Controller leaves teaching job

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Northampton County Controller Steve Barron has resigned as an adjunct professor at Northampton Community College, effective immediately. He has done so in response to concerns that his teaching may violate a Home Rule Charter ban on a controller being actively involved in another business or occupation. His conduct may also have been contrary to conflict of interest provisions in the charter. The college is a major recipient of county funding, subject to audit by Barron.

Full-time platform

Barron was first elected Controller in 2007 in a close race against 12-year incumbent John Schimmel. In that contest, Barron argued that the county budget demands a full-time controller.

"When I say full time, I will be there full time," he insisted.

The next year, voters overwhelmingly approved a change to the Home Rule Charter which requires the controller to be full time and also prohibits him from doing anything else.

"During his term of office the County Controller shall devote full time to the office, and shall not actively engage in any other business or occupation," commands this new provision, which became effective in 2012.

"I'm for it. I'm very for it. I think it's a good thing," Barron told The Express Times when the provision was adopted.

Before the position became full time, Barron was earning only a $39,000 salary as controller. He supplemented his income by teaching at Northampton Community College.

In 2012, when the controller position became full time, the

SHUTDOWN Slow local impact

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastzrsmki@tnonline.com

The government shutdown begun Oct. 1 has been a subject of tremendous debate inside the Beltway and vague effect in the rest of the country. Understanding of just who and what has really suffered is nebulous, with the looming debt default taking center stage as a more visible threat.

Ross Marcus, with the Community Action Committee of the Lehigh Valley, is monitoring the shutdown with an eye toward long-term complications because the immediate impact – locally – has been negligible. When observing the Valley, one might suspect the federal government is pulling one over on us.

"One of the reasons why it isn't obvious where to start is that, to the best of our knowledge, there hasn't been any visible impact in the Lehigh Valley," Marcus explained. "Those communities that have been most directly impacted are those with large federal facilities like military bases or prisons. Even if the employees are essential, many are not getting paid."

Down on the FARM

PRESS PHOTOS BY BERNIE O'HARE

NO FARM TOUR would be complete without a hayride at Juniperdale Farms, near Nazareth. Thulmer family operate this crop farm, where you can pick your own strawberries in the Spring. More photos on A2.

Though commercial farming is certainly making inroads nationwide, there are still 900 family-owned farms in Northampton County. So far, 123 have been preserved, meaning they will always be maintained as farms instead of succumbing to a developer's bulldozer. Every October, Penn State Extension offers a weekend farm tour. This year, 19 farms participated, delighting and entertaining the rest of the community, giving nonfarmers a newfound respect for what really is not a job, but a way of life.

BUZA'S GREENHOUSE, located on Newburg Road in Lower Nazareth, has a festive pumpkin display.

STEVE FINKE, president of the LV Beekeepers' Association, shows off his sweet wares at True Blue Farm in Lower Mount Bethel Township. He keeps about 50 hives, whose honeybees pollinate the pumpkins and other produce.

IN THE FALL, you can pick and paint your own pumpkins. Scarlet Reyes dazzles everyone with her artistry.

Shutdown hurts flu tracking

CDC impeded just as the influenza season approaches

By CHRIS PARKER
cparker@tnonline.com

The United States is poised to plunge into flu season, with millions of people suffering the coughing, body aches, headaches, sore throats and fatigue wrought by the potentially deadly viruses.

But the federal agency charged with tracking, monitoring and analyzing seasonal flu activity has been laid low by the partial government shutdown that began Oct. 1.

The shutdown has greatly impeded the U.S. Center for Disease Control and Prevention's handling of seasonal flu, says Dr. Barbara Reynolds, who is the CDC's crisis communication specialist.

"About two-thirds of CDC staff have been furloughed," she says. "Our job is to find threats, stop threats, and prevent threats from happening again. We are weakened in our effort to find threats. We will do all that we can to stop them when we are aware of them. We are not doing the prevention work during the shutdown."

The shutdown has also affected how CDC monitors and tracks seasonal flu outbreaks. CDC publishes flu data online through FluView, which is not being updated.

"We are not analyzing data from our sentinel spots across the nation," Reynolds says. "This means three things: One, we will not be offering the weekly flu view that gives health care providers and the public a snapshot of how much flu is circulating in their area. Two, we will

How do you feel about members of Congress continuing to receive their paychecks despite the federal government's shutdown?

"Simply put, I feel deeply frustrated. In most jobs if you're under-performing, there are severe consequences. That seems to be absent from the political world."

Tamara Roth Emmaus

"I don't think they're entitled to a paycheck if everything else is shut down. They need to do their jobs. They're not working for the American people."

Roland Grietzer Bethlehem

"It's not fair. How many people aren't getting their pay right now?"

Edward Short Bally

"I feel like they should. They're still working to resolve it."

Nick Potochnick Stroudsburg

"I think it's ridiculous because their actions and choices that continue to do this. People who are out of work can't take family vacations and military families can't get their benefits."

CLEAR SPRING FARM, owned by the Kromer family in Forks Township, is community supported agriculture in which shareholders are paid dividends in the form of 30 different kinds of vegetables, grown from May through November.

FORMER NorCo Executive Glenn Reibman, with his wife Sue Ann and guard dog, loves to tour the farms every year. He almost bought a reindeer.

Z ARCH Barn Farm owner Deborah Zarate displays some of the tiny reindeer for sale at Z Arch Barn Farm.

NORTHAMPTON County farming history is shared by Catherine Miller, neighbor Francis Podboreski and daughter Dawn Fraunfelner. "I'm a farm girl born and raised on a farm," Miller says, noting proudly that she's been working at Spring Valley Farm since '47. "It's a little more work than what I was accustomed to," she says. "This farm was supposed to be under water twice," she recalls of her fight against now shelved plans to flood the area. "It didn't cost us a cent," she boasts of the battle she helped win.

ANNA and Ben Baker enjoy sampling the homemade ice cream from Spring Valley Farm, a preserved dairy farm in Lower Mount Bethel that has operated since 1824.

JUDY KNEEBONE, owner of Spring Valley Farm, says one of her horses is confused. Scout thinks he's a cow. "He follows them everywhere," she says. "He's a real sweetie."

FLU SEASON

not be doing the lab analysis to determine whether or which antivirals (for example, Tamiflu) works against the circulating strains, and three, we will not do the lab analysis to determine whether the flu virus strains circulating are a good 'match' with the flu vaccine formulated for this year – meaning we won't be able to predict how effective the flu shot will be against the flu viruses this year.

"It is more difficult for CDC to make recommendations to health care providers about managing the influenza illness," Reynolds said.

The Pennsylvania Department of Health also tracks outbreaks. DOH monitors flu activity, and posts updates and information on its website at www.flufreepa.com.

Influenza

Seasonal flu tends to emerge between October and March, peaking in January and February. As the United States edges to the start of the flu season, medical providers urge people – especially the very young, the very old, and those with compromised immune systems – to be vaccinated.

Although most people weather a bout with the seasonal flu with no ill effects, the virus can be deadly – there are an estimated 23,000 deaths a year, according to CDC.

An exact figure is not known, because states aren't required to report flu deaths in those over age 18 to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Seasonal flu isn't likely to be listed on death certificates of those who die from complications. Also, many flu deaths occur more than a week after the initial infection with the virus, after a person has developed a secondary bacterial infection or because the virus aggravated a chronic condition, such as heart failure.

Avoiding the flu

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control offer six simple steps to help people avoid the flu:

Avoid close contact: Avoid close contact with people who are sick. When you are sick, keep your distance from others to protect them from getting sick too.

Stay home when you are sick: If possible, stay home from work, school, and errands when you are sick. You will help prevent others from catching your illness.

Cover your mouth and nose: Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue when coughing or sneezing. It may prevent those around you from getting sick.

Clean your hands: Washing your hands often will help protect you from germs. If soap and water are not available, use an alcohol-based hand rub.

Avoid touching your eyes, nose or mouth: Germs are often spread when a person touches something that is contaminated with germs and then touches his or her eyes, nose, or mouth.

Practice other good health habits: Clean and disinfect frequently touched surfaces at home, work or school, especially when someone is ill. Get plenty of sleep, be physically active, manage your stress, drink plenty of fluids, and eat nutritious food.

Vaccines for children

Health professionals urge most people to get seasonal flu vaccines early.

Although the partial government shutdown has interrupted posting of flu tracking data, it has had no impact on vaccine availability.

CDC spokeswoman Dr. Barbara Reynolds says that "135 million doses are being produced, more than 73 million have shipped."

The Vaccines For Children program, which provides shots for low-income children, also is running smoothly despite the shutdown.

In Pennsylvania, the flow of vaccines is also uninterrupted.

"Vaccine is generally shipped to providers directly from the manufacturers, so we wouldn't anticipate an interruption in availability," says Department of Health spokeswoman Holli Senior. "Additionally, the department provides vaccine to (its) state health centers, Vaccines for Children providers in the state and some other private providers like Federally Qualified Health Centers and Rural Health Clinics. The vaccine we provide is shipped to them from a national distributor, and we do not anticipate an impact as a result of the federal government shutdown."

Flu shots: Yes and no

YES The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention urge everyone to get flu shots, especially those who:

- are aged 6 months through 4 years (59 months);
- are aged 50 years and older;
- have chronic pulmonary (including asthma), cardiovascular (except hypertension), renal, hepatic, neurologic, hematologic, or metabolic disorders (including diabetes mellitus);
- are immunosuppressed (including immunosuppression caused by medications or by human immunodeficiency virus);
- are or will be pregnant during the influenza season;
- are aged 6 months through 18 years and receiving long-term aspirin therapy and who therefore might be at risk for experiencing Reye syndrome after influenza virus infection;
- are residents of nursing homes and other chronic-care facilities;

- are American Indians/Alaska Natives;
- are morbidly obese (body-mass index is 40 or greater);
- are health-care personnel;
- are household contacts and caregivers of children aged younger than 5 years and adults aged 50 years and older, with particular emphasis on vaccinating contacts of children aged younger than 6 months; and
- are household contacts and caregivers of persons with medical conditions that put them at higher risk for severe complications from influenza.

NO Those who should not get flu shots:

- People who have ever had a severe allergic reaction to influenza vaccine.
- People with a history of Guillain-Barré Syndrome (a severe paralytic illness, also called GBS) that occurred after receiving influenza vaccine and who are not at risk for severe illness from influenza should generally not receive vaccine. Tell your doctor if you ever had Guillain-Barré Syndrome. Your doctor will help you decide whether the vaccine is recommended for you.
- People who are moderately or severely ill with or without fever should usually wait until they recover before getting flu vaccine. If you are ill, talk to your doctor about whether to reschedule the vaccination. People with a mild illness can usually get the vaccine.

LOCAL

For example, this writer spoke with a friend from Newport News, Va., last weekend, who's witnessing this firsthand. Newport News is home to several military bases, suppliers and shipbuilders. She said about one in four locals are currently jobless, spending their days at home living frugally and cutting coupons.

Marcus said here at home the first complications appear to be a lack of scissors to cut through red tape.

"Within CACLV, our Sixth Street Shelter and our Work Ready Program (a welfare-to-work program) both commented that participants in their programs will have a difficult time getting records from federal agencies because of the shutdown," Marcus said. "This will slow their efforts toward self-sufficiency. This could include a homeless family who needs prior-year tax records or a duplicate Social Security card for a job or an employment program."

Marcus described food banks as another likely casualty, saying food orders for the Second Harvest Food Bank for December and January have been placed with the state, which then files them with the federal government. But the U.S. Department of Agriculture is one of the departments that has been heavily hit and there are doubts as to whether there are any federal employees to fill the orders. "This could lead to a problem a couple of months from now, especially since food banks are still distributing record levels of food from the recession. We believe that other organizations are experiencing problems similar to these."

Marcus said he expects further deterioration if the shutdown continues. "The bigger issue is the debt ceiling, since it is our understanding that benefit checks (e.g., Social Security) will stop if the debt ceiling is not increased."

Drugs

Police arrested a 26-year-old man at the West Fourth Street Dunkin' Donuts around 4 a.m. Oct. 10.

Police said Henry Rader, no listed address, was found sleeping inside the restaurant. Officers allege he was under the influence of heroin and discovered he was carrying drug paraphernalia.

Rader is charged with possession of paraphernalia and public drunkenness.

Drunkenness

Police arrested Byron Coons, 29, of East North Street, around 2:25 a.m. Oct. 5, when he was found passed out and intoxicated in a public space.

He was at the Police Memorial at the Fahy Bridge.

Coons was taken into the police department to await pick-up from a responsible party, and is charged with public drunkenness.

Parking rules still in contention
FOUNTAIN HILL

By LEO ATKINSON
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The issue of handicapped parking spots, which has divided Fountain Hill Borough Council recently, cropped up again at the end of their Oct. 7 meeting. A bid for a handicapped spot in the 1100 block of Broadway had been denied last month because the applicant had a handicapped placard, but not a handicapped license plate as required by the borough ordinance. The requirements to get a handicapped license plate or a handicapped placard are identical, according to the Pennsylvania Department of Motor Vehicles website.

Fountain Hill Resolution No. 2004-001, which implemented rules for the handicapped parking ordinance, states, among other requirements, the applicant must have "handicapped placard license plates."

The applicant asked for a waiver of the license plate requirement at the Monday meeting. Councilmember Norman Blatt said that he would like to grant a waiver, but Council President Larry Rapp and Councilperson Fred Capuano said a waiver could only apply to the cost of the handicapped parking space application and not other requirements. Capuano stated the situation was not ideal, but "it is the law."

However, Ordinance No. 686, which established the procedure for obtaining handicapped parking spots, states in "cases of hardship, borough council may grant a waiver upon request from any section of this ordinance" and gives the council leeway to establish the "standards and procedures" to process waiver requests. Both the resolution and the ordinance were passed Jan. 5, 2004 earlier in Rapp's tenure as council president.

Blatt responded to Capuano, saying council should change the law, and asked for a vote. Rapp responded, "It's not on the agenda," to which Blatt said he would motion to put it on the agenda. Rapp asked each council member if they would like to change the law, Blatt and Councilperson Carolee Gifford supported the motion, but it failed 5 to 2.

"Handicapped people are not treated equally," Blatt said, adding that the council was on record voting not to change the law. See PARKING on Page A8

Joyride

Police arrested two men for taking a late-night motorized romp through the industrial park off Schoenersville Road Oct. 5.

According to police, Reggie Rolon, 33, and Robert Rolon, 23, of North 13th Street in Whitehall, were discovered driving ATVs through the streets and tried to scoot off when police arrived.

Both Rolons are charged with fleeing and eluding.

DUI

Police arrested a 45-year-old woman following a traffic stop on Beech Street around 7:45 p.m. Oct. 5.

According to police, Maricruz Moreno, of the 700 block of Seneca Street, was driving while intoxicated.

Moreno is charged with lighting requirements, insurance required and two counts of DUI.

CONTROLLER

salary was increased from $39,000 to $65,000, along with full benefits. In response to a Right-to-Know request filed with college officials at that time, the Bethlehem Press learned that Barron was no longer employed at the college.

Outside job ban

But a recent review of the college's website revealed that Barron was teaching there this year, despite the Home Rule Charter ban. As an adjunct professor of political science, Barron was teaching two classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday that started at noon and went until 1:50 p.m., with a half hour to meet students both before and after each class. This amounts to 12 hours in the middle of every work week, including commuting time, away from the courthouse. Instead of evening classes, they are in the middle of the day, when most employees have access to the county's purse strings.

On Friday, Oct. 4, Barron was confronted in a college hallway as he made his way to his Local and State Government class, clad in shorts and T-shirt. He was asked to explain why the county's full-time controller was actively engaged in another occupation.

"I'm doing this on my lunch hour," he explained.

"A four hour lunch hour?"

"I go to county council meetings after hours," he replied.

Barron did not return to his office after class that day. The door to his office was wide open, with the county's finances spread out over an unattended desk in an unlocked office.

Controller staff members, who wished to remain anonymous, said Barron was not at his office at all that day.

Conflict of interest

In addition to teaching in apparent violation of a ban on outside employment, Barron's position at the college may have been a conflict of interest.

As controller, it is his responsibility to audit not just county departments, but organizations that receive money from the county. His web page states it is his responsibility to "ensure compliance with laws and regulations, and strengthen internal controls safeguarding county assets."

That includes Northampton Community College.

Obtained records reveal that since 2010 the college has received $393,779 from the county. This year alone, NCC has received $62,508.95, most of which appears to be related to emergency management training. There are also outright grants for $50,000 in 2011 and $25,000 in 2012. These are funds that Barron, as controller, must audit.

Barron was being paid by the college, getting $2,895 per course taught. This year, he stood to make

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY Controller Steve Barron's empty desk Oct. 4. Barron was teaching classes that day from noon until 1:50 p.m. He did not return to his county office after class that day.

$11,580 from the college.

The county's Home Rule Charter requires an elected official like Barron disclose any interest he has in any entity doing business with the county. He "shall disclose such interest by sending a letter setting forth such facts to the Clerk of Council who shall distribute copies of the letter to the members of the County Council."

According to the charter, it is then up to county council to determine whether a conflict actually exists. If so, it has the power to void any contract.

Barron did not make the disclosure to council required by the Home Rule Charter. He does, however, note Northampton Community College as a "direct or indirect source of income" in his annual Statement of Financial Interests, which was filed April 30.

Conduct questioned

According to The Home Rule Charter, any elected official who knowingly and willfully violates any of its provisions, has forfeited his office. That determination would have to be made in quo warranto proceedings.

Council President John Cusick is part of the council which recommended the charter change. He authored the increase in Barron's salary.

"I am disappointed to hear these allegations," he said. "If they are true, I believe that Mr. Barron would be in violation of the charter amendment. My understanding of the language and intent of the amendment when I voted to place it on the ballot and later to increase the salary was that the office holder would be a full-time employee. If he is teaching during county business hours, clearly that is not the case."

Bob Werner, who was elected to council after the charter amendment and pay hike, has suggested that this warrants an investigation by the appropriate officials.

STOCK HOUSE

PA Award to be given to city

Preservation Pennsylvania will be presenting a 2013 Historic Preservation Award, industrial category, to the City of Bethlehem Redevelopment Authority for the restoration, preservation and adaptive reuse of the former 1863 Bethlehem Steel Stock House into the Bethlehem Visitor Center. The building, the oldest one remaining on the site, was used to store raw materials for the production of iron and then steel.

Design services for the $5.5 million project were by USA Architects, Easton; and construction management by Boyle Construction, Allentown. The historically correct restoration and adaptive re-use of the building was initially planned utilizing a grant from the Preserve America program jointly administered by the National Park Service and the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission. Additional funding was provided through the Tax Increment Financing (TIF) program.

Rapp called Blatt's actions "grandstanding" and said he should not "pull this bull" in front of everyone. Rapp called for the meeting to adjourn to the executive session, which is not open to the public.

Earlier in the night Michelle Geiger and Theodore Kiskeravage were sworn in as part-time police officers by Fountain Hill Mayor Jose Rosado. Their families were in attendance. They are expected to begin their duties immediately. Rosado concluded by wishing the new officers "the best of luck in our department".

In other business, council received a letter from Annette Kistler, a member of the Jay Allan Fan Club, requesting Moravia Street be renamed to honor Allan, a Fountain Hill resident and Elvis impersonator. Rapp said renaming a street is "a very expensive proposition," citing the changes that would have to be done with the post office and GPS navigation systems. Capuano added Moravia Street stretched the length of the borough and the cost of new street signs would be significant.

Gifford agreed, saying, "I live on Moravia Street and I don't like that idea." Rapp suggested there might be another way to honor Allan and said council would deny Kistler's request.

The portion of Church Lane behind the Via Thrift Store is becoming a one-way street following an ordinance unanimously passed by borough council. Rapp said there had been "a lot of close calls."

The human liver performs an array of functions. In addition to detoxification and protein synthesis, the liver also produces chemicals necessary for digestion. Understanding the role of the liver can help people make smart choices about keeping their livers healthy and avoiding disease.

Understanding the liver

The largest glandular organ of the body, the liver weighs about three pounds and is divided into four lobes of unequal size and shape. The liver can be found in the right side of the abdominal cavity. A healthy liver will be a reddish-brown color.

One of the main functions of the liver is to eliminate harmful biochemical waste products. Much like the kidneys, the liver acts as a filter for the body, helping to detoxify alcohol and certain drugs. It also helps clear the body of environmental toxins that may have been ingested.

The liver also produces substances that break down fats. The liver turns glucose to glycogen, which serves as a secondary energy storage in the body. The liver produces urea, the primary compound in urine, and makes certain amino acids, which are the building blocks of proteins.

The liver also produces bile, which aids in the digestion and intestinal absorption of the fat-soluble vitamins A, D, E, and K. Bilirubin is the main bile pigment that is formed from the breakdown of waste substances in red blood cells.

Diseases of the liver

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention indicate chronic liver disease and cirrhosis is diagnosed in roughly 100,000 patients who visit hospitals each year.

Jaundice is one of the most recognizable warning signs that the liver may not be functioning properly. Jaundice is the yellow coloring of the skin, the sclera in the eyes as well as other mucous membranes. It is caused by hyperbilirubinaemia. If the liver isn't functioning at full capacity, it cannot maintain the correct amount of bilirubin in the blood.

Several behaviors can negatively affect the liver. Drinking too much alcohol can damage liver function over time, and certain drugs -- both pharmaceutical and recreational drugs -- can compromise the liver. Some drugs that treat cancer and diabetes can be harsh on the liver. Drugs that treat cholesterol can also affect liver function because the liver is also responsible for producing a good amount of the cholesterol in the body. The cholesterol that the liver produces is vital to strengthening the membranes of cells in the body.

Hepatitis is an inflammatory disease of the liver that is caused by a number of different viruses. Hepatitis comes in many forms and is even named A through G, depending on the virus responsible for the infection.

Cirrhosis is scarring that appears on the walls of the liver.

While alcohol consumption is largely blamed for liver disease, it is only one of the many causes. Cancer also can occur in the liver, and liver cancers typically spread through the bloodstream from other areas of the body.

Keeping the liver healthy

Maintaining a healthy liver involves eating a well-balanced diet and drinking plenty of water, which helps to flush toxins out of the body. Foods that are high in fat or sugar can be harder on the liver, and should be consumed in moderation.

People should avoid overconsumption of alcohol and only use drugs as prescribed by a doctor. According to the University of Maryland Medical Center, drinking 10 or more cups of green tea per day was associated with less liver disease in men.

The liver is vital to human health, performing so many functions in the body. So it pays to keep the liver healthy by eating well and avoiding drugs and alcohol.

Radiofrequency Denervation alleviates back pain non-surgically

Valley Pain Specialists, PC

We've seen good to excellent results observed in most patients.

Radiofrequency Denervation also referred to as "rhizotomy" is a procedure initially used exclusively by neurosurgeons to create neurodestructive lesions through the use of radio waves. Today, in pain management facilities like ours, this procedure is done primarily for relief of facet joint spondylosis or arthritic pain of the spine.

As with many other treatments, patient selection is vital. The best candidates for this type of procedure are those with neck or back pain, facet joint tenderness, pain worse with extension, absence of significant leg or radicular pain and without major neurological deficits. These patients have generally failed other therapies including oral analgesics/anti-inflammatory medications, physical modalities, and spinal manipulation.

Risks of the procedure are very low. The procedure itself takes approximately 25 minutes and is done under X-ray guidance. Sedation is generally not required. Patients are usually discharged home within 20 minutes after the procedure, then seen in approximately two weeks to assess pain relief and improvement in function.

Results within our practice appear promising with good to excellent results observed in most patients. The majority of patients achieve greater than 80% percent pain relief on a long-term basis. Some patients are able to regain function that was lost secondary to pain or decreased range of motion.

For more information about Radiofrequency Denervation, contact Valley Pain Specialists at 610-954-9040.

'Push the boundary'

Indonesian ambassador addresses Lehigh audience

By LEO ATKINSON
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Dr. Dino Patti Djalal, the Indonesian Ambassador to the United States, delivered a talk on the rise of the developing world at Lehigh University's Linderman Library Sept. 23. Flanked by a U.S. flag to his right and an Indonesian flag to his left, he addressed a room packed with more than 60 students, about the global challenges facing the next generation.

Djalal briefly talked of his rise from working as a dishwasher in 1980 to his "greatest privilege" serving as an ambassador for his country to his declaration in the Indonesian 2014 elections.

"I am not used to speaking like a politician," said Djalal, though he held the audience's rapt attention, continuing to say that his goal was to address the students and not to talk about his candidacy.

"Revolution was a very strong word in our political vocabulary in Indonesia," Djalal said, adding that revolution can be peaceful, like Indonesia's "quiet revolution," and lead to opportunity.

According to Djalal,

the developing world, a term he prefers to the "third world," is catching up the traditional powers like the U.S. He cited a new confidence stemming from a future of "hope and optimism" rather than the "angry nationalism" that came from 20th century decolonization of much of the developing world.

"My father and grandfather were not hopeful," Djalal said, but the recent growth has allowed Indonesia to "embrace the world" and "add more prosperity." He ended his talk telling the students "always look forward and push the boundary."

Djalal's visit was a part of the U.S. Indonesian Partnership Program, which is an exchange between undergraduate institutions in both countries. The program, between the world's third and fourth largest coun-

Eagles run past Bethlehem Catholic

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Joe Henrich wasn't afraid to give Nazareth credit following its 28-14 victory over Bethlehem Catholic Saturday night.

But Henrich certainly wasn't happy with how his team played at home against an opponent that has struggled to get a foot hold in the Lehigh Valley Conference this season.

The Blue Eagles dominating night was led by star running back Jordan Gray's 201-yard, two-touchdown performance, which helped keep Nazareth (4-3, 3-3) above water following a 47-6 blowout loss to Parkland the previous week.

Becahi (4-3, 3-3) has suddenly fallen from its perch atop the conference following their victory over Liberty nearly three weeks ago, losing their last two contests of the season, as the Hawks are suddenly battling for their playoff lives, two weeks removed from sharing the LVC lead.

With a road trip to Parkland (6-1, 5-1) this Friday, Henrich doesn't feel pressure about taking on the top-ranked team in the area, but rather concern for what his players need to accomplish.

"We need to get things cleaned up," he said. "We need to stay focused and motivated. We're not a bad football team, but we're not going to be a very good football team until we completely buy-in to get all the little things done."

Henrich cited the same concerns he had with the team during their early victories this season as staples toward their most recent two losses — effort, consistency and trust.

"I would have thought the Whitehall loss would have helped us open our eyes," said Henrich. "Our guys have to practice and play harder and we need more consistency I'll take the responsibility for that because we obviously haven't gotten through to everyone with that. You're supposed to get better as a team as the year goes on and we've gotten worse the past two weeks."

Nazareth jumped out to a 21-0 halftime lead fol-

DISTRICT GOLF

Four advance to regionals

By TODD KRESS
tkress@tnonline.com

Liberty's Kevin Zakszeski stared down a birdie putt on hole 10 during last week's District 11 Golf Championships at Blue Ridge Country Club.

It wasn't any ordinary putt, however.

Compared to a par on hole 10 earlier on the day Tuesday, Zakszeski's birdie putt on that same hole hours later was in a playoff hole against Northampton's Tyler Smith. The winner would be awarded a sixth-place finish in districts and the final regional spot.

Zakszeski connected on the birdie putt, and Smith's putt to advance the playoff to a second hole was just inches off the pin. He shot a 79 over the two-day tournament, as play was suspended on Monday afternoon due to severe weather conditions.

"I've been in very similar positions like that before," Zakszeski said. "I just expected that he was going to make that putt. I just had that mindset. I made the putt and did what I had to do."

"That putt was a little nerve-racking because I felt like I had to make it because the putt was kind of easy."

Zakszeski remained with the top of the pack with a solid day chipping and on the greens. A birdie and five pars through seven holes on Tuesday helped advance Zakszeski into regionals after failing to qualify for districts last year.

"I've been steady all year, right around mid-70s," Zakszeski said. "I knew I could do it. I just had to keep my head up, and not get negative about a bad score."

Freedom's Helen Hsu looked to repeat as district champion in 3A girls competition after winning last year. Hsu put together a solid tournament over the two days, but her score of 86 was two strokes behind champion Kelsey Patterson of Emmaus.

"I guess the expectation was to win," Hsu said. "But mostly, I was really nervous that I wouldn't make it to regionals."

"I'm glad that I'm able to move on, but I'm not glad of how I played."

Hsu shot a 39 on the back nine holes, but a few Kaleigh DiNoto and Flannery Johnston brought their "A" game to the West End Racquet, Swim and Fitness Club on Monday.

Unfortunately for the talented Freedom High School doubles tennis team, they were playing an A+ opponent.

The District 11 Class AAA doubles tournament is a classroom that the Parkland duo of Jenna Peng and TuQuyen Pham have called home for the past three years. With a 14-1 district doubles record during their career, Peng and Pham have proven to be in a class by themselves.

Although the Patriots kept things interesting, they dropped a closer-than-it-sounds, 6-4, 6-2 decision in the championship match of the District 11 Class AAA Doubles Tennis Tourna-

"Flannery and Kaleigh played well," said Freedom coach Mark Sigmon. "But playing well isn't good enough against Parkland. You have to play great."

"I was happy with how we played. We had chances in both sets. We lost a close first set despite only holding serve once in five games. Then in the second set, we were ahead 30-0 three times and 40-15 twice and didn't win any of those games. You have to take advantage of those kinds of opportunities when you are playing a team as good as Parkland."

Freedom fell behind 3-0 in the opening set before rallying to within, 5-4. That was as close as it would get, however, as Peng held serve to close it

LVC VOLLEYBALL

Hawks fall to EHS

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Things don't always work out as they're planned in sports, but in Monday's Lehigh Valley Conference volleyball semifinals, that certainly was the case.

Emmaus battled through some early struggles to knock off Bethlehem Catholic (25-21, 25-19, 25-13) in four games, while Parkland moved through Central Catholic in a clean sweep to pair the two suburban rivals in tonight's LVC championship at Dieruff.

Emmaus head coach Gwen Millets was happy to see her team pull away from the Hawks and was looking forward at another shot at competing for the LVC title.

"We'll be ready for Parkland," said Millets of the Trojans, who dealt the

DISTRICT TENNIS SINGLES

Three local players advance far in districts

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Freedom's number one singles player, Flannery Johnston, shared third place honors with East Stroudsburg South's Kaitlyn Poje after the District XI Singles Tennis Tournament last week at West End Racquet Club in Allentown.

Unlike in years past, a consolation match was not played for third place.

"I'm happy I made it as far as last year," Johnston said.

Johnston had lost to eventual winner, Brittany Poje of East Stroudsburg South, in the semifinal 0-6, 3-6, but the Patriot junior was realistic about the outcome.

"She won last year, and this year, I was more relaxed. It wasn't as stressful," said Johnston.

Johnston's biggest challenge actually came in the quarterfinal against Stroudsburg's Yasmine Hasan.

"She hits every ball hard, and she takes chances. Our number two girl [Kayleigh DiNoto] had to play her. I was watching her and getting scared," Johnston said.

Johnston won the match 6-3, 6-3.

"I felt a lot of relief. My serve was helping me a lot, and I was hitting them harder than usual," she said.

Johnston had also defeated William Allen's

Jelena Bajic 6-2, 6-2.

"Every match I play against her takes awhile because she hits everything back. I was glad it was the last time I would play her, and I wanted to make sure I won. There's a lot more pressure during districts because one loss and you're out," Johnston said.

Johnston's first match of the district tournament resulted in a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Easton's Cynthia Blay.

"That wasn't bad," said Johnston.

Maintaining her composure was the key to Johnston's success in the tournament.

"I stayed calm the whole tournament because getting mad works against me," she said.

Liberty and Bethlehem Catholic's number one singles players, Samantha Peterson and Taylor Treadwell, reached the quarterfinal rounds of the district tournament.

Peterson defeated Northampton's Leah Hodge, 6-3, 7-6 (7-4), and Pleasant Valley's Emily Thek 4-6, 6-3, 10-6, before losing to East Stroudsburg South's Kaitlyn Poje 3-6, 1-6.

Treadwell defeated Palisades's Emma Spies 6-3, 6-1, and Pen Argyl's Devin Presby 6-1, 7-6 (7-1), before losing to Blue Mountain's Audrey Abel 0-6, 1-6.

SOCCER

Seasons wind down

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

In the final rivalry game of boys soccer season, it was pay back time as Freedom defeated Liberty 2-1 last Thursday, in return for a loss earlier this year to the Hurricanes.

Freedom midfielder, Nigel Long, scored the winning goal on an assist by Jarrett Clymer in the second overtime for the Patriots.

Liberty had a 1-0 lead at the half, after Stelios Koutsoumbis scored on a penalty kick in the first period. Freedom's Mezen Abdulla tied the game on an assist by Quinn Ackerman in the second half.

On the same night, Liberty's girls seized the opportunity to pay back Freedom for a loss earlier this year, as the Hurricanes defeated the Patriots 1-0.

Erika Peters scored the only goal of the game for the Hurricanes in the first period.

Also last week, a hat trick by Bethlehem Catholic's Mackenzie Bento gave the Hawks a 3-1 victory over Freedom.

"It was a good feeling, knowing we beat both teams in town with us, and that makes us the Christmas City champs," Bento said.

Bento's first two goals were scored in the first half.

Nigel Long, shown here in a game from earlier this season, scored the game-winning goal against Liberty.

"On the first one, the other team thought we stopped the game. I just shot it to shoot, and the goalie fumbled the ball. On the second one, the goalie and I were going for the ball, so I kicked it with my left foot to the far post. It was one-on-one," said Bento.

Jaiden Coyne also scored in the first half for the Patriots.

In the second half, Bento scored on an assist by Zoe Tauriello.

"Obviously, our goal was to get to districts, but we went through a lot of phases when players were injured or sick, and we lost some we should have won," Bento said, summarizing the Hawks season.

League playoffs take place this week before the start of districts next week. All three boys teams earned berths into the district tournament, however all three girls teams did not qualify.

the defending district champions.

"I think we might have been a little nervous early and they jumped out to a quick lead. But I thought we calmed down after that and played pretty well. I was happy with our performance."

The Patriots, who defeated Easton, Pleasant Valley, Liberty and Southern Lehigh - all in straight sets - to reach the final, knew they had little margin for error against a Parkland team that is a three-time District 11 finalist and two-time District 11 champion.

"I thought we had a great tournament," said Johnston. "Our goal was to reach the finals and then give it our best shot and see what happened."

"I thought we battled them pretty tough. I've known Jenna and TuQuyen for years and they're great players. We had to play our best to have a chance and I thought we did that. Unfortunately, today that just wasn't quite good enough."

That's because even though an "A" is always a passing grade, it sometimes doesn't put you at the head of the class.

miscues on her final three holes on Tuesday had a huge bearing on her chances of repeating. She had eight holes remaining on Tuesday, and recorded two double bogeys and a bogey on the last three.

"The first five holes were decent, but then it kind of fell apart," Hsu said of Tuesday's play. "But I'm happy for Kelsey [Patterson]. She improved a lot, and there's not other girl that I would rather lose to than her."

Tommy Archer shot an 83 and finished in a tie for 12th place for Freedom.

Last season's 3A boys champ, Bethlehem Catholic's Nick Maff, shot a 77 and finished in fourth place. He'll be advancing to the regional tournament again this season.

"I'm really happy with my performance, [and] I'm glad I moved onto regionals," Maff said. "You can only do so much when the weather was that bad. I'm just glad I kept my head in it and came through."

Maff shot a four-over par through 11 holes on Monday, and shot a one-over par through seven on Tuesday. To go along with hitting seven fairways and nine greens, Maff had three birdies in the tournament.

"I was just trying to keep the ball in play because there were a lot of hazards," Maff said. "I was trying to keep the ball pretty good off the tee so I had good position coming at the greens."

Bethlehem Catholic had another regional qualifier: Kiran Singh shot a 92 and finished in third place in 2A girls competition. JT Barker shot an 85 and finished in a tie for 16th place, and Zach Surovy came in 18th with an 86.

Northwestern Lehigh's Cole Miller shot a 73, and won the 2A boys competition in a one-hole playoff against Tamaqua's Michael Weintert. Central Catholic's Franca Hurtado won the 2A girls competition. Central Catholic also won the team championships.

Emmaus won the team championships in 3A competition, while Emmaus's Grant Schumaker outlasted Parkland's Chad Hess in the second hole of a playoff to win the title.

Turnovers cost LHS in loss to Emmaus

By TYLER TRUMBAUER
Special to the Press

Last Friday night Emmaus (5-2 overall, 5-1 in LVC) defeated Liberty (3-4, 2-4) at East Penn School District Stadium by a final score of 29-7 under some gloomy weather conditions that included a rain shower during the second quarter.

But it was the Hurricanes who came out storming to start the game as their first play from scrimmage, an 88-yard pass and catch from Doug Erney to K.J. Williams, resulted in a touchdown and a 7-0 lead.

However, the Green Hornets countered with 29 unanswered points as the co-LVC leaders capitalized on multiple mistakes by Liberty, particularly on special teams, to pull out the victory.

"They executed," said first-year head coach John Truby. "That was a great offense and defense out there. We told the kids all week that they would be going after the football and trying to strip it. They made plays and got turnovers and we didn't."

Williams only caught two passes despite 111 yards, as Emmaus's defense keyed in on him the entire night making it difficult for the offense to move the football.

On Liberty's 10 offensive possessions, three resulted in turnover on downs, three were punts, one a touchdown and then three costly turnovers.

The first turnover was a botched snap by Liberty on a 32-yard field goal attempt that was recovered by Emmaus and returned for a touchdown.

Another came on a mishandled snap on a punt in Liberty's own end zone that resulted in a safety, and the third was a stripped ball out of Iziah Avent's grasp that gave Emmaus excellent field position and eventually a touchdown.

Truby was frustrated by the self-inflicted harm.

"That really was a shot in the foot that nine-point swing. It looked like a good snap [on the field goal attempt], he just bobbled it," Truby said. "Then the safety came right after that. It seemed like we were doing a good job early in the first half, but then the wheels just fell off. They were executing and making plays and we were not."

The Hurricanes have another tall task at hand as another co-LVC leader, the Easton Red Rovers (6-1, 5-1), visit Bethlehem Area School District Stadium this Friday at 7 p.m.

Freedom Football

The Pates Donovan West looks to get rid of the ball during last week's game against Parkland. Freedom held its own against Parkland last week and showed some grit in a 21-0 defeat to the Trojans. The loss dropped the Patriots to 1-6 on the season and 1-5 in LVC play. Freedom gets another shot at their second win of the season this week when they travel to Nazareth Saturday night to take on a winless Northampton (0-7) program.

lowing both of Gray's touchdowns in the first half, as well as a 23-yard pass and catch from QB Justin Albert to wide receiver Matt Teurk.

Becahi's offense sputtered throughout, as quarterback Julian Spigner was 5-of-14 for 170 yards and two touchdowns and an interception. However, in the first half, the Hawks managed 47 yards of total offense, until they earned big play TD throws in the third and fourth quarters, as Spigner found Michael McDaniel for an 82-yard score and Freddie Simmons on a 47-yard TD in the final frame.

Spurts of offense and lack of aggressiveness on defense, added up to a disheartening defeat as they head into a week eight showdown with a machine-like Parkland squad.

"There is no exact answer or perfect solution right now," said Henrich of what his team needs to get better at presently. "We just have to get it right. There are things that every player can do better, as well as our coaching staff. We've been preaching the same things all season. We just need to execute and play at a higher level."

things close in the first game, until they finally broke through in the second game with a win.

However, the Hornets blew open a tight 20-18 score in game three and ended on a 5-1 run to suck the air out of Becahi's balloon.

Emmaus dominated the fourth and final game, as Becahi seemed to be mentally deflated, while committing too many errors on the court.

"Volleyball is a game of momentum and we had it after the second game," said Hawks' head coach Paul Abi-Daheer. "They [Emmaus] made some good adjustments against us in the third game, but we made too many errors in the fourth game."

"Fortunately, we're in the same position we were in a year ago, where we lost to Emmaus in the LVC playoffs and still went on to win districts and advance to states. That's our same goal this year."

Allie Traynor had a great game, registering

11 kills and 15 assists for the Hornets, while Rebecca Houghton tallied 41 assists and 15 digs to complement the night.

Emmaus (16-1) now hopes they can reverse their fortune from last year's loss in the LVC championship to Parkland this time around.

"I can't stress it enough, it's all about teamwork," Millets said. "We talk about it at every timeout. It's something you can't coach. You just hope that they go out and do it and we're going to need to in the championship."

Designs, scores good 10-year plan under review

By AMY HERZOG

Special to the Bethlehem Press

BETHLEHEM AREA SD

A plan outlining the different phases of construction for the new Nitschmann MS was introduced during the BASD School Board meeting Oct. 8.

The plan provides goals to be met during each phase and gives the dates in which the work for that phase should be completed. Some of the areas in the plan include a concept design phase, schematic design phase, design development phase, construction document phase, and more.

"Looking down the road, this is outlining the design," said Mark Stein, district facilities director.

In other news, the board started gathering information needed to formulate an updated capital improvement plan, which is looked at every November.

Stein presented information to show where the facilities department currently stands and commented on a course of action to complete necessary projects while staying within the budget.

Stein said he feels that overall across the board the district is in good shape when it comes to its buildings. He also said that he wants to focus on keeping the $25 million backlog manageable. Around $2 million a year is needed to invest in the buildings. He is also updating a 10 year plan.

"We were fortunate over the last 20 years with our construction projects (we) lived off lending. (We) still need a game plan for the next 10 years," said Dr. Roy, district superintendent.

Dr. Jack Silva, superintendent of curriculum, presented the BASD Pennsylvania School Performance Profile. This profile provides schools with core learning data related to school growth and achievement on state tests.

Silva said the core area of achievement is the greatest challenge and that the growth numbers for the BASD schools were better than the achievement numbers.

"Growth is what we are really after," said Silva.

He went on to say BASD schools hit most of the growth targets.

Director Eugene McKee asked Silva if there was an action plan for some of the schools and if the district looking at old plans to see results.

Silva informed him that yes they were and that there is new data available every year.

Roy added the score received was a 70, which is a good threshold. "We are moving in the right direction".

There also was some discussion on the emphasis placed on test scores to measure student growth. Many board members disagree with placing so much importance on the tests and the scores produced from the tests.

Director Aurea Ortiz asked Silva if there was a way to measure student growth in a holistic way.

Silva responded, "In my view it is good to have a lot of data. Data we receive tends to focus on one area; it doesn't give us a chance to show the rest".

While Director Basilio Bonilla Jr. said, "It makes no sense to base learning on a test".

The next meeting is at East Hills MS at 7 p.m. Oct. 21.

The South Bethlehem Historical Society is partnering with Lehigh University history students to gather, scan, record and make accessible stories and memorabilia of the neighborhood between Vine and Webster streets, Morton Street and Packer Avenue which was demolished when the university expanded its campus in the 1960s. Together, through recorded memories and family, church and school photos, the partnership will tell the story of this once vibrant neighborhood before it fades from area residents' collective memory. This story-gathering event will take place Oct. 19 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Victory Fire House, 205 Webster St., Bethlehem. ## Gold Medal sought for vets

The proclamation issued recently by Bethlehem Mayor John Callahan supporting the efforts to award the Congressional Gold Medal to the 65th Infantry Regiment, known as the Borinqueneers. The 65th Infantry Regiment, a Puerto Rican regiment of the U.S. Army, participated in World War I, World War II, the Korean War, and in what is known in the United States as the War on Terror. Despite their heroism and sacrifices, these soldiers faced the hurdles of segregation and discrimination during most of their military tenure. U.S. Senator Pat Toomey (R-Pa.) has cosponsored a bipartisan bill to honor the nation's only fully segregated Hispanic unit.

St. Luke's Acute Rehab Center opens

By DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

From robotic helpers to private rooms, patients at the newly expanded Acute Rehabilitation Center at St. Luke's University Health Network hospital on Ostrum Street in Fountain Hill will get first class care and rehabilitation.

The newly added 15-bed center on the fourth floor will bring to St. Luke's acute rehabilitation capacity to 31 beds. The others are on the ninth floor. The expansion of the "Centennial Wing" was started in May. Officials on Sept. 4 showed reporters the new facility while construction workers finished last minute details to prepare for the admitting patients the next day.

"Our goal is to expand our services," said Director of Network Media Relations Denise Rader. She said the need or volume has always been there but St. Luke's has had referrals they could not admit.

The $2.3 million expansion could "bring millions for the hospital" said Director of Patient Services Keri Weintraub. The expansion will also increase the number jobs in the rehab unit from 42 to between 80 and 85.

But to the therapists who work there, "It's all about helping make people functional," said occupational therapist Brittaney Haines.

"Our goal is to get people back home," said Haines.

watched as occupational therapist Hemali Patel demonstrated the robot teaching a "patient" to regain use of her arm.

The robot helps evaluate the patient's range of motion, and in another mode, using an interactive computer monitor, encourages the patient to regain lost abilities critical to unassisted living skills such as opening a refrigerator and getting a carton of milk.

According to Patel, the machine has different levels that can accommodate different abilities.

"The Acute Rehabilitation Center is a hospital within a hospital," according to Dr. Robert Coni, chief of neurology and the medical director for the Acute Rehabilitation Center.

Doctors from all over the Lehigh Valley may refer their patients to the center for therapy after brain injury, strokes, traumatic injuries, spinal cord injuries, neurological disorders and other conditions that have impaired mobility and function in the patient.

The facility also offer's Parkinson's disease rehabilitation.

"Different disciplines will work together," said occupational therapy assistant Carolyn Rice. Individualized treatment programs are developed for each patient. A treatment team is formed that may consist of a physician or rehabilitation neurologist and other specialized therapists.

The team implements the program which, for acute patients, consists of at least three hours of therapy per day, five days a week.

Michelle Cardinale, the therapy program manager, said in-patient rehab for a patient, on average, involves a stay of 12 to 14 days.

She said they offer the patient a post-hospital stay where the goal is "to get them back home."

Another feature of the new facility is a partial weight supporter that allows a patients to learn to walk again without having to support their own body weight. The new therapy wing also has a therapy gym.

Students participate in Wilkes play

Jamie Alderiso and Monique Woodard of Bethlehem participated in Wilkes University Theatre's recent production of "The Curious Savage." Performances were held Sept. 26 through 29. Alderiso, who played Jeffrey and was on the set crew, is a senior English and theater arts major. Woodard, who was stage management and charge scenic artist, is a junior integrative media major.

Resident selected for honors society

Drew M. Parton of Bethlehem, has been selected for membership in the St. Lawrence University, Canton, Ohio, chapter of Psi Chi, the international psychology honorary society. To be eligible, students must have an overall grade-point average (GPA) of at least 3.3, a psychology average of at least 3.4 and be in the top 35 percent of their class.

A member of the Class of 2014, he is majoring in psychology.

Knights install officers

On Aug. 15, prior to its monthly meeting, District Deputy Jim Hogg led the installation of officers of the Grand Knight for Knights of Columbus Trinity Council 313 for fraternal year 2013-14. Installed officers included Chancellor Phil Comito-PGK, Outside Guard Dennis Healy, Grand Knight John Corrado, Financial Secretary Al Fiore, Lecturer Len Verrastro-PGK, Trustee Ed Ortelli, Warden Frank Castellano, Deputy Grand Knight Dennis Blaszkowski, Recorder Jim Weed, Trustee Dennis Hercik, Inside Guard Georges Gauthier, Treasurer Tom Yencho, Trustee Mike Toohey-PGK, District Deputy Jim Hogg-PGK, Chancellor Mark Marino, Advocate and Trustee Jack Spirk-PGK, Trustee Mark Sewell and Chaplain Father Eric Amout.

City attorney honored

Attorney Stanley M. Vasiliadis of Bethlehem was recognized with the Excellence in Elder Law Award presented by the Pa. Bar Association Elder Law Section for his "superior professional efforts in the field of elder law, significant contributions to the legal profession and noteworthy service to the elderly."

As the only lawyer in the Lehigh Valley accredited as a Certified Elder Law Attorney, Vasiliadis and his associates represent clients throughout eastern Pennsylvania on issues related to long-term care planning, trust and estate administration and estate and tax planning.

"I am honored by the recognition of my colleagues but what means the most to me is being here to have a positive impact on the lives of my clients," Vasiliadis said. "We can do a lot to help seniors and their adult children when it comes to protecting their own futures and their assets. Sadly, even today, most seniors fail to take important legal measures to protect themselves and their families."

The award was presented July 25 in Harrisburg.

Council weighs applications

By ANDREW FOX

Special to the Bethlehem Press

BETHLEHEM

City Council discussed project proposals that include applications for Community Development Block Grant funding. The CDBG, a program supervised by the Department of Community and Economic Development (DCED), was initially created under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. As a grant awarded to Bethlehem by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), nonprofits can receive up to 7.5 percent of the Community Development Block Grant's fiscal budget, according to the program's 2014 application. On average, the program has been awarded an estimated 1.7 million dollars annually by HUD. All proposal applications were required to be submitted to Bethlehem's DCED by Aug. 23, 2013.

While council heard proposals for the program, the application outlines several local priorities and other concerns to be investigated during the approval process. Foremost, council sought to outline whether any of the proposed projects will provide adverse environmental impact to the local community. More importantly, the program application for fiscal year 2014 states that all nonprofits granted funding are required to use that funding within two years, or the grant must be returned to the City of Bethlehem.

In addition to local community impact, council is required to identify that all projects awarded the grant act in accordance with U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's national goals. As a result of a citizen complaint in 2009, the Philadelphia Office of the Inspector General for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development conducted an audit which certified that the city has consistently and appropriately administered CDBGs in accordance with HUD requirements.

In other business, city officials have approved the construction of a 4.5 million square foot warehouse at 2785 Commerce Center Boulevard. The warehouse, which will be built on land previously owned by Bethlehem Steel Corp., will house Wal-Mart beginning in 2014. The new space is projected to employ 350 workers year-round with an estimated 800 or more workers during the holidays. The space, leased by Liberty Property Trust, will be incorporated into the company's online shipping distribution line to compete with rival companies such as Amazon. Amazon, which recently announced plans to hire 70,000 workers in anticipation of the holidays, has launched similar sites across Pennsylvania, Delaware and 10 other states as well.

The next meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Oct. 15 at City Hall.

Festival features differently-abled artists

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Jennifer Fritz broke her neck during a diving accident when she was just 15 years old. Paralyzed, she's unable to move her fingers. But using only her mouth, this 34-year-old Good Shepherd resident produces art in the form of hopeful and blooming flowers, decorating greeting cards.

A defiant optimism in the face of tragedy, Jennifer's wares were on display and selling for $3 per card at Muhlenberg Hospital's 52d annual Summer Festival, located near Route 378. Following fast on the heels of Musikfest, this year's celebration ran in mid-August. Funds raised at this event save lives.

For the first time, the annual festival included differently-abled artists including jewelry, paintings, hand-stitched and crocheted items, loom-weaving collages and more. In addition to Fritz, Allentown's Christine Talley displayed brilliant pieces of fractal art, in addition to watercolors.

Talley, a registered nurse for 25 years, suffers from the "invisible" disability — depression.

In addition to three full tents of arts-and-crafts, there was a bingo tent, nightly entertainment and lots of Philly cheese steaks, fries, tacos and lemonade. But the big draw, at least for the kids, were the rides.

A vanished neighborhood

Ken Raniere
Columnist

In the 1970s, the residential neighborhood from Packer Avenue to Morton Street simply vanished from Bethlehem's Southside, leaving behind dust, tears and memories of what had been. To this day, displaced residents question why the Southside was the butt of what some called the pillage and rape of its neighborhoods. For answers, many looked to the triumvirate-in-crime: Lehigh University, Bethlehem Steel and the Bethlehem Redevelopment Authority.

Looking back to 1865, millionaire Asa Packer founded Lehigh University, which could not have existed without the completion of his brainchild, the Lehigh Valley Railroad, whose stock helped to finance the university. Packer's formula for success was the delegation of two important men: his good friend, Robert Heysham Sayre, chief engineer of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and his nephew, Elisha Packer Wilbur, accountant and personal secretary. Packer delegated Sayre to acquire an important asset for him and both Sayre and Wilbur to assure a key transportation link to the Lehigh campus.

In 1859, the Bethlehem Rolling Mills and Iron Company had been erected along the Lehigh River, east of the Pennsylvania and Lehigh Zinc Company. Packer saw the answer to his need for iron rails and delegated Sayre to acquire the iron company. In 1861, the renamed Bethlehem Iron Company opened with Packer as one of seven on the Board of Directors. The same year Lehigh was founded in 1865, the Borough of South Bethlehem had been incorporated by a petition to the Court of Quarter Sessions at the Northampton County seat in Easton. Nine signers of the petition included South Bethlehem zinc workers, businessmen, builders and a brewer.

Within that decade, while Lehigh University campus was still in its planning stage, Asa Packer envisioned a bridge across the Lehigh River at New Street, which would allow easy access from Bethlehem through South Bethlehem directly up to the Lehigh

ELECTION POLICY

To candidates, readers

As we approach the Nov. 5 municipal election, the East Penn Press and the Salisbury Press, in the interest of fairness, will halt the publication of columns by local government officials and letters to the editor submitted by those running for office.

The last week for publication of columns by local government officials will be Oct. 9 edition.

We will, of course, continue to cover the local races, in news stories generated by our own reporters.

Letters to the Editor, written by a candidate or by members of the community supporting a candidate, needed to be received by The Press no later than 5 p.m. Oct. 18.

By CHRIS PARKER
cparker@tponline.com

A Monroe County legislator aims to snuff out smoking, and the use of the increasingly popular electronic cigarettes, on restaurant decks, hotel rooms and other places that are now exceptions from the state's smoking laws.

State Rep. Mario Scavella, R-Monroe, recently introduced House Bill 1485, which he says would strengthen the Clean Indoor Air Act by eliminating the exceptions, and allowing local governments to create their own smoke-free ordinances.

Health risks

The changes are aimed at saving lives, he said in a June press conference in Harrisburg.

"While one end of the cigarette, cigar and electronic cigarette is suicide, the other is murder. That's because the effects of secondhand smoke have proven dangerous to all who are surrounded by it," Scavella said.

"We shouldn't be requiring employees in casinos, bars and other industries to face health risks associated with secondhand smoke any longer; now is the time to adjust our current law," Scavella said.

It's personal

The proposal has deep roots for Scavella.

"For me, it's personal," he explained. "My father and father-in-law died of cancer. Unfortunately, this year in Pennsylvania, there will be 11,000 new cases of lung cancer and 7,600 deaths from this disease. We shouldn't be requiring employees in casinos, bars and other industries to face health risks associated with second-hand smoke any longer."

The amendment would eliminate the exceptions to the state's Clean Indoor Air Act, which was enacted in September 2008 and which bars smoking in public places. The amendment would add to the list of public places bars with 20 percent or less revenue from food sales; casinos, up to half of the gaming floor; private social clubs; hotel rooms; tobacco shops and cigar bars; and truck stops with shower facilities.

MORAVIANNEWS

Year off to busy start

After about a month of transitioning, students at Moravian are finally out of their summer mode and into their ties and button down shirts. Freshmen have become accustomed to the high school campus. Sophomores have adjusted to not being freshman. Juniors have painfully learned that the next nine months will not be easy. And seniors have learned the stress that the college application process entails.

The second day of school started out, as has been tradition for many years, with an all-school chapel, which was concluded with the raising of the flag and three humongous hip hop hoorays! Another tradition, which was recently completed, is the annual Red and Gold Games Day, a series of sports-related competitions in which the entire school participates. The games were preceded with a vicious battle between the two teams' senior captains in which they rapidly consumed cake, attempted various dance moves, and tried naming freshmen and spelling their names. This year, the red team came out on top, avenging its heartbreaking loss from last year. Despite the competitive spirit of the day, the lion, our school's mascot, whose costume was worn by yours truly, was able to entertain competitors from both sides.

Sports season has gotten off to a marvelous start. The girl's tennis team just won the Colonial League Championship. Additionally, sisters Kara Chyung ('15) and Mia Chyung ('14) received matching bronze medals in the AA Singles Championship. Both girls and boys soccer teams have been having great seasons, with the boys recently qualifying for the Colonial League playoffs. The girls field hockey team continues the trend by qualifying for the Colonial League Playoffs. All of Moravian Academy is looking forward to seeing our teams succeed in the upcoming districts, Colonial League, and perhaps even state championships.

The annual country fair also just finished. The day included various student-run booths, such as bake sales and a dunk tank for students to make their teachers fall in to a tub of water. Also at the fair, was a spectacular British automobile show. The fair also included live entertainment, with various student acts, such as Moravian's very own a capella group, Coda Red, performing such songs as "Somebody That I Used to Know" by Gotye.

In November, Moravian will be having its annual Coffeehouse student variety show. This show is always a huge hit, with tickets selling out usually within a week or two after opening for sale. Coffeehouse includes various music acts, both vocal and instrumental, as well as a variety of ethnic dances. Whether one wants to see students dancing in traditional Indian garb or the sound of "Opal" echoing throughout the auditorium, Coffeehouse is the place to be. Events such as Coffeehouse coupled with schoolwork and college applications make this time of year a very busy and stressful time for students at Moravian. However, everyone manages to make the best of it, continues to do well at school and excels in performances and sports.

Kids love open house

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

If the smiles on kids' faces were any indication, Hanover Township Volunteer Fire Company's (HTVFC) Open House, conducted under sunny skies in August, was a roaring success. Pulling their parents behind them, kids rushed to meet Sparky the Fire Dog, try their hand at the fire hose, and best of all, climb behind the wheels of a fire truck. Each kid was provided a fire helmet and a hot dog ... or two ... or three.

Known technically as Hanover Volunteer Fire Company No. 1 (there is no No. 2 or No. 3), this combination of volunteers and paid first responders protects a community of nearly 11,000 people from fires as well as providing emergency medical service. From their station at 100 Stoke Park Road, HTVFC responds annually to 350 fire calls and 850 EMS calls.

A few years ago, one of those EMS calls was for Judge Emil Giordano. With his son Caden at his side, Giordano stopped by to thank EMS provider Debbie Hughes. Then he began eating hot dogs and instructed this reporter not to tell his wife.

Supervisor John N. Diacogiannis with fellow Supervisor Glenn Walbert attended the open house and said he was pleased with the attendance. "It's great community outreach," he said, and hopes the event will attract a few more volunteers.

One of the more exciting events was volunteer firefighter Pete Garland climbing the 85-foot-high tower on a ladder truck, and then rappelling down. It drew applause.

WEEK

Bridge-builder Charles N. Beckel presided over the New Street Bridge Company along with Robert H. Sayre and E.P. Wilbur - Asa Packer's delegates. By the time Beckel built the iron New Street Bridge in 1870, Union Station had opened and all roads seemed to lead to Packer Hall on Lehigh University's campus. Packer's dream had been realized.

In the latter part of that century, Lehigh Valley Railroad stock continued to fund Lehigh University, which in turn supplied management to Bethlehem Steel. Lehigh graduates were welcome and given secure employment in the engineering and management ranks of Bethlehem Steel. Eugene Grace, Class of 1899, worked his way to president of Bethlehem Steel and Archibald Johnston, Class of 1889, first vice president.

Enter the immigrants - European escapees from hardship and tyranny who sought "streets paved in gold." Instead, they were employed as laborers at Bethlehem Steel, bound to rigid 10-hour work shifts and strict labor bosses who gave 10-15 minute lunch breaks with no time off to pee.

In 1904, Charles M. Schwab headed Bethlehem Steel with his "hard work" ethic. During his watch, clashes with management caused a labor strike in 1910. One worker was killed while the constabulary tried to quell the crowds. In the end, management assured the immigrant worker a safer work place. In 1912, Schwab, the chairman of the Board of Directors of Bethlehem Steel, became a trustee of Lehigh University, which conferred upon him an honorary Doctor of Engineering degree.

After the First World War, Lehigh University and the South Bethlehem community enjoyed a symbiotic relationship. Lehigh students patronized retail shops, restaurants, movie houses and barbershops. The prosperity of Bethlehem helped to produce a greater prosperity for Lehigh. Though not a commercial enterprise, the university was one of Bethlehem's biggest assets. By the beginning of the 20th century, it brought up to a $1 million every year to the city's economy.

Second and third generation Americans born to immigrants earlier in the century enjoyed the fruits of the middle class. Steady work at Bethlehem Steel, assured through the establishment of bargaining rights, enabled them to clothe and feed their children, send them to Lehigh University or to other schools, and something many families waited a lifetime for - buy a house.

Ethnic neighborhoods evolved around ethnic churches built with every cent congregations earned by sweat. Families cultivated backyard gardens filled with vegetables, grape vines and rose bowers. Between Fourth Street and Packer Avenue on either side of New Street, homes built in Mayor Robert Pfeifle's era, were solidly constructed and stylishly appointed: porches and garages, leaded glass and amethyst doorknobs. This first and second-generation American neighborhood sloped lower than Packer Hall and Packer Memorial Church whose towers loomed skyward. Nothing could possibly violate this safe and idyllic Southside setting.

After the Depression and WWII, Southside Bethlehem and cities like it around the nation seemed in decline. Returning G.I.s earned good salaries at Bethlehem Steel, which afforded them new homes in established "suburbs" with shopping malls and convenient parking. Parents and grandparents they left behind in their old neighborhoods struggled on limited incomes. As local businesses suffered and closed, the end result was "blight."

In 1956, Bethlehem reviewed plans to build a City Center on Church Street that would block New Street Dedicated in 1967, the complex included a new public library across from the new city hall with offices for the mayor, city officials and a police department. Left empty, the former Municipal Market House, which had housed the mayor and police department, on the corner of East Third and Adams Street added to the Southside's "blight."

Ten years later in 1966, President Lyndon Johnson announced his "war on poverty," while Bethlehem Mayor Gordon Payrow issued his "Demonstration City Program," designed to abolish slums and "blighted" areas of racial strife and high crime rates. For 40 years, though Lehigh University advanced academically, the physical campus could not sustain its mission of cutting-edge education. Based on a mindset of divine right set forth by Asa Packer himself, the campus needed to grow. In 1964, Lehigh's master plan for expansion, the "Packer Avenue Urban Renewal Project," would thrust the campus into the neighborhood down the slope on both sides of New Street, from Packer Avenue to Morton Street and from Webster Street to Vine.

To acquire these properties, the university welcomed support from Bethlehem Steel, the Bethlehem Redevelopment Authority, and "straw buyers." By neglecting the properties, they would appear "blighted" in order to qualify for funds under the federal Urban Renewal Plan. In effect, a perfect storm had succeeded to expand the university campus.

Vine Street resident, Anna Pongracz, became a champion of those who lost their homes in the Packer Avenue Urban Renewal Project. After the entire neighborhood had been leveled, she said, "It's not that they took our homes but how they took them."

Fifty years later, the vanished neighborhood is Lehigh University's expanded Asa Packer campus with technological facilities that include the Fairchild-Martindale Library and Computing Center, Mart Science and Engineering Library, the College of Arts and Sciences at Maginnes Hall, Sinclair Laboratory, Neville Hall, Seeley G. Mudd Building, Whitaker Laboratory, Campus Square and STEPS: Science, Technology, Environment, Policy and Society Building.

To help tell the story of this Southside neighborhood that vanished, South Bethlehem Historical Society and Lehigh University students are collaborating to interview, scan, document and make accessible the memories and photographs of family members, church groups and students who once lived on both sides of New Street, from Packer Avenue to Morton Street and from Webster Street to Vine Street - a vibrant neighborhood that was demolished during the university expansion in the 1960s.

Before this neighborhood fades from memory, tell your story and have your artifacts scanned or photographed on Saturday, Oct. 19, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Victory Fire House, 205 Webster St., Southside Bethlehem.

"God Saw Their Works"

With the stench from his days in the belly of the whale and sweating heavily after running the three-day journey in a day, Jonah must have been a ghastly sight as he urgently relayed God's grim message: "Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown!" The 600,000 residents of Nineveh were convinced and convicted by the messenger and message! Jonah 3:5 states, "So the people of Nineveh believed God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them even to the least." Their humble response showed deep repentance! Even the king "laid his robe from him, and covered him with sackcloth, and sat in ashes. And...proclaimed...cry mightily unto God: yea...turn every one from his evil way" (vs. 6-8). It was the world's greatest revival!

Jonah 3:10 says, "And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil...and he did it not." God saw their humility as they cried "mightily unto God" and God saw the fruit of their sincere repentance as "they turned from their evil way!" In Luke 3:8, John the Baptist commanded those who came to be baptized by him, "Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance!" God sees your works are "worthy of repentance" when you sincerely "Amend your ways and your doings" (Jeremiah 26:13). Daniel knew that God looks for evidence of genuine repentance, so he told King Nebuchadnezzar, "Break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by shewing mercy to the poor" (Daniel 4:27).

If there is sin in your life, you are under the judgment of God. I urge you to believe God and humble yourself in genuine repentance as did the people of Nineveh. Accept God's mercy and forgiveness through Christ's sacrifice on the cross. Isaiah declared, "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the LORD, and he will have mercy upon him" (Isaiah 55:7).

Male ensemble, "Spring Awakening," through Oct. 27, Civic Theater of Allentown, 527 N. 19th St., Allentown

A real 'Awakening' for Civic season

Tony Award-winner furthers theater's Valley niche

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Focus Editor

"Spring Awakening" continues Civic Theater of Allentown's philosophy of debuting edgy works in the Lehigh Valley.

The Tony Award-winning musical, in its Lehigh Valley debut through Oct. 27, opened Civic's main stage 2013-'14 season.

"We've been trying to do it for about three to five years," says Civic Artistic Director William Sanders, who is directing "Spring Awakening," with music direction by Justin Brehm. "The moment I saw it, I wanted to do it," Sanders says.

"Spring Awakening" received eight Tonys of 11 nominations in 2007, including Musical, Director, Book, Choreography, Orchestrations, Lighting Design and Featured Actor. The original cast recording received the 2008 Grammy for Musical Show Album.

"It is very much like

SPOTLIGHT ON

'Rent' because of its rock score," says Sanders, emphasizing, "It's different because it's based on a play from 1891."

"It's about young people finding their voice. But they're very much younger than the characters in 'Rent.' They're going through very different self-discoveries."

The original play is by Frank Wedekind. The rock score is by Duncan Sheik with book and lyrics Steven Sater.

"It's really a play with music. The songs don't advance the plot. They're inner monologues. So, every time we go to song, it's like a concert," says Sanders.

The play takes place against the backdrop of life in provincial late 19th century Germany, seen through the eyes of three teen-agers.

"Spring Awakening" has a young cast, mostly teenagers to young 20s. The show stars Nina Attinello as Wendla and Michael Barthel as Melchior.

Also featured are Alexander Michaels as Moritz, Bryan Dougherty as Hanschen, Morgan Reilly as Ilse, Johnny Schaffer as Otto, Aria Sivick as Thea, Tommy Walters as Ernst, Kayla Weinerman as Martha, William West as Georg, Gabrielle Whitney as Anna, JoAnn Basist as Adult Female and Robert Torres as Adult Male. Emma Anthony, Melissa Egan, Meredith Lipson, Andrew Schaffer, Robert Stinner and Davis Weaver round out the cast.

"The thing that's fascinating is that the play was written in 1891, but it wasn't performed until 1906 because the material and the situations that were in it were shocking. And they're still shocking today," Sanders says.

"I really feel that my vision and the theater's vision started with 'The Normal Heart' in 1992. I was really passionate about bringing new works to the Valley."

"This certainly goes along with that vision. It's not only musicals. It's plays, too. And I feel that 'Spring Awakening' melds those two," says Sanders.

"I would like it to become Civic's niche. You're going to have an evening of not really mainstream material. Last season, it really worked for us."

It's a balancing act, Sanders said. Last season at Civic was "August: Osage County," "Next to Normal," "Gypsy" and the annual "A Christmas Carol."

Civic's 2013-'14 season, in addition to "Christmas Carol," Dec. 6-21, includes "Other Desert Cities," Feb. 28 - March 9, 2014, and "Urinetown," May 2 - 17, 2014.

Taking 'Notations' from Bathsheba Monk

By JAQUELINA SERFASS
Special to The Press

Lehigh Valley author Bathsheba Monk, who gives a talk as part of Lehigh University's "Notations" series, 7 p.m. Oct. 22, Butz Lobby, Zoellner Arts Center, 420 E. Packer Avenue, Bethlehem, has embarked on a new quest: teen fiction.

Monk, the author of "Now You See It ... Stories from Cokesville, Pa.," a Chicago Tribune Best Book of 2006, and two novels, "Dead Wrong" and "Nude Walker," isn't taking a typical approach to the young adult genre.

"The very essence of being a teen is that you may be having a hard time now, but you are already a person — and now is the time to start affecting your future by becoming the person you want to be. You have control over that. You just have to seize it," says Monk.

"Cokesville" and "Nude Walker" have their roots in Monk's hometown of

Literary Scene

Bethlehem. Monk is now writing a series of mysteries which have as their protagonist a blue-collar sleuth from Boston, Mass., where Monk, an Army veteran, lived and went to school.

To tell her stories in a different light, Monk masterfully ties serious themes to comical situations through real-life struggles.

The theme of Monk's "Notations" talk will be "you are the story you tell about yourself" and the joys and problems that arise when everyone in the digital has a megaphone to broadcast that story, i.e., YouTube, Facebook, Twitter, blogs and on-line radio.

Monk has been active in the Lehigh Valley writing scene, and The Memoir Writing Conference, which she organized at ArtsQuest, SteelStacks, Bethlehem, in 2012, may be echoed in her talk at Lehigh. Conference attendees shared their memoirs in a collective presentation. In hearing the stories, Monk became enthralled by the originality of their voices, the content, and, most importantly, motivated to getting their stories heard.

With this in mind, Monk has launched a publishing company, PLMG Publishing, which specializes mystery and young adult series novels and memoirs. One memoir is "Last Call," by Paul Heller, a brutally honest journal of his caring for his mother who had Alzheimer's. Two more publications are expected by year's end. One is described as the recollections of an ex-Bethlehem Steel worker and the other about a woman starting over, only to face further crises.

That blue-collar sleuth is part of the new Swanson Herbinko Mystery Series, which displays a shift from literary fiction to genre fiction for Monk. The inspiration for the protagonist, Swanson Herbinko, came from her temp work as a legal secretary in big and small Boston law offices while attending Emerson College, where she received an MFA.

Monk collected her experiences from the integrity, humor and hard work of the women she encountered while at work. The first book in the series, "Dead Wrong," was published in September. A second book, "Dead Silence," is next.

Monk's second young adult novel is expected to be published by year's end.

Monk has written opinion pieces for The New York Times Sunday Magazine and the Los Angeles Times and book reviews for the Stars and Stripes newspaper.

Lynnie Godfrey brings 'Jazz Upstairs' at Hall Symphony Hall

By JERRY DUCKETT
Special to The Press

Among the awards Lynnie Godfrey has amassed during her entertainment career are a Drama Desk nomination for her Broadway debut in "Eubie!" and Dramalogue and NAACP Awards for her supporting actress outstanding performance in "No Place To Be Somebody."

Godfrey appears in the "Jazz Upstairs" series, 7:30 p.m. Oct. 18, Rodale Community Room, Miller Symphony Hall, 23 N. Sixth St., Allentown.

In addition to "Eubie!" on Broadway, she's had roles on the TV shows, "Brewster Place" and "L.A. Law," and was in the movie, "VI. Warshawski."

Her Symphony Hall performance feature songs by Johnny Mercer, Henry Mancini, Duke Ellington, Cole Porter and Irving Berlin.

Backing her up are: Roger Latzgo, piano; Tom Hamilton, tenor sax; Gene Perla, bass; and Gary Rissmiller, drums.

Songs and singing began in her youth, Godfrey says in an interview from her home in North Whitehall Township.

"My mother was a professional singer, but when I was three she stopped singing commercially and brought me into her church to sing hymns."

"By the time I was nine, and in middle school, I was introduced to my voice teacher, Dr. Chauncey Northern Sr. of Carnegie Hall. He was the music director of my mother's church. She had me sing a song for him, and he was greatly impressed."

"He told her that I had a very low voice, but that I was still a soprano, and he could develop my voice. Today, my voice ranges from very low to very high. I studied with him until his death at 90 in 1992."

Godfrey attended voice classes twice a week through junior and senior high school, but didn't join the usual choral groups. She had her sights set on singing in a club.

After graduation from high school she attended Hampton University. In her freshman there, she said her speech teacher, Marjorie Moon, now music director of the Billie Holiday Theater, New York City, told her "I like the way you speak, and I think you should audition for our theater production, 'Sister Sonji.'" The production was about a student who was going to go to Hunter College, and that's where Godfrey was headed next.

Lloyd Richards, who directed "Raisin in the Sun" on Broadway, was teaching a black theater history course at Hunter and became Godfrey's mentor for the next three years. Richards taught her teaching, acting and directing, and did not allow her to audition for non college shows until she graduated.

Upon graduation from Hunter in 1976, Godfrey took a job at a theater in Greenwich Village in New York City, which led to many auditions, including "Ragtime Blues" and "Shuffle Along," with the latter revamped into "Eubie!"

Rave reviews for her performance in "Eubie!" was followed by the musical "Stringbean." In 2002, at the urging of her husband, she produced her own one-woman show, "Ladies of Song," a tribute to Ethel Waters, Sarah Vaughn and Ella Fitzgerald.

"I still keep my voice in shape by doing the exercises Northern Sr. and another teacher taught me. I also warm up with them [the exercises] before every performance, and constantly travel to seminars to hear other voices."

"I'm always getting requests to teach, and I guess I could do that a little, but I don't think people understand the voice enough. It's a muscle and it has to be exercised all the time. You cannot abuse it or you will lose it."

Godfrey plans to release an as-yet untitled CD in January.

HEALTHY
GEEZERBy Fred
Cicetti
fred@healthygeezzer.comThree from the mailbagQ. What happens when you have a heart valve that leaks?

Valves can malfunction and strain the heart. If a valve doesn't close properly, blood will flow backward. This is called regurgitation.

If valve flaps don't open correctly, they prevent blood from flowing through them. This is called stenosis.

Advanced valve disease can cause blood clots, stroke or sudden death from cardiac arrest.

For seniors, there is a problem with the flaps of the aortic and mitral valves. They thicken and harden with age, making blood flow more difficult. These changes may lead to complications in people with heart disease.

People with malfunctioning valves who don't have serious symptoms may not need treatment. Medicine can help with symptoms but don't fix a bad valve. Surgery or a less invasive procedure is often needed to correct valve disease.

Q. I see mentions of gluten on food packages. What's that all about?

Celiac disease is a digestive ailment that damages the small intestine and interferes with nutrition. People with celiac disease cannot tolerate a protein called gluten, which is in wheat, rye, and barley.

Celiac disease is commonly under-diagnosed because some of its symptoms are similar to those of other diseases. Celiac disease often is confused with irritable bowel syndrome, iron-deficiency anemia, Crohn's disease, diverticulitis, intestinal infections and chronic fatigue syndrome.

The only treatment for celiac disease is to follow a gluten-free diet. For most

Couple plans
August 2014 nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roland of Allentown announce the engagement of their daughter, Faith, to Ryan Quilling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Quilling, also of Allentown.

The bride-elect received a Master's in business administration and a marketing degree from Bloomsburg University.

She is employed by Clear Channel Airports.

Her fiancé received a degree in finance from Bloomsburg University.

He is employed by PPL.

The couple is planning an August 2014 wedding.

people, following this diet will stop symptoms, heal existing intestinal damage and prevent further damage.

The obvious foods with gluten are breads, pastas, and cereals. But, gluten is also in many processed foods such as frozen French-fried potatoes and soy sauce. Many products such as cosmetics, household cleansers, stamp and envelope adhesive, medicines and vitamins contain gluten.

There are gluten-free substitutes for many problematic foods. Many cities have specialty grocery stores that sell these gluten-free substitutes.

Q. How often should we wash our hands?

Here's a list of some important before and afters for washing your hands:

Before and after preparing food.

Before eating;

After going to the bathroom;

After changing a diaper;

After touching animals;

Before and after treating wounds;

After blowing your nose;

After coughing or sneezing into your hands;

Before and after touching a sick or injured person;

After handling garbage; and

Before inserting or removing contact lenses.

Washing your hands with soap and water works well. Here are the correct techniques:

Wet your hands with warm, running water.

Rub on soap and make a thick lather.

Scrub vigorously over every surface of your hands and wrists for about 20 seconds.

Use a scrub brush to get under your fingernails.

Rinse completely.

Dry your hands with a disposable paper towel or air dryer.

Use the paper towel to shut the faucet.

A new meaning of abundance

I love bookstores and libraries.

I like libraries best because there is no end to the fascinating free offerings. Each week when I go there I walk away with four or five books and some free periodicals. This week, as I browsed through the library, I found some quirky books and magazines. Intrigued by its title, I flipped through the book, "The Art of Over Eating. (I do that far too often.)"

But its advice is flaky, at best. "Never weigh yourself with your glasses on," said the author. "That way, you can say you weigh whatever you want."

The periodical that caught my eye had this attention-getting cover story: "Money is not the root of all evil. Money is awesome." At first glance, the magazine seemed to be about the pursuit of more money.

That flies in the face of what is going on in many places today where doing with less is prevalent.

Many do with less because they are forced to. They struggle to pay for housing and food. Others do with less because they realize it's the smart way to live. There are better ways to spend one's life than accumulating money.

I was especially turned off by the magazine cover with the blazing headline: Embracing Abundance.

I was especially turned off because I had just come from the food kitchen of a local church. "You'll see a lot of people here who never had to ask for help before," said the pastor. "Before they lost their jobs, they were the ones bringing food for the poor. Now, they are the ones who need it," he said.

The pastor told me heartbreaking stories about families forced to live in a car when they could no longer afford to pay rent. The statistics about children living in that situation are hard to believe.

When most of us hear that, we respond by saying: "Can't they do something about those kids?"

Well, yes. But first you have to understand you are part of the "they" that can make a difference to hurting families.

I believe that people are basically good and they want to do good. When people hear about a way they can help, they always respond. It's been my privilege to write story after story about good people reaching out to help others.

But with all that as background, it goes against the grain to see a magazine devoted to the theme: Embracing Abundance.

I'm happy to say the mistake is mine. When I read through the magazine, it wasn't advocating chasing after material things.

Abundance means different things to different people. Sure, for many, having abundance means having money - enough money to make you secure.

But abundance means something greater to many others.

I like the way motivational speaker Ricky Roberts phrased it. Reminding us that abundance is more than money we have and things we own, he says: "Abundance is in the air we breathe. The sounds we hear. The sights we see."

"It is in the capacity to feel love. The family and friends we have."

"The people we inspire and help."

"The experiences we are given to learn and grow from."

While many motivational experts have told us their ideas about the meaning of abundance, I like Roberts' thoughts best.

When we think about abundance as being family and friends who help shape our lives, it takes on greater meaning.

This week I sure had abundance after I called my friend Jeanne and suggested we take advantage of what may be the last of our perfect swimming weather by spending a day at the beach.

The water was perfect, the beach was wonderful and it was a delicious day in every respect. As we floated on the tranquil sea, I thought once again that I was being treated to the riches of life.

Every now and then we read about the "abundance mentality." There have been some interesting articles written about the abundance mentality in business and even in our love relationships.

We're told the abundance mentality is recognizing that there are always new chances and new opportunities.

I believe developing an abundance mentality also means having an appreciation for every single thing in life.

It's been said that abundance is a state of mind, not a physical reality. I think that is so true.

Friends of mine saw that first hand while they were vacationing in Guatemala. While visiting one of the small villages, they saw family housing consisted of small one-room huts with dirt floors.

The people had nothing. But what struck them was how happy the families seemed to be. "I never saw such friendly, happy people," said my friend. "We wondered how they could be so happy when they didn't even have much to eat."

When the Americans brought food to a few families, they were again impressed by what they saw. Instead of squirreling the food away for themselves, they called others together to share the food they had been given.

These simple people didn't have much. But they had their own version of abundance.

No matter what our financial circumstances are, most of us have abundance - at least when we think about abundance as meaning more than money.

I have a grateful heart for the gift of life and all that it entails. Whether you call these gifts "abundance" or "blessings," it all means the same thing: being grateful for every little thing.

Stop along the LV wine Trail

The eight locally-owned and operated wineries of the Lehigh Valley Wine Trail will introduce wine lovers to the region's official wine grape during Chambourcin Weekend, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Oct. 19 and noon - 5 p.m. Oct. 20.

The Chambourcin is the only wine grape that is grown by all eight wineries in the greater Lehigh Valley. There are more than 40 acres of Chambourcin which ferment into approximately 150,000 bottles of wine. The wineries craft it into several styles of wine, including Nouveau, Rosé, Semi-Sweet, Sweet, Dry Barrel Aged, Sparkling and Port.

Each winery features its own activities such as wine tastings, live entertainment, tours, or food and wine pairings. Chambourcin Weekend is a free event, however, some wineries charge for wine tastings.

Amoré Vineyards & Winery, Nazareth: Beef barbecue prepared with Chambourcin wine.

Big Creek Vineyard and Winery, Kresgeville: Cheeses and releasing 2012 Regent.

Blue Mountain Vineyards, New Tripoli: Chili Cook Off: noon Oct. 19. Those interested in entering a chili, email: info@bluemountainwine.com. First, second and third place prizes will be awarded. Customers will be the judges. Pairing: Victoria's Passion with chocolate fondue. Entertainment: 1 - 4 p.m.

Clover Hill Vineyards & Winery, Breinigsville: Cooking demonstrations, 1, 2, 3 and 4 p.m., paired with 2012 Chambourcin and Turtle Rock Red.

Franklin Hill Vineyards,

Bangor: Creamy mushroom soup from Broadway Pub, brownies made with Fainting Goat from Buttercup Bakery, dips from Robert Rothschild farms, and complimentary wine tastings. Tours of the winery: noon, 2 p.m. (Groups of 8 or more. Contact winery for information.)

Galen Glen Vineyard & Winery, Andreas: Nonna Flo's gravy (homemade red marinara sauce) over pasta with Chambourcin.

Pinnacle Ridge, Kutztown: Smoked meats from Dietrich's Meats paired with 2011 Chambourcin, 2010 Chambourcin Reserve, Sweet Seduction and Chambourcin Rose.

Vynecrest Winery, Breinigsville: Slow-cooked chicken basted in a sticky marinade paired with 2012 dry Chambourcin.

Lost in space: the 'Gravity' of it all

"Gravity" is a masterful achievement in cinema. It will be regarded as a classic and a landmark film.

Look for Oscar nominations in the double digits, including actress: Sandra Bullock; supporting actor: George Clooney; director: Alfonso Cuarón; original screenplay: Cuarón and his son, Jonas; cinematography, and numerous technical categories.

In "Gravity," a collision, intentional or not, of Russian satellites sends a debris shower into the path of the Space Shuttle where Dr. Ryan Stone (Bullock) is repairing the Hubble space telescope and NASA astronaut Matt Kowalsky (Clooney) is zipping around in a jet pack.

They are the only survivors and are set adrift. They are lost in space. To reveal much more about the plot, or the sequence of events, would be a spoiler and take away from your enjoyment of the film.

What can be said is that "Gravity" will have you gripping your popcorn box, the theater seat arm rest or the hand of the person sitting next to you. The action is so realistic and so believable that you will think that you are adrift in space.

The visuals are spectacular. The black expanse of space, with its millions of stars, is contrasted with the blue orb of Earth, sometimes cloaked in clouds, or with brown deserts and the lights of metropolitan areas visible.

The effect is thrilling — and threatening — because of the predicament of the astronauts. There is spine-tingling action, jaw-dropping visuals and an inspirational theme.

"Gravity" is a spare production. Bullock is onscreen for most of the film. You couldn't have asked for better casting. Otherwise, five voices, including that of Ed Harris, at mission control, are heard.

Bullock has such an expressive face and voice. She retains the charm of a young woman yet — again, we won't play spoiler — but because of a deep personal loss, she has aged into a flat cynicism. Her faith in the universe, in God, in herself has been challenged. She is going through the emotions. She must find inner resolve.

Clooney is a wise-cracking, savvy sidekick. Most of the film's humor (amidst the chaos) originates with Clooney's quips. He has the gravitas, the cool head, the grace under pressure to see difficult situations through.

It helps that he looks a lot like Buzz Lightyear from the "Toy Story" films. He also foreshadows the storyline when he says several times, "I

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein

have a bad feeling about this mission."

Cuarón ("Children of Men," 2006; "Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban," 2004; "Great Expectations," 1998) creates a roller-coaster ride of emotions. His pacing is impeccable. His attention to detail is amazing (Marvin the Martian toy in the Space Shuttle, a Russian space toy in the International Space Station, a Buddha in the Chinese space station).

Director of Photography Emmanuel Lubezki, visual effects supervisor Tim Webber and a NASA rocket launch-size crew of computer animators and special effects persons keep "Gravity" up in the air.

Composer Steven Price uses orchestral, electronica and heartbeat sounds to make the tension palpable.

"Gravity" is a film that should be seen in the Imax 3D format. It's worth the extra money. And, if you can see the film during a matinee, there's a significant savings.

At times, "Gravity" is dizzying and disorienting. When space debris heads toward you, you will wince or duck. Other times, "Gravity" may restore your sense of wonder, not only of missions to space above, but of the preciousness of earth below.

Move Maven Mike Gontkosky calls "Gravity" ground-breaking and says it raises the bar for future space-themed movies. "It's immersive," he notes of seeing the film in the Imax 3D format.

"Gravity" is one of those films that has leaped off the entertainment pages to the editorial opinion and front pages. "I was just happy they didn't cut off funding for my research," says Dr. Stone, ironic in light of recent U.S. politics.

The film's movie poster adage, "Don't Let Go," are words we could apply to our lives, families, careers, nation and world.

After you see "Gravity," you may never want to be down to earth again.

"Gravity," MPAA rated PG-13 (Parents Strongly Cautioned). Some Material May Be Inappropriate For Children Under 13) for intense perilous sequences, some disturbing images and brief strong language; Genre:

Drama, Science-Fiction, Thriller; Run time: 1 hr., 30 min.; Distributed by Warner Bros. Pictures.

Credit Readers Anonymous: "Gravity" was filmed at Lake Powell, Utah, and Arizona, and Shepperton Studios, Shepperton, Surrey, England, United Kingdom.

Box Office, Oct. 11: "Gravity" kept its footing solidly at No. 1, with $44.2 million, $123.4 million, two weeks; keeping "Captain Phillips" opening at No. 2, with a strong $26 million.

3. "Cloudy with a Chance of Meatballs 2," $14.2 million, $78 million, three weeks; 4. "Machete Kills," $3.7 million, opening; 5. "Runner Runner," $3.7 million, $14.1 million, two weeks; 6. "Prisoners," $3.6 million, $53.6 million, four weeks; 7. "Insidious Chapter 2," $2.6 million, $78.4 million, five weeks; 8. "Rush," $2.3 million, $22.2 million, four weeks; 9. "Don Jon," $2.3 million, $20.1 million, three weeks; 10. "Baggage Claim," $2 million, $18.21 million, three weeks

Unreel, Oct. 18: "Carrie," R: The Brian De Palma horror classic is updated with Chloe Grace Moretz in the title role that Sissy Spacek played. The storyline is similar to the original. Julianne Moore also stars. Kimberly Peirce directs.

"Escape Plan," R: Sylvester Stallone and Arnold Schwarzenegger star in the action-thriller about an escape from a super-maximum security prison of the future. 50 Cent and Vincent D'Onofrio also star.

"12 Years a Slave," R: A free black man from upstate New York is abducted and sold into slavery in antebellum United States. Chiwetel Ejiofor stars. Also starring: Michael Fassbender, Brad Pitt and Michael K. Williams. The film is based on a book written in the mid-1800s based on a true story.

"All is Lost," PG-13: After a collision at sea, a sailor fights for his life. Robert Redford stars in the action drama.

PUBLIC NOTICE
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that TGG/TCH - Hamilton Crossings Associates, LP, are requesting to utilize the existing public sewer system for the proposed Hamilton Crossings Project in Lower Macungie Township, Lehigh County, PA. Hamilton Crossings is an approximately 63 acre site to be developed into an upscale commercial shopping center. The project is located on the southern and northeastern quadrants of the intersection of Krocks Road and Route 222.
 The project will generate approximately 128 EDUs or 51,000 gpd. Said proposal will include a gravity collection system and conveyance to the existing South Whitehall Township Authority Interceptor located along Cedar Creek. The cost of the collection and conveyance system will be privately funded.
 This project is located in the Cedar Creek Subbasin of the Little Lehigh Watershed, a High Quality CWF-MF classified watershed.
 Public Notice is required for the following items under the Pennsylvania DEP regulations:
 1) The proposed development will change the flow at an existing sewage treatment facility by more than 50,000 gallons per day.
 From the date of publication of this notice a 30 day comment and review period is established during which time comments can be submitted to:

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE - UNITED STATES MARSHALS SERVICE - NOTICE OF U.S. MARSHAL'S SALE - THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA vs. PATRICIA A. STANKEY & LAWRENCE J. STANKEY - Civil #13-01195 - Public notice is hereby given, that by virtue of an Order dated June 21, 2013, issued out of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania on a judgment rendered in Court on June 21, 2013, in the amount of $138,350.66 plus interest from February 25, 2013 in favor of The United States of America and against PATRICIA A. STANKEY and LAWRENCE J. STANKEY, the following described real estate, located at 4076 High Road Kempton, PA 19529, shall be offered for sale. To obtain a complete legal description please contact Jillian Hill at 215-825-6305. PROPERTY LOCATION: 4076 High Road, Kempton, PA 19529, Parcel/Folio # 5427430433161. The above-mentioned properties offered up for sale on November 06, 2013 at 11:00 AM at the Main Entrance of the Lehigh County Courthouse located at 455 Hamilton Street, Allentown, PA 18105, at public auction, to the highest and best bidder by the U.S. Marshal for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. And I will, accordingly offer the real estate for sale to the highest and best bidder, for cashier's check or teller's check. The following terms of sale apply to all of the above listed properties. Terms of Sale: Ten percent (10%) of the highest sum bid must be deposited by the highest bidder in cashier's check or certified check with the Marshal immediately. The balance of the purchase price shall be paid in cashier's check or certified check within thirty (30) days after Marshal's Sale. Otherwise, the purchaser will forfeit their deposit and the Marshal may settle with a second bidder who has made the required deposit at the Marshal's Sale and thereby registered their willingness to take the property at the highest price bid, provided such second bidder deposits the balance of the purchase price within 10 days after notice from the Marshal of the first bidder's default. If no second bid be registered, the property may be sold again at the risk of the defaulting bidder, and in case of any deficiency in such resale, the defaulting bidder shall make good the same to the person injured thereby and the deposit shall be forfeited and distributed with the other funds created by the sale. Bidder must have proceeds immediately available and on his person in order to bid, bidder will not be permitted to leave the sale and return with proceeds. The successful bidder takes the real estate subject to, and shall pay all taxes, water rents, sewer charges, municipal claims, and other charges and liens not divested by the sale and must also pay all state and local realty transfer taxes or stamps, to the extent the fund created by the sale is insufficient to pay such transfer taxes. Distribution of Proceeds: A Schedule of Proposed Distribution of the proceeds of sale will be filed with the Marshal within ten (10) days of confirmation by Court Order of the sale. No Schedule of Distribution will be filed if the property is sold to the Plaintiff for costs only. The Marshal shall distribute the proceeds of sale in accordance with the proposed Schedule of Distribution unless written exceptions are filed with the Marshal not later than ten (10) days after the filing of the proposed schedule. For information concerning the amount that Plaintiff intends to bid, for information regarding the status if this sale, the exact location of the sale in the courthouse, or for other information you may contact: Cathy Diederich at (314) 457-5514, email: cathy.diederich@stl.usda.gov, or Jillian Hill at 215-825-6305 or JHill@kmlawgroup.com. For a complete list of all properties offered for sale by the Department of Agriculture go to: http://www.resales.usda.gov/ The sale may be postponed in accordance with Pa. R.C.P. 3129.1 et seq. for up to 100 days. Please contact Cathy Diederich or Jillian Hill, Paralegal, with KML Law Group, P.C., at the above phone numbers prior to the scheduled sale date to confirm that the sale will proceed. Dated September 27, 2013.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the Lower Macungie Township Board of Commissioners adopted Ordinance No. 2013-07 at its public meeting held September 5, 2013. Ordinance No. 2013-07 amends the Zoning Ordinance to correctly identify the AP-Agricultural Protection Zoning District in regards to alternative energy facilities. The amendment does not revise the Official Zoning Map of the Township.

Publication of this notice is intended to provide notification of the adoption of Ordinance 2013-07. Any person claiming a right to challenge the validity of Ordinance 2013-07 must bring legal action within thirty (30) days of the publication of the second notice pursuant to Section 108 of the Municipalities Planning Code.

A copy of the full text of Ordinance 2013-07 is available to any interested party for inspection and/or copying at the Lower Macungie Township Municipal Building, 3400 Brookside Road, Macungie, Pennsylvania.

NOTICE OF INTENTION

The Board of Supervisors of Lynn Township - Lehigh County, PA hereby gives notice of its intention under 53 PS 65917(b) to appoint on December 12, 2013 a certified or competent public accountant or a firm or certified or competent public accountants, to examine all the accounts of the Township for the fiscal year ending 2013. As a result of such appointment, the appointee shall have the powers given to the board of auditors under the Second Class Township Code, except that (1) the audit shall be made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards and (2) the appointee shall not have the power to determine compensations. The appointee shall be subject to the same penalties as the elected auditors under this act. The report of the accountant or firm is subject to appeals the same as reports of the board of auditors under this act. Moreover, as a result of such appointment, the elected auditors shall not audit, settle or adjust the account audited by the appointee but shall perform the other duties of their elected office.

The Board will consider this appointment, subject to the terms and conditions of the Sunshine Act, during its regular scheduled Board of Supervisors meeting beginning at 6:30 pm on December 12, 2013 at the Lynn Township Municipal Building, 7911 Kings Highway, Lynn Township, PA

Tammy M. White, Secretary/Treasurer
