Gov. Wolf stops at 2 area schools

Discusses impacts of funding during 'Schools That Teach' roundtables

By Nathaniel Jastrzemski
njastrzemski@tnonline.com

During what was surely a long day on the road, Gov. Tom Wolf made a pair of Lehigh Valley stops May 8 to stump for his hefty education plan and hear out the concerns of local school administrators.

His visits were part of his "Schools That Teach" tour.

In the morning, Wolf and his entourage made a stop at Hazle Township Early Learning Center in Hazle Township, where they spoke with educators about the impact of funding in schools.

His afternoon detour to Governor Wolf Elementary School in Bethlehem was nearly a forgone conclusion.

Pa. Gov. Tom Wolf walks into Governor Wolf ES's library, greeting teachers and administrators.

As students were readying for the weekend and parking became scarce, he apologized, saying, "I understand how disruptive something like this is, but you have to forgive me for wanting to come and see Governor Wolf ES."

Wolf said his mother was a teacher and he has great sympathy for what goes on in public schools.

He implied several times what he's looking for right now is support for his plans for improving the state's education system.

"We have to recognize that mass public education is fundamental to a healthy, free society. As such, it's a practical, bipartisan investment. You have to invest in it ... and investment will see returns.

"Pennsylvania ranks near the bottom in the country in state funding for K through 12 education and my proposed budget makes historic investments at all levels - early childhood education through higher education," said Wolf. "After years of funding cuts that resulted in the loss of educators, increased class sizes, and cuts to valuable programs, I want to ensure that the new funding in my budget reaches the classroom and directly impacts student achievement."

"Focusing on education will allow us to lay the foundation for long-term economic growth."

He also said it must be understood by all 13 million Pennsylvanians that his administration is "for real on tax relief."

Wolf did not delve into his proposed education plan, which sees a $400 million increase over last year. But of that, about $120 million is set for early education, and Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy made certain the governor knew of the upcoming universal full-day kindergarten in the district.

Gov. Tom Wolf listens as school Principal Dr. Jodi Frankelli explains how teachers and administrators work together to make the most of resources for both students and educators.

Roy, School Board President Michael Faccinnetto and Curriculum Superintendent Dr. Jack Silva explained that cuts have mostly harmed after-school programs in the city, but embracing the neighborhood school model, in which community partnerships with parents, employers and colleges maintains options and flexibility, has kept the district afloat.

Wolf sounded pleased with what he heard, saying that even as a parent in York County he sometimes points to the Bethlehem Area School District as an example.

He said if his proposed budget passes, the $4.5 million coming to the city will be well invested.

In March, Department of Education Acting Secretary Pedro Rivera sent a letter to superintendents in all 500 districts detailing accountability measures to ensure the education funding proposed in Governor Wolf's 2015-16 budget is spent directly on students in the classroom to allow them to compete in a modern economy.

In the letter, Rivera called on districts to submit plans to ensure this new investment reaches the classroom and to measure results for Pennsylvania's students.

NMIH hires new director

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

At this time last year, the National Museum of Industrial History was on life support. Despite the infusion of $17-19 million in both public and private funds, the museum was no closer to opening than it had been 17 years before, when it was first formed. A Northampton County investigating grand jury had cast a glaring spotlight on a pattern of mismanagement, conflicts of interest and excessive salaries at the Steel Museum on Bethlehem's Southside.

But after a year that saw the departure of CEO Stephen Donches (no relation to Bethlehem Mayor Bob Donchez), construction is finally under way at the museum, located at Bethlehem Steel's former electrical repair shop on East Second Street. On May 5, standing in front of a 115-ton steam engine that once pumped 8 million gallons of water daily for the citizens of York, museum Chair L. Charles Marcon announced that the museum finally has an executive director.

Amy Hollander was selected out of a field of 34 initial applicants because of her strong museum background, commitment to education and understanding of nonprofit organizations.

She'll be paid $90,000 a year, said Marcon. She will also get a benefits package that is "adequate, but not generous." This pales in comparison to the $203,000 salary and benefits paid to Donches in 2011.

Hollander has 20 years of experience in the museum and nonprofit sector. This includes AJC New Jersey,

The Red Hill Museum Village and Readington Museum. She resides in Finesville, N.J., about a 25-minute commute. She is a Vassar graduate with a master's in historical preservation from the University of Pennsylvania.

She wasted no time describing the 1914 Corliss steam engine behind her, explaining that this massive lifeline to York was so large it arrived in nine pieces.

"My vision for the museum is to develop a premier educational experience that tells the story of America's industrial achievements and the accomplishments of the workers, innovators and entrepreneurs who built our great nation," she said. "This is a story that needs to be told here, amidst the artifacts and architecture of Bethlehem Steel, to connect future generations to America's and the Lehigh Valley's industrial roots."

The museum, with a staff of 10 part-time and full-time workers, will have an annual budget of $1,050,000. Its board hopes to raise about $300,000 per year with $10-$12 tickets for 50,000 visitors a year. Sponsors and members will be sought, and Hollander hopes to employ a development director within the next three months.

According to Marcon, the museum has enough capital to finish construction ($6.5 million) and install exhibits ($1.5 million).

Part of the funding for this project comes from a $3.1 million state grant. The museum will also use funding from the city's TIF to pay for improvements outside.

The museum will be open for business by the middle of next year, according to Marcon.

Council reviews negotiations

Police Chief Mark DiLuzio briefed Bethlehem City Council members at their May 5 meeting on the six-hour standoff on Snapper Drive last week.

The chief said a 37-year-old male wanted to commit "suicide by cop." There were no injuries, DiLuzio said, and the man was arrested and is in the Lehigh County Prison hospital ward.

It was a rather noisy time with bullhorn communication, he added. "Some residents didn't sleep all night.

Most were thankful in the morning." Council President J. William Reynolds thanked the police for dealing with "a stressful situation."

Contract negotiations

Council members also heard from Business Manager David Brong regarding contract negotiations with police and firefighters.

The city's police union ratified a three-year contract proposal with the city last week, Brong said. Council members did discuss details of that contract at the council meeting.

Brong said the fire union voted down the city's first contract proposal in the beginning of April. After clarifying some matters, See COUNCIL on Page A6

LEHIGH COUNTY: Commissioner

By MARK RECCEK
Special to The Press

Nine candidates will be going tooth and nail for four open seats on the Lehigh County Board of Commissioners in the May 19 primary election.

The county board of commissioners Democratic race is uncontested. The candidates running for the four open seats are Hillary Smith, of Lower Macungie Township; Bob Martin, of Upper Macungie Township; Dan Hartzell, of South Whitehall Township and Joanne Jackson, of Upper Saucon Township.

The Republican candidates include Dean N. Browning, of South Whitehall Township; Amanda Holt, of Upper Macungie Township; Victor Mazziotti, of Allentown; Marty Nothstein, of Lowhill Township and Brad Osborne, of South Whitehall Township.

The Press recently asked the Republican candidates the question: "What makes you uniquely qualified for this position?"

Responses appear below.

Dean Browning

The current commissioners have not passed a balanced budget since they have been in office. We need to truly balance the budget and eliminate the deficit. I have proposed a Balanced Budget Amendment for the county to address the first issue. I have over 35 years of private sector business that gives me the knowledge to identify the real spending reforms needed at the county and the experience to implement those changes. I will responsibly reduce spending and never let expenses grow faster than revenue.

Amanda Holt

My commitment to working for the public good was demonstrated through my pursuit of impartial redistricting solutions, which won relief for approximately 2 million Pennsylvanians. Since my appointment to the board of commissioners in July 2014, I've brought this same out-of-the-box thinking to find common ground and solutions that will enhance services, while moving the county budget back into alignment. I have invested hundreds of hours, both in visiting the various county departments to learn firsthand how the county operates, as well as working to ensure the county spends money responsibly, while serving the public good with excellence and integrity.

Victor Mazziotti

Just like the average taxpayer, Lehigh County must find ways to do "more with less." I ran for office in 2011 in response to a 16 percent tax increase. I have been fighting to reduce taxes, while maintaining needed county services. In the last three years the county commissioners have reduced the county tax rate twice, without reducing county services. If re-elected, I will continue to fight for a cost-effective Lehigh County government. My education (bachelor of science in accounting, master of public administration), prior work experience (chief financial officer in three government organizations) and proven track record as a county commissioner for the past three plus years, qualifies me to serve the residents of Lehigh County as a county commissioner.

Marty Nothstein

I am excited to be part of a team with three current county commissioners who have been able to continue providing exceptional county services while, at the same time, decreasing taxes. The support and resources I received within Lehigh County were important to my career as a cyclist, and I hope to give back to our community as their representative. I worked hard to achieve my dream of an Olympic gold medal and promise to bring the same dedication to the board of commissioners.

Brad Osborne

I have been a Lehigh County resident and active community member for over 28 years. During this time, I was the sole proprietor of a small business providing service to Fortune 500 oil companies and am currently the plant manager for a chemical manufacturer providing unique chemicals to the worldwide paints and coating industry.

In these roles, I developed and managed within the confines of a budget and led organizations to achieve results by exploring practices and challenging ourselves to improve faster than our competition. I bring a similar analytical and results-oriented approach to local government as a county commissioner.

Brong said, the union was scheduled to vote again on the modified proposal May 5. If no agreement could be reached, the next step would be arbitration, he added.

Reynolds gave credit to the administration and police union for working out an agreement. "I hope that the same kind of agreement can be reached" with the fire union, he said, adding that several members of council are union members. "We know not everybody walks away from these discussions happy," Reynolds said.

911 update

Mayor Robert Donchez told council members the state House of Representatives passed new funding legislation "by a wide margin." The legislation does not include state funding for 911 centers in Bethlehem and Allentown, the only two cities in the state that have them.

Donchez said he hopes that when legislation is discussed in the senate, senators Lisa Boscola and Pat Browne will be able to promote a compromise to preserve state 911 funding for Bethlehem and Allentown.

Reynolds asked when the new funding formula for 911 would take effect. Donchez said the issue is not determined yet but should be resolved by the end of June. It is not clear whether the transition time would be one year, two years or three years, the mayor added.

Bethlehem, Allentown and Northampton and Lehigh counties were planning to jointly fund a $50,000 study on consolidating the municipalities' 911 systems. Donchez said the study would be useless if the state mandates Bethlehem to go with a county system. Chief DiLuzio added, "We are doing our own internal study" by mid June to determine the cost of a city system versus participating in a county 911 system. Council Member Michael Recchiuti, who chairs the Finance Committee, noted the city's 911 center costs are about $3.4 million this year. He said $2.1 million is provided by the city and the additional $1.3 million is from the state budget, although the current legislation would take that funding away.

"We're going to have a hole in our budget," Recchiuti said. "We have to plan."

The city 911 center also provides services a county system does not, such as monitoring cameras.

Reynolds, on behalf of the council, commended the current 911 center services. "One thing everyone in this room agrees is the level of service our 911 provides," Reynolds said.

Park parking fines

In other business, council members unanimously approved new parking fines in Saucon Park. Violators will face parking fines of $30. Fines increase to $45 after 14 days and to $65 after a citation is issued.

Chief DiLuzio said the new fines will help pay for extra police coverage in the park during busy summer months. There will be two or three weekends where warnings will be issued and people notified of the new parking regulations. "After that will come enforcement," DiLuzio said.

Council members also noted that the purchasing department is developing new processes to increase efficiency. Council member Louis Stellato said he has been working with the purchasing department.

"I want to thank them for the way they do business," Stellato said. The changes are very beneficial, he added. "Good things are going to happen. It's a cultural change."

In addition, council rescheduled the May 19 meeting to May 20 at 7 p.m. due to the primary election.

During the public comment portion of the meeting, Clint Walker of 123 East Church St. encouraged candidates for city council post on their websites their views on the proposed zoning change to permit businesses on Market Street.

"This city is a beauty. It's unique, we want to keep it that way," Walker said.

NorCo Gaming Board awards $1.66 M grants

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Northampton County's nine-member gaming board, which annually doles out the slots revenue generated by the Sands Casino, is basically finished for the year. At their April 27 meeting, they awarded $1.66 million in what are referred to as impact grants to Northampton County, Bethlehem and the five communities surrounding Bethlehem. Since this exhausts all the revenue anticipated this year, there will be no funds available this year for other communities seeking grants.

Bethlehem is getting nearly half of this money. This includes $400,000 for a $1.2

million 95-foot aerial bucket truck, and $130,000 to re-chassis an aging 2007 ambulance. Those grants were approved unanimously, but a $250,000 grant sought for improvements to the South Bethlehem greenway very nearly failed for lack of a second to Joe Kelly's motion for approval. At the last moment, Dave Willard seconded

Kelly's motion for the "sake of discussion."

Kelly argued that the greenway is one of the rare projects that rewards a positive impact of gaming. It provides a means of access for casino employees who walk to work, as well as patrons. The reason for the high cost, explained Kelly, is that the connection to Hobart Avenue must be ADA accessible.

In response to questions from several board members, Bethlehem DCED Director Alicia Karner advised that 15 percent of the casino workforce live in South Bethlehem, and these improvements will help them commute on foot.

That was enough to persuade the gaming board, who voted in favor of the grant by a 7-2 vote, with only Tony Pristash and Gerald Yob opposed.

After all grants were awarded, John Dally urged fellow board members to come up with a way to differentiate between impact caused by the casino and impact caused by other things. "If we're here to determine impact by the casino, we have to come up with a way to determine impact of other venues that are there," he reasoned.

The board also voted to set limits on grants for commonly requested items, like police interceptors, adjusted to the consumer price index.

The other grants awarded are as follows:

Bethlehem Township - Two police vehicles ($101,528),

Dave Heintzelman is a local funeral director who volunteers his time to Northampton County, like his fellow board members.

15 new defibrillators ($23,514) and replacement of a 2007 ambulance ($120,200).

Freemansburg - $102,988 for an enhancement to operational technology.

Hanover Township - $50,601 for a Chevy Tahoe to be driven by one of the Township's three emergency management professionals, as well as software for accident reconstruction.

Hellertown - $207,034 for two police officers.

Lower Saucon Township - A police officer ($101,897) and police cruiser ($30,294).

Northampton County - $143,765 to Northampton County Drug and Alcohol for gambling addiction treatment and support services.

The Gaming Board is made up of nine members: Joe Kelly (Bethlehem), Tom Nolan (Bethlehem Township), Gerald Yob (Freemansburg), Jay Finnigan (Hanover, Chair), Dave Heintzelman (Hellertown), Dave Willard (Lower Saucon), Tony Pristash (Northampton), John Dally (Pen Argyl) and James Pennington (Lower Nazareth).

Freedom wins team title

For the first time in school history, Freedom High School's boys tennis team were crowned district champions after defeating Parkland 3-1 at the District XI Class AAA Team Tennis Championships on Saturday at Winning Touch in Allentown.

Freedom's number three singles player, Ross Sonnenblick, said, "It's unbelievably awesome. I'd love to say we acted in a more dignified fashion, but yes, we were just screeching and jumping."

The Patriots swept the Trojans in all singles matches.

"Parkland has an unparalleled degree of prestige, a Goliath sort of team. We were believing and seeing past their credentials, and if we could execute, we could beat them," said Sonnenblick.

Freedom's doubles team of Ronak Desai and Jack Fried lost to Anesh Kapoor and Alex Wu 7-6 (7-5), 6-1.

Matt Connors and Jon Fiorentino, also playing doubles for the Patriots, won the first set of their match against Kishan Unjia and Nick Hawk in a tiebreaker, but did not finish the match because the district title had already been won.

Victoria Schmidt pitched a shutout and drove in all three runs in the Hurricanes victory over Becahi Monday afternoon to open the EPC playoffs.

Being the batter with two outs and the bases loaded can be a blessing or a curse, but for Liberty pitcher, Victoria Schmidt, it was a blessing as her three-run double proved to be the game winner over Bethlehem Catholic in an EPC softball playoff game on Monday at Liberty.

"It was amazing. I just wanted to run and get those girls home," Schmidt said. "I could finally breathe."

Still scoreless in the bottom of the sixth inning, Liberty outfielder, Skilee Diaz, singled.

"I was under a lot of pressure for sure, but I got up and did what I had to do," Diaz said.

Reyna DeJesus followed up with a hit, and Diaz got to third.

"I was telling myself I just need to get a hit and not let my nerves get to me," said DeJesus.

Liberty catcher, Precious Torres walked, and the bases were loaded with Hurricanes when Schmidt hit a two-out double between left and center field.

DeJesus said, "I was sprinting from second. I saw it go over my head, and I kept running."

Liberty coach Sam Carrodo had been feeling the pressure, realizing the Hurricanes' first base runner didn't even get on until the sixth inning, but right before that, Carrodo lightened up.

"After the fifth inning, I said, let's have fun. I put Jess [Watts] in the huddle because she likes to joke around, and then I could see them all just

Aminu wins three golds

By KATIE MCDONALD

Liberty High School sprinter, Jaylyn Aminu, clinched three gold medals at the EPC/Colonial League Track and Field Championships last Wednesday at Whitehall High School.

The Hurricane sophomore took first place in the 100 meter dash, the 200 meter dash, and the 4x1 relay.

"Overall, I knew I was winning, but I still needed to run my hardest," Aminu said.

The 4x1 relay, consisting of Rachel Finn,

Aminu, Kaylin West, and Grace Mittl, came in ahead of Bethlehem Catholic, who placed third.

Finn said, "At the Allen Invitational, we didn't do as well as we'd liked, so we were all really nervous because we know we're capable of doing well. We're so excited, just because it's a huge surprise."

Becahi's relay team was comprised of Dana Neupauer, Nicole Lacherza, Katie Altpeter, and Allie Hontz.

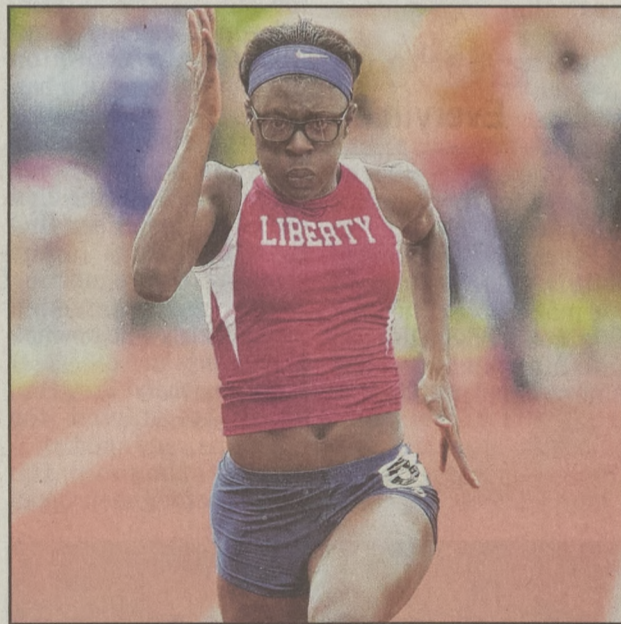

Lacherza said, "We're just really excited because going in, we didn't know what to expect."

Becahi also medaled in the 4x4 relay, placing third, and Tessa Zamolyi took third place in the javelin.

Hurricane sophomore, Jazmyn Aminu, won gold in the discus and silver in the shot put. Jackie Arthur took fourth in the shot put and second in the javelin. West placed third in the triple jump and fourth in the long jump. Finn placed second in the pole vault, and Karli Collins was third.

Rashana Tomkins placed third in the 100 hurdles, and Olivia Sahaydak was third in the 1600

By KATIE MCDONALD

Having one's priorities straight often brings its own reward, but a silver medal for Freedom distance runner, Will Alpaugh, at the EPC-Colonial League Track and Field Championships last Wednesday may have been the unexpected bonus, not for lack of talent, but for circumstances that were beyond his control.

Alpaugh was scheduled to take an AP Physics exam on Wednesday, which would end for him at 3:30 p.m. at best, giving the Patriot junior barely enough time to get to Whitehall for the 1600 meter run, scheduled for 3:50-4 p.m.

What Alpaugh didn't know was that, while he was taking the exam, the meet was delayed 15 minutes due to a timing/scoring issue during the Colonial League girls hurdles final.

When Alpaugh arrived at Whitehall with the delay in his favor but no more time to spare, teammate, Shaina Palmer, hustled him to the track.

Palmer said, "The whole time, I knew this was happening for Will.

I told him, "This is yours. Go kill it."

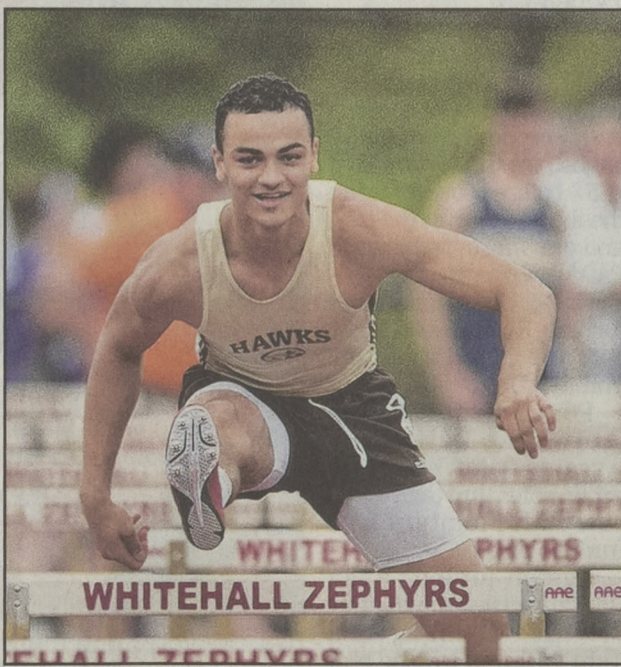

Alpaugh barely got his shoes on while the other distance runners warmed up.

"I had no time to mentally prepare. Shaina kept saying everything happens for a reason," said Alpaugh.

Alpaugh took his place on the track, and in the middle of the pack at first, Alpaugh's main goal was to get a good spot in the last 400 meters and stay in the second lane.

"It was really sloppy in the middle, and some

LACROSSE LHS earns a district berth

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Liberty's boys' lacrosse team is making their first appearance in the District 11 3A postseason this week and the Hurricanes couldn't be more excited about it.

Despite coming in as the eighth-seed and taking on top-seeded Easton at 4 p.m. Thursday, the Hurricanes enter with a sense of hope on the opening day of the district tournament.

"I think the kids are looking forward to playing a district game," said head coach Joe Sexton. "It's a new game on Thursday and the kids are excited about it."

Liberty got its first dose of postseason action last week in the East Penn Conference semifinals, losing to Easton 17-3. It was their second thumping at the hands of the Rovers and one that Sexton admitted, was "difficult to get our kids up" for the game, knowing Easton's talent level beforehand.

"We knew Easton was going to be tough and we're dealing with some injuries too, which doesn't help," Sexton said. "I think our guys can look at this week as a clean slate and that kind of breathes new life into us."

Easton (16-2) won the East Penn Conference championship Monday night over Parkland 8-6 to capture the top-seed in the district playoffs, which Sexton originally believed he would have had his team playing Southern Lehigh on Thursday.

Liberty (6-12) has sneaked into the postseason, thanks to their 5-5 EPC mark, which guarantees teams a shot at the playoffs because of their .500 mark in the league.

The 'Canes are hoping to have Tom Murphy, their leading scorer on the season with 25 goals, ready for action on Thursday, as he's one of several players dealing with injuries this week.

Sexton doesn't know the availability of his wounded warriors yet, but hopes his team can accomplish one of the goals he set forth for them earlier this season.

"One thing I wanted to do this year was to have one major upset," he said. "We don't have that yet and this would be a good time to check that off."

Liberty advances

Pates fall to Easton

By CHUCK HIXSON
Special to the Press

If at first, you don't succeed, try, try again.

That's the approach that Mike Mittl took against Emmaus on Monday and it worked beautifully.

Mittl's sixth inning double drove in the first run of the game and put him in scoring position to induce a Hurricanes rally that led Liberty to a 3-2 win over Emmaus in the EPC quarterfinals. Mittl had struck out in his first two at-bats before delivering the big hit for the Hurricanes.

"I just stayed confident. He struck me out the first two times on those darn sliders. He threw me a 3-1 slider and a 3-2 slider that I fouled off, but then he came back with it again and I drove it down the third base line," explained Mittl about his key at-bat.

Liberty, the number-three seed in the tournament, looked to be in pretty good shape after their three-run outburst broke things open in the bottom of the sixth, but Emmaus wasn't quite done.

The Hornets tallied two runs off starter Alexis Calderon in the top of the seventh, keeping him from throwing a complete game. Elias Gross took over on the mound, and hit a batter and gave up the hit that drove in the Hornets two runs, but in the end, he was able to get the final out of the game, sending the Hurricanes to the semifinals and a meeting with second-seeded Stroudsburg, who downed Northampton 6-0.

Calderon and Trey Hinkle, who started for Emmaus, engaged in a battle throughout the game, keeping their opponents off the board. Calderon allowed just three hits until the top of the seventh and Hinkle allowed just three hits through five innings.

Emmaus didn't help themselves defensively in the bottom of the sixth.

After Mittl's double that drove home Mike Perrault, Hinkle uncorked a wild pitch that moved Mittl to third. One out later, Sam Kraihanzel singled to drive home Mittl, putting Liberty up 2-0. An error on a pick-off throw put a runner on second and David Guarriello then hit an easy ground ball to short that looked like it would end the inning, but the throw from Eric Cichocki was wide, allowing the Hurricanes to add an insurance run, which they wound up needing.

Calderon flirted with danger throughout the game, but always either came up with a big pitch to kill a rally or watched as his defense made big plays behind him to bail him out of danger.

One such play came in the top of the fourth when Emmaus put runners on first and second with two outs. A short fly to center looked like it might drop, but Mittl dashed in to make a sliding catch before colliding with shortstop Elias Gross, who also attempted to make the play. Both players came out of the collision in decent shape, with Gross taking the worse part of the damage and Mittl hanging on to the ball to end the inning.

"We have played great defense all season. Our shortstop today [Mittl] just played an outstanding game defensively and had the big hit offensively to help us out. Our defense was just exceptional," said Liberty coach Andy Pitsilos.

A one-out single from Teddy Tucker kept Emmaus alive in the seventh. Calderon came up with a big strikeout to record the second out of the inning, but then walked leadoff hitter George Smith.

At that point, Pitsilos lifted Calderon in favor of Gross, who threw a wild pitch and hit a batter to load the bases. Joel Bartoni then delivered a two-run double to cut the lead to 3-2, but Gross held on to get cleanup hitter Lucas Wieder to ground softly to first to end the game.

Stroudsburg will provide some tough competition for Liberty. The Mounties, who boast potential first-round draft pick Mike Nikorak as their ace, also have a potent offensive attack. After losing in extra innings to Emmaus a month ago, Stroudsburg has clicked off 15 straight wins on their way to the EPC Playoffs. That game was played Tuesday at Hackett's Park in Easton.

"You're going to see tough teams, that's what the playoffs are all about," said Pitsilos. "These are all tough games and you have to play good ball, make plays and be smart if you're going to win."

Freedom

The Pates tried to take control of their opening round EPC playoff game against Easton twice in the early stages, but the Rovers always had an answer in the eventual 12-5 victory.

The Pates took a 2-0 lead in the first only to see Easton tie it in the bottom half. Then in the second, Freedom went up 5-2 only to see the Rovers tie it at 5-5 before scoring two in the fourth, four in the fifth and one more in the sixth for the win.

Casey Brown homered for the Rovers and Trey Durrah added a double and four RBIs.

For Freedom, Tom Czerwinski, Mario McIntyre and John Yocum all hit doubles and drove in a run with McIntyre having two RBIs.

Easton pitcher Ryan Bonfati settled down after the first two innings and didn't allow a hit the rest of the way to pick up the victory, striking out four and walking two.

DISTRICT 11 VOLLEYBALL Emmaus handles LHS in EPC semis

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Emmaus volleyball coach Ken Dunkle wanted to see more energy from his team during Monday night's East Penn Conference semifinals against Liberty.

The Hornets had their moments of energy lapse but took care of business, defeating Liberty in four games (25-11, 25-20, 21-25, 25-20) to move on to Wednesday's finals against top-seeded Parkland, who had little trouble dismantling Northampton with a three-game sweep (25-17, 25-17, 25-9) in Monday's nightcap.

After jumping out to a 10-0 lead in the first game, Emmaus (14-1) remained largely in control to set up another bout for a trophy against their suburban rivals.

"We really wanted to focus on energy because we beat them [Liberty] twice already this year," Dunkle said. "I thought we did that for the most part. We had a couple lulls in there. We got our heads down a little bit at times, but we fought through it."

Emmaus experienced one of those lulls in the third game as they were looking for the sweep, rattling off six straight points to take a 16-13 lead.

However, Liberty (10-

5) was able to come back from that and steal the game to force a fourth set.

Emmaus came back strong in the final set and punched their ticket to Wednesday's 7 p.m. showdown with the Trojans at Memorial Gymnasium.

"They're a tough team and well-rounded," Dunkle said of the Trojans. "They got good hitters, good setters, so it's a little harder to get them out of their system."

"Energy is going to be key again because we didn't have a lot of fight until the second set when we played them in the regular season."

Pat Bryan had 11 kills for the Hornets, while Ethan Maurer added 10 kills. Liberty's Logan Priestas led the way for the Hurricanes with eight kills.

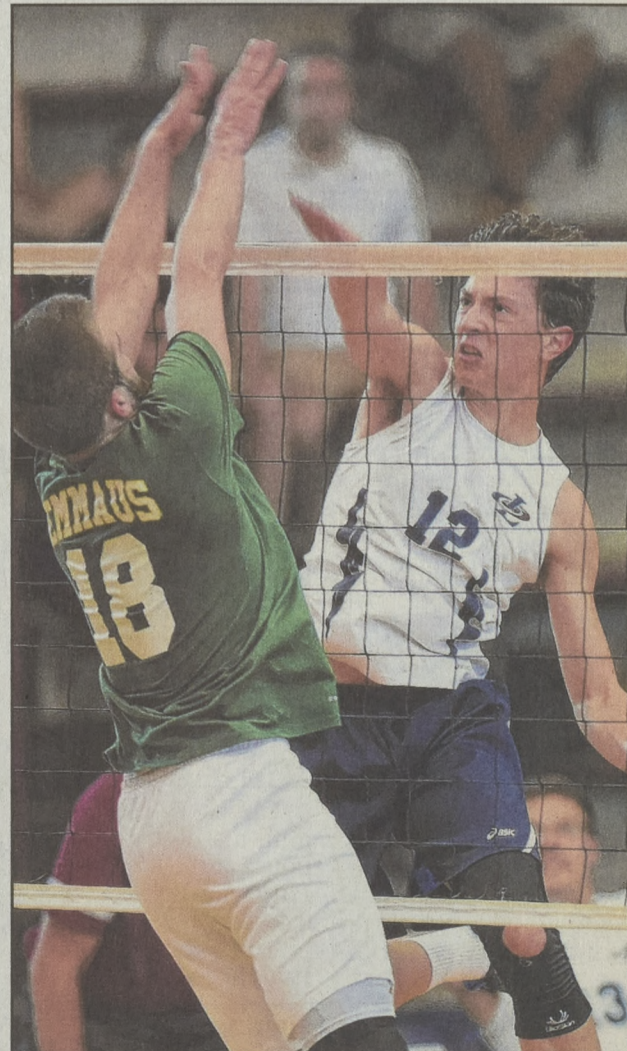

The Hurricanes now shift their focus to Thursday's opening round of the District 11 3A tournament, where they square up against Nazareth in the four-five matchup.

"The next step is for us to learn what we can from this loss and from teams like Parkland by watching them," said Liberty head coach Neiad Ammary. "Everybody respects us, but nobody expects us to run the table. We really have nothing to lose."

other Freedom players.
"For example, when I was down 4-3, the doubles teams were making comebacks, and that knowledge reinvigorated me," Sonnenblick said. "Having the assurance they were putting up fights lifted a weight off our shoulders."
The district final was the second match played by Freedom's number one singles player, Sinai, since suffering a concussion at the EPC Tournament.
"It was a total bummer, but it was only a couple matches," Sinai said.

Sinai's first match back from injury was last week when the Patriots defeated Stroudsburg in the district semifinal 4-1.
The Patriots swept the Mountaineers in singles with Sinai winning 6-0, 6-0, Bodeo-Lomicky winning 6-0, 6-3, and Sonnenblick winning 6-0, 6-0.
It was in doubles that the matches were the most challenging with Connors and Fiorentino falling 0-6, 6-7 (1-7), and in the last completed match of the day, all eyes were on Fried and Desai who won 6-4, 7-5.
"At some points, it gets a bit much, but in the last game, we were on a roll, and it energized us," said Desai.

Fried, however, has come to love the attention.
"In the beginning of the second set, we hit a rough patch, and they were ahead. It took awhile to get back even with them. It took us a little time to hit around them," Fried said. "They had intense net play, so we brought it to them."
The Freedom Patriots will have played their first match in the PIAA State Team Tennis Tournament on Tuesday, past Press deadlines, against Council Rock North at Winning Touch.

Alpaugh picked off two other runners before beating out Emmaus's Ryan Paradise for second place with a time of 4:23.57. Easton's Colin Abert, the expected winner, took first place in 4:14.56.
"I'm still kind of shocked. I didn't have time to think about it," said Alpaugh, who set a personal record in the 1600 by nine seconds or so.
Palmer wasn't shocked at all.
"I knew he could do it. Once he's in that, he always comes through. I said, 'I told you. This happened for you,'" Palmer said.
Alpaugh medaled in the 3200 meter run, placing fourth.

It was also around that time that Liberty assistant, Katie Buskirk, told the girls to choke up on their bats to get more control.
Once Liberty got their speed on the bases, even Carrodo started to relax.
For Schmidt, the winning pitcher, it was all about the Hurricane defense.
"I felt really good today, but our defense did amazing. I couldn't have done it without them," she said.

Liberty, the number two seed in the EPC tournament, will have taken on Northampton this Tuesday at Liberty, past Press deadlines.

Easton's Maddie McConnell drove in the winning run in the third inning and finished the day 2-for-3.

FHS tops LHS to end season

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Freedom High School softball coach Nora Borgner had a good feeling leading up to the Patriots game against Liberty last Tuesday, despite their loss to the Hurricanes a couple of weeks prior.
"In the past, we've been in situations that were hard to watch, but now I have faith in these girls, and I know they can do awesome stuff," Borgner said.
Some of that awesome stuff included two doubles and strong defense when it mattered the most, leading to a 2-1 Patriot victory over the Hurricanes.
Freedom's Hunter Schantz had an RBI double in the bottom of the third inning, scoring Brenda Reninga, and in the bottom of the fifth, Shay Peterson hit a double down the third base line. Dana Pollock, who had singled before Peterson, scored on a fielder's choice.

"It was an important at bat, and I knew we had to get another run," said Peterson.
Liberty's only run came in the top of the sixth inning when Reyna DeJesus hit a home run, but the Hurricanes did not stop trying, so with one out and a runner on first base, Borgner approached the mound.
"I wanted them to relax and get control, and to get the defense to feel a little better about themselves. I had all the faith in the world that they could get themselves out of a jam," said Borgner.
Peterson responded with a ground out and a huge strikeout.
"It was a curve, and it kind of rose a little," she said.
In the top of the seventh, Liberty's Michaela Brunnaben singled, Tori Kaleyck had a bunt single, and both advanced on a passed ball. Another bunt attempt was caught by Reninga.

"I could tell when the bunt was coming and that it was higher up," Reninga said.
With two runners on base and DeJesus coming up to bat, this time Freedom pitching coach Tara McGoff talked to Peterson.
"We didn't want to let her beat us. We wanted to create a force at every base," said McGoff.
DeJesus was walked, and Freedom second baseman Alexis Szaro caught a pop-up to end the game.
"I knew she was going to hit to the right side, and I prepared for that," Szaro said.
The Patriots home victory happened to coincide with senior night.
Borgner said, "The girls were confident and focused and excited for their seniors. I expect this from us, these types of games with us coming out on top."

Mercy At The Bank

Charlene, the only Christian at the bank where she worked, was praying for her co-workers. Then, a co-worker in charge of the vault accused Charlene of stealing a large sum of missing money. Because of the timing of the loss, Charlene was the suspect. An investigation involved police and bank authorities. An aggressive co-worker slandered her regularly, called her names, and pressured her to confess the theft, but Charlene never returned an ill word. This went on for three months. Her picture was in the paper with an article reporting she was under investigation. Her children were ridiculed at school and some friends abandoned her. Even though the bank found no evidence, they gave her the opportunity to resign. She believed she should stay. Though she no longer had duties handling cash, she worked diligently leaving the case with the Lord.

Then an employee of the transport company said he had made a cash exchange error. Afraid of losing his job, he had waited for the bank to contact him. Charlene's accuser was responsible to confirm there was not an error by the company, but she was so convinced of Charlene's guilt, she never did it. In a cold sarcastic voice, her accuser said, "Sorry, big mistake," and walked away. Charlene followed into her office and closed the door. Her co-worker's eyes got big and fear covered her face as she got ready for the blast she felt was coming. Charlene looked her in the eyes, and said, "I love you and I forgive you for everything you said and did against me." As the words sunk in, the co-worker's fear melted into deep sorrow. She began to cry and then said, "I don't know what you have, but I have to have it." Charlene confessed her strength and love came only from God. Then she led her accuser to the Lord who then led another employee to the Lord the next day! By the end of the week, five other employees also accepted the Lord! --Adapted, To Heal the Heart by Michael Hinson

HANOVER TOWNSHIP
Township finances healthy

Sen. Scavello plans to have staffer available soon

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Newly elected State Senator Mario Scavello goes on a quest to visit the governing bodies of each of the 40 municipalities in his district at least once every year. On April 28, he visited Hanover Township's board.

Steve Salveson joked that Scavello should have an office in Hanover when he's ready to go "upscale."

Actually, Scavello is working on plans to do that, and have a staffer available one day a week, either in the municipal building or at the community center.

Upon hearing this, Township Manager Jay Finnigan handed Senator Scavello a new resident package and welcomed him to the community.

"There's even a map in case you get lost," joked Finnigan.

On a more serious note, independent auditor Todd Bushta told supervisors the township is in sound financial shape and actually had a $1 million profit last year, although $732,000 of that money was used to pay off a note and reduce debt. He offered a clean and unqualified opinion, and was unable to find any instances of noncompliance with governmental accounting standards.

The township's pension fund is 100 percent funded and fully liquid as well. Overall, there's a $7.5 million fund balance.

The only debt left is a $700,000 note from 2006. Finnigan recommended paying it off to escape interest payments.

Teacher Carol Free spoke with deep concern about the current situation.

"Does anyone besides our teachers see that this place is indeed burning down around us," she asked.

Karabin said he took issue with teachers telling him he lacks concern and respect for them.

"You know the tears that are coming to my eyes," he said. "I always respected all of you. I always reached my hand out. And this is it? It's all our fault? It's everybody involved in this. It has to be."

Mayor Bob Donchez and city officials proudly announced Monday the completion of negotiations on a new five-year police union contract. In the next breath Donchez scolded the fire department for holding out.

Both contracts expired in December, and Donchez praised the Fraternal Order of Police for negotiating with professionalism. "While the police union was of course interested in the welfare of its members, as it should be, the public interest was never lost in these discussions. This is a very fair contract for all sides." FOP Star Lodge #20 members voted 88-14 in favor of the new contract.

It includes a 3 percent annual wage increase – retroactive to December – some prescription drug plan changes, such as increased co-pays, the introduction of deductibles for single and family plans, and increased healthcare contributions.

Business Administrator Dave Brong said the healthcare contributions were key to getting ahead of a Cadillac tax surcharge in the Affordable Care Act that would have cost the city in 2018. Under current legislation, he said, this contract will avoid those surcharges.

Wade Haubert, a former FOP president who began this round of bargaining, agreed with Donchez on the fairness of the deal and said the negotiators never forgot their salaries are paid for by taxpayers, and made an extra effort to accommodate the city. He said the FOP spent nearly $20,000 on specialists, including a forensic accountant, to research what the city could afford.

The fire department's contract negotiation has not gone as smoothly, suffering two rejections. The contract will go to arbitration May 18-19.

Non-uniformed employees' contracts expire at the end of the year.

Morganelli calls Dougherty his 'first choice' for Supreme Court

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

There are a lot of similarities between Northampton County DA John Morganelli and Philadelphia Common Pleas Judge Kevin Dougherty. Both come from working class backgrounds and were the first in their families to attend college. Both dealt with blue collar families, whether in South Philly or South Bethlehem. Both have distinguished themselves in their profession.

Morganelli is now Pennsylvania's most senior district attorney, while Judge Dougherty is the administrative judge for the Trial Division in Philadelphia's busy Court of Common Pleas.

Judge Dougherty's bid for one of three seats on the Pennsylvania Supreme Court was recently endorsed by Morganelli.

Standing before a group of prosecutors, he called Judge Dougherty his "first choice."

First elected in 2001, Dougherty presided over Philadelphia's Family Court, where his reforms made Philadelphia a model for the rest of the state. According to Morganelli, "His work has made the streets and schools safer, led to fewer children being placed or burdened with criminal records for life, and streamlined day-to-day operations of the court system by helping to consolidate Family Court's antiquated, scattered facilities into one modern courthouse. He has been widely recognized as a foremost expert on juvenile justice and judicial administration, and has been appointed to serve on numerous boards, committees, and commissions dealing with these subjects."

For his part, Dougherty views his role as "serving the most at-risk and marginalized, the poor and working poor. The average day individual who walks our streets and roads in the desire and hope that they may be safe, in and outside of their home. Each day, every day, we see the worst that life can offer our families and children. Each day, every day, we have a vision, and we implement that vision so that we have a period or a series of accomplishments and successes which advance the health and welfare of our families."

Dougherty is one of six Democrats seeking the Democratic nomination to one of three seats on the Pa. Supreme Court. Other Democrats running include Superior Court Judge Christine Donohue, Jefferson County Judge John Foradora, Superior Court Judge Anne Lazarus, Superior Court Judge David Wecht and Allegheny County Judge Dwayne Woodruff.

There are also six Republicans seeking their party's nomination. They include Superior Court Judge Cheryl Allen, Commonwealth Court Judge Anne Covey, Adams County Judge Mike George, Superior Court Judge Judy Olsen, Supreme Court Justice Corrae Stevens and Mount Airy County District Attorney Rebecca Warren.

Many NorCo job vacancies remain

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Northampton County Executive John Brown has stated that he considers the county employee to be its most valuable asset. But a recent report to Northampton County Council reveals that there are 268 vacant positions throughout the county, which accounts for 12.4 percent of the entire 2,162-person workforce. This report was generated at the request of Hayden Phillips, who ran on a theme of limited government. He has previously stated that if a position goes unfilled for a period of time, it should just be eliminated.

The practice of keeping vacant slots unfilled gives municipal officials like Brown more money for projects that were never budgeted.

Where are the vacancies?

Most of them, 133.15 to be exact, are in Human Services. They include caseworkers for Children and Youth, Area Agency on Aging, Mental Health and at Gracedale. In Northampton County, more than 18,000 people receive human services of one kind or another. These include neglected and abused children.

Yet the report reveals there are 16 vacancies in Children and Youth, which does include caseworker positions. At the same time, there's a full complement in the Department of Community and Economic Development.

Last year, Corrections Officer Tom Davis insisted at several meetings that corrections officer vacancies are going unfilled. Corrections is still down 29.5

positions, and that includes 22 corrections officer jobs.

Despite several complaints from the court, there are still eight vacancies in the Civil Division. There are four unfilled jobs in the Criminal Division and four open jobs in the Recorder of Deeds.

Custodial and maintenance staffs have been decimated. Janitors are down 9.8 jobs, including four full-time cleaners in maintenance, seven jobs remain unfilled.

this contract but it takes two people to dance," Simononis declared. "And right now, we're by ourselves."

If the May 7 talks produce no fruit, the board will ask for nonbinding arbitration. The union, Simononis advised, would then be tasked with researching the best available options.

"Everything is on the table," Simononis said. "Negotiate, strike, nonbinding arbitration."

Teacher Tom Koch said the board refusing to attend the talks does not point to a group that wants to come together to reach a solution.

"From my point of view, it looks like you're pulling your team from the table," he said.

Board Solicitor Mark Fitzgerald said the board is committed to listening to the concerns of the teachers union.

"The board is hopeful that the union will be willing to join in moving toward this process," Fitzgerald added.

"Put your faces across the table from ours and bring about a fair contract through conference, discussion and compromise," high school science teacher Cameron Fowler said.

As the voting process progressed, Dougherty said he was changing his vote to Zosky. He urged the other commissioners to follow suit.

During the second round of voting, Jones, Dougherty, Schware and Osborne voted for Zosky. Holt and Brace cast votes for Morgan and Creighton voted for Weber.

During the third round of voting, Zosky received four votes. Holt and Creighton voted for Melber, while Brace voted for Morgan.

Zosky again received four votes during the fourth round. Holt switched back to Melber. Creighton remained with

'Les Misérables' setting records

Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival dreams the dream in launching its 24th season at DeSales University

SPOTLIGHT ON

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Press Focus Editor

When "Les Misérables" was announced as the Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival (PSF) 24th season-opener, the Lehigh Valley theater community was all abuzz.

Tickets are selling at nearly triple the rate of any previous production and more than half of the 10,400 tickets have been sold, according to PSF officials.

"Les Misérables," also known as "Les Miz," culminates years of effort by Patrick Mulcahy, now in his 12th year as PSF Producing Artistic Director, to stage the iconic musical.

"Les Miz" is very exciting, partly because I've been working on getting the rights to it for half of those 12 years. I think it's been actually seven or eight years," Mulcahy says.

"The rights were locked up for either on being on Broadway or national tours. The window would open or close.

"And to have it while it's still running on Broadway is pretty amazing. It's very unusual for us to get the rights to a show that's on Broadway," Mulcahy says.

"Les Misérables" runs for 22 performances, with previews June 10 and 11, opening night June 12, and continuing through June 28, on the Main Stage of Labuda Center for the Arts on the idyllic Center Valley campus of DeSales University in Upper Saucon Township.

The first day, Feb. 12, that single tickets became available for PSF's summer season, a new record was set, an increase of 85 percent more than the previous record set, according to PSF officials.

In one day, 809 tickets were sold for about $38,000, predominantly for "Les Miz." Normal one-day sales in February range between $4,000 and $6,000. The previous single largest sale day in the box office was on June 13, 2011, when the total sales were $18,400, with about two-thirds for "South Pacific."

Although PSF held its subscription renewal campaign without informing patrons of the opening-season musical, renewals were up more than 60 percent compared to the same time last year.

As part of the licensing agreement for "Les Miz," the title couldn't be announced until after Jan. 1. The season's other six titles were announced last fall.

PSF's 2015 season includes Shakespeare's "Henry V," July 16 - Aug. 2, Main Stage, and "Pericles," July 22 - Aug. 2, Schubert Theatre; the American comedy by Larry Shue, "The Foreigner," July 8 - Aug. 2, Main Stage, and Mark Brown's "Around The World In 80 Days," June 17 - July 12, Schubert Theatre. The children's productions are a new adaptation of "Rapunzel" (written and directed by Erin Sheffield), May 29 - Aug. 1, Schubert Theatre, and "Shakespeare For Kids" (written by Erin Sheffield and directed by Matt Pfeiffer), July 22 - Aug. 1, Main Stage.

"I love the different kinds of popularity that each of these plays has," says Mulcahy. "Les Miz" will set a record. It will be the most attended musical ever in the Lehigh Valley.

There are also one-night events, including: "Luminosity," the PSF Gala, 6 p.m.

"Les Misérables" banner unfurled and flags waved when it was announced that the popular hit musical is opening the 24th season of the Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival.

PSF presents seven productions and 140-plus performances in nine weeks, May 29 - Aug. 2. PSF brings 160 visiting artists and artisans from 20-plus states to the Lehigh Valley, including 35 Equity actors from Broadway, New York, Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

PSF draws from a five-county region, with 75 percent of its audience from Lehigh, Northampton, Bucks and Berks counties and also from 30 counties in Pennsylvania and 30 states in the United States.

Alvin H. Butz is "Les Misérables" production sponsor. Production co-sponsors are Air Products and Orlando Diefenderfer Electrical Contractors.

Amaranth Foundation is the 2015 season sponsor. Associate season sponsors are the Szarko Family, Harry C. Trexler Trust and Linda Lapos and Paul Wirth.

The announcement that "Les Miz" would open the 2015 season was made at a special event for PSF subscribers and supporters Jan. 15 at The Cosmopolitan Restaurant, Allentown. The "Les Miz" banner was unfurled from the balcony and flags were waved.

Once PSF received the rights to produce "Les Miz," increasing the number of performances was explored. "The best we could do was to add two Wednesday matinees to our traditional schedule," says PSF Managing Director Casey Gallagher. "We have a total of 10,400 seats available for 22 performances and we expect to sell them all.

"Les Misérables" ticket sales are a driving force, but ticket sales for all the productions are significantly ahead of last year, which came close to matching the attendance record of 33,940 set in 2011," Gallagher says.

"Les Misérables" is directed by PSF Associate Artistic Director Dennis Razze, who has directed all of PSF's musicals, including "Fiddler On The Roof," "Oklahoma!" and "Sweeney Todd."

Says Razze, "Victor Hugo's epic tale of suffering and redemption is one of the greatest classics of literature and this musical brilliantly adapts this story to the stage. PSF has the talent, the energy, and the passion to make 'Les Miz' an unforgettable theatrical experience.

"PSF has wanted to produce Les Misérables for many years," Razze continues, "and I have certainly dreamed that I would have the opportunity to direct it. I am thrilled that day has come and that we will be the first professional theater in our area to produce this monumental achievement in musical theater."

The all-new PSF production of "Les Miz" features a cast of 37 that collectively represent the most Broadway credits, most recording artists, and most national tours of any cast ever on stage in PSF's 24-season history.

"The sweeping range of the operatic music and the epic story of 'Les Miz' demands exceptional singer-actors, and this cast has experience on some of the world's best stages," says Razze.

Leading the cast is Mike Eldred as Jean Valjean, a role he performed on Broadway, where he also starred in the original cast of the Tony-nominated "Civil War." In addition to his three solo CDs, Eldred is an internationally-renowned tenor who has performed in concert with many of North America's finest symphony orchestras, including Baltimore, Chicago, Detroit, Edmonton, San Diego, Seattle and Toronto.

Valjean is mercilessly pursued by the police officer Inspector Javert, performed by Jeremiah James. James played Billy Bigelow in "Carousel" in London's West End, El Gallo in "The Fantasticks!" in New York City and Curly in the Broadway-London first National Tour of the Trevor Nunn-Cameron Mackintosh revival of "Oklahoma!" James, a solo recording artist, is a member of the singing supergroup Teatro.

Kate Fahrner portrays the impoverished factory worker Fantine, who sings the show's most famous song "I Dreamed a Dream." Fahrner's credits include the National Tour of "Wicked" as Glinda, a role she played in Chicago and on Broadway. She also performed as Nellie Forbush in Lincoln Center's National Tour of "South Pacific."

Rachel Potter, a Nashville recording artist who played the character of Wednesday in Broadway's "The Addams Family," in addition to other Broadway and national tour credits, plays Eponine, who sings "On My Own." Potter was a Top 12 finalist on Fox TV's "The X Factor" in Season Three and just released her second album.

Performing the role of Cosette, Valjean's adopted daughter, is Delaney Westfall, who recently finished "Side Show" on Broadway (multiple roles). She has also played principle roles in several full-length HBO movies.

Brad Greer plays the student revolutionary Marius. Greer's credits include the Riverside Theatre-National Tour of "Altar Boyz" and the Walnut Street Theater, Philadelphia, production of "Grease."

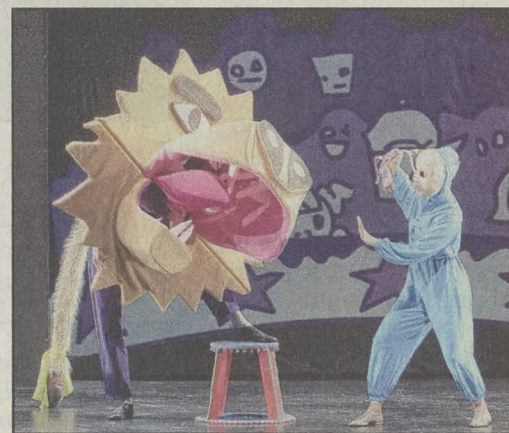

Tim Gulan, reprising the role he played in the 25th Anniversary National Tour of "Les Miz," plays Thénardier, a thief and gang leader. On Broadway, Gulan performed in the world premiere of Sting's "The Last Ship," as well as "The Lion King," "The Frogs" and "Blood Brothers."

Jon Berry, a co-star in hit TV shows "Nashville" and "Drop Dead Diva," plays the student leader Enjolras. His regional theater credits include the title roles in "The Who's Tommy" and

Taking Young Playwrights seriously

By LUKE MUENCH
Special to The Press

It's not easy selecting plays for the Young Playwrights' Festival.

For this year's festival, 100 scripts written by children were submitted to be performed. Six were chosen.

"It was hard," says Mary Wright, Young Playwrights Lab' Coordinator. "Not only do we have to pick what showcases the schools and students, but what plays will work together for a festival."

Touchstone Theatre presents the 10th annual Young Playwrights' Festival, 7:30 p.m. May 16, Zoellner Arts Center, Lehigh University, Bethlehem. The preshow celebration begins at 6 p.m. in the Butz Lobby. There's a post-show reception in the Lehigh University Art Galleries.

Young Playwrights' Lab is an eight-week arts and literacy residency developed by Touchstone and the Bethlehem Area School District.

Wright stresses "how important it is for us to take kids' creative voices seriously. We tend to not pay a whole lot of attention to what kids say, or their creative voices. And when we stop to do that, that's when our lives become rich."

The six play finalists were chosen based on their imaginative nature, witty dialogue, strong character development, and what "reached out and grabbed" the directors who would be working on them. Of the six selected, five were written by elementary school students and one by a middle school student.

Each student hails from a different school, allowing for the community to be better represented as a whole.

This year's schools include Broughal Middle, Calypso Elementary, Central Elementary, Farmersville Elementary, Freemansburg Elementary, Harrison-Morton Middle School, Lincoln Leadership Academy, Lincoln Elementary and Nitschmann Middle School.

The plays, directed by Touchstone's ensemble, are performed by Touchstone actors, community performers and students.

Don't be fooled by the age of the playwrights.

"Because these are written by young people, I think that people imagine that these plays are lightweight," Wright says, "but I'll tell you, some of these plays have some serious emotional moments."

Take "The Nurse," for example, written by Ryan Calhoun. His play tells the story of a medic's struggles in World War II, being picked on for the lifestyle he chose and facing the horrors war.

The Playwrights Festival is all the more special when one considers the amount of work and effort that goes into it.

"Without the support of Touchstone Theater, this wouldn't be possible," Wright says.

With school budget cutbacks, Touchstone has picked up more and more of the cost, approximately 50 percent.

Not only is the Festival "an opportunity to do cool theater," says Wright, "but to financially support the program and other such productions, physically and financially."

"To many loyal supporters of the program, the Young Playwrights' Festival is the most magical night of theater of the year," says Lou Cinquino, Festival Committee Chair. "And the Gala Reception that follows the performance makes it possible for Touchstone to maintain the Young Playwrights' Lab program, one of the Valley's signature school-based arts education programs."

One of Wright's favorite moments of the Festival is "at the end when we bring up the playwrights to take their bows and then all the playwrights who were involved. It always ends in a standing ovation, and seeing the expressions of the kids makes it all worth it."

I'm turning into my mother

I always knew what I wanted to be in life.

Ever since fourth grade, I knew I wanted to work for a newspaper.

I also always knew what I didn't want to be.

I didn't want to be like my mother.

I'm ashamed of myself when I think of the times I told her, "I never want to be like you."

Consciously, I don't think I ever tried to be the opposite of everything she was. I don't think it was on purpose that I shied away from liking the same things she liked. I just accepted the fact that we were different from the get-go.

She always loved nice clothes. Before a scheduled wedding or special event, she would carefully plan what she was going to wear. So would all my aunts and cousins. Then they would talk about it together.

When my mother would ask what I planned to wear, I would say, "I don't know. I'll just reach in my closet and pull out what strikes me."

In many ways, my mother was younger than I was with much more youthful activities. It was always like role reversal.

She loved to listen to rock 'n' roll. I played classical music. She went dancing a few nights a week. I stayed home and read.

When I graduated from high school, I continued reading classic books and listening to classical music. My mother continued going dancing a few nights a week to rock 'n' roll bands.

On occasion my classmates danced with my mother, praising her for her youthful stamina. I was too intimidated to dance because I knew I wasn't good at it.

The list of our differences went on and on.

My mother decorated in white. At a time when wallpaper and colored walls were the rage, she had every room in the house painted white.

"I love the way it makes the house so restful," she would say, adding that white walls make it easy to decorate with any color.

When I got married and had my first apartment, I said we could paint the walls any color except white. White walls were boring, I thought.

So we painted every room a different color and did the same thing with our first home.

Let's fast forward a few decades to present day. I really am turning into my mother.

The thought hit me after I sent my daughter a photo of me on the way to our Thursday night dance wearing the great dolphin necklace she bought me for Christmas.

My daughter answered my email with a question: How many women your age go dancing several times a week?

I thought then of my mother and her love of dancing. I didn't dance surgery, or radiation therapy are used to reduce the production of hormones or block them from working. The hormone estrogen, which makes some breast cancers grow, is made mainly by the ovaries. Treatment to stop the ovaries from making estrogen is called ovarian ablation.

when I was younger but I sure do now. Just like my mother.

Come into my house and look around. What you'll find are white walls. Every room in the house is white. In fact, my favorite decorating scheme is white on white with nautical blue for accent.

Just like my mother did years ago, I find myself saying, "White walls are so restful."

If you look in my closets, you'll find they are packed with clothes. Now, I'm a clotheshorse, just like my mother was.

The first time my daughter Andrea called me a clotheshorse, I said, "No way! The only kind of clothes I buy are kayaking and exercise clothes," I insisted.

How then, did I get two walk-in closets jammed with all kinds of clothes? I blame it all on genes I got from my mother.

And, you know what? I'm proud of every gene and every trait I inherited from her.

Sometimes when I have to have a painful medical procedure done, I don't flinch. I think of my mother and her physical and mental toughness. Then I try to act just like her.

I wish I would have told her more often how much I admired her while she was still here.

I wish I would have said, "I'm proud of how tough you can be when you have to be."

When she had to support two young children on her own, she never complained. She worked in a factory during the day then came home and made a healthy supper before rushing off to her waitressing job at night.

Did I ever thank her for that? No, I complained to her because I "was stuck at home each night watching my younger brother."

Did I ever thank her for the diligent way she raised me, instilling in me a strong sense of right from wrong?

No way. Instead I complained that she was too strict.

While I was doing all the complaining, do you know what my mother was doing?

She quietly loved me, sacrificing so much of her life raising her children. It wasn't until she married my stepfather years later that she got the life she deserved.

She didn't get the praise she deserved from me.

Decades later, I sit here hoping she's looking down from heaven knowing how much I love her and appreciate all she did for me.

Every now and then I catch a glimpse of my image in the mirror and am startled to see I'm starting to look like my mother.

But then I smile and tell myself how lucky I am.

"Jesus Christ Superstar," and Che in "Evita."

"All of those folks are new to us," Mulcahy says. "That's actually not uncommon for a musical at PSF."

"This is a play where the casting often hinges on who can belt the high notes, eight times a week and really nail it. That's not the only consideration."

There's an ensemble cast of more than 25 and a full orchestra under the baton of Nathan Diehl, music director and conductor for PSF's last four musicals. J. Bennett Durham, who conducts DeSales University's three choral ensembles, is music director for the production.

For Mulcahy, "Les Miz" is right at home on the PSF stage.

"Les Misérables" is a sweeping, timeless classic that began its life at a Shakespeare theater and fits our mission beautifully. It is Shakespearean in scope and scale, and is perhaps the most powerful and moving musical ever created," according to Mulcahy.

"Les Miz" auditions were held in New York City. PSF didn't hold Equity auditions for the other plays. "We had a stable of actors and those who directors wanted," Mulcahy notes.

Equity actor favorites include: "Around The World In 80 Days," Brad DePlanche (Passapartout), Anita Vasan (Aouda track); "Henry V," Zack Robidas (Henry V), Bill Zielinski (Pistol-Ely), Jacob Dresch (Dauphin-Nym); "The Foreigner," Carl Wallnau (Froggy), David Button (Ellard), and "Pericles," Chris Mullen (Pericles), Susan Riley Stevens (Dionya) and Gina Lamparella (Thaisa).

Other returning PSF favorites are Greg Wood, Anthony Lawton, Wayne Turney and Jane Ridley.

"Henry V," directed by Matt Pfeiffer, and "The Foreigner," directed by Jim Helsinger, are presented in repertory on the Main Stage, whereby the same cast is in both plays, which alternate on the same stage.

"We've really got something for everyone," says Mulcahy. "Side-splitting comedies that have a heart to them. One of Shakespeare's great history plays, a penetrating look at leadership, justification for war and a look at nationalism. It's the original 'Band Of Brothers.' And it ends with a delightful love scene."

"That's something that's true about the season," Mulcahy says. "That's a thread, that of the heart opening up. It happens in 'The Foreigner.' It happens in 'Henry V.' It happens in 'Pericles.'"

And, we might add, it happens in "Les Misérables."

Breast cancer diagnoses, treatments

Second of three parts

The most common breast cancer symptom is a lump. Other symptoms include swelling, skin irritation, nipple pain or retraction, and an unusual discharge.

Early diagnosis saves lives. The combination of a mammogram, a clinical breast exam and self-exams is recommended by healthcare experts to reduce breast-cancer deaths.

A mammogram is a breast X-ray. If mammography finds an abnormality, confirmation by biopsy is required. In a biopsy, a tissue sample is taken for analysis.

About 10 percent of women examined will need another mammogram. Only about 10 percent of those women will need a biopsy. Out of those biopsies, 80 percent will come back negative for cancer.

Women 40 and older should have an annual mammogram and breast exam by a healthcare professional. As long as a woman is in good health and would be a candidate for treatment, she should continue to get mammograms and exams.

Research has shown that self-exams help find breast cancer. Self-examination teaches women how their breasts feel normally and to notice changes.

Ultrasound and MRI are other diagnostic tools.

Ultrasound uses high-frequency sound waves to outline a part of the body. Breast ultrasound can focus upon something picked up by a mammogram.

Magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) use radio waves and strong magnets instead of X-rays. They can be used to examine cancers found by mammogram.

Most women with breast cancer have some type of surgery. Surgeries include lumpectomy to remove only the breast lump and surrounding tissue, a mastectomy that removes part or all of the breast or can be more extensive to include lymph nodes and muscle tissue.

Radiation therapy is another form of treatment. It uses high-energy rays or particles that destroy cancer cells. This treatment may be used to destroy cancer cells that remain in the breast, chest wall, or underarm area after surgery.

Medicines are also used to treat breast cancer. Chemotherapy employs intravenous and oral drugs that can kill cancer cells in most parts of the body. The anti-estrogen drug tamoxifen has been used for many years to treat breast cancer.

Hormone therapy is a cancer treatment that removes hormones or blocks their action and stops cancer cells from growing. Hormones are substances made by glands in the body and circulated in the bloodstream. Some hormones can cause certain cancers to grow.

If tests show that the cancer cells have places where hormones can attach (receptors), drugs,

It's a Marvel Universe, after all

"Avengers: The Age Of Ultron" succeeds on multiple levels, despite a title that sounds like an ad slogan for a new household cleaning product.

"Avengers: Ultron" has its share of kitsch, in dialogue, characterization, editing and visuals. And yet the spoofing around isn't hit or myth. If anything, it enhances the Marvel Cinematic Universe (CMU) superheroes.

Director Josh Whedon, who directed "The Avengers" (2012) and wrote the screenplay for both (based on comic book characters created by Stan Lee and Jack Kirby), puts an ungainly number of superheroes (Supposedly, Whedon wanted more, including Spider-Man and Captain Marvel, but studios' rights negotiations couldn't be resolved.) on the screen, yet manages to give each their time to strike in the conflict spotlight, while also giving what seems like equal time in dialogue and character development.

"Avengers: Ultron" has a Shakespearean tone in the appearances of the god-like superheroes, their interaction and their dialogue. Whedon manages to have it both ways: "Avengers: Ultron" is simultaneously an incredibly intense action-packed science fiction thriller and a rumination on the nature of power, loyalty and the "can-do" belief in overcoming.

The Shakespeare connection shouldn't be surprising. Whedon wrote and directed a version of the Bard's "Much Ado About Nothing" (2012) in black and white in his backyard.

The dialogue in "Avengers: Ultron" is English-American Literature major smart.

Tony Stark (Robert Downey, Jr) says, "It's been a really long day, like, Eugene O'Neill long, a reference to O'Neill's 'Long Day's Journey Into Night' play.

Ultron (voiced by James Spader) is asked, "What's the vibranium for?" Ultron, responds, "I'm glad you asked that because I wanted to take this time to explain my evil plan."

Ultron, initially a bodiless entity, sings the lyrics to "I've Got No Strings" from "Pinocchio" (1940).

More than this, "Avengers: Ultron" is a consummate cinematic achievement. It's simply one of the best, if not the best, comic book superheroes-to-the-big-screen movies ever. This is not only because of its gargantuan proportions. It is huge in every cinematic way imaginable. The main action set pieces (five, by my count), special effects, and computer-generated imagery are stupendous.

Simply put: The film works. Complicated as it is, it would bear a second viewing. "Avengers: Ultron" was seen in Imax 3D for this review. It's worth the premium for the fan boys and girls.

Let's not forget the all-star cast.

Robert Downey, Jr. (Iron Man-Tony Stark), as a fast-talker with speed-bump pauses for hesitation intonation, is the epitome of snarky.

Chris Hemsworth (Thor) gets the trophy as the real superhero. The 6 ft., 2 in. guy has biceps the size of your thighs. Mark Ruffalo (The Hulk-Bruce Banner) has some nice moments as Banner, making us empathize with his monster alter-ego. Scarlett Johansson (Black Widow - Natasha Romanoff) sparks some emotions with Banner.

Chris Evans (Captain America-Steve Rogers) is clinch-jawed forthright. Jeremy Renner (Hawkeye-Clint Barton) is a, ahem, straight arrow, with nary a smile. James Spader (Ultron) is chillingly normal.

Samuel L. Jackson (Nick Fury) has what is not much more than a cameo, but, as usual, he commandeers your memory cells.

Aaron Taylor-Johnson (Quicksilver-Pietro Maximoff) and Elizabeth Olsen (Scarlet Witch-Wanda Maximoff) create quite the sibling rivalry. Paul Bettany (The Vision-Jarvis) is his usual otherworldly self.

Admittedly, the hierarchy, storyline, psychology and motivation of the characters and the minutiae of the MCU is mind-boggling.

You may need a degree from MCU. It's a "Marvel Cinematic Universe." We just watch.
