Lemmon says. "She loved it here. The thought that she could return was almost too much for her," he says. "It was a precious moment."

Margaret was a member of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church in Bethlehem during their earlier time in the Lehigh Valley.

"She hated to leave Bethlehem because of church," Lemmon said. One of their favorite things about Bethlehem was the Christmas decorations, he recalls.

"Seeing the star on mountain was important to us," he said. Many things made the area significant. Martin Tower "is an expression of Bethlehem Steel. We were impressed with Martin Tower."

The loss of Bethlehem Steel was great, especially seeing the stacks abandoned for many years.

"To see what happened to Steel after that. The presence here was enormous," he says. "To see that gone is difficult."

Since then, he has seen the Southside evolve. He notes the effect the casino has had to bring Southside into the community.

He likes to drive up Mountain Road.

"It's beautiful on the mountain," he said. "The view from up there is tremendous."

Lemmon still flies a private plane about once a week out of Lehigh or Allentown Queen City Airport. He no longer flies solo and keeps the flights short, usually about an hour or so. He still enjoys being a part of the flying community.

"Everybody knows everybody."

He attributes his continued good health and ability to fly to a spiritual encounter with Margaret after she had passed away in 2011.

"Somehow her spirit came back here. How could she do that?" he asks.

After Margaret died, there were times he felt her presence, telling him things he needed to do or showing him things he knew she wanted him to see.

"The influence is there ... so powerful you can't ignore it," Lemmon says.

When it was time to retire, they often spent winters or summers elsewhere, but they would always return to Bethlehem.

"It was always a central place," he explains.

He recalls a moment flying a United plane over Tannersville, Pa., on Nov. 5, 1969. Due to confusion with Air Traffic Control, another plane flew directly into their path. It was only through the quick intervention of the second officer and Lemmon's flying that the planes missed, coming within 50 feet of each other, the closest miss on record, Lemmon says, as far as he is aware.

Disaster was averted and passengers escaped with only a few minor injuries.

"You realize how quickly life can come to an end; how quickly it can all be gone. It was close," he says.

As captain, Lemmon had to attend a National Transportation Safety Board hearing. After the hearing, United's representative asked Lemmon if he wanted to stay in a hotel room nearby rather than make the trip back to Bethlehem.

No, he said. "I had to get home to see Margaret. I had already been gone for three days."

So it was back on the road again. Home to Bethlehem. Home to Margaret.

'Not Flying Alone: An Autobiography'

BY MICHELLE MEEH
Special to the Bethlehem Press

When Bethlehem resident and Erie native Ray Lemmon wrote his autobiography, he started by writing the first and last chapters. What happened in between? Wars, chemistry labs, finding true love, planes, boats, automobiles, recreational vehicles, moving across the country and back again, building houses, and finding a new direction in life, among other things.

Working in a chemistry lab gave him experience that not only led him to meet his wife, Margaret, it may have saved his life. Being drafted into the Army during the Korean War, he served in an army hospital lab instead of being in combat. His military service also led him to become an airline pilot, studying on the GI Bill. "It opened the door, made everything possible for me," he says.

In 'Not Flying Alone,' Lemmon shares memories of growing up in Erie and later living in Bethlehem for many years.

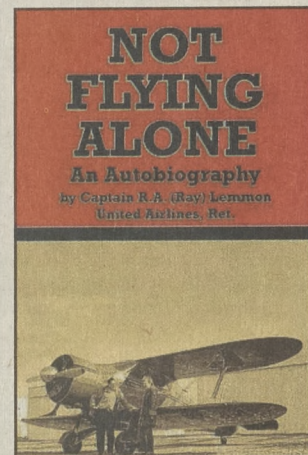

He also reflects on a 30-year career as a pilot for United Airlines and a lifetime of restoring planes and automobiles, as well as owning boats and recreational vehicles. Lemmon gives an inside look at the airline industry with the many lifelong friendships it brought. He also recounts numerous moves, many times involving building a new house along the way.

One move involved two moving vans, one going to the new location while the other moved furniture going into storage. But where Margaret went, there went the grand piano.

Lemmon wrote the last chapter after Margaret passed away in 2011, and he experienced incidents where he clearly felt her presence and received messages of things to do. He recalls becoming more spiritually aware and curious, leading him into a deeper study of Christianity.

'Not Flying Alone' is a fascinating account of the many journeys that make up a lifetime.

demonstrate a need for a change. What's changed in our community? Do we need more residential? How has the retail market changed?" he asked. "I feel it's an irresponsible proposal." He said council members who have had campaign contributions from the developer should recuse themselves to "avoid appearances of impropriety."

Jeff Fegley, owner of the Bethlehem Brew works, said the zoning change would discourage business owners from locating downtown.

"They would be stupid to pick downtown with the incentives this site is going to offer," which he said were "tax incentives on steroids."

Fegley said, "This zoning change is a tremendous handout." He also told council members to recuse themselves if they have taken campaign contributions from the developer. "You have a responsibility to the people," he said, adding "Pay-to-play; you may not want to think you're doing it, but it's there."

Resident Stephen Antalics told council members that business owners "have what is the best interest of Bethlehem for the future. Listen to them. You have heard the will of the people. It's very disturbing. Your choice will let us know. We put you there. Are you going to listen to us?"

Mayor Robert Donchez said the proposed amendment "was the result of much deliberation. It provides flexibility to make the site attractive."

Director of Community and Economic Development Alicia Karner said redeveloping the site is "key to the city's success. It's a large tract of property."

Council President J. William Reynolds said to the residents and business owners at the meeting, "I appreciate everyone coming out." He said that in hindsight he should have handled the public hearing on Oct. 6 differently. "You can take this as an apology," he said.

He thanked the administration for the proposal.

"I agree with the goals, but I have concerns. I don't want to see 63 million square feet of retail there. Something needs to be done to fix that and drastically reduce it," Reynolds said.

The proposal will be up for a second reading Nov. 4. The regular council meeting was moved from Tuesday to Wednesday due to Election Day.

Attorney Jack Spirk, council's solicitor, said any changes to the ordinance will require the matter to go back to the city and county planning commissions, since both bodies have already approved the proposal. Any substantial changes will require readvertising the ordinance with the revisions, he said.

The percentages of retail space noted in the ordinance were added by the city planning commission.

Reynolds said, "I think that's a real concern. We need to include a hard and fast number."

But no matter what amount of retail is allowed, Reynolds said, redeveloping the site will most likely include demolition of the iconic Martin Tower.

"I'm not sure we are ever going to see the day when Martin Tower is redeveloped," he said.

Council member Eric Evans thanked the administration "for starting dialog with us" but said he also would like to see the proposal changed before final approval.

"I am not comfortable with proposal as it stands," he said. "We're the gatekeepers of what goes there. The plan is too wide open. We need to keep an eye out and protect what exists here now."

Evans made a motion to return the proposal to the council's Community Development Committee. The motion was seconded by council member Cathy Reus-cher, but failed in a 5-2 vote.

Council member Bryan Callahan reminded business owners that the city has made investments to Main Street, in the form of tax dollars spent on lighting, sidewalks, decorative paving, and a dedicated public works staff member cleaning up and emptying garbage cans.

"We care about you and about our downtown," Callahan said. Since his property is on Main Street, he said, "As Main Street goes so my property goes."

Council member Adam Waldron said, "It needs to be developed in time, in a sustainable way. I feel like it's being jammed down our throats." Waldron said he was in favor of "scaling this way back."

Reuscher said, "I would like to see the property put to good use." She thanked the administration and residents. "We do care about this. It's no exaggeration to say I lose sleep over these issues."

Council member Louis Stellato also thanked people who came out. He said he has empathy for small business owners, adding, "I come from a small business family." However, he said, it is necessary to "separate rhetoric from reality. It's time to move forward."

Donchez. It also extends to his political rival and opponent in the 2013 mayoral race, city council President J. William Reynolds. His finance reports show that 28 percent of his election funding comes from the same vested interests.

When major contributions from Ronca and Herrick were called into question at a recent city council meeting concerning zoning changes at the Martin Tower site, Reynolds called on Donchez, who accepts the same kind of contributions himself, to vouch for his integrity.

A similar pattern exists among incumbent council members Mike Recchiuti (36 percent), Bryan Callahan (31 percent), as well as incoming council member Shawn Martell (25 percent).

A defense Recchiuti defends the practice.

"I am proud of the support I have received," he has stated. He insists that contributions from Martin Tower interests only make up 13 percent of his total fundraising. "As a city councilman, I have always put the interests of the entire city of Bethlehem first, and will continue to do so for the remainder of my term."

Not everyone is buying that explanation. Rod Holt, co-owner of the Apollo Grill, has said, "One look at the campaign expense reports says it all." Jeff Fegley, co-owner of the Brew Works has told council, "Stop the pay-to-play, guys."

Another group of council members are much more sensitive to accepting money from developers and related business interests that depend on government favoritism to succeed. Eric Evans (12 percent) and Adam Waldron (3 percent) have much smaller contributions from these special interests. Newcomers Olga Negrón (0 percent) and Michael Colon (0 percent) have accepted no money from CRIZ or TIF-related entities.

Does this matter?

This difference was on full display when Bethlehem Council met Oct. 20 to decide whether to advance the rezoning of the 53-acre Martin Tower development, despite the absence of a concrete plan. Reynolds (28 percent) apologized for his behavior at a previous meeting, in which he threatened to silence anyone who claimed they are influenced by campaign contributions. nance down the road. It was an argument eerily similar to Nancy Pelosi's "We have to pass the bill so you can find out what is in it" argument concerning Obamacare.

The problem with this solution is that, once the rezoning passes, Martin Tower developers can immediately file a plan that will have to be honored, even if text changes are later adopted.

Throat jamming?
Joining Reynolds in voting to pass the rezoning ordinance were Recchiuti (31 percent), Callahan (36 percent), Lou Stellato (appointed), Cathy Reuscher (appointed) and Adam Waldron (3 percent). Waldron did state that he had the feeling that "something's being jammed down our throats," but was persuaded by Reynolds.

The sole "Nay" vote come from Eric Evans (12 percent), who wanted the matter sent to a committee where an actual plan could be requested from the developer for review. Evans cautioned the nearly 70 merchants at city hall that many West Bethlehem residents have no desire to see a major residential development at that site.

Newbees
Olga Negron and Michael Colon, elected from the Lehigh Valley's growing Latino community, will join council in January. Both relied on grass-root support and family instead of developers and related entities. While Negron has stated that she supports the CRIZ, "We do not want to provide a license for [developers] to destroy our city's historic treasures or diminish the character of our charming neighborhoods." She is apparently referring to the Martin Tower development, one of the CRIZ projects.

It appears that those who accept no donations from entities seeking city favors do tend to look at requests like the Martin Tower rezoning with a more critical eye.

Council will take a final vote on rezoning Martin Tower Nov. 4. If it passes, no matter what council thinks it can do down the road, developers can file plans to create a third downtown the very next day.

According to Common Cause, Pennsylvania is one of only 11 states that impose no limits on campaign contributions. In 1992, then Governor Bob Casey called on the state legislature to "liberate the electoral process from the tyranny of the campaign dollar." Instead, individual campaigns in local races are often in excess of what can be contributed to someone running for the United States Senate.

Council discusses community development grant funds

BY MICHELLE MEEH
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Members of the city council's community development committee agreed to recommend funding for various Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and HOME project in 2016 and to spend down the 2015 CDGB and HOME funds.

Committee Chair Bryan Callahan was joined by committee members Adam Waldron and Lou Stellato and council member Eric Evans at a meeting Oct. 12. They voted to move the issue to council for further consideration.

Housing and Community Development Planner Allyson Lysaght told committee members there was $1,161,205 remaining 2015 CDBG funds for city departments and $148,204 outstanding CDBG funds for external nonprofit organizations that would need to be spent or lost.

In addition, she said the city Housing Rehabilitation program has $344,315 remaining funds available for loans/grants and $393,485 for Housing Rehabilitation staff. There is currently a waiting list of 23 owners for housing rehab and the wait time is 12 to 18 months.

Director of Community and Economic Development Alicia Karner said the challenge was "changing people's minds you don't have to hold on to it."

Waldron agreed it was important to use the funds, saying, "You don't want to waste federal money."

At current rate of spending, it would take close to three years to spend down the housing rehab funds, while HUD regulates one year.

Staff has increased capacity by hold lead training sessions to certify contractors to work on housing rehab projects and increase number of projects bid, but lacks internal capacity to meet needs of residents, Lysaght said.

Doctor Jesus Healed Her!

In Ukraine's Crimean Peninsula is a group of Tatar people with a Muslim religious heritage. Several years ago our missionary team identified this unreached people group and began praying specifically that God would open doors for ministry. Even as our personnel prayed, a Muslim woman was in a Christian Orthodox hospital on her deathbed. When her husband visited, expecting to find her dead, she was standing at the foot of her bed getting dressed. She insisted on leaving, telling nurses the doctor had visited her and given her permission to go home.

The nurses said no doctor had visited her, but she was adamant. When she saw a picture on the wall, she exclaimed, "There is my doctor!" It was a picture of Jesus.

The nurses explained it was just a picture, but she repeated that He was her doctor. The couple went home to their 5-year-old who had never walked, and the woman asked Dr. Jesus if He could help their child. In the middle of the night the father was awakened by the child running up and down the steps. Our personnel connected with this family and began to disciple them as they continue to bear witness about Dr. Jesus.

About a dozen house churches are located where before there were no known churches or believers. Even with Ukraine's current crisis, house groups are reaching out to unbelieving neighbors. The Assemblies of God drilled wells in the area to provide life-giving water these groups could share; they also share the eternal, life-giving water of Dr. Jesus.

In Matthew 10:1 Jesus "called unto him his twelve disciples" and "gave" them spiritual authority. Jesus is calling His disciples unto Himself today. When we come into intimate and personal contact with Jesus, abiding in Him and He in us, He gives the spiritual authority and the empowerment we need to do His work for His glory. —Assemblies of God World Missions

Landfill owner dumps $95,600 into race

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

LOWER SAUCON TOWNSHIP - NEWS ANALYSIS

(323 votes).

At a time when pay-to-play has caught the attention of federal authorities in Allentown and Reading, and has even raised eyebrows in Bethlehem, IESI Corporation has quietly dumped $95,600 into the Lower Saucon Township Council race, according to campaign finance reports on file at the Northampton County elections office. Its goal is to remove landfill opponents Priscilla M deLeon and David Willard, who currently sit on council. It is supporting incumbent Tom Maxfield and challenger Sandra Yerger.

Who is IESI Corporation? It's the owner of the Bethlehem Landfill located along Applebutter Road in Lower Saucon Township. How much longer it stays there is unclear. It will reach capacity sometime next year. If the state grants permission to stack garbage on top of 29 acres at its 201-acre site, it can remain operational for another six years. But what then?

IESI has purchased 83 acres on the western side of its property, and wants to use 58 acres for garbage. Its problem? Zoning. That would have to change from residential to light industrial, and the current council is no hurry to grant this wish. In an effort to get a more compliant council, IESI has inserted itself in the electoral process.

Three council seats are up this year. Two are held by Priscilla deLeon and Dave Willard, Democrats who have tended to be anti-landfill. The third council seat is held by Republican Tom Maxfield, who has generally been supportive.

PRESS PHOTOS BY BERNIE O'HARE

IESI, owner of Bethlehem Landfill, has purchased 83 acres on the western side of its current property, and wants to use 58 acres for garbage but that would require a zoning change from residential to light industrial, and the majority of current council members are in no hurry to grant this wish.

If deLeon and Willard can be knocked off by a slate of pro-landfill council members, IESI would be that much closer to an expansion.

Before the primary election, the landfill contributed a total of $40,000 to a political action committee (PAC) calling itself Responsible Solutions for Pennsylvania. This PAC supported a slate consisting of Maxfield and two other pro-landfill Republicans, Bill Ross and Sandra Yerger. It funded robo calls, live calls, five mail pieces and the creation of a web page. It also paid somewhere around $12,318.80 to a Philadelphia law firm (Obermayer, Rebmann, Maxwell and Hippel) who took care of filing the pre- and post-primary election reports with the elections office.

Tippling fees and property taxes from Bethlehem Landfill, located at 2325 Applebutter Road in Lower Saucon Township, contribute $2 million of the Lower Saucon Township's $6.1 million annual revenue, according to township records and published reports.

Under Pennsylvania's campaign finance laws, corporate contributions are illegal. But attorneys representing the PAC as-surements fell by the wayside because the contributions are "independent expenditures."

The U.S. Supreme Court's ruling in Citizen's United prevents any restriction on independent political spending, even corporate spending.

When the dust had settled on the primary, two of the three members of this slate had won. Sandra Yerger had 468 votes, and Maxfield garnered 441 votes. But Bill Ross, the third member of this slate only attracted 345 votes and lost out to Republican Donna Louder, who is anti-landfill.

IESI spent $31.90 for every vote cast in support of the pro-landfill candidates.

deLeon (487 votes) and Willard (382 votes) captured the Democratic nod, along with Gary Gorman

Now new campaign flyers are out, directly paid for by the landfill, promoting the Yerger and Maxfield pro-landfill team. An Independent Expenditure Report filed in the elections office indicates that IESI has directly spent an additional $55,100 for polling, research, canvassing door-to-door and the purchase of a post office box. It is using Mercury LLC, which bills itself as a "high-stakes public strategy firm" with "extensive must-win campaign experience."

As of the second Friday before Election Day, IESI has spent $95,600 in what increasingly appears to be an effort to buy an election. Whatever it spends between now and election day must also be reported to the elections office in what are called 24-hour reports.

deLeon, Willard and Louder have formed their own bipartisan anti-landfill team.

"We've spent hundreds," laughed deLeon. Their finance reports pale in comparison, and most of their small sums come from family and friends. According to elections office records, Willard has raised $146.87. Loder has spent $1,069.42 out of her own pocket, and deLeon has spent $1,484.13, most of it her own money. Whether this trio can win against vast amounts of corporate money remains to be seen in what appears to be a David v. Goliath race.

deLeon and Willard decided against teaming up with Democrat Gary Gorman because his wife Cathy is the township's finance director.

FUNDS

CDGB/HOME funding began with a request for letters of interest that went out in late summer to gauge interest in 2016 program while implementing 2015 award.

Full applications were due Sept. 25. After being reviewed by an internal committee, the applications are sent to HUD in April. HUD announces the grant in July and the funds are typically received in the third week of August, meaning they must be spent down in four months.

A total of $1,150,900 in CDBG funds was requested and the total award was $1,010,560. Karner said this includes funds for city staff. "We're managing those projects," she said.

LOCAL ELECTION

We asked candidates we could reach this question: If elected, what is the first issue you would address?

LEHIGH COUNTY Commissioner

Vote for 4
Democrat:

Dan Hartzell: "I will work to convince my colleagues on the board, whomever they may be, to move ahead with the county administration's plans for renovations at Cedarbrook. The initial phase of these plans - renewal of the facility's D wing - should have begun when first proposed more than a year ago and might now be nearing completion. Investing in the modernization of the utility systems in these structurally sound buildings, and altering the floor plans to eliminate the aging design in which four residents share a room, would improve Cedarbrook's reimbursement rates and its overall financial performance, benefiting both Cedarbrook residents and county taxpayers."

Joanne Jackson: "Having served on the Allentown School Board, my priority is community involvement, making sure the citizens have a voice. I will attend crime watch and community associations' meetings to further outreach in the county in terms of what is of priority and needed by the residents. I will visit county staff and facilities. I want to hear from the regular folks in terms of how they see and understand the decisions that are made by the commissioners and to see the needs that they have in the operation of their jobs and facilities. I will assist in bridging the gap between partisan opinions on the board to provide the best results for the county."

Bob Martin: "First, I'd look for the best way to get started on the renovations at the Cedarbrook Nursing Home. The current commissioners have been delaying this project for nearly two years and the residents there shouldn't have to wait a day longer than necessary for the improvements to begin. I'd also reach out to the county government's elected officials and department heads to make sure they know I want to work with them to find the most efficient ways to provide services to the residents of Lehigh County to enhance quality of life here in the long term."

Hillary Smith: "My first priority, if I have the honor of being elected, is to change the political climate from one of working against each other to working together on behalf of the citizens of Lehigh County. The current board has proposed slashing our law enforcement budget, endangering the safety of our communities. They've talked about abandoning our seniors when they talk about selling Cedarbrook. They disregard the needs of our most vulnerable children. I want a county government that enriches people's lives and makes our communities a better place to live, work and raise a family."

Amanda Holt: "I will continue to focus on serving the people and acting in their best interest, using my analytical skills and fresh perspective to review the budget and operations of the county. Government must live within its means while avoiding burdensome taxes. The current board has cut taxes, maintained services and ended with a surplus. By working collaboratively with the other commissioners, I will continue to improve accountability by reviewing contract processes and policies, increase transparency and efficiency through implementing paperless solutions and craft clear and measurable strategies for county services."

Victor Mazziotti: "If re-elected, I will continue to apply my skill and experience to help bring about a cost-effective Lehigh County government. I will remember that just like the average taxpayer, Lehigh County must find ways to do more with less. I ran for election in 2011 in response to a 16 percent tax increase. I have been fighting to reduce the county real estate tax rate, while maintaining needed county services. In the last four years, the county commissioners have reduced the county tax rate three times, without reducing county services, while maintaining a healthy rainy day fund balance."

Marty Nothstein: "As a newly elected commissioner, I would first like to meet with the county department heads, administration and employees. It is important that I understand where they feel they are succeeding and struggling when providing county services. Then I will begin working with my fellow commissioners to continue the streak of tax cuts we've seen in Lehigh County. In the past three years, commissioners have passed two tax cuts and one tax rebate. There will likely be another tax cut this year. I will work to continue the tax cut streak that our citizens not only want, but need."

Brad Osborne: "As chairman of the board of commissioners, I will continue my efforts to open up a productive working relationship with the executive. While Lehigh County is in good hands and the finances are healthy, we can accomplish more in terms of long-range planning and investments in the community if our two branches of government coordinated its efforts and moved forward together. Our victories can be shared accomplishments and credit, and everyone wins. This is what people expect of their elected officials, and rightfully so."

Court of Common Pleas

Retention vote: Carol K. McGinley

County Controller

Democrat:

Thomas Slonaker: "(My first order of business will be) improving the necessary professionalism on a daily basis that requires the appropriate education and experience to effectively provide oversight of over $400 million of our tax dollars. I have advanced degrees in economics and finance. Further, I previously served as the Lehigh County controller, Whitehall Township treasurer, bank auditor and registered financial representative, and I am an enrolled agent licensed to practice before the IRS. This required professionalism, experience and education is currently lacking in the controller's office and needs to be corrected. Compare my accomplishments to my opponent, and decide where your money is best protected."

Republican:

Glenn Eckhart: "I will continue to make a difference as the Lehigh County controller. I will continue to monitor the county expenses looking for waste, fraud and abuse. I will continue to oversee the restructuring of the controller's office and will modernize processes and improve inefficiencies that will not only continue to save money, but also provide better services. I will continue to be the watchdog for the county pension system and make it more open and transparent."

District Attorney

Democrat/Republican: Jim Martin

Sheriff

Democrat:

Ed Zucal: "My first order of business will be to meet with the upper brass in the office. I will concentrate on learning the various duties of each of the individuals within the office."

As stated in my original plan, I will meet with each and every employee within the office. I will be asking them to provide me with ideas they think could change or improve the office for the better. I will stress the importance we will be a team and we will work together to make it the best sheriff's office in the county - place where everyone will want to come to work and give 100 percent."

Republican:

Joe Hanna: "I will conduct an overall assessment of operations to include personnel duties and deployment, resource allocation, and safety measures and make changes where needed. I will also examine the current training programs in the areas of active shooter, crisis negotiations and enhanced first aid. In addition, I will conduct a comprehensive review in the service of process of civil papers, writs, PFA orders, and all warrants to determine current efficiency and safety. I will review existing written policies, standard operating procedures, and hiring and promotion practices to determine how they align with current best practices and will add and adjust accordingly. I will conduct a needs assessment for future capital projects while exploring alternative funding sources to lessen the burden on the Lehigh County taxpayer."

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY Court of Common Pleas

Judge (vacant seat)

Democrat:

Samuel P. Murray: "To effectively dispense justice fairly, impartially and efficiently to all who would come before me, and to continue doing so throughout my tenure."

Republican:

Victor Scornilio: "The first thing I would accomplish is to institute veterans court services in our court. These services would help non-violent, veteran offenders struggling with addiction and mental illness by diverting them to specialized veteran's court services and would help find a treatment program for them. The specialized veterans services would be offered in the new Drug and Mental Health Courts in our Northampton County Court of Common Pleas. We may never be able to repay our veterans for their sacrifice but we can show them how much we appreciate all they have done. If elected, I would assist our current judges with the administration of justice in a fair and impartial manner to protect our communities."

Republican: John Cusick

County Controller

Democrat:

Stephen J. Barron Jr.: "I would accomplish several of the things that I have a proven track record of performing. I will continue to save million with the audits my office has conducted, I will fight to make sure Gracedale is operating as best as it can for the citizens of the county never allowing it to be sold and I will remain a watchdog over the county executive as I did during the administration of John Stoffa and now John Brown."

BETHLEHEM AREA SCHOOL DISTRICT

Director-at-large

Vote for 3

Democrat: Dean M. Donaher, Thomas Thomasik III

Karen Beck Pooley: "The first thing I would try to accomplish as a member of Bethlehem Area School District's School Board is to reach out to teachers, administrators, parents, and neighbors - about their concerns and priorities for our schools. I am also looking forward to supporting several efforts I am already involved with as a parent in the district. The most notable of these is BASD's new Excellence through Equity initiative, which seeks to guarantee all students equitable access to the resources they need to succeed in school, so that family income, race or ethnicity do not predict academic achievement."

PPL Foundation advances community empowerment

PPL Corporation recently announced the formation of the PPL Foundation, which will partner with community organizations to improve the lives of people in the communities served by the company.

The PPL Foundation will support a variety of nonprofit organizations, with a special focus on those supporting early education, community revitalization and workforce development.

In making major grants, the PPL Foundation will focus on three areas:

- Education - Contributions in this area will focus on early childhood education, as well as science, technology, engineering and math programs in distressed areas to ensure as many children as possible have access to high-quality education.

•Community revitalization - Efforts in this area will include safe housing, prepared emergency response teams, accessible hospitals and arts and cultural opportunities.

•Workforce development - Work in this area will include updating infrastructure, building new power lines, installing smart grid systems, improving reliability and exploring new opportunities to help customers use energy wisely. A diverse, highly-trained workforce will be critical.

With two application cycles each year, the PPL Foundation will offer sustaining grants between $1,000 and $25,000 to nonprofit organizations working in the areas of education, community and economic development and environmental stewardship.

The foundation will offer major grants between $25,000 and $100,000 to nonprofit organizations with a particular focus on education, community revitalization and workforce development. Organizations can find more information at www.pplcares.com.

Hurricane Joaquin brings gift to Valley soup kitchens

Progressive Waste Solutions' Bethlehem Landfill (formerly IESI) and 4 Bandits BBQ announced recently that the companies had the unexpected opportunity to donate $6,000 worth of prepared food to local soup kitchens this past weekend due to Hurricane Joaquin. The Bethlehem Landfill had scheduled an open house at their facility on Applebutter Road for Saturday, Oct. 3. Due to a forecast of high winds, the event was cancelled, and the company and their caterer were left with a tremendous amount of food. "I suggested to Brian Baker, owner of 4 Bandits, that we contact soup kitchens to see if they could take the food," said Marcy Neumire, manager of community relations for the Bethlehem Landfill. "He and his wife, Stephanie, loved the idea and made it happen. We were all glad to see it go to good use." Soup kitchens at Christ Church UCC of Bethlehem and Bath Church-United Church of Christ received their savory gifts Oct. 3, which included enough food to distribute that day and more to freeze for the future. The Pembroke Road Salvation Army's gift was delivered Oct. 4. The dishes included pulled pork, barbeque chicken and a host of sides. Right: Summer Baker, daughter of 4 Bandits BBQ owners Brian and Stephanie Baker, helps deliver donated food from Bethlehem Landfill's cancelled open house event to the Pembroke Road Salvation Army.

Election: Commissioners' seats eyed

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

There's been a change in the line-up in this year's at-large Bethlehem Township Commissioner race. Democrat Jack Glagola managed to win his party's nomination with 92 write-in votes. But he was forced to pull out of the race for personal reasons, and has been replaced on the ballot by Malissa Davis, who attends nearly every meeting.

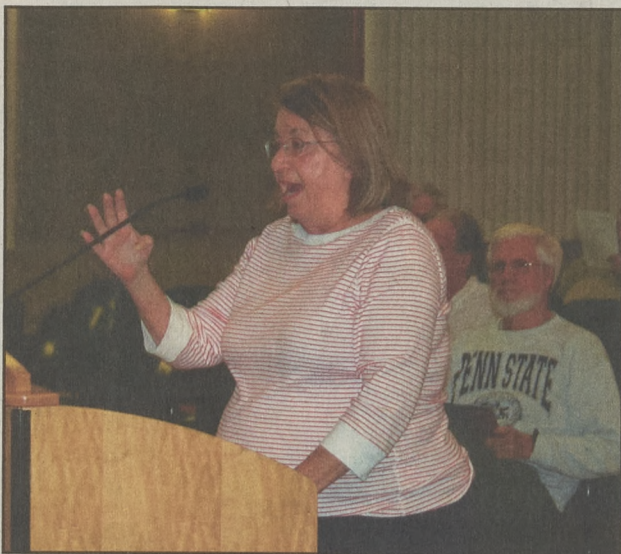

"I am passionate about local government," she explains. "Traffic, storm water, parks, recreation and the 'sense of living' in a place are all influenced most by decisions made at the local level."

Davis will be facing incumbent Marty Zawarski, a Republican, in next week's election.

Phil Barnard, another incumbent Republican, is facing a challenge by Democrat Kim Jenkins in Ward 3. Tom Nolan managed to capture both the Democrat and Republican nomination in Ward 1 despite having two Republican opponents in the primary. Absent a write-in campaign, his re-election is assured.

Davis has been using the bully pulpit during Courtesy of the Floor to explain her position on various issues. At the Sept. 21 meeting, she registered her concerns about the PennEast Pipeline, which is currently configured to go right through the township. She indicated that she worked in the industry. Though she acknowledged that the risk of an incident is "very remote," it "could be catastrophic." She alluded to a case in which a gas tanker exploded and 20 people died.

"It can happen to the best and smartest people in the world because they are people." She asked township officials to keep the pipeline away from populated areas.

Later that week, PennEast Pipeline formally applied to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for a permit to begin construction of the 118-mile long, 36-inch diameter pipeline extending from Wilkes-Barre to Trenton.

Earlier this year, the township hired a consultant for a pipeline study, and then directed the engineers to spell out in more detail how to minimize the impact.

Ben Hedrick questioned commissioners about a report that there will be a tax hike next year. Tom Nolan called it a "false rumor," at that time noting commissioners had yet to see a budget.

By a 3-1 vote, commissioners called in street-scape deferrals that had been granted to CVS Drugstore and St. Luke's Hospital along Freemansburg Avenue. These include sidewalks, landscaping, lights, and fences that will promote walkability.

Marty Zawarski voted against this measure because he opposes the fences. CVS and St. Luke's will have one year in which to complete these enhancements.

In other business, commissioners voted 4-0 to send canine Hugo and his partner Officer Bryan Tollinger for K-9 certification training at a cost of $4,250.

The police department reported a prostitution sting resulting in several arrests. During August, township police were dispatched to 80 accidents involving 155 vehicles and nine injuries. The department issued 198 traffic citations, 260 written warnings and 24 parking tickets. There were 34 felony and misdemeanor arrests, seven summary citations and four DUIs.

Michael Hudak was absent from the meeting.

EPC CROSS COUNTRY

Kochmaruk wins EPC meet

Raisa Kochmaruk won the EPC girls race last week in Bethlehem.

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Raisa Kochmaruk took off from Box 2 at the EPC Cross Country Championships and never looked back, literally, taking first place in 18:52 last Tuesday at Bethlehem Municipal Golf Course.

"It went how I wanted it to go. I was envisioning it," Kochmaruk said. Kochmaruk had more time to envision than she would have liked, however.

"Being on the line for so long, your mind starts to wander," she said.

Still, Kochmaruk maintained the lead for the entire race.

"I kind of used what other people were yelling [on the sidelines]. I can't look behind me," said Kochmaruk.

It was Easton's Diana Hammerstone, who finished second in 19:06, and Emmaus's Katie Baucher, who placed fifth in 19:22, who created the most concern, but seeing Liberty coach Mark Will-Weber throughout the race was helpful to Kochmaruk.

"I wanted to be in the lead and open up in the last mile," she said. "My coach gave me that strategy, and it worked."

The top 12 finishers received medals, and that included Bethlehem Catholic's Kassi Yocco, who had an 11th place finish in 20:03.

"I just wanted to stay with the first pack the whole way. I still wanted to be better, place-wise, but I'm looking forward to next week because that's the big picture for me," Yocco said.

Next week is the District XI Cross Country Championships at Bethlehem Municipal Golf Course.

Yocco's teammate, Rowan Pepe, just missed a medal by one place, coming in 13th in 20:06, and Lauren Bunke placed 24th in 20:39, also for the Hawks.

Delaney Davis placed 38th in 21:42, Grace Haas was 39th in 21:44, Alicia Valladares came in 45th in 22:00, and Greta Stuckey placed 47th in 22:12, all for the Hurri- See GIRLS on Page 13

Alpaugh takes third

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Will Alpaugh met his goal of placing in the top five of the EPC Cross Country Championships last Tuesday at Bethlehem Municipal Golf Course, coming in third in 16:36 for the Freedom Patriots.

"I'm pretty happy with today's result," said Alpaugh.

Easton's Kevin Lapsansky won the race in 16:10, and Pleasant Valley's Seth Slaviv was second in 16:22.

"I was with Seth mostly, and then he dropped me off at the second mile, but even then I was close to him," Alpaugh said.

Despite running with a cramp for the second half of the race, Alpaugh was able to get ahead of two Parkland runners, who eventually placed fourth and sixth.

"The Parkland coach yelled that I was dying, and I didn't want to fall back," laughed Alpaugh.

Isaac Gross was the Patriots' next finisher, but he placed 23rd in 17:49, behind Brendan Reilly and Jonah George from Liberty.

George said, "Our coach wanted us to catch Isaac, and he told Pedro [Larotta] to catch up with us." Reilly placed 21st in 17:45, and George was 22nd in 17:47.

"The two hills is where it starts getting really competitive, so if you power up those hills, you get a good advantage," said George.

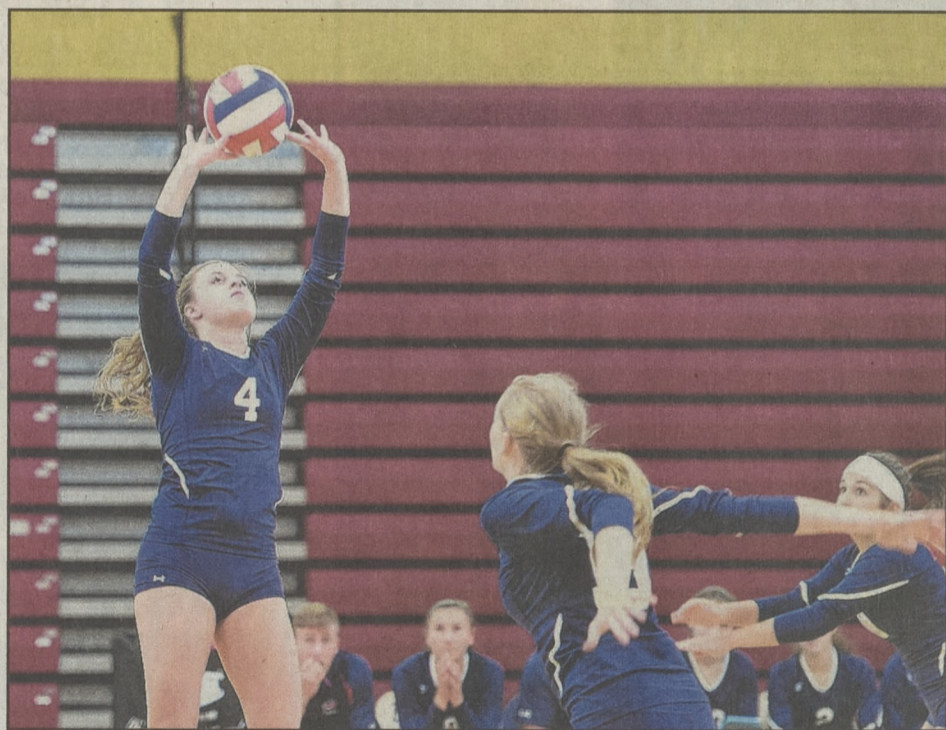

Reilly and George picked off other runners at the second and third mile.

Reilly said, "We talked before about not going out too fast. You need to get good position and pick people off throughout the race. I wouldn't have been able to pass without Jonah." See BOYS on Page 13

Liberty loses in finals

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

If Liberty wants another crack at Parkland in the District 11 post-season, the Hurricanes will need to play a cleaner game than they did during Saturday's East Penn Conference final.

The Trojans swept past Liberty 25-18, 25-13, 25-16 to claim their sixth straight league title, dating back to the former Lehigh Valley Conference.

For Liberty head coach Missy Lynn, the game and stage was one she knows her team will learn from moving forward into this week's district tournament.

"There were too many unforced errors, mental mistakes and intimidation," said Lynn of her team's performance. "We're just not used to being on this stage and we have to play error free volleyball against a team like Parkland. That just didn't happen for us today."

Liberty was able to stay close with the Trojans through the first eight points of each set, but the Trojans dominance and consistency would eventually pull them away for comfortable victories.

Erika Foose led the Trojans (19-0) with 13 kills, while Siena Salvaggio added 12. Parkland had 37 assists on the afternoon as Mike Bethlehem Catholic's girls' tennis team won the silver medal in the District XI Class AA Team Tennis Tournament last Saturday at Northwood Racquet and Fitness Club in Easton.

Going into the match against Notre Dame Green Pond, the Hawks had been undefeated all season but then fell to the Crusaders 3-2.

"Coming into the district final at 19-0 is a testament to the girls and how they became a team. I just said to Greg [Adams], my assistant, that I would like to start next season tomorrow," said Becahi coach George Harmanos.

Maureen Mazza and Tess Shuler were beaming after winning their doubles match for the Hawks 6-2, 6-2 after succeeding with consistent shots and solid communication.

You can say it was a dose of revenge or it was just an old-fashioned whooping, either way, it was a victory for Bethlehem Catholic last week when they trekked up north to Stroudsburg.

The Golden Hawks dispatched the Mounties 49-14 to gain some reprieve from last year's defeat to Stroudsburg. The win puts Becahi (7-1) at the top of the East Penn Conference North Division with a 7-0 division mark over Stroudsburg (6-2, 6-1), all but assuring Becahi the division crown as they head into this week's contest against Allen (1-7).

More importantly, last week's contest was a chance for the Hawks to play in a big game, their first one since their season opening loss to Liberty.

"I was very proud of our guys," said head coach Joe Henrich. "That was probably the best game of the year for us. I think our kids were excited about playing in a big game. They were definitely focused and ready for the challenge." The Hawks built a 21-7 lead heading into halftime and then exploded with a 21-point fourth quarter to run away with the win.

Antwon Keenan rushed 19 times for 143 yards and three touchdowns, while quarterback Julian Spigner added 127 yards and two scores on the ground.

Spigner was 8-of-18 for 120 yards passing as well.

The Hawks defense stifled Stroudsburg on the night, allowing only nine first downs and 194 yards of total offense.

"Our first team defense really only gave up seven points," said Henrich. "It was good to see the guys play the type of football they did. If we can do that every week moving forward, it'll be a good sign for us heading into the postseason."

The Hawks currently sit atop the 3A power rankings after last week's win.

A win over Allen this week will keep them in the hunt for the number one seed, before a week 10 showdown with Central Catholic (5-3).

Freedom falls to Parkland

BY CJ HEMERLY
Special to the Press

In a matchup of two of the top teams contending for the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference South Division, special teams miscues hurt the Freedom football team last Friday night at Parkland School District Stadium.

Issues in the punting game put the Patriots in difficult situations for much of the first half. Parkland began three of their first four drives on Freedom's side of the field, and they took advantage, scoring two touchdowns and a field goal in building a 17-0 lead right out of the gates.

The Patriots couldn't dig themselves out of the early hole, dropping their first game of the season 38-7.

"When you play a good team like Parkland, to be down two scores is one thing," head coach Jason Roeder. "To have them come out and score the way they did in the third quarter, that's tough to come back from."

The special teams play puzzled Roeder, stating that they used the same players in the same spots they had done all season long.

Parkland's Palmer Kerch stormed in and blocked the first punt, and then later took down Patriots punter Steven Rold for a 10-yard loss after a bobbled snap on the second punt.

A 27-yard field goal by Donovan Berger ensued after the punt block. And then the Trojans found the end-zone in the second quarter as Devante Cross ran in from a yard away after the bobbled punt.

When Erik DiGirolamo crossed pay-dirt on their next possession, Parkland had 17 straight points.

Freedom was already put into a hole when they found out in pregame warm-ups that starting quarterback Joe Young couldn't go.

Jonah Gundrum did his best when called upon, but was sacked six times during the game and never had time to make plays.

A 67 yard pass from wide-receiver Alec Huertas to Brennan Reinert was the only scoring the Patriots did. They amassed 133 yards of total offense.

But just as Freedom thought they had built momentum heading into halftime, Parkland opened the second half by going on a 10-play, 80 yard drive capped by another DiGirolamo touchdown, his second of three on the night.

"Our kids kept battling," noted Roeder. "But give Parkland credit. They got the best of us tonight."

District playoff scene heats up

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

District 11 chairman Bob Hartman and Northwestern athletic director Jason Zimmerman held a teleconference Monday afternoon to discuss playoff scenarios for all four classifications heading into this week's football action.

With class 1A, 2A and 4A having clearer paths, 3A is the murkiest format for playoff hopefuls heading into this weekend's action.

Bethlehem Catholic (7-1) currently sits atop the standings, while Lehighton (8-0), Saucon Valley (8-0) and Jim Thorpe (8-0) round out the top four in that order. Waiting in the wings in fifth place is Central Catholic (5-3) and Blue Mountain (7-1) in sixth.

With such a competitive group this year, there will surely be disappointed teams when week 11 rolls around.

"There's going to be good teams not playing in the district tournament in week 11," said Zimmerman during Monday's conference.

Becahi and Lehighton can make things clearer with wins this week, as the Hawks play Allen (1-7), while Lehighton takes on Tamaqua (4-4).

Saucon Valley can help themselves immensely with a win this week over undefeated Notre Dame-Green Pond (8-0), while Jim Thorpe

Bethlehem teams ready for districts

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

All three Bethlehem teams qualified for the District 11 volleyball tournament, as the action gets under way Thursday night in 3A and 2A classifications.

Liberty earned the second seed in 3A after losing to Parkland in Saturday's EPC championship and will take on the winner of the 7-10 matchup between Whitehall and Pottsville at 7 p.m. at Memorial Gymnasium.

Third-seeded Nazareth will meet sixth-seeded Freedom in the other quarterfinal matchup in the bottom bracket, taking place at Nazareth at 6 p.m.

In the top half, top-seeded Parkland will meet either Stroudsburg (8) or Southern Lehigh (9), while Emmaus and Pleasant Valley battle in a 4-5 matchup.

In 2A, Bethlehem Catholic opens up play at 6 p.m. tomorrow against Panther Valley in a 4-5 contest at Beca-hi. Top-seeded Notre Dame-Green Pond battles eighth-seeded Jim Thorpe in the other contest at the top of the bracket.

Blue Mountain (3) and Saucon Valley (6) square off in the bottom bracket, while second-seeded Central Catholic meets Lehigh (7 seed) in the other matchup.

Semifinals in both classifications take place on November 3, with finals slated for Nov. 5.

Krause's squad looked comfortable throughout the match.

Despite having a bull's-eye on their back, Krause knows his team is used to being in this situation.

"We don't talk a lot about having a bull's-eye on our back, but the kids know it," Krause said. "We try to emphasize to them what we want them to do and our girls execute pretty well."

Lynn understands that and knows her team will have to do better if an eventual rematch should take place in districts.

"Parkland has no weaknesses," she said.

"I think if we play a perfect game, anybody can be beat. They'll [Parkland] make mistakes too. They're high school girls just like we are, but we have to challenge them. When you keep serving balls into the net and not covering, it looks like they [Parkland] were just practicing. I think if we play clean volleyball we can stick with this team."

Despite Saturday's result, Lynn is proud of what her team has been able to accomplish this season.

"I think we exceeded a lot of peoples expectations," she said, "but we're in it to win it all. Parkland has an amazing team, but we don't want to finish in second place to anyone."

with better focus. It made us more motivated," said Shuler.

Gabby Duffy and Tori Evert also won their doubles match on Saturday 6-2, 6-2.

"It was really good to win the last match for us. I love playing with Gabbs," Evert said.

In the beginning of the season, Duffy's strength was her net game while Evert's was her ground strokes. As the season progressed, their strengths seemed to have switched.

"We clicked really well early. This is my first year playing. It was awesome to come out and have an awesome partner," said Duffy.

Where the Hawks lost on Saturday was at singles. Brenna Magliochetti was defeated 2-6, 1-6, Molly Ehrig lost 1-6, 2-6, and Brooke Adams lost 3-6, 0-6.

Coach Harmanos said, "Today, we saw what we have to do at singles, but I know we have the ability level and the talent to make a run again next year. Notre Dame is so strong at one, two, and three singles."

This season, Becahi's entire singles line-up had changed from last season. Magliochetti came in as a freshman and took the number one spot, Ehrig moved up to two singles, and Adams moved down to three. Shuler also moved down from singles to doubles. All handled the changes extraordinarily well.

In addition, Allie Palmisano and Bailee Deshler were undefeated all season at number four. Liah Perez, Jade Devlin, Julie Glemser, and Elva Gao were also on the Hawks' varsity roster.

"We were strong from beginning to end," said Harmanos.

In the first round of the tournament, Becahi defeated Tamaqua 5-0.

In the Class AAA tournament, Liberty beat Parkland in the first round 4-1. Jackie Arthur and Martina Gale won a close 7-6-7-5 match at doubles for the Canes. In the semifinal, Liberty lost 4-1 to Southern Lehigh. Samantha Peterson was the lone winner at number one singles on a forfeit.

Freedom defeated Easton in its first round match 3-2. Kaitlyn Swint pulled out a 3-6, 6-3, 6-1 victory at two singles. Becky Packo won 6-0, 6-0 at number three singles, and Gabriella Greenhoward and Anjoli Chhugani won their doubles match 6-3, 6-2. In the semifinal, the Patriots lost to Nazareth 4-1. Natalie Sinai was Freedom's winner at number one singles 6-2, 6-3.

Freedom's Ally Young, middle, was the Pates highest female finisher.

Spigner picks Lafayette

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

When it comes to picking colleges, Bethlehem Catholic quarterback Julian Spigner was looking for the best fit.

Fortunately for Spigner, he didn't have to look far, as he verbally committed to play football at Lafayette next fall.

Spigner made the announcement last week, joining Easton quarterback Tre Jordan, as EPC signal-callers making the move to College Hill.

"I was really looking for a school that was the best fit for me, my personality and where I can have the most success, both athletically and academically," Spigner said. "Central Connecticut State and Fordham were interested, but Lafayette was just the best option."

Spigner earned all-state honors as a junior and has 1,132 passing yards this season and eight touchdowns. He's also amassed 483 yards on the ground and nine scores.

Where he ends up playing at Lafayette is also up in the air. Spigner said he has a chance to play quarterback, but is more likely to play wide receiver.

"I've never played wide receiver, but I think I'll be all right making that transition," he said. "I know I can do it. I just need to get coached up a little bit. Quarterback is the hardest position to play, so I feel that I'll be able to adjust in that role."

Easton handles Hurricanes

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It couldn't have been much worse for Liberty last Friday night when Easton came to town.

The Rovers did whatever they wanted in a dominating display that left head coach John Truby scratching his head after a 49-14 defeat.

Nysir Minney-Gratz had a career day rushing for Easton, collecting 302 yards on 28 carries and two touchdowns, as Easton's offensive line won the battle up front to keep the Hurricanes in disarray.

After Doug Erney found Sean West for a 24-yard TD strike to open the game for a 7-0 lead, it was all downhill from that point. The Rovers would barrel their way to 49 points the rest of the way in a physical victory.

"Easton just flat out beat us up," said Truby. "They're defensive line played a great game and we didn't match it. Their kids wanted it and came out to play. It all starts up front and we couldn't handle them."

Minney-Gratz dazzled on the night, as he followed Liberty's opening score with a 92-yard kickoff return to even the game in the first. He then broke off 19 and 87 yard TD runs in the third quarter, as Easton scored 42 unanswered points.

After an opening series score, Liberty's offense went flat.

Erney finished the night 11-of-20 for 112 yards and a score, but also threw three interceptions.

After going 83 yards on their first drive, Liberty managed 204 yards the rest of the night.

Easton's speed up front became a factor for Liberty's linemen and it was something they couldn't handle.

"I was surprised at how fast they [Easton] were getting off the ball," said Truby. "They weren't doing anything special except beating us off the ball. You can't play that way and they did a great job against us. It's tough for Doug to do stuff when he has no time."

The loss puts Liberty at 6-2 on the season, dropping them behind Easton (6-2) in the district power rankings.

With a key contest at Central Catholic (5-3) this Saturday, Liberty needs a win to get some momentum back heading into their season finale against Freedom.

"Hopefully we can watch film and get ready for a strong Central team," said Truby. "I was surprised at how Easton was able to take control of this game. This is something we're going to have to learn from heading into the next two weeks."

has a vital contest with Blue Mountain.

Central Catholic plays Liberty (6-2), where a win by the Vikings would propel them into the top four.

With any scenario being premature at the moment, there is no clear answer in the 3A classification.

Teams like Lehigh hold their own destiny as they play Tamaqua and Jim Thorpe to close out the season. Jim Thorpe may end up being on the outside looking in, as their final two opponents are a combined 15-1.

"Nothing is official at the moment, but if there's a scenario where Blue Mountain and Jim Thorpe each finish 9-1," Zimmerman said, "Blue Mountain would probably end up having more points than them."

The big boys in 4A are nearly set, as Wyoming Valley West (8-0) and Parkland (7-1) have both clinched, as they sit atop the rankings heading into this week.

After that, Freedom (7-1), Easton (6-2), Liberty (6-2), Delaware Valley (6-2), Stroudsburg (6-2) and Nazareth (5-3) round out the top eight.

Hartman noted that this year, a team with a 5-5 record could sneak into the top eight because of the parody among teams. Also, District 11 is guaranteed six of the eight playoff spots.

Williamsport (5-3), Pleasant Valley (5-3), Scranton (4-3), Whitehall (3-5) and Emmaus are still alive in the race.

Scranton is a wildcard since their school district has been dealing with a strike and they have played one game less than all the other schools. They play Wyoming Valley West this weekend, followed by a contest next Tuesday against West Scranton and then a regular season finale against Abington Heights.

Emmaus has games against Whitehall and Parkland to close out the season and the Hornets could make a serious push by winning out.

While nothing is official, it's likely that Freedom, Easton and Liberty have already clinched berths no matter what happens to them over the next two weeks.

In 2A, Notre Dame-

GP (8-0) has already clinched one of the top four spots. The Crusaders can clinch the number one seed with a win over Saucon Valley.

Northwestern (6-2) can clinch a district berth with one win over their next two weeks. The Tigers play Northern Lehigh (4-4) and Catasauqua (1-7) to close out the season.

Salisbury (5-3) and North Schuylkill (4-4) round out the top four, but Northern Lehigh, Palisades, Palmerton and Tamaqua each sit with 4-4 records heading into this weekend.

Tamaqua, however, has the hardest road of any of those teams, as they play Lehigh and Marian Catholic (5-3) to finish the season.

Tri-Valley (7-1) leads the 1A race, as they have already clinched a berth. Marian currently sits in second and can clinch with a win over Shenandoah Valley (2-6) this weekend. Mahanoy Area and Williams Valley are both 4-4 and sit in three and four respectively at the moment, but Schuylkill Haven (5-3) could sneak in, as they control their own destiny.

The Lehigh Valley Charter HS for the Arts Theatre will present the British farce, "The Real Inspector Hound," as it christens its new state-of-the-art 370-seat theater located in the school's recently opened facility at 321 East Third St. in South Bethlehem.

Performance dates and times are Friday, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 31 at 7 p.m., and a Sunday matinee Nov. 1 at 2 p.m. The 13-actor cast and seven member stage crew are directed by Ashley Weller. Tickets are $12 for adults and $10 for seniors and students.

Tickets may be purchased in advance online at www.CharterArts.org. "The Real Inspector Hound" was written by Tom Stoppard and features twist after twist with some characters having multiple identities.

Tea is served by Mrs. Drudge (Marley Mathias) to Felicity Cunningham (Zoe O'Grady), Cynthia Muldoon (Chrissy Fay) and Magnus Muldoon (Dylan Gombos), Cynthia's brother-in-law.

The performance begins with theater critics Moon (Alex Hile) and Birdboot (Matthew Danning) reviewing a play in London, and ends with each involved in murder.

"We can't go on meeting like this" says Muldoon Manor owner Cynthia Muldoon (Chrissy Fay) to philandering theater critic Birdboot (Matthew Danning) as the body of well-known theater critic Higgins lies on the floor behind them.

DA: Bethlehem contractor fraudulently lists employees as subcontractors

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

In what he believes to be the first ever criminal prosecution on a county level, District Attorney John Morganelli announced Oct. 19 that he intends to charge Bethlehem construction firm Salukas and White with a scheme to defraud workers of decent wages and the government of taxes by deliberately misclassifying employees as subcontractors. He also plans to charge Mark White, a principal in that firm, with perjury and false swearing before a Northampton County investigating grand jury.

Morganelli is acting on a recommendation of that grand jury, which heard testimony from employees and subcontractors who say that the firm paid close to a million dollars to two middlemen who would recruit day laborers and pay them in cash. Between 2001 and 2013,

District Attorney John Morganelli intends to charge Bethlehem construction firm Salukas and White with a scheme to defraud workers of decent wages and the government of taxes.

Salukas and White paid Tony's Drywall and Leauber Drywall $884,254 to recruit and pay workers, in cash, far below the minimum wage standard in the construction industry.

The middlemen took a 10 percent cut. According to Morganelli, this practice allows companies like Salukas and White "to compete unfairly against firms who play by the rules." It deprives the government of tax revenue. Even worse, it harms workers.

"This practice is going on right now with the same company," said Kevin Lott, business agent for LV Carpenters Union Local 600. "It's so refreshing to see somebody do something about it."

Lott accused Salukas of exploiting people who will end up on

Roy: Reassessment a 'fairness' issue

BY KRISTINE PORTER
kporter@tnonline.com

The Bethlehem Area School District brought in $1.4 million in new revenue through a settlement over property taxes of commercial property.

Superintendent Joseph Roy said the district challenged what they considered significantly undervalued commercial property assessments and settled with 12 of the 75 businesses, so far. Another settlement is being worked on, which would yield $1.45 million.

"This is revenue we would not have otherwise," he said. "If the large property owners are paying their fair share, then it takes the burden off the lower income property owners and the elderly. It's a fairness issue."

Roy explained that the school district only pursued legal action against these specific commercial property owners because their tax assessment was at least $10,000 lower than it should have been. The $10,000 was not the amount of the property tax; it was in addition to the property tax.

"We are looking at fairly expensive properties," Roy said.

The properties included convenience stores, hotels, apartment complexes and drug stores. Roy said the taxes on the businesses were assessed too low, because they have people who look for ways to drastically reduce their tax burden.

With campuses located in Monroe County, Bethlehem Township and on Bethlehem's Southside, Northampton Community College is considered among the best in the country. It proved that at a recent Fowler Center, which is impossible to complete in just one day. Tobar the Robot, EMT demos, the Fab Lab and cooking classes are just some of the school's practical productions. In addition, there's a reading room for area children, filled to the brim with books.

NCC's open house is proof of why it's among the best Faites Vos Jeux It's common to see college kids break out a deck of cards to play hearts or even poker between classes. But you won't find any gambling courses at Moravian College or Lehigh University. Not only does Northampton Community College offer instruction on gaming, but it brings in the casino tables as well for blackjack, roulette, craps and every table game you'll find at the Sands. Above, Anna Stofko tries her hand at spinning the roulette wheel. According to Deborah Driscoll, who helps administer this program, students are offered a 10-week course in which they are trained and certified in two different table games. There are 15 students per class, which runs through about eight cycles per year. Students who become certified can go on to audition at the Sands and other casinos. Once they are hired, the casino will send some students back for additional training on other table games. Over the past five years, approximately 1,500 students have successfully completed this program. Ninety percent of them are hired by a casino.

Making the transition In addition to being an open lab for the public, there are now 20 instructors who teach nearly 60 courses. Above, several guitars are in their early stages as they are built by students in one of the many unusual courses offered. Students can select an acoustic or electric guitar, or even a ukulele.

James Kandle, a blackjack instructor, provides pointers to a would-be dealer.

Unless someone at the Fab Lab comes up with a time machine, this report has to stop here. There was simply no time to view many of the other programs, including the dental lab, nursing school and medical assistant training. Also, this open house was limited to the Fowler Building on the Southside campus. Bethlehem's Southside is increasingly being equated with the Sands and Steelstacks, but this open house is proof that Northampton Community College has helped the city and its residents make the transition from an industrial-based economy to a what former Bethlehem Mayor John Callahan liked to call a "knowledge-based economy."

Children's Literacy. The Cops 'n Kids Reading Room, tucked away on the fourth floor, seems like no big deal. But it is. That's how Beverly Bradley, a retired teacher, has been able to distribute 683,736 books to Bethlehem children. For free. Children can bring books or take a "5-pack" every Wednesday. On Saturdays, different programs are offered. For example, in October, the Wildlands Conservancy will show kids how to make a planetarium out of toilet paper. "I've got to see that one," said a dubious Bradley.

Kids, not books. Bev Bradley and Bethlehem attorney Barb Hollenbach, who volunteers her time, offered to read "Winnie the Pooh's Blustery Day." But it was time to play a little blackjack, something they don't teach kids. Bradley says she relies on donations to ensure that no child goes without at any of her events. She spoke of one occasion in which her brother, Tommy Donchez, was cooking hot dogs. A visiting father who was worried whether he'd have enough money to feed his four kids, asked how much. "Five for nothing!" was Tommy's reply. The father started to tear up.

Donchez' group also helps select the children for the tree-lighting ceremony every year with the mayor. This year, they will come from Holy Infancy and Miller Heights. Every child will get his or her very own backpack, a box lunch and a ride on a Trans-Bridge bus. Five children are designated as Mayor's Assistants and help him turn on the lights. This year, they will have a gift of their own for Bethlehem police. But it's a secret.

Last year, the mother of one of the Mayor's Assistants began to worry as he prayed every night, "Please God, make sure I don't get sick." She asked her son why he was so worried and he explained. "Mom, the mayor has picked me to turn on the lights of the city. If I'm sick, the city will be in the dark."

In the end, it's about the kids, not the books, explained Bradley.

Fab Lab. The brainchild of Dr. Paul Pierpoint, the Fab Lab is a place where anyone, from mad scientist to artisan, can test his ideas. It offers 3-D printers like the one above, along with laser engraving, woodworking, guitar building, metalwork, electronics and a sound studio.

Cocktail, anyone? Most people who visit a casino enjoy a cocktail or two while they're gambling. Northampton Community College offers several programs for that, too. In mixology classes, students learn how to make a gin and tonic that even James Bond would approve of. Students can pick up ServSafe food handling and RAMP (Responsible Alcohol Management Program) certifications. The school also offers instruction in how different wines complement different meals. Above, students Katarina Delnero, Taleya Folks and Isabbel Dacosta prepare mocktails for open house visitors.

Cooking with Mary Grube People might need those CPR classes after eating all the different samplings dished out by Return to Elegance's Mary Grube. In addition to her cooking show on WFMZ-TV69, Mary is teaching nine different classes at the college this fall, from Dinner for One to Champagne Tasting. Her class, which offered champagne and tapas samples, was packed. "I love cooking," she said and that's good to know because her work product quickly disappeared. "I don't think you should fight food," she lectured, and nobody did. They just ate it.

EMT Training One of the school's offerings is a 200-hour EMT course to certify people to work in ambulances or at hospitals. Many people who take this course also go on to become R.N.s or physicians, including Dr. Rebecca Pequeno, who runs the Emergency Room at St. Luke's Anderson campus. Pictured above are instructors Mari Beth Esordi (left) along with Irene Mast and John Evans. Mast also teaches an eight-hour heart saver class, which has provided CPR instruction to approximately 5,000 members of the public. "I think everyone should learn CPR to save a life," she said.

SATs are less reliable performance predictor

Students across the nation anxiously awaited the chance to get onto the CollegeBoard website Oct. 22 to access their most recent SAT results. For most, this was a moment of great anxiety and fear, while others felt more confident in their performance.

Standardized testing is used as a method by the Educational Testing Service (ETS) to assess student's general and necessary knowledge at whatever grade level they may be in. The tests are designed in a way that eliminates any bias in the way questions are asked, thus giving a fair chance to any student that knows the material.

At Liberty HS, many students awoke that day intending to check their scores right away. The CollegeBoard's website visitation traffic was so heavy, however, that it went down temporarily, much to the annoyance of many students.

Currently, standardized testing is a highly disputed topic amongst teachers, parents, students and educational administrators. Many see it as an inaccurate way of assessing a student's intelligence and capability, which they attribute to many different factors, including high stress levels during tests and/or surrounding the test itself; belief that the tests favor those with a high socio-economic standing; teacher's inevitable tendency to "teach to the test;" and artificially high levels of pressure that may limit a student's ability to perform to their full capacity.

Asked about her overall experience with the most recent SAT, Liberty HS senior Lety Flores said, "My stress level was pretty high. I think there's a lot of pressure, especially for seniors. The whole time, you're thinking about how schools base your acceptance - which affects at least the next four years of your life - on a test that you can't prepare for and that only lasts a couple hours."

What Flores had to say certainly holds some truth. According to a study published in an article on pbs.org, SAT scores are becoming less and less important to colleges throughout the nation. Former Dean of Admissions for Bates College William Hiss led the study. According to the article, the results showed that there was a "negligible difference in college performance between the two groups. Only .05 percent of a GPA point set "submitters" and "non-submitters" apart, and the difference in their graduation rates was just .6 percent," submitters being those who sent in their SAT scores, and non-submitters being those who didn't.

It seems that a student's grade point average (GPA) - the cumulative score of a student's final grades in class built up over their four years in high school - is more significant than actual testing scores, as it should be. Based on that, the following question can be posed: Why are students still taking these seemingly important standardized tests if colleges don't consider them nearly as much as they claim to? With any luck, these tests will become obsolete in the following decade.

East Hills MS students show their school spirit after using their hair coloring talents on school administrators.

Spotlight on 'Charger pride'

School spirit and a sea of pink were evident at East Hills MS recently as the students and faculty readied for a big game against cross-town rival Nitschmann MS and raised funding for Breast Cancer Awareness. Principal David Horvath started the day off by having teachers and students spray paint his hair pink. "We thought we'd pink-out for cancer and school spirit," Horvath said. At an afternoon pep rally students, athletes, cheerleaders and bandmembers gathered in the school gym to raise school spirit in preparation for the big game, the season's final contest and one that could spell city championship for the East Hills Chargers football team. Many students wore pink T-shirts that promoted "charger pride" across the front. Horvath said a portion of the proceeds from sale of the shirts, about $600, would support cancer research. "I see school spirit everywhere" said Horvath at the pep rally. East Hills defeated Nitschmann 40-6, making the Chargers city champs.

The Pennsylvania Apartment Association wrote an article in January to its members attacking the practice of spot appeals, and its use by school districts.

The article doesn't name a specific school district.

"School districts cherry-pick properties, including apartment communities, for property tax assessment appeals (spot appeals)," PAA wrote. "Apartment communities are willing to pay their fair share of property taxes, but they cannot be expected to carry the burden for other property owners."

PAA goes on to say that tax increases on apartment communities create "enormous upward pressure on rents." The organization said that some school districts increase taxes on apartment buildings by more than 200 percent.

"Property taxes already account for hundreds of dollars of an average rent. Renters don't deserve to face such massive financial upheaval," PAA wrote.

The organization goes on to say that spot appeals "are killing incentive to invest in or improve apartment properties," and is calling for the state to end the practice.

The PAA said that the state constitution requires uniformity of taxation, and the U.S. constitution requires equal protection of all citizens. Because it would create non-uniformity, county boards are not allowed use spot assessments, but the state allows school districts to do them.

"There is no justification for placing any part of government above the constitution. All parts of government must follow the law for uniformity and equal protection for all citizens," PAA wrote. "County boards of assessment are not above the constitution, and neither are school districts."

Currently the state Senate Appropriations Committee is reviewing Senate Bill 877, which is an Act amending Title 53 (Municipalities Generally) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes. The legislation would restrict the ability of taxing districts to appeal a property assessment it considers to be significantly undervalued. The bill was introduced by state Sen. David Argall (R), Schuylkill County and part of Berks County.

In a memorandum written by Argall, he said the bill would eliminate spot appeals of property assessments. The problem with spot appeals, Argall contends that it can drastically increase the taxes on residential properties. He referenced two residential property owners whose taxes were raised by $8,000 and $6,000.

Jon Hopcraft, an executive director for Argall, said their office has heard from numerous residential property owners in Schuylkill County asking for a stop to spot assessments. This issue is one of the reasons why Argall is strong supporter of eliminating property taxes.

"It really goes to the unfairness of the school property tax," he said. Pennsylvania Senate Bill 76, the Property Tax Independence Act, is currently in the Senate Finance Committee.

Senate Bill 877 is one of the several pieces of legislation dealing with specific issues of property taxes, Hopcraft said, and passed unanimously in the Urban Affairs and Housing Committee. A companion bill is in the works in the state House and will be co-sponsored by state Rep. Scott Petri, a member of the House Urban Affairs Committee, Hopcraft said.

"My legislation will remove a taxing jurisdiction's ability to appeal the assessment of a property based solely on the sale of the property," Argall wrote. "Taxing authorities may only appeal an assessment when the property has gone through a county wide reassessment, been divided into smaller parcels, or a change in the productive use of the property has occurred."

Argall's bill would also include a retroactive remedy allowing property owners whose property tax assessments have been increased because of an appeal could pursue having the assessments reduced to prior levels. He noted that Article VIII, Section 1 of the Pennsylvania Constitution states that taxes shall be uniform.

"Under current law, two homes built in the same year with the same layout in the same condition could have drastically different local tax bills because of when one property was purchased," Argall wrote. "My legislation would seek to restore uniformity."

Schadt String Competition winner youngest in event's 20-year history

CLASSICAL VIEWS

By Diane Wittry

It's hard to believe that the National Schadt String Competition, sponsored by the Allentown Symphony Association, is coming up on a 20-year celebration. It seems like just yesterday I was sitting with a group of wonderful volunteers, researching and planning how we would set up the competition and what the age ranges would be. I remember working carefully to define the criteria, the repertoire and the prizes.

Now, 20 years later, we have established a world-renowned string competition with an $8,000 First Prize, where people from all over the world come to the Lehigh Valley the first weekend in March to compete to win the Schadt Competition Prizes and to perform with the Allentown Symphony Orchestra.

The Allentown Symphony Orchestra concerts, 7:30 p.m. Nov. 14 and 3 p.m. Nov. 15, Miller Symphony Hall, Allentown, will feature the winner of this past year's competition, Violinist, Zeyu Victor Li. At just 18 years old, he is the youngest participant ever to win the Schadt Competition. The rules allow string players between the ages of 18-30 to compete.

Victor was born in Huaunan City, China, and is a student at the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, where he studies with Aaron Rosand. In addition to winning First Prize in the National Schadt String Competition, he was a recent prize winner at the Montreal International Violin Competition and the Young Concert Artists International Auditions, New York.

For his performance with the ASO, Victor will play the Sibelius Violin Concerto, a haunting work that was written in 1904 but became popular in 1935 when the famous violinist Jascha Heifetz began to perform and tour with the piece. Now it is a part of the standard concert repertoire and is known for its beautiful opening melody and its particularly difficult last movement where the violinist has to play double stops and fast scale passages, among other virtuoso techniques.

In honor of the 20th anniversary of the Schadt String Competition, the Allentown Symphony commissioned a new violin piece with orchestra from the Internationally-recognized composer Roberto Sierra. At the November concerts, we perform the world premiere of "Rapsódico," a challenging work that will forever carry the name of the Schadt String Competition onto concert stages.

Also, as a tribute to our celebration of string instruments, we begin the program with a strings-only piece, "Strut" by Michael Daugherty. I programmed this piece because it is rhythmic, fun and full of confidence and attitude: exactly the attributes needed to become a Schadt Competition winner.

The second half of the program features Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony, or, as we in the music industry like to call it, Tchaik 5. This is a piece that Tchaikovsky struggled with in composing. During the days when he was working on the piece, he often felt frustrated and fearful that he was "played out," with nothing left to say as a composer. "I have to squeeze it from my dull brain," he wrote to his patron in a letter. In the end, though, in November 1888, he conducted the premiere of his new 5th Symphony to positive acclaim.

The 5th Symphony was completed about 10 years after Tchaikovsky's 4th and continues his obsession with fate. While the 4th Symphony had been a triumph over fate, the 5th Symphony is more of a resignation to fate, or as Tchaikovsky wrote in his diary, "a resignation before the inscrutable predestination of Providence."

He presents the famous fate motif in the beginning of the symphony, played quietly by the clarinets, and then by the bassoons. The fate mo-

"As I look out at the sculpture, I think of Sir Isaac Newton's words: 'We build upon the shoulders of those who came before us.'" Peter C. It was the vision of Peter Dent's uncle, Charles C. Dent, to create a horse to honor Leonardo da Vinci, whose 15th century bronze equestrian sculpture was never cast.

$45-million rehabilitation completed at Allentown's Cumberland Gardens

Almost 45 years after it welcomed residents to Cumberland Gardens, the Allentown Housing Authority (AHA) rededicated the city's largest public housing community to celebrate the completion of the award-winning comprehensive renovation of 200 apartments.

Those attending the Oct. 12 event included Congressman Charles W. Dent (R-15), representatives from the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development and Pennsylvania Housing Finance Agency, Allentown Mayor Ed Pawlowski, State Sen. Patrick M. Browne (R-16), State Rep. Peter Schweyer (D-22), Allentown City Council members, the AHA Board of Commissioners and community residents.

"The overall goal was to modernize Cumberland Gardens," said AHA Executive Director Daniel R. Farrell. "This community was built in the 1970s. It's now more than 40 years old and we wanted to make it viable for another 40 years."

The $45-million project included rehabilitation of the properties, improved accessibility for residents and changes to outdoor areas to increase green space and make the community more pedestrian-friendly.

"This is a great day for the residents of Cumberland Gardens and for the Allentown Housing Authority," said Dent. "The AHA's efforts here are a textbook example of how to accomplish an outstanding revitalization and renewal process for public housing. This project stands as a point of pride for the City of Allentown."

The project, which received an Award of Merit from the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials, is the largest AHA project since the construction of Overlook Park on the site of Hanover Acres-Riverview Terrace, Allentown.

"The improvements to Cumberland Gardens ensure that Allentown continues to provide affordable housing in an environment that inspires residents to achieve a better life," said Pawlowski.

"In addition to these renovations, the housing authority is an ally in making our neighborhoods safe by partnering with the city on surveillance cameras and providing additional police patrols to reduce crime," Pawlowski said.

Unlike Overlook Park, the Cumberland Gardens project did not involve demolition of existing apartments. Instead, units were rebuilt.

The three-phase project reduced the number of bedrooms in many of the apartments to provide adequate size quarters for modern living needs. In addition, each unit received new doors and windows, structural improvements, replacement of floors, trim, fixtures and siding and interior wall repairs.

The overhaul began in 2010. In October 2012, AHA celebrated the completion of the first phase of the project, which involved 74 units.

The first phase was funded in part by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, Low Income Housing Tax Credits, AHA and City of Allentown funds.

The second and third phases were financed through Low Income Housing Tax Credits from the Pennsylvania Housing Finance Agency, City of Allentown and AHA funds.

Construction and general contracting was provided by Harkins Builders and Pennrose Properties Inc. of Philadelphia, which partnered with AHA on the reconstruction of Overlook Park in east Allentown. Fulton Financial of Lancaster provided tax credit equity funding to the project.

A 'Bridge' to history

"Bridge Of Spies" is a compelling film that retells a fascinating chapter from the Cold War between the United States and the then Union of Soviet Socialist Republics concerning the 1960 Soviet Union downing of U-2 spy plane pilot Francis Gary Powers.

Director Steven Spielberg takes a different tack in introducing the story. Instead of starting with Powers (Austin Stowell) or the incident, he begins with the story of convicted Russian spy Rudolf Abel (Mark Rylance), arrested in 1957 in New York City and traded in 1962 for the release of Powers.

At the film's center is Atty. James B. Donovan (Tom Hanks), who is brought in to defend Abel.

The prisoner exchange of Powers and Abel takes place on the Glienicke Bridge, Berlin, known as the "Bridge Of Spies" for its prisoner exchanges.

Also exchanged for Abel was Frederic Pryor (Will Rogers), a U.S. student captured by the East Germans when he wandered into East Berlin, apparently soon before the Berlin Wall was completed.

The parallel action between the release of the student and Powers and Abel is handled masterfully by Spielberg and sets up some palpable tension toward the film's conclusion.

Spielberg moves the story along at a deliberate pace that allows one to become familiar with the twists and turns of the story.

The screenplay was written by Ethan Coen and Joel Coen, based on the original screenplay by Matt Charman.

The competing interests of the FBI, CIA, the overall interests of the U.S. and Soviet Union and the individual agendas of the participants provide opportunities for intrigue and quips in the dialogue in the Coens' screenplay. One of the more interesting representations in the film has to do with the U-2 spy plane photographic surveillance program, its super secrecy and the depiction of the downing of Powers' U-2 plane.

Stowell ("Whiplash," 2014) is fine as Powers. Noteworthy in supporting roles are Amy Ryan as Mary Donovan, wife of James B. Donovan, and Alan Alda as the head of Donovan's law firm.

As portrayed by Rylance (Emmy-nominated, TV's "Wolf Hall") and written and directed, Abel is an amiable, soft-spoken man of few words. His hobby as a portrait artist gives insight into his character. Look for a possible

Hanks, as Donovan, again provides a remarkable performance, allowing us to see just enough of his character's thought process to win us over and cheer him on as if he's a general, athlete or movie star. Of course, Hanks is a movie star without overtly being that. In this, Hanks carries the film. Look for Hanks to receive an Oscar actor nomination.

"Bridge Of Spies" is a well-crafted, admirable work that should receive multiple Oscar nominations. The film takes the movie-goer to an era when warfare and espionage seemed to be black and white. Of course, it often is not that and it often is not that.

Science Center.

Sculptor Nina Akamu and Tallix Art Foundry made Charles C. Dent's vision a reality when a 24-foot horse was dedicated Sept. 10, 1999, in Milan, Italy.

The second "American Horse" casting was dedicated Oct. 7, 1999, in Grand Rapids, Mich.

An eight-foot casting of the horse was dedicated in November 2001 in Leonardo's birthplace, Vinci, Italy.

"Years later, we got our Art Park and the renaissance of downtown Allentown," Peter C. Dent said to the estimated 120 in attendance for cocktails and hors d'oeuvres, a silent auction and sit-down dinner of salmon and fillet mignon by Catering by Karen Hunter. The gala raised about $45,000.

In choosing to honor the Dents at the Oct. 17 gala, a Baum School press release stated, "The Dent Family has shown exemplary commitment to the arts in our community, particularly to The Baum School of Art, for three generations. Dent Family members have graciously provided leadership and guidance on our board of trustees.

"Over the years, they have participated as students of fine art; the elder generations having studied with Walter Baum, to the following generations enjoying our art classes for children, teens and adults. The family has been instrumental in promoting "An Artistic Discovery: The 15th Congressional District High School Art Competition," the longest-running competition of its kind in the United States.

"The Baum School of Art is honored to be the home of Leonardo Da Vinci's horse, a truly magnificent monument to creativity, imagination and persistence. Numerous members of the Dent Family have been an important part of the school's history, and continue to play an important role in our success."

Congressman Charles W. Dent (R-15th), wearing the United Airlines identification pin of his uncle and namesake, Charles C. Dent, detailed the history of the Dent family and the Dent Hardware Company, Fullerton, Whitehall Township, the leading producer of brass refrigerator hardware in the United States and one of the two largest producers of cast-iron toys in Pennsylvania.

Charles C. Dent was a contemporary of Wilfred M. "Wiley" Post Jr. and John Henry Leh, two of the founders of what became Lehigh Valley International Airport. "He'd give them art classes and they'd give him flying lessons," Charles W. Dent said of Charles C. Dent.

Shannon Fugate, Baum School Of Art Executive Director, noted that The Baum School will celebrate its 90th year in 2016. Of honoring the Dent Family, Fugate said, "It's about the community relationships that have been forged.

"Da Vinci knew about STEAM [Science, Technology, Engineering, Art and Math] long before it was a buzz word.

"Charles C. Dent had the vision and dream for the Da Vinci horse and that has stimulated the community."

A time line, sketches and drawings by Charles C. Dent of the Da Vinci horse project were displayed. One noted: "Leonardo was more than a Ninja Turtle. He was a genius," in reference to the children's animated TV show and movie, "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles," in which one of the characters is named Leonardo.

Artwork by Charles C. Dent, photographs by W.R. Pete Dent and artwork by Majorie Dent, while she studied with Walter Emerson Baum at The Baum School, which he founded, was displayed.

Also honored at the gala was artist Gary T. Erbe, whose exhibition, "Mystery & Magic: The Trompe L'Oeil Vision Of Gary T. Erbe," sponsored by the Zelenkofske Family, concluded its run in the David E. Rodale and Rodale Family Galleries.

Gala sponsors included:

Gold Sponsors: Air Products and Chemicals, Inc., City Center Lehigh Valley and J.B. and Kathleen Reilly, Bob and Sandy Lovett, and Lutron.

Silver Sponsors: The Dent Family, National Penn, and PPL.

Bronze Sponsors: Alvin H. Butz, Ravi Bains, Hank and Joanne Barnette, Beirne Wealth Consulting, Carol C. Dorey Real Estate, Cedar Crest College, Freda Fischman, Barnet and Lisa Fraenkel, J. Lawrence Grim, Jr. and Kathleen O'Dea, Klunk & Millan, Gary and Mary Ann Millenbruch, Rick Powell, Samuel and Missy Saxton, Nancy and John Schneider, StoultzPoole, PLLC - Accountants and Consultants, Karen and Alex Tamerler, and The Zelenkofske Family.

The Baum School serves more than 2,600 students with almost 350 classes in drawing, painting, ceramics, sculpture, jewelry-making and metal-smithing, fashion design and construction, photography, graphic design, illustration, film making and others. The School holds workshops, gallery exhibits, public and private meetings, receptions and events. In total, approximately 10,000 are served.

Scatter small acts of kindness where you go

Like millions of others, I stayed glued to my television set during the pope's visit.

He has a knack for saying the things that make many of us want to applaud.

But after all those wise words and lovely thoughts, what remains with us long after he is gone?

Here's my question: What one quote or thought had a lasting effect on you?

As my friends and I pondered that question, I know my answer.

I like the pope's thoughts on our need to do small acts of kindness for others. I believe it was St. Theresa who said she couldn't do anything great with her simple life. But she could do small things with great love.

Small acts of kindness can be part of your everyday life. Show a little kindness here, a little kindness there and the next thing you know you are a helping to create a kinder world.

Perhaps this is something you already do. I've noticed that a lot of people instinctively do small acts of kindness for others.

When I go for my morning walk, I noticed one woman always picks up the newspaper from one driveway and walks it to the doorstep. The couple who live in the house are old and infirm. For them to walk the length of the driveway then walk back up the small incline would seem like walking a small mountain. In one small act of kindness, a morning walker makes their life easier.

Sometimes, but probably not often, a newspaper delivery person will make sure elderly customers can get the newspaper without any problem. The man who delivered the paper to my mother-in-law always walked it up her long driveway and tucked it in her door. She used a walker and wasn't steady enough on her feet to do it without falling. That driveway walk each day was his act of kindness.

In much the same way, a couple in our neighborhood went out with shovels and a garbage can to clear away yard trash stacked on the pavement of one home. They said they didn't want older people who walk on the pavement to have to go in the street when they got to the pavement obstacle.

The house is empty and its owners never come back to check on it. A landscaper stacked the debris on the pavement instead of hauling it away.

I walk by there every day, sometimes twice a day. Every time I had to leave the pavement to walk in the street I grumbled to myself about thoughtless people who don't think about others. Yet, it never occurred to me that I could do what that couple did — shovel it away. That one small act of kindness made me sit up and take notice and to look for my opportunities to help others.

What I learned is that when we try to do something nice for someone else, we gain as much if not more than they do. That's what happened when my husband and I took someone to dinner for his birthday.

He is alone in this world with no family there to care for him. When we heard he was having a lot of difficulties, we told him we were taking him for a seafood dinner to celebrate his birthday.

He told us our offer made his entire birthday special because he had something to look forward to — something he seldom has.

David and I often go out to dinner but we enjoyed that seafood meal better than any because it made us feel good to do a simple act of kindness.

My friend Linda learned how good it feels to do a simple act of kindness when she donated a Santa suit after reading a newspaper story about a man who wanted to play Santa but couldn't afford to buy a suit on his poverty-level income.

There are some elderly people who have to stop driving and can no longer do the things they enjoy. When one busy mother in our church learned about a housebound woman who longed to get to church, she decided her good deed would be driving the woman each week.

Believe me, it is not a small thing she is doing. The elderly woman uses a walker and carries an oxygen tank with her. It's a slow, laborious process to get the woman from the car into the church.

The good Samaritan who helps her is an example to the rest of us. She lives her religion in a tangible way.

Sometimes acts of kindness are so small we don't give them much thought. When my daughter went to visit her son for parents' weekend at his college, he asked if he could take another student along to dinner. Cam noticed the boy was the only one without visitors. I'm proud of him for thinking of others.

But the college coed who made the biggest impression on me is the 20-year-old young woman who gave up a fun trip with her classmates over fall break. Instead, she opted to spend it with her elderly grandmother, giving the older woman so much joy.

Arthur James Martin summarizes it this way:

You all know at least one person who is poor, sick, lonely, grieving, jobless or hurting.

You're their Samaritan. So what are you waiting for?

The lowdown on gallstones

Q. I'm from an Italian-American family and we seem to have a predisposition for gallstones. Is this something people of my ethnic background get more often?

then stored and concentrated in the gallbladder. The bile is then secreted from the gallbladder into the small intestine where it aids digestion.

You can live without a gallbladder. After it is removed, bile flows out of the liver through ducts into the small intestine. However, because the bile isn't stored in the gallbladder, it flows into the small intestine more frequently.

Bile is made up of fatty substances such as cholesterol. When excessive amounts of fat are present, stones can form. The stones can be as small as a grain of sand or as large as a golf ball. About 90 percent gallstones are composed of cholesterol.

Gallstones can block the normal flow of bile. A blockage can cause inflammation. If the blockage persists, it can damage organs and be fatal.

Symptoms of gallstones often present themselves suddenly. If you have a gallstone "attack," you can suffer pain in the upper abdomen, between the shoulder blades, and under the right shoulder. An attack, which often comes after a fatty meal, can last from a half-hour to several hours.

Other symptoms include nausea, vomiting, indigestion, abdominal bloating, and recurring intolerance of fatty foods.

You should get to a doctor immediately if you have an attack with chills, fever, yellowing of the skin or whites of the eyes, and clay-colored stools.

About 80 percent of people with gallstones have no symptoms. They have what are called "silent stones" that don't need treatment.

Gallstones are usually treated by removing the gallbladder. This surgery is called a "cholecystectomy." In traditional surgery, the gallbladder is removed through an abdominal incision up to eight-inches-long. However, the most common method today employs a laparoscope, a thin tube with a scope on the end of it.

The laparoscope is inserted through a small incision below the navel. The surgeon can see inside with the scope. The other surgical tools are inserted in three other small incisions in your abdomen. The gallbladder is removed through one of these cuts.

Abdominal ultrasound is considered the safest and simplest of the tests for gallstones. Sonar waves from a probe are passed over the abdomen to detect the presence of stones.

JOBS LINEUP

Fresh, new opportunities are here.

Update Your Skills in a Secure Job Industry

The last several years have seen a series of economic ups and downs. Managing careers amid such instability has been challenging for many individuals, but professionals looking for more security can take steps to find careers that promise more long-term stability.

Focusing a job search on industries that have shown strong growth and the ability to ride out waves of economic turmoil can tip the odds in your favor. Certain industries have better long-term employment outlooks than others, and men and women looking for more stability should consider these industries when pondering their next career moves.

Accounting - Thanks to ever-changing financial policies and greater scrutiny placed on lending practices and bookkeeping, accounting jobs remain solid career choices. Jobs in accounting can range from entry-level to more advanced (and more lucrative) positions requiring certification or a secondary education.

Medicine - Financial health does not safeguard people against illness, and health services are needed regardless of the state of the economy. That makes medical careers some of the most coveted and stable around. Healthcare professions can be lucrative, and careers in medicine are not restricted to doctors or nurses. Clinicians, medical imaging personnel and medical laboratory technicians also are needed. The United States Department of Labor lists services for the elderly and persons with disabilities, home healthcare services and other health practitioner positions among the fastest-growing career opportunities.

Computer Systems - Computer systems analysts and programming experts are highly coveted in today's digital world. Many company operations are completely overseen by relatively autonomous computer systems. As technology keeps changing, employees who are able to stay abreast of the changes will only grow more valuable.

Builders - With more money injected into the economy, homes and businesses can once again resume growth. Laborers with skills in construction, masonry and residential building, and structure contractors can count on steady employment.

Environment - Clean-energy and other environmental jobs may currently make up a small percentage of employment, but reports from the Bureau of Labor Statistics indicate jobs in this sector are growing much faster than other fields, including healthcare. Workers ready to get in on the ground level may benefit from opportunities for advancement and the stability of working in a field that figures to grow considerably over the next several decades. Green jobs include work that is primarily involved in the production of green goods and services, such as renewable energy, pollution reduction and recycling. Green jobs also are those that involve education and training related to environmental compliance.

Entering the job market for the first time or reentering it with a new career direction can be intimidating. Focusing education and skills on careers that are proven winners can be the security and confidence boost professionals need.

VIEWS

tiff returns many times, changing and morphing, until he uses it in a more positive major key in the final movement, giving us a sense of hope and fulfillment.

Whenever I think of Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5, however, I don't think of the famous fate motif, but rather the beautiful and haunting French Horn melody that begins the second movement. The music was used in 1939 by André Kostelanetz and his friends, Mack Davis and Mack David, to create the melody for the famous pop song "Moon Love."

For every French Horn player, performing this second movement is one of the scariest, but most glorious moments. They know that they have the opportunity to play beautifully, but every note must be carefully placed, and everyone is listening to every note. If you have played the French Horn before, you know how difficult it is to get each note to come out correctly. It takes great practice and finesse.

The third movement of the Symphony is one of Tchaikovsky's famous waltzes, similar to some of the music he wrote for his "Nutcracker" and "Swan Lake" ballets. The movement is lilting and wistful. Tchaikovsky alternates stately waltz sections with scale-like passages in the strings and woodwinds, finally layering them on top of each other at the end of the movement. The challenge as a conductor is to make sure your tempo stays the same for both sections so that when they are finally played together at the end, the music layers seamlessly.

And, of course, the piece has a grand, exciting finale. One of the early reviewers referred to it as "a horde of demons struggling in a torrent of brandy, the music growing drunker - pandemonium." Of course, everyone loved it. I hear that at the first performance, those in the audience clapped so hard and long that the final movement had to be encoored and played again. Perhaps that will happen with our concerts on Saturday and Sunday with the Allentown Symphony.

A free "Meet the Artist" brown bag lunch with Zeyu Victor Li and Diane Wittry is noon - 1 p.m. Nov 13, Miller Symphony Hall.

Diane Wittry is Music Director and Conductor of the Allentown Symphony Orchestra, Artistic Director (USA), International Cultural Exchange Program for Classical Musicians, Sarajevo Philharmonic, Bosnia, and author, "Beyond the Baton" and "Baton Basics" (both, Oxford University Press).

Tickets: Miller Symphony Hall Box Office, 23 N. Sixth St., Allentown; allentownsymphony.org; 610-432-6715

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the Weisenberg Township Zoning Hearing Board will conduct a public hearing on Wednesday, November 11, 2015, starting at 7:30 P.M. in the Township Municipal Building at 2175 Seipstown Road, Fogelsville, PA. The Zoning Hearing Board will consider the following Appeal:

Case No. 2015-3, Appeal No. 290. A hearing in the Appeal of David B. Rothrock of 1645 Kecks Road, Breinigsville, PA 18031, owner of the property located at 1645 Kecks Road, Breinigsville, PA 18031 is seeking a variance from Section 1214.06 of the Weisenberg Township Zoning Ordinance, which requires an accessory structure to not exceed 20 feet in height, for which Applicant is requesting a variance from said Section to build/raise a three (3) level barn, which requires a variance from said Section 1214.06 of the zoning ordinance.
The parcel identified for the Owner as 1645 Kecks Road, Breinigsville, PA 18031 identified as Pin #543595699733 1 (Instrument No. 2013041034). The Applicant seeks the following zoning variance (as from the provisions of the Weisenberg Township Zoning Ordinance) for the construction of a barn in excess of the Zoning Ordinance Section 1214.06 maximum building height shall not exceed 20 feet.
Section 1214.06 requires accessory structure to not exceed 20 feet in height

The above-referenced property is located in Weisenberg Township, Lehigh County, PA. Copies of the Appeal Application, plans and supporting documents filed with the Appeal Application, are available for public inspection at the Township Municipal Building during regular business hours. All interested parties are invited to attend and be heard.

TOWNSHIP OF WHITEHALL
ZONING HEARING BOARD PUBLIC HEARING

The regular monthly meeting of the Whitehall Township Zoning Hearing Board will be held on November 17, 2015, at 7:00 p.m., in the Public Meeting Room of the Municipal Building, at 3219 MacArthur Road, Whitehall, PA 18052, to hear the following appeal:

DOCKET # 1823 - Whitehall Township - 3219 MacArthur Road, Whitehall, PA 18052. Location: 5101 Beekmantown Road, Whitehall, PA 18052, PIN 548997529774, 549906586088, and 549906489354, the subject property is located in an OS2 Open Space/Limited Industrial Zoning District. Applicant is requesting the variances to Sec. 27-100 and Sec. 27-114 of the Zoning Ordinance regarding frontage on public street and steep slopes be revoked. In the alternative, that the use of only clean fill and not other types of fill or waste be imposed as a reasonable condition of the variances, or an interpretation that the variances were granted based upon the use of clean fill and not other types of fill or waste. Continued to this meeting for the taking of additional testimony, the consideration of written Briefs, and Argument.

Copies of plans, applications and supporting documents are available for public inspection at the Township Municipal Building.
The decisions of the Township of Whitehall Zoning Hearing Board are made without regard to race, color, national origin, familial status and disability status of the Applicant.

The Whitehall Township Municipal Building is accessible to the physically handicapped. Any person that requires special assistance to understand the nature of the business conducted at the above meeting because of visual, hearing or other impairment, is requested to contact Melissa A. Wehr, Zoning Officer, at least five (5) days prior to the scheduled meeting to arrange for the necessary assistance.

Applicants, and all interested parties MUST appear at this hearing to be considered.
MELISSA A. WEHR, Zoning Officer
