Two Local Sailors
At Philadelphia Yard
Learning Ship Repair

MAR 21 1945

More than 1,000 officers and men of the Navy's Ship Repair Unit Program, most of whom were skilled tradesmen in civilian life, are receiving special instruction at the Philadelphia Navy Yard in how to get a damaged ship back into fighting trim as quickly as possible.

Included in this group are Stephen Andrew Yuhasz, Moulder 2/C from 1173 East Fourth Street, and Robert Roderick Owens, Motor Machinist's Mate 1/C, 619 Elmhurst Avenue.

In the Navy since December, 1943, Petty Officer Yuhasz is a former employe of the Bethlehem Steel Company. Petty Officer Owens joined the Navy in January, 1944 when employed by the Quaker City Motor Parts Company rebuilding internal combustion engines.

In their present duties at the Philadelphia Navy Yard they are putting to the best advantage their civilian experience. After they complete their training they will be assigned to advance base repair facilities or to repair ships.
