

Smoyer, Walter

Victim of Plane Crash Reported In "Fair" Condition

DEC 5 1945
Pfc. Walter Smoyer, husband of Mildred Smoyer, 1414 Cortland Street, who is confined to Coos Bay General Hospital, at Coos Bay, Oregon, following a plane crash, was described last night by Army officials as in "fair" condition.

Pfc. Smoyer, who was found by Oregon woodsmen after he parachuted to earth from a stricken Army transport plane just before it crashed on Monday, November 26, was at first described as in a serious condition as result of exposure for several days in the heavy Oregon woodland.

Twelve men were in the Army transport when it encountered trouble. All have been accounted for except one, whose name has not been released by the Army.
