

Golab, Richard J.

Local Soldier in Camp Show

APR 24 1943

Pvt. Richard J. Golab, son of Detective and Mrs. John Golab, 324 Washington Avenue, dons ice cream pants and blue coat of those bygone days of peace to serenade pretty Helen Pirte, Texas belle, in a scene from the "Gay Nineties Revue," staged by the personnel of the Tank Destroyer Replacement Training Center, Camp Hood, Texas, and the feminine employes at the camp.

Pvt. Golab and Miss Pirte were seen in a specialty waltz during the show. The gay musical was entitled "Oh You Kid!" and played to capacity crowds for eight performances.

Pvt. Golab, who will be 22, on his next birthday, May 2, has been in service since early last Fall and at Camp Hood since October. He took his basic and advanced training there and is now a gunner specialist and instructor. He graduated in 1940 at Liberty High School and was attending Bethlehem Business College and working at the Bethlehem Steel plant when he decided to enlist in the Army.

April 24, 1943