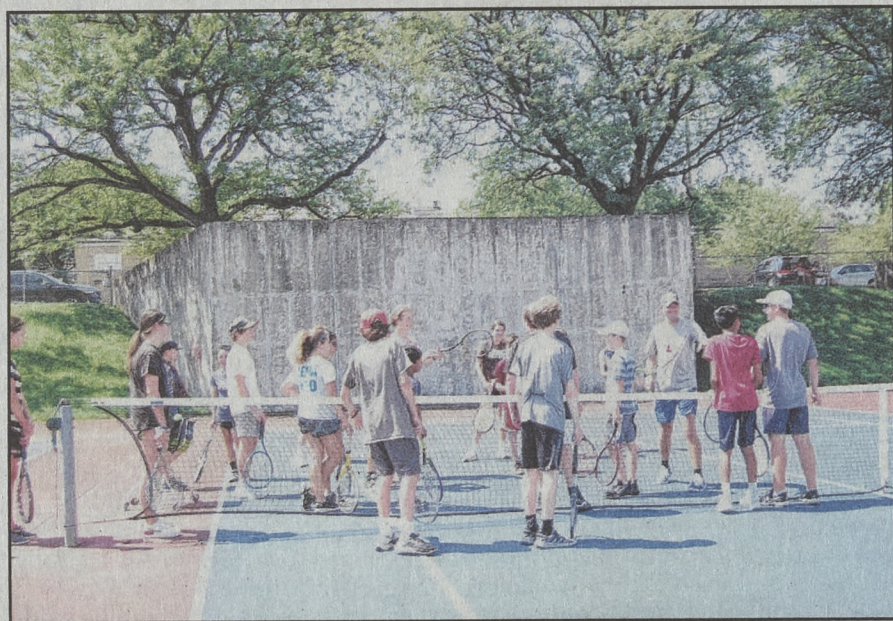

I admit that I was too scared to try it, but there were plenty of stories about riders who vomited on their turn.

Do you remember? ...

Every week, I'll mention a likely forgotten player or manager from yesterday. With the Philadelphia Stars in the USFL final this coming Sunday, do you remember Kelvin Bryant? A standout running back at North Carolina, Bryant was signed by the Stars of the initial USFL in 1983, and led them to consecutive league championships in 1984 and 1985. Bryant was then signed by the Washington Redskins, but had a modest five-year career that was slowed by injuries.

and Lebanon Valley College. She played in many leagues and tournaments throughout the Lehigh Valley.

Jess lost her 2 ½ year battle to brain cancer in January 2021. To honor Jess, and the sports she loved, we are holding an adult volleyball tournament AND cornhole tournament.

Liberty High School's tennis courts are the place to be on Friday mornings for upcoming fifth through ninth grade future Hurricanes who wish to learn and play the lifelong sport of tennis.

"The whole goal is to have fun and get kids playing tennis, and I think they did that," said Liberty tennis head coach Chris Conrad after the clinic's first session on June 17. "I'm really keen on providing opportunities to kids. Tennis is a sport that was increasing during COVID, and it's not as popular now, now that other sports are back. This is an opportunity, since we don't have anything at the middle school, for them to begin playing, so then when they come to high school, they have some background."

More than 35 middle schoolers participated last Friday, coached by Conrad, Liberty assistant coach Dawn Ketterman-Benner, and local USTA representative Angela Jones. Eight current Liberty tennis players also assisted.

"We worked a lot on basics, form and technique, so that way they have some sort of base, and then did some games at the end," Conrad said.

A $5 donation for each session, which benefits Liberty's tennis programs, is appreciated but not required. Coach Conrad believes that tennis should be available to and equitable for all students. In fact, racquets are provided for those who need them.

Future clinic dates are July 8, 15, 22, and 29, and Aug. 12.

To register for one or more sessions, email Coach Conrad at cconrad@basdschools.org. Registration can also be done on Twitter at @mrconrad_lhs and on Instagram at libertyhstennis.

SAUCON VALLEY SD

While the June 14 Saucon Valley School Board meeting's agenda was characteristically light for a summer edition, several residents spoke at length about one of the nation's most burdensome current challenges: Student safety.

Board members Michael Karabin and John Conte joined remotely – and President Dr. Shamim Pakzad and Tracy Magnotta were absent entirely – as Vice President Susan Baxter briskly directed business in a little over 15 minutes, with little action of note aside from some routine personnel matters.

Meanwhile, the second half of the short meeting was dominated by a group of residents – clearly concerned about the recent spate of mass shootings both in and around schools across the country – who say they've urged the addition of School Resource Officers to the district's staff in the past to a mostly-cold reception from the board.

District parent (and Quakertown Area School District teacher) Barry Stoneback spoke first, acknowledging his history of appearances before the board. He said, especially towards the end of the 2021-22 school year, Lower Saucon police have been on campus "almost every day" due to violent incidents or threats.

Stoneback also decried the supposed insufficient frequency of ALICE (Alert, Lockdown, Inform, Counter, Evacuate) drills across the district, albeit admitting the information he receives from his children "could be wrong." ALICE drills are comparable to fire drills, though he said the last time a student died in an American academic building blaze was in 1958.

Jennifer Schmell, who helped lead the most recent push for the district to hire an SRO in January 2020, said the next meeting will feature the highly consequential vote on the proposed 2022-23 budget.

Schmell said that if a tax increase is imminent, she "[doesn't] mind paying more to know that my child is going to be safe in school from now... until he's a senior." She noted, somewhat sarcastically, that the board has said Business Manager David Bonenberger ultimately makes expenditure decisions.

Angela McFetridge – who like Stoneback is a district parent, Quakertown teacher, and has spoken in favor of SROs in the past – complained that an unnamed board member said that a permanent presence is unnecessary because "the Hellertown Police Station is right around the corner."

"Firstly," McFetridge said, "Lower Saucon [Police Department] services our district, not Hellertown." She also asked rhetorically about Saucon's awareness of and readiness for violent incidents and threats, which she claimed were being "swept under the rug."

Not everybody favored bringing an armed agent onto campus, however. Julie Vautrin of Lower Saucon Township said that a full-time police presence at both last month's Uvalde, Texas and 2018's Stoneman-Douglas in Parkland, Florida shootings "didn't do what they were expected to do." She added, "I don't know what the answer is, but I don't think having a gun in school is the answer."

Stephen Vautrin, who identified himself as a student in the district, was succinct and clear in his feelings. "Like a student having a gun, I'm also nervous about anyone having a gun at school. It can't be proven that an SRO is a good guy, but it can be proven that [one] is a bad guy... I definitely think there are other solutions."

Hot dog contest has no losers

BY RUTH GRADY

Special to the Bethlehem Press

May 24 was a great day to kick off the summer for Tyber Medical when it hosted its second annual hot dog eating contest. Nine employees were contestants trying to win the title.

Joe Frasca came out as the winner by eating 9 1/2 hot dogs. There were no losers because everyone received an amazon gift card depending on how many hot dogs they ate.

Out of 270 hot dogs that were made, only 14 were left over.

Why a hot dog eating contest?

"We love a bit of silly fun at Tyber Medical and this was so fun the first year we decided to make it annual," said Toby Borcoman, chair of culture at Tyber. "Our company culture is work hard, play hard mindset while enjoying the daily milestones as a company."

Tyber Medical is a Bethlehem Commerce Way-based orthopedic device manufacturer.

Tyber Medical's second location based in Bonita Springs, Fla., also had its hot dog contest the same day.

Contestants and hot dogs consumed:

Dominic Bellucci - 6
Ian Mace - 5 1/2
Joe Frasca - 9 1/2
Abe Perryman - 8 1/2
Jacob Flexer - 7 1/2
Nick DeLuca - 7
Tristan Nguyen - 6
John Pinpin - 7
Ayden Wilson - 5.

Ian Mace gets ready to eat another hot dog.

Abe Perryman concentrates on getting his hot dog down

Dominic Bellucci indicates he has eaten four hot dogs

Joe Frasco (the winner) chomps down on one of the 9 1/2 hot dogs he consumed

Hot dog counters stand behind Tristan Nguyen, John Pinpin and Ayden Wilson.

Ayden Wilson seems to be doing okay.

Jacob Flexer is halfway through his count.

Mike DeLuca prays for the hot dog to go down.

John Pinpin contemplates eating the last bite.

MAMA'S MUSINGS A dark moment

There is a significant gap of 13 years between my sons. Today I am going to tell you why.

It begins with my older son Erick. It was a difficult pregnancy. I had a partial placental abruption. It was very painful. Erick kept trying to come into the world far too early, and in keeping him alive, I was in and out of the hospital.

He was not a healthy baby. For the first few years of his life, until he was finally diagnosed with an immature esophageal sphincter and put on effective medication, it was a struggle to get enough nutrients in him to keep him alive. So for those years, no one was thinking about more children.

By Lani Goins

A few years later, when Erick was healthier, I became pregnant again. But before my scheduled two month appointment, it became clear something was wrong. I started spotting heavily. I was sent for an ultrasound. At first, the ultrasound couldn't locate the fetus. It was already in the process of miscarrying.

It took a second, more invasive ultrasound to locate it. For a moment, I was excited to see it. Then the doctor explained that the baby was already dying. I was told to go home and wait for it to expel.

It was devastating. The waiting took several days, and all I wanted to do was crawl into a dark hole and die with it. Life went on around me, but I did not feel part of it.

The fetus finally passed in the middle of the night. My husband slept through it. He slept through a lot of important moments. Sometimes it was better that way. This was not one of those times.

In the morning, I called the ob-gyn. I spoke to a nurse, and I really don't remember much of what she said, just that I didn't like her tone of voice.

I was fortunate, I didn't need a dilation and curettage. (That's a fancy phrase for cleaning everything out). It is also a medical term for an abortion.

After the miscarriage, while I healed physically, I did not feel emotionally well for months. More devastating was that my husband emphatically declared that after a difficult pregnancy and a miscarriage, he did not want to try again.

So a few more years passed, and then I became pregnant again. My husband had no enthusiasm about it until James was born, and looked much like my husband did as an infant.

What would I do if I became pregnant again? I don't know. My marriage is long over. And that is a good thing. Still, single motherhood is hard. Really hard.

With the Supreme Court invalidating Roe vs. Wade, there are going to be a lot more women forced to raise children they weren't prepared for. I don't believe that is a good thing. Yes, life is precious. But to call life precious you must be prepared to love and support it for decades. That is not easy, especially if you are poor.

The baby I lost could not survive outside my body. That life cannot exist independently means it was still a part of me. Think about that. I respect others who might disagree. But no one should have another's personal beliefs imposed on them. That is the stuff of societies we have long considered in opposition to our free one. I think I have said enough.

LEHIGH CO. DA'S OFFICE Unsafe hemp confiscated

District Attorney Jim Martin announced a warning to store owners and the public about the presence of items marketed and sold as containing hemp or hemp derivatives that health agencies have deemed unsafe.

Consent searches by the Lehigh County Drug Task Force were recently conducted at several Lehigh County businesses and a variety of delta-8, delta-10 and some delta-9 products (containing more than 0.3 percent of tetrahydrocannabinol) were seized. These products may include vaping liquid/products, vegetable matter and edibles.

Business owners and retailers selling those illegal products may choose to cooperate with law enforcement in lieu of facing criminal charges. Cooperation includes the immediate surrender to law enforcement of the illegal products from the establishment and ceasing any future sales of such products.

Martin said it is important for the public to be aware of such products, which could put purchasers at risk of arrest or injury and are against the law. Both the Food and Drug Administration and Centers for Disease Control have issued warnings that these THC products are untested and agencies have received reports of adverse effects in people who consumed them.

The Bethlehem Area School District recognized Freedom HS senior and Cooke College Scholarship recipient Emma Lazo at a short celebration on April 28 at Freedom HS. Lazo is one of only four seniors in Pennsylvania to have been approved for this distinction. As a Yale University-bound student who plans to major in neuroscience with a pre-med track, Lazo will receive up to $55,000 annually toward tuition, books, meals and board. The funding is provided through the Jack Kent Cooke Foundation.

Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy presented Lazo with a certificate of recognition, telling her, "We are proud of how you've taken advantage of what the BASD offered." She ranks fourth in her class of 455. Among her Lazo was joined by her parents, Mauricio and Wendy, and her younger brother William. She is the first in her family to attend college. Her family immigrated from San Salvador 15 years ago. "This is a wonderful moment in my life," said Lazo, who thanked her parents and the administrators and teachers who were present. "Everyone here has been so supportive," she added.

State Representative Steve Samuelson also attended and called Lazo a "wonderful example."

Bethlehem's Elevate Foundation names recipient

BY SAMANTHA ANDERSON
sander@online.com

The Elevate Foundation, of Bethlehem, named its first scholarship recipient - Catasauqua HS senior Valerie Davidheiser.

"I applied for the scholarship because I saw it as an amazing opportunity," Davidheiser said. "I also really liked how they emphasized volunteering in your community with the scholarship."

The Elevate Foundation was founded in 2020 on the tenets of promoting basic human needs, education and care for the neglected. The Bethlehem-based organization performs charitable projects throughout a number of municipalities in the area.

The scholarship opportunities are for those looking to pursue educational goals and who may be restricted by financial circumstances. Each student is also linked with internship and employment opportunities in his or her field.

Davidheiser is actively involved in many activities at CHS. She is a varsity captain for both the volleyball and cheerleading teams. She is also part of the track and field team. She is the vice president for the CHS Drama Club, secretary for the National Honor Society and a member of the Varsity

"C" Club.

Additionally, she serves as a student representative to Catasauqua Borough Council.

Despite all these activities, she still finds time to give back to the community through her volunteer efforts.

"I volunteer mainly with Jacobsburg Environmental Education Center, where I have assisted with many different volunteer projects," she said, noting she mainly focused on its Weekly Weeders program, where she helped maintain the native plant gardens and the DiscoverE summer camps, helping teach children about different topics, such as amphibians and watersheds.

"This helped me discover my passion for environmental science," Davidheiser said.

She ran her own educational program in October 2021 called, "Don't Leaf Me Hanging." In this program, she discussed trees and how they prepare for winter.

In addition to Jacobsburg, she also volunteers with the garden group at Lehigh Gap Nature Center and "extensively in my community as well as through my school."

As part of the scholarship criteria, she must complete a community service project. Davidheiser does different conservation projects through Jacobsburg Environmental Education Center.

"Recently, I helped install wood duck boxes along the Bushkill Creek," she said.

Elevate also partners each scholarship recipient with a mentor to help guide the student. Her mentor is Leslie Estrada, a Spanish teacher at CHS and an Elevate board member.

"She is actively involved in the community and has assisted with and planned many different community service projects, especially through The Elevate Foundation," Davidheiser said of Estrada.

After high school, Davidheiser is planning on studying ecology and biology at Susquehanna University.

To apply, students must submit an application, along with a letter of recommendation. Students must also complete a community service project for each year they are granted the scholarship.

To apply, go to elevatefoundation.net/scholarship.

The application deadline for 2023 is May 20.

Council OKs alcohol sales at community event

BY CASSANDRA DAYOUB
Special to The Press

HANOVER (LECO) TWP.

After much discussion about selling alcohol for consumption at a Community Days event later this summer, Hanover Township, Lehigh County, Council decided to approve the request.

Council was originally approached by members of the recreation commission, who explained the idea was to draw in a larger crowd.

Council members were hesitant to move forward due to concerns about liability from intoxication. The township manager and clerk approached the council again with a possible resolution that would take care of liability through a sponsored; paid insurance policy, but council was still not willing to move forward.

During the June 15 meeting, the township manager and clerk proposed the idea to council again, explaining Pennsylvania State Police, Lehigh Valley International Airport Police and the HanLeCo Fire Company would be in attendance for security. In addition, the visiting brewery and winery would be the only vendors permitted to sell alcohol and would uphold their standard policy with identification checking and refusing to sell products to an overly intoxicated person.

Despite the information presented, Councilman Robert Heimbecker was not concerned about the idea to sell alcohol for consumption at one of the township's parks. On the other side, newly elected Councilman Anthony Rossi seemed more comfortable about the idea, with all of the additional security measures.

Rossi made the motion to move forward with the purchase of insurance for the Community Days event, with additional verbiage added by township Attorney Jackson Eaton that would require the vendors to provide a certificate of insurance naming the township as an additional insured. The motion was seconded by Vice Chairman Michael Woolley, and passed 4-1.

More information on the vendors and setup is to come.

In other business, township Engineer Al Kortze confirmed the Chestnut Grove basketball court construction is in progress and the final pavement surface has been applied. It will still be a few more weeks until the seal coat can be added, but there are no concerns at this time.

Council also appointed Ian Stout, from Keystone Consulting, as an alternate sewage enforcement officer. The township engineer said Stout is a great candidate and would only be needed if the current officer was unable to attend a particular matter or event. The resolution passed with five votes.

Council will meet again 7:30 p.m. July 6 at the municipal building, 2202 Grove Road. Visit hanleco.org to view the agenda ahead of time.

Pennsylvania recognizes Allentown's Liberty Bell

BY ED COURRIER
Special to The Press

The Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission (PHMC), in partnership with Zion's Reformed UCC and the Liberty Bell Museum, will dedicate an official marker at noon July 16, commemorating the Liberty Bell's hiding place.

Presenting remarks are Liberty Museum Board President Dr. Dennis Blankowitsch, Lehigh Valley historian Frank Whelan and State Senator Pat Browne (R-16th).

"This has been a long journey come to fruition," says Liberty Bell Museum Director Rev. Joshua Knappenberger, "I have been at the museum for almost four years, and Pastor Bob Stevens [then Zion UCC pastor] tasked me with this project on my second day on the job."

"It is a very exciting day for Zion's Church, the Liberty Bell Museum, and for me, personally," Knappenberger says.

Knappenberger credits Browne with helping him secure the PHMC marker

A replica of the iconic bell, a mural depicting its journey, historical items and artwork are on display at the Liberty Museum, which is in the basement of Zion UCC, along Hamilton Street, between Sixth and Seventh streets, Allentown.

"The Liberty Bell Museum 60th Anniversary: The Diamond Jubilee" exhibition, celebrating the founding of the Liberty Bell Shrine Museum in 1962, continues through September.

The original bell was cast in 1769 and given to the Pennsylvania legislature by Great Britain's King George II. The 2,080-pound bell was installed in the tower of the Pennsylvania State House, now Independence Hall.

In the mid-1770s, the 13 British colonies broke with England. Independence was declared July 4, 1776.

As the British army marched on Philadelphia in 1777 to quell the American Revolution at its capitol, the Continental Congress took action to remove the Pennsylvania State House Bell, the bells of Christ Church Philadelphia, and other metal objects from the threatened city.

St. Luke's celebrating 150th anniversary

One hundred fifty years ago, a star was born: St. Luke's Hospital.

St. Luke's has been a cornerstone of the Lehigh Valley ever since. The Lehigh Valley's oldest hospital was founded in the spring of 1872 to provide industrial workers, many of them from Bethlehem Steel, with local access to healthcare, eliminating the long journey to New York or Philadelphia for critical treatment. A century and a half later, St. Luke's continues to honor its commitment to local business and the community, as the Network's iconic star shines as bright as ever.

'Jurassic World Dominion': Raptors' delight

AT THE MOVIES

By Paul Willistein
pwillistein@online.com

On the drive to the movie theater to see "Jurassic World Dominion," I said to myself, "Do we really need another movie about preserved genetic DNA variants who undergo "de-extinction" only to be let loose to run amok?"

(That's a rough translation of my mental note.)

Well, yes, and no. "Jurassic World Dominion" is a raptors' delight.

"Jurassic World Dominion," is said to be the final film in the trilogy of recent years. It's sixth in the series since the original in 1993, which was directed by Steven Spielberg, who is executive producer of the latest. Fans of the franchise shouldn't be disappointed.

The original, a breakthrough in Computer Generated Imagery (CGI) for its realistic depictions of dinosaurs interacting with humans, or more like scaring the bee jebbies out of those in the movie and in the movie theater seats, is based on the 1990 novel of the same title by Michael Crichton, who co-wrote the original film's screenplay with David Koepp.

To recap: the original film took place on the fictional island of Isla Nublar, near Costa Rica, where wealthy businessman John Hammond funded genetic scientists to create a wildlife park of dinosaurs.

In "Jurassic World Dominion," the dinosaurs share the Earth with humans, roaming seemingly at will, encountering all, down to a baby dino making all cute with a little girl at a pond in the park. Not a good idea.

"Jurassic World Dominion" is a mash-up of many movies: "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" (a cavern scene led by Dr. Alan Grant, played by Sam Neill, in full-Indy. "Leave the hat," yells Dr. Ellie Sattler, played by Laura Dern); "The Horse Whisperer" (Owen Grady, played by Chris Pratt, whose open palm, riveting eyes and quiet voice ("The Dinosaur Whisperer") subdues Blue and other raptors in their tracks, even to getting them to turn tail); a Hallmark Channel movie of the week (for its mother-daughter issues storyline between stepmom (Claire Dearing, played by Bryce Dallas Howard, and Maisie, played by Isabella Sermon); "Mission: Impossible" (in the film's globe-trotting chase to Malta to track down Maisie); James Bond, Jason Bourne and even Austin Powers movies (the mad scientist lair of Biosyn Genetics CEO Dr. Lewis Dodgson, played by Campbell Scott); "Swarm" (the film's giant locusts), See MOVIES ON Page B3

This little fish with strong, powerful jaws grows to be up to 10 inches in length.

The humuhumunukunukuāpua'a (sometimes just called humuhumu for short) is known for its bright, beautiful coloration. It is a kind of tropical triggerfish. Many people don't know that reef triggerfish like humuhumu can change colors!

Their color depends on what they are doing. If the fish is sleeping or resting, its colors will be muted and dull. But when the fish is active, healthy, comfortable, and unthreatened, its colors will be bold and bright.

Use the math code to color the humuhumu.

Some time ago, an odd photo appeared on the internet that showed a gray triggerfish with human-like teeth.

The strange photo was shared thousands of times all around the world. People were amazed that a fish could have teeth that look like ours.

But the photo was fake, likely created by someone who wanted to play a joke on a lot of people. It was a pretty harmless prank, but a reminder that you can't always believe everything you see online.

berger, it was difficult to locate two primary source materials as required in the marker's application process because of the clandestine nature to hide the bell.

Philadelphia resident Elizabeth Drinker noted in her diary, dated Sept. 23, 1777, "All ye bells in ye city are certainly taken away."

A Bethlehem Moravian account, written at the time in Pennsylvania-German, describes an incident where the wagon carrying the State House Bell broke down in Bethlehem at Der Platz in front of The Brethren's House. The wagon was repaired and traveled on to Northampton town.

St Luke's expands Pediatric Inpatient

St. Luke's University Health Network has expanded the Pediatric Inpatient Unit and relocated it adjacent to the Pediatric Intensive Care Unit (PICU) at St. Luke's University Hospital - Bethlehem.

The new 17-bed unit includes state-of-the-art technology, overnight space for parents, including couches and TVs, private bathrooms and showers in each room, a playroom with interactive toys and afternoon quiet hours.

"We remain committed to providing the same quality of care that our patients and families have grown to trust from St. Luke's Pediatrics in this new unit," said Laurel A. Erikson-Parsons, MD, Medical Director, St. Luke's Pediatric Inpatient Unit.

In addition to the new design and child-friendly décor, the inpatient unit has 24/7 hospital coverage, support from pediatric-trained respiratory therapists and specialty-trained pediatric nurses, pharmacists and pediatric surgeons.

With the relocation, the Pediatric Inpatient Unit is next to the eight-bed Pediatric Intensive Care Unit for patients who may need a higher level of care.

"We will continue collaborating with St. Luke's growing number of pediatric specialists and the care team of the Pediatric Inpatient Unit, for consultation and management of complex conditions," said Christopher Plymire, MD, Medical Director, St. Luke's Pediatric Intensive Care Unit. "Having the Inpatient Unit adjacent to the PICU allows us to provide even more efficient quality care for children and their families."

The opening of the Pediatric Inpatient Unit comes on the heels of the May opening of St. Luke's Pediatric Specialty Center, the region's first and only free-standing facility dedicated entirely to children. The Network also recently announced its membership in the Children's Hospital Association, a national organization of hospitals and health systems committed to pediatric health care.

At a ribbon-cutting ceremony held June 16, Jessica Haynos, Service Line Administrator, St. Luke's Pediatrics, said, "Between our hospital services and outpatient services, families are able to stay local to receive quality care for their children, eliminating the need to travel for evaluations, treatments, critical care or follow-up care."

"Disney Nature" (its depiction of roaming dinosaurs), and "Godzilla" films new and old (a penultimate battle scene between three particularly gruesome dinosaurs). The only thing missing are Minions (and they were in the preview trailer for "Minions: The Rise of Gru," which opened July 1).

Are you still with me after that overly-long paragraph?

Yes, that's how I felt, too: exhausted at times during the nearly 3-1/2-hour "Jurassic World Dominion."

And, yet, at its conclusion, the dinosaurs and the actors bludgeoned me into submission. I found "Jurassic World Dominion" to be thrilling in many of its chase, fight or flight scenes (those dinosaurs are still really scary); amusing in many of its moments (Dr. Ian Malcolm, played by Jeff Goldblum, is at his hilariously droll best) and to be satisfying in the way the film ties up the characters' story lines and the plot's loose ends.

Moreover, the movie can be enjoyed by nearly the entire family. There is little objectionable language, few icky love-making scenes and only a few dinosaur-chomping humans scenes (mostly not graphic and often off screen). "Jurassic World Dominion" is a very entertaining summer popcorn movie. Get the big bucket.

Director Colin Trevor-row (director: "Jurassic World," 2015; "Safety Not Guaranteed," 2012) keeps the film from lumbering along too much. It's generally well-paced.

The screenplay by Trevorrow and Emily Carmichael (screenplay, "Pacific Rim: Uprising," 2018) from a story by Trevorrow and Derek Connolly (screenplays: "Jurassic World: Fallen Kingdom," 2018; "Jurassic World," "Safety Not Guaranteed") based on characters from the Michael Crichton novels, establishes and explores the characters' psyches and motivations quite well.

The action scenes are incredible (Pratt riding a motorcycle being chased by dinosaurs through narrow streets is a textbook great action scene).

And there are those dinosaurs, which, while not exactly cuddly, at times, through use of animatronics, puppetry and CGI, express the emotions of cute puppies.

The actors are all excellent. Dallas Bryce Howard has the most expressive eyes and projects an aura of strength and vulnerability.

Chris Pratt creates an everyman outdoors type character. While not a muscle man per se, he is a family man action hero.

As Maisie, Isabella Sermon is so expressive in her goal to find out who she really is and to come to terms with the nature of her existence.

Fine in supporting performances are DeWanda Wise as Kayla, a pilot; Mamoudou Athie as Ramsay, a Biosyn official; BD Wong as Dr. Henry Wu, a geneticist, and Omar Sy as Barry, an animal trainer.

Kudos to cinematographer John Schwartzman (Oscar nomination, "Sea Biscuit," 2003, and composer Michael Giacchino (Oscar recipient, original score, "Up," 2009).

If you want to have some thrills, chills, fun and empathy - and dive into a tub of popcorn - at the movies, "Jurassic World Dominion" is the big ticket so far this summer at the cinema.

Median sales price record set for Lehigh Valley house sales

pwillistein@tntonline.com

A new record was set in May for the Median Sales Price of houses in the Lehigh Valley. The Median Sales Price increased 16 percent to $290,000 in May. The previous Median Sales Price record of $280,000 was set in March and April. It's a $40,000 increase in the Median Sales Price compared to May 2021.

The statistics are contained in the Greater Lehigh Valley Realtors May report, which was released June 14.

The competition for buying a house apparently continues with Lehigh Valley houses selling on average for 104.4 percent of list price in May, up from 103.3 percent of list price in May 2021.

May statistics

- Average sales price increased 18.5 percent in May, to $338,786, up from $285,870 in May 2021. The average year-to-date sales price increased 16 percent to $319,731, up from $275,684.
- Median sales price increased 16 percent in May, to $290,000, up from $250,000 in May 2021. The year-to-date median sales price increased 16.2 percent, to $280,000, up from $241,000.
- Percentage of list price received increased 2 percent to 104.4 percent in May, up from 102.7 percent in May 2021. The year-to-date percentage of list price received increased 1.7 percent to 102.8 percent, up from 101.1 percent.

- Closed sales decreased 3.3 percent to 649 units in May, down from 671 units in May 2021. The year-to-date closed sales are up 1.9 percent to 2,879 units, up from 2,826 units.
- Pending sales decreased 2 percent, to 854 in May, down from 871 in May 2021. The year-to-date pending sales are down 2.6 percent, to 3,317, down from 3,405.
- New listings dropped 0.9 percent, to 994 in May, down from 1,003 in May 2021. The year-to-date new listings are down 1.0 percent, to 3,962, down from 4,003.
- Days on market increased 6.7 percent, to 16 days in May, up from 15 days in May 2021. The year-to-date days on market decreased 10 percent, to 18 days from 20 days.
- Months supply of inventory decreased 10 percent, to 0.9 in May, down from 1.0 in May 2021.
- Inventory decreased 17.9 percent, to 660 in May, down from 804 in May 2021.
- Housing affordability index decreased 30.8 percent, to 99 in May, down from 143 in May 2021. The year-to-date housing affordability index decreased 31.1 percent, to 102, down from 148.

Carbon County

In Carbon County, the median sales price increased to $225,000 in May.

Closed sales increased to 77. Pending sales decreased to 77. New listings increased to 104. Inventory decreased to 100 units. Months supply of inventory was 1.4 months. Days on market was 22 days.

May analysis

"High home prices and a surge in mortgage interest rates are slowing buyer activity, and economists predict sales will continue to soften in the near future, but this may then put some much-needed downward pressure on home prices," said GLVR CEO Justin Poremba.

"Current housing market conditions are not ideal for buyers. We know this. We see this. We're taking this information to where it matters," Poremba said.

Led by GLVR's Government Affairs Director Matthew Marks, a contingent of Realtor members participated in a June 8 visit to the Pennsylvania Capitol. Meeting with legislators, including Sen. Lisa Boscola, Rep. Zach Mako, Rep. Ann Flood, Rep. Ryan Mackenzie and Rep. Doyle Heffley, the group discussed the housing market, how record-setting prices and low inventory are impacting Pennsylvanians trying to buy homes and more.

"Our advocacy for buyers and sellers doesn't end with one advocacy day in Harrisburg," said Marks.

"Legislators from the Greater Lehigh Valley were each given a report that details the current housing market in their district, and we were able to discuss directly with them how their constituents are being affected," Marks said.

"Our legislators having a pulse on these issues will hopefully lead to solutions and relief in known trouble spots," said Marks.

In attendance for the Harrisburg visit were GLVR CEO Justin Poremba, GLVR Government Affairs Director Matthew Marks, 2022 GLVR President Howard Schaeffer, Noelle Seaton of Home Team Real Estate, Chris Raad of Harvey Z. Raad Realtors, Craig Martin Jr. of Home Team Real Estate, and Sean LaSalle of BHHS Fox & Roach.

"While inventory is still low, the slowdown in sales has provided a much-needed lift to housing supply, with inventory actually starting to trend in a positive direction," said GLVR President Howard Schaeffer.

"As the Greater Lehigh Valley and the nation continues to explore ways to solve the ongoing housing shortage, we look forward to working with state and federal legislators, and our counterparts at the Pennsylvania Association of Realtors and the National Association of Realtors, on ways to expand housing access through a number of administrative and legislative actions and to help relieve the nation's housing crisis," Schaeffer said.

National indicators

After two years of record-setting activity, there are signs the housing market might be cooling.

High home prices and a surge in mortgage interest rates are slowing buyer activity, with home sales declining for the third consecutive month under the weight of soaring homeownership costs.

The National Association of Realtors (NAR) reports existing home sales were down 2.4 percent from the previous month, while pending sales fell 3.9 percent as of last measure, extending the trend of recent months.

Economists predict sales will continue to soften in the near future, which may put downward pressure on home prices.

The slowdown in sales has provided a much-needed lift to housing supply, with inventory up 10.8 percent from the previous month according to NAR. Supply remains down 10.4 percent compared to this time last year, with only 2.2 months' supply of homes at the sales pace. As the nation continues to explore ways to solve the ongoing housing shortage, estimated at 5.5 million homes, the Biden Administration recently unveiled the Housing Supply Action Plan, which aims to expand housing access through a number of administrative and legislative actions and help relieve the nation's housing crisis over the next five years.

GLVR Information

The Greater Lehigh Valley Realtors is a not-for-profit trade association representing more than 3,000 Realtors in Carbon, Lehigh and Northampton counties.

The association provides professional development and training resources, competitive market information, legislative advocacy, peer review and mediation processes for members, and a dispute resolution service for consumers.

The association owns and operates the Greater Lehigh Valley Multiple Listing Service (MLS) and the Greater Lehigh Valley Real Estate Academy.

Barry Isett & Associates adds eight employees to staff

Barry Isett & Associates, Inc., an engineering firm with headquarters in the Lehigh Valley and seven other offices in Eastern and Central Pennsylvania, has eight new associates in three departments, including Code Inspection and Plan Review; Municipal, Water and Wastewater; and Forensic Engineering.

Sean Braddock, MCP, BCO, of Carlisle, is a Code Specialist, serving the firm's Capital Region office. He comes to Isett with 15 years of experience in construction and 12 years as an electrician, in addition to having served as plans examiner, building inspector, and zoning officer for local communities. Braddock has numerous International Construction Code (ICC) and Uniform Construction Code (UCC) certifications. Since joining Isett, he has focused on plans examinations, on-site inspections and corresponding with applicants and designers.

Kevin Thomas, of Bethlehem, is a Staff Engineer to the Municipal, Water & Wastewater department based in the Lehigh Valley. Previously of Boucher and James, Inc., Thomas has experience in site design and land development projects, construction administration, project oversight, and client management. He is a graduate of The Pennsylvania State University with a Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering, a Minor in Environmental Engineering, and an Associate in Architectural Engineering Technology.

Emily Lehman, of Philadelphia, joined the Municipal, Water & Wastewater department as a Staff Engineer and is based out of the Phoenixville office. She recently graduated from St. Joseph's University with a B.S. in Physics and Environmental Science. Lehman has been providing support on municipal separate storm sewer system (MS4) projects.

Joseph Franzone, MCP, of Slatington, is a Code Specialist serving the Lehigh Valley region. He has almost 20 years of experience in construction with a focus on residential properties and numerous ICC certifications. A graduate of Lehigh Carbon Community College, Franzone has an Associate of Science in Construction Management.

Brooke Koelle, of Allentown, joined the Forensics Engineering Department as an Administrative Assistant. She is experienced in a variety of administrative and property service roles, having recently worked for Jaindl Properties, Allentown. Since joining Isett, Koelle has focused on document management, data entry and research projects in support of the Forensics team.

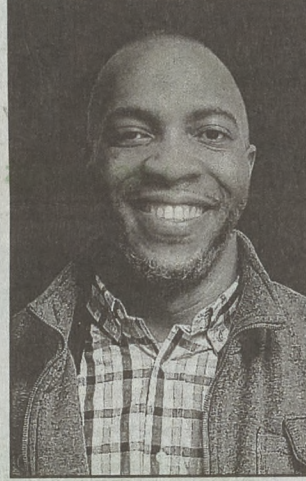

Rock Stahovic, EIT, LEED AP, of Wilkes-Barre, is Operations Manager of the Municipal, Water & Wastewater team based in Isett's Wyoming Valley region. # NCC lauded as cybersecurity center

Northampton Community College was recognized as a Center of Academic Excellence in Cybersecurity at the National Initiative for Cybersecurity Education conference, Atlanta, Ga.

Professor of Information Security in Computer Science Brian Stokes and Dean, Business & Industry Dr. Denise François, accepted the award at the ceremony held in June.

The designation from the National Security Agency, a national-level intelligence agency of the U.S. Department of Defense, acknowledged that the information security program at NCC meets the highest academic standards in preparing students for careers in cybersecurity.

The recognition is, in part, because of the work of the 2019 National Science Foundation Advanced Technological Educational grant NCC used to build a culturally responsive degree program in information security that aligns with students' life experiences and the skills needed to succeed in the industry.

"This degree program can provide a foundation on which NCC can advance strategies that broaden participation in STEM careers, particularly in the skilled technical workforce," said François.

The grant, which has been extended to 2023, included a three-year comprehensive plan to attract underrepresented students into the cybersecurity field, focusing on completion, transfer and career placement of students. It will also allow the NCC to leverage the Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence Program, which focuses on diversity and global engagement in the field of information technology.

'Elvis' has not left the movie theater

- Gillian Welch

"Elvis Presley

Blues" (2001)

Elvis has left the building.

But he hasn't left the movie theater.

Presley debuted on the big screen Nov. 15,

1956, in "Love Me Tender." Presley starred in some 46 narrative

theatrical release movies. Few are considered great films.

Presley always wanted to star in a great movie. Finally, that movie is here. It's called "Elvis."

Though Elvis Presley

doesn't star in "Elvis," his likeness is back on the silver screen as played phenomenally by

Austin Butler.

"Elvis" the movie is a giddy, vibrant and entertaining film about the life and death of Elvis Presley (Jan. 8, 1935 - Aug. 16, 1977), known as the King of Rock 'n' Roll.

"Elvis" is directed at a feverish pitch by Baz

Luhrmann, known for such cinematic visual feasts as director of

"Moulin Rouge" (Oscar

nominee, best picture,

2002), "The Great Gats-

by" (2013), "Australia"

(2008), "Romeo + Juliet"

(1996) and "Strictly Ballroom" (1992).

"Elvis" is a detailed,

impressionistic, respectful depiction of Presley's ascendance from the shacks of Tupelo, Miss., to the streets of Memphis, Tenn., where his career took off at Sun Studios with records produced by owner Sam Phillips.

The screenplay is by Luhrmann, Sam Bromell, Craig Pearce and Jeremy Doner from a story by Luhrmann and Doner.

The movie makes much about the influence of Elvis's manager, Col. Tom Parker, who apparently was neither a colonel, nor a United States citizen. The screenplay posits that Parker's reluctance for Presley to tour outside the U.S. was because Parker feared for his own arrest. His insistence on a multi-year concert deal at the International Hotel and Casino, Las Vegas, is said to have been because Parker had to pay off gambling debts and wanted to continue his gambling ways.

Parker saw a sure bet in Presley. For Parker, a former carnival barker, Presley was a meal ticket. Parker was apparently a shrewd businessman. Parker shaped Presley's public persona, TV appearances, stint in the Army, Hollywood movie deals, arena concert tours and an historic worldwide concert telecast.

While the veracity of the movie's claims and point of view is debatable concerning Parker and his Svengali role with Presley, it makes for a compelling, dramatic and tragic story. "Elvis" could almost be titled "Elvis and Me" or

ANNIVERSARY

Lutz

Couple celebrates
50th wedding anniversary

Luther and Martha Lutz of Neffs celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary July 1.

The couple was married July 1, 1972, in Neffs Union Church.

Luther walked Martha to class his senior year in Parkland High School when she was a sophomore. Martha waited for him while he was serving in the Vietnam War. He came home the day she graduated from high school.

They have two daughters, Cheryl Lutz of Allentown and Christy Lutz of Portland, Ore.

Martha, employed by Neffs National Bank for 21 years, is active with the Senior Citizens of Schnecksville. Luther was last employed by Southern Lehigh School District.

Who's a cockeyed optimist?

When I first met David he wasn't what I expected.

David was president of the Port Charlotte Kayak Club. My friend Jeanne and I were thinking about switching kayak clubs and we needed more information to compare clubs.

When I had an early morning eye doctor's appointment in Port Charlotte I called David to see if he could meet with me to detail the offerings of his club.

"I'm very busy," he said, "I can only give you a few minutes."

To tell the truth, he sounded like a grouch. An old grouch.

I joked with him that I would buy him a cup of coffee, and if he was nice, I would even share my asiago bagel with him.

I got to the coffee shop first and waited for "the old grouch" to arrive.

Instead, this good-looking guy with laugh lines around his dancing blue eyes gave me a welcoming hug.

Talk about the unexpected.

Instead of the three minutes he promised me, we talked for three hours and couldn't stop smiling at each other. I was delighted to find someone who loves the outdoors as much as I do.

When we parted he asked if I wanted to go kayaking or biking with him. We agreed we would do both.

That night he sent me what is now his infamous e-mail with all of three words: "I'm cautiously optimistic."

Two years later David and I were married and I soon learned "cautiously optimistic" was high praise from him.

I, on the other hand, am like the song from South Pacific, "Cockeyed Optimist."

I'm high on life, brimming with optimism. Not much can get me down, and when it does, I'm like a dog shaking off water. One shake and I'm back to my happy state.

I tend to see the beauty in every day.

In our 12 years of marriage, David and I enhance our relationship with differing gifts.

David's gift is his unshakable steadiness. He never gets unduly excited or alarmed. He always stays calm and works through any problem. I can see why he was a good pilot.

My best gift to him is probably my upbeat personality. And yes, my cockeyed optimism.

Our conversation this morning is a good example of our differing views.

When we were trying to decide how to spend the day, he looked outside and declared the weather was going to be dismal.

I had just come back from my morning walk and said the weather was perfect. It had cooled down a bit from our 93 degree days and the breeze felt great.

"It's overcast and skies are gray. They're calling for rain later this afternoon," David said.

"But right now it's perfect," I insisted.

David said, OK, let's just agree to disagree.

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik
newsgirl@comcast.net

In general, I am far more upbeat than David is. I'm usually feeling joyful and I want to share it with him.

On the other hand, when I have a problem, he's good at taking my worries down a notch or two.

This week, as I prepare to fly to Maine to see my family, my optimism I deservest, me.

I made a major mistake when I booked my flight. Unable to get a direct flight, I had to settle for a stop in Washington, D.C.

I just read tips for air travel that said with the turmoil surrounding late flights, the wise passenger should allow at least 2½ hours between connecting flight.

My scheduled layover was 29 minutes. I could never do it. I was in a panic, picturing myself stranded in Washington, D.C., where I know no one.

Plan B was to take a later flight from Washington on the same airline. It was filled.

My daughter came up with plan C. Change my reservation and fly from Fort Myers to Boston. She and daughter Maria would drive to Boston to pick me up there. It's a direct flight so she said I can stop worrying about connecting flights.

It was unbelievably costly to make the change, and Andrea is putting herself in a position to be doing a lot of driving.

"But now you can stop worrying because you can't go wrong with a nonstop flight," Andrea said.

Problem is I had to change my airline to Jet Blue.

That airline canceled or greatly delayed 60% of its flights during April. They said they are working on the problem.

I told my daughters we need another plan for what to do if that flight is canceled and they are sitting in Boston waiting for me.

"What ever happened to your cockeyed optimism? It will be fine. Stop worrying," Andrea said.

I might be a cockeyed optimist but she's the Queen of Optimism. And to be frank, sometimes persistently optimistic people can be greatly annoying.

There has to be a bit of realism, too.

More than 1,500 flights have been totally canceled last week and more cancellations are expected during the Fourth of July time frame when I am flying.

But the queen of optimism says not to worry.

Would you worry?

By the time you read this I hope I'm not still sitting in an airport wondering how to get Maine to see my family.

Right now I'm trying to regain my optimism but I still think I need a plan D.

How to tell guests when the party's over

Dear Jacquelyn,
I recently hosted a large family party and it went very well. However, as the party wound down, some guests lingered longer than I had hoped.

I'd like to know how do you usher your guests out the door politely?

Dear Reader,
Consider it a compliment when your guests want to stay.

Thanks to your planning skills and hospitality, your guests have had a great time.

However, when some guests linger a little too long, it ends up creating an awkward, uncomfortable situation for the host.

RESPECTFULLY YOURS

By Jacquelyn Youst

There are some steps you can incorporate to help navigate the final stages of winding down a party.

When you're ready, start cleaning up from the evening's activities. Gather cups and plates, and draw the drapes to indicate the party is over.

These are subtle, non-verbal signals that party-goers should immediately understand. This step will convey the message that the gathering is wrapping up and guests should prepare to leave.

Next comes the verbal exchange of farewells, which you can begin by thanking everyone for attending.

Addressing the guests as a group or each guest individually with "I had so much fun tonight, and we should do this again soon" will end the gathering on a positive note.

If guests don't show signs of budging, the phrase "I have an early morning tomorrow and should get some sleep" should prompt their departure.

After the non-verbal and verbal signals, the last step in wrapping up the party is, of course, physical movement toward the door. The host should gather everyone's coats, thank them again for coming, and walk guests to the door.

The best way to get out of an awkward social situation is to avoid it altogether. When you issue your invitation, whether written or verbal, include an end time as well as a start.

Respectfully Yours,
Jacquelyn

Recurring stomach ache requires attention

Q. I get a lot of stomach aches. Do you have any tips to prevent them?

If you are having recurring abdominal pain, you should see a doctor immediately.

This kind of discomfort can be a symptom of a serious ailment.

However, if you're talking about the kind of stomach aches we all get occasionally, here's what you can do to prevent them:

* Eat small meals more frequently.

* Make sure that your meals are well-balanced and high in fiber.

* Drink plenty of water each day.

* Exercise regularly.

* Limit foods that produce gas.

The following are gas-generating foods:

Legumes, especially dried beans and peas, baked beans, soy beans, lima beans;

Dairy products such as milk, ice cream, cheese;

Vegetables such as cabbage, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, cucumbers, sauerkraut, kohlrabi, asparagus, potatoes, rutabaga, turnips, radishes, onions;

Fruits such as prunes, apricots, apples, raisins, bananas;

HEALTHY GEEZER

By Fred Cicetti
fred@healthygeezers.com

Foods containing wheat such as cereals, breads and pastries;

Fatty foods such as fried chicken and anything in cream sauces and gravies;

Any carbonated beverage.

Abdominal pain is often caused by overeating. Sometimes an infection is responsible.

Pain may be a symptom of something that requires emergency treatment. There are quite a few organs in your abdominal area. The location of the pain is informative to your doctor.

Pain near your navel can be a sign of appendicitis or something wrong in your small intestine.

Stomach problems are found in the upper middle section of the abdomen. Persistent pain in this area may also signal a problem with your gallbladder, pancreas or the upper part of your small intestine.

It's unusual to feel pain in the upper left abdomen. Pain in this area may be caused by a problem in the colon, stomach, spleen or pancreas.

Intense pain in the upper right abdomen is often related to inflammation of the gallbladder.

Pain in the lower middle abdomen may be caused by the colon. Women with pelvic inflammatory disease or a urinary tract infection may experience pain in this area.

The lower right abdomen is where inflammation of the colon may cause pain. Appendicitis pain may also spread to this region.

If you feel pain in the lower left abdomen, you usually have a problem at the end of the colon.

Don't rely on self-diagnosis based upon these pain guidelines. Abdominal pain has a way of moving around. For example, gallbladder pain can move to your right shoulder.

And, abdominal pain can be caused by the lungs and heart. Or, it may be caused by muscle strain.

The following are some of the danger signs associated with abdominal pain. If you experience any of the following, get immediate medical attention:

* Sudden and sharp pain

* Pain that radiates to your chest, neck or shoulder

* Severe, recurrent or persistent pain

* Pain that worsens

* Vomiting blood

* Blood in your stool

* A swollen and tender abdomen

* Shortness of breath

* Dizziness

* High fever

'ELVIS'

 "Elvis and the Colonel," so prominent is the storyline about Parker.

The movie makes the case that Presley was greatly influenced by African-American singer-songwriters and performers, including Willie Mae Thornton (1926 - 1984; played by Shonka Dukureh in "Elvis"), whose recording of "Hound Dog" (co-written by Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller in 1952) became a template for Presley's version, a No. 1 hit in 1956, and Arthur Crudup (1905 - 1974; played by Gary Clark Jr. in "Elvis"), whose "That's All Right" (written in 1946) was Presley's first commercial recording in 1954.

The movie also makes the case that Presley was greatly influenced by the Pentecostal Christian worship and singing style, even to what is called being slain in the spirit, where participants do fast-stepping dance moves with their bodies shaking and leaping as they get caught up in the enthusiasm of the moment. The film draws the comparison between the exuberant, free-form worship and "Elvis the Pelvis," with his hip-swiveling, tippy-toes stance and "whole lot of shakin' goin' on" style on stage that elicited screams of adulation from female fans and newspaper front-page headlines of condemnation from municipal authorities and moral guardians.

Austin Butler is amazing and believable as Elvis. Butler has the Elvis moves down, offstage and onstage. Butler conveys the young Elvis, not unlike a young Justin Bieber. Butler also captures the older Elvis, the Vegas Elvis, with endearing performances. Look for an Oscar actor nomination for Butler.

Tom Hanks is in yet another remarkable role portraying a real-life person. This time, Hanks is under layers of prosthetics that make him at times resemble Jabba the Hutt (the "Star Wars" series, "Return of the Jedi," 1983).

Notable in supporting roles are Olivia DeJonge (Priscilla Presley, Elvis's wife), Helen Thomson (Gladys Presley, Elvis's mother) and Richard Roxburgh (Vernon Presley, Elvis's father).

The soundtrack is chock-a-block with great Elvis songs, some of which are sung by Butler.

The cinematography by Director of Photography Mandy Walker ("Mulan," 2020; "Hidden Figures," 2016; "Australia," 2008) is inventive. The editing by Jonathan Redmond ("The Great Gatsby") and Matt Villa ("The Great Gatsby," "Australia") is often dizzyingly delightful.

"Elvis" is one of cinema's great theatrical release biopics about the American rock 'n' roll era, right up there with "The Buddy Holly Story" (1978); "La Bamba" (1987), about Ritchie Valens, and "Great Balls of Fire" (1989), about Jerry Lee Lewis.

If you're an Elvis fan, "Elvis" the movie is a must-see. If you're not an Elvis fan, why aren't you? "Elvis" the movie make may you a true believer.

"Elvis," MPAA rated PG-13 (Parents Strongly Cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.) for substance abuse, strong language, suggestive material and smoking; Genre: Biography, Drama, Music; Run time: 2 hours; 39 minutes. Distributed by Warner Bros. Pictures.

Credit Readers

Anonymous: "Elvis" was filmed at Village Roadshow Studios, Oxenford, Queensland, Australia. Production began Jan. 28, 2020. Production stopped March 12, 2020, when Tom Hanks and his wife Rita Wilson tested positive for COVID-19. They were among the first celebrities to go public with COVID. Filming resumed Sept. 23, 2020. Eminem and CeeLo Green collaborated on "The King and I," produced by Dr. Dre, and heard during the film's closing credits. "Elvis" premiered May 25 at Cannes to a 12-minute standing ovation, the longest for an American film at the festival.

At The Movies: "Elvis" was seen in the Dolby at AMC Cinema, AMC Center Valley 16. The sound and picture quality is excellent for a movie musical.

Theatrical domestic box office: Weekend box office results for July 1-3 were not available because of early deadlines for Focus because of the July 4 holiday.

Jocelyn Paczona, Amanda Oswald, Jodi Rodriguez and Ryley Eldman have a fun afternoon at Holy Trinity Memorial Lutheran Church's junior Victorian tea, held May 15 at the 604 Fourth St. church.

Holy Trinity, Catasauqua, hosts junior tea

BY PAUL CMIL
 Special to The Press

After the success of a recent ladies' Victorian tea, Holy Trinity Memorial Lutheran Church, Catasauqua, reaffirmed its mission to foster family and community through its youth group by hosting

The May 15 event, held at the 604 Fourth St. church, featured kid-friendly beverages, desserts, activities, door prizes and a basket raffle.

"The group had a hiatus while we had to address the COVID-19 issues. It was great to see everyone back," Diane Czar, youth group director, said.

Nearly 80 attendees participated this year.

All of the proceeds from the event went to the Tails of Valor, Paws of Honor puppy scholarship.

Heather Lloyd, founder of Tails of Valor, Paws of Honor, presented Heather Lloyd, founder of Tails of Valor, Paws of Honor, attends with Charly, a service dog in training. Proceeds from the event went to support the organization.

Charly, a service dog in training. Charly is named after Chief Master Sgt. Gene Charles, of the 10th Mountain Division, which teaches survival skills for men and dogs. The motto of this special team is "Return with Honor."
