BASD Student data, charter trends

Board reviews state
district size report

BY HEATHER NIGRONE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The Bethlehem School Board took a moment at the Oct. 15 Human Resources Committee meeting to reflect on student enrollment data. This data is due to the state each year on Oct. 1, and reflects enrollment as of that date, although for a district the size of Bethlehem that data can fluctuate week to week.

The district was down only five students compared to last school year, with a total of 13,662 students. Board members questioned why Marvine ES had the lowest incoming kindergarten size, and the lowest number of students overall. Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy indicated that the nearby Lincoln ES and Freemansburg ES were able to accommodate a few open enrollment requests, increasing the attendance numbers at those schools. The open enrollment process allows students to attend another elementary school within the district, as long as the student meets certain behavioral and attendance milestones. Dr. Roy indicated that the majority of these requests are related to the proximity of the three elementary schools, and a number of the students live right around the borders. He added that with Eric Fontanez taking over as principal of Marvine, Fontanez is devising a community interaction push to increase public interest in education at Marvine.

The discussion then moved onto charter school attendance rates, as each student who attends a charter school is an additional cost to the district. This school year there are 22 charter schools with students

Instructor of the Master Pumpkin Carving class, Dave Dion, demonstrates how to properly use the tools to sculpt a design Oct. 18 at Northampton Community College. This was the first class of its kind, but hopefully will become a festive annual event. More photos on A2.

Pumpkin-sculpting It's not just your everyday Jack O' Lantern

BY LESLIE REGAN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Several creative adults gathered at Northampton Community College Oct. 18 for a master pumpkin carving class in preparation for the Halloween season. The class was taught over two days to ensure plenty of time for participants to carve their very own 30-40 pound pumpkins.

The instructor, Dave Dion, was not just teaching how to carve your everyday Jack O' Lantern. This carving project was much more complex, and often involved sculpting a full face with detailed noses,

Some choose to sculpt friendly faced pumpkins, but all designs were festive and creative.

eyes, and mouths. Dion was happy to start a new Halloween art tradition in the Lehigh Valley. Referring to his new class, he said, "We started last night and will finish tonight. It's the first of its kind and we are really excited about it." Dave guided his class through advanced carving techniques and procedures. The class took place in the school's new Fab Lab, a specialized center for arts, crafts and photography which includes state-of-the-art technologies such as 3D printers, wood shop machinery, and laser cutters. This modern workplace was a perfect spot to host the pumpkin sculpting event. After being taught how to use the necessary tools, each adult got right to work on his or her masterpiece. At the end of the second class, they would walk away with a detailed image of their choosing, and a festive decoration for the upcoming holiday.

Each class participant learned how to use a sculpting tool to create their own advanced Halloween decoration. The carving process took place over two class days.

Participants work diligently to carve detailed faces into their pumpkins. This was not your average Jack O' Lantern, and took a lot of time and effort to perfect.

COMPILED BY NATE JASTRZEMSKI

Assault

Police arrested Timothy Rollins, 29, of Michael Street, for allegedly attacking his girlfriend around 3:30 a.m. Oct. 18.

According to police, Rollins attacked the woman and grabbed her by the neck, strangling her several times.

Rollins is charged with harassment, strangulation, and simple and aggravated assault.

Assault

A 28-year-old woman allegedly entered the East Morton Street Pantry One Oct. 14 and attacked someone with a knife.

Police said around 4:40 a.m. LisMarie Diaz-Rodriguez, of Evans Street, began throwing food items and then slashed another person with a knife, causing a minor injury.

Diaz-Rodriguez is charged with harassment, disorderly conduct and aggravated assault.

Disorderly conduct

Police cited four people while intervening with an allegedly intoxicated man in the 500 block of Main Street around 2:30 a.m. Oct. 14.

Police said they were taking into custody 27-year-old Roberto Vadillo, of South West Street in Allentown, for disorderly conduct and public drunkenness, when he resisted arrest and a confrontation ensued.

Twenty-five-year-old Andrea Penagos of North Third Street in Whitehall, Vadillo's friend, allegedly interfered in his arrest, and is charged with public drunkenness, obstruction and disorderly conduct.

Raquel Mora, 25, of South 10th Street in Allentown allegedly kicked an officer repeatedly in the leg, and is charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, public drunkenness and aggravated assault.

A final woman, of Eighth Avenue, allegedly hit and spit at others present, but her prosecution was declined.

from Bethlehem; this includes one less cyber charter school being attended this year, and one brick and mortar charter being attended as well. The district currently has 217 students attending cyber charter schools, although the district does offer its own cyber programming for students that are interested. Overall, charter schools are drawing in 2,099 Bethlehem students, a 6 percent increase over last year.

Roy said the Executive Education Academy Charter School has the most notable growth over the past few years, and has become an expense of nearly $2.5 million annually from taxpayer money. He went on to add that Executive Education Academy had a large advertising campaign a few years ago that simply stated "free lunch and free transportation," and that BASD has numerous concerns with the charter. The board's primary concerns are that the school does not really function well, mandatory test results show performance and learning at levels considered to be lower than BASD, and there are frequent behavioral problems that occur on the buses

GENERAL ELECTION 2018

ALL CANDIDATE PHOTOS ARE CONTRIBUTED

PA. GOVERNOR

Democrat Tom Wolf is being challenged by Republican Scott R. Wagner, Green Party Paul Glover and Libertarian Ken V. Krawchuk. The candidates were asked to respond to the following question in 100 words or less.

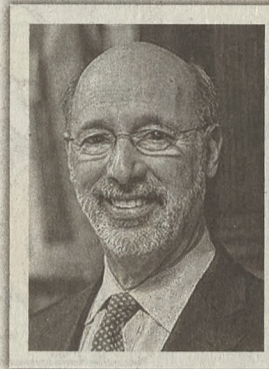

ISSUES

What is the most important issue to the residents of Pennsylvania?

Democrat Tom Wolf

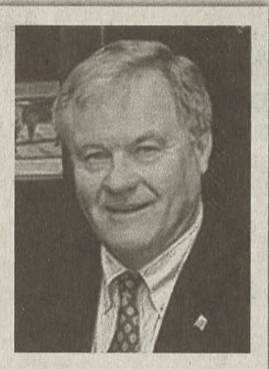

Pennsylvanians want to continue moving our commonwealth forward. I am moving Pennsylvania forward by prioritizing issues that matter most to Pennsylvanians, such as ensuring that our children have access to a quality education, which is why I fully restored Harrisburg Republicans' $1 billion cut to education and invested in career and technical education. I also provided more than 720,000 Pennsylvanians with healthcare by expanding Medicaid, reduced the uninsured rate to its lowest rate ever, and gave over 50,000 more seniors the ability to age in their homes. I will continue to work to move Pennsylvania forward by building on this progress.

Republican Scott R. Wagner

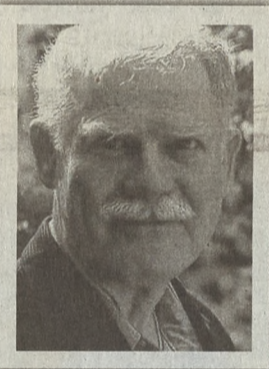

Our Social Security system is a valuable and important social tool supporting our citizens. I believe it must be protected and any changes made must guarantee its long term availability. As Governor, I will work with the federal government to ensure any proposed changes to our social security system are not to the detriment of our citizens who have paid into the system. We must all work together, striving to continue this necessary social service. Furthermore, we must eliminate the currently crushing property taxes being placed on our citizens. Seniors should not be forced from their homes or forced to borrow money to make those payments.

Green Party Paul Glover

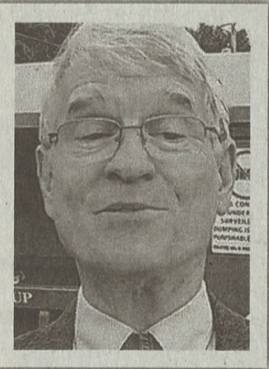

The most important issue facing Pennsylvania is job creation that reduces our costs of food, fuel, housing, health care, finance and government. To do this I'd shift the State budget to start the Green Labor Administration (GLAD), which would create 500,000 green jobs without raising taxes. My book "Green Jobs Philly" offers a detailed plan for this program. Expanding such jobs dissolves the divide between liberals and conservatives - because we all need secure homes, good work, affordable medical care, healthy food and water, plus education that inspires a love of learning.

Libertarian Ken V. Krawchuk

The candidate did not respond to our request by press time.

PA. LT. GOVERNOR

The candidates: Democrat John Fetterman, Republican Jeff Bartos, Green Party Jocelyn Bowser-Bostick and Libertarian Kathleen S. Smith. The candidates were asked to respond to the following question in 100 words or less.

ISSUES

What is the most important issue to the residents of Pennsylvania?

Democrat John Fetterman

Quality education, healthcare, gun violence, protecting the union way of life...I don't know that there is one issue that is more pressing over the other, and these many issues are more interconnected than we may think. Should I be elected your next Lt Governor, I will fight along side Governor Wolf to make sure that no Pennsylvanian is left behind. The most urgent issue in this very moment is that there is an election on Nov. 6, and that every Pennsylvanian needs to come out and vote!

Republican Jeff Bartos

Our Social Security system is a valuable and important social tool supporting our citizens. It must be protected and any changes must guarantee its long-term availability. I will work to ensure any changes to our social security system are not to the detriment of our citizens who have paid into the system. We must eliminate the crushing property taxes. Seniors should not be forced from their homes or forced to borrow money to make those payments.

Green Party Jocelyn Bowser-Bostick

Eliminating social injustices are paramount to my constituents and the various issues covered by this goal must be tackled together if our society wants progress on any of them. I will focus on reducing all forms of discrimination, poverty, mass incarceration and government corruption; graduating more people from high school, college, and trade schools; increasing energy efficiency and our reliance on clean and renewable energy sources to 100 percent by 2050 so that public health and safety are improved, good-paying green jobs multiply and climate change is mitigated; and providing comprehensive government-funded single payer health care to all Pennsylvanians.

Libertarian Kathleen S. Smith

Pennsylvanians have a wide range of concerns, but everyone worries about the opioid crisis and its effects. Every aspect of family and community life is affected. The Krawchuk /Smith plan would pardon all non-violent drug offenders; expunge records to open access to education, licenses, and jobs; shift funding from jails to community-based, long-term treatment programs; and push the legislature to de-criminalize use. We'd urge that coroners check medical records in any overdose death, and notify physicians who treated the deceased that their patient had died of an overdose - a simple action that has shown to change doctor's protocols.

GENERAL ELECTION 2018

ALL CANDIDATE PHOTOS ARE CONTRIBUTED

U.S. SENATOR

Democrat Bob Casey Jr. is being challenged by Republican Lou Barletta, Green Party Neal Gale and Libertarian Dale R. Kerns Jr. The candidates were asked to respond to the following question in 100 words or less.

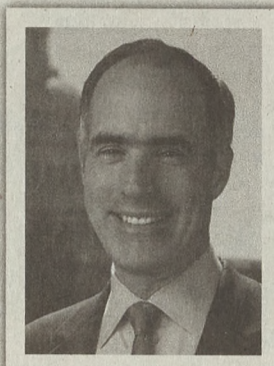

Social Security

Do you have a concern about Social Security and if so, what is the solution to ensure money will be available to those who need it and have contributed for many years?

Democratic Bob Casey Jr.

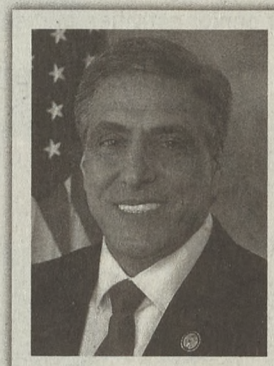

As the Ranking Member of the Special Committee on Aging, I am one of the leading voices in the Senate for protecting Social Security. Social Security, along with Medicare, are benefits Pennsylvania seniors have earned through a lifetime of hard work, and I will always oppose any effort to undermine them. The United States has the most prosperous economy in the world. We can honor our promises to seniors without privatizing or voucherizing the benefits they have earned. In the Senate, I've worked to strengthen these programs and protect Pennsylvania seniors.

Republican Lou Barletta

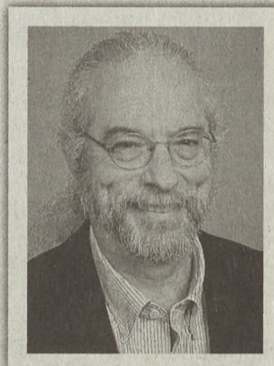

I have never and will never support cutting Social Security for seniors. However, the Social Security Administration projects that reserve funds will run out by 2037. The best way to solve this looming crisis is by growing the economy to increase Social Security funds. Under the current administration, there are more jobs than people who are unemployed, wages are rising and the economy grew by 4.2 percent. By unleashing economic growth to broaden the tax base of workers paying into these programs, we can continue to support these critical programs for future generations.

Green Party Neal Gale

I am concerned about Social Security and Medicare, not because I believe they will become insolvent. That is not a question of financial soundness, but one of political will and intention. I believe our leaders are prioritizing the money we spend to favor the wealthiest among us at the expense of the rest of us. I will work to re-prioritize the federal budget, moving funds away from military expenditures like upgrading our nuclear arsenal, and redistribute those dollars to bolster programs designed to help all of our people, like Social Security.

Libertarian Dale R. Kerns Jr.

The candidate did not respond to our request by press time.

U.S. HOUSE REPRESENTATIVE PA. 7TH DISTRICT

What the candidates say ...

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Lehigh Valley voters will decide Nov. 6 who will succeed Charlie Dent as their next representative in Congress, with an annual salary of $174,000. In some parts of the Lehigh Valley, there are actually two races - a special election in Pa-15 to fill the vacancy created when Dent suddenly resigned; and a regular election in the newly created Pa-7. Since those districts have different demographics, it is entirely possible that one candidate could win the special election while another is the victor in regular race.

There are three candidates. Republican Marty Nothstein, an Olympic gold medalist, owns a carwash, operates the family farm and chairs Lehigh County's Board of Commissioners. Democrat Susan Wild was a partner at the Gross McGinley law firm and was briefly Allentown's City Solicitor. Libertarian Tim Silfies is a former business reporter at Fox News and WFMZ-TV69 and also produced several television programs.

To their credit, these candidates have participated in numerous debates. The first of these encounters took place on WDIY-FM's Lehigh Valley Discourse, hosted by Alan Jennings. He encouraged the candidates to speak at length about their positions, without interruption. The final encounter was a League of Women Voters-sponsored debate at Gracedale chapel, under the glare of cameras and a raucous audience that constantly interrupted with boos and cheers. Based on these debates, here's what the candidates say.

Foreign policy

Silfies said there are "good things and bad things" about Trump's foreign policy. He objected to hardcore rhetoric toward North Korea, but liked it when Trump actually sat down with Kim Jong Un.

Nothstein

Silfies said he is a "non-interventionist."

Wild answered that the United States "needs to get back to being a diplomatic leader in this world." She charged Trump with "eviscerating" the diplomatic corps and the state department. She said Trump has failed to work with our allies. She accused him of "bending over for autocrats" at the expense of long-standing allies.

Nothstein lauded Trump for his willingness to sit down with foreign leaders. He declared we need to "take care of America first." He defended Trump as the "ultimate outsider" who ignores the traditional approach. He admitted that everyone "cringes at times," but said Trump intent is good.

Minimum wage

Nothstein said a minimum wage should be dictated by the markets and state government. He calls minimum wage jobs stepping stones to better jobs.

Silfies said that, as a reporter, he heard what impact this has on small business. "The people we want to help end up getting hurt," he observed. There would be unintended consequences.

Wild argued the minimum wage should be a "living wage" instead of an "abysmal" $7.25 per hour. She wants to phase in a higher minimum wage until it reaches $15 per hour. "The more money we put into the pockets of the average worker, the more those workers are able to consume the kinds of things that build our economy."

Student loan debt

Wild said college should be more affordable. Student debt should be restructured. She argued it's "outrageous" that interest rates on student loans are higher than on her mortgage and car loan. Nothstein slammed predatory for-profit colleges that have catchy marketing plans and load students up with debt, and the students end up unable to graduate. He also pointed out that the cost of education has skyrocketed. Silfies asked, "Why does everyone need to go to college?" He's done stories about welders and machinists who start at $60,000. He also argued that college cost goes up because administrators know that the government is willing to give loans.

Money in politics

Wild says voters are discouraged "because people perceive, probably correctly, that Washington is run by special interests and corporate interests." She refused to accept any corporate PAC money. She adds, "We are way too polarized."

Her funding dwarfs the other candidates. As of Oct. 1, she raised $2.4 million. Only $341,756 of her total, or 15 percent, comes from Pennsylvania. The rest is outside money.

By contrast, Nothstein has raised $856,359, including $145,000 of his own money. He claims most of his money comes from the district, but FEC reports show that only 26 percent of his total funding comes from Pennsylvania.

Silfies reports having raised $48,276. Of this total, $33,975 came out of his own pocket.

In the Business Matters debate, Wild defended the money she received, saying most of it comes in the form of very small donations. According to the FEC website, only 13 percent, of her total contributions come from donations under $200. In the Gracedale debate, Silfies accused Wild of hypocrisy for claiming to represent the common man, but taking more than a quarter million dollars from one PAC composed of Wall Street bigwigs who want power and influence. "She talks about sensible policy in the Middle East, and she takes PAC money from PACs that get their money from Boeing, Lockheed Martin," he observed. "These are the backbone of the military industrial complex. These are companies that profit from selling arms for wars."

Taxes

Wild said most of the recent tax cuts go to the wealthy 1 percent and major corporations. She agrees tax reform is needed, but calls President Donald Trump's latest proposed middle class tax cut an "election year stunt."

Nothstein sharply disagreed, saying he's met to and from the school. Nearly 100 percent of the students the charter attracts from BASD are Latino or Hispanic students, and BASD is hopeful that with elementary Spanish and other language initiatives, they can reduce the number of students choosing the charter school. In a further effort to understand the increasing enrollment, Principals from each school reached out to the families with students at the Charter to understand why they choose Executive Education Academy. The overall majority of answers were that parents liked the uniforms, and that with a longer school day parents have decreased or eliminated childcare costs. The board concluded that although they respect that the decision to send a child to the charter is a private family decision, and understand that finances can be a large determining factor, they couldn't help but be concerned about the quality of education the students are receiving.

Conversely the board also noticed that attendance at the Lehigh Valley Academy Charter School seems to decrease throughout middle school and high school years. Dr. Roy noted that this Academy seems to have an "elementary phenomenon" drawing in the youngest aged children, but by middle school and high school, the opportunities available at Bethlehem typically draw students out of the charter. He added that the charter lacks advanced course work, music, band, musicals, clubs and athletics that are available at the middle school and high school levels with BASD. He also added that with the Reading by Grade 3 initiative, elementary mathematics programming and now the elementary Spanish program, parents are taking a risk in sending their children to many of these charter schools.

STATE REPRESENTATIVE 138TH DISTRICT PA 7TH

Republican incumbent state Rep. Marcia Hahn will face two challengers in the race to represent the 138th Legislative District. Democrat Dean Donaher and Libertarian Jake Towne are also vying for the seat. The 138th Legislative District includes, in Northampton County, the townships of Bethlehem (wards 1, 3-division 4 and 4), Bushkill, East Allen, Hanover, Lower Nazareth, Moore (Eastern and Point Phillips districts) and Plainfield and the Boroughs of Bath, Chapman, Pen Argyl and Wind Gap.

truck drivers and construction workers who could take their children to the shore for the first time in seven years as a result of those tax cuts. "Last time I checked, middle class wasn't 1 percent," he said to Wild at the Gracedale debate. "So I don't know who you're hanging around with, aside from your donors. These tax cuts are helping people. These are hard-working, hard-hat-wearing, backhoe-driving people who are seeing more money in their pockets, and they like the tax cuts."

"Tax cuts are good," said Silfies. But he pointed out that the national debt is $21 trillion, and neither of the major parties is willing to cut spending.

Affordable Care Act

Silfies would like to see more free-market solutions. He noted Lasik eye surgery is paid for by individuals, and prices have gone down.

"Health care is a right, not a privilege," Wild said. She argued that Medicare should be allowed to negotiate drug prices to make it more efficient. Nothstein agreed health care costs have risen dramatically, but that Washington needs to stay out of it.

He defended himself from campaign ads accusing him of wanting to deny coverage for pre-existing conditions or household members under age 26. He favors keeping that part of the Affordable Care Act and decreasing premiums to expand the field of insurers to decrease premiums.

Opioid Crisis

We asked the candidates to respond to the following question: Is enough being done on the state level to battle the opioid crisis?

Democrat Dean Donaher

There are too many families broken apart by opioid addiction – and too many deaths. I have been endorsed by the Opioid Crisis Action Network because of my strong policy positions on combatting the opioid epidemic that plagues our communities. Mandating coverage for long-term care for no less than 90 days is critical for treatment. Mandated coverage of medication-assisted treatment is also necessary for those who face opioid addiction.

Addiction is not a choice; it's a disease. When it comes to this public health crisis in our communities, we should be working together to find solutions that will help save lives.

Republican Marcia Hahn

The opioid crisis and property tax elimination are my top priorities. I am committed to work with law enforcement, health care professionals and elected officials to combat this drug crisis and win the heroin and opioid epidemic battle currently affecting our communities.

This session, I authored Act 47, which gives parents/guardians the right to consent for treatment of their minor child. Other legislation that passed:

- Drug and Alcohol Detoxification Program (Act 20)
- Created standards for drug and alcohol recovery houses (Act 59)
- Updated school drug and alcohol instruction for opioid abuse prevention, emphasizing the epidemic and addiction to heroin (Act 55)

Libertarian Jake Towne

No, the drug war has ruined countless lives and cost exorbitant sums of money, just like alcohol prohibition in the 1920s. Addiction is a medical problem, not a criminal issue. I believe Harrisburg should end the "war" on drugs by decriminalizing nonviolent drug use. Pennsylvania could follow the path of Portugal, which has seen sharp drops in addiction and drug use by reforms consisting of drug decriminalization, medical care and empathy. Legalizing drugs will eradicate violent drug cartels along with wasteful spending of taxpayer dollars on enforcement costs by police, judges and prosecutors whose jobs depend on the drug war.

GENERAL ELECTION 2018

ALL CANDIDATE PHOTOS ARE CONTRIBUTED

STATE REPRESENTATIVE
134TH DISTRICT

Democrat Tom Applebach is challenging incumbent Republican Ryan E. Mackenzie for the seat representing the 134th District. The candidates were asked to respond to the following question in 100 words or less.

Opioid Crisis

Is enough being done on the state level to battle the opioid crisis?

Democrat
Tom Applebach

"Right now I believe inroads have been made on many fronts - prescription control, citizen education, medical professional's attention to the problem. However, too many remain addicted, so we must continue to focus hard on treatment and recovery. The consequence has been the increase in Internet opioid purchase. In addition, we now have an expanding problem of counterfeit lookalikes that contain heroin and/or fentanyl.

State and local agencies are addressing the problem hard and the increased resources are undoubtedly making a difference. But we must remain vigilant and redirect resources as necessary to stem the tide."

Republican
Ryan E. Mackenzie

Communities, families, educators, service providers, and the government can all play a role in tackling the opioid crisis. We in the state Legislature have been diligently working to enact measures to help curb opioid abuse. Legislation I supported that has been signed into law has created a prescription drug monitoring database, improved education about drug abuse, increased funding for treatment, and authorized expanded access to overdose medications.

More must be done though and that is why I have authored legislation to rein in the overprescription of opioids. If re-elected, I plan to continue to push for these positive reforms.

STATE SENATOR 40TH

Two candidates are vying to unseat incumbent state Sen. Mario M. Scavello in a race serving the 40th District. Democrat Tarah Probst and Libertarian Adam Reinhardt will challenge incumbent Scavello. The 40th District includes, in Northampton County, boroughs of Bangor, Bath, Chapman, East Bangor, Nazareth, Pen Argyl, Portland, Roseto, Walnutport and Wind Gap and townships of Allen, Bushkill, East Allen, Forks, Hanover, Lehigh, Lower Mount Bethel, Lower Nazareth, Moore, Plainfield, Upper Mount Bethel, Upper Nazareth and Washington. We asked the candidates to respond to the following question.

School safety

Following passage of the comprehensive school safety law, what else do you believe needs to be done to keep children safe in school? Scavello did not respond by press time.

Democrat
Tarah Probst

I applaud the passage of Act 44 that restructures school safety funding programs and provides increased support and resources for reducing violence. I want to see a strong auditing process in place to gauge the effectiveness of the programs to develop best-practice guidelines in school safety. We must actively promote the Safe2Say program for anonymous reporting of threatening activities. I would like to see more of the program resources dedicated to student assistance and behavioral health assessments. Beyond the requirement that school entities appoint safety and security coordinators, I would create a statewide association to develop best practices.

Libertarian
Adam Reinhardt

We need to make sure our schools are safe, but we also don't want them to look or feel like prison complexes. There is little evidence that an increased police presence makes kids more safe. There is, however, much evidence that an increased police presence leads more

See ADAM on Page A8

STATE REPRESENTATIVE
133RD DISTRICT

Democrat
Jeanne McNeill

Democrat Jeanne McNeill will retain her seat representing the 133rd Legislative District. She is running unopposed. The incumbent won a 2017 special election, replacing her late husband, Daniel, who had held the office since 2012. The 133rd Legislative District includes Catasauqua, Coplay and Fountain Hill boroughs, as well as the Lehigh County portions of Bethlehem and Hanover Township and parts of Salisbury and Whitehall townships.

NORTHAMPTON CO REFERENDUM

Northampton county voters will be asked to answer a referendum question that could amend the Home Rule Charter.

This question will appear on the ballot: Shall the electorate of Northampton County approve a change in the Northampton County Home Rule charter to Article IV titled "Controller," 2nd Paragraph of Section 401, commencing with the Controller's term of office which begins January 2020, so as to provide for the following amendment: "During his term in office, the County Controller shall devote full time to the office."

In plain terms, according to the county election website, "the ballot question asks the voters of Northampton County whether the county should amend the Home Rule Charter, Article IV, Controller, Section 401, Titles and Status, to remove the stipulation that the controller could not actively engage in any other business or occupation.

"A vote of 'yes' approves the controller to engage in any other business or occupation but must devote full time to the Office of Controller."

Fake painkillers new threat

BY BERNIE O'HARE

Special to the Bethlehem Press

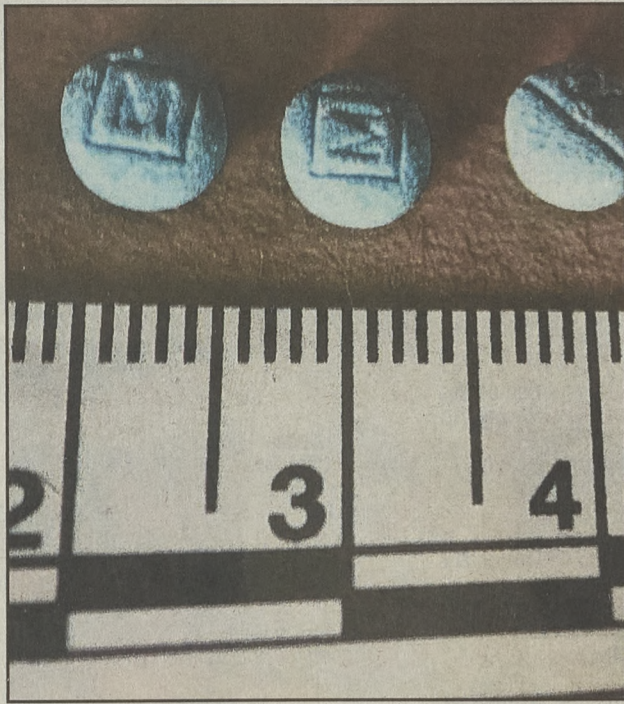

As the opioid crisis continues to take lives at a record pace, a new problem has begun to emerge: Lookalike painkillers. They are designed to look exactly like prescription painkillers such as Percocet. They are instead a deadly combination of fentanyl and heroin, or in some cases, pure fentanyl. They kill. Last Friday, a person who sold a lethal lookalike was charged with a drug delivery resulting in death.

Gustavo Rivera, 31, of Bethlehem, has been charged with selling what Kara Ann Heckenberger, 27, thought were Percocet pills. They were in fact a combination of heroin and fentanyl. She died after taking just one of these pills Aug. 9, 2017.

Heckenberger, Bethlehem Catholic HS and Kutztown University graduate, was no junkie. She had a full-time job and lived with her parents in Lower Nazareth Township. Though she was a healthy woman, she did suffer from gastroparesis, a painful abdominal condition. Opioids actually worsen this condition. She nevertheless obtained what she thought were two Percocet pills, stamped with a "30" on one side and an "M" on the other.

The "30" refers to 30 milligrams. Assistant DA Bill Blake, who supervises the Northampton County investigating grand jury, said this is also the cost in dollars for one of these pills, if bought on the street. The "M" is a reference to Mallinckrodt Pharmaceuticals, which manufactures Percocet.

Text messages from Heckenberger's cell phone reveal that the evening before her death, she contacted co-worker Danielle Koehler and Koehler's boyfriend, Rivera, in search of painkillers. Hecken-berger was to deposit the payment in the mailbox at Koehler's E. Ettwein Street home. While she waited at Koehler's residence, Rivera picked up the money, and later, dropped off the pills.

After getting the pills, Heckenberger returned to her parents' home in Lower Nazareth Township. She had a brief conversation with her mother, then went to bed.

At 10:15 p.m., Koehler texted Heckenberger to warn her, "Be careful taking those gus [Gustavo] is messed up."

Heckenberger answered, "I only take half at a time. Only when I need them for my stomach. ... I don't take them for the effect of getting f--ed up."

But at 10:42 p.m., Heckenberger texted Koehler to say, "S-t Gus [Gustavo] wasn't lying. I only took half of one & I could probably fall asleep standing up tell him to be careful with Them too."

At 12:36 a.m. on Aug. 9, Rivera texted Heckenberger to ask, "How they make you feel?"

She never answered. In the meantime, Heckenberger's mother had fallen asleep on the couch and woke up at 2:30 a.m. She decided to check on her daughter before going to bed. Her daughter had turned blue and was non-responsive.

Colonial Regional Police arrived as her parents and brother tried to revive her. Emergency medical personnel continued the CPR that had been started by her parents, and relayed data from an AED device to St. Luke's Hospital. The hospital instructed first responders to discontinue CPR, and Heckenberger was pronounced dead at 3:30 a.m.

Police found no evidence of foul play. They did find a blue speckled round pill with a "30" on one side and an "M" on the other. This resembles a standard 30 mg Percocet tablet. The pill was inside an unmarked bottle.

An autopsy that day revealed that Heckenberger died as a result of "acute intoxication." Coroner Zach Lysek ruled that the manner of death was accidental. He told the grand jury that Heckenberger's death was a direct result of the fentanyl and heroin in her system.

Forensic analysis revealed that, instead of Percocet, the pill was a combination of heroin and fentanyl. In Mexico, this is called "El Diabliito," or the little devil.

Fentanyl is 25 to 40 times more potent than morphine. See FAKE on Page A9

Middle school principal Napaver resigns

BY MARK KIRLIN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Saucon Valley MS Principal Ken Napaver resigned from his position effective Nov. 30. Napaver has been hired as the new principal at Owen J. Roberts HS in Pottstown.

In speaking to the board one last time, he said, "This is by far the hardest night of my professional career." Napaver went on to speak of the relationships he has developed while at Saucon Valley and noted his decision was "bittersweet." He was highly complimentary to the district, community, staff and especially the kids. Over his 20-plus year career as an educator and administrator, he considers Saucon Valley to have the best kids he's ever worked with. Previously to his start at Saucon in January 2016, he had only worked at two other school districts in various roles during his career. Those school districts were Brandywine and Bensalem Township.

The primary factor that led to Napaver's decision came down to wanting to spend more time with his two daughters (8 and 12 years old).

Napaver is a resident of Coatesville, and has lived in that area most of his life. His commute to Saucon Valley MS begins at 5:30 a.m. each morning and consists of a round-trip drive of 150 miles and three hours commute time. Napaver recalls having to stay overnight in local hotels during snow storms because of the long commute.

When asked why he didn't relocate after taking on the Saucon position, Napaver said he purchased a home in Coatesville in 2006 during the housing boom and financially wasn't going to get back what he originally put into it.

Despite the positivity of working at Saucon Valley, the appeal of taking the position in Pottstown became a "no-brainer" with a much shorter commute of only 40 miles round-trip and a salary increase from $108,000 to $145,000.

Napaver summarized his feeling toward Saucon as "respect and gratitude." The school board returned the sentiment with a round of applause. Superintendent Dr. Craig Butler said, "I want to express my appreciation for your professionalism, your leadership, the personality that you bring to the administrative team, I think we're going to miss that...friendship and beliefs that we share as leaders and as role models in our field."

Napaver's new role will be leading a district of approximately 1,600 children between grades nine through 12 and over 100 full-time teachers.

times more powerful than heroin. It is so strong that the Centers for Disease Control recommends that first responders avoid skin contact. It is cheap to produce, and comes primarily from Mexico and China. It killed 20,000 people last year, including Tom Petty and Prince.

The Northampton County Investigating

Grand Jury recommended criminal charges against Rivera, and District Attorney John Morganelli approved a criminal complaint accusing Rivera of delivery of a controlled substance, delivery of a counterfeit controlled substance and a drug delivery that resulted in the death of another person. All three charges are felonies.

Rivera faces a maximum sentence of 70 years, as well as maximum fines of $500,000

Will Koehler be charged? Morganelli declined to comment on that possibility. Koehler did testify before the grand jury, and described the procedure under which Heckenberger deposited money in Koehler's mailbox, which Rivera would then use to buy pills. Once or twice, Koehler admitted that she helped transfer money from Heckenberger to Rivera. Koehler also testified that Rivera admitted to her that he thought he had purchased Percocet pills and that the look-alike she took must have killed her.

Morganelli said the investigation is by no means over. Rivera's cell phone texts reveal that he has a source - "my boy that has em."

What happened to Heckenberger is one of at least three fatal look-alike overdoses over the past year. Two of these occurred in Bethlehem.

Assistant DA Bill Blake, who oversees the investigating grand jury, believes there are more.

Morganelli is warning purchasers of illicit street drugs that they may be in "real peril and danger." He urged those with addictions to seek help. "Our goal is to save lives," he said. "Those who are involved in the sale of street drugs do not care about your safety. They care only about their profits."

College, hotel seek some changes

BY ED COURRIER

A certificate of appropriateness was granted to Moravian College on colors for the Moravian Book Store at 428-444 Main St. by the Historical and Architectural Review Board. The new color palette for the building was approved at the commission's Oct. 3 meeting in the Rotunda. The vote was unanimous.

Representing the project were Moravian College VP for Finance and Administration Mark Reed, with architect Jill Hewes and project designer Jackie Parks from MKSD Architects. Parks served as spokesperson and proposed a light gray for repainting the brick, with darker shades of gray, blue and black for the trim.

Their replacement awning proposal for taupe fabric had been previously approved Aug. 1. Reed said he had been advised by a marketing firm to change the fabric color to match one of Moravian's logo colors, an intense blue. The board advised them to return with a darker shade of blue or gray for the awning.

Bruce Haines, accompanied by Brian Rodenbach from Valley Wide Signs & Graphics, received unanimous approval for proposed signage for a new ice cream spot located across from the Hotel Bethlehem at 462 Main St. The red "Hotel B" illuminated window sign is fashioned in a style similar to the neon "Hotel Bethlehem" perched atop the venerable inn with the "Ice Cream Parlor" signage below it in a beige serif font. pane transom above is "Featuring Penn State Creamery Ice Cream" in blue on an off-white background. Flanking it in the other panels are "Waffle Sundaes" and "Pastries" in beige vinyl lettering. Haines was instructed to reduce the size of the words "Ice Cream" as the board found it out of scale, and he agreed to add a pin-stripe around the center sign. Antique lattice in the window can be retained, but the applicants are to remove the hanging lights from it.

A two-sided polycarbonate hanging sign with vinyl letters for "HB" in brick red and "Ice Cream" in black on a beige background was also given the thumbs up. A thin black line is to be added to separate it from the bottom half of the sign, where an additional tenant's business would be displayed.

The building is owned by Peter Kozicky and was previously home to the Confetti Café.

Representing Yarov Gallery at 91 W. Broad St., Maria Yarov was granted a COA for new signage for the art establishment she and her artist husband Sergei Yarov own. The hanging sign with a black bracket features the gallery name in a script font. The approval is pending on Yarov submitting color samples for review by Chairman Fred Bonsall and Connie Postupack. Yarov Gallery recently moved from 462 Main St. to this address, which was previously occupied by retailer Glenn Anthony.

Christian Barrett received unanimous approval for colors for painting the exterior trim, side porch, shutters and rear siding, deck and stairs of his house at 30 E. Wall St. The doors and steps are to be black, with the trim and porch floor a cream color. The porch components and balusters are to be dark gray with the rails painted cream.

Representatives for 251 E. Church St. were a no-show.

The Historical and Architectural Review Board meets the first Wednesday of every month to review all exterior changes proposed to buildings in the Bethlehem Historic District north of the Lehigh River. When a proposed project receives a certificate of appropriateness from the board, applicants must wait for city council to vote on it before proceeding.

Liberty stuns Freedom

Sets up district playoff rematch for this Friday

Justin Diaz celebrates following Liberty's victory over Freedom last Saturday afternoon.

BY TOM WENBORG
Special to the Press

The first quarter of the regular season finale between Freedom and Liberty went as expected in the matchup between the undefeated Patriots and the 4-5 Hurricanes. Liberty's opening drive resulted in a quick three-and-out and the ensuing punt into the gusting wind set Freedom up at its own 45. It took a little over two minutes and six plays for the Pates' offense to put up the first score of the game, a 9-yard run by Matthew Russin.

The 'Canes fared no better on their second possession. Two runs for negative yardage were followed by an incomplete pass and the punt team came on for the second time. This punt stayed on the Liberty side of the field and Freedom offense took over at the 42. Five plays later, Liberty head coach John Truby had his first big decision.

A holding penalty on third down gave Truby the choice of giving Freedom a 4th-and-6 from the 13, or a 3rd-and-16 from the 23. He opted to decline the penalty. Nicholas Stannard booted the 30-yard field goal through the up-rights to make the Patriot lead 10-0.

Liberty was able to record their initial first down of the game by converting on 3rd-and-10 on its next drive. However, when the drive stalled, a high snap on the punt led to a 12-yard loss and set Freedom up on the Hurricane 27. This time the Hurricanes' defense stepped up and forced an incomplete pass on 4th-and-4 from the 21 as the clock ran out on the first quarter.

The 10-0 score and Liberty's two total yards of offense turned people's attention to the out-of-town scores. Pocono Mountain West was in the process of being shut out by PM East. A Liberty loss and a PM West loss would lead to a tie for the final District XI playoff spot. As the mathematically-inclined observers were firing up their spreadsheets to calculate whether Liberty would back into the playoffs, Truby's squad got down to business.

Liberty's Fermin captures third

BY KATIE MCDONALD

Awesome is how Liberty senior Darlyn Fermin described taking third place, up from sixth place in leagues the week before, at the District XI Class 3A Cross Country Championships last Wednesday at Bethlehem Municipal Golf Course.

Fermin looked just as awesome heading into the finish, having improved his time by, yes, an awesome 31 seconds.

"Jogging, going easy, getting in shape, drinking water, resting," said Fermin regarding his preparation for districts. "I felt better today, my body and my legs. I got a good start with a group of five in front and let other people take the wind."

Toward the end of the race, it was Fermin, Easton's Cosmo Cardone, and Parkland's Nick Bower vying for first place.

"By the tree, [Nick] and Cosmo passed me, then I passed [Nick]," Fermin said.

In the end, Cardone placed first in 16:17.94, and Easton's Joseph Ozgar was second in 16:26.20.

Fermin's time was 16:30.31.

"I felt really good, but I was tired," he said.

Also feeling good was fellow Hurricane Cole Frank, who had a sixth place finish.

"I am very happy about my race, and I'm looking forward to states this year," Frank said. "I wanted to go out fast today. It worked very well. Darlyn was right next to

BY KATIE MCDONALD

Freedom sophomore Lauren Charboneau had a fifth place finish at the District XI Class 3A Cross Country Championships last Wednesday at Bethlehem Municipal Golf Course, not the placement she had hoped for, but a top five finish nonetheless.

"I wasn't feeling my best, and the weather definitely impacted how

I ran," Charboneau said. "The paces were so different from they were last week."

Last week was the EPC meet, where Charboneau placed first on the same course.

"I had a lead until the hills. Then Ciara [Conboy] popped up," said Charboneau.

Conboy from Stroudsburg finished in second place (19:20.43), one second behind the winner, Easton's Meghan Vizian (19:19.05).

Parkland's Madie Zaun was third (19:26.60), and Amber Kelly from Stroudsburg was fourth (19:38.91).

Charboneau's time was 19:40.06.

"I wanted to P.R. again, so I'm a little disappointed," she said. "I'm just going to get healthy again and try my hardest for states."

Joining Charboneau at the state meet will be Liberty's Emily Jobs, also a sophomore, who placed 10th.

"I wanted to medal, so I'm happy with that. I felt like I could have finished stronger but the wind was intense," Jobs said. "I tried the same strategy as last week, working from behind and chasing people down, especially in the last mile."

Jobs's time was 20:18.29.

NASCAR THIS WEEK

SPEED FREAKS

A few questions we had to ask ourselves

More or less respect for Joey Logano after Martinsville?

GODSPEAK: Anything goes at the end of a NASCAR Cup Series race. Logano better make sure his mirrors are nice and clean the next three races.

KEN'S CALL: Are you kidding? Definitely more. He might have a baby face, but he looked like an old pirate stealing that one. Good for him.

Should Truex be mad?

GODSPEAK: He has every right to be mad, but if he doesn't make the Championship Four, watch out, Logano.

KEN'S CALL: This ain't a Cub Scout bake sale. Yes, he should be mad, briefly, but knowing Martin Truex Jr., he'll get over it by later in the week.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

MARTIN TRUEX JR. VS. JOEY LOGANO:

Truex passed Logano clean for the lead at Martinsville, then Logano pushed Truex out of the way on the last lap for the win and a ticket to the playoff final.

GODWIN KELLY'S TAKE: This is not over. "They won the battle, but he didn't win the damn war," Truex said. "He just knocked me out of the way ... what goes around comes around."

GODWIN'S PICKS FOR TEXAS

WINNER: Kevin Harvick

REST OF TOP 5: Martin Truex Jr., Denny Hamlin, Kyle Busch, Alex Bowman

FIRST ONE OUT: William Byron

DARK HORSE: Kyle Larson
DON'T BE SURPRISED IF: Harvick wins at Texas because he called this shot after a disappointing Martinsville run.

Joey Logano is the man! Maybe. We'll hug it out in the pod.

TEXAS

THREE THINGS TO WATCH

Joey Logano is finished racing for points for the next two NASCAR Cup Series races after winning at Martinsville and locking in a starting position for the Championship Round. [AP/STEVE HELBER]

1. Logano's leisure

Austin Dillon was the first driver to qualify for the NASCAR Cup Series playoffs by winning the season-opening Daytona 500. Joey Logano is the first driver who won't have to race for points — well, for the next two weeks. Since Logano scored a hard-fought (the fighting may not be over) victory over Martin Truex Jr. at Martinsville, he does not have to race for points at Texas or Phoenix.

2. Harvick/Truex bubble

With the first race of the Round of 8 done, Kevin Harvick and Martin Truex Jr. moved from second and third in the standings into a tie for third place, putting both on the playoff points bubble. They are 25 points ahead of fifth-place Kurt Busch, and 31 points in front of sixth-place Chase Elliott. At least one of the drivers in the Championship Round will get in on points. The points leader is Kyle Busch, 21 up on the bubble boys.

3. Silly Season positive

You could hear the collective sigh of relief from the hilltops around Martinsville Speedway on Sunday when car owner Rick Hendrick announced Jimmie Johnson will have a full sponsorship package, covering two years, from Ally Financial. Johnson is losing Lowe's at the end of this season. "It's massive," Johnson said. "To have a primary sponsor for all the races for two years, hasn't happened for a long time."

— Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

MARTINSVILLE

THREE THINGS WE LEARNED

1. Penske disagrees

Car owner Roger Penske bristled when he was told Martin Truex Jr. called Joey Logano's race-winning bump and run a cheap shot. "He's a racer and should know better than to say that," he said. "That's as clean a shot as you can have — in a race like this."

2. All is fair

As the saying goes, "all is fair in love and war." And that applies to the closing laps of a Cup Series race where you can knock the guy ahead of you out of the way for the win. "It was a lot of bumper banging towards the end and a hard race," Martinsville winner Logano said.

Joey Logano (22) and Martin Truex Jr. (78) make contact as they race to the checkered flag at Martinsville. [AP/STEVE HELBER]

3. Losing streaks

Jimmie Johnson and Denny Hamlin have three chances to keep their year-to-year winning streaks intact. Johnson has won at least one race every year since 2002.

Hamlin's streak started in '06. "We've got three good tracks ahead of us; we'll see if we can get it done," Hamlin said.

— Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Who's right?

Not so sure you have to choose sides in Sunday's Truex-Logano dust-up in Martinsville. It looks like one of those situations where both guys are right. Martin Truex Jr., who was bulldozed away from victory a few weeks ago on Charlotte's Roval, was given the bum's rush by Joey Logano, whose car happens to be fitted with bumpers. Truex is in the final weeks with his No. 78 team and rightfully emotional about it all.

And Joey?

Everyone seems to enjoy the beating and banging until a guy they don't like is doing the beating or a guy they do like is taking the bangs. If you're a team owner or financier, and your driver isn't willing to do what Logano did at Martinsville, you're asking some questions. This ain't open-wheel racing. And by the way, you'll see that final sprint to the checkers on a lot of future promo commercials.

Boys and girls D-11 soccer roundup

BY KYLE MAGDA
kmagda@tnonline.com

The Bears shut out Freedom, 3-0, highlighted by Brianna Clark's hat trick and strong defense last week.

The first score of the game came during a quick sequence of events, when Larissa Mulligan moved the ball swiftly down the field. Clark was there to pounce on the opportunity by scoring around the four-minute mark.

Pleasant Valley added another score from Clark later in the first half, as unlike last week versus Stroudsburg, Pleasant Valley head coach Derek Strohl saw his Bears get off to a fast start against Freedom.

"We got to jump on them early," Strohl said. "We had some slow starts in the last handful of games. I thought the girls came up fired and ready to go."

The Bears defense was able to hold Freedom scoreless, including two key plays where Pleasant Valley stopped potential Patriot scores that could have tied the game.

"They're our backbone all year," Strohl said about the defense. "That's team defense. It's our four defenders and goalkeeper. The midfielders definitely help out, forwards check back to the ball. It is the mentality of team defense."

Bears goalkeeper Sam Merklin recorded eight saves in the shutout win.

The Liberty girls picked up an opening-round victory over Pocono East at home last Tuesday, Oct. 23.

The Hurricanes scored two first half goals and then held on for a 2-1 victory.

Jessica Del Corso and Madison Muller netted first half tallies for the Hurricanes. Merve Okumus picked up assists on both of the scores.

In the second half, Abby Raymond brought PME to within one with a goal.

Bridget MacDonald saved six for Liberty.

But the Hurricanes season would end with a loss to top-seeded Parkland in the quarterfinals. Liberty played the Trojans to a scoreless first half before Ava Schaller scored twice and Ava Hanna added another for a 3-0 victory.

Bethlehem Catholic lost to Palisades in the opening round of districts, falling 2-1 in overtime.

On the boys side, Liberty, the second seed, fell to Parkland in the quarterfinals last Thursday.

The Hurricanes took a 1-0 lead in the opening half, but Parkland would rally with goals from Teagan Mangahas and Zach Reightler before holding on for the victory.

Blake Koski made 10 saves for Liberty in the loss.

Meanwhile, EPC champion and district top-seed Freedom remains alive for a berth in the finals.

The Pates beat Stroudsburg 1-0 after penalty kicks and will take on Pleasant Valley Tuesday night after Press deadlines in the semifinals. The Pates beat the Bears 2-0 for the EPC title recently and a win would move them on to the finals to face either Emmaus or Parkland on Nov. 1.

Liberty moves on to volleyball semifinals

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Liberty's volleyball team is the last team standing as the District 11 postseason heads into the semifinal round Tuesday night.

The Hurricanes (15-3) took on top-seeded Emmaus in last night's semis at Catasauqua, with the results of that contest past Press deadlines.

Liberty easily dispatched Delaware Valley in their playoff opener last week, sweeping them 25-15, 25-13, 25-5 to advance for their first showdown with Emmaus this season.

The Hornets (18-5) needed four games to get by Whitehall in their playoff opener, as two of the EPC's power programs collide for the right to advance to Thursday's championship.

"We haven't played Emmaus this year so we're really looking forward to seeing how we match up," said Liberty head coach Missy Lynn. "Emmaus has had a great season. They have a lot of talent and they'll make us earn every point."

Emmaus lost three matches in the conference during the season, falling to Parkland and Nazareth. The Blue Eagles then took them down again in the EPC tournament, showing that they can be vulnerable.

Liberty will just need to play its best for a chance to compete for the district title.

"We need to serve aggressively and key in on their [Emmaus] outside attackers," Lynn said. "If we can slow down their pin attacks and get them out of system, we can be really successful. We need to pass well so we can utilize our strong middle attack. We have to play consistent and relaxed and make Emmaus play our volleyball."

After knocking off Easton in their district opener, Freedom (12-9) lost to Parkland 12-25, 13-25, 13-25 in the quarterfinal round to end their season.

The Pates struggled down the stretch, losing four out of their last six matches to some of the top teams in the conference.

Bethlehem Catholic (12-7) saw its season close in the opening round of districts after falling to Central Catholic 22-25, 24-25, 18-25 in the 3A bracket.

It was the second time the Vikings swept the Hawks this season.

The Hurricanes held the ball for the first 7:37 minutes of the second quarter as they embarked on a 79-yard march. The key play occurred on 4th-and-6 from the Freedom 14. A Todd Erney pass to a diving Daniel Damon appeared to be a touchdown. However, the officials (correctly) ruled the pass incomplete. However, the Patriots were flagged for roughing the passer. With this new life, the 'Canes did score their first points on a 2-yard Erney run. A failed conversion left the score at 10-6.

It looked like Freedom would respond to this adversity when a 36-yard kickoff return set them up at the 42. On 3rd down, QB Jared Jenkins saw Rontay Dunbar get open deep and launched a pass in his direction. Throwing into the stiff breeze caused the pass to come up short and the Patriots had to punt.

A 21-yard Nasir Legree run and a 35-yard pass from Erney to Kendrick Wesley were the key plays on a Liberty drive that resulted on a 37-yard Alexander Sahaydak field goal with 7 seconds left in the first half that cut the Freedom lead to a single point at 10-9.

Freedom had entered the game having only turned the ball over 6 times through their first 9 games. That total would be almost doubled by the time the final horn sounded.

Trevor Harris forced a fumble near midfield on the first possession of the second half. Legree went into workhorse mode, carrying the ball six times on the subsequent drive, capping it with a touchdown plunge from the one to give Liberty the lead for the first time at 15-10.

The Pates appeared ready to reclaim the lead as they quickly drove to the Hurricane 30 as the third quarter ended. After the teams switched ends, Freedom coughed up another fumble on the back end of a reception, ending the scoring threat on the Liberty 13.

A short drive and a punt gave the ball back to the Patriots at their own 25 with 7:50 remaining in the game. On the second play from scrimmage, Damon picked off a pass and set up the 'Canes at the Freedom 44. Liberty took advantage of the quick change as Dallas Holmes hit Rondell McNeil for 41 yards, setting up Legree for his second TD run two plays later to make 22-10 Liberty with 6:23 remaining.

After a late hit on the kickoff return, Freedom took over on the plus side of the field and proceeded to march toward a score. Once again, Damon terminated the drive with an interception, this time by stretching out and keeping his feet in bounds in the back of the end zone for a touchback. Liberty was able to take a couple of minutes off the clock and got a favorable downwind roll on the punt, pinning Freedom at the 18 with 2:30 left.

On the next two plays from scrimmage, Harris forced another fumble, Freedom's fifth consecutive turnover, and Legree scored his third TD to bring the final margin to 29-10.

The win clinched the eighth and final spot in the District XI playoffs for the Hurricanes. Despite the loss, Freedom held on to the number-one seed, setting up a rematch at 7 p.m. at BASD stadium.

After the game, Truby remarked on the team's turnaround after the first quarter.

"Atmosphere, atmosphere, atmosphere. We didn't handle it well in the first 10 minutes, the first quarter really, and the kids just kept battling and fighting," Truby said

The atmosphere on Friday is sure to be amped up to an even higher level, as both teams will be playing to keep their season alive and Freedom looking for revenge on the team that spoiled their perfect season.

BC Hawks fall to top-seeded Lehigh

BY PATRICK MATSINKO
pmatsinko@tnonline.com

Spooky season? Not for Lehighton.

This is when the Indians feast.

A district runner-up the last two years, Lehighton enter this postseason as the top contender for the crown - and with a target on their back.

Don't expect the Tribe to buckle under the weight of those expectations.

Lehighton lived up to its billing as the No. 1 seed with a 3-1 win over Bethlehem Catholic in the District 11 Class A semifinals on Monday.

The treat? The Indians will play Northwestern in the championship game on Wednesday, Halloween.

"It's awesome," said first-year Lehighton head coach Vanessa Rimbey. "They're pretty excited. They got silver the last two years, and they really want it this year."

A goal from Alison Miller broke the ice and put the Indians ahead 1-0 with 13:42 to play in the first half.

But the fifth-seeded Golden Hawks answered when Jaleesa Lanier tied it at 1-1 with 6:28 remaining before the intermission.

Rimbey knew Becahi was a resilient bunch. The Golden Hawks ousted No. 4 seed Northern Lehigh in overtime to reach the semis.

"We qualified for districts playoffs like 15 years ago. Last year we qualified and wanted to make sure it wasn't an anomaly," said Becahi head coach Lucas Wilde.

"This is where we want to be and we have goals that are deeper into October. I think this really solidified to a lot of people. It's sometimes tough to get the players to see and believe. We're glad to be back here and it's a more comfortable place for us."

But, Alicia Shaffer scored after a well-executed corner with 43 seconds left before the intermission, putting the Indians back in control with a 2-1 lead.

"It's the playoffs, it's district playoff hockey," said Wilde. "You're going to have to, a lot of times, fall back on really simple principles, just making sure you're marking correctly, you're presenting passes, you make good, hard passes and stuff like that, because in the playoffs, at this point, it's a really equal game.

"We're playing against the top seed in Lehighton, they had a great season, and they're a good program, historically."

The Indians carried the momentum into the second half, controlling play before Kaia Slaw added a third goal with 11:57 to play.

"I think that after we got that goal it gave us the confidence to push through it, to get another goal, and win," said Shaffer.

"We always usually come out harder during the second half, too," added Slaw.

Despite the two-goal advantage, Rimbey knew the lead wasn't secure.

"It's never safe. I sometimes don't even feel safe when it's 2-0," she said. "I just tell them to always keep playing your game - get more goals, keep your head in it. Especially since some games we've already comeback from down 3-0 and we've scored some goals with two minutes left, so anything can happen."

Ashley Wotjon provided stellar play in goal for the Tribe, who lost their top two goalies during the course of the season.

"She's kinda tossed around the idea a little bit," Rimbey said of Wotjon. "She's had pads on before, but nothing quite to this extent. So I'm very impressed with her. She's taken to it, she's 100 percent into it ... that's all you can ask for."

For Wotjon, it's simply a way to help her team.

"It was actually kind of refreshing, knowing that they took care of most of it," Wotjon said of Lehighton's defense. "They really did all the work; it's all them. I'm really, really proud of them."

"I'm wishing I could be up there (on defense), but knowing that I'm covering another aspect, it's great."

LHS field hockey season ends

BY TOM WENBORG

A full moon rose over the East stands at BASD stadium on a chilly Wednesday night as the curtain descended on the Liberty Hurricanes' field hockey season after a 4-2 loss to Stroudsburg in the opening round of the District XI playoffs in the battle between the 4th and 5th seeds.

The 'Canes were looking for their third victory of the season over the Mounties after having defeated them 1-0 during the regular season and 2-0 in the first round of the EPC tournament.

Stroudsburg had the better of the early pressure and were able to convert on a penalty corner for the first goal of the game at the 21:50 mark.

Liberty equalized 8 minutes later on a penalty corner of its own when EPC MVP Rayne Wright took Sadie Abboud's insertion pass, brought it back just inside the shooting circle, and uncorked a blast that beat the Stroudsburg keeper.

The Mountaineers answered back with 9:30 to go in the first half by converting yet another penalty corner.

The Hurricanes tied the score when McKenna Burkhardt put home a rebound following another Abboud to Wright penalty corner play. The teams took the 2-2 score into halftime.

Stroudsburg scored twice during the run of play in the second half and altered its defensive strategy to hold Liberty scoreless.

"They seemed to shut down my star players. They were able to shut down Rayne and Sadie by triple teaming them and the other players were a little off their games tonight," head coach Karen Nilson said.

As the team gathered on the bench after the game, the seniors struggled to find the words express their emotions at having played their field hockey games for Liberty. However, the tears on their faces showed how much the experience and camaraderie had meant to them.

Nilson expressed her gratitude to the team.

"You made it this far (14-2-2 in the regular season, tied for 3rd in the EPC) after losing 8 seniors from last year. Your record is phenomenal. You overcame some coaching changes (head coach Mary Kathryn Omdahl resigned midseason). The last two weeks have been so much fun. When I go home, I'm smiling from ear-to-ear. I want to thank you for those memories."

Becahi football hosts Blue Mt. in D-11 opener

You don't need to tell Joe Henrich about proceeding with caution in the District 11 postseason, despite top-seeded Bethlehem Catholic entering the 4A tournament as the unequivocal favorite when they open up postseason play at 1 p.m. Saturday afternoon at BASD Stadium against Blue Mountain.

The Hawks (7-3) have won the last two District 11 4A titles and the eighth-seeded Eagles, coming in at 3-7, don't likely have a chance for a massive upset this season, but that doesn't change the Hawks preparation for this week.

Henrich and company will always remember their 14-6 upset loss to Saucon Valley in the 2015 district semifinals. As his team gears up to take on Blue Mountain this weekend, that game can serve as a reminder on respecting every opponent this time of year.

"It's a challenge but we've done that over the years playing different teams from outside the area and our conference in districts," Henrich said. "We lost to Saucon a few years ago and we continue to remind the guys of that. At the same time, we've been here before and this isn't completely foreign to our kids and it's important that we stay humble and make sure they know that we won't achieve our ultimate goal by skipping anything. We just need to focus on day at a time and I know it's cliché, but it's real."

The Hawks have won four of their last five games and enter districts fresh off a 59-14 demolition over rival Central Catholic last week, scoring 52 points in the first half to run away with the win.

The backfield duo of Zaeheer Seabrooks and Tavion Banks wrecked havoc again, as Seabrooks ran for a modest 67 yards and two touchdowns, while Banks tallied 123 yards and four rushing scores. Seabrooks has amassed 1,028 yards rushing this season and nine TD's, while Banks has 928 yards and 21 TD's. The rushing tandem has helped catapult the Hawks offense to average nearly 47 points a game over the past five weeks.

That will likely be a continuing trend this week against a lowly Blue Mountain, who started the year off 3-0 before dropping their last seven straight.

"I think Tavion specifically has really exploded and run with authority and the combination of both of them has turned out to what we thought it could be," said Henrich. "I like how they've been playing together and we expect them to keep it going this week against Blue Mountain. We know they're [Blue Mountain] going to do some things that are going to make it a challenge for us. We expect them to sellout on some things and we have to respect them coming into the game.

"I'd be lying if I told you they're an upper echelon team that brings a lot of firepower because that's not the reality, but at the same time we both have to go out and play each other. We just saw it last week with Liberty beating Freedom and nobody gave Liberty a chance. You never know with teenagers and we need to stay focused on the right things and have the proper mentality because anyone can beat you."

Competing for Freedom were Nick Bauer, 30th in 17:29.99, Dylan Stahl, 56th in 18:17.13, Josh Noel, 59th in 18:31.66, Matt Parkin, 72nd in 19:11.80, Ryan Smizaski, 73rd in 19:13.63, and Andrew Morales, 74th in 19:14.05.

Bethlehem Catholic's cross country team competed in the District XI Class 2A Cross Country Championships last Wednesday at Bethlehem Golf Course where Becahi sophomore Marcela Banuelos placed 16th out of 85 runners in the girls' race.

"I think I did pretty OK," Banuelos said. "I think I got a P.R., but I was tired at the end."

Banuelos's time was 20:35.39.

"Usually at the start, we run as a team but this time it started so fast, some girls didn't even know it was starting," Banuelos said. "I passed people slowly, one by one, because I didn't want to be out front and tired."

The Fall Festival/Trunk or Treat at the First Baptist Church in Bethlehem cultivated creativity, color, energy, and diverse stories. Held in the backyard of the church, this special Halloween event included attractions such as pumpkin bowling, a maze, face painting and pumpkin decorating. However, it is most unique for showcasing cars with Halloween inspired trunks and candy giveaways.

Pastor David Hardin and Vicky Severn, the co-director of children at the church, helped organize this event for the third year.

"For a long time the church did a pumpkin give-away and we wanted to do something to replace this," Pastor Hardin said. "Last year it rained, so we had to do this event inside, but I've seen growth in the number of people.

"It's one of the ways we want to do something fun and low key to serve the community to be a blessing to them and show how God loves them." Hardin said, noting the free event isn't rooted so much in the spookiness that Halloween brings. "So much has gotten focused on scare. It's important to do something family friendly, creative, and keep it G-rated."

Severn mirrored some of Hardin's thoughts.

"It's important the community knows we love them," she said, "and it's fun because we get to see such neat ideas for the trunk, and an engineer made the maze."

Why God Permits Evil

A minister and an atheistic barber were once walking through the city slums. Said the barber to the preacher, "This is why I cannot believe in a God of love. If God was as kind as you say, He would not permit all this poverty, disease, and squalor. He would not allow these poor bums to be addicted to dope and other character-destroying habits. No, I cannot believe in a God who permits these things." The minister was silent until they met a man who was especially unkempt and filthy. His hair was hanging down his neck, and he had a half-inch of stubble on his face. Said the minister, "You can't be a very good barber or you wouldn't permit a man like that to continue living in this neighborhood without a haircut or a shave." Indignantly the barber answered, "Why blame me for that man's condition? I can't help it that he is like that! He has never given me a chance to help him. If he would only come to my shop, I could fix him up and make him look like a gentleman!" Giving the barber a penetrating look, the minister said, "Then don't blame God for allowing these people to continue in their evil ways, when He is constantly inviting them to come and be saved. The reason these people are slaves to sin and evil habits is because they refuse the One Who died to save and deliver them." The barber saw the point.

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isaiah 1:18). Jesus said, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Matthew 11:28). Have you responded to His invitation?

Bruce Getz, dressed as a scarecrow and pointing to his pumpkin patch trunk, said, "I lost my wife two years ago; this is dedicated to my wife. I found a hat she used to wear and decided to be a scarecrow."

Candy, costumes in Hellertown

Saucon Valley held its annual Spirit Parade in Hellertown Oct. 31. Large crowds came out and lined the streets of Hellertown despite the cool brisk conditions. Although the skies were sunny, the day had breezy conditions with highs only in the 40s. The parade participants congregated at the Saucon Valley School District campus and started the parade route on Walnut Street, then on to Main Street, Water Street, Rentzheimer Street, Durham Street and finally to Constitution Avenue. The parade included police cars, fire trucks, municipal trucks, tractors, local school marching bands and many unique vehicles and costumes. Kids especially had a good time as parade participants threw handfuls of candy to the crowds. Based on all the smiles and positive reactions of those in attendance, the event was a big success.

Ashley, Natalie, Bryan and Ava Kametz are bundled up in blankets as they watch the parade. Despite the cool conditions, the streets on both sides of the entire parade route were packed with families.

A clown adds color to the parade as he rides his bike, fully decorated in Halloween décor, just one of many aspects that makes the Saucon Valley Spirit Parade a family favorite event.

ANOTHER VIEW

Remorseless former Allentown mayor pays stiff price

The convicted public official's playbook calls for the defendant to show remorse and apologize for his or her crimes and misdeeds at sentencing.

Former Allentown Mayor Ed Pawlowski did not follow this playbook and now faces a 15-year jail term and a nearly $95,000 restitution fine, which, ironically, is the mayor's annual salary.

It was shocking, to say the least, to see this once popular Democrat who spearheaded Allentown's revitalization being led out of a federal courthouse in handcuffs as his wife and daughter looked on in disbelief and cried.

If Pawlowski had followed the playbook of some other convicted Pennsylvania officials, U.S. District Judge Juan R. Sanchez might have been inclined to impose a lesser sentence, but given Pawlowski's insistence that he did nothing wrong so had nothing to apologize for, Sanchez was not moved to show any leniency.

"No remorse, no contrition," Sanchez said before sentencing the mayor of the state's third largest city. Despite being indicted by a federal grand jury, Pawlowski was re-elected to a fourth four-year term in a three-person race last November. He resigned in March following his conviction on 38 counts for participating in pay-to-play schemes that traded city contracts for political contributions to his mayoral campaign and his unsuccessful bids for governor and U.S. Senate.

Deputy U.S. Attorney Louis Lappen found Pawlowski's lack of contrition beyond brazen. When he had the opportunity at sentencing to tell everyone that he was sorry for his illegal deeds, he failed to do so or to show any remorse, Lappen said.

Pawlowski's attorney Jack McMahon said it would have been disingenuous for his client to apologize for something that he believed he did not do. McMahon asked that Pawlowski remain free on bail while an appeal process plays out, but the judge agreed with the prosecution that given the length of the sentence Pawlowski could be a flight risk. McMahon said he is "very confident" that Pawlowski's appeal will be upheld.

The stiff sentence, which is at the upper end of what the prosecution had recommended, is a sobering message to other statewide officials that courts, and the citizens have had enough of corrupt politicians and that this type of unacceptable, illegal behavior will be undertaken at their own peril.

About that playbook that I mentioned earlier: Former state Treasurer Rob McCord, also a Democrat, used it to his advantage when he went before the sentencing judge in federal court in Harrisburg earlier this year and proclaimed that he wanted to apologize to the people of Pennsylvania. "I'm sorry. I'm a flawed man," McCord said.

McCord was convicted of two counts of attempted federal extortion for trying to shake down state vendors in exchange for contributions to his ill-fated gubernatorial bid in 2014. McCord lost the Democratic primary to Gov. Tom Wolf.

Federal Judge John E. Jones III sentenced McCord to 2½ years in prison, a term he will begin serving at the end of this month. McCord could have been ordered to serve six years, but the judge took into account his apology and the fact that he had no prior convictions.

Last fall, former Philadelphia District Attorney Seth Williams, a Democrat, was sentenced to five years in prison after pleading guilty to corruption charges in June. In a statement to the court, Williams apologized, saying: "Rather than holding myself to a higher standard, I squandered that trust placed in me."

U.S. District Judge Paul Diamond scolded Williams, saying that he "humiliated his office and the city by selling them to parasites."

The Pawlowski saga is a sad tale about the two faces of a politician. Nearly 50 character witnesses appeared on his behalf at the sentencing attesting to his being a religious man, "a good person" who had a "compassionate heart."

Person after person commended him for the good things he did for the city he constantly claimed that he loved. He was called a champion of the downtrodden, a loving husband and a "great dad" by his wife, Lisa, and his 19-year-old daughter, Mercy. Several character witnesses from the large Hispanic community in the city described him as a healing force to bring people together for the greater good of Allentown.

This Pawlowski was contrasted with the "profane" ex-mayor as described by U.S. Attorney Anthony Wzorek, who reminded the court that the true Pawlowski was caught on tape unaware that cooperative government informants were wearing wires and surreptitiously capturing his damning words. Wzorek characterized this Pawlowski as a corrupt public official motivated by ambition and a desire for power and status.

The conclusion to this sordid scandal, which began more than three years ago with an FBI raid on city hall, sends a direct message to all public officials: No one is above the law.

Halloween make-up magician Terri Vadino is well into transforming model Tamantha into a beautiful if scary shadow of her former self. She feels the time is right to offer her talent to the public.

Halloween may be Terri Vadino's favorite holiday. It is certainly the one that gets her creative imagination going.

She recently started adding to the scary fun at a local haunted attraction, where actors line up for full-face make-up in a wide variety of ghoulish makeovers. In fact, one of the features of Vadino's work is the fact that she likes to consult with her clients and create an original look.

The Press met up with Vadino and local model Tamantha Yanders to see some of the magic at work. We met in the photography studio of Dave Frei (www.dfreiphoto.com) in Allentown. There Yanders, a well-known local model who has worked for Pamela Ptak Couture and for QVC shopping network as a clothing and beauty model, settled onto a high chair while Vadino got to work. The two had previously consulted over the phone and settled on a ghostly theme.

Vadino, originally from the Poconos, now lives and works in Allentown. She has practiced her "hobby" for about seven years while entertaining herself and her friends with her unique facial art.

"It has always been therapeutic for me," Vadino said. "Then I got my first paid gig [at a local amusement park,] and fell in love with it"

"I have loved art since I was a child - I have been drawing and painting since I was old enough to hold a pencil," Vadino said. "I love transforming the human face. You can really make some great creations that way. I started to gravitate toward the horror genre; it was sort of like a hobby that took off for me!"

She started posting some of her images on social media and started attracting attention and making fans.

"Originally, I shared my photos because I wanted to show my friends and family how much fun I was having," she said. "I have always loved to create, and working on a three-dimensional, living figure was new and exciting for me. It wasn't until

FREEDOM HS NOTES

By Carson Swick

Morale hits new high

After a warm start to October, a fall chill is in the air. But one would never know that inside the walls of Freedom HS. That's because the Freedom Patriots' football team is red-hot. The inspiring group of young men were winners of nine consecutive games, forever cementing this season into school history.

"It really means a lot, to start where we were [my] freshman year, as a good team, but not the best. This year shows improvement as a football team, but in the community as well," said Tristan Wheeler, senior linebacker and tight end.

Despite Saturday's loss to rival Liberty, 2018 is the first time the Patriots won more than seven consecutive games. Freedom will have a shot at redemption, as the Patriots and Hurricanes meet again this Friday at Frank Banko Field.

Wheeler acknowledges the support his team received throughout the special season. Back on Sept. 7, the team rallied from a 14-0 deficit to take a 21-14 fourth quarter lead against Parkland. The Trojans scored in the game's final moments, but botched the extra point, allowing the Patriots to escape victorious.

Once again, all hope seemed lost on Oct. 12, a chilly evening in Emmaus. The Patriots trailed the Green Hornets 24-9 with under four minutes to play. Thanks to two Jared Jenkins-led touchdown drives, a stingy defensive stand, and a high snap to Emmaus' punter, Freedom stormed back to send the game into overtime.

The Green Hornets scored to begin the overtime period, reclaiming the lead 31-24. Freedom answered right back, scoring a touchdown in two plays to pull within a point. However, coach Jason Roeder was not content to keep the game going. He rolled the dice, and Jenkins found tight end Jack Gawlik on the ensuing two-point conversion to help the Patriots steal victory in the most improbable of circumstances. Stunned Emmaus players and fans looked on as Freedom students stormed the field in celebration.

"We won that game with faith, and a little bit of luck. As the team all looked at each other, we realized we weren't done. It showed us how it feels to be down and motivated us to do better next time," Wheeler said.

Players are not the only ones indulging in the team's success. Freedom's energetic student section, known as the 'Riot Squad,' shows up in large numbers to cheer on their friends and classmates every Friday night. The group, which takes its name from 'Patriot,' was highlighted by WFMZ in September.

"When we come out, [the Riot Squad] gets us amped. I don't want to let them down. The noise they make on third down makes the other team struggle to hear play calls," said Jalen Stewart, junior running back

The Lehigh Valley Charter HS for the Arts presented Arthur Miller's 'The Crucible' at three performances Oct. 19, 20 and 21 in the Charter Arts theater. Director Christopher Morris said that the classic play's "concept of the idea of otherness" influenced its selection. Morris was assisted by Peter Wrenn-Meleck on the set and lighting design, Cheryl Vlasak on costume, hair and make-up design, Mike Lorenz on music composition and David Jerry on sound effects.

'The Crucible' was produced by the Charter Arts Theatre Department with a cast of 20 student actors, by special arrangement with Dramatists Play Service, Inc. from New York.

Reverend Samuel Parris (Dylan Gombos) is in anguish over the motionless body of his daughter Betty (Meara Plesh-Gill) after learning that she had been involved in some sort of witchcraft ritual.

"Are you gathering spirits for the devil," interrogates witchcraft expert Reverend John Hale (Jonathan Krippe) of Barbadian slave Tituba (Janet Hernandez).

Betty Parris (Meara Plesh-Gill) awakens from her trance near the end of the first act.

Abigail Williams (Marcella Karam) denies any involvement in pagan rituals with other girls.

Members of the Riot Squad tailgate on Grenadier Boulevard behind Frank Banko Field before every home game, where students dance and cover their bodies in paint.

"It's a nice way to get involved, and I've made a lot of new friends. I think [senior Max Stevens] is a really good leader, he gets the squad pumped up with his chants," said Carly Grozier, FHS sophomore and proud Riot Squad participant.

Students not involved in the Riot Squad still demonstrated their Patriot pride during the school's Spirit Week. Held the week preceding the Freedom vs. Liberty game, the 2018 Spirit Week consisted of five themed days: Pajama Day, Groutfit Day, Old People & Babies Day, Sports Jersey Day, and Black & Gold Day. Of course, some themes are more popular than others.

"My favorite Spirit Day was tied between 'Groutfit Day' and 'Jersey Day' because these are two new days that have not been done in my four years at Freedom. A lot more people participated in these two days than some of the others," Rader said.

The 2018-19 school year is off to quite a start at Freedom. As the football players prepare for playoffs, the student body gears up to cheer them on. With so much excitement in the school's near future, the Patriots dream of success in all areas. Check back in January for another update; but for now, GO PATES!

BETHLEHEM AREA SD

Board begins planning next year's district projects

BY HEATHER NIGRONE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

No more than a few weeks after celebrating the successful conclusion of the Nitschmann school replacement project, the BASD administration and Chief Facilities and Operations Officer Mark Stein, are continuing to press forward district wide. At the Oct. 8 school board facilities committee meeting, the future of many of the district's aging buildings was brought into discussion.

Summer projects, starting with 2019, are already selected, reaching out to 2022. These include adding dehumidification to Spring Garden ES, Farmersville ES and Freemansburg ES; heat pump replacement at Asa Packer, replacing the roof on the Liberty Commons building, replacing boilers in Clearview ES, among others. Some of the needed repairs suggested for 2019 have been on the Capital Plan, the district-wide "to-do" list since 1990, with the majority being on the list since the mid-2000s. The large number of buildings and maintenance requirements is in stark contrast to the limited availability of funds and summer-time access required for major construction, to avoid impact on students. To perform all the renovations in one year, the district would need to accumulate an impossible $46.5 million, and an additional $94.5 million would be required to address major renovations or reconstruction at Fountain Hill ES, as well as HVAC upgrades at East Hills and Freedom.

It is Stein's recommendation that the board continue to approve at least $2 million in repairs annually, to attempt to stay ahead of the needs of the aging structures. This is in line with the 2018 capital projects, which included roof repairs at the Education Center, major repairs to the Bethlehem stadium stands and handrails, and numerous repairs to Freedom HS and East Hills MS. The discussion over these items will continue to weigh on the board for the next few months, as they attempt to balance student safety and welfare in aging buildings against their duty to be diligent in the spending of taxpayer money.

Zeke Zelker's 'Billboard'

Film to have its world premiere at Nineteenth Street Theatre

BY KATHY LAUER-WILLIAMS
 Special to The Press

A locally-produced film, inspired by a 1982 billboard-sitting contest in Whitehall Township, will have its world premiere, 7 p.m. Nov. 1, Nineteenth Street Theatre, Allentown.

Lehigh Valley filmmaker Zeke Zelker's "Billboard" will be the first film shown in the newly-renovated theater which reopened after a one-year $5.5-million capital campaign project.

"Billboard" a fictionalized account of the real-life contest held by a local radio station in which three men camped on a billboard visible from Route 22 in the vicinity of the MacArthur Road overpass to try to win a mobile home.

The feature film was produced in the Lehigh Valley by Zelker with more than 2,000 working on the project.

"I'm excited and proud to be screening 'Billboard' at Civic," Zelker says. "I wanted to share the film with the community that helped make it."

Zelker, an Emmaus native who lives in Forks Township, wrote, directed and produced "Billboard," which was originally to screen for one night only at Civic. Demand for tickets was so great that nine more days of screenings were added. The film will continue through Nov. 10 at Civic.

"I am so proud of this film and the dedicated team who helped craft it," says Zelker. "I know that I like what I've created and, at the end of the day, this is my legacy and I better work damn hard to make it a good one."

Zelker says that after "Billboard" concludes its opening run in Allentown, the film embarks on a tour that kicks off in Lewisburg Nov 12, and will have one-night screenings in Harrisburg, West Chester, Philadelphia, and the Poconos before being released nationally in April.

"We will be taking the film to various cities and towns throughout the state to celebrate Pennsylvania film-making," Zelker says.

"I'm very proud to be from Pennsylvania and we want to share the film with those who will be able to relate with it most before we take it national in the spring."

Zelker says he has no plans to take "Billboard" to film festivals, but rather wants to take it "directly to the people."

Also on Nov. 1, Zelker will release a 25-episode web series, "The Billboard Sitters," at billboardmovie.com, that will focus Northampton counties. On Oct. 16, LVAC presented awards to fund a wide-range of activities, including cooperative murals, concert series, workshops and festivals. October is National Arts and Humanities Month.

The list of 2018-2019 Project Stream awardees reads like a "Who's Who" of Lehigh Valley arts organizations and artists. Nearly $40,000 of grants will be dispensed during the year to 33 projects, an increase from 26 projects 2017-2018, with an average grant award of about $1,200. Funded projects take place between Sept. 1, 2018, and Aug. 31, 2019.

This year's roster includes eight organizations receiving their first Project Stream grant, comprising about one-quarter of all the grants dispersed.

"Nearly $430,000 was granted to 159 unique applicants since 2005-2006," Forte says.

While everyone needs money, LVAC understands the arts are not just about a modest amount of cash.

"The impact these arts experiences have on the community appears greater than their grant amount suggest," notes Zach Kleemeyer, community engagement manager at LVAC. "Half of these projects have been funded multiple times and over the years they have been refined, improving their quality."

Karl Blischke, Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts, and Alex Michaels, Incoming President of Discover Lehigh Valley, addressed the gathering.

The awards are important, but they are not all of the work LVAC does, Forte notes.

Every five years, the LVAC, with the assistance of the Americans for the Arts, issues an economic impact study of nonprofit arts and culture organizations in the Lehigh Valley.

The most recent, issued in 2016, "Arts & Economic Prosperity 5," provides organizations "verifiable data" and "compelling evidence" to assess their situations and where and how to allocate resources.

According to the study, Lehigh Valley nonprofit arts organizations contribute about $186.4 million in economic impact annually.

Further, the research indicates that the arts in the Lehigh Valley provides more than 6,900 full-time jobs and generates $18.7 million in local and state tax revenues.

"The arts are great for business in the Lehigh Valley," Forte says.

LVAC maintains that "the arts build community."

The study indicates that nearly 7,000 donated more than 323,000 volunteer hours to the 98 nonprofits surveyed for the study.

More philosophically, the organization maintains the arts positively impact humanity.

"We are trying to make people aware of the value of the arts by the power of story," Forte says.

'Old Man' and the Oscar

"The Old Man & The Gun" is a throwback to 1970s' "New Hollywood" film-making and the early films of, among others, directors Martin Scorsese, Frances Ford Coppola, George Lucas, Steve Spielberg, and Brian Di Palma.

That "The Old Man & The Gun" has a 1970s' look in production design, including cinematography, lighting, sets, costumes, vehicles, and music, shouldn't be surprising because the fact-based story takes place in 1981 in Texas and nearby states and harks back to events of the previous decade.

Forrest Tucker, who has escaped from prison 16 times, including from San Quentin at age 70, leads what the media dubs "The Over-The-Hill Gang," which includes Teddy (Danny Glover) and Waller (Tom Waits), in a series of bank robberies. The real-life story recalls "Going In Style" (1979) that starred George Burns, Art Carney and Lee Strasberg. Call it "Grumpy Old Bank Robbers." AARP, indeed.

Tucker befriends a widow, Jewel (Sissy Spacek). Detective John Hunt (Casey Affleck) is on Tucker's trail.

"The Old Man & The Gun" is also a disco decade throwback because it stars Robert Redford as Forrest Tucker in what the 82-year-old actor, who received a director Oscar for "Ordinary People" (1981) and a Lifetime Achievement Oscar (2002), has said this is his last feature-film acting role. Be that as it may (or may not), Redford is a guaranteed Oscar actor nominee, and may well receive his first golden boy as actor for his stoically-distilled, intellectually-ruminative, and twinklingly-humorous portrayal of Tucker.

Redford owns the role. In his neatly-attired suits, fedora, and fake mustache, Redford is a gentleman bank robber, ever-courteous, ever-calm, and, for a time, ever-successful. Of course, the law finally catches up with him. The law, by turns, is a metaphor for time.

There's a subtext going on in "The Old Man & The Gun" that has a lot to do with Redford. We see a young Redford in photos of him portraying Tucker at a younger age during the police investigation by Detective John Hunt (Casey Affleck, actor Oscar recipient, "Manchester by the Sea," 2016). The contrast between the wizened Redford and the fresh-faced Redford makes us think of roles the actor played in his 1970s' prime (from 1974-1976, movie exhibitors voted Redford Hollywood's top box-office name).

Following his big-screen movie success with "Barefoot in the Park" (1967), the Neil Simon play that premiered as "Nobody Loves Me" in 1963 at Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope, in which Redford also starred (a photograph of

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein
pwillistein@online.com

Redford in the production is on the inside back wall of the theater), a string of hits followed: "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" (1967), "The Way We Were" (1973), "The Sting" (1973), "The Great Gatsby" (1974) and "All the President's Men" (1976). Redford's 79 movie and TV actor credits to date include his amazing one-man, near-wordless "All Is Lost" (2013) performance and his supporting role opposite the Lehigh Valley's Oakes Fegley in "Pete's Dragon" (2016).

"The Old Man & The Gun" is directed David Lowery ("Pete's Dragon," "Ain't Them Bodies Saints," 2013) from a screenplay he cowrote with David Grann, a staff writer for New Yorker magazine, which published his article about Forrest Tucker's escapades. The screenplay has amusing dialogue and some hard-won revealed truths. Look for an adapted screenplay Oscar nomination for Lowery and Grann.

Lowery directs with a systematic, firm hand and at a pace that suits the slow-walking and casual-talking lead roles as played by Redford and Spacek. Look for a director Oscar nomination for Lowery.

Director of Photography Joe Anderson gets up close and personal with Redford and Spacek in mostly profile views that reveal their wrinkles and all.

Redford and Spacek (recipient, actress Oscar, "Coal Miner's Daughter," 1980; six-time Oscar nominee) are absolutely charming and captivating. Their scenes together are especially sweet. Look for a supporting actress Oscar nomination for Spacek.

Fine in supporting roles are Tika Sumpter as Hunt's wife, and Ari Elizabeth Johnson and Teagan Johnson as their children.

The music by Daniel Hart, of guitar and piano, has a quiet resonance, increases in tempo with bass and drums during some of the heists and chases, and settles into a ballad that counterpoints the climatic action to good effect.

The sense of the film is akin to that of "Three Billboards Outside Ebbing, Missouri" (2017). These are small-town settings, small-personalities, and big problems. With "The Old Man & The Gun," it's small-time thieves. The payoff is worth it.

'Chamber On Stage' turns musicians, audience around

BY KATHY LAUER-WILLIAMS
Special to The Press

The Allentown Symphony Association is turning the Miller Symphony Hall stage around for its new chamber music series.

For the 3 p.m. Nov. 4 concert that opens the hall's "Chamber On Stage" series, the New York City group Decoda will play on the main stage, but with the performers' backs to the orchestra seats in which the audience usually sits.

And audience members will be seated toward the back of the stage facing the performers.

Diane Wittry, music director and conductor of the Allentown Symphony Orchestra, says the set-up will create the feeling of an intimate space, while still taking full advantage of the acoustics and grandeur of Symphony Hall.

"It's a more relaxed concept and a great way to start this eclectic new series," Wittry says.

The chamber series was launched this year at the request of sponsor The NB Center for American Automotive Heritage of Allentown. Wittry says the NB Center was very interested in developing a high-quality chamber series.

She says her goal in inviting performers was to give audiences a lot of variety. The series features a string quartet, piano soloist, saxophone quintet, and Decoda, which calls itself a "modular chamber ensemble."

Members of Decoda switch out to play whatever parts are required for the pieces they perform. On the Nov. 4 program, for example, there is a viola solo, a string duet and a piano trio and quartet.

Wittry says what is particularly interesting about the Nov. 4 program is that the first half of the concert is all pieces by female composers.

"They go from the very earliest woman composer to a very current composer, who will actually be at the concert," Wittry says.

Pennsylvania composer Anna Weesner, who will be in attendance, composed "Sudden, Unbidden" for violin and cello.

The program includes a work for solo viola by Hildegard of Bingen, who wrote music for the church in the 12th century and is one of the first known female composers.

Clara Schumann's "Piano Trio in G Minor, Op. 17" also will be performed. Clara, who was married to the great 19th-century German composer Robert Schumann, was better known as a pianist, but she also composed music.

Decoda, 3 p.m. Nov. 4, "Chamber On Stage," Miller Symphony Hall, Allentown.

The second half of the program is "Piano Quartet No. 1 in G minor, Op. 25" by Johannes Brahms, who was a protégé of Robert Schumann and became close to Clara after Robert's death.

In January, pianist Stefano Greco returns for the second concert in the "Chamber On Stage" series.

Wittry says Greco played with Allentown Symphony Orchestra members in the 2017-2018 season for a concert in the "Arts at St John's" series at St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Allentown.

Greco's 3 p.m. Jan. 27 concert on the symphony stage will feature music by Mozart, Beethoven and Liszt.

"You can't go wrong with that," says Wittry.

The Dover Quartet will perform an all-Beethoven program at its concert, 3 p.m. March 3 in the "Chamber On Stage" series.

The Philadelphia string quartet catapulted to international stardom following a sweep of the 2013 Banff Competition and has become one of the most in-demand ensembles in the world.

All four quartet members are accomplished solo artists: first violinist Joel Link took first prize at the Menuhin Competition; violinist Bryan Lee and violist Milena Pajaro-van de Stadt have appeared as soloists with the Philadelphia Orchestra and Tokyo Philharmonic, and cellist Camden Shaw released a solo album debut on the Uniphony Music label.

Wittry says she heard them perform Beethoven in New York and felt it would be perfect for the series, especially in light of the upcoming 250th anniversary of Beethoven's birth.

"Beethoven is like the grandfather who laid the foundation for string quartets," she says.

The program includes "Quartet in F major, Op.

18, No. 1," "Quartet in D major, Op. 18, No. 3" and "Quartet in C minor, Op. 18, No. 4."

The final ensemble of the "Chamber On Stage" series is the Donald Sinta Saxophone Quartet, 3 p.m. May 19 in its program, "Around the World in 80 Minutes."

Wittry says since the development of saxophone quartets is newer, most of the music that has been written is of more recent vintage and the program demonstrates pieces from all over.

She says the choice of a group of the specializes in saxophone ties in with the symphony's community saxophone event in February, at which saxophone players of all levels will play together and some hand-picked performers will get to play with celebrated saxophone player Paul Cohen.

She says she hopes musicians involved in the community event will return to see the Sinta Quartet, which is the first-prize winner of the Concert Artists Guild Competition.

The Sinta Quartet, based in Michigan, performs entirely from memory, and is named for its mentor, legendary University of Michigan Saxophone Professor Donald Sinta. The quartet also runs the National Saxophone Quartet Composition Competition. The group's repertoire includes commissions by emerging composers, standards from the saxophone quartet literature and transcriptions by master composers such as Dvořák, Schubert and Shostakovich.

Seating for the chamber series is general admission. On stage tickets are $23. Also available will be tickets for seats in the orchestra section for $10. However, the performers will have their backs to those in the section.

on the four contestants in the billboard-sitting contest.

He says the project, which he first started working on in 1998, was envisioned as a multi-platform media project.

"It's been baked into the DNA of this project since its inception," Zelker says. "I always wanted to tell the story through the eye of a radio station. So, we created one."

In 2011, Zelker launched WTYT960.com, a virtual radio station that has more than 1,000 bands on it from 49 states and 22 countries. WTYT 960 is also the radio station in the film.

He says he wanted to tell the story from two perspectives.

"One side is how the four contestants live on the billboard and the other focuses on the man who created the contest," Zelker says.

The film and web series were shot at different times, with different crews and employ different styles of film-making.

"The two pieces of work are very different and that's intentional," Zelker says.

The film centers around a struggling radio station that decides to host a billboard-sitting contest in an effort to drive up ratings. Contestants set up tents on the billboard in hopes of winning $96,000 and a mobile home.

The story is inspired by radio station WSAN-AM's 1982 contest in which three men tried to outlast each other through the winter on a billboard at MacArthur Road and Route 22 to win an $18,000 modular home.

The billboard-sitting contest ended up lasting nearly nine months and made national and international news as a symbol of the United States' economic struggles.

The "Billboard" cast includes Eric Roberts, who starred in NBC's "Heroes" (2006-2010); Darlene Cates, who was seen in the movie, "What's Eating Gilbert Grape?" (1993); Heather Matarazzo of the movie, "Welcome to the Dollhouse" (1995), and two members of Lehigh Valley's own Barrymore family of actors, father and son, Michael Fegley and Oakes Fegley ("Pete's Dragon," 2016).

Zelker says that, although the film has gotten a lot of support from the community, he and his wife Elaine financed 90 percent of the film themselves.

"Elaine and I worked hard and my family has sacrificed a lot for my vision," he says.

"I think the struggle to make the film and web series affected the storyline in a very authentic way. They are much more profound than the stories I originally set out to tell."

"Billboard" is the fourth film that Zelker has produced and made in the Lehigh Valley. His previous films include "Affairs" (1997), "A.K.A.: It's a Wiley World!" (2003) and "In-SearchOf" (2009).

Zelker has worked on films that he didn't write and direct, including: producer, "Fading" (2003); co-producer, "Loggerheads" (2005); associate producer, "Southern Belles" (2005); associate producer, "Just Like the Son" (2006), and co-producer, "Pandemic" (2011).

Next, Zelker plans to make a film based on the book "Adventure on a Dare," written by Bethlehem native and adventurer Fritz Sprandel about the true story of his 1971 attempt to paddle a canoe from the Jersey Shore through the Panama Canal, on a dime bet.

Sprandel made headlines when he was jailed by Fidel Castro after he got off course and his canoe landed on a beach in Cuba.

Zelker says he also is "ready to go" on a film called "Love, Here," about two afflicted people, one a child-advocate attorney, the other a ballet dancer, who break down each other's barriers to fall in love.

St. Andrews Church holds designer purse bingo

PRESS PHOTOS BY STEPHEN ALTHOUSE

If you have it, shout it loud and say it proud – “Bingo!” That was the goal of the day for about 260 people who took a chance at the St. Andrew’s Lutheran Church Designer Purse and Gift Card bingo event Oct. 14 at the Fearless Fire Company in Allentown. A portion of the proceeds will go to the CROP Hunger Walk in support of ending world hunger.

At the event there are five bingo “specials” – the letter “H” for “Hope,” “F” for “Faith,” “L” for “Love” and a large cross and coverall. Basket raffle tickets were drawn later during the event, in addition to a 50/50 drawing. There were also several snacks available for those who worked up a hunger, including hot dogs, chicken fingers, hamburgers, ring bologna and cheese and nachos, along with various beverages.

From the e-mail bag: minerals, second-hand smoke, lumbago

Q. Should I take minerals?

It's important to talk with your doctor before you take mineral pills, especially if you take prescription medicines, have any health problems or are elderly. Taking too much of a mineral can cause problems with some medical tests or interfere with drugs you're taking.

Minerals are "micro-nutrients" your body needs in small but steady amounts. Your body can't make most micro-nutrients, so you must get them elsewhere.

Minerals come from the earth or from water. Plants and animals absorb them to get nutrients. The major minerals are calcium, phosphorus, magnesium, sodium, potassium, sulfur and chloride. They are considered major minerals because adults need them in large amounts.

The trace minerals are chromium, copper, fluoride, iodine, iron, manganese, molybdenum, selenium and zinc. Your body needs them in smaller amounts.

Whole foods are your best sources of minerals. It would be hard to overdose on minerals that you get from the foods you eat. But if you take supplements, you can easily take too much.

Q. Aren't some people making a bit too much out of second-hand smoke?

Secondhand smoke, also called Environmental Tobacco Smoke (ETS), is made up of the sidestream smoke from the end of a cigarette, pipe, or cigar, and the mainstream smoke that is exhaled.

Nonsmokers exposed to secondhand smoke absorb the same 4,000 chemical compounds that smokers do. More than 60 of these compounds are known or suspected to cause cancer.

Each year in the United States, secondhand smoke is responsible for about 40,000 deaths from heart disease, and about 3,000 lung-cancer deaths.

Secondhand smoke causes increased cardiovascular risks by damaging blood vessels, decreasing your ability to exercise and altering blood cholesterol levels.

Some research indicates that people exposed to a spouse's cigarette smoke for several decades are about 20 percent more likely to have lung cancer. Those who are exposed long-term to secondhand smoke in the workplace or social settings may increase their risk of lung cancer by about 25 percent.

Q. You never hear about lumbago anymore. Has it been cured?

Lumbago is lower back pain. The song is just about ended, but the malady lingers on.

Back pain affects about eight of 10. Back pain is more common among those who are not physically fit. Weak back and abdominal muscles may not properly support the spine. If you're sedentary most of the time and then exert yourself on rare occasions, you are more likely to injure your back than someone who exercises daily.

If you're carrying a big belly, you put added stress on the muscles in your low back and are a candidate for agony.

Some back pain, including disc disease, may spring from your genes. Race can have an influence, too. African-American women, for example, are two to three times more likely than white women to develop spondylolisthesis, a condition in which a bone, vertebra, of the lower spine slips out of place.

Your job can be a major influence on back health. If your work requires heavy lifting or sitting all day, you risk hurting your back. Many sanitationmen and writers suffer from back troubles.

Mechanical problems can cause back pain. Perhaps the most common mechanical cause of back pain is disc degeneration.

The cushioning discs between the vertebrae of the spine break down with age. If there is stress on these compromised discs, they press against spinal nerves and you may experience what feels like a toothache in a buttock. At almost any age, an injury can force these discs to bulge or rupture causing the same kind of pain.

LVHN offers free flu shots Nov. 3 at Dorney Park, and Nov. 4 at Coca-Cola Park

Lehigh Valley Health Network (LVHN) will administer free seasonal flu vaccinations for the 21st straight year for adults and children six months and older during two community sessions in November.

Shots will be given on all drive-through basis, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. Nov. 3, Dorney Park & Wildwater Kingdom, Hamilton Boulevard, South Whitehall Township, and 9 a.m. - 3 p.m., Coca-Cola Park, American Parkway and Union Boulevard, Allentown.

In the past 20 years, LVHN's community influenza vaccination campaign has administered nearly 160,000 free flu shots and collected more than 112,000 pounds of food for area food banks.

LVHN is again partnering with area food banks and shelters, including the Allentown Area Ecumenical Food Bank, Second Harvest Food Bank of Lehigh Valley, Allentown Rescue Mission, Transitional Living Center Program and the Comprehensive Health Services food pantry at Lehigh Valley Hospital-17th Street, to accept donations of unexpired, non-perishable food items during each of the drive-through sessions.

Food donations are optional and not required to receive a shot. Those who choose to donate food are urged to check the expiration date and only bring items that have not expired and are non-perishable.

In addition this year, volunteers will be collecting other items to assist those in need in our community, including diapers, personal hygiene products (toothbrushes, for example) and wipes.

LVHN is partnering with the Allentown Health Bureau for online registration again this year. Slots are available for morning or afternoon sessions Nov. 3 and 4. Slots are not appointments. Those reserving times may arrive at any time during the reserved time period.

A vaccine information statement, consent form, link to online registration and maps of both locations are available at lvhn.org/flushot. Please bring a completed, and signed 2018-2019 consent form for each individual receiving a flu shot.

According to Terry Burger, RN, LVHN Director of Infection Control and Prevention, quadrivalent flu vaccine will be given this year to those six months to 64 years of age. It will protect against four different flu strains, two influenza Type A strains and two influenza Type B strains. Burger said those 65 and older will be offered the trivalent high-dose vaccine.

"Influenza has already been identified in our area," Burger said. "Last year was reported to be the worst flu season in the U.S. in two decades."

"The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported 80,000 deaths associated with the flu last year alone. There were 180 deaths among children. Getting the vaccine is the best way to protect yourself and those around you from getting the flu."

Burger said vaccine supplies are expected to be plentiful this year and so the public should not be concerned about being able to get a shot.

Those planning to receive a flu shot are asked to abide by the following requests:

Review the vaccine information sheet and complete and bring the 2018-2019 consent form for each person to be vaccinated. Forms may be found at lvhn.org/flushot, or requested by calling 888-402-LVHN (5846).

Dress appropriately. Loose-fitting clothing for the shot to be administered in the arm, and the leg of children under two-years-old.

No job experience is ever wasted

Did you ever have a job you didn't want?

Perhaps you had to be there because you couldn't find anything better.

Or perhaps you were there temporarily until you could get the job you really wanted.

That was my experience when I was working as a dental assistant while I waited for my "real job" to open.

At the time, I was fresh out of high school. Before the ink had time to dry on my high school diploma, my mother insisted I had to find a job.

I was promised the job of my dreams working on our hometown newspaper but I had to wait for the opening to materialize, I was told.

My mother didn't put much stock in promises. "You can't pay a bill with a promise," she insisted.

So, three days after graduation I found myself sitting in a dentist's office waiting along with several others to be interviewed. I was only there as a buddy for my girlfriend who was applying — and to placate my mother.

I didn't want the job. I got it anyway.

I thought it would be a wasted experience to stand there handing the demanding dentist the instruments he needed. I also had to take bitewing X-rays and then do the accounting books — at night on my own time.

The surprise was that I gained so much during my brief stint there. Working for a demanding boss was a positive experience because it taught me to try to live up to someone's expectations. I learned a lot, too.

When you think about it, no experience is ever wasted. We learn from every situation.

Well, my job as a journalist did materialize. But it's erroneous to say I worked there. It was more like an ongoing adventure, and I loved every minute of it. I relished everything about the job.

I got one promotion after another and thought I would be at the paper forever.

"Forever" lasted only until I got married and was pregnant with my first child. When I told my boss the happy news he told me I had to leave immediately because he didn't believe in pregnant women working on his paper.

Hard to believe that could happen, right? But things were different back then.

It seemed incredible that the same week I lost that job I had a phone call offering me another one. I was to be a temporary replacement at a social service agency for a woman recovering from surgery.

I liked that job and appreciated the way the supervisor allowed me to interview clients after she discovered I could do it.

I learned so much there, too. And to this day I am a big supporter of Catholic Charities because I saw firsthand how much good they do.

When I was hired as a

WARMEST REGARDS
By Pattie Mihalik
newsgirl@comcast.net

feature writer for a daily newspaper I was thrilled. No matter how many hours I put in it never felt like "work."

After I was promoted to management I loved that part of the job, too.

Unfortunately, something that had nothing to do with me led to my undoing. The new editor had an argument with my father-in-law that ended up in court as a property dispute.

When the editor lost the case he called me into his office and said I was no longer part of management. He didn't want anyone with my last name on his team.

So I lost my title. What I gained was $90 each paycheck. Management wasn't entitled to overtime, but it was mandatory for reporters.

When I saw my paycheck with extra money, I when into the editor's office and hugged him.

He had the last laugh, because he did everything to make me leave. When I was ordered to work Christmas Eve and Christmas Day and couldn't be with my family, I threw in the towel.

The editor got what he wanted — my resignation.

I didn't think there was a job that could compare to that of a journalist.

I was wrong. I was quickly hired by the Intermediate Unit as a teacher for the gifted program. Part of the job also involved helping students struggling to pass.

Finding ways to help students achieve academic success was rewarding beyond my wildest expectations.

I cried when my family moved and I had to leave that teaching job.

I think the angel in charge of jobs must always be at my side.

When we moved to Palmerton I found yet another perfect job at the Times News. I absolutely thrived on community journalism and also loved the company. Again I found myself having so much fun that I thought I should be paying them.

I was so happy to never leave that company until retirement beckoned like an enticing siren.

Readers no doubt know I still write a weekly column for the Times News and for East Penn Publishing papers.

I love the constant feedback I get from readers and relish the opportunity to keep on writing.

The message of this column: Never think any job is a waste of time.

Only a bad attitude can do that.

We can learn from every job and every opportunity.

All we have to do is to stay positive and remain open to all that comes our way.

Don't give ill bus passenger cold shoulder

Dear Jacquelyn, I recently took a bus trip to New York City. The bus was packed and I was seated before the long line of passengers piled onto the bus. The seat next to me was available and a woman sat down next to me. As soon as the bus pulled out, I noticed she had a cough and head cold. I knew I was in for an unpleasant bus ride. I worried that I would catch her cold. Why do people travel when they are visibly sick? What do you recommend I do if this happens again?

Dear Reader, Public transportation by nature places you in close proximity

RESPECTFULLY YOURS
By Jacquelyn Youst

to strangers for long periods of time. It is inevitable that some of these people may be sick with a cold or even worse, the flu.

I encourage you that the next time you find yourself sitting next to a sick traveler, talk about the situation promptly and use a friendly tone.

Smile and say, "I can see you are not feeling well. It's not fun to travel while you're under the weather."

Travel prepared. Bring tissues, hand sanitizer and cough drops to offer to your neighbor to limit the coughing and sneezing. Share them when necessary.

When someone is visibly ill, it's a good time to keep your hands to yourself. For example, it is classic etiquette is to avoid touching your face. Touching your face shows nervousness.

However, in this situation, avoiding doing so will also keep you healthier. And, while you may really enjoy meeting the person in the seat next to you, don't feel bad about avoiding shaking hands. They will understand.

The biggest thing in terms of making the most of a situation like this is attitude. You can roll your eyes at an ill passenger if you want, but it's not going to help anyone.

Avoid making your own travel miserable by getting all worked up. The best thing you can do is to be aware of the risk and take precautions to avoid getting sick.

And, if you're the one with the cold, respect your fellow travelers by simply staying home.

Respectfully Yours, Jacquelyn

Two-year-old's biting problem addressed

Q. My two-year-old daughter has a huge biting problem at her day-care. I get a note almost every other day that she bit someone. We have contacted her doctor, who says it is normal at this age. But I don't think it is normal if it happens this often. We have done time-outs, talked to her, and spanked her, but she doesn't understand that biting hurts and she should not do it. What can we do?

The panel began by talking about what not to do.

"The first thing to do is to stop spanking her," panelist Mike Daniels said. "The concern here is that the two-year-old is using biting aggressively. If the parents give an aggressive response back they are increasing the aggression within the relationship unnecessarily. Do something that doesn't increase anger."

Panelist Pam Wallace said that the response to the biting needs to be immediate. "Waiting until she gets home to use time-outs or spanking doesn't work because the child

THE FAMILY PROJECT

By Carole Gorney

no longer makes the connection between the biting and the punishment."

"I would encourage the mother to work with the day-care staff to resolve the problem together," panelist Denise Continenza said. "The mother needs to know what happens before the biting, whom she [the daughter] is biting and how the staff responds."

"Biting is something that gets a reaction every time from everybody, and those responses provide reinforcement," said panelist Kristy Bernard. There should be some planning with the day-care center about how to deal with the biting, Bernard recommended.

Panelist Chad Stefanyak said he would like to know more about the child's language skills, and her ability to express herself. "With limited verbal skills, it is not unusual for two-year-olds to bite."

Addressing the problem short-term, Daniels suggested bringing out some old teething rings, and while playing, talk about what biting is for and what it does. "Never ask why she bites because that assumes she is doing something wrong," Daniels added.

Long-term, the mother and day-care staff should work on better ways for the daughter to express her communication frustrations, Stefanyak urged. "Using some form of baby sign language might help the child get better at expressing herself."

The panel suggested contacting Unconditional Child Care, Allentown, which provides assistance in dealing with classroom behavioral problems, by calling: 610-433-3919.

TAX SALE NOTICE

NOTICE OF THE LEHIGH COUNTY TAX CLAIM BUREAU

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Northeast Revenue Service, LLC as agent for the Lehigh County Tax Claim Bureau will hold a JUDICIAL SALE under the Pennsylvania Real Estate Tax Law of 1947, as amended, commencing 10:00 A.M. the 5th day of December, 2018 in the Lehigh County Government Center, 17 South 7th Street, Allentown, Pennsylvania. The properties exposed to sale will be sold free and clear of all tax and municipal claims, mortgages, liens, charges and estates of whatsoever kind, except ground rents separately taxed.

IT IS STRONGLY URGED that prospective purchasers have an examination made of the title to any property in which they may be interested. Every reasonable effort has been made to keep the proceedings free from error. However, in every case the Tax Claim Bureau is selling the TAXABLE INTEREST and the property is offered for sale by the Tax Claim Bureau without guarantee of warranty whatsoever, either as to structure or lack of structures upon the land.

There will be NO REDEMPTION PERIOD after the date of the sale, but these Taxes and Costs can be paid up to the time of the sale.

Prospective purchasers at all tax sales are required to provide the following certification to the Tax Claim Bureau:

1. In accordance with Section 619a of the Real Estate Tax Sale Law, 72 P.S. § 5860.619a, a successful bidder shall be required to provide certification to the Bureau that such person is not delinquent in paying real estate taxes owed to taxing bodies within Lehigh County, and is not bidding on behalf of another person or entity that is delinquent in paying real estate taxes owed to taxing bodies within Lehigh County.
2. In accordance with Section 619a of the Real Estate Tax Sale Law, 72 P.S. § 5860.619a, a successful bidder shall be required to provide certification to the Bureau that such person is not delinquent in paying municipal utility bills owed to municipalities within Lehigh County, and is not bidding on behalf of another person or entity that is delinquent in paying municipal utility bills owed to municipalities within Lehigh County.
3. Pursuant to Section 601 (d) of the Real Estate Tax Sale Law, 72 P.S. § 5860.601 (d), prospective bidders must certify that they have not had a landlord license revoked in any municipality in Lehigh County and that they are not acting as an agent for a person whose landlord license has been revoked.

In accordance with Section 618 of the Real Estate Tax Sale Law, 72 P.S. § 5860.618, the owner shall not be permitted to repurchase said property.

TERMS OF SALE: Payment of the bid price along with transfer taxes and recording costs shall be due and owing as soon as the sale is completed. In the event that said amount is not paid before the close of business on the day of the sale, the sale will be voided and the bidder shall not be permitted to bid on any properties in future sales. In the event that a successful bidder tenders a bad check to the Tax Claim Bureau when purchasing a property in any sale the bidder shall not be permitted to bid on any properties in future sales and the matter shall be referred to the Lehigh County District Attorney's Office for prosecution under the Pennsylvania Crimes Code, 18 Pa. C.S.A. § 4105 which may lead to a CONVICTION OF A FELONY OF THE THIRD DEGREE.

INSTRUCTIONS: Any person whose property is included in the list and being exposed to Public Sale, who believes that by reason of some defect said property should not be exposed to sale, should immediately make known their reason to the Tax Claim Bureau, either in person or by agent.

The County of Lehigh does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability or familial status in employment or the provision of services.

Any questions regarding the Judicial Sale should be directed to the Lehigh County Tax Claim Bureau at (610) 782-3119.

Prospective bidders must register prior to the sale. NO REGISTRATION WILL BE TAKEN ON THE DAY OF THE SALE. Registration and certification forms are available in the Tax Claim Bureau and online at www.lehighcountytaxclaim.com. All prospective bidders must present one (1) form of photo identification at the time of registration and on the date of the sale. Failure to present photo identification at the time of registration will prevent a prospective bidder from being registered to bid. Failure to present photo identification on the date of the sale will prevent the bidder from receiving his bidder number and thus barring the registered bidder from having the opportunity to bid on property. Only the registered bidder may bid at the sale using the bidder number provided by the Bureau. Use of the bidder number by individuals other than the registered bidder is prohibited and may nullify a successful bid.

*Immediately upon conclusion of the sale, a deposit of $1,000.00 or the bid amount, whichever is higher, must be made to Northeast Revenue Service, LLC by each successful bidder immediately upon the closing of bidding for each parcel. Failure to make said deposit will result in nullification of the bid and the property will be re-auctioned to a new bidder. In the event that the deposit is made but the bidder does not return to pay the balance by 4:00 p.m. the day of the sale, the bid will be nullified, the deposit will be forfeited, the bidder will be barred from future sales, and the property will be offered to the second-highest bidder or relisted at the next judicial sale.****
