

Yeager, Raymond

Raymond Yeager
Wins Promotion

19 1944

Raymond H. Yeager, 1402 Center Street, control tower operator of the world-wide Army Airways Communications System, has recently been promoted to the grade of staff sergeant. At Luke Field, Phoenix, Ariz., where he is stationed, Sgt. Yeager gives take-off and landing instructions, relays traffic clearances and weather information, and controls airplane traffic in the air and on the ground.

As a member of the Army Airways Communications System which provides aeronautical communications for military aircraft flying the airways of the world, Sgt. Yeager is making a vital contribution to the war effort. His job requires great concentration, quick thinking and sound judgment.

Before entering the service, Sgt. Yeager was a student at Aero Technical Institute, Los Angeles, Cal.
