STEELSTACKS HOSTS A PAPAL PARTY

Spectators from across the Lehigh Valley watch the 4 p.m. Papal Mass. The five-day World Meeting of Families in Philadelphia was held in the United States for the first time and was the main reason for the pope's visit. More coverage on pages A2, A3 and A4.

Freedom HS grad participates in Papal Mass

Special to the Bethlehem Press

When Pope Francis I celebrated Mass on the Ben Franklin Parkway in Philadelphia Sunday, among those actually helping with the historic event was Freedom HS graduate Rachel Pardoe, now a freshman at St. Joseph's University. Pardoe was among the fortunate 80,000 who received advance tickets to view the Mass within the special three-block zone in front of the altar, but she was also privileged to actually be invited to participate in the ceremony. She got so lucky because she is involved in a service organization called Philadelphia Service Immersion Program, or PSIP, through her university. She moved in to her dorm at St. Joe's four days early this past summer and spent the extra time working on a vegetable garden project for the community in West Kensington. Later, all those involved with PSIP were sent emails inviting them to apply for a Papal Mass ticket, so she applied. On the day she received her ticket, she said she was told that she would also be helping organize and distribute communion. Other than that, she would have to wait until the day of the Mass to learn exactly what her duties would be.

"We have to leave campus on Sunday morning at 7:30, go through security and practice at noon," Pardoe said during an interview on the Friday before the Mass.

She said she was really excited.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity."

That opportunity was also one huge challenge. An estimated 500,000 worshipers were expected to receive communion, with some 1,500 priests distributing the wafers to everyone in 20 minutes.

The Mass, with Pope Francis I as the main celebrant, officially closed the triennial World Meeting of Families 2015 held last week at the Philadelphia Convention Center.

More than 1.5 million people, wanting to be a part of history, were expected to crowd the streets of Philadelphia on the mile-long parkway, in Love Park or around City Hall. Most of them will actually view the Mass on giant television screens.

Which brings up an important point for Catholics who planned to watch the Papal Mass on televisions either at home or at Steel Stacks in South Bethlehem. Doing so did not fulfill their obligation to attend Mass on Sunday. They actually have to be on the streets in Philadelphia, watching one of those screens.

Don't blame the writer. She's just the messenger.

SUNDAY AT STEELSTACKS

Emilie Meesen of St. Anne's Parish in Bethlehem and Connie Krouse of Holy Family Parish in Nazareth watch the Papal Mass. Even though both women were wearing identical Pope Francis T-shirts and sitting next to each other, they had never met before. The shirts were made available by their parishes as fundraisers from an online company.

Shannon McGorry of Bethlehem watches the jumbo screen telecast of the Mass conducted by Pope Francis. The Our Lady of Perpetual Help parishioner and Freedom HS senior, who was with her family, said, "It's all very interesting."

Melaina Falter, a fourth grader at St. Isidore Parish School, sits with her mother Stephanie Falter of Quakertown. "Were having a great day. This is a nice alternative to Philadelphia," Mrs. Falter said.

ANOTHER VIEW

Pope Francis: Sinner and prophet

BY PAUL A. HEISE

Special to the Bethlehem Press

"Who am I to judge?" With that refusal to condemn homosexuals, Pope Francis cast himself with the sinners of the world and assumed the role of prophet. Religious prophets do not, we know, foretell the future. Prophets bring a message from God that discerns the way the community is going. Prophets appear when things are going wrong, like now.

Prophets are called by God to deliver a message that challenges the established order, to say there is something wrong about it. Prophets are not honored in their own land. Of course not. God does not send messengers to congratulate people but to tell them they are headed into trouble.

How did Father Jorge Bergoglio, SJ come to this role of pope and prophet? In one of his first interviews as pope, a newsman asked: "Who are you?" Pope Francis answered "I am a sinner." This is a general acknowledgment, but also a specific self-accusation of moral failure. As the leader of the Jesuits in Argentina during the Dirty War, Francis apparently abandoned two young Jesuit priests to be tortured by the murderous military regime.

When he was Jesuit provincial, Bergoglio did the Spiritual Exercises of St. Ignatius of Loyola. This is an intense 30-day meditation and spiritual renewal for which the Jesuits are famous. The pope came out of this exercise with a profound sense of his own sinfulness and his salvation. He went from being a haunted man to one at peace with his God. In short, the discipline of the Jesuits led him to the joy of the Franciscans.

Because a penitent Cardinal Bergoglio put himself in the hands of God, he is at peace with himself and his God. But he does not forget that he is a repentant sinner. Prophets, much like St. Paul on the road to Damascus, have that moment of grace when they know God forgave them. This forgiveness purified him and made him fit to carry God's message. Prophets, in the Old Testament and continuing to this day, have that moment when God's grace touches them and gives them a message they are to present to His people.

PRESS PHOTOS BY TIM GILMAN

Pope Francis appears on the jumbo TV screen in ArtsQuest's Town Square at the start of the Papal Mass in Philadelphia.

Nazareth resident Dennis Sullivan takes pictures with his I-phone while his wife sits alongside in a comfortable lawn chair. "It's great," said Sullivan, who attends Holy Family Parish with his wife.

Pope Francis early on and throughout his life turned to the poor, the needy and the marginalized. The people have not yet caught on that this is central to his mission. People see his twinkling eyes, his infectious smile and his impromptu comments that church officials often have to scramble to put in context. They do not yet see that he is all about the option for the poor.

Francis of Assisi and his respect for creation are the central theme, the message, the spirit of this pope. Poverty, in the sense of detachment, is the message of this prophet. He has already spoken clearly about income inequality and the environment. And his message was opposed by the keepers of the status quo, Vatican conservatives, Catholic conservatives and evangelicals.

On the positive side, two thirds of Americans already think that we are going in the wrong direction. We will have to see if they will accept this prophet's message of a new direction, a discernment about where we should be going. Much of Europe, Africa and Latin America already recognize that the materialism of the West is a moral dead-end. But not the United States. In fact, much of the pope's program seems aimed at American capitalism when it uses language like unbridled capitalism, idolatry of money and austerity as a new colonialism.

The New York Times says that at the heart of Laudato Si, the encyclical on the environment, is a "critique of unfettered capitalism." The established church is not likely to honor that prophecy.

NOON MASS AT STEELSTACKS

PRESS PHOTOS BY TIM GILMAN

The Roman Catholic Allentown Diocese, with Artsquest's help, held an outdoor noon celebratory Mass Sunday at Steel Stacks. The Mass commemorated the visit of His Holiness Pope Francis to the United States to attend the World Meeting of Families in Philadelphia. Bishop Emeritus Edward P. Cullen led the special Mass on the Levitt Pavilion stage. An estimated 800 Lehigh Valley Catholics filled the lawn in front of the pavilion and nearby parts of the SteelStacks Campus in South Bethlehem.

POLICE

Domestic issue

Police arrested a man and wife after they allegedly invaded a home around 10:55 p.m. Sept. 22.

Officers say Alex Saldana, 31, of the Main Street Simoes Apartments, drunkenly walked into a neighbor's apartment. His wife, Iris Tirado, 49, then came to the apartment and smacked one of the occupants in the face.

Saldana is cited with public drunkenness and Tirado is cited with harassment.

DUIs

Police made two very similar traffic arrests on the Southside Sept. 20.

Around 2:45 a.m. officers stopped a driver for a non-functional taillight on East Third Street. Amy Brensinger, 24, of West Union Boulevard, was found to be under the influence and in possession of marijuana and paraphernalia. Police did not specify if she was drunk or high.

Before midnight police stopped Andrew Cerullo, 32, of Fogelsville, also for a non-functional taillight.

He was determined to be intoxicated.

Both subjects are charged with DUI.

Disorderly

Police arrested a man after he allegedly acted very badly at the East Fourth Street Happy Tap Grill.

According to police, Bobby Morant, 50, of East Fifth Street, was deeply intoxicated and began punching other customers.

Morant is charged with disorderly conduct and public drunkenness.

Services continue despite budget impasse

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Pennsylvania's state budget impasse, which is nearing the 101-day record set in 2009, has already sparked a lawsuit by a consortium of private human services agencies that are being denied operational funds. But in Northampton County, these non-profit providers are being paid, and on time.

Fiscal Affairs Director Jim Hunter reports that the county has spent $17 million to make sure nonprofits and other human services providers continue to meet with the nearly 18,000 county residents who have a need. "I think we're OK until the end of the year," he predicted. "We have not nor do we anticipate eliminating any of the services."

Hunter, who made these remarks at county council meetings on Sept. 16 and 17, credited Budget Administrator Doran J. Hamann for foreseeing and building a budget around this possibility. He and Executive John Brown warned council they will have to spend between $5 and 7 million more through October.

No smoking ordinance goes up in smoke

Though the county will be spending more of its own money for human services, none will be spent for "No Smoking" signs. That's because council narrowly defeated a Seth Vaughn-introduced ordinance that would ban smoking on all county property, except for designated areas at Gracedale and at county parks. It would ban increasingly popular electronic cigarettes, and even remove designated smoking areas.

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

Fiscal Affairs Director Jim Hunter announces that NorCo has paid $17 million to nonprofit agencies that should be paid by the state.

This ordinance was tabled in July, but Vaughn succeeded in getting the matter reconsidered after walking into the courthouse through a cloud of smoke in a designated smoking area outside.

Hayden Phillips called the proposal "an infringement on our personal freedoms," and both he and Ken Kraft referred to the "nanny state" regulating people's lives. Admitting to being "fully torn," non-smoker Glenn Geissinger said he had difficulty "continuing to regulate something that's legal."

Denying any intent to take away anyone's rights, Vaughn's argument was quite simple.

"Smoking kills people," he declared. In response to concerns raised by Scott Parsons and Bob Werner about the lack of a penalty, Vaughn called the ordinance a culture change that would be followed without the need for sanctions.

Lamont McClure was persuaded by a tobacco sign he recently saw at a gas station, warning him that secondhand smoke kills people. Peg Ferraro argued that measures like these will reduce health care costs.

After everyone had weighed in, Vaughn's measure was supported by McClure, Ferraro and Mat Benol. It was opposed by Parsons, Werner, Kraft and Phillips.

Glenn Geissinger simply voted "present," which in this instance was the equivalent of a no vote. That effectively sent Vaughn's measure up in smoke.

Health care coverage problems discussed

Council members, particularly McClure, are also concerned about the increasing number of employee complaints that health care coverage is being denied for medications and procedures ordered by physicians, from Nexium to mammograms. "It's one thing to ask people to pay more, but also to see the quality of care diminished?" he asked. "That's mean." McClure questioned whether these reductions are coming from the Brown administration, but Brown himself and Deputy Administrator Cathy Allen strongly denied they are behind any of the reductions that have come from the county's third-party health administrator, Capital BlueCross.

Vaughn, who works in the nursing field, called it a systemic problem. He added that insurance companies are finding new and creative ways to reduce costs. "I think it's terrible. The Affordable Care Act is the main driver to this," Scott Parsons blamed the health care industry as a whole.

Allen told council that employees with health care coverage problems should contact her and she will work to resolve the matter, in some cases seeking exceptions. Brown echoed Allen. "We encourage employees to come forward and make us aware."

Brown taps Allentown's former HR director

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

Amy Trapp, Allentown's former human resources director, has been nominated by Executive John Brown to play that role for Northampton County's 2,200-person workforce. She will succeed Tracie Barnes, who resigned in late July after less than six months on the job.

Because this is a cabinet level position, county council must confirm the appointment, and a vote is scheduled for Oct. 1. But if Trapp's appearance before Ken Kraft's personnel committee Sept. 16 is any indication, it's in the bag.

A resident of Northampton, Trapp is a graduate of both Muhlenberg and Moravian colleges, where she ultimately acquired a master's degree in human resources management. She has held HR positions in both the private and public sector, most notably in Allentown for over two years.

She prefers human relations in the public sector because, she explained, "Government employees tend to be very vested in what they do." She left Allentown in March, prior to news of the federal investigation. When Mayor Edwin Pawlowski decided to run for governor, and then for the U.S. Senate, that "made me a little nervous."

She described her style as informal and said she would be walking the halls to get to know people.

About the only negative came when she disclosed that her husband is a Dallas Cowboys fan. "I'd like to withdraw the nomination," joked Brown.

Trapp gained some experience dealing with three public sector unions in Allentown. Northampton County has 11.

With Trapp's appointment, there will be only one vacancy left in John Brown's cabinet.

He still needs someone to replace Bob Mateff, his director of emergency management. Mateff was recruited by Governor Tom Wolf as deputy director for 911 at the state Emergency Management Agency. Brown told council he is in the "final stages" of his selection process, and hopes to have that position filled by the end of October.

"Illegal" pay raise

Council also had a lengthy discussion about pay raises Brown gave to 14 employees in 2014 without council approval. Council Solicitor Phil Lauer had ruled they were illegal for that reason, but County Solicitor Ryan Durkin argued that the executive provided these raises in accordance with an employee policy manual.

Whether legal or illegal, one thing nearly everyone seemed to agree on is that the employees who benefited from these raises may now rely on that extra income. Sensing that there was an "opportunity to de-escalate," McClure suggested leaving the raises intact until the end of the year, and then reviewing them as part of the budget process.

McClure's measure passed 8-1, with only Phillips dissenting.

Liberty Class of 1985 reunion Nov. 7

The Liberty HS Class of 1985 will hold its class reunion Nov. 7, starting at 10 a.m. with a tailgate party on Grenadier Boulevard before the start of the Liberty/Freedom football game. Alumni Day events will be going on at school throughout the day. There will be a gathering afterward at the Sun Inn starting at 6 p.m. For more information, go to the Liberty HS website alumni link to the class of 1985 or e-mail at LHS1985@verizon.net.

Area residents enroll at Alvernia University

Two Bethlehem residents have begun the fall term at Alvernia University. Olivia Cleary, graduate of Lehigh Valley Academy Regional Charter and a communication major, is a contributing writer with the Alvernia, for the 2015-16 academic year.

Lauren Maff is a graduate of Bethlehem Catholic HS and an occupational therapy major.

Bethlehem resident in LVC bridge program

Da'Ron Strickland, of Bethlehem, recently participated in the Multicultural Student Bridge program at Lebanon Valley College. The three-day pre-orientation program provided incoming first-year and transfer students with peer mentoring, residential living, academic success and leadership development. The goal is to assist students in making a successful transition to college and the LVC community.

Student completes leadership training

Breanna Schneebeli, of Bethlehem, recently completed a day-long workshop offered by the Oskin Leadership Institute at Widener University.

The Freedom HS senior participated as the winner of a HS leadership award presented by Widener University and NBC10.

During the workshop, students shared their own leadership experiences and learned about the three major competencies of leadership: leading self, leading others and leading change.

Award winners are recognized each year at the National Constitution Center, Philadelphia, and are offered the free leadership workshop at Widener. University enrollees university receive a $20,000 scholarship.

Two locals named RA's at Wilkes

Bethlehem residents Santana Velez, a junior biology student, and Danica DeMesa, a junior psychology student, have been named two of the 45 undergraduate student resident assistants at Wilkes University.

They are responsible for crisis management, documenting policy violations, reporting maintenance requests and various administrative tasks for a floor, wing or house in campus residence halls. Additionally, they foster a residential environment supportive of individual student growth and development and encouraging on-campus community participation.

They are appointed for an academic year and must maintain a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.25 or higher while carrying a full course load of at least 12 credits.

Roy reviews successes, challenges

BY NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzemi@tnonline.com

In a first, the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce invited a local school administrator to speak at an informative luncheon Sept. 23.

As state and local officials stress that better educated citizens lead to a better workforce and an economy strengthened by such, Chamber members wished to hear a sort of State of the District account from public partner Bethlehem Area School District.

Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy briefly explained to those assembled in the ArtsQuest Steelstacks Blast Furnace Room some of the recent successes and challenges the district has experienced, and how it's adapting to uncertainty in Harrisburg.

To set the stage, Roy said one thing few who live in the district realize is its size and complexity.

Big district

"It's the Bethlehem Area School District," he said. "It's not just a city; it's not just a suburb. It's a combination of both."

BASD is comprised of 22 schools containing almost 14,000 total students and 1,850 employees. Its numerous cafeterias serve 9,000 meals each day, with half of district lunches being either free or reduced price.

Even its fleet of buses, responsible for kids far beyond the confines of the district proper, make round trips to about 70 schools, racking up a whopping 6,000 miles traveled each day.

It's a big operation, he said, and doesn't even account for the education portion.

"We graduate about 1,000 kids a year between the two high schools. Twenty percent of our grads have scored three or higher — that's considered passing — on advanced placement exams. That's a high number for a large district with a strong urban core."

Accomplishments "We're proud of the accomplishments of our students. [But] we can't just focus on issues of poverty, and we can't just focus — as a suburban district might — on AP courses and honors courses. We have to focus on educating everybody."

Equity

With that in mind, the district is now placing emphasis on equity. Equity is a huge issue, he said, because there must be a balance of equal opportunity between students who benefit from support outside of school — home libraries, trips or museum visits, for example — and those who do not.

Citing performance gaps by race and financial status, Roy said, "We are not unlike the rest of the country. Not unique here. Our ceiling for improvement is not what small increment can the top kids improve. It's how can we raise the bar for everybody."

Roy said other successes include universal full-day kindergarten, the Community Schools partner-ship with the United Way, and the Leader in Me program, which teaches students engagement, skill development and self-advocacy. Leader in Me is now branching upward from the elementary school level through the district.

Pension challenge

But Roy also spoke about the challenges, namely the dual "backbreakers" of state pensions and charter schools.

The pension situation has been one of unending grief for years and continues to hamper expedient governance in the capitol. While Roy did not pursue the pension topic beyond describing it as "a killer," he did lay out some numbers regarding charter schools that may be new to some.

Charter challenge

Every student sent from a district school to a charter school costs the district at least $10,000, because the onus of financial responsibility still lies with the district. And while districts could once rely on some compensation from the state, former Gov. Tom Corbett had eliminated charter reimbursements, which had amounted to about 25 to 30 percent per student.

Roy said current charter students are costing the district about $20 million a year, whereas if those students were to all come back to district schools, with new teachers and everything else they needed, they would cost only about $5.8 million. "Without arguing for or against charter schools, the cost of school choice is about $15 million to the district," Roy said.

"We've done a good job by any measure of controlling our expenditures. Those two we can't control are hurting us. But we've rebuilt our fund balance ... from 5 to 8 percent of the budget [is available] like for now, when the state doesn't have a budget, we have a fund balance to draw from if we need to make payroll. We're not there yet, but if the Police and Lehigh University officials welcomed a new officer to the city's ranks on a beautiful Sept. 24 morning, and under the Red White and Blue in front of the historic University Center announced the young stallion's name: Asa. The addition of the brown and white horse is a continuation of the ongoing partnership between the college and the city, and was paid for by a Lehigh donation to the Friends of the Bethlehem Police Mounted Unit nonprofit, which supports the animals' care year round.

state doesn't come up with a budget in the next few months we could be."

Partnerships

One area Roy said the district really excels in is community partnerships.

"I don't think any district can touch us on the number and depth and quality of the partnerships that we have," Roy said. "From the city to local colleges to many many nonprofits, [there is] a huge range of partners that we have. When you have 14,000 students and 50 percent of them are coming from challenging circumstances, we cannot overcome the challenges society throws at our kids in our schools by ourselves.

"It's through the partnerships that we deliver the services, help the kids make up for what they may not be getting outside school so they can at least have an equal shot at being successful. That's what our focus is.

"We can't do it alone. We can't do it without our community partners supporting us."

VOLLEYBALL

'Canes prep to take on Becahi

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It's seven sweeps and counting for the Liberty volleyball team, as the Hurricanes have been on fire ever since their loss to Parkland on September 10.

Winners of seven straight, including Monday night's sweep (25-15, 25-17, 25-17) over Easton, Liberty is looking to keep their momentum going into the postseason.

"We've definitely been in the lighter part of our schedule," said Liberty head coach Missy Lynn, "but we've been using this time to work on our weaknesses and tighten up our offense. We have definitely been working on a few things, namely our blocking and attacks from the outside."

With Dieruff (3-6) in play tonight, Liberty (9-1) should extend their streak heading into tomorrow night's pivotal clash with Bethlehem Catholic (8-2).

The Hawks have equaled the Hurricanes recent form as well, sweeping their last eight opponents after an 0-2 start to the season.

Thursday's battle will likely have huge ramifications on who wins the East Penn Conference Steel Division as well.

If there was one test that Liberty's football team passed in last week's 42-7 victory over Whitehall, it was their ability to bounce back from a defeat the previous week to Nazareth.

The Hurricanes showed they had no hangover from a tough loss on the road to the Blue Eagles, as they jumped out to a 21-0 lead over Whitehall in the first quarter, picking off Zephyr quarterback Gianni Sinatore on his first three drives of the game to give Liberty the lead and momentum.

Justin Haynes led the defensive barrage by ending the Zephyrs opening drive in Liberty territory with an 87-yard interception return early in the first quarter to give Liberty their first points.

Sinatoro would then have a pass tipped on the next series and picked off by Victor Santiago. 'Canes quarterback Doug Erney then found Santiago on a 45-yard TD pass for Liberty's second score of the night, putting them up 14-0 with 2:15 in the first.

And as the night couldn't have started worse for the Zephyrs, Joe Curzi added to their misery by intercepting Sinatore on the next series, setting up Liberty at the Whitehall 24.

Erney would then find Jayden Figueroa on a 15-yard score to give Liberty complete command after one period of play.

"They had a nice drive to start the game and then Justin Haynes picks it off and returns it to the end zone," said

Liberty head coach John Truby. "Honestly, we were just playing our base coverages to start the game and the kids were in the right spots and made plays."

Erney finished the night 9-of-12 for 154 yards and three touchdowns, adding 69 yards on the ground and a score.

His nine-yard TD run with 1:26 left in the first half gave the Hurricanes a 28-7 lead heading into halftime. He then found Santiago (4 rec, 92 yards and two TD's) on a 28-yard TD pass to begin the third quarter to deflate any chance of Whitehall staying in the game.

The mercy-rule came into effect late in the third when Gunner An-

Pates set to face Central

Freedom took care of business last week in their 36-7 victory over a hapless Northampton side.

The Patriots used a pair of touchdowns from Andres Santos (34 yards) and a banner night from quarterback Joe Young, who went 6-of-7 for 162 yards and a TD, connecting on a 78-yard touchdown throw to Alkiohn Dunkins in the second quarter, as the Pates took a 29-0 lead into halftime.

With Freedom sitting at 4-0 this season, head coach Jason Roeder finds his team sitting atop the East Penn Conference standings with Parkland (4-0) heading into the midpoint of the season.

"We knew the expectations we had going into this year were going to be a little different from a year ago," he said. "We're just getting better everyday and that's what we need to focus on heading into this week."

The Pates may be facing their toughest challenge of the season this week when Central Catholic (3-1) heads into BASD Stadium Friday night for a pivotal clash.

The Vikings are fresh off a 26-24 upset win over Easton last week and present plenty of problems for the Pates this week.

"I think they may be the most balanced team we've seen so far this season," said Roeder. "They can run the ball and throw. They have good size up front and they're aggressive on defense. They played well against Easton and they're a good team."

Central quarterback Ethan Persa was 14-of-19 for 197 yards and two touchdowns in last

BC beats North squad again

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It appears to be the dog days of fall for Bethlehem Catholic's football team as the Golden Hawks ran over another inferior opponent from the mountains last weekend.

This time it was East Stroudsburg South and the 54-7 whipping they took at home last Friday night in the Purple Pit.

It was the third win in a row for Becahi (3-1), but victories are somewhat formalities at this point of the year for the Hawks.

When you can out-rush your opponent 438-to-90, what else really needs to be said?

Antwon Keenan looks like Adrian Peterson against his opponents as of late, as he rushed six times for 169 yards and two TD's against the Cavs last week.

That's an average of 28.2 yards a carry and that's the issue head coach Joe Henrich and his staff have to face moving forward.

The Hawks have scored 54 points in each of the last three weeks, but their starters have only lasted through the first series of the third quarter because of the lopsided scores.

With Becahi hosting Dieruff (1-3) this Saturday night, it continues a stretch of expected dominance, as three out of the next five opponents before their season finale against Central Catholic, features teams below .500 in the EPC North.

"It's something that we certainly think about as a staff, but it's also a reason why we preach to our guys about focusing on what we need to do to improve as a team," said Henrich. "We can only control so much. I think we've done a better job with that this year, in terms of keeping the kids focused, but at the same time we don't want the guys getting bored either."

Needles to say, Becahi will win this week. They'll probably mercy-rule the Huskies and be 4-1 after that and they'll recycle the same theme until they take on Stroudsburg (3-1) on October 23.

In the end, it's really all the Hawks can do at this point.

How this will play out for the team once they face an opponent that can provide resistance will be the real question.

Stroudsburg's girls' cross country team proved to be the only downfall for Bethlehem Catholic, Freedom, and Liberty last week, defeating all three teams, 24-34, 15-46, and 22-34, respectively.

Each of the Bethlehem schools did gain two victories, however. Becahi defeated East Stroudsburg North 16-47 and East Stroudsburg South 17-40. Freedom defeated East Stroudsburg North 17-46 and East Stroudsburg South 20-43. Liberty defeated East Stroudsburg North 15-48 and East Stroudsburg South 16-43.

Raisa Kochmaruk placed first overall for the Hurricanes, Delaney Davis placed eighth, Grace Haas was 11th, and Alicia Valladares placed 14th.

"I broke away pretty much at the beginning, but you have to listen to footsteps and the people cheering. You're basically using your other senses. 'I'm always trying to P.R., and I got it last year on this course,'" said Kochmaruk. "We have some new people [on the girls' team], and they're really starting to get into it, especially Greta [Stuckey]. She's really finding her ability."

Last week's 1-2-3 finish for Freedom's boys' cross country team helped the Patriots defeat East Stroudsburg North 19-44, East Stroudsburg South 18-48, and Stroudsburg 24-32.

Will Alpaugh and Dan Quigley crossed the finish line together, but first place was given to Alpaugh. Isaac Gross came in third. Strategy figured in to the Patriots' race as Coach Bob Thear had Alpaugh and Quigley pace Gross to try and better his time.

Gross said, "During the downhill part, my legs were really dying, but I saw I was still close to them. I was pretty surprised."

The strategy worked. Alpaugh and Quigley's time was 16:48, and Gross's was 17:07, down from 17:25.

Liberty's Jonah George placed sixth, Brendan Reilly was ninth, and Pedro Larotta was 11th.

Reilly said, "I tried to pace off Jonah. His running style is like mine. It was a pretty non-physical race. We weren't scoring against Freedom, but we push each other very well."

The Hurricanes came in to last week's meet with a record of 6-0, but then lost to Stroudsburg 26-30. Liberty defeated East Stroudsburg North 20-48 and East Stroudsburg South 19-33.

"This year has been surprisingly good. We lost seven of our top ten, but we have a slew of freshmen and new guys. We should rebuild quickly," said Reilly.

Bethlehem Catholic's Bryce Orloski placed eighth while setting a personal record of 17:43, and Austin Tucker placed 12th in the Hawks' 20-40 victory over East Stroudsburg North, 28-34 victory over East Stroudsburg South, and 22-36 loss to Strouds-

'Living the Fantasy' must-see for fantasy lovers

From September through December, my Sundays go as my fantasy football teams go.

My twin, soon-to-be 4-year-old boys, are just getting into watching the sport, and unfortunately have already picked up some key words associated with my bad days on the fantasy football gridiron.

I'll admit, I'm probably way more into NFL games than I should be from a fantasy perspective.

Every yard gained by my players, or an opponent's, consumes my mind and can sometimes change my mood in an instant. I often run into walls watching the NFL Red Zone on my phone.

However this year, I feel like I have things a little more in perspective. Recently, I watched a fantasy football documentary called "Living the Fantasy," which was produced by Bethlehem's Andeep Singh and directed by Joshua Adler.

"Living the Fantasy" follows five of the industry's top fantasy football players during the 2014 season in the high-stakes world of fantasy football. Michael Rapaport narrates the film, which was distributed by Viva Pictures. It made its debut on Sept. 9, in New York City, and can be purchased on iTunes and Amazon or viewed on DirectTV on demand.

"[Josh] had an idea to do a film about fantasy football," Singh said. "I knew nothing about that world, but was shocked to learn about how much money was involved in the game. I knew if a nonfootball fan like myself could be interested, that this might be a good topic."

"Quite honestly, I've worked on lots of projects and it can take many years to get a doc off the ground. Sometimes a film can take two, three even five years to complete. This one was funded in less than two weeks. And we were shooting within a month."

Singh said there was also an inherent timeline and it needed to be released for the start of the 2015 football season.

She and the team tagged along with some who played in yearly fantasy leagues as well as those in daily fantasy leagues. That included places like Las Vegas and the Bahamas where fantasy championships were hosted.

If you're not familiar, yearly leagues are typical leagues hosted by ESPN, Yahoo! or NFL.com, and involve a draft before the NFL's first game where you pick your players for the entire season and compete

Last week was a big one for Freedom's soccer team, but this week will be even bigger when they face city rival, Liberty, and an Easton team that will be out for revenge.

Most recently, the Patriots scored victories over Easton, Dieruff, and Bethlehem Catholic. "They came out hard," said Freedom forward Mezen Abdalla, regarding Becahi, after the Patriots 3-1 victory on Saturday.

The Hawks held the Patriots to one goal in the first half, and two in the last 15 minutes of the game, despite Freedom having the most time of possession in both halves. Steven Riad had the first and third goals for the Patriots.

"The first goal, I shouldered it over the goalie, trapped it, and kicked it in," Riad said. His second was a header.

Abdalla scored the second goal of the game from 25 yards out.

"Will [Tichy] threw it in. I pushed it to the side, and then I just destroyed it," Abdalla said.

Abdalla and Riad are currently Freedom's top goal scorers.

"We stretch out the defense, and then they don't know who to mark," said Riad.

For better or worse, they are almost like brothers.

"They try to connect and support each other. They're both attacking players," said Freedom coach Michael O'Connell. "Beca kept coming at us, and they kept themselves in the game. That will be the issue: who will show up this week."

The Patriots have a rematch with Easton after defeating the Red Rovers 2-0 last week, and a showdown with Liberty on Thursday night.

"Easton was a great win for us. We needed it. It opened divisional play," Riad said. "We can't wait [for Liberty]. Allen gave them trouble, but we don't want to look too far ahead."

Liberty defeated Allen 4-2 and Easton 6-1 last week.

Hawks proud of effort in loss

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcaldonald@tnonline.com

Judging by the looks on their faces, one would have thought Bethlehem Catholic won its soccer game against Northampton after being defeated 2-1 last week.

Perhaps it was the final ten minutes of the game that really grew the Hawks' confidence when first-year goalkeeper, Ryan Turtzo, made a string of saves.

"I had faith in this defense and that they would not let [Northampton] get past them," Turtzo said.

On one occasion, however, a Becahi defender tripped, and Turtzo was faced with a one-on-one situation.

"The Northampton guy got in front, and he's driving past the 18. I had my legs open, and then I sat on it," said Turtzo.

At game's end, several of Turtzo's teammates congratulated him.

"I never had that experience. This was the first time. It felt really good," he said.

Becahi coach Anthony Briody was just as pleased. And proud.

"Our defense has come a long way," he said.

In addition, Briody saw a level of intensity in the Hawks that he had not seen before.

"That was the biggest thing today. I think they were feeding off me," said Briody.

It was, after all, the Hawks who had the first goal of the game when Connor Aitken scored.

"We had a fast break, and I got by the defender with a header, and then I kicked again, and that was good," Aitken said.

The Hawks did not fare well the rest of last week, however, tying with Dieruff and losing to Allen and Freedom.

"Northampton was a heck of a game, but we showed up at Dieruff drained. Dieruff is a team we should have beat. By the Allen game, kids were sick and injured. We looked tired and beat," said Briody.

Becahi captain, John Corley, was playing at forward in the Dieruff game.

"I had a couple opportunities, and we had a goal toward the end that was offside, but we didn't have the intensity. Maybe we just wrote them off," he said.

This past Saturday, Becahi held Freedom to one goal in the first half before losing 3-1.

Corley scored for the Hawks on an assist by Mathew Shaffer.

"It was a cross from Shaffer, right to [David] Caccese. It bounced around in the box, and I kicked it in," Corley said.

The Patriots controlled the ball for most of the second half, as Briody directed his team in a league of at least 10 or more.

Daily leagues are kind of the new, in-thing over the last couple years, and involve sites like Fan Duel and Draft Kings.

Daily leagues allow fantasy football players to pick a new team each week staying under a salary cap, and give more of an instant satisfaction of starting from scratch every time they play. In yearly leagues, you are mostly stuck with the team you pick before the season starts.

Singh said one of the most important aspects of the film was casting the fantasy players, something the film really nailed. It was quite a mix, and that brought home the point: fantasy football is something anyone can be successful at.

"Fantasy is played by millions of people and we wanted to find a diverse cross-section to represent that," Singh said. "As a result, we ended up filming all over the US with people from all types of backgrounds - men, women, doctors, lawyers, stock brokers. And our players were based in five different states."

That also included filming locally with the Phillipsburg Stateliners. It was many miles in a short amount of time.

While I was aware there were higher stakes of fantasy football than what I played, this film really opened my eyes to those who essentially play for a living. At first that concept sounded like the ultimate job, but after watching the film, I'm not so sure. Those same plays that set my Sunday mood are the same plays that cause high stakes players to win, or lose, thousands of dollars.

Another topic the film touched on was are fantasy sports another form of gambling?

Some of those featured in the film don't believe it is, because they believe they can control the luck aspect of the game using statistics and trends they study endlessly.

While others aren't buying that, Singh said she's careful not to judge.

"As a documentarian, I don't make judgment about my subjects," she said. "I go into it with an open mind. We asked the question in the film about gambling versus strategy and I have to say, I'm still on the fence."

Recently, New Jersey Democrat Frank Pallone Jr. called for a congressional hearing into the relationship between the NFL and the fantasy leagues. He believes "the legal landscape governing these activities remains murky and should be reviewed," according to rollcall.com, adding there isn't much difference between sports betting on teams versus individual players.

That's a potential future problem for the fantasy world since sports betting is illegal in most states.

"I'm definitely curious about what will happen to this industry and about how much bigger it can get," Singh said, adding in the 15 months since the filming started, daily fantasy has exploded, offering up millions every week.

Up until this year, I never took part in the daily fantasy football games, but after watching the film it inspired me to open an account and see how I did. As for Singh, she's not expecting to be the next fantasy football millionaire.

"Two things happened to me after starting the film," she said. "One, I played my first fantasy football contest last year on Draft Kings to see what it was all about, and two, I realized very quickly that I'm really terrible at it. Although, I'm a marginally better fantasy hockey player. But my problem is, I draft with my heart. I can't vote against my hometown team (Vancouver Canucks), ever. So, I've pretty much broken one of the biggest fantasy rules right there."

"I was watching the girl in second place, and I was running with the girl in fourth," Yocco said. "Our girls look really good. We're pushing ourselves. We have some good freshmen too who are improving every race."

Ally Young finished first for Freedom and 14th overall. This is Young's first year running cross country. She is a junior.

"I started running a consistent amount, and then I did workouts with the team, and I pushed myself to keep up with the other girls," said Young. glovich ran it in from seven yards for the final score of the night.

With the night ending up being a lopsided victory, Truby and company were happy to see the troops bounce back after defeat to propel their season mark to 3-1.

"You know these are high school kids, so we wanted to see how they would come back after losing to Nazareth," Truby said. "We made sure that they answered the call this week and they came to play and I'm real proud of them."

Next up for Liberty is a desperate Emmaus (1-3) team, which lost to Nazareth 49-36 last weekend.

The Hornets were paced by Kyle Boney's 205 yards rushing on 33 carries and five touchdowns.

Truby knows Emmaus' ability to be physical up front presents a challenge for his group heading into this week's matchup on the road.

"It's the EPC South and every game is big," Truby said. "We need to have another week of practice like we just had and get after it this weekend."

"As soon as we won possession, we'd break," said Briody.

Leddy noticed that Freedom's outside man was sucked in to the left side of the field, leaving Leddy open often. "In the Allen game, we really used our field well, and Tony Guzman found me," he said.

Leddy probably saved a goal in the final minutes against Freedom when he kicked the ball to the side so that goalkeeper Sean Redington could retrieve it.

"It was pretty nerve-racking because I knew he was coming in," said Leddy.

Field conditions at Becahi did not help either team.

Freedom (5-3) have won five straight as well after Monday's win over Dieruff (25-15, 25-9, 25-11).

The Pates take on Becahi tonight, but finish out the week against Allen (3-7) tomorrow night.

With eight matches to go, Freedom has put themselves in position to qualify for the post-season.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM Sesquicentennial banner unveiled

In 1917 the City of Bethlehem was incorporated through the consolidation of three boroughs, South Bethlehem, Bethlehem and West Bethlehem. This year is the sesquicentennial (150th) anniversary of the incorporation of the original Borough of South Bethlehem in 1865. The South Bethlehem Historical Society has decided to celebrate the milestone through the offering of a reproduction limited edition of the semi-centennial booklet printed in 1915 and by placing street banners throughout the City's current south side environs. At the Society's annual meeting Sept. 26, current President Stephen Barron Jr. unveiled the final design of the banner. Barron said that the Historical Society will coordinate their placement with Lehigh University's initiatives to recognize the University's 150th anniversary, by working with the City to have the banners installed. Barron said they should be begin to appear during October. The Sands Bethlehem Casino and Working Dog Press are funding partners in the banner project. The reproduction booklets, "South Bethlehem Semi-Centennial 1865-1915," are available from the Society.

A pleasure boat to Calypso Island

BY KAREN M. SAMUELS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

There once sat a lush and beautiful island in the Lehigh River close to the town of Bethlehem. The 13-acre island was located about a half-mile west of where the Hill-to-Hill Bridge spans the Lehigh River today.

For thousands of years prior to the arrival of the first European settlers, members of the Lenni Lenape tribe used the island as a resting stop during their long canoe trips up and down the river. Located around the island were excellent spots to fish for shad and to harvest mussels and oysters. The Lenape used fish traps, nets, spears and bows and arrows.

After the fraudulent Walking Purchase of 1737, the land where Bethlehem would later be established was now free to be sold. Moravian Bishop David Nitschmen purchased a 500-acre tract from William Allen in 1740. It wasn't until the latter half of the 18th century that the Moravians began to purchase properties south of the Lehigh River. The congregation came into possession of the island, known then as "Upper Island," as part of the property conveyed to them by Andrew Ostrom in 1764.

The island came to be called "Catalpa Island" because of the many Catalpa trees growing there. There is a question about when it first received the name "Calypso Island." In 1826, physician and Bethlehem resident John Frederick August Steckel wrote of Calypso Island in one of his poems. Later, Pennsylvania State Representative George Henry Goundie named the island "Calypso" during a Fourth of July celebration in 1869. A possible source for the name was the Calypso orchid, with its small pink or purple flower, which grew naturally on the island in shady spots.

Half of the fun in visiting Calypso Island was in getting to the island. Many residents owned their own small boats or canoes. Henry Fahs began renting out his "pleasure boats" sometime before 1860. In 1873, a rope ferry was established to the island from the north bank. In 1874, Jacob Upton Myers bought a small steamboat, complete with a paddle wheel and steam whistle. It provided up to 35 people passage to the island from the south bank. He named the boat "Calypso."

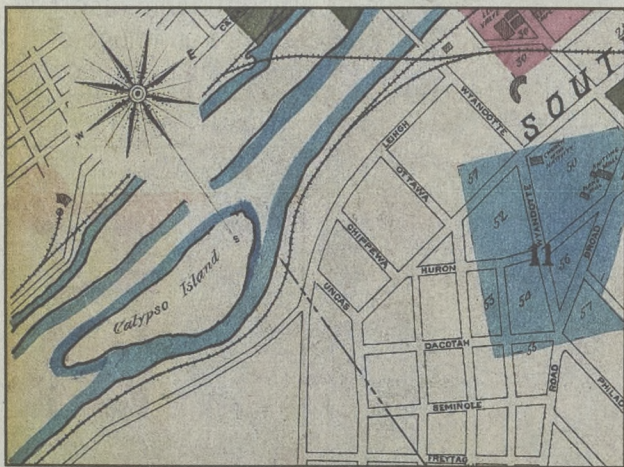

The lovely island offered cool, fresh water from a bubbling spring. For the pleasure of the congregants, the Moravian Church built a wooden octagonal pavilion, picnic tables, fireplaces, swings, seesaws and a carousel. Miles of paths were maintained spanning the island. The Lehigh Valley Railroad ran special trains to transport visitors from as far away as Philadelphia, Boston and New York to Bethlehem. The trains stopped at the boat landings for easy access to the island. The Moravian Congregation began charging admission to each registered group to defray the costs of the upkeep of the paths and equipment. On a Thursday, in July of 1878, over a thousand picnickers visited the island.

The popularity of the place continued to grow. A Sunday in July of 1885 saw 4,000 people arrive on the island. Alcohol and firearms were strictly prohibited. An 1882 newspaper notice announced that a telephone was installed on the island. During the winter, when the river froze, people skated around the island.

Calypso Island was frequently flooded in the spring and the upkeep of the paths and picnic grounds became too expensive for the church. The damage from floods in the spring of 1902 was unprecedented. Bridges in Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton were severely damaged. The Bethlehem Steel Company was forced to close its machine shops when they were flooded with five feet of river water. Lehigh Avenue and Vineyard Street homes were submerged up to second story windows.

The Moravian Church Council, facing costly repairs, decided, rather than use funds to repair the damage on the island, they would sell it to the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for $20,000. Within a year of the sale in 1903, the Lehigh Valley Railroad stripped the island bare to the soil. The Bethlehem Daily Times newspaper reported the depressing event of the island's last tree being felled. The final work by the engineering department of the railroad and F. H. Clement Company of Philadelphia didn't commence until 1909-1910, when several large steam shovels were used to move the north side of the island to the south side to fill in the channel.

The workers had a few surprises during this phase when they uncovered six skeletons believed to be drowning victims of the 1862 flood of the Lehigh River. The workmen also found hundreds of arrowheads and a black flint tomahawk from the days when Lenni Lenape traversed the island. All in all, the men and machines moved 125,000-cubic yards of dirt and stone off the island to the arch-like curve in the bank, located just west of South Bethlehem. The railroad happily reported a savings of 15 minutes on the straightened track.

ELECTION POLICY

As we approach the Nov. 3 municipal election, the Bethlehem Press, in the interest of fairness, will halt the publication of columns by local government officials and letters to the editor submitted by those running for office.

The last week for publication of columns by local government officials is the Oct. 7 edition.

We will, of course, continue to cover the local races, in news stories generated by our own reporters.

Letters to the editor, written by members of the community in support of a candidate, need to be received by The Press no later than 5 p.m., Oct. 16.

Driverless trucks can save lives

BY DANA GRUBB
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Royal Truck and Equipment recently unveiled technology designed to improve safety and save lives in highway construction zones across the country. In a product demonstration held at the Memorial Pool parking lot on Illick's Mill Road, representatives from Royal Truck and Equipment and the ATMA (autonomous truck mounted attenuator) design firm Kratos Defense and Security Solutions attended to promote the groundbreaking technology and answer questions.

They were joined by Congressman Charlie Dent, City Parks Director Ralph Carp, and several city public works supervisors.

In remarks prior to the actual demonstration, Royal Truck and Equipment President Rob Roy introduced the technology which has been developed based on unmanned uses in the military. "Our company is committed to... help save lives in work zones," said Roy, "and we believe this technology will do just that."

The concept involves a leader and follower vehicle. The lead vehicle is manned and transmits GPS directional and rate of speed data to the follower vehicle, which is driverless. The driverless vehicle is also equipped with digital safety signage and a crash absorption device on its rear. Eliminating the driver protects highway workers and the potential for injury or death. The crash absorption device, called an attenuator, is designed and tested to protect drivers who may impact the follower highway work vehicle due to distraction or other factors.

The follower truck trailed behind the leader vehicle during several demonstration laps in the parking lot, speeding up and slowing down via the ATMA transceiver and receiver. The system is portable and can be moved from one vehicle to another, which makes it very cost effective.

Royal and the Kratos Company's Microsystems Inc. will be partnering with the Florida Department of Transportation on a pilot program later this year. Data gathered will be used to evaluate the ability of the ATMA system to improve highway work zone safety and reduce costs associated with work zone accidents.

After witnessing the ATMA demonstration, Dent voiced that very observation, saying "This technology will help us enhance highway safety, especially in highway work zones."

While still groundbreaking, Roy hopes to see the ATMA technology in mainstream use within five years.

Royal Truck and Equipment president Rob Roy is joined by Congressman Charlie Dent and Roy's wife Pam as he addresses media and others in attendance at the autonomous truck mounted attenuator (ATMA) technology demonstration held at the Memorial Pool parking lot Aug. 24.

Andrew Roberts, director of business development and marketing at Royal Truck and Equipment, explains how the driverless technology works in an unmanned vehicle.

The driver's seat is empty as the ATMA follower vehicle passes by during the demo. Insurance requirements for the demonstration necessitated that a passenger ride in the ATMA driverless vehicle.

Getting more students involved in community

Freedom HS is helping to raise a generation of leaders by placing students in authority positions in their own school. The focus this year seems to be to get more students responsible and involved in the school in many ways, most notably through helping the community.

But how exactly are these students leading the school and getting involved? Who does what in order to keep the rest of the school events running?

To start, Freedom's student council has regular meetings where students are free to participate and offer ideas along with classmates of all grade levels.

"If students generate the ideas, they are more inclined to buy in," said former adviser for student council Jodi Evans.

The meetings, guided by senior class officers, and teachers Deanna Webb and Michael Cleffi, take place before school with separate subcommittees meeting at various times in order to focus on specific tasks.

"At Freedom, student council organizes, plans, and hosts events in our school and our community. We aim to get students as involved as much as possible which ensures each event we plan is unique," said Elizabeth Thomsen, a senior and president of student council.

In a meeting Sept. 24, the student council was focused on selling tickets for the homecoming dance and planning class hall decorations for Spirit Week. But student council goes beyond serving the school.

"Although what we do in school is the central focus of student council, I believe the most important work we do takes place in the community," Thomsen said.

This year, some changes are being made in order to better help that community. The National Honor Society, led by teacher Dr. Carla Krieger and student president Miriam Siddiqui, is taking over the annual blood drive, which Evans says is modeled after the event already in place at Liberty HS, where National Honor Society plans the blood drive.

"Although student council handed the reins over to NHS for the blood drive, there are a lot of students who are in both clubs, so we will be supporting the NHS to make it even more of a success than it has been in the past," said adviser Webb.

Moving this responsibility for planning has been applauded by students as well.

"With so much going on, it is crucial that we stay organized and efficient and turning over some responsibilities to other clubs helps us accomplish everything we need to this school year," Thomsen said.

The hope is to get more people involved in planning service events, and advisors believe that it will help distribute the weight of service, so one organization is not completing all of the work.

"[We're] giving everybody a part in helping the community," Evans said.

As to continuing a system of student leadership, the advisors are in favor.

"I believe it is important for students to have a voice, and student council allows them to do that," Webb said.

BASD: School-related volunteers

Gov. Tom Wolfe signed Act 153 of 2015 into law recently, which created changes for volunteer background checks/clearances.

All school volunteers who, through the course of their volunteer position, are responsible for the welfare of a child or have direct contact with children, are required to obtain and renew the state child abuse checks and both the state and the FBI criminal background checks.

There is no cost for Pennsylvania criminal and child abuse clearances; there is a cost for FBI fingerprinting. Renewal of clearances is now required every five years. For BASD specific information and forms, visit www.beth.k12.pa.us/assets/PublicForms/Volunteer_Packet.pdf.

BASD: Traditions hosts retiree breakfast

The Bethlehem Area Education Foundation will hold a complimentary back to school breakfast for Bethlehem Area School District retirees at 8 a.m. Oct. 1 at host location Traditions of Hanover, 5300 Northgate Drive.

There will be musical selections provided by BASD students. The speaker will be Dr. Joseph Roy, superintendent of schools, and information about the Bethlehem Area Education Foundation and their mission to support BASD.

The event is closed to the public. For information, call Traditions of Hanover at 610-882-0400 or Julie Bailey, executive director of the Bethlehem Area Education Foundation, at 610-861-0500, ext. 60255.

Some St. Anne's School students in their Pope Francis T-shirts cheer as the Catholic Spirit Day Papal celebration parade passes outside the Bethlehem school.

St. Anne's celebrates Pope's visit

St. Anne's School in Bethlehem held a celebration Sept. 23 in honor of Pope Francis' first visit to the United States and nearby Philadelphia. The Catholic Spirit Day featured a parade led by a float with a life-size cardboard cutout of the pontiff and school VIPs. The Bethlehem Catholic HS drumline also participated. Students, faculty and staff wore patriotic Pope Francis T-shirts, which were ordered in advance as a fundraiser. Activities included prayers for Pope Francis at the morning Mass, the hanging of crayon-colored pope letters with the papal coat-of-arms throughout the school and non-perishable food donations by students in recognition of Pope Francis' compassion for the needy. The special event was also a send-off for technology specialist Rayann Vasko for her trip to Philadelphia as a volunteer during the World Meeting of Families and the Papal Mass Sunday afternoon.

Drummers James Richie and Ivan Davilla are part of the Bethlehem Catholic HS drumline with the Golden Hawk mascot, which leads the Catholic Spirit Day parade honoring Pope Francis' visit. The Becahi musicians were special guests for the papal-themed event at St. Anne School.

Rayann Vasko, a technology specialist at St. Anne's School, wears her official World Meeting of Families volunteer T-shirt. Vasko, of Bethlehem Township, was recognized during the Catholic Spirit Day procession as a send-off for her trip to the Philadelphia convention and the Papal Mass Sunday where she would serve as a volunteer captain.

Nicole Meehan adds her donation along the giant heart-lined area on the St. Anne School playground/parking lot after the parade. Students were encouraged to give non-perishable goods in honor of Pope Francis' devotion to helping the poor and hungry. The Ecumenical Soup Kitchen in Allentown was the designated benefactor.

Tyler Bufanio displays several Pope Francis images during the Catholic Spirit Day at St. Anne's School. The local celebration of the papal visit took place Sept. 23. The patriotic papal T-shirts, worn by some students and faculty, were ordered from an online company as a fundraiser for the Catholic school.

Hand-written letters to Pope Francis from students decorate the halls of St. Anne's School in Bethlehem. The students also colored an image of the official papal coat-of-arms.

She Was Searching...

On the outskirts of Uruguay's capital, Montevideo, Maria overdosed on painkillers. Moments later, medical personnel rushed her to a hospital where she was resuscitated.

Angry that her suicide attempt failed, Maria fled from the hospital with a new plan to kill herself. As she ran, she encountered an Assemblies of God street evangelism outreach where she heard the message of salvation and accepted Jesus as her Savior. When frantic family members and the police found her in the outreach tent, they told her it was time to leave. "No, I am not leaving this place," she responded. "I have found what I was searching for."

Are you, like Maria, searching? The Bible tells us that God, our Creator, has placed within us a deep longing for Himself. "For thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created" (Revelation 4:11). The Bible also tells us that only God can satisfy our longing souls! "For he satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness" (Psalm 107:9). See more on spiritual thirst at www.naog.ws/thirsty.htm

Like Maria, many are searching for something to satisfy—riches, material possessions, sexual encounters, alcohol, drugs, etc., but these things will never fulfill and satisfy our spiritually hungry souls! Those who turn from their sins to Jesus Christ find that He satisfies! Jesus is the only Way (see www.naog.ws/theway.htm) to God! In our services we often sing, "Hallelujah! I have found Him, Whom my soul so long has craved! Jesus satisfies my longings; thro' His blood I now am saved."

I invite you to attend any of our services and let us pray with you and help you to accept Jesus as your Savior. Then you, like Maria, will be able to say, "I have found what I was searching for!"

BROADWAY POPS

Allentown Symphony celebrates songs of Rodgers & Hammerstein

Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II created a string of outstanding Broadway musical successes in the 1940s and '50s during what is considered by most the "Golden Age" of musical theater.

Rodgers and Hammerstein's outstanding Broadway successes include "Oklahoma!," "Carousel," "South Pacific," "The King And I" and "The Sound Of Music."

With Rodgers composing the music and Hammerstein writing the lyrics, the songwriting team garnered 34 Tony Awards, 15 Academy Awards, the Pulitzer Prize and two Grammy Awards.

Most would agree that "Their musical theater-writing partnership has been the greatest of the 20th century," as stated by Mark Lubbock, in "American Musical Theatre: An Introduction," from his book "The Complete Book Of Light Opera" (Appleton-Century-Crofts, 1962).

I will conduct the Allentown Symphony Orchestra in "Rodgers & Hammerstein Celebration," the first Pops Concert of the 2015-16 season, 7:30 p.m. Oct. 17, Miller Symphony Hall, Allentown.

Three outstanding talents, Sarah Pfisterer, Sean MacLaughlin and Oscar "Andy" Hammerstein III, grandson of the lyricist, join with the Allentown Symphony to celebrate the amazing productivity of Rodgers and Hammerstein by presenting many of the favorite songs of this dynamic duo.

The ASO Rodgers and Hammerstein program includes the songs "The Carousel Waltz," "Hello Young Lovers," "We Kiss In A Shadow," "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," "If I Loved You," "Out Of My Dreams," "People Will Say We're In Love," "Soliloquy," "Oh, What A Beautiful Mornin'," "The Surrey With The Fringe On Top," "A Wonderful Guy," "Some Enchanted Evening," "My Favorite Things," "Climb Every Mountain," "Edelweiss," "Shall We Dance," "You'll Never Walk Alone" and more.

Pfisterer has played more than 1,000 performances in the role of Christine in "The Phantom Of The Opera" on Broadway and its national tour. On Broadway, she played Magnolia in "Show Boat" and was seen in "Children And Art," directed by Richard Maltby, celebrating Stephen Sondheim's 75th birthday. Off-Broadway, she played Anna Smith in "Meet Me In St. Louis," directed by Charlotte Moore, at the Irish Repertory Theatre. Pfisterer, a Metropolitan Opera semi-finalist, has worked with conductors Michael Tilson Thomas and John McGlinn and did a recording of Jerome Kern's "Oh Boy" in London under the direction of McGlinn.

MacLaughlin starred as Juan Peron on the national tour of "Evita" and appeared as Raoul on Broadway in "The Phantom Of The Opera," "Bombay Dreams" and "The Woman In White."

Other stage work includes "Tut," "Requiem For William," "The Audience," "Baby: In Concert," "Camelot," "The Rainmaker," "The Rink," "Floyd Collins" and "Merrily We Roll Along."

Oscar "Andy" Hammerstein III is a painter, writer, lecturer and family historian. He has devoted much of his life to studying and preserving his family's heritage and their contribution to American culture.

He lectures frequently at universities, theaters and civic organizations on his family's pivotal role in shaping the development of musical theater and popular entertainment in the United States. In 1997, he curated the exhibit, "Direct From Broadway: A 200-Year History of New York City Theatre," at the Paine-Weber Gallery, New York City.

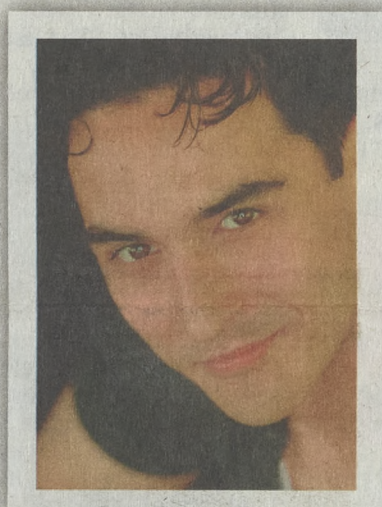

Oscar Hammerstein II is credited with inaugurating the 20th century American musical form in 1927 with "Show Boat," a collaboration with composer Jerome Kern.

"Oklahoma!" was the first musical written by Rodgers and Hammerstein. The production, which opened on Broadway in 1943, was a box office smash and ran for a then unprecedented 2,212 performances, later enjoying award-winning revivals, national tours, foreign productions and an Academy Award-winning 1955 film adaptation. Rodgers and Hammerstein won a Pulitzer Prize for "Oklahoma!" in 1944.

The musical epitomized the development of the "book musical," a musical play where the songs and dances are fully integrated into a story.

"Carousel" opened on Broadway in 1945 and ran for 890 performances. A film version was released in 1956.

"South Pacific," based on James Michener's 1947 novel, "Tales Of The South Pacific," premiered in 1949 and was an immediate hit, running for 1,925 performances.

The Broadway production enjoyed immense critical and box-office success and became the second-longest running Broadway musical at that point (behind "Oklahoma!").

The show received 10 Tony Awards, including Best Musical, Best Score and Best Libretto, and is the only musical production to win in all four acting categories. There have been many successful revivals and tours, a 1958 film version and television adaptations.

"The King And I" premiered in 1951 and ran for nearly three years with 1,246 performances, then the fourth longest-running Broadway musical in history, and has had many tours and revivals. The musical was an immediate hit and also gained critical acclaim, receiving three Tony Awards for Best Musical, Best Actress and Best Featured Actor.

A film version was released in 1956. Yul Brynner came to dominate the role of the King and the musical, starring in the Broadway production for three years, a 1955 national tour and a 1975 national revival tour that went on to London and culminated in a 1985 Broadway run.

"The Sound Of Music" opened on Broadway in 1959 and received five Tony Awards. This year marks the 50th anniversary of the 1965 film adaptation, which received five Academy Awards.

Rodgers and Hammerstein's other musicals include "Flower Drum Song" (1957) and for television, "Cinderella" (1957) and for movies, "State Fair" (1945).

Cover story 'till' be continued in spring

When the brilliant foliage of fall leaves have fallen at your feet, it's a great time to use them to add organic matter or humus to your planting beds, vegetable gardens and lawn.

There are a number of ways this can be done. Using a lawn mower or other means of shredding the leaves will hasten decomposition.

If you have a mulching mower, run over the leaves several times. This will chop them finely and they can be left on the lawn to decompose.

By spring, you'll find it difficult to see any evidence that they were there. This will add organic matter and return

GROWING GREEN
L.C. Cooperative Extension
LehighExt@psu.edu vital nutrients back to the lawn.

Alternatively, shredded leaves can be raked up and composted over the winter. In spring, the resulting compost can be added to planting beds or vegetable gardens. Finished compost can also be screened and added to potting soil for potted plants.

If you are starting a new garden or planting bed, fall is a great time to get the soil tilled and add lots of organic matter. This will loosen the soil and add nutrients.

Till the area that you are going to use for the new garden. Dump a thick layer of leaves or other organic material, such as animal bedding mixed with manure, straw or peat moss, onto the surface and till them into the soil.

During the fall and winter, beneficial bacteria, fungi and soil-dwelling insects will feed on the organic material and turn it into rich humus.

If you have planting beds in place, you can still work organic material into the soil between smaller plants being careful to avoid digging up the roots.

An older garden can be rejuvenated by adding lots of organic material in the fall. It will then be ready for spring planting. You'll be amazed in spring at the loose, crumbly soil you will have.

Cleaning up the vegetable garden in fall is important. Remove dead plants that can harbor harmful insects to get a clean start next season. Many insects will overwinter in garden debris.

By removing this debris, you are removing winter homes. Garden refuse can be composted. Chopping it up as finely as possible will hasten the composting process and you will have organic materials to add to your garden in spring.

Diseased plants should not be composted. They should be thrown out or burned.

Planting a winter cover crop will hold soil in place and prevent erosion. Some winter cover crops like legumes will actually add nitrogen to the soil. Nodules on the roots of legumes hold nitrogen.

When these are tilled into the soil and left to decompose, you add a good amount of plant-available nitrogen back into the soil.

The other good winter cover crops are rye and wheat. Wheat should be planted by mid- to late September to get well-established before frost. Rye can be sown until mid-October.

In spring, till the cover crops into the soil. This is known as a green manure. It adds a tremendous amount of organic matter to the soil.

As the crop decomposes in the soil, it will release nutrients back into the soil to feed future crops.

You should wait six weeks from the time that the cover crop is tilled under until you plant the future crop.

What makes a marriage last?

The sweet gum tree in front of my neighbor's home is now as tall as a three-story building.

"It was just a twig when we bought it for $1 from the forest service," says my neighbor Tom. "Look at it now. Its growth is nothing short of amazing."

His wife, Gini, says in lots of ways the tree is symbolic of their marriage. Like that tree, their long-term marriage grows stronger each year.

As their 67th wedding anniversary neared, neighbor Bob Thomson asked how they were planning to celebrate.

"I admitted we never take time to celebrate," Gini says. "In 67 years we only celebrated once when we went for a second honeymoon."

Saying that a party was long overdue, Bob hosted a neighborhood celebration for the anniversary couple.

For Tom and Gini, I don't think the smile left their faces as they talked with friends and neighbors who came to help them celebrate.

Several asked them why their marriage has lasted so long. Both Tom and Gini had the same answer: Because they never fight — and that peace is all Tom's fault, they quip.

"I can get mad at something and start spouting off but he never answers. We don't fight because he never answers back and never lets an issue turn into a fight," she says.

"It's who you pick for a partner that matters most," Gini emphasizes.

Well, we all know she's right around that. One of the most important decisions we make is picking a marriage partner. Pick right and we can enjoy blissful years.

On the other hand, picking the wrong partner or picking a spouse for the wrong reasons means plenty of unhappiness. It doesn't matter how well the rest of your life is. If you're miserable at home, you're miserable, period.

Tom told us he thinks it's important to become friends before you become life partners or before you add kids to the mix.

"It's important to get to know each other and to develop a deep and abiding friendship. A strong friendship leads to a happier marriage," Tom says.

Both Tom and Gini say they are each other's best friend — and always have been. They do everything together. If Gini volunteers at the community library each week, Tom does, too.

If Tom volunteers to help the American Legion with a fundraising project, Gini works along side of him.

"We're at the point where we know each other so well we can finish each other's sentences," Gini declares.

But all that togetherness isn't for everyone. Two women at the party declared their belief that a couple should each have separate interests as well as things they do together.

"That's especially important in retirement," said one woman. "If you're only around each other, you have nothing to talk about."

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik
newsgirl@comcast.net

On the other hand, if you go out into the world and have different experiences, you're a more interesting person when you are back with your spouse, she said.

Another woman says she quietly looked for a job outside the home. She and her husband have a sterling marriage, but years of being together 24/7 left her longing for a big of variety in life.

When she got a part-time job, she says she felt like a new person.

Psychotherapist Marcia Naomi Berger wrote the book "Marriage Meetings for Lasting Love" in which she told of helping one couple with opposite feelings about togetherness. He wanted to spend all his free time with his wife. She found that stressful and wanted time for her own activities.

According to the marriage therapist, many people benefit from a bit of separate activities from a spouse.

My husband, David, is my very best friend. I enjoy every moment with him, starting from our shared breakfast conversation to our shared activities during the day. While I treasure that time, I also need "girlfriend time." David is my priority but I always treasure time with my girlfriends.

You have to figure out what works best for your marriage.

Gini said the real reason why their marriage has thrived is because they made the commitment to have a forever marriage.

"My mother was divorced two times and that made me resolve I wouldn't marry until I was sure," Gini says. "I vowed to have a forever marriage."

Just like the sweet gum tree that can produce burrs at times, the anniversary celebrants admit they had one burr that hurt the marriage.

When their daughter was killed in an automobile accident during her second year of college, both Tom and Gini were overcome by grief that suffocated the marriage.

Gini says when things were bleak she was sustained by her vow to have a forever marriage. "We both work harder to connect again until we finally did," she says.

Every marriage has rough spots. But I believe Gini is right when she says it takes a strong commitment to stay together and work through the rough spots.

We get married for love. Love is an emotion. But emotions are like the tide that comes and goes. Commitment, on the other hand, takes work.

As they celebrate their 67th wedding anniversary, Tom and Gini are celebrating their commitment to a forever marriage.

Like the sweet gum tree in their backyard, they keep thriving, basking in the sunlight of their life together.

Tell-tale signs of cocaine addiction listed

Q. I'm afraid that my grandson may be using cocaine. Is there any way I can tell for sure? And how dangerous is this drug?

Many of us are grandparents who worry about the drug culture of our grandchildren. We also wonder if there's anything we can do to prevent youths from getting into a drug habit.

The first step we can take is to educate ourselves.

Cocaine, the strongest natural stimulant, is an addictive drug. You can be hooked with a single use. It causes a short-lived high that is immediately followed by depression, edginess and a craving for more of the drug. Cocaine interferes with the way your brain creates feelings of pleasure, so you need more of the drug to feel normal.

Cocaine is extracted from the leaves of the coca plant. It is a drug that comes in the form of a white powder that is snorted. It can be converted to a liquid form for injection. Crack is cocaine processed into a crystal form for smoking. Crack, also called "rock," looks like small chunks of soap.

Cocaine, in any form,

HEALTHY GEEZER

By Fred Cicetti
fred@healthygeezer.com

is illegal. It is the most frequently mentioned illicit substance reported to the Drug Abuse Warning Network by hospital emergency departments throughout the nation.

Cocaine is lethal. It can cause strokes, heart attacks and respiratory failure. In addition, it can cause irregular heartbeat, depression, violent actions and loss of sexual function.

According to the Office of National Drug Control Policy, the following are the signs that someone may be addicted to cocaine:

Periods of severe depression

Weight loss

Decline in personal hygiene or appearance

Constant runny nose

Frequent upper respiratory infections

Changes in sleep patterns

Loss of interest in friends, family, and social activities

Loss of interest in food, sex, or other pleasures

Hearing voices when nobody has spoken, or feeling paranoid

Expressing more anger, becoming more impatient or nervous

Hallucinations

Here are some more signs that I collected from other sources:

Frequently need for money

Intense euphoria

Bloodshot eyes

Dilated pupils

Hyper-alertness

Panic

Seizures from high doses

The presence of any unexplained white powder

Small spoons, mirrors, razor blades and rolled paper money used for snorting

Small bottles with screw-top lids and small plastic packets for storing

Increase in body temperature, respiration and pulse

Grinding of teeth

Obsessive touching or picking at various objects and parts of the body

Repetitive dismantling of mechanical objects

There are many slang terms for cocaine. Here are just some: big C, blanco, blow, blast, Bolivian, Charlie, coke, Columbian, girl, heaven, happy powder, Mama Coca, mojo, nose candy, Peruvian, pimp, she, sniff, snort, snow, toot, trails, white lady, star-dust.

Cocaine was first used in the 19th century in surgery as an anesthetic and to reduce bleeding. It constricts blood vessels. Safer drugs came along to replace it.

According to a National Survey on Drug Use and Health, about 33.7 million Americans over the age of 12 reported trying cocaine at least once. Among students surveyed, 3.7 percent of eighth graders, 5.2 percent of 10th graders, and 8 percent of 12th graders reported using cocaine at least once.

In 1970, Congress classified cocaine as a Schedule II substance, which means it may lead to severe psychological or physical dependence.

'Maze' bumper

"Maze Runner" was an unexpected surprise in the genre of theatrical movie adaptations of Young Adult dystopian science-fiction.

"Maze Runner: The Scorch Trials" is pretty much of a mess.

The first film was "Hunger Games" without the reality show trappings. It was "Lord of the Flies," with every teen out for his or herself. Who in a middle school or high school homeroom, study hall or cafeteria has not experienced that?

Since the sequel is not worth spending your hard-earned part-time job or parents' spending money on, we'll cut right to the spoiler alert: Zombies.

Yep, yep, zombies (aka Cranks) have turned "Maze Runner" into a zombie apocalypse movie. What's an apocalypse movie without zombies?

The zombie plot is not played for laughs, as in a dark comedy like "Zombieland" (2009). The "Maze" sequel takes its zombies seriously.

The zombies occupy what might have been the Mall of America. The zombies are in the food court area, obviously. It's just another day at the mall. Where's Rob Zombie when you need him?

That's the plot: zombies and running away from zombies.

Despite the protagonists being outside of the maze, they are thrust into an underground tunnel system that looks like a maze. And there's another nifty slide under the closing bunker door.

Director Wes Ball ("Maze Runner," 2014), working from a screenplay by T.S. Nowlin ("Maze Runner") based on the novel by James Dashner ("The Maze Runner: The Death Cure," 2017), throws in a trendy rave-EDM (Electronic Dance Music) scene, "Burning Man" scene, "Mad Max" vehicle and Charlie Manson-like cult leader to advance the plot.

The screenplay plays on another cliché: Millennials (Gladers) versus Baby Boomers (WCKD).

Whereas there was sufficient character development and script dialogue in "Maze Runner," the sequel lacks such moments. The dialogue mostly consists of "Let's go. Let's go."

"Maze" plays on youthful confusion, climate change, the Ebola virus, stem cell harvesting and the international refugee crisis in its attempts at relevancy and high-mindedness.

The young cast is back: Dylan O'Brien (Thomas), Ki Hong Lee (Minho), Kaya Scodelario (Teresa), Thomas Brodie-Sangster (Newt), Dexter Darden (Frypan), Alexander Flores (Winston) and Jacob Lofland (Aris). There's also Aidan Gillen (Janson), Giancarlo Esposito (Jorge), Rosa Salazar (Brenda) and Lili Taylor (Mary). Patricia

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein

Clarkson (Ava Paige) is back in what is not much more than a cameo.

In the final scene, Jorge says to Thomas, "It's a good speech, kid. So, what's your plan?"

The camera locks in on Thomas's grimace.

Cut to "The Maze Runner: The Death Cure," set for release in 2017 and in preproduction.

"Maze Runner: The Scorch Trials," MPAA Rated PG-13 (Parents Strongly Cautioned. Some Material May Be Inappropriate For Children Under 13.) for extended sequences of violence and action, some thematic elements, substance use and language; Genre: Action, Science-Fiction, Thriller; Run time: 2 hrs., 32 mins.; Distributed by 20th Century Fox.

Credit Readers Anonymous: "Maze Runner: The Scorch Trials" was filmed in New Mexico.

Box Office, Sept. 25: "Hotel Transylvania 2" opened at No. 1 with $47.5 million, keeping "The Intern" opening at No. 2 with $18.2 million, dropping "Maze Runner: The Scorch Trials" from No. 1 to No. 3, with $14 million, $51.6 million, two weeks;

4. "Everest," $13 million, $23.1 million, two weeks; 5. "Black Mass," $11.5 million, $42.6 million, two weeks; 6. "The Visit," $6.7 million, $52.2 million, three weeks; 7. "The Perfect Guy," $4.7 million, $48.8 million, three weeks; 8. "War Room," $4.2 million, $55.9 million, five weeks; 9. "The Green Inferno," $3.4 million, opening; 10. "Sicario," $1.7 million, $2.3 million, two weeks

Unrated, Oct. 2: "The Martian," PG-13; Ridley Scott directs Matt Damon, Jessica Chastain, Kristen Wiig and Kate Mara in the science-fiction film about an astronaut presumed dead on Mars.

"Freeheld," PG-13: Peter Sollett directs Julianne Moore, Ellen Page, Steve Carell and Michael Shannon in the drama about a New Jersey police lieutenant and her domestic partner.

"Sicario," R: Denis Villeneuve directs Emily Blunt, Josh Brolin, Benicio Del Toro and Jon Bernthal in the crime thriller about an FBI agent in the war on drugs at the United States-Mexico border.

"Shanghai," R: Mikael Hafström directs John Cusack, Li Gong, Yun-Fat Chow and David Morse in a drama set in 1940s Shanghai.

"He Named Me Malala," PG-13: Davis Guggenheim directs the documentary about Malala Yousafzai, a Pakistani school girl attacked by the Taliban.

Pennsylvania Sinfonia season begins

Pennsylvania Sinfonia Orchestra, the Lehigh Valley chamber orchestra founded by its Music Conductor Allan Birney, begins its 2015-16 season with "Baroque and Beyond," 7:30 p.m. Oct. 3, Christ Lutheran Church, 1245 W. Hamilton St., Allentown.

Thomas Pfefer, guitar, and the orchestra perform "The Guitar Concerto in A" by Ferdinando Carulli.

Lawrence Wright, trumpet, and the orchestra perform "Trumpet Concerto in D" by Giuseppe Torelli.

Also on the program is "Concerto Grosso in G" by George F. Handel and "Holberg Suite" by Edvard Grieg.

Thomas Pfefer, 16, of Bethlehem, has played classical guitar for more than 10 years. He received first place in the 2011 Guitar Foundation of America Competition, junior division, and the 2014 Philadelphia Classical Guitar Competition, high school division. He was featured on NPR's national show "From the Top" and was selected by the Bach Choir of Bethlehem to be a part of the Chaconne Project and Zimmerman Coffee House concerts led by Dr. Larry Lipkis.

Wright, principal trumpet of the Sinfonia, performs in the Sinfonia's summer series "Valley Vivaldi," as well as with the Bethlehem Bach Festival Orchestra, Allentown Symphony and Philadelphia Brass.

A musicians' reception follows the concert.

Tickets: at the door, PASinfonia.org . 610 434-7811

Going back in history at Jerusalem Western Salisbury Church

PRESS PHOTOS BY JIM MARSH

Dressed in Colonial era garb, Joshua Fink, church historian at the Jerusalem Western Salisbury Church guides a tour of the cemetery markers at the oldest portion of the cemetery at the church, along Devonshire Road in the western portion of Salisbury Township. Graves in the church cemetery date back to the 1700s. Prior to the tour Fink told some two dozen visitors Sept. 19, of the church's history as a Lutheran and UCC union church, one of the oldest in Lehigh County. Fink said the twice-yearly historical tours of the cemetery started in 2012 when the church began planning for the church's 275 anniversary year which begins Jan. 1, 2016.

Jerusalem Western Salisbury Church historian, Joshua Fink, dressed in Colonial-era garb, describes the unusual double grave site of a husband and wife buried in the church's historic cemetery which has grave sites dating back to the 1700s.

Picking up STEAM at new middle school

pwillistein@thonline.com

Patrice M. Turner, principal of Northampton Area Middle School, has had a particular challenge for the past three years.

In a sense, she was principal of two schools.

There was the old middle school, which closed its doors at the conclusion of the 2014-15 school year.

And there was the new middle school, which opened its doors for the 2015-16 school year.

Turner was wearing two hats. One was a construction hat. The other was her thinking cap.

A lot of thought went into the planning of the middle school, which incorporates the latest in educational concepts, instructional approaches and real-world outcomes. The school's classroom wing is organized on three levels, with the newly added sixth grade on the first floor, seventh grade on the second floor and eighth grade on the third floor.

As Turner emphasized

at the Aug. 16 middle school ribbon-cutting ceremony, "Our new middle school provides an opportunity for our staff and students to take learning to the next level."

Following the Aug. 31 opening and start of the school year, Turner observed, "The sense of pride and community that continues to strengthen since we opened our doors is building a strong foundation for future success.

"A lot of time and thought went into the layout and structure of this secondary complex in order to incorporate the learning theories of STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Art and Mathematics) into the educational experience.

"The academic section of the new middle school has the same layout on all three floors in the same exact area, providing consistency and structure within the learning environment. This area consists of content area classrooms, special education classrooms, conference rooms, teacher planning rooms and science labs. Content area teachers are in classrooms that are right next to each other to provide a means of open communication and collaboration," Turner continued.

"Each floor then has different areas for the arts so students do have opportunities to travel throughout the entire building. The procedures in place for transitions are building a sense of responsibility and independence among the students.

"I am very proud of what the district, board and community members have done for our entire district. My pride is echoed by our staff and students. The door has just opened to opportunity, and every day is a learning experience for all of us.

"As our students state every morning as they broadcast live to the entire building: "Northampton Area School District is dedicated to educating and developing responsible citizens who LEARN from the past, LISTEN to the present and LEAD our future," Turner said.

Turner outlined the middle school design, floor by floor.

First floor: Grade 6

Courtyard with tiered concrete pad for performances and turf area, to supplement the arts, extension of the classroom and for team-building activities.

Tech ed area: CAD lab, 3-D printer, laser engraver, Intro to Robotics through Lego Works

Computer lab

Science labs

Second floor: Grade 7

Guidance area, administration, health suite

Gymnasium (divides into three): able to enrich the arts as well, through performances and presentations

Music classroom with digital keyboards; choral room; band-orchestra room/performance area

Computer lab, auxiliary gym, family/consumer science and science labs

Third floor: Grade 8

Cafeteria/presentation

area

Media center with Maker Space (3-D printer), science labs, school store

Virtual room with four projectors, seats up to 150 and has a movable wall to divide the space

Art room, computer lab

Field house and athletic facilities that support curriculum, school and community

TV studio

In addition, the middle school features:

Furniture that provides flexibility and accommodates various learning strategies;

Lighting that adds energy to the atmosphere in the building;

An openness provided by windows to the outside and inside that invites students, staff and visitors to observe learning experiences throughout the building;

TVs throughout the building that open up lines of communication and provide further opportunities to show off learning experiences;

A wireless network throughout the building that supports the technology;

Projectors in every classroom; and

Structure and design that allow areas to serve multiple purposes to meet the needs of education, athletics, the arts and community.

We appreciate the opportunity to be a part of the District's project and the community.

PENN BUILDERS*inc*

Penn Builders Inc welcomes the Konkrete Kids to the new Middle School! The new school constructed with more than 11,000 yards of concrete and 550,000 concrete masonry units built on the former site of Atlas Cement transforms the proud history of the property into an educational facility that will stand strong into the future. Penn Builders is proud to have been the General Contractor for the project and wishes to extend our special thanks to everyone who participated in making this dream for the Northampton Community a reality including:

- Northampton Area Community and Board Members of the Northampton Area School District for your commitment to education and support for the project.
- Mr. Kovalchik, Mr. Yanders, Ms. Turner for unparalleled leadership leading up to construction, during construction, and through opening the new school. Your long days and late nights to facilitate the project have yielded a successful project.
- KCBA Architects, D'Huy Engineering, Terraform Engineering, and Snyder Hoffman Associates for the envisioning, designing, engineering, and administering the Middle School project. The project design of KCBA, Terraform, and Snyder Hoffman Associates and project coordination and leadership of D'Huy Engineering have yielded this special facility.
- Penn Builders employees for your dedication. This project would not be what it is without your commitment to hard work, meeting schedules, attention to detail, and commitment to quality.
- All subcontractors for your responsible, professional, committed execution of the work. This project required a team of top-tier contractors to be successful; thank you for being part of the team.
- Prime contractors – Guy M Cooper (HVAC), Jay R. Reynolds (Plumbing), and Wind Gap Electric (Electric) for your cooperation and commitment to working together to meet project needs and goals.

Sincerely,
Jon Swartley

Middle school site challenge proved a blessing in disguise

pwillistein@tnonline.com

It wasn't just two of the snowiest and coldest winters in decades that proved a challenge for the Northampton Area Middle School and Secondary Campus Renovation Project. The site itself presented a challenge. It also provided an advantage.

The project was designed from the start to function while classes were ongoing. The three-year middle school construction project began and continued even as classes were still held in the old middle school. Renovation of the Al Erdosy Stadium required the NASD sports teams, as well as the Big "N" Band, to practice elsewhere. For two seasons, the Konkrete Kids varsity football team played its home games at the Nazareth Area School District stadium.

Jay Clough, AIA, managing principal, KCBA Architects, Hatfield, middle school project architect, and Christopher W. Haller, ICC, MBA, senior project engineer, D'Huy Engineering Inc., Bethlehem, middle school project engineer, were at the forefront of the day-to-day, week-to-week managing of the project, presenting progress reports at Northampton Area School District board of education meetings.

With the opening of the middle school Aug. 31, Clough and Haller reflected on the $80.7 million project.

Clough emphasized the enormity of the project:

"The site presented numerous planning challenges as, at the project outset, it contained the original middle school building, the district high school, a former vo-tech school, the district's stadium and field house, and a borough park.

"The development of a construction phasing plan that maintained safe site operations while providing adequate space for construction activities was an important project challenge," said Clough.

"In addition, the site's excessive slope of 40 feet initially appeared to be an obstacle. However, that proved to be an asset as it enabled a general building organization with three distinct zones: academic, educational resource and community commons, each with its own entrance at grade," Clough said.

Haller addressed the engineering challenges presented by the site.

"It was a great challenge constructing a 270,000-square-foot building on a site that rises over 40 feet in elevation," said Haller. "This challenge offered the design team a unique opportunity to design the building in such a manner that each floor of the three-story building has direct access to the outside.

"Constructing the new middle school on the secondary campus with the existing high school and middle school still in operation required a great amount of planning to develop the phasing of the work so as not to disrupt the daily operations of the campus and maintain a safe environment for the students, faculty and parents," Haller continued.

"Upon the completion of the demolition of the original middle school, a 50-space bus loop will be constructed, which will allow for safe bus drop-off and pick-up by bus. When buses are not using this loop, there will be approximately 180 parking spaces available for the public," said Haller.

Mother Nature presented another challenge. Clough and Haller said the contractors rose to the task.

"The extreme cold, snow and ice over the past two winters caused the contractors to lose several months of valuable construction time from a schedule that was already very tight," said Clough.

Ed Pany Drive provides the entrance to Northampton Area Middle School.

"The contractors were not able to perform any work during many winter days and made minimal progress on most others. The contractors were able to make up this lost time through a coordinated team effort of adding manpower in good weather and working many long hours of overtime," Clough said.

Haller won't soon forget the meteorological challenge, either.

"The winters of 2013-14 and 2014-15 will definitely be remembered," said Haller. "The main portion of the building is 'load-bearing' construction, which means the wall and floor systems are the structural backbone of the building.

"With the extreme cold and wet winters, construction came to a crawl. With guidance from the school district's administration and with the dedication of many contractors, we were able to overcome what could have been a four- to six-month delay.

"This teamwork allowed the building to open on time for the start of the 2015-16 school year. This was no small task. Everyone involved kept the attitude that there are no problems, just opportunities for greatness," said Haller.

Clough said the middle school is one of the biggest ever undertaken by his architecture firm:

"KCBA has planned and designed over 175 K-12 projects in Pennsylvania. In terms of overall size, the new Northampton Area Middle School is one of the top five largest ever completed by KCBA."

The middle school, while not the biggest or smallest in D'Huy Engineering's portfolio, is "unique," according to Haller:

"Throughout D'Huy Engineering's almost 40-year history, we have been involved in numerous public school projects ranging from smaller summer projects to new buildings such as the new Northampton Area Middle School and everything in between. The new middle school for Northampton definitely ranks as one of the most unique buildings by being built into the hillside with access to the outside on all three floors."

See NAMS on Page 11

Clough said the new middle school has many features that enhance teachers' abilities and bolster students' education:

"The new 278,000-square-foot, three-story building for 1,500 students includes a full complement of classrooms and labs, as well as many specialty spaces such as a media center to support distance learning, a career planning center, a two-story instrumental music room, both competition and auxiliary gymnasiums, and a natatorium.

"Site amenities include a completely redesigned campus-wide vehicular and pedestrian circulation system to enhance safety and efficiency, a bus loop to accommodate 50 buses, two competition artificial turf fields and artificial track, all illuminated with low-glare LED lighting to allow evening use, and a new softball complex," said Clough.

Haller agreed there are numerous distinctive features of the new school.

"From the beginning, the school district wanted a practical building that provided the students with a 21st-century learning experience. With a clear vision from the district, the design team was tasked with:

"Providing a building that met the needs of the students and faculty using the building;

"Could be utilized by all students and residents of the district;

"Needed to be designed with energy-efficient and 'green' products following the LEED criteria; and

"Being good stewards of the taxpayers' dollars throughout the project."

Clough elaborated on several goals integral to the design of the building:

"An emphasis on safety: All building visitors are routed through a secure vestibule that is monitored by security personnel and visible from the front desk. Separate bus and parent drop-off entrances are provided.

"Hallways and stairs are wide, easy to monitor and encourage easy circulation.

"An emphasis on durability and ease of maintenance: Honoring the Northampton heritage of concrete, all major building components are concrete and concrete block, cast stone or brick. These will last years with minimal maintenance.

"An emphasis on daylight: All spaces have large windows with views to the exterior. Most public functions are linked to interior circulation spaces or to each other by large windows.

"This encourages collaboration by occupants, allows daylight to penetrate deep into the building and adds interest to those circulating through the building.

"An emphasis on flexibility: The cafeteria, which on a daily basis provides seating for 500 with a scatter-serve system, also is equipped to serve as a flexible assembly space, a viewing gallery for the gym and a staging area for student bus boarding. The main competition gym not only can host three concurrent athletic events, but is designed to host the entire student body for assemblies."

Clough also outlined attributes of the new field house and swimming pool:

"The field house is highly flexible to accommodate multiple sports. It includes eight locker rooms, storage for all teams, two large sets of public toilets and a large concession stand.

"The pool meets PIAA standards for swimming and diving competitions. A raised viewing gallery provides seating for 283 spectators.

"This complex, including locker rooms, ample public toilets and a concession stand (which also serves an outdoor competition field), is designed to be used as a stand-alone facility during nonschool hours."

Haller said the middle school project is more than just a new school:

"The main distinctive feature of this building is the vision the board and administration brought to the table while planning this facility. It is more than just a middle school.

"The vision of the school district was to create a building that would enhance the function of the secondary campus and allow everyone in the district, students and taxpayers, the ability to use the facility," said Haller.

"Included with the new middle school is a cafeteria that can be used by clubs and community groups, a gymnasium with flexibility to hold basketball, volleyball and wrestling matches, a field house adjacent to the stadium fitted with locker rooms that can be utilized by all athletics throughout the year and a natatorium that will be used for curriculum, the swim team, as well as community activities," Haller said.

"This was no small task. Everyone involved kept the attitude that there are no problems, just opportunities for greatness."
