2.1 % tax increase looms

By JOSE ROMAN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Property owners in the Bethlehem Area School District might have to dig a little deeper into their pockets. On April 29, the school board presented a tentative budget for the school year 2013-14. This preliminary budget of about $224 million includes a proposed property tax increase of 2.1 percent.

This means that an average property owner whose home value is set at $56,000 would pay about $55 more in taxes yearly.

Bethlehem School District Superintendent Dr. Joseph J. Roy called the tax increase modest. But that did not stop Board Director Basilio Bonilla Jr. from speaking against it. "I've seen how it hurts a lot of senior citizens," Bonilla argued. However, Bonilla added he might consider a property tax increase as long as it comes with tax relief for senior citizens.

Some board members, with Director Aurea Ortiz leading the pack, expressed concern that the preliminary budget

Prayers for the nation

Nearly 100 area residents gathered at Bethlehem's Payrow Plaza May 2 to pray and reflect during the 2013 National Day of Prayer. Joseph Kricks, of Share the Power, conducted the service and was joined by Rev. Marilyn Hartman, Rabbi Mark Shulman, Rev. Manuela Kauer, State Representative Steve Samuelson, Rev.

Charter school for autistic children to open in 2014

By DANA GRUBB
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Dr. Tom Lubben has established both the Lehigh Valley Charter School for the Arts and the Arts Academy Charter School, and now he wants to create a third charter school; the Pennsylvania Autism Charter School. Lubben says he's doing it for his grandson, Jack, an 8-year-old who is autistic and whose image graces promotional materials for the school.

At an April 22 press conference, Lubben and Jack's mother, Annette Hickey, a graduate of DeSales University who will also become executive director of the school, revealed their plans to establish the first charter school of its kind in Pennsylvania. They have targeted September 2014 as the opening date. Students between the ages of 3 1/2 and 8 who have a physician's diagnosis of an Autism Spectrum Disorder will be able to attend. Enrollment will be limited to between 50 and 75.

Lubben said that a location in Berks County will be announced once a lease is secure and the school's charter submitted, which he hopes to do within a few months, well before the state's Nov. 15 deadline. Public hearings will be held as part of the review process.

The school's staff will include a board certified behavioral analyst and clinical psychologist, according to Hickey, who said the curriculum will blend the use of Montessori materials with

CITY DEBATES

Mayor: Trash, police, districts

By ANDREW CASS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem mayoral candidates J. William Reynolds and Robert Donchez debated each other in an April 30 forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Northampton County.

The debate was held in the ESSA Community Room at PBS 39 and was moderated by League of Women Voters of Northampton County President Joan Dean.

Donchez has been on Bethlehem City Council since 1996 and served as president of council for eight years. He is a former U.S. Government teacher at William Allen HS and currently serves as the chief of staff to Representative Daniel McNeill.

Reynolds became the youngest ever member of Bethlehem City Council when he was elected in 2008. He is currently the vice president of council and is a social studies teacher at William Allen.

Donchez said his top priority is public safety.

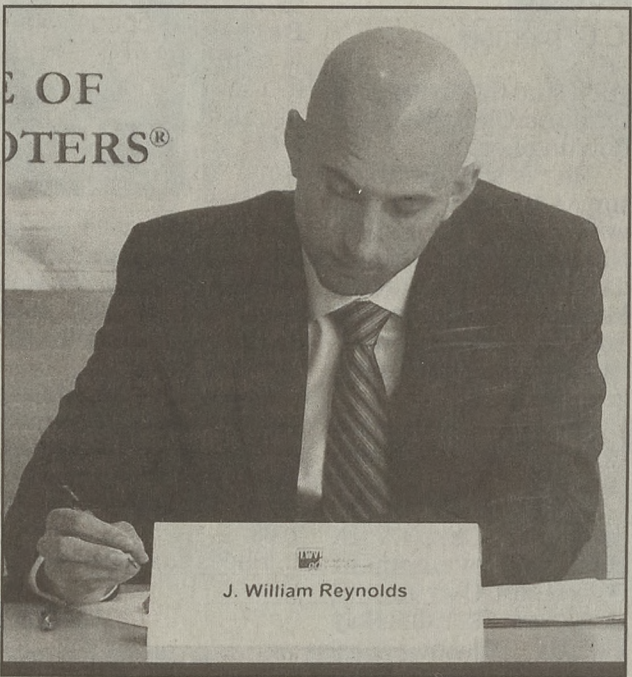

"We are a safe city but we need to maintain that safety," Donchez said. "A safe city leads to economic development."

He added that he is concerned that the number of police officers has dropped from 160 to 149 and said he would like to see that number come back up to 155.

Reynolds was critical of his opponent's plan to add police officers.

Robert Donchez is the longest tenured member of city council, having served since 1996.

J. William Reynolds became the youngest ever Bethlehem City Council member when he was elected in 2008.

"To say we need to add police officers without coming up with a plan to pay for them or come up with additional revenue sources is disingenuous," Reynolds said.

As part of his safety plan, Reynolds said he wants to make sure police officers know the city's neighborhoods and expand security cameras in high crime areas. He added that the way to make the city safer is to get to the root of the problem.

"If we don't find things for our teenagers to do and we don't find ways to make people a part of our community, we'll lose them," Reynolds said.

Both Reynolds and Donchez agreed that the key to economic development in the city is through safe neighborhoods.

Reynolds said he wants representation on city council from all parts of Bethlehem. West Bethlehem for example, has not had a representative since Don Cunningham in 1995. Reynolds said he wants a mixture of at-large bids and districted seats.

"Things are different in each part of the city," Reynolds said. "If you look at trash, economic development, safety and the way people want to walk around, you have a different city. It's the way school districts do it, other municipalities do it, Easton is much smaller than we are and they just went to this system four or five See MAYOR on Page A8

Council: Budget tops the list

By ANDREW CASS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The six democratic candidates vying for seats on Bethlehem City Council squared off in a May 2 debate sponsored by the Bethlehem City Democratic Committee in Prosser Auditorium in the Hauer Union Building on Moravian College's campus.

Current council members Karen Dolan and Eric Evans were joined by Bryan Callahan, Steve Melnick, David Sanders and Adam Waldron in the debate moderated by former Bethlehem Mayor and Lehigh County Executive Don Cunningham.

Background: Callahan is the brother of outgoing Bethlehem Mayor John Callahan and a department chair at Freedom HS.

Dolan has been a member of city council since 2006 and if re-elected will either be the longest or second longest tenured council member, depending on the outcome of the race for Bethlehem mayor. She is the Executive Director & CEO of the Fox Environmental Center at Illick's Mill.

Bethlehem City Council candidates Bryan Callahan, Karen Dolan and Chris Evans discuss issues facing the city in a debate at Prosser Auditorium at Moravian College.

Steve Melnick, David Sanders and Adam Waldron are three of the six democratic candidates running for city council. Only one Republican, Chris Morales, is vying for a seat.

Evans is the current city council president and has served on the board since 2010. He also teaches at East Hills MS.

Hickey also explained that a great deal of education and mentoring would hike.

Board President Michael Faccineto asked board members to think about possible alternatives they are willing to support. One of such alternatives put on the table is a bigger property tax hike accompanied by money allocation for pre-K. Other suggested alternatives inevitably include a compromise like supporting one program over another.

Superintendent Dr. Roy

favors leaving the property tax increase at 2.1 percent.

The preliminary budget proposes allocating funds to support various programs considered crucial by the board, such as athletics, tutoring, libraries, community service/service learning, social services/drop-out prevention and after-school programs.

The Bethlehem School District will enter its next school year with a deficit of $2.8 million. However, things were much worse even a couple of months ago, when the deficit stood at $8.1 million. Board directors agreed the district is headed in the right direction and praised the efforts of Dr. Roy to bring the deficit down.

The school board is expected to tentatively adopt a final budget on May 13. The final vote on the budget should take place by June 17.

DUIs

Freemansburg police arrested two motorists in the early morning hours of April 20.

According to police, officers stopped a vehicle for straying across lanes on Main Street around 2:15 a.m. They determined Kyle Lee Cambiotti, 27, of Bethlehem was intoxicated after he failed sobriety tests.

Three hours later on Ramblewood Lane police stopped Gabriel Quijano-Olivo, 28, of Bethlehem when a computer check revealed he was driving with a suspended drivers license. He, too, was determined to be intoxicated.

DUI and other charges are pending in both cases.

Homicide charge

Police have officially charged 20-year-old Ulysses Rodriguez, last known to reside on Walnut Street in Allentown, with the January homicide of a man in Bethlehem.

Rodriguez allegedly shot and killed Tyree Wimberly, 21, also of Allentown, outside Scoobie's Gentleman's Club at West Broad Street and Club Avenue Jan. 26.

A warrant has been issued for Rodriguez's arrest, and police ask anyone with information about his whereabouts call Bethlehem Detective Jason Fulmer at 610-997-7682, Task Force Detective Richard Heffelfinger at 610-782-3654 or Lehigh Valley Crime Stoppers at 1-800-426-TIPS.

Human services building groundbreaking May 17

By CAROL SMITH
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Groundbreaking for Northampton County's new Human Services building will take place May 17 at 1 p.m.

County Executive John Stoffa told NC council at its May 2 meeting that the new centralized facility in Bethlehem Township will be open in March 2014. Between December and March, human services employees will be relocated to the new building, according to project timelines.

According to Stoffa, the 18,000 residents who are now using the county's human services at two different buildings will be able to go to the new location at 2801 Emrick Boulevard between Freemansburg Avenue and William Penn Highway. The 66,375-square-foot, three-story building, which will also be the new home for 225 human services county employees, has ample parking with 256 parking spaces. The Asking price for the Bechtel building in Bethlehem is at or near $1.95 million. The county, however, is interested in securing the best development plan for the community. With 95 parking spaces, 2.12 acres of land and 29,000 square feet of office space, the two-story building is zoned for commercial and mixed-use development.

Governor Wolf Building in Easton and the Martin J. Bechtel Building in Bethlehem are being sold to raise capital for the new centralized facility.

Stoffa said developers interested in purchasing the Bechtel building can tour the facility at 520 East Broad St. at 10:30 a.m., May 10. Interested buyers will need to submit development plans no later than 4 p.m., June 3. Requests for proposals can be found on the county's website at www.northamptoncounty.org or by contacting KMohr[at]MohrMR.com or by calling 610-282-1921.

fa added. Councilman Lamont McClure requested council's solicitor to review any language that council could approve or adopt to ensure that the proceeds from these building sales go into funding the new facility. Profits from property sales generally go into the county budget's general fund.

Council's next meeting is 6:30 p.m., May 16 on the third floor of Northampton County Courthouse, 669 Washington St., Easton.

The Wolf building in Easton is currently under agreement of sale, Stoffa added.

He added that campaigning in districts, as opposed to the whole city, could be cheaper and allow more people to run. Donchez, however, does not support districted seats.

"If we change to districted seats, I'm concerned that during budget time we'll become very parochial," Donchez said. "I could see scenarios where we have 'well how much money is going to be going to overlay my streets in District A versus District B or District C? I don't want parochialism; I don't want districts fighting against districts."

Donchez also said that he is not sure that districted seats would bring down the costs of campaigns.

"What happens if you have a certain district where two people have means?" Donchez said. "They're going to be raising money and campaigning and you might escalate the cost. There's no guarantee that it's going to bring the cost down, we've seen that happen in other districts through both counties."

hauled, neither candidate said they supported switching to a single hauler system. Reynolds said he would like to keep the private hauler system but would like to add "zoned pickup," where haulers could only pick up trash on designated days.

Donchez also supported zoned pickup. "If you broke down the city into five different zones for five days then you would only have trucks going down your street once a week, but you would still have choices," Donchez said.

There are no Republican candidates running for mayor, meaning the winner of the May 21 primary between Reynolds and Donchez will likely be the next mayor of Bethlehem.

Mother's Influence
The spiritual influence of mothers upon their children was noted by the Apostle Paul in his letter to Timothy, "The...faith that is in thee...dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice" (2 Timothy 1:5). Hannah Whitall Smith said, "To be a mother is the greatest vocation in the world. No being has a position of such great power and influence. She holds in her hands the destiny of nations; for to her is necessarily committed the making of the nation's citizens." America's children today desperately need the internalized self-discipline or character that was once formed in a life-long process at their Christian mother's knee. The Bible says, "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Proverbs 22:6). Such godly training of children makes motherhood a partnership with God! The prophet Samuel was primarily the child of his mother's prayers.

The fifth commandment, "Honour...thy mother," was given by God along with two life promises, "that thy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee" (Deuteronomy 5:16). To honor is to esteem, respect, and obey as Ephesians 6:1-3 states, "Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right. Honour thy...mother; which is the first commandment with promise; That it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth." Things go well for those who submit to their mother's lawful commands, counsels, and corrections. As time progresses, they will benefit from their mother's years of experience, "Despise not thy mother when she is old" (Proverbs 23:22).

Proverbs 30:11 says "There is a generation that...doth not bless their mother." If your mother is alive, I encourage you to take a moment now and bless your mother by writing her a note of appreciation. So "thy mother shall be glad, and she that bare thee shall rejoice" (Proverbs 23:25).

Board: Who will pay for pre-K?

By JOSE ROMAN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The issue of supporting financially early childhood educational programs took center stage during a special budget meeting held April 29 by the Bethlehem Area School District Board to unveil a $224.3 million preliminary budget for the school year 2013-14.

The tentative spending plan allocates no monies at all to fund the school district's pre-K programs, something Board Director Aurea Ortiz was pleased to hear.

During the discussion, Ortiz made it very clear she will not support a budget that leaves pre-K in the dark and urged fellow board members to consider funding alternatives, even if it meant adopting a bigger property tax hike. A proposed property tax increase of 2.1 percent is included in the tentative budget.

The board is relying exclusively on the Pennsylvania Pre-K Counts Grant for funding. At this point, it's unknown whether the district will get the grant. "If the grant never comes through, what is the backup plan?" Ortiz asked members of the board.

Board Director Basilio Bonilla, Jr. also expressed support for programs like pre-K. Bonilla, like Ortiz, said he would consider tax hikes only if the added revenue from them is used to fund pre-kindergarten, all-day kindergarten and other educational initiatives he believes have the greatest positive impact.

Toward the end of the budget discussion, directors agreed a reasonable solution must be sought. The board expects to discuss that solution on May 13 when the preliminary budget should be adopted.

According to the school district officials, approximately 100 Bethlehem children will be enrolled in pre-K programs during the school year 2013-14.

COUNCIL

running for council for the first time, said he was drawn to Bethlehem for two reasons. "I married the first reason and the second reason was the positive energy I found in this vibrant city of ours."

Sanders has owned and operated Lump's Deli on 901 Center St. for more than 20 years. He has been a resident of Bethlehem for 64 years and is a board member of the Bethlehem Housing Authority.

Waldron is the owner of Adam Waldron Painting. If elected, he would be the first West Bethlehem resident hold a city council seat since Don Cunningham in 1995.

Biggest issue facing the city (other than the budget)

Dolan said the biggest challenge is preserving and protecting what makes the city unique and special.

"I think very often these issues are overlooked, but as your city councilwoman and if re-elected I would continue to make sure what makes Bethlehem a walkable, livable, exciting city remains," Dolan said.

Evans said resources have been stretched thin and appropriations can't always go to things like recreation and street repair. He said that last year, the board tried to take that issue on by buying a few extra machines to do some work with the machines with a non-utility capital bond.

"We bought a miller and a paver with the hopes that the payback is very good and we're able to do twice as much production in-house versus what was being done outside when it was contracted," Evans said.

Melnick said that economic development is one of the biggest issues facing the city. He said there has recently been a large flurry of warehouses coming into the city, but almost all of the products stored in those warehouses were made somewhere else.

"I think we have to start re-energizing our economic development and go after companies that make things and make jobs rather than just warehouses that are notorious for taking up a lot of land but hire very few people," Melnick said.

Sanders said that he is concerned about the rumors that the 911 call center in Bethlehem might be cut and the calls would then be handled from Northampton County's 911 call center.

"I can guarantee if you called 911 from your home, [the operators at the Bethlehem call center] know where to go," Sanders said. "They are all city oriented; they know all the police officers. If I called from Lump's Deli, I wouldn't even have to tell them where it is. When we start changing stuff, we must let people know what that change is."

Waldron said one of the great things about Bethlehem is its different neighborhoods, which all have their own identity and characteristics. He said council should focus more on the quality of life issues in those neighborhoods.

"Making the streets more walkable or more rideable on a bicycle," Waldron said. "We have a very unfriendly area crossing the Fahy Bridge for pedestrians and for cyclists and that's something that needs to be addressed."

Callahan said the continued economic growth of the city, the steel site and development of the brownfields are important to grow the city's tax base.

"I don't want to raise taxes, I don't want my taxes raised, but you know and I know city wages are going to go up, healthcare is going to go up," Callahan said. "If we don't expand the tax base, those costs are going to be pushed to the people that are already living here and the businesses that are already here."

The current budget contains $2 million in one-time revenues. How does the city remedy that for next year?

Callahan said he was unsure what he would cut, but said that he does not want to cut down the city's safety services any further. "The last possible thing I would ever, ever do is raise taxes so I would have to look at the budget and see what we can cut."

Dolan agreed with Callahan that there is not much wiggle room in the budget, but said that council could "work a lot smarter." She said that the city is currently mowing and tending 64 swales that it does not own. She suggested that the city could stop tending to them all together or encourage people to garden them.

She also said the city should be proactive rather than reactive when it comes to severe weather events and getting rid of wasteful services like extraneous leaf pick-up.

"If you missed your leaf pick-up, sorry, we're not going to come back and pick it up again," Dolan said.

Evans said council needs to look at the debt and debt service and try to refinance where it can.

"Not lengthening the term, but taking advantage of lower interest rates," Evans said. "The economy is starting to pick up, so rates are going to pick up."

Melnick said that the city should move toward priority based budgeting.

"That means sitting down with department heads and going over every budget item and making hard choices," Melnick said. "By going to priority based budgeting you eliminate the worry that if they don't spend their entire budget they're going to be cut the following year. We'll be able to fund the most important projects by eliminating those that are extraneous."

Sanders said Bethlehem needs more small businesses, which can help raise money for the city through the mercantile tax.

"If we can promote small businesses, get more businesses on board, I think we can make a lot happen in Bethlehem," Sanders said.

Waldron said when he first decided to run for council he sat down with the 2013 budget with the idea of highlighting all the places he could eliminate unnecessary costs. He said he didn't highlight very much.

"The city budget is very tight, there's not much room to cut," Waldron said. "The solution is not cutting, but increasing revenue and not through tax increase, but bringing more businesses into Bethlehem and increasing our tax base."

Four council seats are up for election this year. Chris Morales, owner of Easy Weenies, is the only Republican running for city council. The primary election will be held on Tuesday, May 21.

General Pulaski honored

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

At one time, the Lehigh Valley's strong Polish-American community worked the blast furnaces and cranes at Bethlehem Steel Corp., producing the gun forgings and artillery shells that protected this nation in two world wars. On April 28, about 60 members of this community were at Bethlehem's Southside again, not to manufacture steel, but to commemorate a man who represents the very best of American and Polish ideals. The valor of Brigadier General Casimir Pulaski, a Polish nobleman who fought and died in the Revolutionary War, is still remembered. He was honored during a brief ceremony at Pulaski Park, located on East Third Street and Broadhead Avenue.

Pulaski, father of the American cavalry, once told George Washington that he came to this country because this is "where freedom is being defended." Like many Poles who would follow him, Pulaski spent some time in Bethlehem. It was here that he protected Moravian Sisters from unruly troops. In gratitude, they provided him with an embroidered silk banner, which he always took into battle with him. In the words of Longfellow;

*And the warrior took that banner proud,
And it was his martial cloak and shroud*

During a daring cavalry charge to protect French troops, Pulaski took that banner into battle for a last time in 1779, when he was mortally wounded in the Battle of Savannah.

Poles throughout history, including John Paul II. Poland, Dent said, has always been trapped between two great powers, but has always stood like a rock, much like the boulder in Pulaski Park. State representatives Steve Samuelson and Dan McNeil presented a state house proclamation, honoring Kazimierz Pulaski, as he is also known. State Sen. Lisa Boscola, who grew up in the Polish-Slovak-Hungarian Southside, said she "almost feels Polish." Mayor John Callahan stated that we need to "recognize those who came before us." He expressed some sorrow that this will be his last year attending Pulaski Day as mayor.

Following the ceremony, a Mass was celebrated at St. Peter and Paul Roman Catholic Church in Allentown.

LVC officials hold emergency meeting

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Lehigh Valley Conference principals and athletic directors met Monday morning in an emergency meeting to discuss the future of the LVC as we know it, following last week's developments that the Mountain Valley Conference invited 10 of the league's schools to form a 'super conference,' while excluding Bethlehem Catholic and Central Catholic.

Bethlehem Catholic Principal John Petruzzelli spoke at length about Monday's meeting and thought there was good discussion among all the schools in the conference.

"I still feel positive and hopeful"

Asked on whether he felt better on Monday than he did 10 days ago when news of the invites surfaced, Petruzzelli indicated he did.

"I still feel positive and I'm hopeful," he said. "I certainly didn't walk out of that meeting saying, 'Oh man, this is terrible.' Lots of people are still talking about what to do, so I didn't get the feeling that this was a done deal."

All twelve schools of the LVC voiced their opinion on the matter of joining the MVC, but Petruzzelli cited that all schools were looking for what was best for their student body.

Bethlehem Catholic also reiterated their stance on moving up to the 4A classification if that was a requirement to join the new league.

"That did come up at the meeting, and again, that's not our first choice to go to 4A," he said, "but if that was the requirement, we would do it."

"Some schools said that shouldn't be a requirement. I was pleasantly surprised by that and the good thing about this meeting is that people were able to share what's on their mind. Everyone was respectful and that's the great thing about the democratic process because everyone wants to be heard."

Petruzzelli did not go into specifics about what was talked about at the meeting or which schools particularly were vocal in their charge to defect.

Monday's meeting was scheduled to talk specifically on the LVC-MVC topic because the normally scheduled principal-athletic director meeting is scheduled for today.

TRACK LHS girls defeat Patriots

More track and field on page A12

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Liberty's girls track and field team defeated archrival Freedom 90-60 last week.

The Hurricanes swept the sprinting events while the Patriots swept distance.

Rynisha House won the 100 meter (13.1), and Kali Shumock was first in both the 200 meter (27.9) and the 400 meter (1:03).

Shaina Palmer clinched first place in the 800 meter (2:39), the 1600 meter (5:38), and the 3200 meter (12:39). Teammates, Alexa Deemer and Bridget Tarnowski, were second and third in each event, respectively.

Palmer said, "We definitely knew we had a good chance against [Liberty], but we wanted to get as many points as we could for our team."

A promise from Freedom distance coach, Bob Thear, was also key in the trio's one-two-three finish.

"We were hoping to get three. That was our goal. Our coach promised us ice cream if we got three in all three events. We never really ran all the same events, so it was a cool way to end the season," said Palmer.

Shumock took first place in the 100 high hurdles (16.9), and Kaylin West was first in the 300 intermediate hurdles (50.8), also for Liberty.

Aleesha Gordon, House, Casey Harewood, and Gabby Pastor won the 4x1 relay (50.6), and Rachel Finn, Shumock, Gordon, and Sienna McNett won the 4x4 relay (4:21) for the Hurricanes.

Freedom's Caterina Atiyeh, Tarnowski, Palmer, and Deemer won the 4x8 relay (11:34).

Hawks making run

Knock off Liberty 6-0

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It's the time of year that Bethlehem Catholic usually heats up their playoff chase and the Golden Hawks haven't disappointed as of late.

Just over a week ago, Becahi was five games below .500, now they're right in the middle of the hunt.

The Hawks won four straight games heading into yesterday's contest against Freedom and if their momentum is any indication of where they're season is heading, all signs point north.

"We've always had the leadership to get hot at the right time," said head coach Mike Grasso. "We've lost a lot of close games this year, but we've been playing our best ball as of late. The kids are really confident right now, but we still have work to do and we still have to focus on each game."

Becahi (8-9-1, 5-7) knocked off Dieruff, Liberty, Hazleton and Notre Dame East Stroudsburg in successive fashion to bring their heads back near water.

Last week's 6-0 victory over Liberty (13-4) was the highlight of their current stretch, as well as the season.

David Derkits tossed a complete-game shutout, striking out six in the process to preserve the most important win on

VOLLEYBALL

Hawks sweep by Liberty

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It was a quick affair Monday night at Liberty's Memorial Gymnasium, as Bethlehem Catholic took a three-game sweep over Liberty in boys volleyball.

The Hawks (10-3, 8-3) cruised their way to a 25-20, 25-15, 25-14 win to avenge an early season loss to the 'Canes (10-4, 8-3), as well as draw a first-place tie with Liberty atop the division standings.

The Hawks have won four straight matches since relinquishing a 2-0 lead over Parkland, only to lose in five games, but head coach Jeff Koch feels that his team is in much better shape this time of year, compared to where they were when they first took on Liberty.

"The way we've been playing lately, I thought this type of result could have happened," Koch said. "They [Liberty] got the best of us last time, we got the better part of them today. We've gotten a lot better since the beginning of the season and the guys just did a great job hitting the ball."

Evan Blair led the way with 13 kills for the Hawks, while Mark Kaweck added six kills.

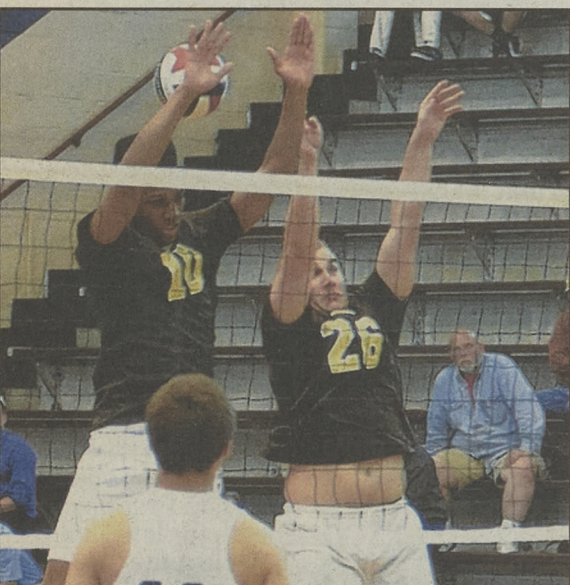

The Hawks take on Freedom tonight and Easton tomorrow in two matches they should win. Liberty battles Easton tonight and closes out the season with Freedom (8-7, 5-5) on Friday night.

The Patriots need to split one of their two final contests of the season against Easton or Liberty to clinch a district berth.

If Liberty and Becahi find themselves tied after regular season play, they may have to play another match to determine who gets in the Lehigh Valley Conference playoffs.

Emmaus (9-3, 5-3) has clinched the west division, but Parkland (10-1, 9-1) and Northampton (13-3, 9-2) are leading the charge in the See Vball on Page A12

DISTRICT 11 TENNIS

Hamilton, Rossi fall in semifinals

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tntonline.com

Bethlehem Catholic tennis players Kevin Hamilton and Stephen Rossi defeated Allentown Central Catholic and Moravian Academy before losing to Notre Dame Green Pond in the District XI Doubles Tennis Tournament quarterfinals last weekend.

In the first round, the Hawks defeated Mike Gordon and Shawn Regan, 6-2, 6-1.

"Central wasn't that tough of a match. I wasn't playing really well, but we needed to execute," said Rossi.

In the second round, the Hawks defeated Danny Lessig and Jack Reilly, 6-4, 6-4.

"We got off to a rocky start. We were down 1-4 but ended up winning. Then, they won five games in a row, but we dug in and won that," said Hamilton.

The first set of quarterfinals looked promising for the Hawks until Danny Lessig and Jack Reilly changed their strategy.

"In the first set, we were hitting our shots, and they were missing theirs. We played close to a perfect set of tennis," Hamilton said.

The Crusaders shifted gears, playing mostly at the net.

"In doubles, whoever gets to the net first has all the control," said Hamilton.

Many of the Crusaders' shots were lobs, causing difficulty for Hamilton and Rossi.

"They were hitting the ball nice and deep, and they would follow it in, and we were stuck. We tried to hit to the weaker player, and one of them was having a hard time serving from the one side. We tried to pick on their weaknesses," Rossi said.

The Hawks were seeded fourth, hoping to medal.

"After you win the first set 6-1, it's disappointing because you knew you won the first set so handily," said Hamilton.

Trying to make sense of the loss was difficult.

"Subconsciously, maybe we played relaxed because we won the first set, but not intentionally. We didn't mean to," Rossi said.

The Becahi duo will have one more chance to medal as District XI Team Finals takes place this week. Hamilton and Rossi will be playing at number one and number two singles, respectively.

"One of our biggest strengths is our depth," said Rossi.

In team finals, however, only two doubles teams will play instead of four as is done during the regular season.

"We're confident in our doubles [Marcin Boraganli, Paolo Turco, Luke Mesko, and Niko Franekic]. It's unfortunate that it's the best of five," Hamilton said.

The Hawks are seeded second, and Moravian Academy is seeded first in Class AA.

Northampton may be steering the wheel towards grabbing the wildcard spot, since the Kids have knocked off Liberty and Becahi this season.

"We have to focus on Freedom and not have any let downs," Koch said about this week. "There's still a lot of things that can happen this week with the LVC playoffs, so we're going to focus on what we can handle."

Freedom's John Yanek won his 300th match as a head coach following a five game victory over North Pocono over the weekend. Yanek eclipsed that mark to 301 on Monday night when his team took down Easton in a three-game sweep.

Pates hope for LVC berth

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tntonline.com

Freedom's softball team won two close games last week, putting the Patriots in contention for an LVC Wildcard slot, their first in recent years.

Carly Deichman's home run in the second inning, combined with Emily Gundrum's ten strikeouts led the Patriots to a 1-0 victory over last year's district runner-up, Emmaus.

"It's a new season, so we went in like it's our first time playing Emmaus. It was my first at bat, and I think [the pitch] was a little bit outside or down the middle. It happened to be a good swing, and it worked out for the team," said Deichman.

Gundrum took each Hornet player, one hitter at a time.

"Going into it, we knew they would be strong, offensively and defensively, but I didn't let that affect me," she said.

Two days later, the Patriots defeated Easton 2-1.

The Red Rovers only hit came in the first inning, which happened to be a home run. After that, it was one-two-three innings for Gundrum.

"We knew Easton could hit the ball, going into it. We looked sharp in the field, and that kept us positive, when we made a great play," said Gundrum.

In the second inning, Rebecca Herman hit a home run for the Patriots, and in the fourth inning, Herman scored on Alexis Szaro's double.

"It felt great to get ahead," Gundrum said. "We're really happy to be where we are."

TRACK AND FIELD

Becahi falls in season final

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tntonline.com

In its final dual track and field meets of the regular season, Bethlehem Catholic fell to Easton, 99-41, boys, and 87-54, girls, while the boys also lost to Nazareth, 100-50, and the girls defeated Nazareth, 78-71.

Hawks who took first place for the boys against the Red Rovers were Donovan West in the 100 meter (11.1), Sean Moroney in the 400 meter (53.9), John Donchez in the 800 meter (2:11), and Tyler Horton in the 110 high hurdles (15.4) and the 300 intermediate hurdles (42.9).

First place winners for the Becahi girls against the Red Rovers were Jade Kubitsky in the 400 meter (1:02), Meaghan Roszyk in the 800 meter (2:31), Kassi Yocco in the 1600 meter (5:52), Lexi Reightler in the 300 intermediate hurdles (47.6).

Jazmyne Aminu in the shot put (28-4), Bridget Smith in the javelin (92-5), Mara Blanchard in the long jump (15-9 1/2), and Lauren Posch in the triple jump (30-3).

Posch, who is new to the triple jump and long jump said, "My coaches just thought I would be good at it. For my first year I wasn't expecting anything big."

The Becahi junior has been a consistent top contender in both jumps.

"The triple's not easy, but once you learn it ... Everything is new to me. It pushes you harder when other jumpers are good," said Posch.

Defeating the Blue Eagles by only seven points, Kubitsky was first in the 200 meter (25.9) for Becahi, setting a new school record.

"I ran the 200 earlier in the season, and I was two seconds slower. I surprised myself when I won," Kubitsky said.

The Becahi senior, who also competes in the 400 meter, has been running with a back injury.

"I'm just trying to push through it one more year," said Kubitsky.

Reightler won the 400 meter (1:01), and Roszyk repeated in the 800 meter (2:32).

The Lady Hawks swept all relay events.

"It came down to the final event [the 4x4 relay], but Nazareth didn't have a team. We didn't even know they didn't have a team until we were on the track," Kubitsky said.

Becahi's 4x4 is comprised of Kubitsky, Reightler, Blanchard, and Katie Altpeter.

"We all have a really strong 400. The three seniors have been together since freshman year. Mara improved so much this year, and Katie is right up there with us," said Kubitsky.

In throwing events, Abby Moninghoff took first place in the shot put (77-11), Bridget Smith was first in the javelin (93-10), Posch won the triple jump (31-9), and Mara Blanchard won the pole vault (11-0).

Although Becahi's boys team lost to Nazareth, first place finishers for the Hawks were Mike McDaniel in the 100 meter (11.0), Donchez in the 1600 meter (4:47), Horton in the 100 high hurdles (14.4) and the 300 intermediate hurdles (39.4), and Freddie Simmons in the long jump (20-6 1/2) and the triple jump (39-9).

The Hawks also won all three relays.

Liberty boys knock off Freedom

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tntonline.com

In a battle of the Bethlehem schools, Liberty's boys track and field team defeated Freedom 96-54.

In individual sprinting events, Liberty's Gerald Vital won the 100 meter (11.1), and Adam Uliana won the 200 meter (22.7). Freedom's Tony Flatts took first place in the 400 meter (53.1).

In distance, Roberto Marrero placed first for the Hurricanes in the 800 meter (2:02), Freedom's Chris Kelly won the 1600 meter (4:42), and Ben Ziegler was first in the 3200 meter (10:56) for the Patriots.

Hurricane hurdlers Michael Stefanik and Isaiah McDonald won the 110 high hurdles (16.1) and the 300 intermediate hurdles (42.8), respectively.

Although Liberty won the 4x1 relay (43.8) with the team of Ehymer Ortiz, DuBois Ross, Josiah Wright, and Vital, the Patriots won both the 4x4 (3:31) with the team of Aaron Alkeyne, Cole Donatelli, Baidy Ba, and Flatts, and the 4x8 (10:19) with Ziegler, Kelly, Robbie Bogardo, and Jason Lopez.

In throwing events, Vital took first place in the shot put (37-2), Clarence Lake placed first in the discus (110-7), and Mike Berger won the javelin (126-10), all for the Hurricanes.

In jumping events, the long jump was won by Sean West (20-8), and the triple jump was won by Isaiah Avent (40-0), both from Liberty.

Freedom's Devin Milligan took first in the high jump (5-7), and Adam Cygan placed first in the pole vault (10-0).

Carpenter Cup baseball tryouts to take place

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It's almost summer and that means Carpenter Cup action is just around the corner. The Lehigh Valley team held their first of three tryouts on Sunday, May 5 at DeSales.

Two other tryouts will take place on Sunday, May 12 and May 19. All sessions are slated for 9 am.

The Carpenter Cup is one of the nation's premier scholastic tournaments that takes place at Ashburn Field at FDR Park and Citizens Bank Park.

Founder/General Manager of the Lehigh Valley team, J.F. Pirro, has been involved with the team for 21 years and shows no signs of slowing down.

He anticipates between 85-90 players, from grades 9-12, to tryout for the team's 25 roster spots.

"Bringing all players from this region together on one team and giving these kids the opportunity is rewarding," Pirro said. "They get instant mass exposure to hundreds of college coaches and professional scouts. There's the opportunity to further their academic and playing careers.

"We need the two best players at each position, two DH's and seven pitchers. We look for bat speed, speed, arm strength, good defensive hands and plenty of intangibles essential to team play, self-sacrifice, grit, competitive spirit. We like talent, but we love scrappers."

The Lehigh Valley all-stars have won championships in 1998, 2001 and 2011, but they've found themselves in the final four of the 16-team tournament, virtually ever year.

The single elimination game tournament, played against teams from across the Tri-State area, kicks off on June 17 against Delaware-South. The official tournament dates are posted at the bottom of the page.

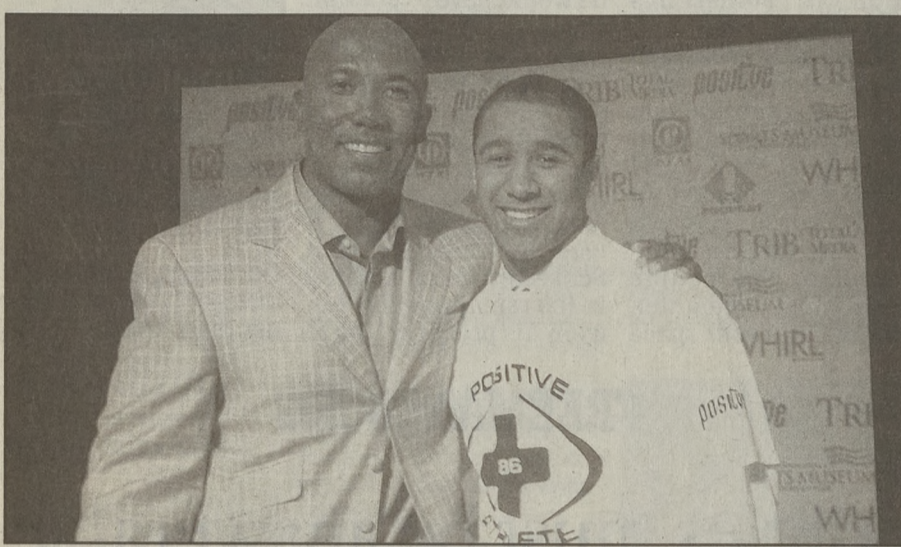

Pirro just hopes to have another eventful run in this June classic.

"The Lehigh Valley deserves this and we need the best players to try out so we can put the best the Lehigh Valley has to offer out on the field," he said.

"If you're one of the best, then you belong in this tournament and on this team, but there are more than 25 outstanding players in the Lehigh Valley."

Freedom's Connor wins Positive Athlete Award

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Maceo Connor may not have been the most dominating, or stat driven guard in the Lehigh Valley Conference last season, but Connor certainly was the most positive teammate.

Connor recently received the "Most Positive High School Athlete" award in boys basketball for the state of Pennsylvania.

Former Pittsburgh Steelers wide receiver, Hines Ward, started a foundation two years, named Positive Athlete, to honor positive athletes in sports. Connor was one of 27 recipients, both male and female, representing all varsity sports in Pennsylvania at a banquet that took place April 20 in downtown Pittsburgh.

Freedom head basketball coach, Joe Stellato, nominated Connor for the award and found his senior guard taking home the nomination after 500 different athletes from across the state submitted bids.

"He's well deserving to win this award," Stellato said. "I'm really proud of the way he competed the last two years. When he was a sophomore, I didn't know if he could play varsity basketball. Then when I put him on the court, I just couldn't take him out."

Connor was surprised himself to win the award, but was honored to represent Freedom in such a manner.

"Not every athlete can deal well with adversity, so you need guys on the team that can lead when things get tough," Connor said. "I use sports to have fun. Winning is great, but the camaraderie is what makes it the best.

I always tried to stay positive with my teammates."

Ward's foundation focuses on athletes that share excellence on the field, as well as similar characteristics including an optimistic attitude, teammate encouragement, servant leadership, heart for others, ability to admit imperfections, giving 100 percent all the time, and realizing the team as more important than the individual.

"This is the second year for the Positive High School Athlete Awards, and the stories of our nominees continue to amaze me," said Ward. "I was always credited with having a positive influence on my team during my days with the Steelers, but the stories I hear about kids like Maceo really inspire me to be a better person."

Freedom athletic director Fred Harris knows first hand the influence Connor had on his teammates.

"Maceo consistently exhibits both outstanding athletic success and high academic achievement," Harris said. "Qualities we strive to teach all student athletes each day in the Bethlehem Area School District. We are proud to have Maceo represent the Bethlehem Area School District and wish him many future successes in life."

Connor plans to attend Temple University and wants to walk-on the men's basketball team.

It may be a long shot, but if there's anyone that can be positive about his chances, it's Connor.

"I'm definitely going to try," he said about making Temple's roster. "You just never know what can happen when you have the right mindset."

Deichman said, "We have two tough games, but I'm confident we'll go in and play like we know how."

Also last week, Becahi defeated Dieruff, 13-2, and Liberty, 11-3.

Five home runs were hit in the Hawks game against the Hurricanes. Joelle Morey, Lauren Visconti, Jean Markovic, and Courtney Shupp had homers for Becahi, and Lauren Epsaro hit a home run for Liberty.

Pate cheerleaders take first

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Freedom High School's competition cheerleading squad ended its season with a bang at the AmeriCheer Internationals on March 16-17 in Disneyworld, winning first place in the Level 4 All-Star Division and winning second place in the High School Division.

The Patriots competed in each division twice, once on Saturday and once on Sunday. Lower scores were thrown out in order to establish the winners.

"For the seniors, it was our last performance on Sunday, and we left everything on the mat. When we came off, I knew. We knew we had won. We were all standing up, crying and screaming," said Freedom cheerleading captain, Emilee Strange.

The Patriots performed the same routine in the High School Division as well as the Level 4 All-Star Division.

"Our high school routine seemed to be a get-the-nerves-out-and-warm-up routine. Then, we would get excited for the all-star routine and nail it," Strange said.

Freedom's competition routine began with standing tucks and round-off back handsprings. It ended with a pyramid and dance.

"A lot of tumblers landed their fulls and did tumbling passes. The pyramid was definitely the highlight. Once you nail the pyramid, the dance is the have fun-it's almost over part," said Strange. The squad received individual medals as well as a team trophy and a banner.

"It's our coach's [Alicia Zito] last year too, and it was good to see her so excited. It all ended up ending with a bang," Strange said.

The Patriots also had the opportunity to meet competitors from other parts of the nation and the world.

"It was definitely cool at the competition because there are teams from all around the world. There were teams from England and Australia, and we competed against a team from Chile," said Strange. "It was really neat hearing all the different accents. I think that was my favorite part."

Boys

the season for Becahi.

Collin McGeary had an RBI against the Hurricanes, but lit up the plate over the weekend in an 18-6 win over Hazleton and a 24-7 thumping over ND-ES.

McGeary had a 10 RBI outburst against Hazleton, going 4-for-5 with a grand slam hitting right handed, a left handed three-run homer and a bases loaded double. He also went 2-for-2 on Sunday with a three-run blast.

Paul Karoly also had a monster game against ND-ES, going 4-for-5 at the plate with eight RBI and two, three-run homeruns.

"I wish we could have pocketed some of those runs heading into this week," said Grasso, as the Hawks took on Freedom (10-8, 6-6) and Easton (6-11, 4-8) tomorrow.

They also will have a makeup game against Pottsville rescheduled, starting in the 10th inning, dating back to their opening contest of the season that was called after a 4-4 draw because of darkness.

"We need to win two more games to get through," said Grasso of his hopes to qualify for the postseason. "We've been playing our best ball of the year, but we need to keep doing that this week."

Freedom and Liberty have already clinched playoff berths, but the Hurricanes (13-4, 9-3) have essentially locked up the LVC's east division title in preparation for next week's LVC playoffs.

Emmaus (14-2), Whitehall (16-1) and Parkland (15-2) have clinched LVC berths as well. The Zephyrs and Trojans will duke it out for the division title, as both have one league loss.

Whitehall beat Parkland 1-0 earlier this season, but both will play Thursday in their regular season finale to determine the division title.

Meet

hot button issue to distract them from other topics that are generally discussed at their regular meeting.

Sources have said that there are schools in favor of leaving the LVC and there are schools opposed to the idea.

How many that are on each side of the fence is unknown. How this will all play out in the coming weeks before the May 31 invitation is also anyone's guess.

Ultimately, the superintendents of each district will make the decisions on this matter. It's fair to assume that there are still going to be discussions among top officials from each district on what each school is going to do.

Whether this is a majority rule type of situation is uncertain as well.

For example, if six schools want to leave and four want to stay, would the schools resistant to defecting follow suit so they wouldn't be left out in the cold?

Monday's meeting was an open dialogue, but how open each school was in their intentions will never be known.

All that Petruzzelli knows is that he was able to get a better feeling of the situation at the moment.

"I wanted to hear where everyone was at," he said. "I wanted to know if this was a done deal or if this was still in the talking stages. Again, we're one of the two schools that didn't get the invite. I'm more positive now because I didn't hear them say, 'We're leaving, see you later, good luck.'"

BETHLEHEM
Scout brings applicants good luck

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem's Zoning Hearing Board had an unusual visitor at its April 24 meeting. Nicholas Hanna, a 13-year-old Boy Scout with Troop 318 in Bethlehem, was forced to attend the meeting by Solicitor Mickey Thompson, who moonlights as an assistant scoutmaster. Hanna, distant cousin of Bethlehem's former DCED Director Tony Hanna, correctly predicted how zoners would rule on each of three cases they considered. He proved to be a good luck charm to applicants.

Tara Mahoney was unanimously granted a dimensional variance at 2003 Mary St. so she could build a six-foot-high fence along her front yard, instead of the permitted four feet. Her property had been surrounded by 12-foot-high arborvitae, but they must be removed because of storm damage. She explained that a six-foot-high fence is needed for safety reasons, noting that a four-foot-high fence makes access by possible intruders too easy. She also worried that a smaller fence might tempt passing school children to try to pet her dog, which is sometimes unfriendly.

Christopher and Krista Kozak, 2041 Fernway Ave., were also unanimously granted a dimensional variance so they could extend and enclose an existing porch, converting it into an office and bathroom. The couple recently had a daughter, making bathroom space more important.

"If they have another, he'll never see the bathroom again," said Zoning Officer Suzanne Borzak.

In the final matter considered, Kurt Schreefer, 1625 Sycamore St., was granted a dimensional variance so he could construct an 8-by-14-foot shed just five feet away from his property line near Hamilton Street. He explained that, to comply with the zoning ordinance, he would have to put that shed in the middle of his yard. He added that, because of the irregular shape of his lot, he has three front yards under the zoning ordinance, instead of one. Although zoners granted relief, it was on condition that Schreefer build nothing in the remaining five feet from his property line to

Utilities must be answerable

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzemi@tnonline.com

President Homer "Bud" Lorrain began the April 16 borough council meeting with a moment of silence for Robert Martin, a member of the Freemansburg Fire Company. Martin volunteered with the company for more than 30-years. He died April 8 at St. Luke's Hospital at the age of 58.

Board members later discussed the importance of instituting standard operating procedures regarding contractors or utility companies digging holes in the streets. Jim Smith said utilities currently come into town and dig wherever they have to without having to pay the borough or face repercussions for poor repair work.

Smith suggested a flat $500 fee for utilities to purchase a permit to dig, and he is researching other municipalities' contracts for such situations to help develop one for the borough.

Resident and canal aficionado Charles Derr announced traction on a number of canal and tow-path projects. Vegetation clearing has proceeded quickly with volunteer help, the locktender's house will see repairs with Northampton County aid and an outdoor classroom will be provided as an Eagle Scout project from Troop 302 in Bethlehem.

Derr also said new work on the Tow Path Trail will go out for bid tomorrow.

Finally, Parks and Recreation Chair Lyn Boger reminds residents of the upcoming annual carnival May 22-25 at Cambria and Washington streets.

City MS Orchestra 156 strong

Student musicians from the orchestras of the Bethlehem Area School District's four middle schools, Broughal, East Hills, Nitschmann and Northeast, recently spent two days in rehearsal for their 2013 All City Middle School Orchestra Concert. Their performance was held in the Northeast auditorium before a large crowd of families, friends and supporters. One hundred fifty-six musicians participated this year under the direction of instrumental music directors Maryann Gross (Broughal), Christy Davis (East Hills), Daniel Zettlemoyer (Nitschmann) and Brian Rupnik (Northeast). Davis said that each musician was chosen based on "highest participation, talent and dedication" criteria. Conducting duties were shared evenly by all four directors, and a guest conductor, Broughal Assistant Principal Jamie Jarosz, led the orchestra "The Star Spangled Banner."

Northeast MS students Brianna Canady and Aaron Freeman were among 11 cellists.

First violinists, Trent Billiard and Vivian Wong, rehearse "The Music Box Dancer." They are both Nitschmann students.

Almost out with the old, and in with the new

Petals fall like snow from tree branches laden with flowers, green grass shivers slightly in the wind, and construction crews make their way onto LVA's campus as the end of the year rolls around.

Erin Hock
LV Academy

Work has been occurring for a few months already as LVA prepares to expand the high school, making room for more students and some possible changes ahead in grade organization. Along with these exciting developments, the senior class has begun finals and their IB (International Baccalaureate) testing, which will occur throughout the month of May. The last day for the seniors will be on May 23 with Prom occurring the following night at Hotel Bethlehem.

A Crime Victims Council program will be held during the afternoon of May 21 to discuss prom with the seniors. This program will cover the proper etiquette and behavior that will be expected of the students at prom to ensure the safety of all attendees. Graduation will occur Thursday, June 6, at Zoellner Arts Center at Lehigh University. Graduation will commence at 6:30 p.m. and tickets are required.

While the seniors prepare to finish the DP (Diploma Program) with their IB tests, the sophomores are preparing to end their years in the MYP (Middle Years Program) with the Personal Project. The Personal Project concludes the MYP, which spans grades 6 through 10, by requiring 10th grade students to investigate a topic of their choosing and construct a project that will bring attention to their research. Already surveys have been circulated, bake sales have occurred and flyers for products, such as tie dye and handmade notebooks, have graced the hallways of LVA. Most projects are aimed at raising awareness and funds for causes the students feel strongly about, while some others are looking into new research in certain medical fields, such as more efficient insulin pumps. The presentations for these projects will occur on the 31st of May from approximately 1:30 until 3 p.m., and will be open to the community at large. Ms. Dillon, a teacher at the high school who is helping to organize this event, urges the community to come out and support these students as they present their innovative ideas and finished projects, mentioning that it will be an excellent opportunity for employers to witness the next generation of intelligent and dedicated students. This event will hopefully occur in the new LVA addition, but the location has yet to be finalized.

The sophomores also embarked on a trip to Massachusetts from May 1 to 3. Throughout the course of this trip, students observed cities such as Boston and Salem, taking in the sites of some of the oldest cities in the United States. This trip is a great way to culminate the American Literature and American History and Government courses that the 10th graders take, and is a fantastic bonding opportunity before they begin the rigorous two-year course that is the DP. The freshmen will also be taking a field trip to Washington, D.C., June 7 for their forensics class.

LVA is hosting a Talent Showcase to raise money for the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. This showcase will occur on June 5 from 7 to 9 p.m. and will charge $3 admission. Forty percent of the proceeds from the night will be donated to the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, and the LVA Choir and Dance Team will be performing.

As a senior at LVA I can honestly say that LVA helped make me the student I am today, and I will forever be grateful for that. The community would be sorry to miss the ambitious, exciting endeavors that will no doubt occur at LVA for a long time to come, as they are filled with energetic and enriching content and students who want to better their communities, one step at a time.

Hanover Township Supervisors at their April 23 meeting unanimously awarded the bid for a new rescue truck to Marion Body Works, located in Wisconsin. The township will spend $449,774 for the truck, rejecting a lower, $411,098.38 bid from KME Kovatch.

Though lower, KME's bid contained 38 deviations from bid specs. This included shortcuts like incandescent instead of LED lights and a roof that was two feet higher than requested. Unlike KME, Marion's bid contained no variations from very detailed bid specs.

"For the specs on this, we killed off 10 trees," reported Township Manager Jay Finnigan. Rescue trucks, unlike other fire trucks, carry an array of special equipment that includes the Jaws of life, wooden cribbing, generators, winches, hi-lift jacks, cranes, cutting torches and circular saws.

Fire Chief Craig Wasem stated the new truck will replace a 20-year-old rescue truck still in service for the Hanover Township Volunteer Fire Company.

Playing 'Allentown' in Allentown

Pops go the Billy Joel, Elton John hits at Symphony

Classical Views
 By Diane Wittry

I don't know if Billy Joel did us a favor or not when he wrote the famous "Allentown" song, but either way you view it, he put the city of Allentown and the Lehigh Valley on the map.

Just last week, as I was traveling, conducting concerts, someone asked me if I conducted the orchestra in the city of Allentown that Billy Joel had written the song about.

Since the release of "that" song in 1982 and over the last two decades or so, the Lehigh Valley has changed tremendously. Different industries and businesses have developed, thousands of people have moved to the area from all over the world, and housing complexes have taken over where cornfields used to reign.

With the closing of Bethlehem Steel in 1995, the Lehigh Valley moved away from its manufacturing image and became more of a center for the arts, culture and education, with its many non-profit organizations and its nine colleges, universities and centers for higher education.

Music thrives in the Lehigh Valley, led by the Allentown Symphony, Bach Choir, Pennsylvania Sinfonia, Musikfest, Lehigh University Choral Union, Camerata Singers and more.

At the Allentown Symphony, we perform our standard classical subscription series, but we also feature more than just classical music. We bring you concerts that reflect our times and music history.

A great example of this is the upcoming pops concert of the Allentown Symphony Orchestra, "Piano Men: The Music of Elton and Billy," 8 p.m. May 11, Miller Symphony Hall, 23 N. Sixth St., Allentown.

The concert's performers include Joe Boucher, Chris Eastburn, Steve Ellsworth and Gary Backstrom, all singers and songwriters in their own right, who have toured the United States performing the music of these two famous piano men, Elton John and Billy Joel.

The concert will be conducted by the Allentown Symphony's wonderful Associate Conductor, Ronald Demkee, who is also the conductor of the Allentown Band, America's oldest civilian band (dating to 1822).

Elton John and Billy Joel began their training as classical pianists and then branched out from there. Billy Joel's father was a classical pianist who greatly influenced his son's interest in music. Elton John, born Reginald Kenneth Dwight, won a scholarship to the Royal Academy of Music in London at the age of 11. Both young men secured jobs earning money playing evenings in piano bars while still in their teens.

Many of us grew up with the music of Billy Joel and Elton John. I have wonderful memories of dancing to "Goodbye Yellow Brick Road" and the toe-tapping "Crocodile Rock," and happily singing along with songs like "Only the Good Die Young."

Pop tunes like "Don't Go Breaking My Heart," an Elton John duet with Kiki Dee, and his "Sorry Seems To Be The Hardest Word" were always on the radio and often played at the school dances.

Some of the other hit songs that will be featured in the Allentown Symphony concert include Elton John's "Your Song," "Tiny Dancer," "Rocket Man" and "Candle in the Wind" and Billy Joel's "Piano Man," "Scenes From An Italian Restaurant," "New York State Of Mind," and, of course, the famous song, No. 17 on the Billboard charts for more than six weeks, "Allentown."

Billy Joel and Elton John are both fabulous musicians and songwriters, and because of their classical upbringing, their music lends itself well to a symphonic concert with orchestra. The full sounds of the strings and brass and woodwinds add a musical color and flavor that makes their songs even more vibrant in the concert hall.

Get ready for an evening of fun and nostalgic memories. If you grew up on the music and original songs of Billy Joel and Elton John, this is one concert you won't want to miss.

Diane Wittry is Music Director and Conductor of the Allentown Symphony Orchestra and Artistic Director (U.S.A.) of the International Cultural Exchange Program with the Sarajevo Philharmonic, Bosnia.

To Grover Washington Jr. with jazz

By JERRY DUCKETT
 Special to The Press

Producer, arranger, composer and keyboardist Jason Miles has been bringing audiences to their feet at jazz festivals all over the United States with "To Grover with Love," a tribute to the music of Grover Washington Jr., which will be presented during RiverJazz, 8:30 p.m. May 24, Musikfest Café, ArtsQuest Center, SteelStacks, 101 Founders Way, Bethlehem.

Chick Corea and the Preservation Hall Jazz Band are two of the many acts in the 2013 RiverJazz presented by Concannon Miller, May 9 - 24.

Miles, who plays keyboards, put together an all-star group for the tribute to Washington, including saxophonist Andy Snitzer, bassist Gerald Veasley, trumpeter Dominic Farinacci, guitarist Nick Moroch, drummer Adrian Harpham and award-winning singer Maya Azucena.

Miles, four-time Grammy nominee and a Grammy winner, honored Washington's legacy with two successful albums, "To Grover With Love" (2002, 2008).

"I also released 'Grover Live' in 2010," Miles says in a recent telephone interview. "It was unreleased music from his 1997 concert in the Paramount Center for the Arts in Peekskill, New York.

"One day, Washington's wife, Christine, called me and said she had a bunch of digital tapes. I listened and said, 'Wow!'"

"This is my way of keeping the legacy of Grover alive."

Washington (1943 - 1999) had instrumental hits with "Mister Magic" and "Winelight." Washington collaborated on several hits with vocalists, including Bill Withers, "Just the Two of Us"; Patti LaBelle, "The Best Is Yet to Come"; and Phyllis Hyman, "A Sacred Kind of Love."

Miles has collaborated with artists from many genres, including rhythm and blues, pop, Latin, jazz and Brazilian. Miles gained notoriety in the 1980s, working with Marcus Miller through his synthesizer programming on the Miles Davis masterpieces "Tutu," "Music From Sista" and "Amandla."

"Miles Davis had just moved from Columbia records to Warner Brothers," says Miles. "Miles was making this CD in Los Angeles and the producer wasn't happy with the way things were going.

He called Marcus Miller and said he was looking for songs for Davis's new album.

"Marcus called me because he wanted everything to revolve around synthesizers and electronics. We did some demos, sent them to L.A. and the result was the release of the three albums."

Miles also worked on recordings by David Sanborn, Luther Vandross, Whitney Houston, Michael Jackson and Aretha Franklin. He has partnered with DJ Logic and Falu to create the fusion group Global Noize.

He tours the world, performing at jazz festivals, including Berks Jazz Festival, Monterey Jazz Festival and Jazz Aspen, with a variety of artists, performing tributes to Marvin Gaye, Luther Vandross and Grover Washington Jr.

His latest project, with Global Noize, is the CD, "Sly Reimagined," a tribute to Sly and the Family Stone, scheduled for release next month.

Reflects Miles, "The industry has presented its challenges along the way, but there has been so much beauty among the disappointment."

"All I ever wanted was a chance to play music and make a living at it, and I'm grateful to have had these rich experiences, surrounded by so many talented and loving people. I wouldn't trade these moments for anything."

THEATER REVIEW

PYT 'Flat Stanley' deserves big stamp of approval

By DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to The Press

To see the world for the price of a postage stamp is a great benefit if you can fold yourself flat, as Stanley Lambchop finds out in a musical romp around the world.

Pennsylvania Youth Theatre's production of "The Musical Adventures of Flat Stanley," directed by Bill Mutimer, through May 19, Charles A. Brown IceHouse, Sand Island, Bethlehem, deserves a big stamp of approval. Timothy Allen McDonald adapted Jeff Brown's classic children's story, "Flat Stanley," for the children's theater show.

For the May 4 performance, the Paris Cast included Dawson Maddock in the title role. Maddock is multitalented in his singing, acting and dancing.

Brent Schlosshauer as Flat Stanley's father, Mr. Lambchop, turns in a great performance with his strong voice and commanding stage presence.

When Stanley gets one dimensionally thin after his encounter with Emerson Shauger as Bulletin Board, his dreams of being a hero start to come true. Shauger turns in a second strong performance by also playing the character of Assistant Director.

Postwoman Mrs. Cartero (Maia Gould) is terrific as the letter carrier who helps Flat Stanley turn his dreams of traveling the world into a flat-rate reality.

One of the funniest scenes pits Mrs. Lambchop (Ali Wycherley) against zany Doctor Dani (Dorothy Brill) in a whirlwind of verbal confusion that leaves Flat Stanley's mom steamed and Flat Stanley's condition diagnosed as "flat." Other than that, he's perfectly normal.

John Conahan excels

as he plays Flat Stanley's little brother and chief admirer, Arthur. He provides some great laughs with his winning personality.

During Flat Stanley's trip to Los Angeles, he meets Hollywood Agent, played with professional polish by Madeline Sinkler. She is ably assisted by Dallas Maddock (Jazmin, Hollywood Assistant No. 1) and Anastacia Faisetty (Tamara, Hollywood Assistant No. 2), both of whom are perfect sidekicks for the high-powered talent agent.

Mia Faisetty sparkles as Suzanne Toomey, a cute kid who has mastered today's cell-phone culture, complete with eye-rolling.

Emily Visperas' voice stands out as Bikini Wahini in the Hawaiian-terrific beach party scene. Visperas also plays a second role as Christina Toomey.

Katie Olsen is hilarious as Parisian museum director O. Jay D'Art coping with the mysterious Sneak Thief (Cissie Brotzman). The clever thief next threatens to steal more art, including "Mona Lisa," given delightful dimensionality by Leighann Phillips.

Jessie Brotzman as Napoleon gives his character depth and personality as he assists Flat Stanley in fulfilling yet another fantasy.

Taylor Kendall, as The President, is fun to watch as is her staff, Secret Service Agent Brody (Clara Floyd) and Secret Service Agent Jones (Ariana Kane).

Emily Reed does magical work as the little Genie Blue and Hannah Scheifele is a standout as Calamity Mae Jasper.

Costume Designer Bill Bauman captures Flat Stanley perfectly and outfits the large cast with colorful costumes that help tell the story.

Denise Binder's choreography is marvelous.

Many benefits to eating whole grains

Q. My wife insists on buying nothing but crunchy brown bread because she says it is good for us. I'm a bit skeptical about this and suspect we are victims of hype to sell this kind of bread. What do you think?

I'm presuming that your wife wants to get whole grain bread to put more fiber into your diet.

Whole grains are cereal grains that include the bran, the germ and the core of the kernel known as the endosperm. Bran is a tough, fibrous outer layer, which is a source of fiber.

Before the Industrial Revolution, we did not process grains. These grains gave us fiber (aka roughage), healthy fats, vitamins, minerals, plant enzymes, hormones, and hundreds of other beneficial plant compounds.

The invention of industrialized roller mills in the late 19th century changed what we got from grains. Milling strips away the bran and germ of the grain, making it easier to chew and digest.

Consumers have to be cautious about what they buy to get fiber. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) warns that foods labeled with the words "multi-grain, stone-ground, 100 percent wheat, cracked wheat, seven-grain or bran" are usually not whole-grain products. Look for "whole grain" on the package.

Also, color is not an indication of whole grain. Bread can be brown because of molasses or other added ingredients. You have to read the ingredient list to see if a product is from whole grains.

The USDA recommends reading the Nutrition Facts label on packages and choosing whole grain products with a higher percentage of fiber.

How much fiber is enough? The American Dietetic Association recommends a healthy diet include 25 to 35 grams of fiber a day. If you want a precise, personal estimate for fiber intake, you can use a fiber calculator provided by the University of Maryland Medical System. Go to: healthcalculators.org/calculators/fiber.

There are many health benefits to eating whole grains:

Bowel health. By keeping the stool soft and bulky, the fiber in whole grains helps prevent constipation and diverticular disease, which is characterized by tiny pouches inside the colon that are easily irritated and inflamed. Softer stool also reduces pain from hemorrhoids.

Longevity. A report from the Iowa Women's Health Study linked whole-grain consumption with fewer deaths from non-cardiac, non-cancer causes.

Cardiovascular disease. Eating whole grains substantially lowers cholesterol, triglycerides and insulin levels. Any of these changes would be expected to reduce the risk for cardiovascular disease.

Diabetes. In people with diabetes, fiber can slow the absorption of sugar and help improve blood sugar levels. A healthy diet that includes fiber may also reduce the risk of developing type 2 diabetes.

Cancer. The data on cancer are mixed, with some studies showing a protective effect and others showing none.

Weight control. High-fiber foods generally require more chewing, which gives your body time to register when you're no longer hungry, so you're less likely to overeat. Also, a high-fiber diet tends to make a meal feel larger and linger longer, so you stay full for a greater amount of time.

To get more fiber in your diet, you should include whole grain products, fruits, vegetables, beans, peas, nuts and seeds.

Fiber supplements such as Metamucil, Citrucel and FiberCon can help. But getting your fiber from foods is better because supplements don't provide the variety of fibers, vitamins, minerals and other beneficial nutrients that foods do.

Warning. Fiber supplements can influence the processing of some drugs, such as aspirin, warfarin (Coumadin) and certain anti-seizure and antidepressant medications.

Also, fiber supplements can also reduce blood sugar levels, which may require an adjustment in your medications or insulin if you have diabetes.

And don't take fiber supplements before consulting your health care provider.

The cruelest thief

It's not fair. Somebody stole April away from me. Puff – just like that, the entire month disappeared.

I know why people keep saying, "Time flies." It's because it's a truism. I don't know how the month of April slipped away before I even realized it was here.

I think someone stole it.

Because it's the month of my birth, I've always made April special. It's MY month and I celebrate my birthday all month, spacing out my celebrations with friends.

This year, looking at the calendar as I prepared to make a birthday trip with my husband, I realized April would be over before we got back.

I had to write to friends telling them we would celebrate our April birthdays in May. Or better yet, June.

I keep thinking about what I accomplished when I worked full time and still managed to have regular get-togethers with friends and lots of professional meetings with colleagues around the state.

I also found time to go to the gym, to take Moe Jerant's weekly djembe drumming class and to go on fun outings with my Allentown-Bethlehem friends.

Now, I sit back and wonder, how did I do it and still work long hours. How did I find the time for all that?

A bigger question: Why can't I do it now?

Why can't I accomplish half of what I did when I was working?

After pondering this problem for a while and analyzing how I spend my time, I decided I'm not making the best use of my nights. When I worked, I used the nighttime hours extremely well, even if it meant washing clothes at midnight.

Now, I run around like the energizer bunny during the day. But when the sun goes down, it takes my energy and my motivation with it. Then I curl up with a book or watch a movie on TV.

I love those old movies from the 50s, 60s, 70s and 80s. But if I watch a movie from 9 to 11 p.m., the night is gone and I realize I didn't do much with it.

In an effort to gain better control of my time, I have banned TV from my life. I give myself permission to watch "Dancing with the Stars" once a week, but that's it.

Now, I use that time to take an evening walk and do chores like paying bills and answering email.

I still don't think I have enough time.

My brother called me from Pennsylvania when I was out. That's not a regular occurrence and I was anxious to talk with him.

I'm ashamed to say that it took me three weeks to call him back. When I did, we both commiserated about time slipping away too fast.

"When you're older, time flies faster than during your working years," my brother says. "The older you get, the more you try to hang onto each day. But it flies faster and faster each year no matter what you do."

He's right. The puzzle I keep trying to solve is how to hang onto time and make the weeks last longer.

I try little tricks to make the most of my days but they still melt away faster than ice cream in the sun.

To keep better track of my days, I followed a suggestion I read about and started a daily journal. That way, I can look back and at least know how I spent the month or the year.

But here's the rub. Sometimes I get weeks behind in journaling. Why? I claim it's because I run out of time.

What's going on here? Are you having the same problem controlling time?

Is there anything we can do to slow the passage of time – or at least give us more control over our time?

One thing I always manage to do is to live each day fully. I try not to squander time.

But even with all that, I have two problems: There never seems to be enough time and months melt away too fast. Years do, too.

As I add another candle to my birthday cake, I can't believe the year evaporated so quickly. I tell myself I just had a birthday. It can't be time for another one.

Time is passing far too fast.

Is there a solution for that?

You tell me. Maybe someone has some tips, observations or suggestions.

When buying plants, consider life cycle

As you go to the garden center and are looking to buy some plants, keep their life cycles in mind.

If you want something that you don't have to plant each year, don't buy annuals.

Here are tips that will help you buy the kind of plants that you want for your flower garden.

Plants are classified by the number of growing seasons required to complete their life cycle. Generally, these groups are annuals, biennials and perennials.

Annuals will provide continuous blooms throughout the growing season.

Biennials provide blooms during their second year of growth.

Perennials will bloom for two to eight weeks or longer. Bloom time will vary and can occur during the beginning, middle, or end of the growing season.

Annuals take a single year to complete a full life cycle. Most are planted in the spring, bloom in the summer, and die in the fall. A few, known as winter annuals, germinate in the later summer and autumn, are dormant during the winter, and grow during the next spring and summer.

GROWING GREEN

Many plants treated as annuals in northern climates, such as Pennsylvania, are actually perennials when grown in southern climates. These plants are not cold-hardy and are not able to withstand winter temperatures in our hardiness zone.

Except for those that reseed themselves, annuals will not grow a second year unless they are replanted. Annuals are frequently grouped as "hardy," "half-hardy," or "tender." This refers to when seed can be sown outdoors in the spring and their capability to tolerate early spring and fall frosts and winter temperatures.

Hardy annuals include plants such as pansies, ornamental kale, and dusty miller. These plants are able to withstand cold soil and hard frosts, may be winter-hardy, are able to survive winter temperatures if sown in the fall (depending on the severity of the winter) and are ideal for cool weather gardens although they often will die in the heat of summer.

Half-hardy annuals include plants such as snapdragon, petunia and alyssum. These plants can withstand a limited amount of cold temperatures and light frost. However, if the seed is sown too early and germinates, even a light frost may damage the seedlings. Summer heat may cause half-hardy annuals to decline, but cooler fall temperatures seem to revive the plants, often inducing growth and blooming.

Tender annuals include plants such as vinca and zinnia, which cannot withstand freezing temperatures. They should be sown outdoors only after the danger of frost has passed (which is usually May 10 in the Lehigh Valley). The seeds are often sown in a greenhouse during the spring and grown to small plants that are transplanted in the garden after the last frost. Tender annuals will grow fairly well and bloom throughout the heat of the summer.

Biennials take twice as long to complete a full life cycle as annuals. They require a dormant period, induced by cold temperatures, between plant growth and blooming.

Biennials are usually sown in the spring, vegetative during the summer, dormant that fall, live in this inactive state through the winter, flower the second summer, set seed, and die during the following fall. If biennials are grown in regions where winter temperatures are colder than the plants hardiness, a cold frame can be used as a temporary shelter for plants.

Some biennials can be treated as annuals by sowing seed in the summer that will germinate and be exposed to chilling temperatures to induce flowering in the fall and over winter, and resume growth and flower the next spring.

Perennials used in Pennsylvania landscapes are cold-hardy enough to survive winter temperatures, hence they live longer than both annuals and biennials. Perennials are classified as either herbaceous or woody.

Characteristics of herbaceous perennials include top growth that completely dies back to the ground during the winter. Roots and crowns remain alive. Plants send up new growth the following spring; and they usually live for at least two years.

Herbaceous perennials that are not cold hardy, or cannot tolerate really cold climates, usually die when the soil freezes. These perennials are often treated as annuals.

Bulbous plants are often referred to as bulbs, tubers, corms or rhizomes. True bulbs are actually fleshy food storage centers for underground stems from which the next season's plants will grow. Corms are also food storage centers, but are more scaly and solid. Rhizomes and tubers are actually thick underground stems. To be classified correctly, this group belongs with perennial flowers because bulbous plants come back and flower year after year.

Characteristics of woody perennials include that their top growth does not die back in the fall (deciduous plants drop leaves, but stems do not die) and will have larger plants each year as new growth grows from existing stems.

'Oblivion': Cruise drone-alone

"Oblivion" is a stunning sci-fi thriller that transports you to another world: Earth in the not two-distant future.

The year is 2077, intones Jack Harper (Tom Cruise) in the prologue. An alien invasion has made the planet uninhabitable, he tells us. Surviving humans have fled to Triton, a moon of Saturn. Harper is a kind of space-age mechanic. Only, instead of repairing cars, he repairs drones, which have been developed into all-purpose super-fast, super-lethal security forces. The drones are like a three-dimensional Pac-Man and they destroy any targets in their path.

Jack is stationed with Victoria (Andrea Riseborough), who is his space repairs partner, in a very futuristic house atop a mountain on earth. Victoria is at the home's command central when Jack is on assignment.

On a huge video system, she maps his travels, alerts him to dangerous places, and communicates with a mysterious person named Sally (Melissa Leo), who seems to be some sort of commander of the whole space military operations.

Jack pilots a futuristic bubbleship, which is similar to a helicopter, except it moves at the speed of a jet plane and maneuvers like a back-mounted jet-pack.

While on the trail of a drone, Jack encounters "Scavs," the nickname for scavengers, a rebel-like force bunkered down and led by Beech (Morgan Freeman). He also discovers NASA astronauts whose spaceship has crashed. He rescues one of them, Julia (Olga Kurylenko).

In the post-apocalyptic landscape, we glimpse bits and pieces of the Empire State Building, New York City bridges and other landmarks. Nothing is ever really explained.

Neither are the flashbacks that Jack has, which include, a la "An Affair to Remember," a woman he meets at the top of the Empire State Building.

Joseph Kosinski ("Tron: Legacy," 2010) directs from a screenplay by Michael deBruyn and Karl Gajdusek ("Trespass," 2011), based on Kosinski's original graphic novel.

Kosinski has created a whole new world. I saw the film in the Imax format and the cinematography is truly breath-taking.

The computer-generated imagery is blended seamlessly with the live action. The special effects are superb. There are several gripping spaceship and drones chase sequences.

Tom Cruise is fine as Jack Harper, the kind of thoughtful action hero he does so well at portraying.

Morgan Freeman lends his gravitas to the proceedings. He makes everything seem profound.

Olga Kurylenko provides a striking screen presence. Andrea Riseborough has a good rapport with Cruise. Melissa Leo, even in grainy video transmission, makes a powerful impression.

"Oblivion" poses some intriguing premises as to where the human race and warfare may be heading, the latter especially in terms of drones. And the matter of clones is also introduced. Talk about identity theft.

"Oblivion" is the thinking person's sci-fi thriller. It's worth checking out. And you may be thinking about this movie long afterward, trying to figure it out.

"Oblivion," MPAA Rated PG-13 (Parents Strongly Cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13) for sci-fi action violence, brief strong language, and some sensuality-nudity; Genre: Action, Adventure, Mystery; Run time: 2 hrs., four mins.; Distributed by Universal Pictures.

THEATER REVIEW

Civic's 'Next to Normal' is anything but

By PAUL WILLISTEIN pwillistein@tntonline.com

"Next To Normal" is certainly not your normal musical.

It defies the conventions of traditional Broadway fare in several ways. "Next to Normal," through May 19, Civic Theatre of Allentown, has very few spoken words of dialogue. The story is advanced through songs — 17 in act one and 20 (including five reprises) in act two, for a total of 37 production numbers.

This is about double the number of songs in a typical musical. "Chicago," for example, has 11 songs in act one and seven songs (with no reprises) in act two, for a total of 17 production numbers.

There is also the matter of the lyrics, or hooks (memorable chorus) of the songs in "Next To Normal." The songs are not readily memorable on first hearing. You probably won't depart the theater humming the tune or singing the lyrics to "Who's Crazy-My Psychopharmacologist and I," to cite a song from act one in "Next To Normal."

The songs, with music written by Tom Kitt, with book and lyrics by Brian Yorkey, are in the rock music genre.

Lyrical, I was reminded of songs from the 1970's singer-songwriter era, those of Harry Chapin, Jim Croce, Jimmy Webb, Billy Joel and Elton John (with Bernie Taupin on lyrics).

Musically, I was reminded of the songs of Billy Joel, with lots of arpeggios (keyboard runs). The hit, "A Thousand Miles," a Top 10 hit in 2002, by Vanessa Carlton of Milford, Pike County, kept coming to mind.

"Next To Normal" is really a rock opera, akin to "The Who's Tommy," and extremely challenging to stage.

Director-Choreographer William Sanders, working with music director Justin Brehm, and a six-person rock band, has done masterful work in realizing "Next to Normal" in a production that is more gritty off-Broadway than spiffy Broadway.

The concert performance sense is emphasized by technical director Will Morris, who flanks the stage with functioning metal rock-show light towers. Set designer Jason Sherwood uses minimal set design (a few chairs, a table) and employs three thick large rectangular frames in blues and grays with a sliding back wall that opens to reveal the theater's actual backstage wall.

Sanders is fortunate to have cast actors up to the task of delivering the material.

Janis Greim, as Diane

Goodman, the psychologically-troubled wife and mother, creates not only a sympathetic figure, but has a fine soprano register which makes songs, including "I Miss the Mountains," "I Dreamed a Dance" and "So Anyway," if not hummable, then memorable.

Michael Traupman is effective as Dan Goodman, the supportive but somewhat uninformed husband and father, and delivers some of the show's biggest songs, including "He's Not Here," "A Light in the Dark" and "How Could I Ever Forget," the latter two with Greim.

Matthew Meckes, as Gabe Goodman, the son, has some of the show's most energetic songs, including "I'm Alive" and "There's A World."

Kathy Linder, as Natalie Goodman, the daughter, adds some comedic relief, delivering her character's teen-age angst snarkisms, and is in splendid voice on "Everything Else" and "Maybe (Next to Normal)," the latter with Greim.

Will Morris, as Henry, Natalie's boyfriend, renders a fine "Perfect For You," with Linder.

Brian Foley, in dual roles as Dr. Madden and Dr. Fine, bolsters several duets and in trios, especially "Seconds and Years" with Greim and Traupman.

CONCERT REVIEW

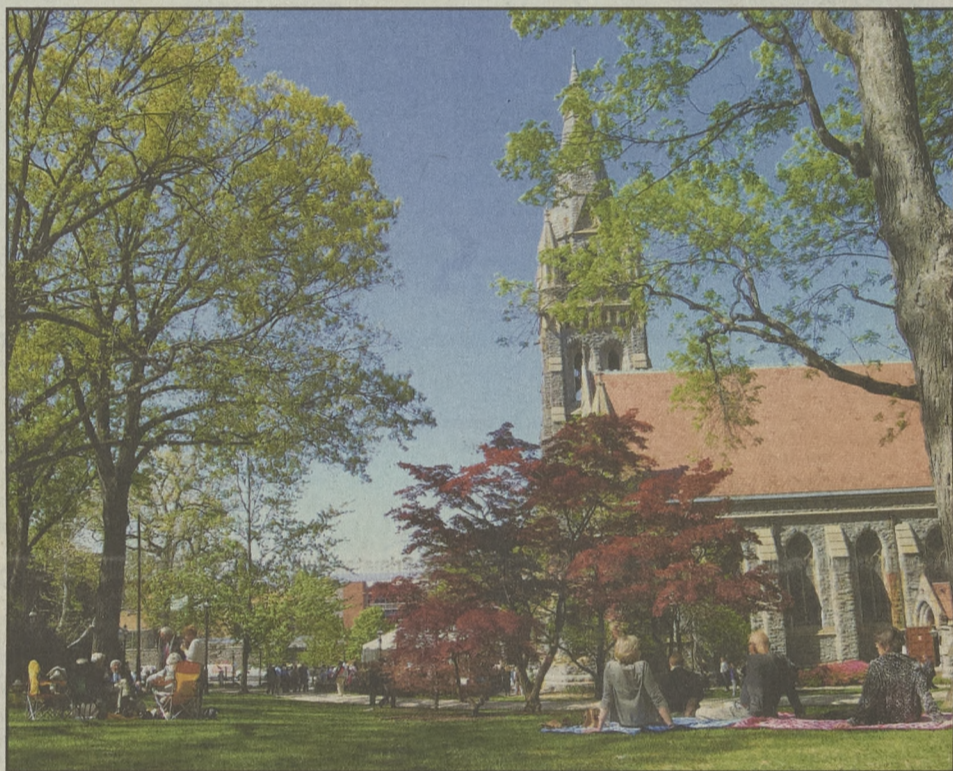

The music of Bach abides in Bethlehem

By PAUL WILLISTEIN Focus Editor

The Bach Choir of Bethlehem was forged by Bethlehem Steel Corp. chieftain Charles M. Schwab who lured J. Fred Wolle back from a University of California professorship to again lead the choir in 1911, with the Bethlehem Bach Festival resuming the next year in Packer Church, Lehigh University. Wolle had rehearsed and conducted The Bach Choir of Bethlehem's first American performance of Bach's The Mass in B Minor in 1900 in Central Moravian Church in downtown Bethlehem. While "The Steel" disbanded in 2003, just shy of its 100th anniversary, The 106th Bach Festival, led by Greg Funfgeld as artistic director and conductor in his 30th anniversary year, continues May 10 and 11 in Packer Church and Zoellner Arts Center. The Bach Fest, the Bach Choir and Johann Sebastian Bach's music is strong and has outlasted the Steel and many other businesses, institutions and personages, and will outlast you and me. The Bach abides. Funfgeld put together an especially ambitious program this year. There are so many moments of exultation, we draw attention to a few at the risk of omission. The Friday program is one of astounding variety. The Friday afternoon concert is Bach Cantata 71 "Gott ist mein König," Cantata 180 "Schmücke dich, o liebe Seele," and Beethoven "Choral Fantasy" for chorus, orchestra, and piano solo, Op.80. Cantata 71 was commissioned for the installation of the Muhlhausen town council in 1708. Bach, drawing from the wisdom of Exo-odus, Samuel, Deuteronomy and the Psalms, metaphorically advises the officials: "May your agedness be like your youth." Cantata 180 has a melody of devastating beauty. Benjamin Butterfield's tenor aria with Robin Kani, flute, is propulsive and compelling. Rosa Lamoreaux's soprano recitative is particularly energetic. Countertenor Daniel Taylor's alto recitative with Kani and Linda Ganus, dual flute solos, is thrilling. Thomas Goeman, Bach Choir assistant conductor and Bach Festival Orchestra organist, makes the music dance in Beethoven's "Choral Fantasy" for chorus, orchestra and piano solo, Op. 80. Goeman's fully-realized achievement provides edge-of-your-seat emotions. The Friday evening concert is Bach Cantata 119 "Preise Jerusalem, den Herrn," Lauridsen "Lux Aeterna" and Bach Cantata 1, "Wie Schön leuchtet der Morgenstern." Cantata 119, with its exquisite strings and brass, is a heraldic and formal tribute. No "Hail to the Chief" here, though. The good burgomeisters and councillors of Leipzig in 1723 were told in no uncertain terms: "Authority is God's gift." With the meditative and mournful Lauridsen "Lux Aeterna," the choir, under Funfgeld's skilled direction and interpretation, achieves new heights of grandeur. Tremendous washes of strings and winds and brass complete this most visceral work. In Cantata 1, baritone William Sharp's bass recitative is especially clear and moving. Saturday morning's program in Baker Hall in Zoell-ner is an adventurous pairing of Rioult Dance and the Bach Festival Orchestra in "Views of the Fleeting World," to seven movements of Bach's "Art of Fugue"; "City," to "Sonata for Violin and Harpsichord No. 6 in G Major"; and "Celestial Tides" to "Brandenburg Concerto No. 6." "Fleeting World" is augmented by sound effects of rain and wind and surf. "Moonlight," pairing Penelope Gonzalez and Brian Flynn, and "Flowing River," featuring the Rioult company, are particularly moving. "Celestial Tides," also with choreography by Pascal Rioult, is wonderfully fluid and inspired. The delicate power of the mesmerizing "B Minor Mass" begins with the opening "Kyrie," with cellos and basses resonating deeply balanced against the ethereal choir and strings. Lamoreaux and Kendra Colton, soprano, are superbly matched in the "Kyrie" sopranos' duet. Christopheren Nomura's "Gloria" bass aria is extremely powerful. At the center of The "Mass" is the core Christian belief, that of the Nicene Creed. With the "Sanctus" and "Agnus Dei" portions, the "Mass" concludes with reassurance and celebration. There is plenty of that at the 106th Bach Fest. Funfgeld was presented a bouquet by Lamoreaux at the May 4 conclusion. He, the some 100-member choir, six vocal soloists and 38 musicians received a standing ovation and were brought back for extended applause. The 106th Bach Fest is not to be missed. Plan to attend all or a portion of it. grade and plays cello in the City Orchestra and the William Allen High School Orchestra.
