Lady Mountbatten Comforts Wounded Bethlehem Marine

Visiting the wounded in a U. S. Navy Hospital at Londonderry, northern Ireland, Lady Mountbatten, chief of the St. John ambulance brigade and wife of the British Comamndo leader, chats with Private First Class Joe Domiter, U. S. M. C., of Bethlehem. Well known to a legion of friends in Bethlehem, Pfc. Domiter was a member of the Boys Club of Bethlehem for a number of years, and during his association was affiliated with the tumbling and boxing teams. Following his training in this country, he was sent with one of the contingents to Ireland, and for the past several months has been engaged in boxing, winning laurels for his company. It was not known here that he had yet been in action. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Domiter, he made his home with his brother, Charles, at 1003 East Fourth Street. He has been in the country's service for more than a year. He was graduated from Bethlehem Technical High School.
