Board tours middle school

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
 njastrzowski@tnonline.com

The uncushioned fold-down seats in Nitschmann MS's auditorium, far fewer than one might think of seeing at a school with 900 students, are every bit as uncomfortable as they look. The cavernous room is also filled with an array of band equipment and generally looks shabby.

And it was the site of the Bethlehem Area School District's board of directors' facilities meeting Oct. 1, which followed a tour of much of the equally-dingy building.

Point well made.

The directors spoke at length of slowly-coalescing plans for the aged school, which actually comprises three decades-old buildings constructed during very different eras. Consulting engineer Mark Stein said they've narrowed the best options for the future of Nitschmann to six choices, ranging from "do nothing" to "construct an entirely new school." The options

Corner store zoning amended

By ANDREW CASS
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

An amendment to the zoning code that would create more restrictions on what is allowed to occupy a corner store was unanimously approved to be sent to the planning committee at the Oct. 2 Bethlehem City Council meeting.

The zoning code that was passed in early August allowed use corner homes in residential neighborhoods to be used as businesses. The proposed amendment would exempt tattoo parlors and pawn shops from operating out of these corner stores.

The amendment comes after city residents such as Bruce Haines voiced complaints about the new zoning codes.

"I think it's important for this body to set the ground rules for what can and can't be in a corner store instead of allowing the decision to be left up to the zoning hearing board," Haines said. "There's already a provision that doesn't allow for a pawn shop within a mile of a casino, it seems only

OCTOBER CLASSICS

Oktoberfest

Matt Chua and bartender TJ Firman, in a red sweatshirt, led the team to victory. Ten businesses from Bethlehem competed in the Oktoberfest Skills Competition, and the Tally-Ho also won the overall Yuengling traveling trophy. The second annual German/Bavarian festival put on by ArtsQuest continues for another three-day celebration this weekend with games, food, entertainment and newly added amusement rides. The hours of the ticketed event are Friday, 5-12 p.m., Saturday noon-12 p.m. and Sunday noon-9 p.m. LEFT: Lauren Sunday of Molly's Irish Grille and Sports Pub on the Southside is crowned Miss Oktoberfest. The bartender and Bethlehem resident was chosen from the female staffers representing each tavern competing in the Skills Challenge. The first Miss Oktoberfest of the second annual festival will serve as the grand marshal of the parade on closing day Oct. 14.

Prisons to grow in farm district

By BERNIE O'HARE
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

Like it or not, Bethlehem Township must provide for prison uses in its zoning ordinance. That's what a three-judge Commonwealth Court panel ruled in April, holding that the township ordinance was unconstitutionally exclusionary. At its Oct. 1 meeting, a sharply divided Board of Commissioners complied with that decision by approving a zoning ordinance amendment that will allow prison uses in the township's agricultural district. These changes were supported by President Paul Weiss, Tom Nolan and Mike Hudak. But the board's two newest members – Phil Barnard and Marty Zawarski – voted no.

These changes were unanimously recommended by the Planning Commission in August. But the Lehigh Valley Planning Commission (LVPC) cautioned against using land set aside for farmland preservation, and warned that some of this land abuts residential development. These regional planners recom-in between offer various levels of renovation. Stein said Nitschmann already costs 16 percent more to maintain than other district middle schools and the first option, which is to, "Maintain, maintain, maintain," is the cheapest, but, "sooner or later you have to deal with it," he said, describing numerous items that must be done that will still cost an estimated $15 million.

Board President Mike Faccinotto was the only member to speak his mind definitively, saying he feels Principal Jacqueline Santanasto and engineer Arif Fazil explain some of Nitschmann MS's compounding shortcomings. But closure will cause problems too, said Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy, explaining moving Nitschmann's 900 students to other schools would cause an overflow problem. Existing rooms at district middle schools, operating at maximum class size for administrators' comfort levels, will only find places for about 620 of Nitschmann's 900 students. "So we'd have a problem," Roy said.

Roy added that while this isn't a rush job, he'd like direction from the board within a month or so as to which options to focus on, because delving into any will cost time and money. He promised refined timelines and numbers on the projects for the Oct. 8 finance committee meeting.

fair not to have a pawn shop next door to a residence." Haines also asked that the council put in a residential component that would require the store owner to live on the second floor of the building, as in the mom and pop shops of old.

"I propose that it should be owner-occupied," Haines said. "That tended to be what a corner store was if we go back to the original concept. At the very least there should be someone residing at the facility. There are already provisions now for bed and breakfasts, for example, that do require the owner or operator to live there, so there are precedents in the zoning to require something like that."

A residential component was not part of council's proposed amendment, however.

The amendment was referred to the planning commission, which is scheduled to meet Oct. 11.

The council also unanimously approved the expansion of the Local Economic Revitalization Tax Assistance (LERTA) program, as well as changing the renewal period for the program from two years to five years.

"I think that this is the right thing for the city and I think we need to do everything we can as far as encouraging investment in these areas," councilman William Reynolds said.

LERTA's expansion will be along the eastern gateway of the city, which includes Daly Avenue, Lynn Avenue, Fifth Street and Edward Street. Third and Fourth streets from Hayes Street to the business district, as well as Wyandotte Street will be part of the expansion on the western side of the city.

The LERTA program allows companies to forgo paying property tax in the first year of new construction and then pay 10 percent more each year until they return to paying full property tax after a decade.

mended the establishment of an institutional zone, or an overlay in existing industrial zones.

Marty Zawarski pointed out that, under the proposed change, a prison could be built as close as 200 feet from someone's home. "Two hundred feet! That's the width of my lot," exclaimed Zawarski.

Phil Barnard said he is opposed to the idea completely. He said residents have been very negative about prisons inside the township. "It's something that I have some concerns with," he said.

But Weiss explained that this change is being forced on the township by the Commonwealth Court. "We need to allow any use which is permitted across the commonwealth," he said. He added that it would be nearly impossible to create a zone inside an industrial zone because there's simply no room. "We would end up with the same situation that the court told us we need to remedy," he concluded.

Zoning Hearing Board Chair Steve Szy, speaking for himself, noted that the amendment imposes a 1,500-foot buffer next to sensitive uses like schools. He asked commissioners to include medical facilities as well. "We need to keep this away from those as far as we can," he argued.

But special solicitor Stan Margle, who drafted the ordinance under consideration, advised commissioners that they will have the discretion to decide whether allowing a prison within 1,500 feet of another sensitive use is detrimental to the Township.

Manager Howard Kutzler said that a prison use inside the agricultural district is a realistic location that would defeat a subsequent claim of exclusionary zoning. "We're trying to avoid that," he said.

After the vote, Kutzler stated he will work on changes to the ordinance to accommodate the concerns expressed by Szy and Zawarski. Weiss agreed with this approach, saying the ordinance can be tweaked.

Abe Atiyeh, a township resident as well as the developer who successfully challenged the ordinance as exclusionary, said nothing about the merits of the proposal, but asked to be considered a party to the ordinance. So did his executive vice president, Dave Harte.

Solicitor Margle said there's a legal reason for this maneuver, but declined to elucidate.

In other business, commissioners agreed to seek bids for signage at Housenick Memorial Park. The board of commissioners is next scheduled to meet Oct. 15, 7 p.m. at the municipal building, located at 4225 Easton Ave.

Critical Voting Issues

High unemployment, a growing and dangerously unsustainable 16-trillion-dollar deficit, and other economy-related issues focus our attention on the importance of voting for responsible candidates who will decrease spending and taxation and turn things around in our nation.

Some feel that the most critical voting issues we face are those relating to the economy; however, from a biblical standpoint, spiritual issues are the most critical voting issues! I believe that the solution to our nation's problems is essentially spiritual—not political. We desperately need a grassroots spiritual awakening! That comes through repentance and prayer. We cannot ignore God and vote Him and His ways out of our political platforms or nation without suffering for it economically. The Bible says, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD" (Psalm 33:12). God promises financial blessings to those who obey Him, but He warns that He will withhold these blessings from the disobedient (Deuteronomy 28).

The Bible says, "Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people" (Proverbs 14:34). Abortion is among the most critical spiritual voting issues. Over 3,700 unborn American babies are killed every day in violation of God's law and common decency! Their blood cries out to God for justice as did Abel's blood (Genesis 4:10). God holds us responsible to vote for candidates who honor God by defending the innocent unborn! Another critical spiritual voting issue is same-sex marriage (sodomy) which God condemns in Leviticus 20:13, "If a man also lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination." We must vote for candidates who uphold God's marriage plan between one man and one woman (Genesis 2:24).

I urge you to pray for this election and vote for candidates who support God's position on these critical issues!

No ID needed Nov. 6

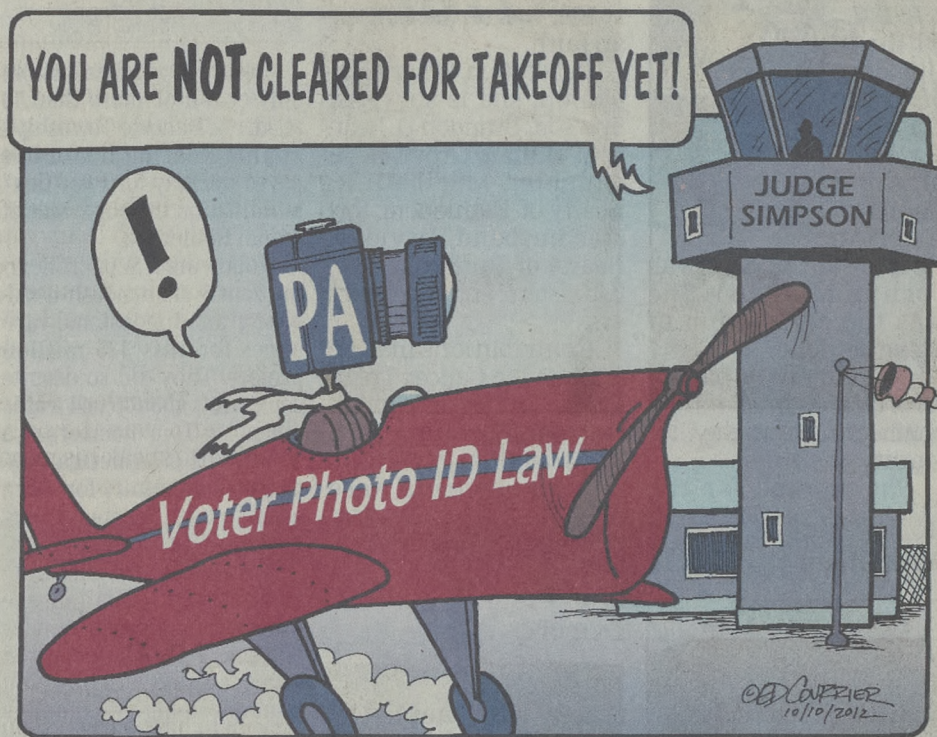

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njstrzemi@ttonline.com

November's election is now officially unconstrained by Pennsylvania's oft-debated voter ID law.

Commonwealth Court Judge Robert Simpson decided on an injunction Oct. 2, which will allow residents to vote without photo ID, but does not entirely take the law off the table after November.

Simpson was ordered by the State Supreme Court a few weeks ago to better research his initial decision allowing the law. He was told to make certain the law could disenfranchise no voters to be considered constitutional, and he apparently realized it would be physically impossible to make certain the entire population has acceptable ID cards before the election.

President of the Pennsylvania State Education Association Mike Crossey said of the decision in a press release, "There shouldn't be roadblocks erected in front of Pennsylvania's voting booths. Today, the Commonwealth Court tore one down, ensuring that Pennsylvanians can exercise their right to vote on Nov. 6. Today's decision ensures that the rights of Pennsylvanians to cast ballots on Election Day will not be eroded, infringed, or violated. Pennsylvanians should be proud of this decision and the principles that it upholds."

In her own release, Pa. State Sen. Lisa Boscola explained, "While I understand and support efforts to deter voter fraud, the state has demonstrated an inability to ensure individuals have access to the proper ID."

Calling PennDOT and State Department information on the law confusing, Boscola said there was no sense of scale in the task legislators were creating and how many citizens would be affected.

Boscola said, without naming names or parties, she had offered an amendment to delay implementing the law to perform due diligence and frame the legislation properly. "Delaying implementation would have also removed the relentless criticism that the law itself was nothing more than a political tool aimed at rigging this year's presidential election. Waiting a year would have solved all of those issues. The judge's reasoned decision today does just that."

Drug center hearing continues Oct. 16

By BERNIE O'HARE

Bethlehem City Council Solicitor Chris Spadoni was having a rough night. A former prosecutor, he was battling 0 for 4 in objections to testimony during Abe Atiyeh's quest for zoning approval of residential drug and alcohol treatment centers at 2110 Center St. and 2349 Linden St. With no success, he argued that Atiyeh's engineer David Harte lacks the qualifications to describe the management and operation of a drug and alcohol treatment center. He also objected unsuccessfully to Harte offering opinions on the criteria for this use, insisting that this was the ultimate question to be decided by the Zoning Hearing Board.

"Nice try," joked Atiyeh, after one of Spadoni's failed objections.

But on his fifth swing, Spadoni sent one over the fence, temporarily ending the presentation of the second application filed by Atiyeh.

In addition to a 28-bed residential treatment center at 2110 Center St., he's planning a 47-bed residential treatment facility at 2349 Linden St., site of what were once the Moose and Bug greenhouses. They'll be demolished, and a two-story, 35,000-square-foot building will take their place.

Just as Attorney William Malkames began to question Harte, Spadoni objected, noting inconsistencies between the actual application and the advertisement.

Zoners approve flex buildings

HANOVER TWP.

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Before a standing-room only crowd of more than 70 residents, Hanover Township's Zoning Hearing Board has paved the way for two "flex" buildings on the north side of Jandl Boulevard.

Following a Sept. 27 hearing, zoners unanimously decided to grant dimensional variances for this $25 million project. They did so despite complaints about truck traffic and noise from members of a Traditions of America residential community for older, active adults, located directly across the street.

Located on a 49-acre tract owned by David Jandl, the property is currently under agreement of sale with Griffin Land, a Connecticut-based land development company that has recently expanded into the Lehigh Valley. It has properties both in Upper Macungie and Bethlehem townships. According to owner David Jandl, Griffin is "the most neighbor-sensitive developer I could find for the property."

In fact, that afternoon, Griffin President Michael Gamzon met with Traditions residents, who asked him to reconfigure his plans so that truck access to the site is from Route 512 or Township Line Road, instead of Jandl Boulevard. Gamzon told zoners he's postponing a scheduled Planning Commission presentation, scheduled for October, to see if the plans can be revised. He also vowed to meet with residents again.

Last month, Gamzon told supervisors that each building would produce approximately 200 jobs. That figure could go up or down, depending on the tenants attracted. At this juncture, no tenant has been identified.

"Flex" buildings, as Gamzon explained, are structures that can serve multiple commercial purposes, from warehouses to light industrial to even office space. These are permitted uses in Hanover's planned industrial business district, where they've been proposed.

Gamzon testified that he hoped to attract up to four tenants for each of the buildings, but that Griffin would remain the owner and manager at the site.

Though these are all permitted uses, a variance was necessary because Griffin was proposing to place all the doors and truck bays along just one side, the rear, of each building, away from Traditions. Under Hanover's zoning ordinance, these can only be placed along 30 percent of each of the four sides of a building. This would allow for 76 doors and truck bays along a proposed 1050-foot by 260-foot building, and for 74 doors along the 1000-foot by 260-foot building.

Griffin will use less door space - 65 (front building) and 61 (rear building) - than allowed under the zoning ordinance. But concentrating them on the rear side, away from and we're going to use both."

He also sounded off on the truck traffic that already exists along Jandl Boulevard, comparing it to Route I-78.

"We can't leave a window open at night," he grumbled.

Matthew Ford moved in from New Jersey, which he called the Concrete State.

"I don't want to see a warehouse or a trucking facility," he flatly stated.

Mary Jane Landrieu echoed those concerns, denouncing the increased truck traffic.

"You're asking for a disaster to happen," she warned.

Other Traditions residents seemed satisfied by the presentation.

Nick Tibberts asked, "Why do you even need a variance for this cosmetic change? It seems to me to be a waste of time."

Joyce Camm added, "I love where I live. The main concern is the entranceway."

Like Camm, Rosemary Douglas said, "I love it here. It is the best decision of my life."

While zoners deliberated, David Jandl explained why he planned a residential community next to a planned industrial business district.

"It's smart growth," he explained. "Live here, work here, shop here."

Now that Griffin Land has the variances, the next step in this process is approaching the Planning Commission. Gamzon predicted that plans will probably be ready in time for a meeting in November.

Griffin is represented by Attorney Greg Davis of Saul Ewing.

Planner Vincent Horvath must have been proud to see his son, Kevin, testify as an expert witness. But he had to recuse himself and was replaced by alternate Joseph Bednarik.

a building owned by Atiyeh. Fitzpatrick stated he saw no reason to recuse himself, but would step aside if others objected. Nobody did. Fitzpatrick has voted against nearly every Atiyeh application.

After reviewing the adver-

Warrant

Police arrested a 33-year-old man on a bench warrant around 5 p.m. Sept. 30. Nicholas Andreski, of Old Bethlehem Pike in Center Valley, was wanted on a previous charge. Officers searching him allegedly discovered a needle in his shoe.

Andreski was remanded to Northampton County Prison and is also charged with possession of paraphernalia.

Drug use

Police arrested two men at the 1162 Pembroke Road Green Door adult book store around 6 p.m. Oct. 1.

According to police, both men were observed in the parking lot injecting heroin into their arms. Numerous drug-related items were found on and around them, police said.

Ines Rios, 63, of Woodbine Street, and Juan Cordova, 58, of Bethlehem, are charged with possession of paraphernalia, and Cordova is additionally charged with disorderly conduct and possession of controlled substances.

Drunkness

Police arrested a 27-year-old man for public intoxication while at the Celtic Classic around 10 p.m. Sept. 29.

According to police, Matthew Wolfe of Troxell Court in Allentown was acting in a disorderly manner and refused to leave when asked. When ejected from the venue he allegedly resisted arrest.

Wolfe is charged with public Drunkness, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Triad Associates' Steve Kehs tells City Planners it's getting harder to find blight.

By BERNIE O'HARE

Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) provides funding to redevelop crucial areas. According to Steve Kehs and Tammy Wetzel, strategic planners at Triad Associates, it's getting harder to find those areas.

At the Sept. 20 Planning Commission meeting, Kehs and Wetzel reported that Bethlehem has done "tremendous work" since its last Blight Study in 2002. But blight still exists, predominately at Bethlehem Steel properties on the South Side. After that, the Pembroke Road corridor, which includes a portion of Stefko Boulevard, has numerous vacant and deteriorated properties.

North side neighborhood and business districts are in much better shape. The most prevalent findings of blight there are cracked sidewalks as well as some underutilized properties like the Armory Building along Prospect Avenue.

Bethlehem Redevelopment Authority recently agreed to purchase that historic property.

Planning Commission Chairman Jim Fiorentino wondered whether CDBG grant money is really being used to address blight, or whether it pays for "fancy street lights on Broad Street."

"I don't know how you insure it," answered City Planner Darlene Heller. Fiorentino was told that most of the funds are being spent on the city's south side.

Sharing returned NIZ suit money

Township Manager Jay Finnigan discusses NIZ legal fees. The NIZ law was amended June 30 to prevent any diversion of local taxes.

It was a showdown between Allentown and many of its surrounding municipalities. In an effort to revitalize the Queen City with a hockey arena, office buildings and a luxury hotel, a special tax district was created. In a 130-acre Neighborhood Improvement Zone (NIZ), developers could pay for these projects, in part, by diverting the local taxes of out-of-towners who worked there. This would deplete municipal coffers.

What's good for Allentown is good for the Lehigh Valley, argued Allentown Mayor Ed Pawlowski, calling the NIZ a "rising tide" that would lift all boats, but a host of townships and boroughs responded with lawsuits.

At the spearhead of this litigation were two Northampton County municipalities, Hanover and Bethlehem townships, represented by the Bethlehem law firm of Broughal and DeVito. Eventually, eight other municipalities joined the suit and contributed to the legal expenses. Nine other municipalities paid their own way or filed separate suits.

In the end, city and state officials blinked. The NIZ law was amended June 30 to prevent any diversion of local taxes.

How much money was collected from these townships for the litigation? How much was actually spent? Those questions were answered by Hanover Township Manager Jay Finnigan at the conclusion of a supervisors' meeting Sept. 25.

Hanover Township collected $70,000 from intervening municipalities. Hanover, Bethlehem, Lower Saucon and Lehigh townships each kicked in $10,000, as did the Whitehall Copley School District. Plainfield Township, Hellertown and Bangor ponied up $5,000 each. There were also $2,500 contributions from East Allen Township and Walnutport.

Between April and September, the Broughal law firm was paid $39,806.58. The remaining money, a little over $30,000 has been returned in proportion to the contributions made.

Hanover, Bethlehem, Lower Saucon and Lehigh Townships, as well as Whitehall Copley School District, have each received checks for $4,313.35. Plainfield Township, Hellertown and Bangor have been paid $2,156.67. East Allen Township and Walnutport have received $1,078.34.

It is unclear how much Allentown, the NIZ Authority and state officials spent on this legal dispute.

Planners ponder Minsi Ridge sidewalks

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Habitat for Humanity, developer of 17-acre neighborhood called Minsi Ridge on the slopes of South Mountain, would like to be excused, at least for now, from installing sidewalks along the west side of James Street and the south side of Aaron Street.

Citing the topography and remoteness of this site, located near the Sands Casino, Habitat asked the city's planning commission for a deferral at its Sept. 20 meeting. But a confused board tabled the matter, uncertain whether a deferral or outright waiver is the most appropriate solution.

"What has changed since you were last here that would justify a deferral?" asked planning chair Jim Fiorentino.

In 2007, plans for this development were originally rejected, although a re-submission narrowly passed.

"This is just three blocks from my house," stated planning commission member Olga Negron. "This is such a green area. I would like it kept green."

But Fiorentino countered that when this plan was first proposed, the objection was that the entire area should be kept green.

Another planning commissioner, Andrew Twigg, noted that, unlike other subdivisions for which planners are reluctant to grant deferrals, James and Aaron streets are not through streets and would have less pedestrian access.

But Fiorentino was still concerned that, if the city later decides it wants sidewalks, there will be confusion about who will bear the cost. Habitat for Humanity contended it would be the abutting owner. But one of those abutting owners, Wayne Yergler, disagreed.

"I will be one of the people going after them," he said.

Then Fiorentino pondered whether, instead of a deferral, planners should grant an outright waiver, which would excuse everyone from installing a sidewalk.

"We're getting into things we did not anticipate at all," stated planning director Darlene Heller.

Bethlehem's Planning Commission decided to table the matter until its Oct. 11 meeting and let city lawyers review the matter.

District Champion!

Nick Maff captured the District 11 golf title yesterday at Shawnee.

Becahi's Maff sets record in victory

By MIKE HAINES
mhaines@tnonline.com

Nick Maff didn't know exactly what his lead was coming down the stretch. He got to three under par early in Monday's District 11 golf championship and finished at four under, three strokes better than second-place finisher Evan Notaro of Northampton in the Class AAA tournament.

Maff knew he had to be at or near the top. And the Bethlehem Catholic freshman handled the pressure like a season veteran.

"I got some nerves," said Maff. "I just wanted to par out and not make any stupid mistakes."

Freedom's Helen Hsu won the AAA girls tournament, while Wilson's Collin Hagenbuch and Central Catholic's Franca Hurtado won the Class AA titles.

Maff birdied the first hole of Monday's tournament, held at Shawnee Golf Course. He got back to even with a birdie on No. 2, before making five birdies and a bogey over seven holes (Nos. 5-11) to get to four under par.

At that point he knew he could be leading the tournament and had to keep it steady the rest of the way. He made seven straight pars to finish his first 18 at 68.

He made a birdie and two bogeys on the first four holes of his final nine, but reeled off four pars and a birdie to finish at 104.

"I just played solid golf," said Maff. "I hit a lot of greens. I was pretty much just hitting greens and two putting for par."

Maff hit 20 of 27 greens in regulation, but got up and down for par five times while three-putting just once. His four-under par ties the district record score, which was set by Emmaus' Steve Bourbon in 1990 in a 36-hole tournament.

In August Maff won the high school division at the Owen McCall Tournament at Green Pond. That gave him confidence for a solid rookie season on the varsity team.

He called Monday's district title the biggest win of his golf career. He has a chance to top it as he and the top six boys players in each class move on to the PIAA Eastern Regional Tournament Tuesday at Golden Oaks Golf Course in Fleetwood.

Hsu also moves on to See Golf on Page A9

Liberty locks up berth

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Liberty's field hockey team has a spot in the Lehigh Valley Conference playoffs locked up heading into this week's final slate of action, but the Hurricanes are looking to finish with momentum following Monday's surprising 1-0 loss to Easton.

Erica Tarsi scored a second half goal for the Rovers (6-9-1) to snap a three-game winning streak by the Hurricanes.

The LVC race is really going to come down to the wildcard spot, since Liberty (11-5, 9-3) has a stranglehold on the East division, no matter what happens in their final two division contests this week against Bethlehem Catholic and Emmaus.

Emmaus (14-1, 12-1) also has the West division secured to give the LVC playoffs two guaranteed spots for next week.

The race for the final two spots comes out of the North division, where all four teams are battling out for the final two spots.

Northampton (13-2-1, 10-2-1) currently sits at the top, followed by Whitehall (12-5, 9-4). The K-Kids lead the division but still have to play Nazareth to solidify things.

The Zephyrs knocked off Northampton and Nazareth in successive fashion over the past week to get themselves back in the race.

Nazareth appears to be a long shot at this point to qualify, as they hold a 9-7-1 overall mark and a 7-5-1 league record.

Parkland (10-6-1, 7-5-1) are lumped in with Nazareth, but the Trojans and Zephyrs square off in the final regular season contest for both teams tonight to certainly make things interesting for the wildcard race.

Freedom (6-9, 5-8) still have a chance at qualifying for districts, but need to win out to claim a playoff berth. That would include knocking off Liberty tonight, followed by wins over Wilson and Northwestern later this week.

Bethlehem Catholic (2-13-1, 1-11) battled Freedom tightly yesterday, losing 1-0 in overtime, when Freedom's Kelly Winegar tallied the only goal in the first overtime.

The Hawks finish the season with Easton today and Dieruff on Friday.

WEEK 6 FOOTBALL

Central gets by Liberty

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It may not look bright from the outside, but Liberty football coach Dave Brown is about as positive as someone can be with a team looking down the barrel of an 0-6 record as the second week of October approaches.

The Hurricanes fell on the road last week to Central Catholic 42-21 and the name of Colin McDermott stood out again for the Vikings.

McDermott rushed for 289 yards and four touchdowns as Central improved to 3-3 on the season, while Liberty keeps searching for their first win.

"It really was just a lot about what McDermott did," said Brown about Saturday's loss. "We knew he was going to get the ball most of the time for them and we needed to limit that. We had chances to come away with some turnovers, but we didn't do that either."

Brown noted that his team had an opportunity at three to four turnovers during the game and came away with none.

That's been the tale of the tape for Liberty all season, as they only have two defensive turnovers in their resume this season, the least amount that Brown has ever seen by a team he's been associated with in his coaching career up to this point of the season.

"It really is unbelievable knowing that we have so few turnovers," he said. "I've never seen anything like that. We've had our chances, but we just haven't made the plays."

"On the other hand, we knew this was going to be a tough year for us. We're young in a lot of spots, but these kids keep coming to work every Monday. That's why we need to keep things positive for them."

One that got away

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It was a game that got away.

A contest that could have turned things in the right direction for Freedom's football program, but instead it ended in another loss for the Patriots.

Freedom (2-4) had its chances to knock off an undefeated Easton (6-0) squad last week but fell by a 25-21 affair to leave the game asking themselves, "what if?"

After taking a 21-19 lead in the third quarter following two Brian Uliana TD throws to Marcqwel Brown and Petey Hernandez, Freedom made Easton appear beatable, until the Pates helped beat themselves with turnovers of their own.

Uliana would be picked by Easton's Austin Brown early in the fourth quarter at the Freedom 24-yard line who returned it to the four.

One play later Easton quarterback Brad Wilkins found Chris Delbene in the end zone for the go-ahead touchdown that would hold up the result.

"We played very hard tonight, but we just came up a couple plays short," said Freedom head coach Jason Roeder. "Made some crucial mistakes at crucial times and we give Easton credit for that, but we're hurting right now."

Freedom had their chance to respond in the fourth quarter when they drove the ball to the Easton six, but faced a fourth and three. Uliana rolled out to his left in hopes of finding an open receiver on the backside, but Easton's defense sniffed out the play, forced Uliana to stretch the play further then he wanted to and eventually deflected the pass with 2:10 left on the clock to leave Freedom's faithful with the ultimate reality of another loss as Easton would run out the final two-plus minutes on the clock.

GOLF

Hawks make team tourney

By JEFF MOELLER
Special to the Press

Having a third- or fourth-place finish in any conference easily may border on mediocrity, but Becahi head golf coach Tim McGorry can appreciate his team's showing this season in the Lehigh Valley Conference (LVC).

In the ultracompetitive golf division of the LVC, Becahi finished fourth overall tied with Nazareth in the league tournament behind Emmaus, Northampton and Parkland. Ironically, the Golden Hawks also netted a fourth-place finish in the District 11 tournament in a field of 24 teams. Overall, Becahi finished with a 15-2 mark.

"We also know the LVC is very tough," said Hawks' veteran head coach Tim McGorry. "It is always a challenge. But I was very pleased with our district finish. To be there is very impressive and a tribute to the kids."

"I am very pleased with our overall record and the kids worked very hard to accomplish what they did during the season."

Freshman Nick Maff and junior Kiran Singh continued their seasons as they advanced to the individual round of district play Monday. Senior Jason Matuczinski and sophomore JT Barker just missed the cut to qualify. Junior Nick Surovy missed the tournament because he couldn't get back in time from an out-of-town commitment.

McGorry was optimistic his two golfers could crack the difficult cut to continue playing at the state level as only three girls and six boys from the Becahi's Class AAA bracket could advance.

"It is very competitive once you reach this level," he stated. "Our kids have had solid seasons, but the odds are working against them at this point. One bogey or double bogey can really damage your chances."

But McGorry is still appreciative of his duo's efforts this season as they will both be key components of the Hawks' rotation next fall.

"Nick (Maff) had a great season as a freshman as he was usually playing against everyone else' number one player and that isn't easy especially in your first year," noted McGorry. "He (Maff) has a lot of composure out there and has a great feel for the game. He's young, but he is playing older out there. It was pretty common for him to point out things to the upper classmen and help them with their game."

"Kiran (Singh) is really a hard worker," he added. "She (Singh) started to play better toward the end of the season. She will be on a good track for next year."

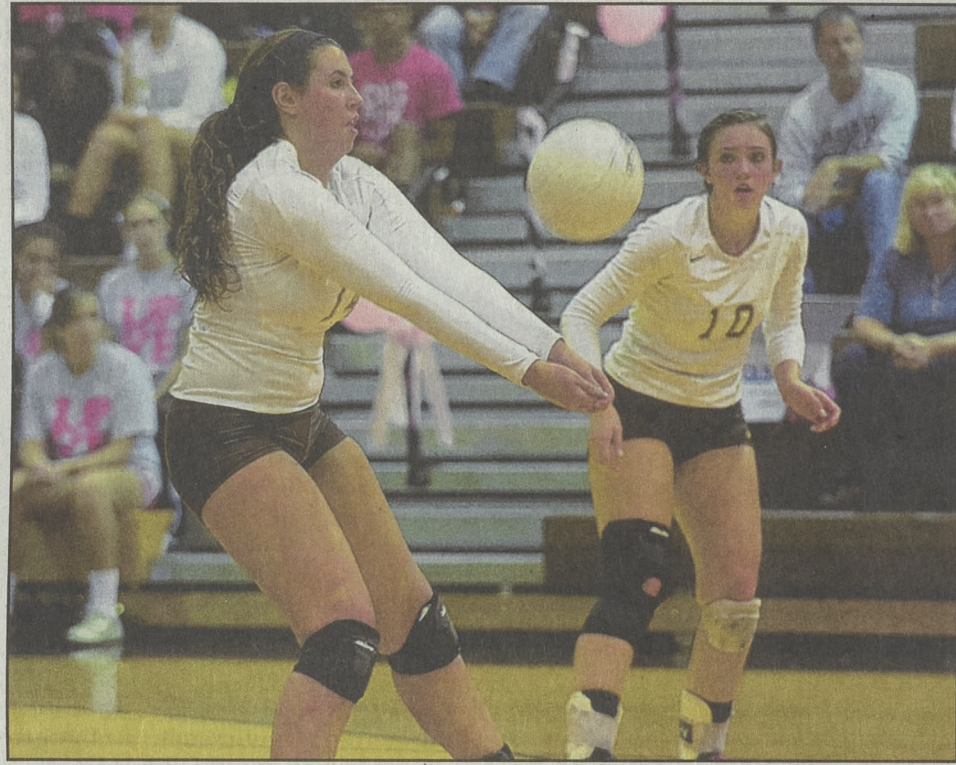

With a nucleus returning next season, McGorry expects his team to be back in the hunt for the LVC crown.

"We had a good year and we laid some groundwork for the future," he stated. "Some of the other teams are losing some key people, but this league is always tough. But we'll be back and ready."

Lauren Hess and the Hawks fell to state champ Parkland.

VOLLEYBALL
Girls fall to Trojans

By CJ HEMERLY
Special to the Press

A week ago the Bethlehem Catholic volleyball team took the opening game in dominant fashion 25-18 over defending state champ Parkland. The Golden Hawks would lose the next three, but were in each one.

Becahi (10-2) bounced back, however, in a matchup of two of the top three teams in the Lehigh Valley Conference last Thursday night, defeating Emmaus 26-24, 25-19, 25-23.

Senior outside hitter Lauren Hess led the way with 19 kills. Hess was seemingly anywhere and everywhere Maddie Titus set the ball.

"We knew Emmaus was good," Hess said. "We knew it was going to be a good game. We just came to win tonight."

The loss to Parkland didn't sit in the minds of the Golden Hawks long. Two days later, they played like a championship contender, and seemed to always have an answer to a Green Hornet rally.

"It was kind of frustrating for us," noted Hess on the loss to Parkland. "They were a great team and state champs and everything, but we took them to four games."

Trailing 24-23 in the first game, the Golden Hawks rallied to record the next three crucial points to take the game.

Game two was less stressful as Becahi went on a 12-7 run after only being up 8-6.

Hess capped her strong performance with the game-winning kill in game three.

"It was a great win," added Hess. "I know how great Emmaus is. We've always had trouble with them in the past, but this was great for us."

Becahi has six games remaining, four in the LVC, before a potential trip to the conference playoffs and Districts.

LVC TENNIS

Atiyeh and Treadwell win LVC gold medals

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tntonline.com

Since last year's LVC Tennis Tournament, Bethlehem Catholic's Julia Atiyeh and Taylor Treadwell have been on a win streak at number two doubles, and clinched their second gold medal at this year's LVC tournament after defeating Northampton's Maureen Weaver and Leah Hodge, 10-8, last Monday.

"It's more for the team, winning it for the team more than ourselves," said Atiyeh.

The Becahi duo knew the Northampton pair would give them their toughest challenge.

"Northampton was one of our toughest matches [during the regular season]. We went to three sets. They're really athletic girls, they run, they get everything back to you. Julia and I weren't expecting a lot of balls to come back, and they did," said Treadwell.

Atiyeh and Treadwell began the tournament with an 8-3 victory over Freedom's Lizzie Nottmeier and Jasmeet Kaur, followed by a 10-4 victory over Allentown Central Catholic's Bronte Grigoruk and Beth DiGiacomo.

"We were pretty much on point the whole time. Taylor was hitting her ground strokes perfectly, and I was up at the net. It was perfect," Atiyeh said.

Also perfect has been their undefeated season, which they hope will carry them into a district championship.

"It feels great. We were partners last year, and this year, we're so successful," said Atiyeh.

Also from Bethlehem Catholic, Ally Setcavage and Haley Turnbach captured the silver medal at number three doubles.

Setcavage and Turnbach defeated Liberty's Paige Dolci and Sarah Kuehner, 10-4, before losing 10-6 in the final against Parkland's Lauren Knafo and Rachel Wong.

Earlier in the day, Setcavage and Turnbach scored an 8-0 victory over Dieruff's Jocelyn Rosado and Sabrina Joseph, and an 8-3 victory over Allentown Central Catholic's Carly Dellalala and Alyssa Aviles.

Maranzana takes 1st

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tntonline.com

Before Federica Maranzana's final in the LVC Tennis Tournament last week, the Freedom junior knew that whether she played Avery McCall from Northampton or Colleen Wylie from Parkland, it would be a good match.

At the time, Maranzana had no idea that McCall had just defeated Wylie in a 7-5 tiebreak.

Maranzana said, "I'm excited because last year I got to the final."

This year, Maranzana won the final, 10-3, and LVC gold at number three singles.

Maranzana began the tournament with an 8-0 victory over Emmaus's Catherine Garrity, followed by an 8-5 victory over Allentown Central Catholic's Jen Hildebrandt.

"I feel like [the matches] were pretty similar. I was focused on trying to get [Hildebrandt] to move around. I think I did it as best as I could," said Maranzana.

Going into the final, Maranzana focused on her backhand and hitting the ball down the line.

Also from Freedom, Flannery Johnston won third place at number one singles after defeating Northampton's Darby McCall, 10-2.

Earlier in the day, Johnston defeated Emmaus's Kelly Nguyen, 8-5.

"I found it a struggle because it was hard to beat her. When my serves were going in, they were helping me a lot," Johnston said.

Johnston then lost to eventual gold medalist Jenna Peng before beating McCall.

"It's a good experience, and I have more years ahead. I have to keep thinking like that," said the Freedom sophomore. "I just need to be painfully consistent and calm myself down."

Three thirds

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tntonline.com

Becahi's Nina Kopy, Emily Hozza, and Alex Madison won bronze at the LVC Tennis Championships at Parkland.

Kopy took third at two singles, and Hozza and Madison took third at four doubles.

"I was excited and a little nervous. I kept trying to be aggressive and avoid making my own mistakes," said Kopy.

After a first-round bye, Kopy defeated Central's Josie Airoldi, 8-0.

"I really wanted to win because I lost a close match to her in the [regular] season. I picked it up a lot. I think I was more focused and calm. She has such a hard shot, if you don't hit as hard as she does, she just puts it away," Kopy said.

Although Kopy lost to Parkland's TuQuyen Pham in the semi, 10-4, Kopy came back to defeat Emmaus's Katrina Guido, 10-5.

Hozza and Madison defeated Zephs Audrey Anatalio and Christina Endy, 8-0, lost in the semis to PHS's Joy Wang and Anna Qui, 10-3, and topped Nazareth's Alison Smith and Amber Achenbach, 10-8.

An undefeated week of picks

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

After an unblemished week of picks, I've come to realize that it's not that hard picking games around here this year.

The reality is that there aren't any super teams in the Valley like we've had in the past in either conference, with Catasauqua being the lone exception of a team that appears to be superior to everyone in their league.

Easton could have two losses on its resume at this point, Parkland looks to be heating up and Central Catholic is making a push in the poll.

Who will take another step toward the playoffs this week? Check out the picks below.

- 1. Easton (6-0)
Last week's rank: #1
Top team, but definitely beatable.
The Pick: Easton 34-Northampton 17
- 2. Parkland (4-2)
Last week's rank: #2

Trojans are the hottest team around.
The Pick: Parkland 28-Freedom 14

3. Nazareth (4-2)
Last week's rank: #3
Blue Eagles still get the nod over Whitehall this week.
The Pick: Nazareth 56-Bethlehem Catholic 21

4. Whitehall (4-2)
Last week's rank: #4
This could be the game of the week.
The Pick: Whitehall 31-Central Catholic 21

5. Catasauqua (6-0)
Last week's rank: #6
Rough Riders break into the top five for first time all year.
The Pick: Catasauqua 35-Pen Argyl 20

6. Emmaus (4-2)
Last week's rank: #7
Green Hornets look to be getting back to consistency.
The Pick: Emmaus 24-Liberty 21

7. Central (3-3)
Last week's rank: #9
I should have Colin McDermott's name up there instead of Central Catholic.
The Pick: Whitehall 31-Central Catholic 21

8. Bangor (5-1)
Last week's rank: #8
Slaters bounce back against Palmerton.
The Pick: Bangor 40-Palmerton 12

9. Freedom (2-4)
Last week's rank: #5
Pates had a chance to knock off Easton.
The Pick: Parkland 28-Freedom 14

10. Pen Argyl (5-1)
Last week's rank: #10
Knights were impressive in win over Bulldogs.
The Pick: Catasauqua 35-Pen Argyl 20

* Teams that entered:
* Teams that dropped:
* Last week's record: 7-0

High School sophomore wasn't thinking about where she stood on the leader board during Monday's tournament.

"I was focusing on myself," she said. "I wasn't thinking about any else's score because in the end I was only going to be happy with what I felt was a good score."

"I wanted to make good shots. I didn't think about what I wanted the score to be."

Hsu learned from last year's district tournament. She said as a freshman she worried too much about her score and "what affect one shot would have on the other. This year I just had fun."

Hsu shot 15-over par Monday. She made one birdie, 12 pars, 12 bogeys and two double bogeys. She played consistent golf, which has been the key to a season in which she dropped her scoring average seven strokes from last year.

"I went for lessons and it really helped me," she said. "Consistency is my big improvement."

Hsu has put a lot of time into her game since last year and it's paid off.

"This year I think there was a point where I played golf every single day for 21 days," she said. "And then I took a break."

MORAVIAN
Conference set for Oct. 11 to 14

The third Bethlehem Conference on Moravian History and Music will take place Oct. 11 to 14 at Moravian College and Theological Seminary. There will be lectures, films, food and concerts.

The topics, related to Moravian history and music from the 15th to 20th centuries, include the sustainability of Moravian communities (coinciding with Moravian College's IN FOCUS theme for 2012-13), nineteenth-century Moravian history, the Ancient Unity and Comenius and Moravian composer Johannes Herbst.

To register or for information, visit www.moravianconferences.org.

15TH DISTRICT
Debate set for Oct. 16

The Morning Call, PBS39, the Greater Lehigh Valley Chamber of Commerce and Muhlenberg College will sponsor a live audience debate in the 15th Congressional District. The district covers the majority of Northampton and Lehigh counties.

Incumbent Republican Charlie Dent and Democrat Rick Daugherty will face each other at 8 p.m. Oct. 16. Amy Burkett, PBS39 station manager, will moderate. Questioning the candidates will be Colby Itkowitz, The Morning Call's Washington correspondent, and Christopher P. Borick, a political scientist and director of the Muhlenberg College Institute of Public Opinion.

Additional questions will be posed from the audience by T. Anthony Iannelli, president and CEO of the GLVCC, and students from Muhlenberg College. Questions submitted through social media will be screened in advance and fielded by the candidates during the debate.

The event is open and free to the public via tickets from the debate partners. A limited number of seats will be available for walk-ins. Doors open for the public at 7 p.m. and close at 7:30 p.m.

The debate will be rebroadcast on multiple dates on PBS39 and the Pennsylvania Cable Network.

UP OF HG
Fall fair set
for Oct. 27

The annual fall fair and tricky tray drawing will be held from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Oct. 27 at the University Parish of Holy Ghost's parish hall, 417 Carlton Ave. There will be homemade baked goods, including cabbage strudel and nut rolls, jams, jellies and noodles. The kitchen will be open. There are 100 gift baskets for the drawing. Call 610-867-9382.

BETHLEHEM
Community awards given

Mayor John Callahan awarded citations to city entrepreneurship community members on Oct. 2 at Pi: Partnership for Innovation, 520 Evans St. The recognition of their efforts in achieving several national rankings during the ceremony coincided with the first anniversary of Pi technology hub. The facility's newest tenant was introduced.

"Programs like the City's financial incentives, Lehigh Valley Tech, the Southside Bethlehem Keystone Innovation Zone and Ben Franklin Technology Partners of Northeastern Pennsylvania and the presence of Lehigh University and Northampton Community College combine to create a diverse environment which supports entrepreneurship on all levels," Callahan said.

The Celtic Classic

celebrated a milestone this year - the 25th anniversary of the Celtic festival in downtown Bethlehem, Sept. 28-30. It has become the largest three-day event of its kind in North America, attracting more than 250,000 visitors. Put on by the nonprofit Celtic Cultural Alliance, the free festival presents a unique blend of Celtic heritage and culture through music, dance, art and food. Featured participants on the field of competition include the athletes of the Highland Games and the musicians of the marching pipe bands.

A highlight of the Celtic Classic is the haggis-eating contest. Neville Gardner, owner of the Donegal Square Celtic store in downtown Bethlehem and founder and trustee of the 25-year festival of the Celtic Classic, carries a pan full of the Scottish delicacy onto the Highland Field for the popular event. Gardner, who started the festival tradition eight years ago, says haggis is a patty of sheep's stomach, heart, liver and lungs.

As part of the Celtic Classic's family activities, children decorate a 10-foot Styrofoam dragon for next year's St. Patrick's Day Parade of Shamrocks, scheduled for March 16 in Bethlehem. Katie Wiley helps her children, Kelly and Paul, decorate the Irish dragon. The Wiley family, who moved to Bethlehem recently, attended the festival for the first time.

Five and dimes

Karen M. Samuels

By 1920, F.W. Woolworth Company had prominent stores on both Third and Main streets. By 1940, rivals arrived on the scene, such as Grand F & W, McCrory, Milgreen, G.C. Murphy Co. and Pulley's 5 & 10. Three of these stores were demolished, in the 1970s through 1980s, for urban improvement projects. Milgreen, at 25 West Broad St. became a failed mall. Milgreen was named after the owner, Milton Greenburg. The site of Murphy's at 119 East Third St. became the Rite-Aid strip mall and Pulley's at 1903

West Broad St. is a parking lot today.

The popularity of the five and dime chain store changed the way the residents of Bethlehem shopped. The pioneer Woolworth's business model required selling only low cost merchandise, with no flexibility on price. The clerks remained at the register and did not negotiate prices with the customer. Previously, Bethlehem shoppers expected to haggle over the price of an item with the store owner or a clerk. Shoppers enjoyed the new experience of self-service.

The Woolworth stores all had bright lighting, polished floors and glass showcases. A typical store layout had sections for tools, household appliances and wares, toys, sheet music, jewelry, cosmetics, a photo booth, lunch counter, 45 rpm records, candy, clothes, bolts of fabric and even pets.

In 1879, Frank Winfield Woolworth opened his first successful five-cent store in Lancaster, Pa., at age 27. He bought merchandise in bulk directly from manufacturers and paid cash. Woolworth saucepans and bakeware were so popular that they sold out immediately upon introduction, in the 1880s.

The F. W. Woolworth headquarters building in New York City was built in 1913 with steel from Bethlehem Steel Corp. It was the tallest building in the world when it was completed, at 57 stories high. In 1929, Woolworth's announced that it had served 90 million lunches that year alone. Popular sandwiches were ham or chicken salad, reubens, chillburgers, grilled cheese or hot dogs. Customers enjoyed chocolate sodas, cherry colas, milkshakes and floats. For dessert, one could pop a balloon to win a discount on the price of either a sundae or a banana split.

Woolworth's had become the largest department store chain in the world by 1979, on its 100th anniversary. However less than 20 years later, the company closed its last 700 stores in the U.S. Just as the five and dime stores put Mom and Pop variety stores out of business, the new large box discount stores, such as K-Mart or Sam's Club, became the place to go for a bargain. The old Woolworth and McCrory buildings, located on Main and Third streets, have lived on as restaurants, art gallery and a furniture store.

When the thermometer hit the 90s this summer, it was quite common for the tired and heat-weary to seek respite in the cool waters of the Lehigh River.

Vu Nyugen, 34, of Bethlehem made it a regular routine. In fact, he's swum in the river countless times over the years. But for Nyugen, it was a recent dip that he won't soon forget, for it was then that he made his discovery.

While he was wading in the river opposite Sand Island, something caught Nyugen's eye.

Glimmering in the sun were fragments of an old ornate dish. A quick scan showed that the entire area was scattered with artifacts, all of which were in plain sight. Among the two dozen or so objects he gathered were pieces of broken china, ironstone plates, dishes, and teacups, all antique. He even found a green Coke bottle and porcelain bottle cap from a milk jug. "I found all of these in like a foot of water, about up to my kneecaps," Vu explained. "They were lying among the rocks."

One fragment in particular is rather interesting as it reads "Johnson Bros., England," a company which was founded in 1883.

Curious about his discovery, Nyugen took his artifacts to Church Street Antiques in order to find out more. Samuel Gutman, owner of the shop, estimates that the pieces range in date from around the 1890s to the early 1920s.

"It's pretty neat," said Nyugen.

Nyugen plans to donate his find to the Visitors Center so the artifacts can be put on display.

From now on Vu will keep a close lookout for more historic finds when he swims in the river. In an area steeped in history, who knows what else can be found hidden along the shore or deep in the water's depths?

HELLERTOWN

Council eases crosswalk burden

By MARK RECCEK
Special to the Bethlehem Press?

Kevin Lott approached Hellertown Borough Council Sept. 17 requesting permission to install a sidewalk on his property rather than the required raised crosswalk.

"It's very burdensome," Lott told council. "This crosswalk is much more than I bargained for."

Lott said he obtained estimates for the crosswalk, which averaged $32,000. He also said he would have to carry liability insurance, which is costly.

Borough solicitor Michael Corriere said the crosswalk plan had been approved several years ago. Pursuant to the agreement, Silver Creek Country Club was required to install sidewalks on the property. Lott purchased his home from the country club.

Corriere instructed council it was within its power to alter the original agreement Lott entered into by allowing for the installation of a sidewalk.

Councilman Michael McKenna agreed with Lott's request. "I'd rather see a sidewalk than anything else on that property," he said.

"It would be a relief to me," Lott said.

Council unanimously approved Lott's request.

ATVs causing nuisance

By MARK RECCEK

Hellertown resident Lee Weidner spoke Sept. 17, informing members of council there has recently been an influx of speeding motorized ATVs and bikers on Hellertown's portion of the Rails to Trails.

Weidner, who brought photographs along with him to show council, said he and borough Police Chief Robert Shupp believes the riders are from Bethlehem, and have been tearing up the roadway, creating divots and eluding police.

The group of younger individuals usually frequents the trail between 3:30 and 6 p.m. throughout the week, Weidner told council. Just recently, he said, he observed a woman pushing a stroller and a man walking a dog on a leash who both were nearly run over by an ATV.

"This is a clear case of public safety," he said. "I've observed incidents of close encounters between walkers and bikers and walkers with their doggies."

Weidner added Heller-

town police officers dispatched to the area have done a very good job. "The five or six police officers who have responded have been very gracious and helpful with the speeders," he said. "Hopefully more people from council and the mayor will be able to observe speeders."

The issue for officers has been catching the offenders, Shupp said, and told council he may install a gate at the Bethlehem border to deter riders from entering Hellertown's area of the trail.

Bethlehem area resident, longtime writer for Sports Illustrated and author Jack McCallum regaled about 20 people Oct. 2 at the Bethlehem Area Public Library with stories about the NBA stars featured in his latest book, "Dream Team."

McCallum, who has written for Sports Illustrated for about 30 years, traveled with what many consider the greatest basketball team in history, America's Olympic Team at the 1992 Barcelona Summer Olympics, covering them on their legendary journey to earning the gold medal in men's basketball. The team was led by NBA legends Michael Jordan, Magic Johnson and Larry Bird.

McCallum's one-hour session also included reflections on his career path, interest in sports, the importance of reading and libraries, influences on his career in journalism and stories about compiling information for "Dream Team," which climbed to number three on the New York Times bestseller list this past July.

He finished with a question and answer period in which a variety of NBA player-related questions were posed.

Fair welcomes fall

Moravian Academy may not be a school of witchcraft and wizardry, but a feeling of magic has certainly been in the air. Sept. 28 marked the beginning of Moravian Academy's annual Reunion Weekend, which celebrates alumni and shows them all the great things that are still going on at their alma mater.

Josh Aurand
Moravian
Academy

The weekend began Friday, with the Alumni Lovefeast held in Bethlehem's Central Moravian Church. A Lovefeast is a religious service of fellowship that demonstrates the positive Moravian traditions the school still honors. Moravian Academy was honored to welcome back Santo Loquasto, Moravian Preparatory School Class of '62, a Tony Award-winning designer for theater, film, dance and opera. Loquasto returned to campus as our 2012 Distinguished Alumnus and spoke at the Lovefeast and Upper School Chapel Sept. 28. Moravian Academy's first Open Mic night also took place Sept. 28, where practiced musical groups, impromptu dances and some awful (but funny) jokes exemplified the diverse and impressive talents of performance-oriented students.

Saturday morning, the smell of autumn was in the air for Moravian's 44th annual Country Fair and the fifth annual Run for the Trees, a 5K Family Fun Run/Walk, which enjoyed a record 150-plus participants. Oh, the things to be seen and done at Country Fair. The boys soccer team and girls field hockey teams played strong, well-attended home games, where they showed why MA field hockey is 8-5 and MA soccer is 8-2, Moravian's a cappella group CodaRed performed in the alumni tent and on the main stage, and a multitude of booths and vendors offered games, clothing, old books, jewelry, food and more for kids and parents alike. There was a British car show, a rock climbing wall and a moon bounce. There was even a dunk tank where anyone willing to try could dunk teachers or administrators (the most dunked was probably the Upper School Dean of Students). Campus groups like International Club and Amnesty International had tables where they sold ethnic foods to raise money for the school's cultural events, or collected old bicycles to be fixed up and sent to third-world countries. And throughout the day student rock bands, dance groups, and the Lower School Suzuki String Ensemble could be seen performing for the fairgoers.

A perfect microcosm of MA, the Country Fair is one of Moravian's most anticipated and successful events. Having attended for at least 12 years, I think I can speak for the students (and family) when I say that autumn just wouldn't feel like autumn without the Country Fair. And it's a great diversion from the challenging academic year that is already well under way here at Moravian Academy.

The National Symphony of Cuba to play rare Lehigh Valley concert

By JERRY DUCKETT
Special to The Press

The National Symphony Orchestra of Cuba, founded in 1959, has given more than 3,000 concerts at home and internationally since its first performance Nov. 11, 1960, in its permanent home, the Teatro Auditorium Amadeo Roldan in Havana's Vedado district. Included in the orchestra's travels have been Russia, Poland, Peru, Yugoslavia, Nicaragua, Spain, Martinique and Argentina.

The National Symphony of Cuba has previously only performed twice before American audiences.

This year, Cuba's national treasure is taking part in a multi-year exchange project with the Florida Orchestra, on its first tour of the United States, which begins in Kansas City and concludes in Tampa, Fla., with a concert, 7:30 p.m. Oct. 23, Symphony Hall, 23 N. Sixth St., Allentown.

The concert program is "Cuban Overture," Gershwin; Symphony No. 4, Mendelssohn; and Symphony No. 5, Beethoven.

Enrique Pérez Mesa is Music Director. Guido López-Gavilán is Guest Conductor.

The history of symphonic music in Cuba dates to the 18th century. Cuban Cathedrals in Havana and Santiago and included "music chapels," made up of a small number of singers and instrumentalists.

Esteban Salas, a Cuban composer of religious vocal music, expanded the music program in the late 1700s by adding a small orchestra at the Cathedral of Santiago. During the 1830s, the first symphony orchestras were established, financially supported by foundations and with on-going programming.

The Symphonic Orchestra of Havana, founded in 1922, maintained a concert schedule for the first year, but concerts soon were few and far between, with the orchestra disbanding by the late 1940s.

The Philharmonic Orchestra of Havana, founded in 1924, maintained a regular schedule until 1958.

The two orchestras had quite a rivalry, which greatly benefited Cuba's classical music scene at the time.

In 1959, the Philharmonic Orchestra of Havana became the National Symphony of Cuba.

During its 34 active years, the Philharmonic was host to many internationally-recognized conductors, including Eugene Ormandy, George Enescu and Jose Iturbi, and featured internationally-known names guest soloists like Marian Anderson, Jascha Heifetz, Andres Segovia and Isaac Stern.

Mesa, born in Matanzas, Cuba, is one of Cuba's most internationally-renowned conductors. He graduated the Escuela Nacional de Artes, Havana, with a specialty in violin, and received a degree in conducting from the Instituto Superior de Arte.

His career began in 1991, while working with the Symphony Orchestra of Matanzas. In 2002, he was named adjunct director of La Orquesta Sinfonica Nacional de Cuba and began collaborating with Prima Ballerina Alicia Alonso on works, including "Swan Lake" and "Carmen."

Lopez-Gavilan's compositions have received awards in many of the most celebrated competitions in Cuba, and he is the president of the annual Havana Festival, which is dedicated to contemporary music.

He is also the chairman of the Orchestral Conducting Department at the Instituto Superior de Arte in Havana. He has been a guest conductor at the New Music Festival, Winnipeg, Canada; the Inter-American Composers Seminar at the University of Indiana, the Oregon Bach Festival, and the American Composers Orchestra's Sonidos de las Americas Festival, New York City.

The orchestra features pianist Ignacio "Nachito" Herrera.

McPhee magic at Zoellner

GOOD CAUSE

"Gala2012" stars Katharine McPhee of NBC's hit television series "Smash," 8 p.m. Oct. 20, Baker Hall, Zoellner Arts Center, Lehigh University, Bethlehem.

"Smash" is about the creation of a new Broadway musical, "Bombshell," based on the life of Marilyn Monroe, portrayed by McPhee on the show.

Original music by Marc Shaiman and Scott Wittman is featured on "Smash," which debuted this year after "Super Bowl XLVI" and has been renewed for a second season.

Also on the show are Debra Messing and Anjelica Huston. The series soundtrack, "Music from 'Smash,'" released this year, debuted at No. 9 on the Billboard 200.

McPhee gained fame as runner-up in the fifth season of "American Idol" in 2006.

In addition to her starring role on "Smash," McPhee has co-starred on TV in episodes of "CSI: NY," "Community" and "Family Guy." She was featured on two PBS specials, "Foster and Friends" and "Chris Botti in Boston," along with Sting, Andrea Bocelli and John Mayer.

She has had feature movie roles in "The House Bunny" (2008), "Shark Night 3D" (2011) and "Peace, Love and Misunderstanding" (2012).

In 2010, McPhee toured the United States to promote her album, "Unbroken," which included the hit single, "Had It All." McPhee also released her first Christmas album in 2010, "Christmas Is The Time to Say I Love You," covering Yuletide classics and singing the original song, "It's Not Christmas Without You."

McPhee's self-titled debut album, released in 2007, reached No. 2 on the Billboard 200 chart, with her first single, "Over the Rainbow-My Destiny," debuting at No. 2 on Billboard's Hot Singles chart. The album went gold in 2008.

Funds raised at "Gala2012" support the arts at Lehigh University by bridging the gap between ticket revenues and the costs of presenting artists, community outreach and educational programs.

Gala Committee members are Oldrich Foucek III, chair; and Terri Bartholomew, Jasmin Bourdier-Caceres, Valerie Johnson, Kirk Kozero, Lisa Macsisak, Brenda McGlade, Colleen Mooney-McGee, Alex Tamerler and Ilene Wood.

Tickets for the concert are available that include a post-performance dessert reception: zoellnerartscenter.org, 610-758-2787.

There are also premium tickets, which include a 4:30 p.m. Oct. 20 cocktail reception, dinner, preferred concert seating and post-performance dessert reception. Contact Linda Schmoyer, gala2012@lehigh.edu, 610-758-5071.

The Aug. 26 appetizer sampling event at ArtsQuest Center, SteelStacks, Bethlehem, raised nearly $7,000 for ArtsQuest's Arts Education Fund.

Receiving the People's Choice Award, determined by the vote of the 300-plus at the sold-out event, was Bethlehem Brew Works' "Steel Workers Stout Pork Plantain," which also received first runner-up in the Judge's Choice category.

Sangria received the Judge's Choice Award for its "Pork Belly Tostada." Aramark was second runner-up for its "Crispy Beer & Cheese Bites."

Via Marathon lauded: More than 3,000 runners and walkers participated in the Lehigh Valley Health Network Marathon for Via, Sept. 8, 9, through Lower Macungie Township, Salisbury Township, Allentown, Bethlehem, Freemansburg, Bethlehem Township, Palmer Township, Wilson and Easton.

More than 500 volunteers were on the course on race day, from staffing water stations, directing runners along the course and providing medical support.

A 'Master' of his film domain

"The Master" is one of those films that audiences and reviewers either love or hate.

Since I try not to be a "hater," put me in the category of "strongly dislike" regarding "The Master."

My opinion has to do with "The Master" writer-director Paul Thomas Anderson ("Punch-Drunk Love," "Magnolia," "Boogie Nights"), whose films are fascinating and confounding mish-mashes of big ideas, intriguing characters and performances connected by often incoherent storylines and punctuated by shock-value scenes.

Advance word was that "The Master" tells a fictionalized account about L. Ron Hubbard, Scientology founder, with Anderson's go-to actor, Philip Seymour Hoffman, who has been in all four of Anderson's feature films, playing Lancaster Dodd, author and leader of a religious cult in early 1950's America.

Bizarre interviews, repetitive questioning and actions are a few of the brainwashing techniques, called "processing," and supposedly similar to the "auditing" technique in Hubbard's book "Dianetics," used by Dodd to control his followers of what is called The Cause.

The true believers include impressionable Freddie Quell (Joaquin Phoenix), a shell-shocked World War II veteran, as well as Dodd's wife, Peggy (Amy Adams), and a rabid follower, Helen Sullivan (Laura Dern).

There's a dark side to Dodd as there is to "The Master." It's a story the movies have told before in "The Rainmaker" (1956), "A Face in the Crowd" (1957) and "Elmer Gantry" (1960), to name a few Hollywood classics.

man, as Lancaster Dodd, is at his professorial best with measured tone and presence masking a tripe-wire anger.

Joaquin Phoenix, as Freddie Quell, is back from his "retirement" as a rapper, which, real or not, was part of his movie, "I'm Still Here." Phoenix creates a dispirited — despite trying to fill his empty heart with the distilled spirits of alcohol — chicken-chested loner with hands on his hips in an almost disjointed stance.

Amy Adams is severe and effective in her role as Lancaster Dodd's devoted wife.

No doubt about it, Anderson knows how to obtain great performances and stunning visuals in his films, which he accomplishes in "The Master." One wishes he was a master storyteller, too.

THEATER REVIEW

'Curtains' raises hilarity at Pa. Playhouse

By DEB BOYLAN
Special to The Press

The show must go on, but in Kander and Ebb's "Curtains," someone in front of or perhaps behind the stage wants to see it close.

"Curtains" is a multi-genre production: a play within a play, romantic-comedy, murder-mystery and musical comedy performed by a large ensemble cast.

The Pennsylvania Playhouse production of "Curtains," weekends through Oct. 21, offers a little something for most theatergoers' appetites. The play, which runs just more than two hours, kicks off with a big musical number that features most of the cast of roughly 20 on stage at once.

The setting is 1959 at the Colonial Theatre in Boston during opening night of "Robbin' Hood of the Old West." Jessica Crenshaw (Rosemary Kumma), a past-her-prime film star, is cast as the female lead. It is obvious she has zero acting talent as the cast find themselves continually feeding her her lines. Crenshaw's poor theatrical chops are the least of her worries as she suddenly falls dead on stage following the curtain call.

The late-night edition of the Boston Globe arrives with a review panning the entire production. A decision must be made: close the show or continue onward with a new female lead. Enter police Lt. Frank Cioffi (Mike Daniels), who has placed the entire theater on lock-down until the murder is solved. Cioffi, who fancies himself a budding song and dance man, integrates amongst the show people, providing production advice in between searching for clues.

As the play progresses, the body count piles up and the list of suspects is as lengthy as the cast and production staff.

"Curtains" is a fun play, but also a difficult one to execute. The large ensemble that shares the stage for several music and dance numbers must stay on point in order for the scenes not to appear a jumbled mess. For the most part, these scenes worked with only minor missteps.

Much like the play inside the play, the cast seemed to find their stride as the action progressed. By Act Two, they had hit their comfort zone and seemed more relaxed than in the earlier moments of opening night, Oct. 5.

Marie Letourneau, "Curtains" choreographer, had a herculean task and proved up to the challenge. Staging is simple and minimal.

The cast features a mix of young performers and seasoned veterans. Standouts include Daniels as Cioffi, James Vivian as "Robbin' Hood" director Christopher Belling and Pamela Webb as Carmen Bernstein, the wife of "Robbin' Hood" producer Sidney Bernstein.

Other notable performances were turned in by Valerie Kumma as Nikki Harris, the lead understudy and ingénue; Mary-Catherine Bracali as Jenny Harris, "Robbin' Hood" stage manager; and Megan Falasco as Georgia Hendricks, who assumes the lead in the final production of "Robbin' Hood." Shane Fischetti, as Bobby Pepper, is an outstanding dancer.

Pennsylvania Playhouse's staging of "Curtains" is an entertaining theater experience. See it before the curtain closes.

'Dream Team' recounts Olympian lesson

By EMILY THIEL
Special to The Press

Jack McCallum's new book, "Dream Team," is an in-depth look at the players on the winning 1992 Olympic Men's Basketball Team, which included iconic athletes such as Magic Johnson, Michael Jordan, Charles Barkley and Larry Bird. McCallum answers questions and signs copies of "Dream Team," a book that is a must for any basketball fan, 1 - 3 p.m. Oct. 13, 428 Main St., Bethlehem.

The award-winning sports writer who retired from the staff of Sports Illustrated magazine, chronicles the "Dream Team" success, the players' stories and creates a profile of the team's experience.

McCallum, who was present during the Barcelona Olympics, also documents the historic game, controversy with the players, and team connections.

McCallum drew his insider look through interviews with the players, observing the players on the court and watching their off-court interactions.

What allowed the team their success can be broken into three key attributes, McCallum says. "The number one thing is talent," noting "the amount of time they were together was a factor in their success. They also had the best coach: Chuck Daly.

"He was able to let them play but enforce enough authority and discipline where they took the mission seriously," McCallum says, praising Daly for his coaching skills. But even the best coach could not create as much success as the Dream Team saw.

"Out of the 12 players, 11 have [been inducted] into the Basketball Hall of Fame," says McCallum. "The best players in the world were able to hide their egos and get them meshed, working towards one goal."

The Dream Team won the Olympic gold, after having played together as the Olympic team for about 50 days. That time spent together as a team effectively changed the world of basketball, McCallum asserts in this book.

"I felt like it was the end of an era," McCallum says about witnessing the game in person. "While I considered myself fortunate to have been there, to me it's when I wanted to step away from [covering] the game because I have seen the greatest expression of it."

McCallum says he was most interested to discover the extent of how much team members learned from each other.

"That really stuck with me," says the Bethlehem author, who was surprised at how much the players admired and grew from their participation in the Olympics' Dream Team.

Dealing with each other's idiosyncrasies

When my daughter Maria came to visit for almost three weeks, she got a close-up look at how things work in the Mihalik-Alen household.

I think it was good for her to see how a strong marriage sustains itself, especially one between two strongly independent individuals.

Yes, I know. A clergyman has told me that "independent" and marriage don't mix.

"The thing wrong with marriages today," he said, "is that a couple continues to think as two separate units. They need to forget the word 'I' and think in terms of 'we.'"

I don't care how much a couple thinks in terms of "we." There will still be issues where they won't agree. In fact, there will be many of those issues. Some big. Some small.

When two people marry later in life as David and I did, patterns and preferences are already set. We learn to deal with each other's differences.

We also learn to deal gently with each other's idiosyncrasies.

When Maria was here, every time I had to leave the house, she was astonished at how many times I had to go back inside before I could finally leave the house.

Leaving for the beach, the door was locked and we were almost in the car. But then I remembered I needed to go back inside for my water shoes. Then I had to go to the bathroom "one last time."

Just as I'm ready to get in the car again, I checked to make sure I had my sunglasses. No, I left them inside when I went for my water shoes. Back inside I went.

"Did you bring sunscreen and water?" I asked Maria. Yes, she had sunscreen but no water.

Back inside I went to grab a few bottles.

"It takes her a half dozen tries to get out the door. Is she always like this?" Maria asked David. "Always," he smiled.

He's right. Before I had cataract surgery and still needed eyeglasses, it was always a hunt for the right pair of glasses before I left the house.

Once, in anticipation of my usual "I forgot my glasses," as we left the house, David walked around the rooms gathering five pairs and lined them up on the table. If he didn't, he knew I would be rushing back in the house for my glasses.

Thanks to the blessings of cataract surgery, I no longer need to wear glasses. But it still takes me a few tries to get out of the house.

Perhaps that could be maddening to some. David takes it in stride. Neither one of us gets bothered by small stuff.

When his son and

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik
newsgrl@comcast.net

daughter-in-law came to visit, they were agog at the fact that we still have plastic coverings on our white dining room set.

When they questioned us about it, we told them the truth: I want them off. David doesn't. He insists the covers stay on because the white upholstery on the chairs will get dirty.

"Aren't you bothered by that?" his son asked me. Sure I am. I told David several times that we're like the old people of decades ago: They kept their furniture covered with doilies and kept the original plastic on lampshades so the lamp wouldn't get dusty.

"That's the way my parents did it," David said, "and it still makes sense to me."

Well, it doesn't make sense to me.

So what do you do when one partner strongly believes one thing and the other partner disagrees?

David would answer that question by saying I always win. I would answer by saying, no, he always wins.

In the case of the plastic covered chairs, he won because I just didn't think it was such a big issue. Yes, it bothered me because the plastic is uncomfortable when sitting through a meal. But I understand it's just part of David's penchant for taking care of things. He's careful with everything, and for that I am grateful. I guess putting up with the plastic covers is what I call "taking the good and the bad."

His son said he was amazed I could settle for that. Then he and his wife got up and stripped away the plastic. I was glad and David didn't care because he adores his son and everything he does is fine.

The point is, neither David nor I are bothered by small stuff.

There are a few times, very few, when I draw a line in the sand and say, "This is the hill I will fight to defend." Then, smart guy that he is, he'll acquiesce because he knows it's important to me.

Of course, I do the same thing for him.

One thing that delights me is that the longer we are married, the more we want to make the other one happy. That means we are more than willing to "give in" when we differ on issues. It also means we are more tolerant and patient in dealing with each other's idiosyncrasies.

Part of that is what happens with age.

The older we get, the more we believe the little book with the long title: "Don't Sweat the Small Stuff: And It's All Small Stuff."

Smithereens old and new in Bethlehem

By MEGHAN LAVERNE
Special to The Press

Get ready to break out your headbands, ripped shirts, and shoulder pads.

The 1980's band, The Smithereens, returns at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 18 to Musikfest Café, ArtsQuest, SteelStacks, 101 Founders Way, Bethlehem.

The group is ready to bring the same feel of their shows of 30 years ago — and even better, says Pat DiNizio, lead singer, guitarist and founder of The Smithereens. "We have to be twice as good. Our fans grew with us."

At its concerts, one of the band's sets features songs off many of its albums, not just the latest.

"We will be playing three or four off the new album, '2011.' But we play a lot of old music."

The Smithereens' most recent album was released last November, appropriately enough, titled "2011."

You can expect to hear the same band you've listened to all these years. "It's raw emotion. That's what we do," DiNizio says. "It's about three-minute songs that take you somewhere."

The New Jersey band formed in 1980 with Jim Babjak, lead guitar, vocals; Dennis Diken, drums; and Pat DiNizio. Mike Mesaros played bass guitar for the 1960's-influenced band until 2006 when Severo Jornacion replaced him. Despite the original three members being together for more than three decades, DiNizio says they have never really had any interpersonal problems. "There were relationships that pre-dated the band, so any issues had already been worked out. We always put the band first."

DiNizio is very passionate about the music he writes, saying his songs are like "short stories through lyrics."

And DiNizio is anything but short on stories, having lived and worked through the changes the music industry has been through.

He has performed at The Riviera in Las Vegas, doing a one-man show of monologues about life in rock 'n' roll. DiNizio says that he may take the show on the road some day, giving lectures at colleges.

Life for a rock star who has been in the industry as long as him is always interesting. DiNizio says, "If I told the real confessions of a rock star they would lock me up."

Fans of Buddy Holly, The Clash, Nick Lowe and The Beatles who have not seen and heard The Smithereens in concert, would enjoy the SteelStacks concert. And for fans of the band, they needn't worry. Even if it's been years since seeing a Smithereens' show, DiNizio says, "It's important to us to do shows the way we did them before."

Jars of Clay in creative breakthrough

By AMY HERZOG
Special to the Press

Grammy Award-winning Jars of Clay rolls into Bethlehem at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 10, Musikfest Café, ArtsQuest Center, SteelStacks, 101 Founders Way, Bethlehem, with a fall tour which includes opening acts Sleeping at Last and Mariah McManus.

Jars of Clay is recording a still-to-be-titled album, set for release in 2013.

"This record feels different in many ways to our other records, mostly due to the process of stripping away a lot of the voices that used to influence our songwriting," says Jars of Clay lead singer Dan Haseltine.

"After making music for nearly 20 years, and feeling comfortable in the art of second-guessing our own instincts in order to allow creative breakthroughs, we found a negative effect.

"That negative effect was our lack of trust in our own voices. So, we knew we had to reclaim our creative space and find the environment to seek out what is unique to Jars of Clay," Haseltine says.

Drawing inspiration from groups such as My Morning Jacket, The Decemberists, Nada Surf and Band of Horses for the album, Jars of Clay, which is based in Nashville, has reinvented its sound.

"We definitely wanted this record to sound like guys making real music," says Haseltine.

"There are also some amazing string arrangements that are reminiscent of our first and second records. When I listen back to the new songs, I feel a bit of nostalgia from the various string parts," Haseltine says.

"We don't have a huge amount of bells and whistles, but the tour is beautiful and intimate, and feels like the best of what Jars of Clay is when we hit the stage," says Haseltine.

Ben Franklin invests $260,000

The Ben Franklin Technology Partners of Northeastern Pennsylvania (BFTP-NEP) Board of Directors has approved the investment of $260,000 in support of regional economic development.

Since beginning operation, BFTP-NEP has helped to create 15,479 new jobs for Pennsylvania workers and retain 21,459 existing jobs, start 429 new companies, and develop 1,127 new products and processes.

In the Lehigh Valley Press circulation area, Ben Franklin announces the following early-stage company investments. Ben Franklin investments are provided to early-stage clients in the form of loans.

ZeroTruck Corp., Allentown, Lehigh County; Ben Franklin Investment: $120,000 — Complete development of ZeroTruck's next-generation electric drive integration system, which will be installed in new or existing truck chassis to convert gasoline and diesel trucks to zero-emission plug-in electric vehicles. With surging fuel costs, expanding environmental protection regulation and public demand for environmentally friendly transportation, the electric vehicle market continues to grow. ZeroTruck plans to establish its production facility in the Lehigh Valley.

Also, Ben Franklin has announced the following established manufacturer company investment. Ben Franklin provides a 1:1 matching grant for work with a college or university partner on technology-based manufacturing innovation in established manufacturers.

Electro Chemical & Manufacturing Co., Emmaus, Lehigh County; Ben Franklin Investment: $5,000; University Partner:

Lehigh University — Develop an adhesive primer that will allow lined vessels used in corrosive fluid handling environments to be utilized in applications requiring a greater range of temperature and pressure conditions than the company's product line.

Electro Chemical Engineering & Manufacturing Company produces thermoplastic and fluoropolymer-lined steel vessels used to manufacture, distribute and store corrosive chemicals.

The company will work with a team from Lehigh University's Materials Science Department to identify and evaluate primer systems with high thermal stability to perform successfully against the required criteria of the new applications. This will allow the company to broaden its product offerings and promote sales and employment growth.

THEATER REVIEW

Touchstone's 'Pan'-American reunion

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
pwillistein@tronline.com

"The Pan Show" is the Lehigh Valley's most wildly-imaginative original musical of the year.

It's "Pan"-demonium. It's also "Panda"-monium.

Yes, it's a "Pan"-demic of laughter with Touchstone Theatre's "The Pan Show: In Pan We Trust." "Pan" co-creators are Jp Jordan, Touchstone Artistic Director-Ensemble Member reprising his role the big guy with the big hairy legs, big horns and even bigger appetite, and Touchstone Ensemble Affiliate Christopher Shorr, who directs the one and one-half hour (with no intermission) musical, continuing 8 p.m. Oct. 11, 12; 8, 10:30 p.m. Oct. 13, Touchstone Theatre, 321 E. Fourth St., Bethlehem.

The zany, brainy, frequently-hilarious musical, with impressive animation and video (Surrender Dayal is Mr. Patel, the semi-clueless guide to "Pan" Land) by Alexander Clare, songs by Jordan and Shorr; choreography by Gina Handy Minyard, costume design by Touchstone Managing Director-Ensemble Member Lisa Jordan, and high-energy performances by the stellar cast, outpaces New York City off-off Broadway and Philadelphia Fringe Festival avant-garde shows, and at times rivals the granddaddy of absurdist sketch comedy, TV's "Saturday Night Live."

"The Pan Show," with a plot about a takeover of the United States and plenty of political zingers, salty language, and ribald humor, is a combination of new vaudeville, incredibly committed acting and highly-original storyline. As but one example is the song, "Slobodan Milosevic."

Jordan, mostly in "Pan"-tomime — save his well-timed yelps — is a goofy rogue as the half-man, half-goat god (with a small "d," I'll be darned). He ranges around the stage with a bowed-legged gait and bemused expression.

Zach Kanner, returning from "The Pan Show: A Cautionary Tale" of two seasons ago when he was a Touchstone apprentice, is a dynamo reprising his role as Daphnis. He commands the stage.

Emma Chong, Touchstone General Manager-Ensemble Member, is a joyful presence in multiple roles. Touchstone's new season of apprentices, Kathryn Krull, Kayla Prestel and Gary Warren, are spot-on in multiple roles. Krull, Prestel and Chong are superb vocally, in solos and chorus.

What next? "The Pan Trilogy," perhaps?

'Gypsy' lives again at Civic

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Focus Editor

Bill Sanders has had a long relationship with "Gypsy."

"I saw it ['Gypsy'] when I was 15 at Valley Forge Music Fair with Angela Lansbury," says Saunders, Civic Theater of Allentown Artistic Director who directs "Gypsy" for his first time as it kicks off Civic's 2012-'13 season at the 527 N. 19th St., Allentown, theater with performances 8 p.m. Oct. 12, 13, 19, 20; 7 p.m. Oct. 18; and 2 p.m. Oct. 21.

At 18, Sanders played the role of Tulsa and choreographed "Gypsy" at Genesis Theatre, Reading.

The Civic show, with a 14-member orchestra and music direction by Justin Brehm, includes Traci Ceschin as Rose, the ultimate stage mother, and Meredith Lipson as her daughter, June, and Morgan Reilly as her daughter, ter, Louise. "We call it the biggest three-character musical ever written," Sanders says. The multiple Tony-award-winning 1959 musical has a book by Arthur Laurents, music by Jules Stein, and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim. The show's songs have become standards, including "Together Wherever We Go," "Some People" and "Let Me Entertain You."

"I seriously think it's one of the greatest musicals ever written," says Sanders. "It has a beautiful score with music that's varied."

"We made this discovery in rehearsal — that they are the pop songs of that era, like 'Small World,' 'You'll Never Get Away from Me' and 'Everything's Coming Up Roses.' They had pop airplay.

"But the great thing about them is that they're great book songs, in that they advance the plot and reveal the characters, which is really extraordinary. Usually, songs are either-or, especially from that era."

"One thing that's really amazing about the book is that through research, we find that it really happened. It's all true, every little bit of it. It was based on her [Gypsy Rose Lee's 1957 memoir]. But even the recent book, 'American Rose,' by Karen Abbott, shows that every event that seems extraordinary was really true."

"One of my favorite things is that [theater critic] Frank Rich called it ['Gypsy'] the musical 'King Lear,' that the emotions are that big and it's so extraordinary that it's for a woman," Sanders says.

PUBLIC NOTICE
ZONING HEARING BOARD OF BETHLEHEM TOWNSHIP,
NORTHAMPTON COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA
OCTOBER 24, 2012

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE FOLLOWING APPELLANTS HAVE FILED AN APPEAL FOR A PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE ZONING HEARING BOARD OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BETHLEHEM, A HEARING TO BE HELD AT 6:30 PM ON WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 24th, 2012 AT THE TOWNSHIP MUNICIPAL BUILDING, 4225 EASTON AVENUE, BETHLEHEM, PA 18020. THE MEETING, AMONG OTHER ISSUES, CONCERNS THE FOLLOWING ZONING APPEALS:

Appeal #10-2012: Pennsylvania Venture Capital, Inc. and Abraham Atiyeh. This hearing will be re-convened to consider the petitioner applicants' challenge to the validity of a specific section of the Township Zoning Ordinance, to wit: the petitioner applicants assert that the enactment by the Township Board of Commissioners on June 4, 2012, of Ordinance Number 04-12, which Ordinance deleted and replaced Section 275-229(A) of the Zoning Ordinance of the Township of Bethlehem, is inconsistent with the procedures whereby such Zoning Ordinance amendments should be promulgated.

- 1. The present appeal (Appeal #10-2012) focuses upon 2 specific parcels of real estate located within the Township of Bethlehem, Northampton County, Pennsylvania, which parcels maintain the separate tax parcel identification numbers M8 2 9A 0205; and M8 2 3 0205E.
2. The two parcels are located within the Commercial Enhancement Overlay Zoning District, and as a result, uses applicable to these two lots that are "permitted-by-right" are described at Section 275-229 of the Bethlehem Township Zoning Ordinance.
3. Prior to June 4, 2012, Section 275-229 of the Bethlehem Township Zoning Ordinance did not permit the use of "Auto Service Station, Convenience Store, or Restaurant-Fast Food with or without a drive-thru service."
4. On June 4, 2012, Section 275-229 of the Bethlehem Township Zoning Ordinance was amended by Township Ordinance Number 04-12, whereby the "permitted-by-right" uses described therein were amended and/or expanded to include the uses of "Auto Service Station, Convenience Store, or Restaurant-Fast Food with or without a drive-thru service."
5. The Petitioner Applicants assert that the promulgation of Township Ordinance Number 04-12 whereby the expansion of certain additional uses aforesaid was authorized "was made in order to benefit a single property owner; was arbitrary and capricious; will not promote public health, safety and welfare; and was not consistent with the Bethlehem Township Comprehensive Plan; and was not the result of the implementation of sound planning principles."
6. The Petitioner Applicants seek at time of formal hearing relief from the Zoning Hearing Board pursuant to Section 275-16(C)(5) of the Bethlehem Township Zoning Ordinance. Specifically, "If a challenge heard by the Zoning Hearing Board is found to have merit, the decision of the Zoning Hearing Board shall include recommended amendments to the challenged ordinance which will cure the defects found."
7. Pursuant to Section 275-16(E) of the Bethlehem Township Zoning Ordinance entitled "Curative Amendments", the present public notice of formal hearing has been drafted and published to advise all interested parties that the validity of the above Ordinance Number 04-12 and any maps applicable thereto have now been placed in question. The place where and the times when a copy of the request for review, including any plans, explanatory material or proposed amendments may be examined by the public is as follows:

Township of Bethlehem Municipal Offices
4225 Easton Avenue
Bethlehem, PA 18020
Telephone: 610.814.6464
Hours for Public Viewing: 8:00 am to 4:00 pm Monday Through Friday of each calendar week prior to the date of the formal hearing.

Notice of this Appeal may also be examined at the Northampton County Courthouse Law Library, located at the Government Center, Second Floor, 7th and Washington Street, Easton, Pennsylvania 18042. The library is open to the public 8:30 am to 4:00 pm, Monday through Friday of each calendar week, except during public holidays.

Appeal #12-2012: Pennsylvania Venture Capital, Inc. and Abraham Atiyeh, have filed joint appeals seeking a public hearing before the Zoning Hearing Board. This hearing will be convened to consider the petitioner applicants' challenge to the validity of a specific section of the Township Zoning Ordinance, to wit: the petitioner applicants assert that the enactment by the Township Board of Commissioners on July 16, 2012, of Ordinance Number 04-12, entitled "An Ordinance Amending Ordinance 8-97 of the Bethlehem Township Zoning Ordinance, Chapter 27 'Zoning' of the Township of Bethlehem Code of Ordinances, as amended, Article XXXI, mixed-use Village Overlay District, Exhibit XXIX-A design guidelines to increase flexibility in the design of site plans, and Subdivision and Land Developments" was promulgated in violation of the Pennsylvania Municipalities Planning Code, Section 916.1, 53, P.S. Section 10916.1 and Section 275-11.e.1 of the Township Zoning Ordinance.

1. The basis for the Challenge asserted by the Petitioner Applicants is that the amendment as above described was allegedly intended to benefit a single property owner, and to facilitate a single discrete development, thereby constituting "contract zoning". The Petitioner Applicants contend that the amendment aforesaid was enacted at the specific request of KRE Bethlehem, LP, KRE Bethlehem Commercial, LP and Petie, Inc., to facilitate the development by KRE Bethlehem, LP and KRE Bethlehem Commercial, LP (collectively "developers") of certain real property owned by Petie, Inc. ("landowner") containing approximately 103 acres comprising three (3) Northampton County Tax Map Parcels known and identified as Lot N8-1-1 (Book 2000-1, Page 166483); Lot N8-1-1A (Book 2000-1, Page 259927); and Lot N8-1-1B (Book 1996-1, Page 7044). The proposed development includes a high density mix of multi-family flats, townhouses, carriage homes, single family detached dwellings for a total of 837 dwelling units and a variety of non-residential commercial and retail and other uses.

2. The Petitioner Applicants allege that the rezoning of the parcels identified above was not accomplished in compliance with the requirements of the Pennsylvania Municipalities Planning Code ("MPC") 53 P.S. Section 10101 et. seq.; that the amendment was not enacted in accordance with the requirements of Sections 603 and 604 of the MPC, 53 P.S. Section 10603 and 10604, which require inter alia, that a municipality enacting a zoning amendment concurrently amend its comprehensive plan to render the comprehensive plan consistent with the amended zoning ordinance.

3. Pursuant to Section 275-16(E) of the Bethlehem Township Zoning Ordinance entitled "Curative Amendments", the present public notice of formal hearing has been drafted and published to advise all interested parties that the validity of Ordinance No. 04-12 and any maps applicable thereto have now been placed in question. The place where and times when a copy of the request for review, including any plans, explanatory material or proposed amendments may be examined by the public is as follows:

Township of Bethlehem Municipal Offices
4225 Easton Avenue
Bethlehem, PA 18020
Telephone: 610.814.6464
Hours for Public Viewing: 8:00 am to 4:00 pm Monday Through Friday of each calendar week prior to the date of the formal hearing.

Notice of this Appeal may also be examined at the Northampton County Courthouse Law Library, located at the Government Center, Second Floor, 7th and Washington Street, Easton, Pennsylvania 18042. The library is open to the public 8:30 am to 4:00 pm, Monday through Friday of each calendar week, except during public holidays.

This notice has been prepared by the Office of the Bethlehem Township Zoning Administrator, Deborah Roseberry, to whom all inquiries may be directed. Oct. 10, 17
