That perfect season

Lehigh's 1950 team will be honored at halftime Saturday

By JOAN CAMPION
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

This Saturday Lehigh's Golden Hawks will clash with the footballers of Fordham University at Goodman Stadium. And, tucked into the present-day festivities will be a quieter commemoration — of Lehigh's one and only perfect football season, one exhilarating all-fall sweep of nine games without a single loss or tie.

It happened 60 years ago, when Lehigh students and teams were Engineers, the university was most famous for building impressive things and football was played at the well-remembered Taylor Stadium on East Packer Avenue.

Lehigh was not then a football power — in fact, it never has been. This could easily be forgotten if you lived on the Southside in the old days of games at Taylor, when excitement was building toward the Lehigh-Lafayette game. But in fact, there were many seasons in which the Brown and White had to count themselves content with beating the Big Cats from Easton — if and when they could.

What Lehigh had was a long, proud and scrappy football history, rather than a history of power football.

And then came that one year: 1950. That was the year in which, suddenly, it all crystallized; the year in which it was possible to imagine what it might be like all the time for players and fans of Penn State or Notre Dame.

Bill Leckonby, a former player for the Brooklyn Dodgers professional football team, was about to enter his fifth season as head coach. Despite his determined efforts at recruiting, the Engineers during his tenure had seemed mired in mediocrity. Nevertheless, a prescient group of Lehigh players had predicted an unbroken and untied season to a writer for the Globe-Times, Bethlehem's daily newspaper at the time.

It's possible that the sports writer took the players' prediction with a grain of salt. But then it began to come true.

At the heart of the Lehigh team were two outstanding halfbacks, Dick Gabriel and Dick

Judge rules

Sends Elias decision back to city zoners

By BERNIE O'HARE
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

When Northampton County Judge Edward Smith first heard oral arguments about the proposed expansion of Bethlehem's Elias Farmers Market, he hinted that the parties need to sit down and talk.

"It seems neighbors and owners have different views of what is going on," he said, as lawyers tossed around terms like "use variances" and "dimensional variances" as expertly as shoppers toss salad made from the fresh produce supplied by this locally-owned market.

Last week, Smith sent the parties a stronger signal in the form of a 44-page opinion sending the proposed expansion back to the Bethlehem Zoning Hearing Board.

In exhaustive detail, Judge Smith affirmed a ZHB ruling granting variances that will permit Elias Farmers Market to expand its warehouse and build a safer loading dock. But he also remands the matter because zoners failed to consider or grant a special exception.

He noted that "the criteria for a dimensional variance are focused more specifically on the subject property, while the criteria for special exception use focus on the use of the property and the impact of

Scaling the heights

By DOROTHY GLEW
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

On May 22, 2008, Joe Yannuzzi, a Bethlehem attorney, joined an elite group of achievers: he reached the summit of Mount Everest. Though it had taken weeks to reach his destination, there was little time to savor his success. The thinness of the air and the uncertainty of the weather made it imperative to push on. So, after just 40 minutes, Yannuzzi and the Sherpa who had guided him to the top of Mount Everest began the tortuous descent.

The trip was the culmination of two decades of climbing, beginning in the Swiss Alps, where Yannuzzi discovered his passion for scaling mountains. There followed climbs up the Andes, mountains Rainier and McKinley, as well as mountains in the Himalayas. Then, in 2007, he was invited to climb Mount Everest by Eric Simonson, a premier mountaineering expedition leader.

For a year, Yannuzzi prepared by doing six- to eight-hour climbs in Yosemite National Park and the White Mountains of New Hampshire, among other places, while hauling a 60- to 80-pound pack. This was only part of the preparation for a journey that would last three months, cost $45,000, and demand unimaginable concentration every step of the way.

The route that Yannuzzi and his team followed began with a flight from Kathmandu, capital of Nepal, to Lukla, a small mountain village. From there, an eight-day hike took them to the base camp at the foot of Mount Everest. There are four additional camps between the base camp and the summit.

Yannuzzi's team consisted of 20 climbers, including two women, and 35 Sherpas. Five of the Sherpas cooked at the base camp, each climber had a Sherpa as a personal guide, and the remaining Sherpas carried gear and canisters of oxygen. The services of the Sherpas as well as the gear and supplies cost $35,000; a pass to climb the mountain cost an additional $10,000.

Before beginning their ascent, the team had to prepare their bodies to tolerate the thin air farther up the mountain. They did this by repeatedly climbing from the base camp to Camp 1 and back again, and then to Camp 2 and back. Despite a month of climbing and descending to acclimate their bodies, some members of the party were unable to make the adjustment and had to abandon the expedition.

Yannuzzi notes that it is not uncommon to lose some coordination and mental acuity as a result of the lack of oxygen. Once climbers reach Doyle, sometimes called "the Roaring Richards" or "the Touchdown Twins." They both were named to the Little All-American team that year, while their less-heralded teammate, the little linebacker Bill Ciaravino, was chosen for All-American honors.

And here is how the season evolved: On Sept. 25, the Engineers of Lehigh plucked the Blue Hens of Delaware, 21-0. The following weekend they had a real squeaker, barely getting by Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland, 21-20. Still on the road, on Oct. 9 the team took out Bucknell in Lewisburg, 27-6.

On Oct. 16, back home in Bethlehem, the Lehigh team easily won its battle over Gettysburg, 49-6. Dartmouth fell the following week, when the Brown and White traveled to Hanover, N.H. This was a 16-14 victory, which the oddsmakers had predicted would come out the other way.

Oct. 30 came, and with it came Rutgers University's turn to fall before Coach Leckonby's rampaging forces. It happened in Taylor Stadium, and the final score was 21-18.

The Muhlenberg Mules' downfall was Engineer-ed in the same venue the following week, and the numbers were a commanding 42-13.

The following week the team celebrated Homecoming Day. Still on their home turf, they showed the Carnegie Tech team the door, 66-0. It had been a great run. But there were those — many of them — for whom the whole structure of victories would have come crashing down had the Lafayette game been lost.

It wasn't, though. Led by Doyle and Gabriel, the Engineers nullified the Leopards, 38-0.

Lovers of quiet were glad if, that night, they were not forced to be in Southside Bethlehem.

From outside, looking in, Louise Szabo Valeriano had a different perspective on all of this. At the time she was going with a member of the Lehigh football team, lineman Joe Valeriano — her future husband.

But she didn't see even one game of that great, incandescent season.

The main reason was that she was a student nurse at St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing. She was scheduled to work most Saturdays, and the few exceptions happened to be rainy. And those were the days in which asking to get off for a football game would have been frowned upon: her duty came first. She socialized with Joe and their friends after her work hours, and after games. She was aware, though, that the citizens of Bethlehem were taking a keen interest in the gridiron fortunes of the Engineers. This even went for some very young ones.

"I was in pediatrics, and I noticed that a lot of the children were talking about the team and the players. When I told them I knew Dick Gabriel, one of the little boys hugged me. He said, 'I know someone who knows Dick Gabriel.'"

The excitement and the power of that perfect season have long since faded into memory. But the players, and their wives and widows, have come together every five years to remember that exceptional time. They come to Bethlehem, to the shadow of Lehigh, to receive the small accolades of others' memories.

Expected to attend this weekend's festivities are Charles Adams, Richard Collin, Richard Gabriel, Richard Gardner, Stanley Gedney, Peter Ginesi, Alonzo Haines, James Hancock, Grant Hansel, William Horn, Charles Hull, Robert Many, David Mesick, Robert Morgan, Joseph Moyer, Joseph Orr, Walter Pullar and Richard Schmidt. Widows expected to attend are Barbara Smith, Mrs. William Leckonby, Diann Pradetto, Louise Valeriano and Mrs. Charles Roberts.

an oxygen mask at all times.

While every inch of Everest is challenging to the most experienced climber, there are places that are particularly treacherous. One of these is the Hillary Step, named for Sir Edmund Hillary, the first person of European descent to reach the summit. Hillary was joined on his climb in 1953 by the Sherpa, Tenzing Norgay.

Hillary Step is a nearly vertical rock face that is navigated with the help of fixed ropes. In addition, it is so narrow that climbers must climb it in single file. As more and more people attempt to scale Everest, climbers can lose considerable time waiting their turn to ascend or descend. Such was Yannuzzi's experience.

Yannuzzi and his Sherpa began the last leg of their climb to the summit at 9 p.m. and reached the summit at 5 a.m. Shortly thereafter, they began what would be a 13-hour descent to Camp 4. They lost about an hour at the Hillary Step waiting their turn to descend while another party ascended. While waiting, they noticed the frozen bodies of climbers who had lost their lives at this spot.

Upon reaching Camp 4, they ate and drank heartily. They had decided to press on to Camp 2, and after an hour, they resumed their descent. Once again, their journey was slowed, this time by a blizzard. They arrived at Camp 2 at 8 p.m., having spent almost 23 hours on their feet, ascending or descending.

Why would anyone spend so much time and money and endure so much risk to climb Mount Everest? Yannuzzi cites his competitive nature. More than that, climbing challenging mountains is living life fully for him.

What will he do next? While Yannuzzi is not ruling out another climb up at least part of Everest or another of the Himalayan mountains, he has no plans to do so at this point.

He has been very busy creating a library for the children of Sherpas next to the school they attend in a remote part of Nepal. To raise the necessary funds, Yannuzzi has given talks at Rotary clubs in New Jersey and also planned fundraisers and book drives. This summer he spent three weeks in Nepal organizing and shelving the books.

The Magic Yeti Library, as it's called, is intended to honor the memory of Alex Lowe, one of his generation's most skilled mountaineers, who perished in an avalanche on Shishapangma, a Tibetan mountain. One of the people who helped Yannuzzi with the library was Conrad Anker, a friend of Lowe and fellow climber on his friend's last trip.

Anyone wishing to make a donation to the Magic Yeti Library can contact Yannuzzi at jpynnuzzi@verizon.net.

that use on the surrounding neighborhood."

He also noted that the proposed expansion may violate the setback requirements in the zoning ordinance.

In other words, Smith wants the parties involved to sit down and listen to each other.

The Elias family has already conducted one open house, but most neighbors who oppose the expansion did not attend.

"We invite them again," said Najwa Azar, a member of the Elias family. "We don't have to have a meeting. They can come anytime."

Azar said the Elias family will abide by Judge Smith's ruling.

Al Bernotas, a spokesman for Bethlehem neighbors opposed to the Elias expansion, is also pleased with the decision, because it gives homeowners another opportunity to make sure their concerns are heard.

"We have to do whatever the judge wants us to do," Bernotas said.

Efforts to reach the attorneys involved in this matter were unsuccessful.

Things become even more interesting for six-year-old Bethlehem resident Elise Kney when she assists circus clowns Dave and Cherie with one of their magic tricks involving batons.

Clowning around for reading

Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus's "Ambassadors of Laughter" Dave and Cherie paid a visit to the Moravian Book Shop Sept. 15 to encourage kids to read through the Reading with Ringling program.

About 25 parents and kids were entertained by Dave and Cherie's antics, magic tricks and juggling prowess. Dave explained that as "Ambassadors of Laughter" he and his wife reach out to the communities in which the circus is scheduled to appear and expose children who can't necessarily attend performances to the magic that circuses add to kids' lives.

The "Greatest Show on Earth" has performances scheduled at Stabler Arena Oct. 8 through 11.

The couple, who are originally from Massachusetts, met at a clown college audition in 1990. They have been ambassadors for Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey for the last four years, and visit circus-bound communities several weeks before the actual circus arrives.

Dave and Cherie also promoted the Barnum Award, which is given to children ages 6 to 14 "who give back to their own communities in creative, innovative ways." More information is available at www.the-barnumaward.com.

After entertaining their Moravian Book Shop audience for about an hour, Dave and Cherie gave each attendee a bookmark and a clown nose, after offering an instructional session on the right way to affix the bright red bulb to a human nose.

Board scrutinizes PSSA results

By JOSH POPICHAK
jpopichak@tntonline.com

Pennsylvania System of School Assessment (PSSA) scores were a major topic of discussion for Saucon Valley School Board members at the board's Sept. 28 meeting. The district's supervisor of assessment and instruction, James Deegan, was on hand to explain the 2010 results of the standardized test; results which included some disappointing statistics, at least for several board members.

Lanita Lum was one of those members.

In the midst of Deegan's PowerPoint presentation about preliminary PSSA results in reading and math across various grade levels, Lum asked why reading proficiency among eighth-graders is at 94 percent, but drops to 74 percent among 11th-graders.

"That's not acceptable to me," Lum said.

"That's a very good question," Deegan responded.

The reasons for the drop in reading proficiency could be multiple, he explained, noting that "a lot of things change about the children (between grades)."

Everything from "maturity" to "learning style" to whether or not a child's parents were arguing before he came to school can impact test scores, Deegan said, and the district needs to figure out what is causing the drop, added Assistant Superintendent Carl Atkinson.

Atkinson said that he and Superintendent Sandra Fellin — who was attending a conference and absent from the meeting — are concerned about the drop in scores highlighted by the 11th grade test results, and that they plan to study the "causal factors" behind the drop.

Saucon Valley HS principal Eric Kahler interjected to comment that he and his colleagues are considering forming an academic advisory council, which would be tasked with examining what other school districts are doing to foster reading achievement among high school students, as measured by the PSSA.

Specifically, the district would like to examine districts reporting consistently high scores and districts with students whose scores have jumped significantly.

Not all districts are willing to share information about their methods of instruction with other districts, but many do, and the effort could prove worthwhile, he said.

"Have we ever reached out to the local colleges?" Lum inquired, adding that they may have curricula which would be of benefit to Saucon Valley HS students struggling with reading.

"No," Kahler admitted, but added, "I think it's a good question."

Atkinson said that he

Retired redevelopment director honored

Recently retired Bethlehem Redevelopment Authority Executive Director John Rohal accepts the Housing Advocate Award of Excellence from Northampton County Executive John Stoffa as Lehigh County Executive Don Cunningham Jr. and Community Action Committee of Lehigh Valley Executive Director Alan Jennings stand by. The award was presented for Rohal's "leadership and commitment to furthering affordable housing in the Lehigh Valley." It was given to him at the 2010 Lehigh Valley Housing Summit Sept. 30 at the Holiday Inn in center city Allentown.

Rohal retired in June after a 37-year career with the Redevelopment Authority. He was hired in 1972 as a relocation officer and became executive director in 1979.

Among his career accomplishments, he lists transitioning the Redevelopment Authority from the large urban renewal area acquisition and demolition projects of the 1960s and 1970s to smaller-scale spot acquisition of blighted property. He also worked on financing public improvements that supported the rehab and reuse of existing buildings, represented the City of Bethlehem in areas of housing and on disability-related issues and was a member of the city's lead negotiating team on the redevelopment of the former Bethlehem Steel properties included in what is now known as BethWorks and SteelStacks. He continues to serve on various boards in related fields.

Rohal, who said he was "surprised and had no idea, and appreciated the words of support," was joined by his wife Sharon at the award ceremony. They have two children.

He is a lifetime Bethlehem resident, a 1968 graduate of Liberty HS and a member of Lehigh University's Class of 1972.

Former city resident turns 103

By JOSH POPICHAK
jpopichak@tntonline.com

One of Minnie Poulton's earliest memories is of being taken for a ride in a car by her older brother.

That was in 1912, when she was just five years old.

Poulton's remarkably long life — she turned 103 Sept. 27 — was cause for much celebration at Mary Ellen Convalescent Home in Lower Saucon Township, where a birthday party was held for her Sept. 25.

Many residents of the nursing home were in attendance, as were members of Poulton's large family, including her son, Harold, her daughter, Joan Weiser, and her son-in-law, Rev. Paul Weiser, who helped lead a sing-along featuring traditional Christian hymns.

A number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren were also on hand to wish their family's matriarch a happy birthday.

During the party, Poulton found time to answer a few questions about her past, in between bites of cake and singing along to the strains of "In the Garden," her favorite gospel song.

The memory of her first ride in an automobile, she said, remains vivid because cars were still new-fangled contraptions at that time.

Poulton, who was raised atop South Mountain near the present-day location of the Bethlehem Star, recalled that hardly any roads in the area were paved when she was a small child.

The scarcity of automobiles benefited children, because it meant they could go "coasting" (sledding) on the roads in Lower Saucon Township formerly of Bethlehem, celebrated her 103rd birthday with a party at Mary Ellen Convalescent Home Sept. 25. Poulton was joined by her family, music, and visits from family members, including those whom traveled from as far as Allentown to celebrate her special day.

Poulton was born Sept. 27, 1907, in Lower Saucon Township, near the present-day location of the Bethlehem Star, recalled that hardly any roads in the area were paved when she was a small child.

At that point she suffered an injury which landed her in the hospital for six weeks, and ultimately forced her to withdraw from school, because she was so far behind in her studies by the time she was well enough to return.

Instead of pursuing an education, Poulton found work in a local silk mill, where she was employed until she got married and left to raise a family.

Years later, when her two children were older, she went back to work in a dress factory, "because I was a good seamstress," she said.

Poulton and her late husband eventually built a home in Lower Saucon Township.

"I want to thank everyone that came," she announced during the party.

At the conclusion, there was already talk of what to do to help her celebrate her 104th birthday next year.

CITY POLICE
Domestic threats

A city resident called police around 9 a.m. Sept. 10 to report a weapon found in a car owned by his father-in-law.

Police said the night before the call was made, Frank Echevarrias, 49, of East Elizabeth Avenue, argued with his daughter and son-in-law, telling them to move out of his home by midnight or face the consequences. They were alarmed by this because Echevarrias has been arrested for prior felonies, including voluntary manslaughter, and owned a gun.

The male victim allegedly saw what he believed to be a shotgun wrapped in a blanket on the back seat of Echevarrias' car, which was parked on High Street. Police at the scene observed the weapon and a red gas canister and matches, which they said were also in plain view. When Echevarrias arrived he was arrested for persons not to possess firearms.

DUI crash

Two residents in the 300 block of Hanover Street detained a man who had allegedly driven while drunk and crashed his car into a parked vehicle around 2:30 a.m. Sept. 5.

According to police, 26-year-old Dean Kuhar, of 516 Montclair Ave., had been drinking after work at McGrady's Pub. After crashing his vehicle, he allegedly fled the area on foot.

Two men who had been sitting on a porch talking watched as the accident unfolded and subsequently ran after Kuhar, dragging him to the ground, as police were called.

When officers arrived they found Kuhar flailing and shouting in the dirt. He was described by police as "agitated and hostile," and was handcuffed and taken to St. Luke's Hospital for blood-work.

Police said Kuhar was crying and — since he'd been en route to a woman's house to answer an inviting text message — blaming women for all his legal woes.

Kuhar is charged with DUI, damage to an unattended vehicle, careless driving, DUI-highest rate of alcohol and driving while under suspension.

Board hires key administration member

Southside TIF gets approval

By DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The Bethlehem Area School Board, at a special meeting Oct. 4 passed the "Bethlehem Works Tax Increment District Rebate Agreement," or as it has been referred to, the Southside TIF.

The BASD, one of the three taxing authorities who agreed in 2000 to create a TIF district on the site of the former Bethlehem Steel Corp., joins Northampton County and the City of Bethlehem in the agreement.

According to school board president Loretta Leeson, the district will receive almost $54 million. Twenty-seven million dollars will go to the TIF plan and $27 million to the school district. The previous TIF, signed in 2000 before the Sands casino was part of the equation, put the school district's share at $6.6 million.

The board's action clears the way for massive redevelopment of the site, while increasing the revenues to each of the taxing authorities.

The week before, at its Sept. 27 meeting, the school board hired Dr. Jack Silva as assistant superintendent of education and chief academic officer. His salary is $135,000 per year.

Silva will be responsible for all educational programming in the district, from pre-kindergarten through 12th grade.

"I am looking forward to the challenge," said Silva, as Supt. Joseph Roy introduced him to the public at the regular school board meeting at East Hills MS, shortly after the board concluded its vote.

"We are fortunate to recruit a person with outstanding experiences that closely match the needs of the district," said Roy in a prepared statement.

He said Silva's experience in program evaluation, high school building design, curriculum and organizational change are "key assets" that he will bring to the district. Roy quoted Dr. George White, director of Lehigh's Center for Developing Urban Educational Leaders, who said Silva is "one of the top, if not the top, curriculum and instruction leaders in the state."

Silva is a graduate of Liberty HS and lives in Fountain Hill with his family. One child attends Liberty and one attends Broughal MS.

The Pennsylvania State University graduate also has a master's degree in curriculum and instruction from Kutztown University. He earned his doctorate from Lehigh University.

In other business, the school board approved a contract with BASD's custodial and maintenance staff, the Bethlehem Area Custodial and Maintenance Employees. The employees, represented by Teamsters Local 773, will get an average annual salary increase of 1.46 percent per year over the next five years. The employees agreed to an undisclosed increase in their contributions to their health care plans and additional co-pay; they agreed to participate in a mail-order prescription plan, which according to Asst. to the Superintendent for Finance and Administration Stacy Gober, will yield additional savings.

The agreement included undisclosed modification of the employees' retirement plan, including a phase-out of health care options for retirees.

and Fellin had already personally contacted four school districts whose high school students scored higher on the reading PSSA than Saucon Valley students, including Lower Moreland Township in Montgomery County, Parkland in Lehigh County, Palisades in Bucks County and Dallas School District in Luzerne County.

Lower Moreland Township School District topped a cohort of 16 school districts prepared by Deegan for comparison's sake, with 86.5 percent of high school students registering proficiency in reading according to the PSSA.

Saucon Valley was 10th on the list, which also included Nazareth Area, East Penn, Salisbury and Southern Lehigh — districts whose high school students all scored higher on the reading portion of the PSSA than Saucon Valley students did.

Board member Michael Karabin told Atkinson that he hopes to receive an update about the administration's plan to improve high school reading PSSA scores in the future.

Karabin also recommended that regardless of what course of action is taken, the district attempt to tap into students' motivation to succeed on the tests.

"This has to be something that they take ownership of," he said.

In other business, Atkinson announced that a Focus Planning meeting to discuss future cost containment options for the district will be held Monday, Oct. 11 at 7 p.m. in the high school Auditorium.

The meeting is open to the public and is expected to be the first in a series of meetings this fall.

SV Embassy Bank marks anniversary

The atmosphere at Embassy Bank's Saucon Valley branch was festive Sept. 25, as employees, friends and community members gathered to celebrate the first anniversary of the branch's opening. Volunteers from local fire companies were on hand to share fire safety and prevention tips and music was provided by 100.7 WLEV. Gift cards and other prizes awarded in a drawing held at the bank were donated by local businesses, including Subway, Rave Motion Picture Theater, Dunkin Donuts, Starters, Piccadely, Saucon Valley Auto Spa and Geoff Mosebach State Farm Insurance. "The local businesses were very generous to

and junior Maris Langley is the alternate. Nisharika Pendurthi represents Liberty and the alternate is junior Darah Donaher.

Parent Advisory Council Chair Maureen Verkersammy spoke to the board, urging it to put curricula at the top of its agenda. She said she wants to see students prepared for the global community.

Verkersammy isn't the only person concerned with the state of BASD's curricula.

At the midpoint in the last school year, Consultant for Curriculum and Instruction Margaret Barilla reported that the district's curricula were more than 80 percent non-compliant with state standards. She has since said the district has made progress improving its compliance rate, but that is a slow process. She said the next evaluation is scheduled for next year.

Bethlehem Area Vocational and Technical School (BAVTS) reported a $650,000 surplus in funding provided last year by BASD as the school district's share for area students who attend BAVTS.

Board members Rosario Amato and William Burkhardt suggested that the board allow BAVTS to keep the surplus, suggesting they could put it into a capital reserve fund. Aurea Ortiz suggested that 75 percent of the surplus be given back and that the board use the money to buy permanent seats for the planetarium at Broughal MS.

The board voted to accept BAVTS' offer to return half of the surplus.

Attorney John Lushis Jr. told the board that he submitted the Martin Tower or "City Central" tax increment financing (TIF) to the Bethlehem City Council.

Lushis, who is solicitor for the Lehigh County Industrial Development Authority (LCIDA), said Lehigh County would schedule a public hearing on the project by early next year.

By law, Lehigh County will make a decision on the TIF not earlier than three weeks following that public hearing. After the county passes an ordinance establishing a TIF district, the BASD and the City of Bethlehem must decide to participate in or opt out of the TIF agreement.

The 53-acre Martin Tower site is the former headquarters of the Bethlehem Steel Corp.

WRESTLING Hall is new FHS coach

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Brandon Hall has spent the past 10 years coaching wrestling alongside current Bethlehem Catholic boss Jeff Karam.

Now, he'll be sitting across from Karam this winter when Freedom and Becahi meet.

Hall, 34, was approved last week to become the new wrestling coach at Freedom, taking over for the departed Rich McIntyre. The Tussey Mountain High School and Lycoming College graduate said that the whole assistant to head coach transformation was a whirlwind, as it just appeared on his radar in August once McIntyre wasn't offered to come back to coach the program after two years at the helm.

"I was really out of the loop when the position opened up," said Hall. "I went from not knowing about the job to applying for it and getting an interview in the matter of a week. It all happened really fast."

Hall spent eight years at Freedom with Karam before he went over to Becahi to join the Hawks' fledgling program two years ago.

Now he's going to have to do his own retooling for a program that has struggled recently, finishing last year 6-13 overall, 2-6 in the LVC.

"There are still kids there that remember me and we definitely have pieces in place," he said. "We just have to find a way to bridge the gap between the youth programs and the high school program. I think one of the biggest problems we've had at Freedom is getting more experienced kids in the lineup. I want to do that, as well as make kids excited to be apart of Freedom wrestling."

Hall is currently a therapist working with children who have Autism, but he's also pursuing his masters at East Stroudsburg University in secondary education. He finished his student teaching at Freedom last spring. With his aspirations towards receiving a full-time teaching position one day, he also aspires to turn Freedom's program around and help kids better advance their futures.

"Working with kids who have autism really gives you perspective," said Hall. "I've always wanted to just help people and I want to help our wrestlers use this sport as a vehicle to further their future and education."

Working with Karam for the last decade has given Hall his own perspective on the coaching realm, but he also knows that he'll instill his own style into the Freedom program to hopefully knock off his coaching friend one day.

"We're both big on shrugs and headlocks," said Hall of his similarities with Karam, "but I've always been a mat guy and we'll implement a lot of work on top."

"Obviously when you work with someone for 10 years you're going to take some ideas. It'll be interesting when we wrestle Becahi because I'm still good friends with those guys and wish them the best of luck but I know we need a new identity at Freedom and I'm very excited to be back there."

This time, 'Canes fall to PHS in waning seconds

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

As Parkland players cheered in joy following their victory over Liberty last Friday night, the Hurricanes stayed put in their postgame huddle.

It was a long message that head coach Dave Brown was echoing to his team following a 28-21 loss to put Liberty at 2-3 on the season.

It was the third consecutive loss for the 'Canes and for back-to-back weeks, they couldn't finish a game they could have won.

"It's the same as last week [against Whitehall], we had an opportunity to win the game and we didn't," said Brown. "It's the little things. It came down to two or three plays and we didn't make them."

The one play that Parkland did make was an eight-yard touchdown run by Rob Dvoracek with seven seconds left in the game to give Parkland the go-ahead score.

It was a play that needed to be convinced toward Trojans' head coach Jim Morgans, as he planned on kicking a field goal inside the 10 for the victory.

"We were just going to put the ball in the middle to make our kick easier," said Morgans, "but Rob came over and said 'Coach let's run this in. I'll get it in.'"

"So we decided to run a play for Rob and he came through."

Dvoracek came through with three TD runs inside the 10 to cap off an 81-yard performance to will his team back into relevance, as Parkland climbed their way back to 2-3 on the year.

Liberty, however, was bewildered with the fact that they blew a second half lead again, as they did against Whitehall, to see their night end in anguish again.

With the game tied at 21 with just under seven minutes left in the game, the 'Canes looked primed to take the lead as they marched down to the Parkland 18.

But an illegal block was called on the Hurricanes to push them back to the 35 and that was just the start of the final quarter downfall.

Quarterback Jimmy McCarthy then found Devon Jones streaking

Patriots, K-Kids: a key LVC battle

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Freedom's football team may have gotten a win over Dieruff last week, but whether the Patriots learned anything from their loss to Emmaus two weeks ago is still unknown.

The Patriots (3-2, 2-2) defeated the Huskies 49-0 last week to give them a little hop in their step. Winning is always a fine remedy after a tough loss, but Roeder knows that this week's test against Northampton (2-3, 1-3) will dictate the direction of both team's seasons.

"When you look at the LVC, we're in week six and every game is a must win right now," said Roeder. "I think Northampton is in the same situation as us. We both need this win to move our season forward. We're both trying to get a fresh start to the year, here in the second half of the season and it all starts Friday night."

Northampton knocked off a winless Allen squad 35-8 last week to give both teams their Allentown fix for one night. Now the battle in K-Kid territory this weekend will have some meaning for two teams that need wins to salvage any hopes for a playoff push.

"The first part of the season, you're trying to figure out who you are as a team," said Roeder. "Now it's about getting better at what you are, but that's a daily process in practice and then on Friday nights. We know that Northampton is a good team, that's disciplined. They need to win this game as much as we do."

Before pairing up with Allen last week, Northampton had lost three straight contests to Liberty. See Freedom on Page A11

Teams cling to playoff hopes

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It'll be a race to the finish in the Lehigh Valley Conference's East division for soccer as Liberty, Easton and Freedom are all separated by two games, but Bethlehem Catholic isn't worried about that as much as their playoff lives.

The Hawks (5-6-1, 2-5-1) had nearly all of last week off due to the torrential rains that drowned the area to push back contests against Whitehall and Parkland, but the Hawks got back on track during Saturday's 2-0 win at East Stroudsburg North. The victory was a much needed one, after the Hawks sat through all of last week without even being able to use their puddled field.

With six games left in the season head coach George Andriko approaches the final stretch with hopeful optimism regarding his team's chances of qualifying for districts.

"We need to win at least three or four more games," he said. "We just haven't been able to score much."

That new stretch of the season started on Monday against Emmaus, which saw Becahi drop a 2-1 overtime affair to the Hornets.

Becahi leads Freedom in suspended tennis match

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcaldonald@tnonline.com

Becahi's tennis team is holding on to a 3-2 lead over Freedom in a match that was suspended last week, but will be completed at a later date this month.

Angela Rice and Marielle McIntyre will resume their battle at number-one singles, with the possibility of a number-one doubles match to be played.

Rice won the first set, and McIntyre won the second. McIntyre is leading in the third, 2-1.

Julie Boylan won for the Patriots at number-two singles over Taylor

Kiel, 7-6 (7-2), 6-0.

Paige Gurski won for the Hawks at number-three singles over Valeria Ceron, 7-5, 7-5.

At number-two doubles, Freedom's Federica Maranzana and Tiffany Stanley defeated Allison Barcynski and Taylor Treadwell, 6-3, 6-1.

Becahi won at number-three and number-four doubles as Kelsey Karabasz and Nina Kopy defeated Dhanu Thiyagotratsan and Emily Liuzza, 6-0, 7-6 (7-2), and Rachel DiBenedetto and Julia Atiyeh defeated Jenna Lastres and Roshni DeSai, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

"It takes a lot to focus, and we lost that in the second set because we thought it would be easy [after winning the first set]," said Karabasz. "We were playing more aggressive and offensive in the first set, and we were playing more defensive in the second set."

Hawks coach, George Harmanos, gave Karabasz and Kopy advice in order to get the doubles pair back to where they were in the first set.

"I really trust Nina," Karabasz said, "and I knew we'd come out in the end."

Also last week, Becahi resumed its match against Central, defeating the Vikettes, 4-3.

Playoffs

The Hawks face a jam-packed calendar over the next two weeks with Dieruff slated for today and Liberty tomorrow.

With three league games next week and two makeup dates as well, Becahi will be under the gun, as well as playing a lot of action.

"We know that the next two weeks are going to be tough because we're basically playing all the time," he said. "The Liberty and Freedom games are going to be big for us. We lost to both of them and we're going to need to beat them to help our chances."

The Hurricanes (7-7, 7-4) and Patriots (7-5, 4-5) both have inched themselves closer to clinching district berths.

Liberty had won four in a row, including a 2-0 win over Emmaus (10-2, 8-1) to give the Hornets their first league loss of the season, until they fell to Nazareth 4-2 on Saturday.

Freedom knocked off Whitehall 2-1 on Saturday in double overtime to give them their first win in four tries. The Pates had lost three in a row to Parkland, Northampton and Nazareth.

FIELD HOCKEY
In field hockey action, Liberty (6-7, 5-4) and Freedom (4-6-1, 3-5-1) are both clinging to aspirations of districts.

The 'Canes are in the midst of a two-game slump, losing to Emmaus and Stroudsburg last week by a combined 8-0 score to push them below .500 again. They take on Nazareth, Northampton and Becahi this week.

Freedom needs to up the ante if they want a serious playoff push, as the Pates have lost three straight facing the final two week stretch of the year.

Bethlehem Catholic (0-9-1, 0-7-1) are still searching for their first win of the year. The Hawks lost to Emmaus 14-0 on Monday.

Tennis players from the USTA senior women's team proudly display their championship banner recently won at the Middle States sectional tournament held in Princeton, NJ. The team from the Lehigh Valley, winners of the East Penn District, beat the best teams from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. The 50-and-over women compete in doubles at the 3.5 USTA skill level and play out of the Northwood Racquet and Fitness Club in Palmer Township. The team will be flying to Indian Wells, California to compete with the other sectional winners for the National USTA Championship October 8-10 in their category. Just when you thought Freedom cheerleading couldn't get any more spectacular, the Patriots have upped their degree of difficulty for another season.

The Patriots went to a camp in Mechanicsburg this past July where they learned their competition routine.

Freedom captain, Jasmine Abreu, said, "I wasn't expecting the hard stuff they were making for us. This year, we're hitting our stunts better, even though they're more difficult. We're working together better."

Stunts include full team triple toe touches with back handsprings, half team standing tucks, full ups, and tic tocs.

"We have a lot more difficult stunts and full team tumbling," said Kaity Lipare, also a captain.

Some of the music in the Patriots' routine includes "Took the Night," "Soul Sister," and "Riding Solo."

Freedom's varsity spirit team is also captained by Lipare and Abreu.

"The girls get along really well. We're all like sisters, so it's easy," Lipare said. The spirit squad is also experiencing a higher degree of difficulty in their routines, which include a can opener, and another stunt in which the cheerleaders hit a bow and arrow, release it with a foot still in the air, and then turning to an arabesque.

The Freedom cheerleaders are coached by Alicia Zito.

CHEERLEADING FHS looks to step up this year

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcaldonald@tnonline.com

Becahi's cheerleaders' motto for the 2010-2011 season is "The closer you are, the stronger you are." "We mean that literally and figuratively," said the Hawks' new head coach, Brenda Michalska.

Michalska is taking over for Teri Bishop, after assisting for the past four years.

"It's something that Teri always used to say to the girls," Michalska said. "We have such strong leaders in the senior class, and they can show the underclassmen what it takes to be successful."

Senior captains include Ann Marie Tucker, Gabby Keeler, Erin Hoppe, and Courtney Foster.

Tucker said, "We're all working together a lot better this year, and our attitudes are a lot better."

With 20 varsity cheerleaders and ten junior varsity cheerleaders, Michalska and JV coach Jeanette Negri want to concentrate on keeping the traditions alive while bringing back some old ones.

The Hawks recently returned from a cheerleading camp this summer where the varsity squad won first place in the cheer division.

"I say that the cheer is most important because that's what we are. We're cheerleaders," said Michalska. "Out of 500 cheerleaders, our group of 20 was the best at doing our job."

In addition, the junior varsity squad won second place in the cheer division, third place in the dance, and the leadership award. Michalska explained that the leadership award was a result of the different squads at camp, voting on which team they would most want to be like.

"We have no weak link. We'll have eight leaders going out, but we have strong freshmen coming in," Michalska said.

Rounding out the Becahi cheerleading roster are: Jenna Huber, Rachel Pacala, Jaquelyn Perez, Kaitlyn Roginsky, Kelsey Corrado, Mary Kate Henry, Michelle Petro, Erika Toth, Brianna Roberts, Rachel Rosa, Haley Varju, Alexandra Wildman, Nina Yetter, Briciana Baughman, Lauren Posch, Lauren Rebovich, Alecia Callabero, Amanda Robinson, Natasha Tax, Elizabeth Weiss, Mary Cottoro, Gina Kokosky, Laura Nguyen, Emily Russo, Victoria Tesone, and Tara Wood.

Competition season will run from November through February.

"We have no big trips planned, but we'll probably go back to the Keystone State Games Cheerleading Championships

Jack Frost course a 'work of art'

By NICK HROMIAK
Special to the Press

Back in October 2006 I did a column on the newly built Jack Frost National Golf Course (named after the adjacent ski resort) in the Pocono's. At the time, the course was still growing-in. But today, the 18-hole course that was built to USGA specs is a work of art. Its fairways meander through mountain woodlands interspersed with rhododendron patches, pines, hardwoods, natural wetlands, tall fescue grasses and understory typical of the Pocono's. And it's not uncommon to see wildlife like the two deer that popped out of the woods and ran across the fairway, as I was about to hit a shot.

And despite the semi-drought we're experiencing, Jack Frost, when I played it two weeks ago, had lush green fairways, tees and greens.

Frost was the first course in the Pocono's to use LoMo blue grass for its fairways. It's a strain that needs little water and few cuttings. And when taking a divot, thick turf is extruded.

The Penn-4 bent grass greens were lightning quick and putts rolled too easily past the cups for someone like me who is used to playing lesser, slow greens. It took me 15 holes to acclimate to Frosts' tricky surfaces. A number of them have subtle breaks that fool even seasoned players. Some are two-tiered and many are sizable. But as I learned, you have to hit high, soft landing approach shots otherwise your ball will easily skip off if coming in low and hot.

Designed by Terrill A. LaGree, Frost is a 6,741 yard par 72 course from the black (Advanced) tees and a 7,256 yard par 74 from the Gold or Championship tees. There are five tees for most holes and a good many offer views and vistas of the mountains in the foreground.

You'll also encounter uphill, downhill and side hill fairways that average about 250 feet wide, which is about 50 more than many courses. There are dogleg rights, lefts and a few straight holes. Some of the tougher ones are the par 5 eighteenth that offers a blind second shot. Then there's the par 3 eleventh, the courses' signature hole, whereon the green is set some 60 feet below the tee box. Two ponds and a pretty waterfall frame this green.

Number nine is an uphill par 5 that is also a toughie. Its elevation change is about 100 feet from tee to green with bunkers framing the hole that has a false front and serious rollout.

Managed by Billy Casper Golf Co., regional manager Jason Lenhart said the land itself is owned by Blue Ridge Real Estate who also owns the ski resort.

Operating as a semi-private course, golfers can elect to become a Charter member that offers perpetual membership that can be willed or sold by the member, or, a Full Golf member that gives two years of dues for the price of one year. Both members' categories get advanced tees times, member events; member discounts and limited charging privileges.

Since the clubhouse is situated within a modular home-type structure, a permanent one will be built when membership reaches 100, said Lenhart. Same goes for a paved parking lot.

In addition, Frost has a driving range plus putting and chipping greens.

To get to Frost, take the Northeast Extension of the Turnpike and get off at the Pocono exit. From there, head East on Rte 940 and follow the signs. The entrance is on the same road as that for the ski area.

For more information, or to book a tee time for this Pocono jewel, call 866-268-5503 or check their website at www.jackfrost-national.com.

over the middle for an untouched score, but Jones dropped the ball.

McCarthy would be picked off by Dan Castillo two plays later at the goal line, as Castillo ran it back to Parkland's 40-yard line with 3:57 left.

Parkland then faced a 2nd-and-7 which saw Liberty's Anthony Orlando level Kurt Kaunas on a potential pass reception to set up a third and long, but Orlando was called for unsportsmanlike conduct after celebrating the hit over Kaunas to give the Trojans a first down at the Liberty 43.

"That play hurt us but it shouldn't have even come down to that," said Brown in reference to the unsportsmanlike penalty.

ty, Easton and Central Catholic. They produced a touchdown in each affair, while giving up 95 points during that three game stretch.

With their 35-point offensive resurgence against Allen last week to mark the most points they've scored since an opening weekend 35-0 shutout over Stroudsburg, Northamp-

"We got to play more disciplined and we have to make plays when we have a chance. We had a chance to take the lead on our drive before that and we didn't."

Dvoracek would take the game by storm following the fresh first down Parkland was given at Liberty's 43, galloping for runs of 13 and 12 yards before the Trojans wrestled their way inside the 10 for the final score.

"Losing used to be something unacceptable here," said Brown about the difficulty of falling to Parkland. "We're still trying to get better each week. Nothing is going to change."

"We just have to execute better and learn how to finish. We just haven't been able to work together as a team on the field."

It's part of the process of where we need to be, but until our kids learn and understand what it takes to win games, this could be a weekly occurrence we're struggling with."

Liberty took a quick 7-0 lead after the first play of the game when Mikey Harris rushed for an 80-yard score. Dvoracek countered with a six-yard TD scamper in the second quarter, which Liberty followed up with a 70-yard TD pass by McCarthy to Harris with 3:31 in the first half for a 14-7 lead.

Parkland tied the game at 14 just before halftime when Jarel Elder ran in a TD from six yards out.

McCarthy then added a 16-yard TD in the third quarter, but a pair of fourth quarter Dvoracek TD runs sealed Liberty's fate.

Next up for the Canes is a home game on Friday against Emmaus (4-1).

CROSS COUNTRY LHS girls add more wins

By KATIE MCDONALD

Liberty's girls cross country team added to its undefeated record last week, with 15-48 victories over Easton and Becahi, while Beca's girls cross country team posted its first win of the season with a 24-31 victory over Freedom.

Jess Cygan, Amy Darlington, Vrinda Jagota, Becky Tomlin, Liz Reynolds, and Taylor Valentin placed in the top ten for the Hurricanes. Becahi's Jenny Schadt took sixth place, and Freedom's Shana Peterson placed eighth.

Easton's Bernard England took first place for the boys, leading the Red Rovers to victories over both Liberty and Freedom.

Freedom's Josh Ehret and Nate Palmer finished 2nd and 3rd, respectively, and Liberty's Tommy Darlington came in 4th.

"Up until the last 1200 meters, we were together," said Palmer, referring to England and himself. "At 400-800 meters, we separated, and in the final 400, he coasted in. Josh was behind, but at the last 400, he caught up, and we finished at the exact same time."

Will Updegrove and Zach Martinez placed seventh and ninth, respectively, for the Hurricanes, and Becahi's Chris Solda came in 10th.

Both Liberty and Freedom defeated Becahi.

Celebrating Puerto Rican culture

By DOUGLAS GRAVES

Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem citizens of Puerto Rican descent joined a parade June 26 to celebrate their shared island heritage. It was a perfectly sunny and pleasant day for an outdoor celebration.

The parade began at 11 a.m. at the intersection of Hayes and Fourth streets, and included contingents from the Southside Little League, the Council of Spanish Speaking Organizations, the Puerto Rican Beneficial Society and a group of students representing Broughal MS.

Carlos Lopez, principal of the Dual Language Charter School, had a float in the parade.

Two motorcycle clubs brought the roar of big Harleys to the Southside as they cruised in the parade.

Grand Marshall Hector Rosado and parade queen Madeline Rodriguez officiated at the colorful annual event.

Led by a police honor guard, the parade made its way to City Hall, where officials raised a flag.

After the parade, many of the participants attended a festival, Borinquenfest, which was held between the old Union Station and the Hill-to-Hill Bridge. The festival is named after the "Borinque," or original people indigenous to Puerto Rico.

The Borinquenfest float was part of the parade. After the parade, musicians, food and craft vendors, and festival-goers all gathered between the old Union Station and the Hill-to-Hill Bridge for Borinquenfest.

PA STATE POLICE: Electronic citations arrive

Pennsylvania State Police are using computer technology to issue electronic traffic citations, a step that Commissioner Frank E. Pawlowski said makes troopers safer and more efficient.

Pawlowski said the system enhances officer safety by reducing the time troopers remain in exposed and potentially dangerous situations while issuing citations along roadways.

The new computer-generated traffic citations will be printed on legal-size thermal paper, which will help to eliminate any confusion that may have resulted from the handwritten, carbon copy forms used in the past.

Pawlowski noted that when a driver's license number and registration information are entered into a patrol vehicle's computer, state and national databases are automatically checked to determine whether outstanding warrants exist for the driver or whether the vehicle has been reported stolen. The driver's license and registration data from the records check can then be automatically inserted into the traffic citation form.

THIS WEEK IN
BETHLEHEM HISTORY
Oct. 6, 2010

St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran Church

By KAREN M. SAMUELS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

In the early 1890s, three fathers of young children decided to canvass their neighbors in the village of Hottlesville to see if there was interest in starting an Evangelical Lutheran Sunday school and church. In those days, people traveled by foot or horse-drawn wagon. A Sunday school in the neighborhood would be convenient for the community, located north of Bethlehem.

The village of Hottlesville sprang up in the mid-1800s, along the Nazareth Pike. By 1870, 200 people lived there. Around 1900 Bethlehem annexed the village.

The idea of "Sunday school" originated in England. Anglican evangelical Robert Raikes promoted Sunday schools in the late 18th century, to provide instruction to working adults and children on their only day off from work. Although the primary goal of these free schools was to teach religious doctrine, the secondary goal was to eliminate illiteracy. By the 1800s, Sunday schools had become popular in the United States.

There was a schoolhouse on Easton Avenue to teach academics to the children of Hottlesville, so the three men were primarily concerned about religious education. The federal census and an 1890 Bethlehem directory tell us more about these men.

George Wartman was a laborer who lived at the corner of Linden and Washington streets with his wife, Lizzie, and their three children. Thomas J. Deibert drove a horse and wagon for a living. He lived on North Center Street with his wife, Amanda, and their seven children. Reuben Jaxheimer was a machinist who, with his wife Mary and their seven children, lived on Elizabeth Avenue. Two of the Jaxheimer children would become distinguished ministers. Wartman, Deibert and Jaxheimer would serve on the first church council of St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran Church.

It turns out there was great interest in forming a Sunday school in Hottlesville, so on Oct. 17, 1896, 49 people met for the first Sunday School class. The group paid $3 monthly rent for the use of two front rooms in a building at 1409 Center St. A collection of $1.66 was gathered that day.

A charter was granted to St. Stephen's Church by Northampton County Court on Oct. 4, 1897. In 1903, St. Stephen's, Friedensville and East Salisbury churches constituted a parish. A lot was purchased in April 1897 and construction began on a church at the northeast corner of Center and Hillmond streets. The cornerstone was laid May 27, 1897, with the Rev. S. A. Repass as the speaker. Repass was then president of Muhlenberg College. The church was completed and fully occupied by Oct. 17, 1897. The dedication of the church took place Oct. 6, 1907.

By 1912, the membership was outgrowing the small church building, so the congregation purchased a lot for $2,000 at the corner of Washington Avenue and Center Street. In 1925, a parsonage was erected there at a cost of $13,000. The congregation planned to build a new church at the same location. The city had other plans, however. Washington Avenue was widened in the 1920s for trolley tracks and not enough space was left for a new church. In 1963, the group purchased another lot — at the corner of Main Street and Washington Avenue — from the Fairview Cemetery Association. In 1964, a new church was completed, which is still in use today.

The congregation approved the sale of the parsonage and surrounding property at 1547 Center St., the site of the original building. The property was sold to Joseph DiGiacomo Jr. for $225,000.

In 1970, the St. Stephen's preschool program was the first of its kind in Bethlehem. In the 1970s, the concept of preschool was still considered experimental. Head Start was begun in 1965 in Easton as a pilot program. Doris Pierog and Betty Jane Sigley established the successful program with an enrollment of 22 students. After Sigley's retirement in 1993, Maria Bevan assumed the duties as preschool director and continues in that capacity today.

Editor's note: Karen Samuels will be on vacation next week so there will be no THIS WEEK IN BETHLEHEM HISTORY column.

St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran Church evolved from a Sunday school established in 1897.

Antiques expert to appear Sunday

HELLERTOWN

By JOSH POPICHAK
jpopichak@ttonline.com

Antiques appraiser Harry Rinker, a nationally-recognized expert on collectibles, credits his Hellertown upbringing during the 1940s and 1950s with instilling in him of love of things representative of the past.

"If you grow up in Pennsylvania Dutch country, there's two phrases that haunt you," Rinker says. "'It's too good to throw out' and 'You never know if you'll need it.'"

Rinker, who worked at Lost River Caverns as a teenager, will appear at the Saucon Valley Farmers' Market this Sunday, where he will host an antiques and collectibles visual appraisal clinic from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Local residents who are curious to know more about a family heirloom or a piece of memorabilia are encouraged to bring it to the market, where they can purchase a ticket to have Rinker appraise it.

The cost per ticket — $5 — is much less than someone would pay to have an item professionally appraised, Rinker explained, and the information to be had is often priceless.

That's because if someone wants to sell an item, Rinker can usually recommend a reputable dealer or business specializing in whatever type of item they have.

Even furniture can be appraised, although area residents should realize that it's not necessary to haul an armoire or a dining room suite to the clinic.

Nationally-recognized antiques and collectibles appraiser and expert Harry Rinker will host a visual appraisal clinic at the Saucon Valley Farmers' Market Oct. 10. The clinic will feature Rinker — a Hellertown native — appraising items from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tickets for the appraisal of individual items are required. The farmers' market is held weekly in Water Street Park, Water Street, Hellertown. For more information, visit www.svfarmersmarket.org.

"A lot of people are reluctant to bring big things, but we can do (appraisals) from a photograph," Rinker stated.

Participants should also realize that items don't have to be extremely old to have value, he said.

For example, at last month's Warren County Antiques Festival in Phillipsburg, N.J., an attendee brought in several 1950s-era dolls in their original packaging, which turned out to be worth hundreds of dollars, Rinker said.

Locally, he tends to see lots of family heirlooms, including paintings and prints, but little in the way of Pennsylvania German folk art, he added.

And it's always a homecoming of sorts when he returns to Hellertown, which he ultimately left to attend Lehigh University, where he majored in history.

That was before he worked for Historic Bethlehem, became the first director of Easton's Hugh Moore Park, and founded his own company, Rinker Enterprises, which today is based in his adopted home state of Connecticut.

Saucon Valley Farmers' Market chairperson Shelley Goldberg says that Rinker's appearances at the market the past several years have been a special occasion, not only for those who've had items appraised, but also for visitors who've been entertained by watching him share his knowledge and expertise.

"Harry gives each person individual attention with their antique...and creates a personal relationship with each patron," she said. "I enjoy seeing people walk away finding out they truly have a valuable piece of history which they were always curious about but never really knew."

"I think everybody has something in the house that's come down through the family that they're curious about," Rinker observed.

For those who may have such an item, and whose curiosity has gotten the better of them, more information about Rinker is available online at www.harryrinker.com.

Note: The following are statements from candidates in the 15th U.S. congressional district race.

DENT: Callahan's recruiter bolts Washington

Today we bid farewell to the Washington insider who first recruited John Callahan to run for Congress — White House Chief of Staff Rahm Emanuel, who is resigning to run for mayor of Chicago.

In 2006, when then-Congressman Emanuel was the chief recruiter for Washington Congressional Democrats, he contacted Mayor Callahan. The exchange was reported as follows in a 2007 book written by a Chicago Tribune reporter who had exclusive access to Emanuel: "Are you tired of being ****ing mayor yet?" Emanuel asked without a preface. Callahan, who had no problem with salty language, was amused, and he responded in kind. "It's better than being a ****ing congressman," he said," writes Naftali Bendavid in "The Thumpin'," Double-day, 2007, p. 20.

When Callahan announced his run for Congress in 2009 (while still running for re-election as mayor), he claimed to the Express-Times newspaper in July of that year that his comment was just a joke. At long last, here's the punch line — Emanuel is leaving Washington to run for mayor of his hometown. "Next year Rahm and John can finally become colleagues — as fellow mayors," said Dent.

CALLAHAN: Dent puts tax giveaways ahead of job creation and deficit reduction

John Callahan claims that Congressman Dent wants to give millionaires and billionaires a $700 billion tax handout, after having voted to raise debt by $3 trillion and opposing middle class tax cuts. This comes after Dent voted against the largest middle class tax cut in history in 2009 in the Recovery Act. Callahan stated, "We should be using these funds to pay down the deficit and help small businesses create jobs, but Congressman Dent wants to put another $700 billion on the country's charge card for our kids and grandkids to pay off in the future."

DENT: Callahan backs out of debate

John Callahan backed out of an Oct. 18 debate with Congressman Dent to be hosted by the Nazareth/Bath Area, Whitehall Area and Slate Belt chambers of commerce. It is clear Callahan is hiding from his support for job-killing policies in Washington, as well as his own sub-par performance in a previous debate, where he stumbled while explaining his "simple jobs plan," Dent said.

CALLAHAN: Previous commitments prevent Oct. 18 appearance

According to Mayor John Callahan's campaign office, Callahan has already accepted the Lehigh Valley Chamber of Commerce debate, which is co-sponsored by the Morning Call, and had a scheduling conflict on Oct. 18. Congressman Dent previously declined to debate at Northampton Community College on Oct. 19 and DeSales University on Oct. 21. If the Nazareth, Whitehall and Slate Belt chambers find a date that works, Callahan will consider it, but he said he owes it to Northampton Community College and DeSales University to find a time that works for them first, since they asked first. Callahan's office hopes that Congressman Dent changes his mind and accepts all three of these debates, rather than picking and choosing which voters he thinks it's important to talk to.

DENT: NFIB, Benol back Dent

The National Federation of Independent Businesses gave their endorsement to Charlie Dent, citing his strong and continued support for policies that help small businesses put people to work, and his opposition to Washington legislation that slows economic growth.

"I'm honored to receive the support of NFIB because they know what small businesses need to create jobs — and they know I will always support policies that help foster economic growth," said Congressman Dent. "Meanwhile, John Callahan knows he can't answer for the irresponsible, job-killing Washington agenda he supports, and a political career marked by higher taxes and more government spending. Callahan's policies are the opposite of what job-creators need."

Former Republican candidate for Congress Mat Benol has endorsed Dent for Congress in the general election, citing Congressman Dent's commitment to restoring prosperity through fiscal responsibility and limited government. Benol ran in the Republican primary this past spring.

CALLAHAN: City is in the black

Mayor John Callahan announced that monthly financial analytics showed that the City of Bethlehem was in the black as of Aug. 31. At the end of August, Bethlehem had a surplus of $2,320,000, and the city has been in the black every month in 2010. Dennis Reichard, City Business Administrator, said, "Through every month of 2010, the City has operated in the black and I remain confident that we will finish 2010 in the black."

Mayor Callahan stated, "I'm proud of our record of controlling the budget, cutting costs and delivering high quality services to the residents of Bethlehem." Earlier this year, due to lower-than-expected revenues, Mayor Callahan announced a hiring freeze and challenged his department heads to cut a million dollars in spending through the rest of the year.

SANDS: Blast furnaces pink this month

Sands Casino Resort Bethlehem announced that it has joined with CBS 3/The CW Philly and the Philadelphia affiliate of Susan G. Komen for the Cure in the "Lights for the Cure" campaign.

The promotion is designed to raise awareness about breast cancer. More than 100 buildings and landmarks in the Philadelphia area, the Lehigh Valley, New Jersey and Delaware are turning the skyline pink for the ninth year in a row, in an effort to encourage women to schedule a mammogram.

The lights went pink Oct. 1 at sunset and most will remain lit throughout the month.

Why newspapers will still be around tomorrow

The way that people consume information is changing rapidly, and I hear frequently that the death of newspapers is imminent. I think that people feel this way because they aren't regular newspaper readers or they just don't think that other people read newspapers as much as they did 10 years ago. If they're referring to the printed newspaper, they are usually correct.

Dean Ridings Guest columnist

We've seen printed newspaper circulations decline for more than 10 years. However, many of us in the industry are, slowly but surely, realizing that we're not in the printed paper business, but in the information business. This transformation of our attitude about print has not been easy. Many of us like our printed paper traditions, and many readers are very loyal.

Printed newspapers often sell out after elections, weather disasters and other significant events. People still buy copies of the newspaper when their children make the honor roll or their team has a win, and for many, the newspaper obituary is the defining memorial for a loved one. Printed newspapers are one of the few media where people actually look forward to the advertising, and research indicates that ads are a desired part of the experience.

The ritual of reading a Sunday paper continues to be strong, and many community newspapers have experienced circulation stability and even growth in the past decade. But there is no question that the circulation of the daily print newspaper is down and still declining. The value of instant information on the Internet is readily apparent.

While many of my friends still value their printed newspapers, their grown children often get their news via the Internet, and increasingly, on their cell phones. The good news for people who like the information they get from newspapers and want to see it continue is that in most American markets the number one source for local information is the newspaper's website. A recent comScore survey ranked local newspaper websites first among all sources for trustworthiness, credibility and most informative place to find local content of all types, including news, information, entertainment and sports.

Newspaper websites have the devoted readership that many advertisers covet. While newspapers are still figuring out the best formula for monetizing their new products in the changing world of media consumption, the fact that more people than ever are reading their combined products will ultimately assure their longevity.

The way that people get their information is changing, but newspapers usually have more reporters than all other organizations combined in almost every community, and no one covers local news better. Newspapers will continue to report the news that is relevant to their communities. We can be assured of continued change, but we can also expect that newspapers will be around tomorrow, providing local information better than everyone else in a multitude of options.

Watershed group focuses on protecting marsh

By JOSH POPICHAK
jpopichak@tnonline.com

A little-known relic from an earlier geological era, the Hellertown Marsh is about to receive some recognition, thanks to a group of local environmentalists.

In the wake of a recent Lehigh University study which determined the marsh to be approximately 3,500 years old, members of the Saucon Creek Watershed Association are hoping to install educational signage near it, the group's president Keri Maxfield told members of Hellertown Borough Council earlier this year.

The signs, Maxfield explained, were originally made four or five years ago and were intended to be installed as part of a more ambitious project.

That project, which never came to fruition, called for constructing an observation deck overlooking the marsh and using it "as a living classroom," she said.

Rather than continuing to store them, "We'd like to see if we can partner with the borough to find a place for these signs to be put up," she added.

To help borough staff with the signs' installation, watershed association members recently photographed specific points along a stretch of the Saucon Rail Trail, which is being built along a defunct SEPTA rail line that extends south from Bethlehem into Hellertown and Lower Saucon Township.

The rail trail will be a recreational conduit alongside the marsh when completed, and the spots along it are locations "where we thought it might be appropriate to put the signs," Maxfield explained.

The signs are designed to be graffiti-resistant and will be placed away from the proposed route of a sewer line extension the Lower Saucon Authority is currently seeking permission to build, she added.

Council members expressed enthusiasm for the signs project but indicated that they would like for them to be installed in conjunction with the Saucon Rail Trail's completion.

Councilwoman Gail Nolf also encouraged Maxfield and other volunteers from the watershed association to work on removing invasive plant species, such as Japanese knotweed, from amid dense undergrowth near the edges of the marsh, which Maxfield also asked council's permission to do.

The unchecked growth of invasive species could threaten the marsh's fragile ecosystem, which is home to rare flora and fauna, Maxfield said.

"We're going to be careful," she assured council members, who See MARSH on Page A16

Swain welcomes news staff

The Swain School, 1100 S. 24th St., Allentown, has announced the hiring of additional staff. The new faculty members are Erica Coverley and Kylie Miller, fifth grade; Karla Gaudler, first grade; Christine Parente, Lower School Spanish; and Megan Kocon, middle school math.

In addition to their teaching duties, Parente is serving as the assistant soccer coach and Kocon is coaching the field hockey team. Miller will coach the girls basketball team.

Swain is a co-educational, independent school offering a college preparatory education of exceptional quality to 290 students who come from 22 area school districts. Small class sizes, an integrated curriculum, state-of-the-art technology resources and a thorough program of character education, arts, science and athletics are features of the school, which was founded in 1929. The school sits on a 20-acre wooded site in Salisbury Township.

Science Fest set for Oct. 17

Accepting leadership roles

Senior Ronald Armstead III fastens his pin to his student ID.

Dan and Diane Kendra give a motivational speech at the assembly, drawing from Dan Kendra's rise and fall in professional football. "God calls you to be faithful," Kendra told students. "He doesn't call you to be successful."

Each Becahi senior received a pin designating his/her class graduation year, which signified their individual commitment.

On Sept. 14, the 180-member senior class at Bethlehem Catholic HS was honored through their acceptance of school leadership roles during the school's first annual "Senior Rite of Passage" ceremony. Recently-appointed principal John Petruzzelli addressed the assembly, calling it a new tradition. Former NFL quarterback Dan Kendra and his wife, Diane, spoke to the students, urging them to discover the power of faith.

unanimously approved a motion to allow the removal of the plants and the placement of the signs at a later date.

Nolf asked Maxfield to report back to council with progress updates from time to time, and said she hopes to visit the marsh herself, to get an up-close look at the work being done.

The marsh, which is located on the eastern side of the Saucon River, is colloquially referred to as "the swamp" by many long-time borough residents and has been increasingly recognized as an environmental treasure, thanks to its pristine preservation status and its proximity to Hellertown's densely-populated center.

Fair trade film set for Oct. 8

A documentary film, "Threads of Hope," will be screened at 7 p.m. Oct. 8 in the Kirk Center at First Presbyterian Church, 2344 Center St.

"Threads of Hope" centers on the plight of underclass women living in the slums of Kolkata, India, and the fair trade organization, ConneXions. ConneXions provides adequate wages and working environments where women are given recycled saris, the traditional garment of the area, to create new textiles including purses, bags, baby slings and quilts.

The Ferasha Films production is the work of Allentown native and Drexel University honor student Amanda Ibrahim. The 30-minute documentary is paired with a photo art gallery of images and materials collected during Ibrahim's stay in Kolkata. ConneXions will be available for purchase. Refreshments will be provided. There is an after-party featuring live music by BEC Recordings artist Philip LaRue. LaRue's music has been featured on television shows such as "One Tree Hill" and "Ghost Whisperer."

The event is being held in partnership with non-profit organization Servants to Asia's Urban Poor. All proceeds will be donated to Servants to Asia's Urban Poor and ConneXions. Funding for the event has been provided in part by a grant from DoSomething.org, Unity Marketing and by friends and supporters through KickStarter.com, a website where supporters can pledge monetary donations.

Candidate forum set for Oct. 13

The League of Women Voters of Northampton County is sponsoring a Candidates Forum for the 136th State Legislative District Oct. 13 at 7 p.m. in the Northampton County Government Center, 669 Washington St., Easton.

Rep. Robert Freeman, a Democrat, has more than 20 years' experience serving in the House and is chairman of the Local Government standing committee. His opponent, Republican challenger Ron Shegda, says he believes voters in the district want to see school taxes eliminated, and that doing so would be his mission in Harrisburg.

The two candidates met in 2008, at a forum also sponsored by the League.

The 136th legislative district includes the City of Easton; the boroughs of Freemansburg, Glendon, Hellertown and Wilson; Bethlehem wards 3 and 4; and portions of Lower Saucon and Williams townships.

Hear Dave Brady
I invite you to hear Evangelist David Brady in our coming October 13-17 revival services at 7:30 p.m. weeknights; and at 10:45 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. on Sunday.

Evangelist Brady's enthusiastic and anointed preaching blessed many in previous revival meetings. He effectively communicates the Gospel through a lively and often humorous preaching style as he paces the platform and proclaims the eternal truths of God's Word.

Brady grew up in a dysfunctional and alcoholic home. By the age of 15 he was on the streets using drugs and alcohol, but nothing satisfied! One night, he was drinking with his friends in the woods. He recalls, "The more that I drank, the more empty I felt. I began smashing beer bottles against the trees yelling 'There has to be more to life than this!'" As he returned home, he heard the Sunday morning bells of a church compelling him to come. There, at the age of 18, he heard the message of salvation and came to Christ. The Lord set him free from drugs and alcohol and called him into the ministry. For the past 31 years, he has been preaching and helping free others from the bondage of sin and destructive habits.

I urge you to come and bring those who need to be set free from sin, drugs, etc. to these meetings at Northampton Assembly of God, 3449 Cherryville Rd, Northampton. These revival services will also feature inspiring congregational singing of Gospel hymns and choruses, joyful praise, life-changing altar services, and the glory of the awesome presence of our Savior Jesus Christ!

'Fanfares' for the Allentown Symphony 60 years of bringing music to the Valley

Classical Views

By Diane Wittry

A lot can happen in 60 years. People are born, grow old and die often in a shorter period of time. A symphony orchestra, like a person, has a life of its own.

It springs from the minds of civic-minded individuals who have a passion for classical music. At the beginning, they gather in a living room, driven solely by the intense desire to do something great for a community by sharing this love of music.

A board of directors is formed and they spend endless hours raising money, inviting people to attend concerts, preparing programs, and doing anything and everything necessary to make the performance a success. Without these founders and their incredible dedication, there would be no Allentown Symphony Orchestra.

With our 60th concert season, I wanted to pay tribute to some of these wonderful people and the families who have worked so hard to keep the Allentown Symphony Orchestra alive and thriving. I wanted to do something that would be lasting and meaningful to express our gratitude and appreciation.

With that, we decided to mount the "Fanfares" project. Each concert of our 60th Season Anniversary will include a brand-new fanfare written by a local composer in the Lehigh Valley.

Such renowned composers as Paul Salerni from Lehigh University, Larry Lipkis from Moravian College, Doug Ovens from Muhlenberg College, John Metcalf from Kutztown University, and Steve Reisteter, a long-time orchestra member, have all agreed to write a new composition for us this season.

Each of these fanfares will be dedicated to an individual or family in our history that did exceptional things to keep us going throughout the last 60 years. The honorees are a surprise (they don't even know yet) and you won't be able to find out who they are unless you attend each of the concerts where they will be announced before the fanfare is performed.

Each honoree will receive an autographed copy of the score to keep forever. I personally think that this is much better than a trophy or a plaque because their dedication and passion will live on in this music every time the fanfare piece is performed.

Someone wrote a fanfare for me once (I have it framed and hanging in the entry way at my house) and it still makes me smile and glow inside every time I think of it. It is a very special way of saying "thanks!"

Along with the "Fanfares" project, I wanted each concert to also remind us of events and trends in our history. The opening concert pays tribute to our tradition of featuring really stellar guest artists. For the Oct. 16 opening gala in Symphony Hall, we will feature the great pianist Andre Watts.

Watts started his career by winning a student concerto competition to solo with the Philadelphia Orchestra at the age of 9. By the time he was 16, he was performing with the New York Philharmonic, and since then, his career has never stopped. I am sure that his performance of Rachmaninoff's dynamic Piano Concerto No. 2 will be one of the highlights of our 60th season.

While looking for pieces to pair up with Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto, I immediately thought of Mussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition." This dramatic piece reminds me of all the snapshot pictures of our past; all the memories, and all the wonderful people involved with the Allentown Symphony over the years. Perhaps you will share some of these memories as we perform this piece.

To start out the concert, I felt that lots of brass would be appropriate. My favorite brassy concert opener is the famous "Festive Overture" by Dmitri Shostakovich. Who can resist those brilliant trumpet fanfares and this driving, dashing music?

There will be a dinner before the opening concert at the newly-opened Cosmopolitan restaurant across the street from Symphony Hall, 23 N. Sixth St., Allentown.

The arts boom in fall benefit season

By TINA CANTELMI BRADFORD
Special to The Press

The visual and performing arts figure prominently in the fall gala line-up with two of the season's most artful events: Zoellner Arts Center's Annual Benefit Gala with world renowned cellist Yo-Yo Ma, 8 p.m. Oct. 22, and the ever-popular Cocktails & Collecting Reception to benefit Allentown Art Museum, 6-9 p.m. Nov. 6, at Olympus headquarters, Stabler Corporate Center, Center Valley.

Zoellner's big gala evening: It's been 13 years since Zoellner Arts Center bowed on the Lehigh Valley performing arts scene and the tradition of bringing the biggest names for its annual benefit concert gala continues.

This year is no exception with cellist Yo-Yo Ma to perform, and for guests with a ticket to the Gala Evening, a cocktail reception, elegant dinner, preferred concert seating and post-performance dessert reception.

Yo-Yo Ma's unrivaled musical virtuosity and personal charisma have earned him 16 Grammy Awards and scores of other honors and awards. He will be accompanied by the imaginative and versatile pianist Kathryn Stott.

Funds raised at Gala 2010 support the arts at Lehigh by bridging the gap between ticket revenues and the costs of presenting outstanding artists, community outreach and educational programs.

Zoellner Gala committee members include chairman Oldrich Foucek III, with Terri Bartholomew, Kathy N. Calabrese, Susan Gumz, Pam Kennedy, Kirk M. Kozero, Sandra McClaskie, Brenda McGlade, Jamie P. Musselman, Eugenio Orona, Christine H. Perrucci, Penny Spugnardi, Alex

Tamerler and Ilene Wood.

For sponsorship information and Gala Evening tickets, contact Maureen Connolley, Director of Development at Zoellner Arts Center, 610-758-6172.

Go for a cocktail, collect fine art: For art's sake, the Allentown Art Museum is once again hosting its highly popular Cocktails & Collecting benefit this year 6-9 p.m. Nov. 6 at Olympus.

Guests will dine on celebrity-themed cuisine with a full open bar and chance to meet regional curators, artists and art dealers. Art for sale includes museum-selected artists spanning multiple periods, mediums and styles, including paintings, sculpture, photography, glass art, ceramics and artisan jewelry.

More than 20 fine artists and galleries will participate including: Ambre Studio, Artfully Elegant, Sandra Corpora, Vicki DaSilva, William Dexter, Renzo Faggioli, Adriano Farinella, Ingrid Heil (Ingridable Design), Will Hübscher, John Isaac, Barbara Koze-

Garden for color

GROWING GREEN

L.C. Cooperative Extension
LehighExt@psu.edu

Are you disappointed that fall is here and the brilliant flower colors of summer are beginning to fade?

Traditional chrysanthemums offer a wide array of colors, size and flower forms. They can be grown as annuals or perennials and blend well with their neighboring plants.

For gardeners looking for something a little more permanent, here are a few plants that have fall interest that you don't have to plant from year to year:

Ilex verticillata, winterberry holly, is a deciduous tree that grows to 6-15 feet tall. It has small, bright red berries in dense clusters on female plants in fall; berries persist into winter.

Helianthus angustifolius, swamp sunflower, is a native perennial that reaches six to eight feet. It is a profuse bloomer from late summer through fall. Flowers are yellow and two to three inches across.

Muhlenbergia capillaris, pink muhly grass, is a sun-loving ornamental grass with airy inflorescence often colored pink, purplish-red or purplish-gray. This is a favorite because it adds color and texture to the garden.

Callicarpa americana, American beauty berry, is a deciduous shrub that has white to pink flowers in the summer, but is most desirable for the clusters of glossy purple berries in fall.

Boltonia asteroides (false aster), Erigeron hybrids (flea-bane), and aster species are all aster-like flowers that bloom in the fall. All of these plants prefer full sun or partial shade.

Agastache foeniculum, anise hyssop, as the name implies, has leaves that smell like anise or licorice. The leaves have medicinal and culinary uses.

Liatis spicata, blazing star, is a plant that is produced from an underground corm. Site this plant in full sun or partial shade where it will get up to three feet tall and produce long spikes of rose, lavender or white flowers.

Check out the colors of fall now to see what you really like and add a bit of fall color to your backyard garden.

For answers to your garden questions, call the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension Office, 610-391-9840, or Northampton County Cooperative Extension Office, 610-746-1970, and ask to speak with a Master Gardener. Volunteers staff phone lines several days a week, Monday - Friday.

How much do we need to be happy?

While I was interviewing a pastor about a financial course at his church, he happened to mention as an aside that he and his wife just bought a home.

I have to tell you that buying a home now in southwest Florida is a bit like putting a coin in one of those jackpot machines and getting a huge return for your money.

The bargains are almost unbelievable.

For those of us who already own homes here in Paradise, it's a sad story. We have to watch the value of our homes plummet like a crazy bungee jumper free-falling off a bridge.

While it's a terrible time to sell a home, it's a terrific time to buy one. Those lucky enough to be in that position are snatching up luxury properties for a mere fraction of their value.

I've seen what were once million dollar waterfront homes selling for around $200,000. And there are some entry-level homes, complete with pools that are bank foreclosures, selling for $30,000 to $40,000.

"There are so many big, beautiful homes out there. It's tempting to buy one of them," admitted the pastor.

Instead of snatching up one of those bargain priced luxury homes, he and his wife bought a modest home.

I asked him why he bypassed those gorgeous new models there for the taking.

"Sure, we could buy a big home," he said. "But then we're committed to years of higher taxes, higher insurance and higher maintenance bills."

He then said something that has resonated with me ever since: "People always want bigger homes and more of everything. How much is enough?"

Indeed, how much is enough?

That question brings to mind an interview I did a while back with a man who said he has to work seven days a week because, no matter what they have, it isn't enough. His wife needs more.

After he worked to afford a new house for his family, they had to furnish it. The list of things they "need" goes on and on, he said. Since they live in the suburbs, they also need another car for their teenager to drive.

Meanwhile, he had a stress-induced heart attack and is still working seven days a week to pay for their things. While he wishes he had more time to spend with his family, that's impossible, he said, because there are always so many bills to pay.

How much stuff is enough?

How much is enough to make you happy?

It's true that some wise souls have acquired the gift of being content with what they have, regardless of how much or how little that is. But even some who claim they are content have occasional relapses.

When we truthfully analyze how we spend money,

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik
news@rl.comcast.net

most of us will find there is room for improvement.

Last night my husband and I had a conversation about our entertainment budget. Ask me how much we spend on entertainment and I will say, "Next to nothing. Everything we like to do is free - kayaking, biking, swimming, and dancing. We live an active lifestyle for very little money."

That's my version of the truth. But when my husband pointed out how many times our social events involve eating out, I had to re-evaluate my thinking.

We belong to a kayak club, a boat club and a dance group. In addition, I belong to an exercise group and a shell club. All of these groups are made up of people with whom we enjoy socializing. But I was surprised to think about how much of this socializing involves getting together for lunch or dinner.

I love to cook and I often invite people in for dinner. Or, we get together and play games or cards. But the clubs we enjoy so much habitually plan social events that involve eating out.

While we're having a wonderful time in life, eating out that many times is making our wallets slimmer and our waistlines thicker.

Even though I don't like to decline social invitations, I know I have to do it by reminding myself of the all-important question: How much is enough?

Ever since my conversations with that minister, I am reevaluating my spending habits. While I've always been frugal and don't get caught up in the credit card trap, I find I buy even less when I remember the minister's burning question: how much is enough?

The other day I found a blouse on sale and was ready to buy it because I "need" it to go with my brown slacks. But then I remembered the minister's admonishment that we all need to make better use of our money to help those who can't even afford food.

I decided the minister is right. The food bank needs my donations more than I need another blouse.

Regardless of our good intentions, it's easier than we think to get sucked into abandoning a simple, inexpensive lifestyle.

But it's illuminating to keep asking ourselves revealing questions: How much is enough?

How much do we really need to be happy?

And, do we find that happiness in things or in people we love?

How we answer those questions defines who we are and how content we are with our life.

Lehigh Valley native chosen as new Via executive director

Via of the Lehigh Valley has announced that Mary Joy Kaiser-Reinartz has been appointed its new executive director-president.

"With a long and dedicated history of serving our community, Via of the Lehigh Valley required a combination of vision, compassion and management expertise in its leader," said Eugene Lennon, Via of the Lehigh Valley's board president.

"I was drawn to Via of the Lehigh Valley because of their commitment to children and adults, lasting community involvement, and for the opportunity to help grow an organization that has served the Lehigh Valley for more than 56 years," said Kaiser-Reinartz, a Lehigh Valley native.

Kaiser-Reinartz joins Via of the Lehigh Valley with a 30-year background in human services and non-profit administration. Most recently, she served as vice president of Horizon House, Inc., a resource to communities in southeastern Pennsylvania and Delaware for adults with mental health or intellectual disabilities and/or homelessness.

Kaiser-Reinartz was presented with the Pennsylvania Association of Rehabilitation Facilities (PARF) 2010 Rehabilitation Leadership Award at the 2010 PARF Annual Conference in State College.

Kaiser-Reinartz received

Mary Joy Kaiser-Reinartz

a BA in Speech, Magna Cum Laude, from Temple University and is an MBA graduate student at DeSales University.

Eric and Vicki Doney at JCC Anti-'Social' goes viral

By JERRY DUCKETT
Special to The Press

Classical-jazz pianist and record producer Eric Doney and his wife, Vicki, make a rare Allentown appearance at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 7 at the Allentown Jewish Community Center, 22nd and Tilghman streets.

Doney, a Pen Argyl High School graduate, began studying the classics in first grade, and gave his first public appearance at age 7.

Doney's Pocono Mountains-based Pacific Street Records has produced and released more than 20 CDs, including those for jazz artists Phil Woods, John Coates and Boborough.

Recently, Doney returned from Tahiti, where he produced "The Tahiti Sessions-Sail Away" for friend, vocalist Chris Bennett.

"I have produced three albums for her in the past. One day in July she called from her home in L.A. and asked if I wanted to do a recording in Tahiti, and I said, 'Yes.'

"A week later, I was there. We did the main tracks in Tahiti at this beautiful mountaintop studio and then came home where I hired a string section. By the time we were through, we had 16 people on the recording."

"After that was finished I went to France the last two weeks in August and worked on another album before returning on Labor Day in time for the Celebration of the Arts in Delaware Water Gap.

"I have worked quite a bit with Bennett. We toured Japan and we play regularly in Berlin, Germany, at the A-Trane jazz club. We are going back there in November."

Doney's appearance at the JCC with his wife includes songs from the days when they lived in California. It was a special time for them.

They met at the 1984 Summer Olympics, where they performed. Eric Doney was one of 84 pianists playing George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" on grand pianos.

"Vicki was a stand-in for Diana Ross, who cancelled a week before, and sang 'Reach Out and Touch Somebody's Hand' to an audience of two and one-half billion," Doney said.

The co-founder of Facebook (FB), the world's most successful social media website is, if the film, "The Social Network," is to be believed, anti-social.

It all started in fall 2003, according to "Social Network," based on the book, "The Accidental Billionaires: The Founding of Facebook, A Tale of Sex, Money, Genius and Betrayal" (2009) by Ben Mezrich, when Harvard University student Mark Zuckerberg (played with resolute inward focus by Jesse Eisenberg) was jilted by his girlfriend, Erica (Rooney Mara).

Hours and a couple of Heinekens later, Zuckerberg, blogged disparagingly about Erica and devised Facemash, where students could click favorites among pairs of online photographs of Harvard co-eds.

"The Social Network" is a fascinating, film studies seminar worthy and exuberantly ironic look behind society's mirror du jour.

"We lived on the farm. We lived in the city. Now we're going to live on the internet," crows Sean Parker (Justin Timberlake, brilliant as always), Napster founder who early on recognized financial potential in the innovative FB.

As Parker rounded up the venture capitalists, lawsuits descended on Zuckerberg. Fellow Harvard students and twin brothers, Tyler and Cameron Winklevoss (Josh Pence and Armie Hammer, respectively, played to bland perfection), claimed their idea was stolen. Co-founder, Eduardo Saverin (played with intense certitude by Andrew Garfield) said he was squeezed out of the fledgling firm.

Foreigner's hits to hit the Sands

By RICHARD GENSIAK
Special to The Press

As Foreigner's founder-guitarist Mick Jones recalls in a statement on the rock band's web site: "Back when we started the band, I was at a crossroads in my life, whether I was going to carry on in music or get a real job. So 30 years later, I think I made the right decision by following my true passion, which is making music."

The passion of Jones will be on full display when Foreigner presents their catalog live at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 13 at the Sands Casino Resort Bethlehem for "Musik at the Sands" to benefit the new ArtsQuest Center to open in May at SteelStacks at the former Bethlehem Steel plant on Bethlehem's south side.

Like many of the 1970's-'80's bands still in existence that straddle the camps of classic rock and Top 40, Foreigner is touring behind a new three-disc set, "Can't Slow Down," a greatest hits disc, live DVD and, for the first time in 18 years, an album of new songs, including two in the adult contemporary genre, "When It Comes to Love" and "In Pieces."

The title track has given Foreigner its highest profile yet. "Can't Slow Down" was written as a tribute to NASCAR and catapulted the band into playing to 100,000-plus throngs at race tracks across the nation.

Rest assured though, the heyday hits will be the calling card for the Sands' concert. Two notable include "Hot Blooded," which many of a certain age might remember from an episode of "WKRP in Cincinnati," when newsman Les Nessman gets ready for a big date with Jennifer Marlowe at the Silver Sow Awards.

One of Foreigner's other huge hits, "Waiting For A Girl Like You," set a record for most weeks at the No. 2 position, constantly squeezed out by Olivia's Newton-John's "Physical."

These songs will be performed without the stylings of original vocalist-co-writer Lou Gramm, as he has long been replaced by the generally agreeable Kelly Hansen.

Hearing aids many and varied

Second of two parts

About one in three Americans over 60 suffers from loss of hearing, which can range from the inability to hear certain voices to deafness. However, only about one out of five people who would benefit from a hearing aid uses one.

Hearing aids have a microphone, amplifier and speaker. Sound is received by the microphone, which converts the sound waves to electrical signals and sends them to an amplifier. The amplifier boosts the signals and then sends them to the ear through a speaker.

It's important to understand that a hearing aid will not restore your normal hearing. With practice, however, a hearing aid will increase your awareness of sounds and what made them.

The two primary types of electronics used in hearing aids are analog and digital.

Analog aids convert sound waves into electrical signals, which are amplified. Analog programmable hearing aids have more than one setting; the user can change the aid for listening in different environments.

Digital aids convert sound waves into numerical code before amplifying them. Because the code also includes information about a sound's pitch or loudness, the aid can be specially programmed to amplify some frequencies more than others. These aids also can be programmed to focus on sounds coming from a specific direction.

Price can range from hundreds of dollars to more than $2,500 for a programmable, digital hearing aid.

Behind-the-ear hearing aids are made of a plastic case with electronic components worn behind the ear and connected to a plastic ear mold that fits inside the outer ear.

Small, open-fit aids fit behind the ear completely with only a narrow tube inserted into the ear canal, enabling the canal to remain open.

In-the-ear hearing aids fit completely inside the outer ear. Some of these aids may have a small magnetic coil that allows users to receive sound through the circuitry of the hearing aid instead of a microphone. This feature helps with phone conversations.

The in-the-canal hearing aid is made to fit the size and shape of a person's ear canal. A completely-in-canal hearing aid is nearly hidden.

A middle ear implant is a small device attached to one of the bones of the middle ear. Rather than amplifying the sound traveling to the eardrum, an middle ear implant moves these bones. Both techniques improve sound vibrations entering the inner ear.

A bone-anchored hearing aid is a small device that attaches to the bone behind the ear. The device transmits sound vibrations directly to the inner ear through the skull, bypassing the middle ear.
