Red Cross warns about heat dangers

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
 njastrzemi@tnonline.com

The regional office of the American Red Cross last week released suggestions for surviving the sweltering summer, offering tips and dangers to keep in mind.

"Excessive heat can be deadly; it has caused more deaths in recent years than all other weather events," said Executive CEO Peter M. Brown. "We want everyone to stay safe during the hot weather and have some reminders for them to follow when the weather is hot and humid."

Brown said as temperatures soar unabated through the summer, staying hydrated is necessary, and caffeinated and alcoholic drinks don't count. He said people should wear loose-fitting, lightly-colored clothing, take their time when outdoors and avoid being outside during the hottest times of day.

If you have to be outside, take frequent breaks and take turns with others.

Brown also asks that people check on friends and neighbors who lack air conditioning and that those people should try to find relief during the hottest time of day in places such as libraries, theaters and malls.

Never leave children or pets in vehicles, which can quickly rise to 120 degrees.

Brown said excessive heat can lead to dangerous health issues, such as heat exhaustion and heat stroke.

If someone is experiencing heat cramps in the legs or abdomen, get them to a cooler place, have them rest, lightly stretch the affected muscle and replenish their fluids with a half a glass (about 4 ounces) of cool water every 15 minutes.

If someone is exhibiting signs of heat exhaustion (cool, moist, pale or flushed skin, heavy sweating, headache, nausea,

NORCO Council changes contract policy

By CAROL SMITH
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

By a 5-3 vote, Northampton County Council changed the way professional-services vendors are selected.

The July 18 amended ordinance prevents the county executive from using a competitive sealed bid process as an alternative if county council has previously voted down a vendor selected using the request for proposal method.

Introduced by Councilman Lamont McClure, the new policy is a response to an ongoing legal dispute and would prevent future use of the competitive sealed bid process to go around council's vote in the selection of vendors. The competitive sealed bid process can be used only when price is the sole factor in the vendor's selection. Councilmen Scott Parsons, Robert Werner and Council President John Cusick opposed the policy change.

At a May council meeting, council empowered its solicitor to seek an injunction to prevent the county from entering into a three-year contract with LifeStar, the vendor who had won a competitive

CITY Initial reading

Ordinance requires banks to register foreclosed homes

By ANDREW CASS
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem City Council unanimously voted July 16 in favor of the first reading of an ordinance that would require banks to register foreclosed homes in the city.

The registration fee would be $200 per property. Banks would be able to enter information about each property into a user-friendly database, which would be compiled by city contractors. The ordinance would make it easier for the city to know where to direct complaints about tall grass, dead animals and other problems associated with foreclosed homes.

"I hope this works as well as we think it will, and I'm glad to see it moving forward," Council President Eric Evans said.

Banks that fail to register their properties would face steep fines; a $1,000 fine for the first offense, $1,000 again for the second offense, $3,000 for third offense, $7,000 for fourth and $10,000 for the fifth offense.

REMEMBER WHEN ...

Just a few months ago, we were hoping for warmer weather. Well we got our wish this past week. We take a few moments here to reflect on cooler times in our area. Additional "Remember when" photos appear on page A15.

Local gynecologist 'delivers' baby moose

By CAROLE GORNEY
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

If you are looking to get a half-million hits on the Internet, it's easy. Just save a baby moose from drowning. At least that has been the experience of Lehigh Valley gynecologist Dr. Karen Sciascia, whose rescue efforts while on a fishing trip in Montana went viral after being posted on a fishing-guide company Facebook page.

Dr. Sciascia and guide Seth McLean were fishing in a row boat on Big Hole River when they spotted an adult moose struggling to cross the river against a very strong current. Sciascia owns a home in Montana, which she visits four or five times a year, so seeing a moose was nothing new, but she said the behavior of the animal seemed strange.

"She kept walking back and forth very agitated," so they rowed their boat toward her.

"We didn't see a baby until we got close; then we could see a nostril sticking out of the water."

When the boat approached, the mother became startled and bolted across the water and onto the shore.

"I couldn't just let the poor thing drown right there in front of me," Sciascia said, so she reached into the water and pulled the baby up by the scruff of her neck, then scooped her out of the water under her hind legs.

"I couldn't just let the poor thing drown right there in front of me."

Meanwhile, McLean, a guide with the Four Rivers Fishing Co., used his cell phone to get a photo of the rescue, which his company later posted on Facebook.

Though only a day or two old by Sciascia's estimates, the youngster still weighed at least 25 pounds, so hauling her out of the water was no easy task.

"Thank God I weightlift and work out," she said.

With the baby safely resting on the doctor's lap, the guide rowed quickly back to the spot where the mother moose had last been seen. When the boat reached the shore, Sciascia got out and placed the calf on a sand bar.

"She didn't move, but she was crying and he often doesn't find out about it until neighbors complain that the grass is 42 inches high.

Bethlehem is following in the footsteps of Allentown and Easton, who have also enacted similar ordinances in recent months.

The ordinance will be voted on for final passage next month.

Due to Musikfest, council has bumped up the start time of their next meeting. The meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. Aug. 6 in City Hall.

Looking back, they saw the mother cleaning the calf, and later walking back with her into the trees.

Sciascia said she wasn't surprised at what she had done. As a physician, she said she is trained to deal with emergencies.

"It's what we do. It was an automatic response. No stress."

What has surprised her, though, is the reaction of the public to the rescue. Sciascia says hits on her story on June 7 beat out the Kardashians on Google. Why does she think there was such a reaction?

"With so much bad news, this is a 'feel good' story with the emotion of a baby animal."

Whatever the reason, some reactions to the rescue have gone beyond just hitting on Facebook. One person from San Diego sent Sciascia a dozen roses, and another fan from Spokane, Wash., sent along a Christmas Ornament.

So what's next? - a Hollywood movie or a television reality show or mini-series? Let's hope if that does happen they don't decide to call it "Deliverance."

sealed bid and the two previous request for proposal bids.

Council had rejected LifeStar in favor of Nazareth Ambulance Corps. (NAC) as Gracedale's medical-transport service provider. The executive then put out a sealed-bid contract request that circumvented the need for council's vote.

Feeling its legal authority challenged and the Home Rule Charter violated, council is seeking a declaratory judgment from the court to determine how to best resolve the contract-award issue.

Council's solicitor Philip Lauer said that while a declaratory judgment may determine which side should win in this specific case it in no way binds any future decision over a contract award dispute.

Councilman Scott Parson's objection to the new policy focused on the lack of resolution when it comes to determining which governing body, county executive or council, has the final word in future disputes.

Lauer said that the amended ordinance can't really address that issue. If it could, there would be no reason for a council.

McClure said that while not resolving all the problems with the contract-award process, "It's a good first step. It's about the law and co-equal branches of government."

In the meantime, Lauer said that LifeStar and Nazareth Ambulance Corps are planning to, or have already, become parties to council's lawsuit.

Council's next regular meeting is at 6:30 p.m., Aug. 1 at Northampton County Courthouse's third floor, 669 Washington St., Easton.

Rally protests Florida verdict

By LEO ATKINSON
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The oppressive heat could not deter more than 100 demonstrators from attending a July 17 "Justice for Trayvon Martin Rally" that took place in the sculpture garden next to the Bethlehem City Hall. Attendees were protesting a Florida jury's verdict that found George Zimmerman not guilty of either second-degree murder or manslaughter for shooting 17-year-old Martin in February of last year.

"Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton have come together to lament Trayvon Martin," said Esther Lee, Bethlehem NAACP president, from her place at the fore of the protestors. Lee called for an end to stand-your-ground laws which, she said, were a factor in the "unjust" verdict.

Florida's stand-your-ground law states that a person who is attacked in any place where "he or she has a right to be" has "no duty to retreat" and can "meet force with force, including deadly force." More than 20 states, including Pennsylvania, have similar laws.

Dan Bosket, president of the Allentown NAACP, agreed with Lee.

"We are here because justice was not served," he said. Bosket urged everyone in attendance to sign the NAACP online petition asking Attorney General Eric Holder to file civil rights charges against Zimmerman.

Protestors Jaime and Jennifer Eggleston, of Bethlehem, had arrived early with their daughter Jade. They sat along

A-B-E libraries unified Valley system ready for checkout

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzemi@tntonline.com

The Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton public libraries are now working hand-in-hand to provide the best possible free service to Lehigh Valley residents.

After a yearlong discussion, library directors announced July 16 the official activation of the Lehigh Valley Library System, which standardizes borrowing rules and fees and creates a shared database of content and customers.

The intent is the integration of all three collections to share resources, coordinate purchases and avoiding duplication of materials. As borrowing from one library is now borrowing from all, there's no need for all three locations to purchase multiple copies of the same works.

To that end, a grant from the Lehigh Valley Community Foundation paid for the purchase of a delivery van complete with LVLS logo at a total cost of $22,500. Scott Joiner, a part-time Easton employee, will make daily deliveries between the cities.

Allentown Library Director Renee Haines said the Lehigh Valley is unusual as most Pennsylvania counties have integrated systems while we do not - with the added complication of Bethlehem's straddling Lehigh and Northampton.

Haines said the Lehigh Valley system allows easy borrowing and research sharing for everyone involved. "It'll make life easier for users to use all three libraries in the valley. When you order a book, it might come from any of the three of us." She said this applies to all media - and as Beth-hem is the only library that carries video games, residents elsewhere can now look forward to a new option.

Haines added at some point a new system-wide library card will be issued that will slowly phase out individual library cards as residents update their accounts.

"This is really exciting," Haines said.

Jeff Warren, representing Sen. Lisa Boscola, was present to convey his boss' support. "For her it's the connectivity for these Lehigh Valley communities - bringing them together."

Bethlehem employee James Talarico, who performs web and marketing functions and also designed the LVLS logo, said after nine years he's still excited to work at the library. "It's a lot of fun," he said. "It's great to have fun and serve the community."

Haines said the three libraries are now deeply connected but will remain autonomous. The three libraries are sharing costs for the computer system and van maintenance, Haines said, and budgetary issues concerning one library should impact its own collection before it affects the system. But she admitted money problems happen everywhere, and how to handle the issue equitably must be considered.

CITY POLICE Harassment

Police arrested three residents on similar charges the night of July 12-13.

Around 11 p.m. July 12 officers charged Robert Large, 31, of Evans Street, with harassment for allegedly slapping and shoving his girlfriend.

About an hour later, police in the fifth block of Fourth Avenue arrested 33-year-old William Shook for assaulting his girlfriend, grabbing her by the neck and throwing her to the ground. He is charged with harassment and simple assault.

A half-hour later on North Boulevard officers arrested 34-year-old Kristi Lutes, of Levering Place, after a physical altercation with her brother. She is charged with harassment, simple assault and public drunkenness.

Theft

Following a reported theft of services at West Lehigh Street's The Wooden Match, police arrested 36-year-old Keith Wilkinson of Taylor Street around 4:50 p.m. July 13.

According to police, Wilkinson ordered and drank several alcoholic beverages knowing he had no money to pay.

Police allege he has a history of "dine-and-dash" arrests.

Wilkinson is charged with theft of services and public drunkenness.

Wilkinson was arrested again two days later on a charge of public drunkenness when officers found him asleep on an East Fourth Street sidewalk.

Class hosts 70th reunion

Looking back through a Liberty HS Cauldron yearbook, former classmates share memories during their 70th reunion. The organizing committee (above) consisted of Tom Keim, Olive Kachline Hawk, Herbert Ridyard, Louise Stiles Keim and Thomas DeCrosta. Some 25 alumni from the class of 1943 attended the reunion at Bethlehem's Best Western in June. Liberty HS principal Harrison Bailey III was the event's guest speaker. According to DeCrosta, 88, and a retired BASD teacher, milestone class reunions have become a challenge to hold as the number of alumni from the original class of 494 graduates has dwindled to less than half. He added that informal annual meetings by mostly local alumni will likely continue.

Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem has ramped up its in-house street overlay program another notch with the purchase of a $370,000 milling machine from 2013 bond proceeds. Coupled with the purchase of a $225,000 paver in 2012, city officials say they'll be able to cut prep time in half with the milling machine when city crews undertake street overlays and pave more quickly with the new larger paver.

Mayor John Callahan said that a 2012 Citizen Satisfaction Survey was the driving force behind the decision to expand the City's capabilities at improving city roadways. Callahan said that 67 percent of the survey responthe hefty investment in equipment, and he added that "more paving in-house will stretch overlay dollars."

With about 300 hundred miles of streets, Public Works Director Mike Alkhal expects to do more overlay work in-house and bid less. According to Alkhal, the City generally budgets $600,000 to $900,000 annually on street overlays depending on funding availability from bond proceeds, liquid fuel and federal CDBG monies.

EVAN KAUFFMAN

Kauffman's knee helped mold future

Magnan influenced on and off field

By PETER CAR
pcar@ttonline.com

Evan Kauffman has been wrestling since he was 4-years-old. But during his final match of junior season, Kauffman may have felt like he had enough. With one second left in his fifth place bout at the PIAA 3A championships, Kauffman had to bow out because of a knee injury. An injury that he battled through his freshman, sophomore and junior years.

It was a dislocated kneecap that kept popping out of place for the wrestling and football star.

"The doctors basically said I was born with it," said Kauffman. "It just kept dislocating. I went through a lot of physical therapy, but I never came back to playing sports until I was ready. After that last match my junior year, I really thought about giving up wrestling and just playing football, but my coaches talked to me about it and I decided to stick with it for one more year."

That one more season ended up being Kauffman's first injury-free campaign of his high school career, where he earned himself a district and regional championship at 220-pounds in wrestling, capped off by a fifth-place finish in Hershey.

The district and regional gold medals were the first ones in Kauffman's career and helped conclude a senior year that saw him lead the football team in tackles again, as the linebacker committed to continue his football career at Lehigh University.

That's why Kauffman has been selected as this year's Athlete of the Year for Freedom.

Kauffman has certainly had his injury struggles early on at Freedom, but finishing strong was always a priority.

"If I have any regrets leaving high school, it's that I wasn't healthier all four years," he said. "It was tough at times to overcome the same injury. It did get me discouraged, but I knew that I always needed to battle through it."

Molly Magnan is one of those people you just love to love.

"She had a joke for me every day, but when it was time to work, she would work," said Freedom girls' soccer coach Jamie Halper.

A four-year letter winner and four-year starter on the soccer team, Magnan was a captain for two years and most recently played the midfield, leading in scoring for the Patriots this season and having an assist in almost every game.

"She's very good at setting up plays, and she's a strong player in the middle. She brings drive, determination, and she got the girls moving," Halper said.

Not only did Magnan's teammates accept her, they looked up to her.

"She is a very positive influence both on and off the field. She's funny, and she likes to goof around, but she got them motivated, and she made them rise to the occasion," said Halper.

Magnan was more than happy to do so.

"I love taking charge, and having them rely on me. I like being the crazy one, but once it comes down to business, I'm very competitive and make the best of every situation. If you're not enjoying it, there's no point," Magnan said.

Physically, Magnan came into the past soccer season in the best shape of her life.

"I did a lot of training in the summer because I knew I was head senior, and I had a lot on me, and I wanted to perform my best," she said.

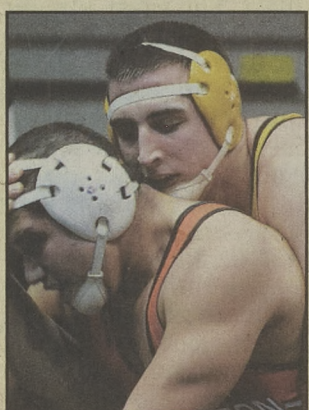

For brand new Freedom High School head swimming coach, Reik Foust, Magnan was his right arm at times this season.

"When I got to Freedom, I could tell she was the ringleader. She got the girls together and helped me make it a team instead of 30 individuals. She's one to take charge and get everyone on the same page," said Foust.

For Magnan, the Patriot senior was somewhat skeptical, yet open-minded about the new swimming staff. After all, Foust would be her third high school coach in four years.

SPORTSFEST BASKETBALL

Pates find signs of summer growth

By PETER CAR
pcar@tntonline.com

The middle of July is the peak of the summer basketball season for many teams, as the Stellar showcase and SportsFest's a-town Throwdown dominate the local scene this time of the year.

It's also the same time of year that Freedom head coach Joe Stellato believes his teams start to turn the corner.

Freedom didn't make it to Sunday's action of tournament play, going 1-2 in pool play last week, but it did give its head coach something to take away from the summer — encouragement.

Liberty and Bethlehem Catholic both made it through their pools and were eliminated on Sunday in the round of 16.

And despite Freedom's inability to reach the status of their city rivals, Stellato had nothing but confidence walking away.

"I'm very encouraged by what I saw from our teams over the past two weeks," he said. "I know that we can compete with the big boys now. We had all our guys at Stellar, but were missing a lot of guys at SportsFest. This is usually the time in summer where we turn things up a little bit and that's exactly what we did over the past two tournaments."

The Patriots only victory in their three-game slate of pool play came against Warren Hills, coming away with a 45-26 triumph, but giving younger players experience to build upon was another lesson that proved to be beneficial for Stellato and his staff.

"SportsFest is a different format than Stellar where you have to get out of your pool compared to Stellar really being a tournament where you have to play your best every game," said Stellato. "I think you see a little bit of a drop off in the intensity levels early on at SportsFest because of that, but for us coaches, we're excited as anybody for any game. That's why I'm happy with our effort because we missed a lot of guys last weekend, but still competed."

As mentioned, Liberty and Becahi both made it through their pools and found themselves in the final 16 of the tournament.

The Hurricanes lost to Ridley 63-58 on Sunday to be eliminated from the competition, while Becahi lost to eventual champion Parkland 58-46.

With the rest of the summer league schedule now on the docket, Stellato knows there's basketball to be played into August, but admits that these two weeks are the most important.

"I think every coach uses these two weekends as measuring sticks for where they can be in the winter," he said. "You lose guys to football once August comes for the summer league playoffs, so we don't really worry about that. We worry about Stellar and SportsFest and I'm walking away optimistic."

Over its first two games, Freedom looked like one of the contenders for a SportsFest American Arch Girls Basketball Tournament title last weekend.

The Lady Patriots blew by Upper Perk, 36-15, in the first round. They dispatched Northern Lehigh Academy, 43-21, in round two.

A 31-20 loss to eventual tournament champ Dunmore sent Freedom into the losers bracket.

A 44-25 loss to North Hunterdon Saturday night in their first losers bracket game ended the Patriots run.

Cabela's to host Archery Classic

By NICK HRONIAK
Special to the Press

In preparation for the upcoming bowhunting season, Cabela's in Hamburg is hosting its annual Archery Classic.

The two-day event runs July 27 and 28 and will feature a host of informative bowhunting seminars and hunting personalities.

Outdoor Channel's Ralph and Vicki Cianciarulo will be on hand to discuss their experiences filming "Hunting with America's Favorite Hunting Couple TV show." They'll be presenting at noon both days.

Other attractions include seminars on "From Field to Freeze: Deer Butchering 101 with professional butcher Rick Fetrow at 10 a.m. both days; Crossbow Hunting Tactics with Cabela's outfitters on July 27 at 1 p.m.; Managing your Property for Mature Deer with Lehigh Valley QDMA at 2 p.m. July 27; Food Plot Management for Healthier Deer by QDMA at 2 p.m. on July 28; and Getting the Most out of your Game Camera at 2 p.m. on July 28.

"These free-to-the-public seminars offer novice to experienced archers a great opportunity to hone new archery tactics and share personal hunting stories for others to consider," said Harold Luther, Cabela's Retail Manager.

On both days customers will have an opportunity to enter an Archery Shopping Trip of a Lifetime whereby one lucky customer and their favorite hunting buddy will each receive a $5,000 Cabela's shopping spree.

And while at Cabela's, check out their exclusive and new Zonz Colorphase camo clothing line.

Zonz Colorphase is the world's first camo clothing to be printed with rapid-change, temperature-activated dye. In the Woodland pattern it incorporates three zones of trunk and bark, limb and branch and stick and leaf, all in a single pattern.

In mild temperatures, the Zonz patterns are highlighted by vivid greens and blend perfectly with early season spring foliage. When temperatures drop below 65 degrees, the greens morph into late season shades of tan and brown.

"Colorphase patterns will revert back to their original colors just as quickly," says Luther.

It's a unique and exciting technology that is similar to the color changing phases of a chameleon. In essence, it could eliminate the need of having two different color sets of camo clothing.

A host of major archery manufacturer's will be on hand to discuss and demonstrate their products. For more information on the classic, visit www.cabelas.com/hamburg.

a sixth-place finish at states.

He also started three years at linebacker for the football program, leading the team in tackles the past two seasons, collecting 95 tackles and four sacks his senior year.

He was selected to the Lehigh Valley Conference all-star team the past two seasons in football and now hopes to compete as a freshman on Lehigh's line-backing core.

"I'm looking to get on the field as soon as possible," Kauffman said about his goals at Lehigh.

"I put on about twelve-pounds already since I started lifting with them back at the end of May and I feel good. My knee feels great too."

With only one sport to focus on now, Kauffman knows there will be a slight adjustment, but he's welcoming the new change in his life.

"It's going to be different not getting on the mat this winter," said Kauffman. "Wrestling really helped me become tougher mentally and helped a lot with my hands, which has been crucial for me as a defender. It's going to be nice to just focus on one sport."

As refreshing that concept may be, nostalgia already has crept in.

"As much as I hated going to wrestling practice," he said. "I'm going to miss it."

Magnan

"They seemed friendly, and I had no idea who they were, but Reik and I hit it off. Right off the bat, I formed a great relationship with him," Magnan said.

What she didn't know was that Foust was about to change swimming for Magnan as she knew it.

"The freestyle was definitely her stroke, and last year, she was a 500 [free] swimmer, but I tried to convert her into a sprinter because she's tall and strong," said Foust.

Magnan dropped 4 seconds in the 100 free, 1 1/2 seconds in the 50 free, and had her fastest 50 in the 200 free relay at districts, where Easton out-touched the Pates by .02 seconds.

"I never swam club, but I swam with club swimmers, and I can hold my own. Reik molded me into a sprinter, and I'm the fastest I've ever been, and I'm in tiptop shape. I'm really glad he's in my life now. I was never able to hit those times before," said Magnan.

Magnan was never the one to get awards and accolades either; that is, until this year, when she won the Coach's Award for FHS swimming, the MVP Offense Award for FHS soccer, the Female Athlete of the Year Award for FHS, and now the FHS Female Player of the Year Award for Bethlehem Press.

"She's just a great human being. You never see anybody dislike her. She's one of those people everyone likes to be around. She's an absolute blast. She's fun, but she always knew why she was [at swimming practice]. She was the first one in the water and the last one out of the water," Foust said.

It appears that Foust's assessment of Magnan has already been realized by University of Vermont swimming coach, Gerry Cournoyer, whom Magnan emailed just a day or two before a visit to the university.

No, Magnan didn't go there with a highlight reel or a resume, but when Cournoyer and Magnan met at orientation, the swim coach welcomed the incoming freshman to the swim team on the spot.

"Everyone is so welcoming, so chill. There's a great vibe. I know I'm coming in as the underdog, and it will be hard in the beginning, but once I get through the first two or three weeks, I'll be all right," said Magnan.

Swimming has been as vital to Magnan as the air she breathes.

"There was never one day I didn't want to be at practice. I like to be pushed. It's a stress reliever. I love the whole team aspect, but I love that you're on your own. It's brought out all my leadership qualities. I love the atmosphere, I love the competition, and I love that you can be who you want to be. Swimmers just accept you for who you are," she said.

In Magnan's case, one of those people you just love to love.

Q&A

BY MARY FLETCHER

temperature greater than 105 degrees; hot, dry skin; rapid shallow breathing and a weak rapid pulse. Other symptoms of heatstroke include weakness, dizziness, nausea, vomiting, a frontal headache, confusion, drowsiness, disorientation, muscle twitching, losing one's balance and coordination and anxiety.

Heatstroke should be treated immediately with rapid cooling of the person with ice packs, cold water and removing the person's clothing.

Q What is heat exhaustion? What are the symptoms?

A Heat exhaustion results in one of two ways: either an individual's body becomes water depleted due to inadequate fluid replacement while being out in the heat or an individual replaces the body fluids with water, but too little salt, after losing a large amount of body fluid due to sweating. Heat exhaustion can be treated by replacing your fluids with electrolyte drinks such as Gatorade.

Many of the symptoms of heat exhaustion are nonspecific and the same as heatstroke and include weakness, fatigue, frontal headache, dizziness, nausea, vomiting and muscle cramps. Unlike heatstroke, individuals with heat exhaustion will continue to sweat and will have a body temperature below 104 degrees.

Q What are heat cramps? What are the symptoms?

A Heat cramps are brief, intermittent and often severe cramps that usually occur in the muscles that become the most fatigued during heavy work or exercise. Heat cramps occur most often during the first days of severely hot weather and are most common in people who produce large amounts of sweat and drink large amounts of plain water. Heat cramps seem to be related to salt deficiency. Heat cramps tend to occur after a person has stopped working or exercising and is actually relaxing. Heat cramps can be treated with electrolyte drinks such as Gatorade as well.

Q How much should people drink during hot weather?

See HEAT on Page A12

Q What happens to the body when it is exposed to extreme heat?

A When a person is exposed to extreme heat, the body's temperature sensitive structures (thermosensors) detect the change in temperature and try to compensate. Heat kills by pushing the human body beyond its limits. Under normal conditions, the body's internal thermostat produces perspiration that evaporates and cools the body. However, in extreme heat and high humidity, evaporation is slowed and the body must work harder to maintain a normal temperature.

Q What are some health dangers associated with extreme summer heat? What temperatures are considered extreme?

A Some health dangers of extreme heat include heatstroke, heat exhaustion, heat cramps, heat edema (swelling), and heat syncope (losing consciousness, passing out). Extreme heat is defined by FEMA as temperatures that stay around 10 degrees or more above the average high temperature for the region and last for several weeks.

Q Who is at greatest risk?

A People at the extremes of age (the very young/newborn and the elderly) are at greatest risk in extreme heat.

Q Why are the elderly at higher risk?

A The elderly are at highest risk of heat related injuries or death because their bodies can no longer regulate their temperatures as efficiently as a younger person's body. Their body can no longer cool itself off efficiently or quickly.

Q What is heat stroke? What are the symptoms?

A Heatstroke is the most serious of the heat-related injuries. Heatstroke is a life-threatening emergency that occurs when the body's heat regulating systems fail. This failure causes an elevation of body temperature to extreme levels, usually higher than 105 F. This produces failure of multiple systems in the body and the body's organs become seriously injured. The onset of heatstroke is sudden and the patient's level of consciousness quickly decreases.

The most common serious signs of heatstroke include a body widespread air pollutants. The State of the Air app enables users to enter their zip code or use the geolocator function to get current air quality conditions and the next-day air quality forecast. The app tracks that outdoor activities should be rescheduled or that people who work outdoors should limit extended or heavy exertion.

Heat and sunlight mixed with the pollution from tailpipes, smokestacks and other sources create ozone. Ozone is the most widespread air pollutant and can cause health problems like wheezing, coughing, asthma attacks and even premature death. Exposure to ozone pollution has been likened to "a sunburn on the lungs."

"Vehicle emissions are a major source of air pollution, and this year, the EPA has an opportunity to set stricter standards on tailpipe emissions and to mandate cleaner burning gasoline," said Brown. "It is important to let the EPA know that these standards, which are equivalent to taking 33 million cars off the road, are vital to protecting public health. Introducing these new parameters would only cost about a penny per gallon."

"While the need for cleaner emissions from fuel-based sources is very present, we also need the EPA to update its ozone standards so that they reflect scientific standards not the politically based standards that are currently in place," continued Brown.

The air quality information provided is based on data made available to the public by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). A There is no easy answer to this question. Just as every person is unique, so is their need for fluids. On average, during normal temperatures, it is recommended that individuals drink at least eight 8 oz. glasses of fluid a day. During hotter weather, this will need to be increased. However, persons who have epilepsy or heart, kidney, or liver disease; are on fluid-restricted diets; or have a problem with fluid retention should consult a doctor before increasing liquid intake. People should also limit their intake of alcoholic beverages during extreme heat.

Q What is the best clothing for hot weather?

A Dress in loose-fitting, lightweight, and light-colored clothes.

Q What can people do to stay safe during periods of extreme heat?

A There are many things people can do to stay safe during periods of extreme heat: stay indoors as much as possible and limit their exposure to the direct sunlight. Stay on the lowest floor out of the sunshine if air conditioning is not available. Consider spending the warmest part of the day in public buildings such as libraries, schools, movie theaters, shopping malls, and other community facilities. Eat well-balanced, light, and regular meals. Avoid using salt tablets unless directed to do so by a physician. Check on family, friends, and neighbors who do not have air conditioning and who spend much of their time alone. And never leave children or pets alone in closed vehicles.

Southside legends

Ken Ranieri
Columnist

Take a leisurely stroll to the plaza between City Hall and the Bethlehem Public Library on Church Street. As you look over the wall, notice how the shore of the Lehigh River gradually moves up toward the top of South Mountain. Notice how the terrain on the east rises and forms a hill; to the west, the terrain also rises and forms yet another hill.

These "hills" of South Bethlehem became the stuff of legends thought forgotten – until now. In 1858, when Mauch Chunk (now Jim Thorpe, Pa.) newcomer, the chief engineer of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, Robert H. Sayre (1824-1907) built his home on the hill west of Wyandotte Street, Fountain Hill became synonymous with prestige and affluence until the end of the century.

Fountain Hill

This unique residential neighborhood was unlike any on South Bethlehem's hills. It attracted fellow "nabobs" who enjoyed wealth they acquired through investments in railroads, the Bethlehem Iron Company – and natural resources including zinc, iron ore and coal. Many well-known residents planned their estates after Sayre built his mansion. Elisha Packer Wilbur (1833-1910), South Bethlehem burgess and banker, resided across from his bank building on Brighton and Wyandotte streets. To the west of Sayre Mansion, John Smiley, Jr. (1817-1879), an enterprising Philadelphia businessman, amassed a fortune through his freight business with the Lehigh Valley Railroad. Dr. Garrett B. Linderman (1829-1885), head of coal company Linderman & Skeer, and founder of Lehigh Valley National Bank of Bethlehem, built his mansion where Third Street veers southwest – the very same mansion purchased by Bethlehem Steel magnate Charles M. Schwab in 1904. Up to the end of the 19th century, Fountain Hill was a neighborhood of millionaires who set the social tone of South Bethlehem.

The Hill-Lehigh University

In 1865, Lehigh Valley Railroad mastermind Asa Packer (1805-1879) chose the northern slope of South Mountain when he founded Lehigh University. His ambition: to offer young men a tuition-free college education in preparation of the post-Civil War economy and beyond.

By 1888, nine buildings occupied the Lehigh campus and the well-funded university offered students the best educators of the day. Two years after his death, Robert Sayre's children donated $100,000 to Lehigh University. In 1909, the wooded property above the original Packer campus up to the top of the mountain was named "Sayre Park," in honor of their father.

Lehigh's first fraternity, Delta Upsilon, became part of an exclusive "Greek" community followed by many others built in Sayre Park presently known as "The Hill."

Shanty Hill

East of Lehigh's mountainside campus, "Shanty Hill" sat above South Bethlehem's first brewery in operation from 1864 to 1897. "Die Alte Brauerie," the Lehigh Mountain Brewery (now Price Hall), was located on the hill near dwellings of "townies" on what was Locust (now Taylor Street) and presently part of Lehigh University campus.

In January 1868, the Daily Times sarcastically reported activities that took place on Shanty Hill: "... another rooster fight will come off in South Bethlehem tomorrow, for $100 a side. Four rounds will be fought. We are unacquainted with cockfight slang, and heretofore refrain from going into particulars. We have no doubt there will be a refined and intelligent audience present."

During the 1881 semester, as a diversion from the daily rigors of course requirements, a group of Lehigh students created a "look" which won them the moniker, "Dudes," and according to the Lehigh Burr, typical Dudes in this class "brush their hair into their eyes and wear tight pants." What townie couldn't resist passing a remark (or worse) on their encounter with "Dudes" wearing bangs and tight pants?

"It was between the Shanty Hillers and the [Lehigh] students that the fight waged thickest, but there were others in town who did not wholly understand the Lehigh student," wrote Catherine Drinker Bowen in her book, "Family Portrait."

Later, in 1892, a letter to the editor of the Daily Times written by "an Old South Bethlehemite," explained an assertion made by Councilman Kline, that "Bethlehemites" irreverently dubbed the eastern end of South Bethlehem, "Shanty Hill."

"I have lived in South Bethlehem ever since it was a Borough, and the term 'Shanty Hill' was originated by the boys who lived in the few shanties along and adjacent to what is known as Buttonwood Street (now Mechanic Street). Bethlehemites had nothing to do with it. In my opinion, Councilman Kline had better acquaint himself with the early history of South Bethlehem – say from 1864 to 1870 – before he stands up in council and relieves himself of a tirade of words which the older citizens of the town only find amusement in. In my eyes, he appears ridiculously ridiculous."

In time, colorful "Shanty Hill" faded along with the memories of South Bethlehem's early citizenry and residential development in the area completely erased the old shanties of the past.

Nanny Goat Hill

At the eastern rise of South Mountain above St. Michael's Cemetery, a steep, wooded area came to be known by locals as "Nanny Goat Hill," southwest of Iron Hill.

During the latter part of the 19th century, many residents kept cows, goats, pigs, chickens and geese as a supplement, perhaps even as a staple to their kitchen pantries.

Milk, cream and butter came from cows tethered to backyard fences and free-range chickens provided meat and eggs; crowing roosters, when not engaged in cock fights arranged by their owners for quick cash, gave the area a feel of a rural backwater.

Residents who bred male "billy" goats to female "nanny" goats, preferred the highly digestible goat's milk which shortly curdled into goat cheese.

RAMADAN TENT DINNER

Encouraging compassion and community

By LEO ATKINSON

Turkish folk music played across Bethlehem's Payrow Plaza, located between City Hall and the Public Library, as the sun descended. Busy volunteers prepared for the Ramadan Tent Dinner by placing plates heaped with Turkish food, bottles of juice and water on the dozens of white-clothed tables inside a large white tent erected for the occasion. The band, Wind of Anatolia, performed yards away on the library stairs.

As the sky grew darker, groups of guests arrived with greater frequency to break their daylong fast with a shared meal. This year marked the third dinner cosponsored by the Lehigh Dialogue Center, according to Secretary Burak Cezik, and the second consecutive year in Payrow Plaza.

"It is a month of sharing," said Cezik, adding the members of the community are invited to see how Muslims celebrate the month of Ramadan. As the tent filled with about 180 people, Dr. Kent Ozman, host of the spoken program, welcomed the guests, reminding them it was a time to be "mindful" and during this month they would have opportunity for the "purification of the person."

ant Ephesus. At 8:37 p.m. the sun had set and dinner commenced. Dialogue Center volunteer Mehmet Ozdemir summarized the goal of the meal saying, "When you eat together, you realize we are all the same."

Bethlehem Mayor John Callahan attended the event and remarked, "We are truly a melting pot, we draw strength from our diversity," adding that events like the dinner are, "what has made Bethlehem a rich city."

A second public dinner followed on July 18 when organizers invited local homeless people to share in their meal.

The Ramadan Tent Dinner was organized and sponsored by the Lehigh Dialogue Center, the Turkish Cultural Center, and the City of Bethlehem.

RAMADAN

Ramadan is the name of the ninth month in the Islamic calendar. During this month, the Quran was first revealed to the prophet Muhammad. Muslims celebrate this time by focusing on giving and fasting during the day.

Healthy adult Muslims are expected to refrain from sensual pleasures including food, drink and sexual contact between the first light of the morning and sunset during the 29-to-30 day month. In addition, they are supposed to abstain from negative behaviors like gambling and fighting. This fasting, or sawm in Arabic, is considered one of the pillars of Islam.

Before sunrise Muslims eat a meal called Suhoor, and break their fast after sunset with an evening meal, called Iftar. When Ramadan falls in the summer, like this year, the fast lasts more than 16 hours from about 4 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Ramadan's beginning shifts about 10 days a year because the Islamic calendar is lunar.

In addition to the fasting, Muslims are expected to give sadaqa (charity) and zakat (mandatory alms) to the poor. These actions are supposed to encourage compassion and community among practitioners.

Police expanding patrols, training

FREEMANSBURG

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI

njastrzemski@tnonline.com

Police Chief Todd Pantuso had some updates for borough council July 16, and was awarded the use of an unmarked patrol vehicle for borough business.

Pantuso notified council overall call volume is up by about 430 calls from this time last year and attributes responses to increased patrols and officers interacting more directly with the community. Part of this visibility is from the new bicycle patrols and training paid for recently by District Attorney John Morganelli.

Pantuso also said that in September three officers will take a sobriety checkpoint course, in conjunction with officers from other municipalities. He said the training is mandatory for officers to participate in checkpoints, and even though the training will cost the borough nothing, it is certainly worthwhile.

Pantuso said a checkpoint on Main Street the night of July 9 resulted in three drug arrests, seven DUI arrests and at least eight people charged with driving with suspended licenses.

Council voted unanimously to allow the use of a 2008 and a 2010 Crown Victoria from the department for borough use. One will be used by Pantuso for his many nighttime calls and borough-specific meetings, President Homer "Bud" Lorrach said.

The second car will be stripped of police equipment and made available for any borough business. Manager Judith Danko said Pantuso and a friend performed the work on the car

Invariably, the cows broke loose of their tethers – and goats, naturally curious, found great delight grazing with the cows onto the impeccably groomed lawns of Lehigh University campus.

According to W. Ross Yates

in his book, "Lehigh University," Lehigh students complained that their campus resembled "a fine pasture for cows, goats, pigs and other cattle. Children fed on the milk of these cows, warranted to imbibe wisdom."

One day, a group of learned students caught an errant white goat, and according to an alumnus, "... by a proper use of chloride of iron and yellow prussiate of potash, dyed her a fast blue and before returning her to her native heath, further decorated her with a cast-off telescope hat."

Later, a long-time rumor, "that boys had taken a cow into the chapel on the third floor of Packer Hall (now University Center)," was "put right" when in actuality, "the cow had been a horse ... persuaded by students [who brought it] into the president's office ... on the second floor of Christmas Hall."

These hijinks were just their way "to advertise the student's discontent with animals on the loose."

Lehigh's verdant campus, however, was not the only victim of marauding livestock.

For fear of waking one morning to find a cow or a goat munching on their petunias, Fountain Hill residents built short walls of stone, topped with spiked iron fencing around the perimeter of their estates, one example still evident around the Sayre Mansion Inn between Wyandotte and Cherokee streets along West Third Street.

By the time South Bethlehem had been incorporated into the City of Bethlehem in 1917, an ordinance banned barnyard animals in residential neighborhoods. Though a colorful era had ended, legends like these still remain in the hills of South Bethlehem.

They join Frank Gergar in two and four-year terms overseeing and reviewing all civil service rules governing police officers.

Rody Gilkeson (Jean Valjean), Patrick Davis (Marius), "Les Misérables," July 26 - Aug. 3, Notre Dame Summer Theatre, Notre Dame High School, Easton

Lehigh Valley debut of 'Les Misérables' rises up at Notre Dame Summer Theatre

By REBEKAH HAWK
 Special to The Press

Notre Dame Summer Theatre is presenting the Lehigh Valley debut of the Broadway musical version of "Les Misérables."

The musical is based on the 1862 novel written by French author Victor Hugo. There've been four film adaptations, including the Oscar-winning 2012 musical version.

Now in its fourth season, Notre Dame Summer Theatre (NDST) presents "Les Misérables," 7:30 p.m. July 26, 27, Aug. 2, 3 and 2 p.m. July 28 and Aug. 3, auditorium, Notre Dame High School, 3417 Church Road, Easton.

The cast of 52 is the largest-ever for NDST. The "Les Misérables" cast is 10 more than for its second-largest show, "My Fair Lady," presented in its second season at Bethlehem Catholic High School, according to the show's Director Rody Gilkeson, NDST co-producer with his wife, Elizabeth Marsh-Gilkeson, who is the show's Music Director.

The school version of "Les Misérables" has been presented in the Lehigh Valley. "Les Misérables" is scheduled to return to Broadway in 2014, so the rights will be on hold again.

The large cast has its benefits.

"When you hear the whole cast [as well as] the solos, it just gives you goose bumps," Gilkeson says.

"I'm just blown away by the tale and total number of performers in the cast," says Gilkeson, Fine Arts Chairman and Director of Theatre at Notre Dame High School where Marsh-Gilkeson is Choral Director.

Gilkeson plays Jean Valjean, the Hugh Jackman role in last year's film musical. Marsh-Gilkeson plays Fantine, the role for which Anne Hathaway received a supporting actress Oscar.

Rob Clausnitzer plays Javert (Russell Crowe in the movie), the fanatic police inspector in search of Valjean for stealing a piece of bread.

The eight-year-old Cosette is played by Catherine Scheidel. Eighteen-year-old Cosette (the role played by Allentown's Amanda Seyfried in the film musical) is Madeline Prentice.

Meghan Kohler is Choreographer. Marsh-Gilkeson is Costume Coordinator-Designer.

"It's the best quality cast without the Broadway prices," says Gilkeson. "And not only do the actors range in ages from seven to 65 with 52 people in the cast, but they have great talent and they put emotion into the songs."

The cast includes college graduates who majored in music, college students studying music, secondary and elementary school students and community theater members including Patrick Davis (Marius), Keith Brown (Foreman), Ted Williams (Thenardier), Mary Catherine Bracali (Madame Thenardier) and Matt Walzler (Bishop of Digne).

There are six families involved in the NDST production. So, this "Les Misérables" is a family affair.

The abridged version of the book is 829 pages while the unabridged version has 1,488 pages. The stages musical clocks in at about two hours. The action moves swiftly.

"In one minute towards the end," says Gilkeson, "I'm giving my daughter's hand in marriage and the next I'm an old man dying in a chair."

There is very little spoken dialogue in the show.

"It's more of an opera," says Gilkeson, "It really is the most beautiful musical."

A "Superstar" summer: The Lehigh Valley summer theater season at two of the biggest venues is nearing a close. You only have a few days left to catch one of the season's most spectacular shows, "Jesus Christ Superstar," Muhlenberg Summer Music Theatre (MSMT), through July 28, Empie Theatre, Baker Center for the Arts, Muhlenberg College, 2400 Chew St., Allentown. Dan Cary, above center, portrays Jesus. Joshua Neth, above right, plays Pilate. The rock opera dramatizes the last seven days in the life of Jesus, from his entry into Jerusalem through his crucifixion. With a score by Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice, the hit musical debuted on Broadway in 1972 and was revived in 2000 and 2012. MSMT veterans James Peck and Ken Butler are director and music director, respectively. Former Muhlenberg College faculty member Charles O. Anderson is choreographer. Tickets: 484-664-3333

Clarence Carter and change

By BATHSHEBA MONK
 Special to The Press

I would argue that change is the most daunting challenge for a human being. Leaving the warm cocoon of the known to enter the harsh world of uncertainty takes courage.

This is especially true of the arts, where fans expect a certain style from the artist, and get annoyed or even angry when the artist has mined one vein of inspiration and turns to another.

Yet, as the exhibition, "Clarence H. Carter: Realism to Surrealism," through Aug. 9, David E. Rodale Gallery, Baum School of Art, 510 Linden St., Allentown, shows, the career of Clarence H. Carter is all about change.

In 1904, Carter was born into an America that valued homey and familiar scenes of farms and countryside and he enjoyed a successful career exploring those themes: first completing art school in Cleveland, traveling to Europe to study under Italian masters and settling into a teaching position at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh (now Carnegie Mellon University). Sales were brisk and he enjoyed all the awards his peers and fans could give him.

But after World War II, the tastes of America changed. Abstract art, which had been all the rage in Europe since the turn of 20th century completely mesmerized American artists and the art of the regional painters seemed suddenly old-fashioned.

Carter was mesmerized too, but he was much too controlled a painter to give into the serendipity of allowing paint to dictate the final form a canvas. For years, he quit painting and took advertising assignments from big banks and corporations like Alcoa.

When he started painting again, his vision, still incandescent with natural light and color, transformed into pared down-creatures — water buffaloes, cicadas, pigeons — peering over walls that separate us, and eventually changed even those creatures into the graceful ovoid forms which haunt his later work.

The work of Carter being shown at the Baum School has examples of the work that defined his long career:

early watercolors (including one of his son Blake — my former husband, incidentally — as a child in a snowstorm, and a slaughtered wild boar on the table of a French eatery), later collages which clearly show the artist's humor, and ecstatic paintings of mandalas.

Baum School of Art gallery, free and open to the public: 9 a.m. - 9:30 p.m. Monday - Thursday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Friday; closed Saturday, Sunday.

"Seussical" by the book: A musical for those who grew up reading and having Dr. Seuss books read to them continues through July 27, Muhlenberg Summer Music Theatre, Black Box Theatre, Trexler Pavilion for Theatre & Dance, Muhlenberg College, 2400 Chew St., Allentown. The Tony Award-winning composer-lyricist team of Lynn Ahrens and Stephen Flaherty bring to life Dr. Seuss's most beloved characters, including the Cat in the Hat, Horton the Elephant, Gertrude McFuzz, Mayzie and Jojo. The show is appropriate for ages four and up. Tickets: 484-664-3333

THEATER REVIEW

'Measure' up at Pa. Shakespeare Fest

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
pwillistein@tnonline.com

The Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival production of "Measure for Measure," through Aug. 4, Labuda Center for the Performing Arts, DeSales University, Center Valley, is a marvelous feast of double-crossing stratagems, low comedy and high drama.

With Shakespeare, you usually get a drama or comedy. With the Bard's "Measure for Measure," you get both. The play could be regarded as the first of what is now known in TV and movie parlance as a "dramedy," or, more traditionally, a tragicomedy.

One has so many impressions of a Shakespeare production of the caliber and quality of "Measure for Measure" at PSF, it's a challenge to convey how impressive, remarkable and completely satisfying is this production.

First of all, there's the language of Shakespeare. There's a reason why the Bard's plays have survived some four millennia. The first staging of "Measure for Measure" is said to have been in 1604, some 409 years before the PSF production.

"Measure for Measure," because of the sexual nature of its content at the heart of the play's plot — which won't be recited here for reasons of spoiling the various twists and because of its complexity — has not been without controversy because of its frankness. The play is as juicy as an HBO series.

The play is also as relevant as some of those supermarket tabloid headlines about celebrity scandals and politicians' peccadilloes. One of the play's lines speaks directly to its underlying theme of morality: "Some rise by sin, and some by virtue fall."

While the play is quite bawdy — the characters are even described as "bawds," no less — and the humor is ribald, and, at times, quite dark, "Measure for Measure" is at its foundation a morality play.

The play's title, said as a line of dialogue toward its conclusion, is believed to reference the Bible New Testament, Matthew 7:2: "For in the same way you judge others, you will be judged and with the measure you use, it will be measured to you."

All graduate thesis seriousness aside, the PSF "Measure for Measure" is fun and immensely entertaining.

Director Fontaine Syer, with Ian Bedford as assistant director, updates the Vienna setting to 1900, with splendid results, especially in the sumptuous costumes designed by Marla Jurgranis. You really have to see the female's gowns — visions of color and elegance. Syer populates the entire stage with the large cast of 18. The pacing is efficient.

Phillips has done something quite brilliant. He's created a huge deus ex machina (literally, Latin: "God from the machine") that sits center stage and is rotated to represent either a cathedral or prison. With stairs, and doors and platforms, the gray, fence and prison-bar like contraption symbolizes the moral dilemmas at the heart of the play and the complexity of choices its characters face.

Lighting designer Thom Weaver bathes the stage in mist so that angular lighting placement creates an ever-present sense of intrigue and coverup, again echoing the text.

Sound designer Matthew Given chooses dramatic flourishes that have a modern flavor of dissonance, heightening the intensity.

Now to those characters and the actors who portray them.

A dramatic fulcrum is created between the characters of Vincentio (Greg Wood), the Duke of Vienna, and Isabella (Erin Partin), a nun and sister of Claudio.

It is one of the play's chief joys to hear these two fine actors speak the Bard's language, especially in those scenes with each other and in their monologues.

Wood brings a tremendous amount of energy to bear on the role. He's in the play's driver's seat, really, not only as the sprightly Duke, but also in the disguise of the more ruminative priest. Wood takes to the task with brio, and carefully delineates between the two. It is really a pleasure to hear Wood speak the language.

Costume designer Jurgranis creates for the Duke a magnificent cloak of luminous green and for the priest a dirt-brown, ill-fitting cloak.

Partin, outfitted in a nun's habit so white that at certain times in the stage lighting it gives the impression of a glow-in-the-dark angel figurine, gives the impression of great strength and fortitude. She is no mild-mannered cleric. She infuses each word with clear-eyed intensity.

The seven or so secondary leads are equally impressive.

Blake Ellis rises to the task of giving us an impervious Angelo, who allows us to see how his new-found power has gone to his head.

Aaron Kirkpatrick is very funny as Lucio, presenting a foppish, self-righteous busybody.

Suzanne O'Donnell is a comedienne personified as Mistress Overdone, a bawd.

Brad DePlanche is side-splittingly hilarious as Pompey, servant to Overdone.

Zack Robidas is forthright and sympathetic as Claudio, who stands to lose the most — his head.

Julia Pfender, as Juliet, gives the appearance of a young woman sweetly flummoxed by her turn of events

Alexie Gilmore as Mariana brings an air of sophistication and severity as a woman who has her own score to settle.

Wayne S. Turney as Escalus is the master of double-takes and aplomb.

Rounding out the cast are Dan Hodge, Jequrey Slaton, Mark Marano, Brendan Moser, Katie Wilson, Henry A. McDaniel, Andrew Goebel and Dan Tomansky.

"Measure for Measure" gives as good as it gets in every department. In mastering the Bard, PSF has created a masterpiece of theater.

And, keep in mind, this is virtually the same cast that is also in "The Importance of Being Earnest," through Aug. 4 at PSF.

PSF honors Lapos, Wirth

The Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival annual gala, "Luminosity," honored Linda Lapos and Paul Wirth as this year's Will Shakespeare Award recipients.

Lapos has attended every production in the PSF 22-year history. She is on the PSF board of directors. She and her husband, Paul, have been PSF sponsors for many years.

"Paul and Linda introduce people in the community to the festival at every opening, bringing people as their guests. They believe in and invest in this festival year after year. They help us to create beautiful artistry that we share with the community," said Patrick Mulcahy, PSF producing artistic director.

Lapos and Wirth join a group of honorees that include Lee A. Butz, Breslin Ridyard Fadero Architects, The Rider Pool Foundation, Kathleen Kund Nolan and Timothy E. Nolan, Joan Miller Moran, Festival Founder Gerard J. Schubert OSFS, The Harry C. Trexler Trust, the late Priscilla Payne Hurd, and the late Marlene "Linny" Fowler.

Brenda and John McGlade were this year's honorary co-chairs at the June 1 gala in DeSales University Center, Center Valley.

"Brenda and John are great proponents of the arts and education, and we are so pleased that they are serving as honorary chairs and have become festival sponsors, supporting 'Shakespeare For Kids,' a PSF original production designed to introduce children to Shakespeare," said Mulcahy.

"We are thrilled to be involved with the Shakespeare Festival," said Brenda McGlade. "John and I believe so strongly in the amazing impact that the arts have on a person's life."

Joel Gilley who chairs the gala committee with his wife, Molly, said, "Molly and I are thrilled that John and Brenda agreed to be honorary chairs for this year's gala."

The gala featured some PSF season excerpts and, in recognition of the PSF "King Henry VIII" production, attendees sampled handcrafted ales created for the evening.

Gala sponsors included: Air Products and Chemicals, DeSales University, Amaranth Foundation, Orlando Diefenderfer Electrical Contractors, EBC, the Express Times, Josh Early Candies, Lehigh Valley Home Brewers Honoree and Tim Kerrigan, The Morning Call, Kathleen Kund Nolan and Timothy E. Nolan, Promus Financial, The Colony Meadery, and CS Creative.

Pigs for Wildlands: The Uninvest Bank and Trust Co. renewed sponsorship agreement with the Lehigh Valley IronPigs baseball team is raising money for Wildlands Conservancy.

The sponsorship, "Double Plays Pay," provides a $25 donation to Wildlands Conservancy each time the IronPigs turn a double play.

"Uninvest is proud to partner with the IronPigs to raise funds for Wildlands Conservancy," said Phil Jackson, president, corporate banking, Uninvest Bank and Trust Co.

It's the fifth year Uninvest is partnering with the IronPigs to help raise money for nonprofits in the Lehigh Valley.

Past "Double Plays Pays" were: Lehigh Valley Zoo, 2012; Boys & Girls Club of Allentown, 2011; Big Brothers Big Sisters Lehigh Valley, 2010, and Dream Come True, 2009.

KidsPeace benefit: "Haircuts for Healing," which will raise money for the KidsPeace Children's Fund, will be held 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. July 28, Salon Soho, 4703 Route 309 North, Schnecksville, North Whitehall Township.

Owner and master stylist Jeff Slowek and his staff will donate their time and 100 percent of the proceeds from the event will be given to KidsPeace. Patrons can enjoy free Rita's water ice while waiting for their turn.

Because of time constraints, stylists will not be blow-drying hair the day of the event.

June LV home sales up 9.2 %

Closed sales of homes during June 2013 increased 9.2 percent over the same time last year in the Lehigh Valley. The total number of closed sales was calculated at 654.

The information is the result of data collected through the Lehigh Valley Association of Realtors (LVAR) Multiple Listing Service.

"LVAR's June housing market research reflects the current economic recovery," said Ryan Conrad, CEO of LVAR. "Positive indicators include the increase in closed and pending sales and the decrease in the number of days on the market and the months of inventory."

Pending sales, properties on which offers have been accepted but have not closed, increased 16.9 percent to 697.

"The increase in pending sales is expected to boost closed sales during the month of July," said Therese Kelley, President of LVAR. "In the marketplace, we're seeing homes selling much more quickly than they did at the same time last year. That's great news for the Lehigh Valley housing market."

Statistics show that the number of days on the market decreased 15.4 percent to 66 days compared to 78 days the same time last year.

Inventory is also decreasing as the number of homes for sale was tabulated at 3,664, a decrease of 12.7 percent from last June.

Absorption rates improved, as the months of inventory decreased 23.9 percent to a 6.7 month supply.

"Inventory of approximately four to seven months is typically regarded as constituting a balanced real estate market," says Conrad.

Year-to-date research indicates that the average sales price was down 1.1 percent to $185,838, compared to 2012 figures.

The average sales price is determined by the total cost of homes sold divided by the total number of homes sold and fluctuates monthly depending on the number of sales at the high or low end of the price range. The year-to-date numbers generally remain more constant.

"LVAR's June housing market research continues the positive trends that we have been seeing in the past," said Conrad.

LVHM exhibit salutes Henry Ford

A week-long exhibit about Henry Ford, who was born 150 years ago, will be held at the Lehigh Valley Heritage Museum, 432 W. Walnut St., Allentown.

The exhibit opens with a slideshow, 1 p.m. July 27, by Guest Curators Ron and Dennis Smith about the development of the Model T Ford, the assembly-line, and the mass production of automobiles in the United States.

The exhibit includes four collector-quality Model Ts, two of which have won national awards from the Antique Automobile Club of America: 1914 Model T Touring Car; "National First Place Winner"; 1915 Model T Touring Car; 1919 Coupe two

It's easy to fall for a 'Granny Scam'

It's called a "Granny Scam."

That's where a grandmother receives a phone call of distress from someone who pretends to be her grandchild.

While the details of the call might differ, the end result is the same: Granny is asked to send money SAP to help her grandchild get out of a jam.

When I read those stories — and there have been many of them in newspapers and online — my first thought is: Who could be dumb enough to fall for scams like that?

Well the haughty can get humbled in a hurry.

With one phone call, I learned how easy it is to get taken in by these schemes.

When I was in the process of concentrating on writing a story, the telephone interrupted my thoughts.

"This is Grayson," the caller said.

Believing it was my grandson, I babbled about my recent visit to the Holy Land, telling him I said special prayers for him at every sacred site we visited.

He sounded a bit embarrassed at that and changed the subject in a hurry. I thought that was definitely something my 18 year old grandson would do.

When I asked why he was calling, Grayson said he was attending a wedding in the Dominican Republic with his friend Jeffrey.

He went through great detail telling me Jeffrey's mother was being married there and he refused to go unless Grayson could come, too.

"Jeff's mother paid for our airfare," Grayson said in answer to my first question.

Alarm bells were going off in my mind because I couldn't picture my daughter Andrea allowing Grayson to do that.

And if she had, surely she would have told me. But I kept my doubts in the back of my mind and kept firing questions at Grayson. He was ready with every answer.

At the wedding reception, everyone had too much to drink but Grayson was in the best shape to drive, he said.

That sounded like Grayson. He really isn't much of a drinker and often leaves parties when there's too much drinking.

In great detail, Grayson went on to tell me about the woman driving the car in front of him. She was driving erratically, he said, and he was about to pass her.

Instead, she stopped her car, for some reason, in the middle of the road and Grayson hit her car. It was enough of a collision for the air bag to go off and Grayson got a broken nose, he said.

"The cop said the accident was my fault because I hit her car from behind. He made me get out of the car and try to walk a straight line. I passed that test but I failed the Breathalyzer so I ended up in jail," Grayson said.

At the end of his long tale, he said Jeffrey's uncle who was there for the wedding is a lawyer. "He negotiated a deal where I would not have a record for drunken driving if I made restitution. Jeff's mother paid half but I still have to come up with $1,600," Grayson said.

I asked a lot of questions, including why Grayson called me instead of his parents. "Your parents are smart and supportive. You should be calling them," I said.

Grayson insisted he didn't want to tell his parents and worry them until he was safely home that night.

"Can you help me out of a jam by sending me the money?" Grayson asked.

I told him I would never go behind his parent's backs. I was going to call them.

By then, all the red flags were waving and I had a big question of my own.

"Your mom told me you are spending a lot of time at the coffee shop. What's the name of the coffee shop?" I asked.

At that point, "Grayson" hung up.

This fish didn't fall for the line. But I almost did. I'm left with the question of how someone knew I had a grandson named Grayson. It's an unusual name.

Experts say scam artists mine social networks like Facebook looking for personal information. A survey this week concluded that 78 percent of scam artists use social media sites to gain information for their scams.

I know this, which is one of the big reasons I refuse to go on Facebook. But somehow, some scam artist knew I had a grandson Grayson.

If I didn't talk to his mother so often and know a great deal about Grayson's friends and their activities, I might have believed the phone call — at least for a while.

But one thing I would never, never do is wire money out of the country.

"If you're asked to wire money right away, especially out of the country, that's one tip-off that you are being scammed," stressed one fraud prevention expert.

She says more people than you would believe fall for the Granny scams. Many don't report it to police, she said, because they are embarrassed.

Ask before you act, experts say.

Ask for information only your grandchild would know.

Ask their parents to verify the call.

How easy is it to be scammed?

Easier than you think.

Controlling weeds in summer lawns

Summer annual grasses continue to be pervasive weed problems in many turfgrass areas throughout the Lehigh Valley. The most common summer annual grasses in turf include crabgrasses (Digitaria spp.) and goosegrass (Eleusine indica). Satisfactory control of these weeds can be obtained by cultural methods, provided the life cycle of the plant is understood.

Two species of crabgrass, the hairy or large (Digitaria sanguinalis) and the smooth or small (Digitaria ischaemum), are commonly found in Pennsylvania. Both are true summer annuals. Their seed germination period ranges from mid-spring to midsummer, and all plants are killed by frost in the fall.

Flowering and subsequent seed set take place from midsummer to early frost and are the means of perpetuating the species. Seed can be produced at mowing heights as low as one-quarter inch. Abundant quantities of seed are produced, varying in number depending on the general health and vigor of the plants.

Once established, crabgrass plants tolerate high temperatures, compact soils, and dry soils better than most turfgrasses. They do not survive shaded conditions produced by buildings, trees and shrubs, or dense turf.

Crabgrass control cannot be completely accomplished in one growing season because of the great number of viable seeds in the soil from previous years of infestation. The basic principle of

GROWING GREEN

L.C. Cooperative Extension
LehighExt@psu.edu

crabgrass control is to prevent re-infestation through seeding. If seed production is controlled for several years, the viable seed supply in the soil will diminish until it is no longer a serious threat to the lawn.

Goosegrass, also known as silver crabgrass, is commonly found in the Lehigh Valley and is often mistaken for crabgrass. Like smooth and hairy crabgrass, it is a summer annual, but it germinates four to six weeks later than crabgrass.

Goosegrass is characterized by fibrous roots and very flattened sheaths that have a silvery-green color, especially near the center of the plant. It has fingerlike seedheads bearing seeds with a zipper-like appearance on the seed stalk. Goosegrass grows well on heavily compacted soils.

Any management practice that increases the density and vigor of desirable turfgrasses tends to discourage competition from weeds. Cultural practices for the control of summer annual grass weeds are aimed at shading and crowding the young weed seedlings by producing a dense sod.

Effective cultural control measures include the proper selection and establishment of turfgrasses, adequate liming and fertilization, proper mowing practices, judicious watering, and insect and disease control.

Turfgrasses that are not adapted to the environmental conditions and intended use of the turf may become weak and result in a thin stand. When there are voids in the turf, weeds have an opportunity to grow and compete with the desirable species. The use of proper establishment procedures helps ensure a dense turf that will compete with germinating weed seedlings.

Inadequate liming and fertilization lessens the competitiveness of turfgrasses, resulting in reduced density and subsequent weed invasion. Complete soil testing is the key to proper liming and fertilization. Soil testing can provide guidelines for fertilization and liming to establish and maintain turf grasses.

Adequate nitrogen should be supplied to favor the desirable species in the stand. Phosphorus fertilization increases seedling vigor and is one factor in reducing weed infestations in newly established turf. Liming keeps the soil from becoming too acid.

Improper mowing is one of the most common causes of weed invasion. Mowing heights that are too short result in weakened turfgrasses. Most lawns should be cut at least two inches or higher.

Improper watering also contributes to summer annual weed invasion. Frequent light watering encourages shallow rooting and promotes weak turf, which becomes susceptible to insect and disease attacks as well as damage from traffic.

Frequent light watering also encourages germination and development of crabgrass and goosegrass at the expense of turfgrasses. Watering deeply (four to six inches) just before the turf begins to wilt is a practical approach to a sound watering program.

Summer annual grass weeds are extremely opportunistic, filling in voids in turf caused by diseases and insects. Diseases can be controlled by cultural practices and with fungicides.

Insect damage can be reduced by maintaining a healthy turf and using biorational means of control, such as using endophyte-containing ryegrasses and fescues that discourage leaf- and stem-feeding insects.

There is pre-emergent and post-emergent chemical control. Chemical weed control with herbicides can help you produce a quality lawn.

It should not be undertaken unless accompanied by an adequate management program designed to prevent re-infestation. To use herbicides safely and successfully, read the manufacturer's label carefully and follow directions.

Answers to questions from e-mail bag

Q. My doctor ordered a TSH test. What is that?

The thyroid is a small, butterfly-shaped gland located in the middle of the lower neck. It produces hormones that control metabolism, which are the chemical processes in the body perform to keep us alive.

It should come as no surprise that the thyroid gland often peters out as we get older. The thyroid stimulating hormone (TSH) test checks to see if your thyroid is producing the right amount of hormone for your system. If the gland is making too much hormone, you get hyperthyroidism; if it makes too little, you get hypothyroidism.

Hypothyroidism is very common in people over 60 years of age; the incidence of it steadily increases with age. About 25 percent of people in nursing homes may have undiagnosed hypothyroidism because the symptoms of this condition

HEALTHY GEEZER

By Fred Cicetti

can be misinterpreted as signs of aging.

The Thyroid Foundation of America recommends that people over 50 years old get a TSH test at least once every five years, and more often if there are symptoms. When thyroid disease is caught early, treatment can control the disorder even before the onset of symptoms.

The symptoms of hypothyroidism include: fatigue, intolerance to cold, constipation, forgetfulness, muscle cramps, hair loss, depression, weight gain, dry skin, hoarseness and mood swings.

The symptoms of hyperthyroidism include: weight loss (not always in seniors), heat intolerance, hyperactivity, muscle weakness, palpitations, tremors, nervousness, irritability, insomnia, enlarged thyroid gland, frequent bowel movements, vision problems or eye irritation.

Q. I recall an episode of "Seinfeld" that got a lot of laughs about man breasts. I have them and it's not funny. Is there a cure?

Breast enlargement in males is common. About 30 percent of older men have this condition, which can be caused by hormonal changes or simple weight gain.

When the usual balance of the female hormone estrogen and the male hormone testosterone in a man shifts, he can get gynecomastia, which is derived from two Greek words that mean woman and breast.

Males normally produce small quantities of estrogen to regulate bone density, sperm production and mood. Natural hormonal changes that lead to gynecomastia occur not only in old age but also during infancy and adolescence.

Gynecomastia can be caused by a health problem such as liver, kidney or thyroid diseases. And, this condition can also result from drinking alcohol or taking drugs such as steroids, marijuana, amphetamines and heroin. There are medications that can cause gynecomastia, too.

If you have enlarged breasts, see your doctor for a check-up. Enlarged breasts can be a symptom of breast cancer or a testicular tumor.

Gynecomastia usually will go away without treatment. This condition is often treated with drugs. Sometimes, enlarged breasts are reduced surgically.

Q. Can copper bracelets treat arthritis?

There is no scientific evidence that copper bracelets do anything more than make a fashion statement. However, there is no proof that the bracelets don't provide relief to arthritis sufferers.

Copper bracelets for arthritis have been around for a century or more. Many people swear that they work. Some doctors suspect that the positive reports are based upon symptoms going away by themselves.

Folk remedies like copper bracelets seem to be harmless. However, they often delay effective medical treatment, so these so-called "cures" are not completely benign.

Entry information available for Allentown Fair contests

The Great Allentown Fair's Premium List booklets, that detail the procedures for entering and categories for the fair's blue ribbon competitions, are now available at the Allentown Fairground's main and box offices

PSF versions of each book are available for downloading at the fair's Web site, allentownfairpa.org.

Placement ribbons and cash prizes are awarded in each of the exhibitor categories judged the weekend before and throughout fair week, Aug. 27 - Sept. 2. There are contests for youths in addition to the all-age categories.

Amateur crafters, collectors, cooks, photographers and others with talents have the opportunity to compete as well as area farmers and gardeners.

Entries in competitive exhibit categories will be displayed inside Agri-Plex, the exhibit hall, sponsored by Lehigh Valley Health Network.

There are two separate guideline booklets, one for Agri-Plex entries and one for livestock entries, including livestock, fowl and rabbits. The deadline for livestock entries was July 20. The deadline for Agri-Plex entries is 6 p.m. Aug. 3. Ways to register are listed in the booklet.

Each day of the fair, culinary contests are offered at the Culinary Contest Stage presented by PenTeleData. The 12 corporate-sponsored culinary contests, described in the Premium List, have separate applications for entry, offer either substantial prize money or gifts and in some cases, the opportunity to go on to state or national competitions.

The fair's 2013 western theme, "Rootin' Tootin' Fun," is the inspiration for entries in contests such as the Lehigh Valley Cake Decorating Spectacular sponsored by the Allentown Fairgrounds Farmers Market, the Grange Association displays and the Table Setting competition.

The Fair typically exhibits more than 1,200 farm animals and more than 9,000 products from farms, gardens and homes including arts and crafts.

As an example of the number of award categories, there are 145 types of vegetables judged, excluding potatoes, the latter a vegetable with its own department with 15 different varieties represented.

Premium lists and applications for the special contests can be picked up at the fair office behind the Ritz Barbecue on the Allentown Fairgrounds at 17th and Chew streets, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Mondays - Fridays or at: allentownfairpa.org, and downloading the list and applications there.

Information: 610-433-7541

Renaud makes 'DM2' fun

"Despicable Me 2" has nearly all the things you would want to see and hear in an animated feature family comedy.

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein

"Don't Stop the Party," Pitbull; and "YMCA," The Village People.

The characters are drawn with large heads, comparable to bobble head dolls. The characters' eyes are large, too, and have a porcelain quality to them, which enhances emotions. The characters have a plastic, three-dimensionality so ingratiating you want to buy the toy figures and product tie-ins.

There is lots of side business for each character in "DM2," including asides, gestures and reactions that give the film a depth and entertainment value lacking in many recent lackluster animation features.

Carell again invokes a vaguely eastern European pseudo-Slavic-Russian accent for Gru. His voice and the character are hilarious. Wiig, as Lucy, is the next most noteworthy among voices and characters.

The "DM2" voice talent includes Benjamin Bratt (Eduardo-El Macho), Miranda Cosgrove (Margo), Russell Brand (Dr. Nefario), Ken Jeong (Floyd), Steve Coogan (Silas), Elsie Fisher (Agnes) and Kristen Schaal (Shannon).

Two quibbles: In the screenplay by Ken Daurio and Cinco Paul ("Despicable Me," "Horton Hears a Who!"), the characterization and handling of the Eduardo character is insensitive with respect to Latinos and that of the Shannon is overly harsh with respect to young women.

Coffin voices several of the lead Minions, including Kevin, Bob, Stuart, additional Minions and Evil Minions. Renaud voices additional Minions, Evil Minions and Italian Waiter.

"Despicable Me 2" has the wackiness of a Warner Brothers Looney Tunes. It's silly summer movie fun for nearly the entire family.

"Despicable Me 2," MPAA Rated PG (Guidance Suggested. Some Material May Not Be Suitable For Children) for rude humor and mild action; Genre: Animation, Comedy, Family; Run time: 1 hr., 48 min.; Distributed by Universal Pictures.

Credit Readers Anonymous: Minions Movie Auditions are held at the top of the "Despicable Me 2" closing credits.

Box Office, July 19: "The Conjuring" scared up $41.5 million, to open at No. 1, dropping "Despicable Me 2" to No. 2, with $25 million and $276.1 million, three weeks, and keeping "Turbo" stuck at No. 3, with $21.5 million, for the weekend, and $31.2 million, since opening July 17.

4. "Grown Ups 2," $20 million, $79.5 million, two weeks; 5. "Red 2," $18.5 million, opening; 6. "Pacific Rim," $15.9 million, $68.2 million, two weeks; 7. "R.I.P.D.," $12.7 million, opening; 8. "The Heat," $9.3 million, $129.2 million, four weeks; 9. "World War Z," $5.2 million, $186.9 million, five weeks; 10. "Monsters University," $5 million, $248.9 million, five weeks

Unreel: Aug. 2: "2 Guns," R: Mark Wahlberg and Denzel Washington star in the action-comedy about a DEA agent and Naval intelligence officer who have been set up by the mob. Paula Patton and Edward James Olmos co-star.

"The Smurfs 2," PG: The Smurfs are in Paris to rescue Smurfette, who has been kidnapped by Gargamel. Smurfette knows how the Naughties are turned into Smurfs. The voice talent in the animated feature includes that of Hank Azaria, Neil Patrick Harris and Katy Perry.

"The Spectacular Now," R: A high-school senior's philosophy is changed by a female student. Shailene Woodley, Mary Elizabeth Winstead, Miles Teller, Tyler Chandler and Jennifer Jason Leigh star in the comedy-drama.

A berry happy fest

David and Nick Kaerecher fry funnel cakes while people wait in line during the recent strawberry festival at Holy Trinity Church, Slatedale. For the first time, musical entertainment by the Quartet of Five, was added to the festival.

Lori and Peter Hess choose the baskets they hope to win. Peter is the son of the Rev. David Hess.

TAX CLAIM BUREAU TAX SALE NOTICE

To all owners of properties described in this notice and to all persons having liens, judgments or municipal or other claims against such properties:

NOTICE is hereby given by the Tax Claim Bureau in and for the County of Lehigh under the Real Estate Tax Sale Law, Act of July 7, 1947 P.L. 1368, as amended, that said Bureau will expose at public sale in the Lehigh County Government Center, at 17 South Seventh Street, in the City of Allentown, Pennsylvania commencing at 10:00 o'clock a.m. Wednesday, September 11, 2013 for the purpose of collecting unpaid taxes, municipal claims and all costs incident thereto, the following described real estate for at least the UPSET PRICE in the respective amounts herein below approximately set forth. The SALE of any of the properties herein described may at the option of the Bureau be stayed if the owners thereof or any lien creditor of the owner enters into an agreement with the Bureau to pay the taxes, claims and costs in installments in the manner provided by said Act and the agreement to be entered into.

If an owner of property subject to the tax sale is sixty-five (65) years of age or older, he may be eligible for tax deferral in accordance with County Ordinance 2003 No. 167.

TERMS OF SALE - As soon as the property is struck down, the purchaser shall be liable for the entire purchase price, including all Realty Transfer Taxes and Recording Fees to the Bureau in the form of CASHIER'S CHECK, CERTIFIED CHECK or MONEY ORDER payable to the County of Lehigh. NO PERSONAL CHECKS, BUSINESS CHECKS OR CASH WILL BE ACCEPTED. Payment must be made by 3:00 p.m. the date of the sale.

Properties located in the various taxing units or subdivisions thereof will be sold on the dates specified in the Conditions of Upset Sale or on any other day to which a sale may be adjourned or continued.

Every such sale shall convey title to the property under and subject to the lien of every recorded obligation, claim, lien, estate, mortgage or ground rent with which said property may have or shall become charged or for which it may become liable.

Properties may be REDEEMED up to the time that the successful bidder at the tax sale pays the entire purchase price, including all Realty Transfer Taxes and Recording Fees to the Tax Claim Bureau.

Timothy A. Reeves, Director Tax Claim Bureau County of Lehigh Government Center

CONDITIONS OF UPSET SALE

All bidders registered prior to 1/1/2013 will be required to re-register prior to the sale.

A $500 cashier's check, certified check, or money order will be required at the time of each winning bid. This $500 is non-refundable and will be applied towards the upset sale price as a credit (in the event of default as liquidating damages) with the balance due by 3:00 p.m. on the date of sale.

The following conditions shall govern the sale of properties for delinquent taxes scheduled by the Lehigh County Tax Claim Bureau for September 11, 2013 at 10:00 a.m. in the Public Hearing Room at the Lehigh County Government Center, 17 South Seventh Street, Allentown, Pennsylvania. Payment of taxes by or on behalf of an owner on the day of the sale, before receipt of full payment by the successful bidder, will take precedence over the Tax Claim Bureau sale, thus voiding the sale.

All persons desiring to bid on any property offered for sale shall be required to register for the sale with the Lehigh County Tax Claim Bureau. Registration must be in person at the offices of the Tax Claim Bureau, Lehigh County Government Center, Room 119, 17 South Seventh Street, Allentown, Pennsylvania, 610-782-3119. The Lehigh County Tax Claim Bureau opens at 8:00 a.m. on the date of the sale. Prospective bidders may register at any time prior to commencement of the sale. Registrants will be required to present current photographic identification at the time of registration, and comply with all other requirements of the Tax Claim Bureau. A PERSON WHO IS NOT REGISTERED WILL NOT BE ALLOWED TO BID AT THE SALE.

All properties are sold pursuant to the Act of July 7, 1947, Public Law 1368, No. 542, as amended, known as the Real Estate Tax Sale Law. No properties shall be struck down unless a bid equal to the Upset Price amount at the sale is made which shall include 2012 real estate taxes.

As soon as the property is struck down, the purchaser shall be liable for the entire purchase price. Payments must be made by 3:00 p.m. on the date of the sale. Payment to the Bureau may be in the form of cashier's check, certified check or money order with the remitter being the successful bidder payable to the County of Lehigh. NO CASH OR PERSONAL/BUSINESS CHECKS WILL BE ACCEPTED.

All sales are subject to absolute confirmation by the Court of Common Pleas of Lehigh County and will be submitted to said Court for confirmation nisi not later than sixty (60) days after the time scheduled for said sale.

After the Court of Common Pleas has issued the Order of Absolute Confirmation of the Consolidated Return of the Upset Tax Sale, the Tax Claim Bureau will issue a deed to the successful bidder. The deed will not contain any warranty either general or special and the deed shall be recorded immediately before delivery to the purchaser, at the cost of the purchaser.

In addition to the bid price as above stated, the successful bidder shall pay to the Tax Claim Bureau the costs of recording the deed, as established by the Recorder of Deeds in and for Lehigh County, Pennsylvania and the applicable transfer taxes, pursuant to Pennsylvania Department of Revenue rules and regulations. The Bureau shall issue a receipt to the successful bidder for the same.

In addition, the successful bidder shall provide the Bureau with the appropriate owner's address to be certified on the deed for the use of the Bureau, the Recorder of Deeds Office, and the Assessment Office. All properties sold are subject to entry fees imposed by the Clerk of Courts, Civil Division in addition to Recording Costs, Transfer Taxes, etc. aforesaid.

All properties are sold subject to existing tenancies. For all properties sold, purchaser takes title subject to all liens, according to law.

All properties are sold as described on the dockets of the Lehigh County Tax Claim Bureau. The Bureau makes no representation or warranty as to description, nor will it make survey on a property sold. The rule of Caveat Emptor (buyer beware) applies. (See 72 P.S. § 5531.)

Under Sections 619a of the Real Estate Tax Sale Law (72 P.S. § 5860.619a), the successful bidder will be required to sign an affidavit certifying that he or she is not delinquent in paying real estate taxes to any of the taxing districts where the property bid on is located, and has no municipal utility bills that are more than one year outstanding.

Any property listed for this Upset Sale but not sold because the purchase money is not tendered in the required form, or for any other reason, may be offered for sale at a later date to be decided upon. The Bureau reserves the right to pursue its legal remedies against a successful bidder who fails to pay the purchase price. Failure to comply with the conditions of sale may result in the bidder being banned from future sales.

Any refund shall be paid to the registered bidder, unless directed otherwise by court order.

The next highest bidder has the opportunity to register his or her bid at the time of a sale, in the event the successful bidder on that property fails to meet the Conditions of the Upset Sale.

Bid increments will be at least $500.00.

ZONING HEARING BOARD
JULY 31, 2013

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE FOLLOWING APPELLANTS HAVE FILED AN APPEAL FOR A PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE ZONING HEARING BOARD OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BETHLEHEM, A HEARING TO BE HELD AT 6:30 PM ON WEDNESDAY, JULY 31st, 2013 AT THE TOWNSHIP MUNICIPAL BUILDING, 4225 EASTON AVENUE, BETHLEHEM, PA 18020. THE MEETING, AMONG OTHER ISSUES, CONCERNS THE FOLLOWING ZONING APPEALS:

Appeal #9-2013 is a continuance for BT Management LLC, equitable owner of the Real Estate under development at 7065-A William Penn Highway, commonly known as William Penn Commons. The applicant requests variances from Section 275-162 and Section 275-171C of the Bethlehem Township Zoning Ordinance, as amended to construct an identification sign. The property is located within the "MHR" Medium High Density Residential Zoning District/Commercial Enhancement Overlay District. The property maintains Northampton County Tax Parcel Identification number M8 2 9A 0205.

Appeal #10-2013: Scott and Keri Fleming, residing at 4470 Fairway Drive, Bethlehem Township, PA seek dimensional variances from Section 275-34E(1) and Section 275-171B(3) of the Bethlehem Township Zoning Ordinance, as amended, for permission to encroach upon both front yard setbacks on a corner lot situated at Fairway Drive and Westwood Drive. The dimension required by Zoning Code is a 50 foot setback from the property line along each road. The applicants propose a setback of 42.5 feet from Westwood Drive in order to place a roof over an existing porch. Therefore a variance of 7.5 feet is being sought. The applicants also propose a setback of 46 feet along Fairway Drive to construct a 23-ft x 13.5-ft residential addition to the home. Therefore a variance of 4 feet is being sought. Section 275-171B(3) requires that setback areas equal to the minimum front yard setbacks must be provided, while the applicants wish to encroach upon those areas by 7.5 feet and 4 feet, respectively. The property is located within the "RR" Rural Residential Zoning District. The property maintains Northampton County Tax Parcel Identification number M8 4 21A-5 0205.

All interested parties are invited to attend and be heard. Deborah Roseberry Zoning Officer Telephone: (610) 814-6464 July 17, 24
