Group seeks to renovate Rose Garden

BY DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Local civic leaders presented plans last week to renovate the Bethlehem Rose Garden. The plot of land at the corner of Eighth Avenue and West Union Boulevard currently has a bandshell, a playground and a log cabin said to be a replica of the first log home built in Bethlehem. A farmer's market is held there every Saturday morning.

Katie Stafford of the Mount Airy Neighborhood Association (MANA) and her daughter Dalia asked Bethlehem City Council to support renovation of the Rose Garden. She said the park has not been renovated since 1930. "There never has been an integrated plan for the park," said Stafford.

Mary Toulouse, also of the Mount Airy Neighborhood Association, showed council members a diagram of the proposed renovation of the garden as part of her presentation seeking city support for the project.

Christine Roysdon, in a later interview, gave some background for the project. She said $300,000 was the amount that planners thought would be needed to renovate what she called the "lion's share," or the core of the Rose Garden. An earlier grant, according to Roysdon, allowed MANA to hire a planning firm which produced the plan shown by Toulouse. "We were also able to buy some trees and some bicycle racks for the park," said Roysdon. She said the bike racks will be installed very soon.

She said the funding request was the beginning of the conversation. She said she hoped the city would think of the best way to fund the project.

Roysdon also provided some of the historic background of the park. She said the property was the site of a private prep school, the Bethlehem Preparatory School, which went out of business in the late 1920s. She said the city bought the property and later razed the school, which she thought had been located where the current macadamized pavement is now - in front of the band shell.

A senior at DeSales University studying business, Ortiz works at the library part time. She is scheduled to lead another workshop on Traditional Day of the Dead Makeup Oct. 29. The Southside Branch will also host a Halloween party Oct. 30. Registration is required for both free events. Info: bapl.org; 610-867-7852.

Remaining today are two weathered gateposts inscribed as being the gift of a long-graduated class. Recently, local citizens, armed with spades, prepared beds for flower gardens to line the pathway between the two gateposts. Roysdon said plans call for the flower gardens to be dedicated to native plants.

In the 1930s the city built the bandshell, according to Roysdon.

Plans are for bowered walkways leading from the core area (near the band shell) to far reaches of the city-block sized park. A water feature is contemplated, but exactly what type has not been decided by the planners.

The MANA-sponsored Farmer's Garden will continue to operate on the north side of the park.

The many trees in the Rose Garden have attracted the attention of young Bethlehem Area School District scholars who have identified trees and done science-related projects such as calculating the carbon value of trees.

"The Nitschmann MS students consider the Rose Garden to be 'their park,'" said Roysdon. She said students have celebrated Arbor Day at the park.

One Christopher Columbus memorial and several war memorials create pensive moments for visitors who pause to read their messages to later generations.

"Overall," said Roysdon, "we feel we have a pretty good handle on what people want in the park." She said there have been several community meetings about the future of the Rose Garden.

PA Representative Jeanne McNeil, District 133, and Lehigh County Commissioner Amy Zanelli, County District 3, were invited to the Rose Garden on the weekend of Constitution Day; Mary Toulouse invited the politicians whose support she would like for proposed renovation of the park.

Melissa Hoptna makes a purchase from farmer Jude Chartier, who had a stand set up at the Rose Garden during a farmer's market Sept. 15.

In a public hearing prior to the start of the regular meeting, businessman Jignesh Patel and his lawyer, Matthew Anderson, explained to council their desire to transfer a restaurant liquor license to his market store at 831-833 Linden St. in Bethlehem. This is the Linden Street Food Market at the corner of East Goepf and Linden streets, about two blocks from Liberty HS.

If Patel, who said he bought the business in July, gets the necessary approval to transfer the liquor license, which he has already purchased at an auction, he will need, by existing rules, to allocate room for a 30-seat capacity space in the store and agree to sell no more than two beers that are consumed on the site.

Patel and Anderson faced a gauntlet of questions from council members:

Q: What security system would you have? A: At least eight cameras.

Q: What is the maximum amount of alcohol you will sell to a customer? A: 190 ounces of beer or 3 liters of wine.

Q: How many bottles of beer can you sell to a customer? A: Two six-packs or one 12-pack.

Q: Do you have plans for other renovations? A: No

Q: Will minors be allowed in liquor serving area? A: No

Q: If you expand your hours, how would you notify the public? A: There is no technical reason to notify.

One Councilman, Bryan Callahan, thanked Patel for investing in Bethlehem. Councilman William Reynolds, who later was the lone vote opposed to the needed resolution, asked, "Is this a good thing for the neighborhood?"

"The neighbors are excited about the convenience of picking up [alcohol]," said Anderson. He said 182 notifications of intent had been made to residents within a 500-foot radius of the address.

Later in the regular meeting the resolution for transfer of the liquor license passed 6-1.

A proposed new ordinance amending parking penalty increases met with extended discussion, but was withdrawn by the Council President Adam Waldron and postponed until the Nov. 7 meeting.

In a moment of civility and civility, council congratulated Mayor Robert Donchez on the occasion of becoming a grandfather.

LEHIGH COMMISSIONERS

County taxes will not increase in 2019

BY DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

PRESS PHOTOS BY DOUGLAS GRAVES

Lehigh County Commissioners passed an amendment to the 2019 budget that keeps the millage rate at 3.64, opposing the administration's plan to raise taxes during a four-hour meeting Oct. 10. The amendment, sponsored by Commissioner Brad Osborne, a Republican and recent contender for the office of Lehigh county Executive, passed on party lines, 6-3.

The amendment specifies, "The millage rate shall be reduced in an amount representing $4,448,840 in 2019 real estate tax value. This equates to a millage reduction of 0.15 setting the millage rate at 3.64." This will move the millage rate from the budget's proposed 3.79 mills to 3.64 mills.

The amendment will take $4.4 million from the proposed budget's line item from the Stabilization Fund – sometimes described as the county's "savings account," and transfer it to the line item for the Operating Fund – described by County Fiscal Officer Tim Reeves as the County's "checking account," thus negating the need to collect that amount in real estate taxes which has consequences down the line according to Reeves. The stabilization tion fund is often referred to as a "rainy day fund."

President Judge Edward Reibman said, "This non-existent, illusory pay study" needs to be done.

The move forestalls an increase in income taxes, but according to Reeves, forces the administration to finance or borrow money for capital expenditures for which they had planned to pay cash.

"The ultimate repercussion of this action," said Reeves in a post-meeting interview, "is when they do raise taxes, the taxes will be higher."

In doing so, the commissioners rejected the advice of both Reeves and County Executive Phillips Armstrong.

Reeves, who has extensive experience in public finance, worked as the Lehigh County's director of collections and tax claims under former Fiscal Officer Brian Kahler before accepting an appointment to his current position as county fiscal officer.

Reeves, a 1990 Penn State graduate with a major in accounting and a minor in finance, and who is a Certified Public Accountant, has a strong background in both public and corporate finance. He said he is dedicated to providing facts to both the administration and to the commissioners.

Reeves argued against the amendment, saying that passing the proposal would lead to a case of "Robbing Peter to pay Paul."

At least one Republican – Commissioner Nathan Brown, seemed to acknowledge the inevitability of the need to raise taxes. "I think a tax increase is coming soon," said Brown.

Commissioner Brad Osborne had a more nuanced rationale for opposing the administration's proposed tax increase.

"It was clear to me," said Osborne in a post-meeting interview, "that the budget had to be amended. The administration's five-year plan showed the stabilization fund for 2020 was being drawn down to $12.7 million which is well below the GFOA recommended guideline of $18.7 million, for the stabilization fund." Osborne said the GFOA recommends that the stabilization fund be $18.7 million, or equal to 60 days of operational expenses.

GFOA stands for Government Finance Officer's Association, an advisory organization. According to its web site, "GFOA advisories identify specific policies and procedures necessary to minimize a government's exposure to potential loss in connection with its financial management activities."

Osborne said there has been an average favorable variance for the past six years of $7.5 million, meaning that the administration has budgeted for more expenses than was spent. He said a 4.1 percent tax increase would yield $4.4 million for 2019, which was not warranted.

Osborne said the five-year financial projection presented by the administration during the budget presentation "ignores the historical favorable fund balance average of $7.5 million each year."

Sponsor Osborne argued, "We [the administration] don't have a good track record of estimating expenses and revenue."

HELLERTOWN

Officials leery of new PennDOT rule

BY MARK KIRLIN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Route I-78 being closed due to accidents is not a new occurrence. It's the effects of detoured truck traffic that has some Lehigh Valley towns adjacent to Route 78 concerned. One recent occurrence closed 78 to truck traffic for 12 hours. The disruption detoured tractor trailers on small side streets in several Lehigh Valley towns. Several of these trucks ended up getting stuck or involved in traffic incidents. One such incident occurred in Hellertown on Clauser Street when a truck veered off the road and ended up on someone's private property. Although not many incidents have occurred, Hellertown has also experienced issues with trucks striking and taking out fire hydrants, curbing and stop signs.

Given the small size of some roads, municipalities try to minimize incidents by placing signs prohibiting trucks on certain roads. What has Hellertown Borough officials concerned is a new PennDOT requirement starting in December that will require municipalities to do an engineering study before a sign prohibiting trucks can be put up on any road in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. This requirement will even include roads that are obviously physically impassable for tractor trailers due to lack of width, turning radius, parked cars on the sides, etc. The new law only involves the movement of trucks on roads and is separate from weight restrictions. Also, signs being put up will no longer carry wording, but will have pictures instead.

The engineering studies can cost small municipalities, with already tight budgets, thousands of dollars, depending on the length of the road and other factors.

In reacting to the news, Council President Thomas Rieger said, "I can't get over the fact that if a road is 20 feet wide and you have parking on both sides, a tractor trailer won't fit...I don't need to get a study done to tell me it doesn't work."

According to Hellertown Police Chief Robert Shupp, "You won't be grandfathered in, so if you have a sign up right now, as of Dec. 13, you might as well take that sign down. Unless you have a study, it's not enforceable."

In other news, Glenn Higbie, who is the Hellertown Borough Authority's administrator, is retiring after 10 years on the job. Higbie has led the water and sewer authority, which services nearly 2,600 customers in Hellertown and parts of Lower Saucon Township. Hellertown Mayor David Heintzelman presented Higbie with a declaration showing Oct. 15 as Glenn Higbie Day in the Borough of Hellertown. Higbie said, "Thank you again for letting me end my career here, knowing that we collectively have made a difference for everyone." Higbie shook hands with each member of council.

"This puts us further behind the eightball," said Democrat Commissioner Dan Hartzell in a later interview. "I wish the administration's budget had passed more or less intact; instead the changes made by the majority of the board will only make a bigger tax increase likely in the near future."

Commissioners will vote for the final budget Oct. 24. The county executive will have an opportunity to veto the budget; if he does, then the commissioners can vote whether to overturn the veto.

In other business, commissioners considered over 20 amendments to the 2019 budget.

Most were routine, but two were the source of passionate push-back from county department heads and fellow commissioners.

A proposed change to the salary schedule for non-union workers got the most attention. The amendment, sponsored by Commissioner Brad Osborne, proposed that "step increases for non-bargaining unit employees" be "removed from the budget and replaced with a 2.5 percent wage increase" for non-union employees.

Republican Commissioner Dr. Percy Dougherty opened the discussion with an objection to the idea. He said the plan is very unfair. He suggested waiting until "we find a better way" and to wait for a pay study.

The proposal motivated the department heads to strongly argue against the action. They all saw it as bad for their employees.

Rick Molchany, director of General Services, said the plan, "makes no sense." He urged the commissioners not to "miss our chance to set pay policy."

Molchany said, "Motivation is not gained through pay increases. You have to address job dissatisfaction," to applause from the crowd in the hearing room.

District Attorney Jim Martin said, "I represent the non-union people in my office. It's high time that employees be treated better. You have a terrific work force who deserves fair treatment." More applause.

Martin told the commissioners that after 21 years on the job, "I happen to have some institutional memory," a reminder the commissioners that he has been around longer that most of them. "I also have supervisors making less than their subordinates," underlining the unfairness of the current pay system noted by other department leaders.

President Judge Edward Reibman referred to the pay study mentioned by Dougherty. "This non-existent, illusory pay study" needs to be done.

He said dropping the proposed step increases "affects morale. Our important assets are our people." He urged the commissioners "to take into account that we know our people. Wait for the pay study so that we have some objective basis" for decisions. "Reject the amendment!" More applause.

Coroner Scott Grim also wanted commissioners to wait for the pay study. He said, "We ask [our non-union employees] to go above and beyond the call of duty."

Controller Glenn Eckart, Director of Corrections Janine Donate and Public Defender Kim Makoul all took a turn at the microphone and together with their fellow department heads presented a united front to the commissioners opposing the amendment and supporting the idea that they wait until the pay study is completed before taking action.

Commissioners urged the study be completed by February.

One amendment proposal sponsored by Commissioner Dr. Percy Dougherty seemed to catch fellow Commissioner Geoff Brace by surprise. The proposal dramatically reduced grant money to several area nonprofit organizations, including the Bradbury Sullivan Community Center, which was slated for a cut from the budgeted $10,000 to $2,500. The grants are from the Hotel Tax Fund line item of the budget.

Other cuts proposed: Allentown Art Museum - from $25,000 to $20,000; ArtsQuest - from $10,000 to $0; Davinci's Discovery Center - from $25,000 to $20,000; the Martin Luther King and Coretta Scott King Memorial - from $10,000 to $2,500.

South Whitehall Township had been slated for a $2,500 grant but the proposal reduced it to zero.

Dougherty said in an interview that the intent of the reductions was to increase the amount that could be put to paying for the county-owned baseball stadium.

After heated objection from Brace, the amendment was withdrawn; the grants remain in the budget.

Elisabeth Lee
Liberty HS

Grade: 12
Family members: Grace Kim (mother), Perry Lee (father), Theodore Lee (older brother) and Joshua Lee (younger brother).
Favorite subject(s): I really enjoyed the math and science classes at Liberty. I have found myself very interested and eager to learn in these classes.
Activities: I am the Senior School Board Representative and a captain of BASD Mini-Thon, an assistant editor for the school newspaper and a member of the GRASS club, Liberty Theatre, the vice president of National Honor Society. Outside of school, I do ballet and modern dance.
Next steps: I want to attend university and receive a degree at the master's or doctorate level. I hope to continue to be a leader and serve in my community. I want to continue to engage myself within the arts at whichever university I attend.
Career goals: With my interest in the medical field, I hope to become a pharmacist, nurse, or physical therapist.
Heroes: Definitely my parents. They grew up as immigrants and faced many hardships. My parents have sacrificed so much for me and have provided me with a privileged childhood.
Hobbies: I like to sing, play my ukulele, or listen to music. I enjoy spending time outdoors whether its biking, hiking, or swimming.
Current job(s): I currently don't have a job.
Volunteer/community work: I volunteered at St. Luke's Hospital, with my church to do volunteer work and with organizations such as Trail Tenders, Feed the Children, Victory House and Cops 'n' Kids.
Likes: I love performing and dancing in front of people. I like to hike, go on adventures and travel. I also love helping my others in my community.
Dislikes: I dislike being unorganized; with my hectic schedule, I find it important to keep everything in order.

Greatest accomplishment: My greatest accomplishment was co-writing a book with my mother. Titled "Mother Daughter Speak," it offers insight on these topics from a mother and daughter's perspective. All topics are grounded by faith and relate to Christianity.

Advice for peers: I would definitely encourage my peers to take advantage of the resources school has to offer. My teachers and my school library have been the most beneficial to me. I am so grateful for every teacher who has offered time after school to help me; I found it so helpful to get more one-on-one communication. I think being involved at the school is so crucial to your high school career. Even if it is one club, it expands your interest for something and you are able to meet so many other individuals with the same passion. Also, I think the phrase "it's never too early to start" is so important. Whether it is getting community service hours done or getting ahead on SAT/ACT prep, it's always nice to get a head start on it if the time is available.

LIBERTY HS

Students active for environment

Recently, there was news of the strong likelihood of a crisis occurring earliest by 2040 due to global warming. Students at Liberty, including myself, have taken the initiative to prevent a crisis, even on a smaller level. As the school year is just beginning, students are already making a difference at school. Over the summer, I, along with another Liberty senior, Vivek Adury, volunteered with the Trail Tenders of the Lehigh Valley as National Honor Society officers. We began by hiking on the trails at Sand Island and picked up trash and recycling that were left in the bushes and trails. After several outings, Vivek and I found a common trend in finding fishing lines along the canal. Though nearly invisible, fishing lines pollute nature and harm wildlife. Emily Freudenberger, our Trail Tender advisor, spent over an hour carefully cutting fishing line that had strangled a baby goose. She speaks about her experiences: "...it breaks my heart to see animals hurt because someone else who was using these great resources got lazy or didn't know that they were endangering others by leaving stuff behind - in this case, their discarded fishing line." As strong advocates for the environment, we wanted to work alongside Liberty's Greater Responsibilities Among Students for Sustainability (GRASS) club to begin an initiative. The Fishing Line Awareness and Disposal Initiative aka FLADI was planned by me, Adury and Freudenberger. We presented our project idea to the Bethlehem Parks Department, received approval, and are now applying for grants to eventually construct monofilament receptacles by hand. These receptacles would be an efficient and environmentally friendly way that fishermen could dispose of fishing lines. By placing several receptacles along the Sand Island trail, our hope is that the number of fishing lines discarded See LIBERTY on Page A7

Kevin Lott takes Kraft's vacant seat

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

By a 8-0 vote, Hellertown resident Kevin Lott was appointed by Northampton County Council Oct. 18 to serve the remainder of Ken Kraft's term as the District One representative. District One includes Bethlehem, Freemansburg, Hellertown and Hanover Township. Kraft, who was serving as council's president, abruptly resigned Oct. 4 to take a new position with the county as the public safety deputy director of corrections.

The only concern about Lott is that he is a member of Hellertown Borough Council. Council member Bob Werner asked Lott if that presents a possible conflict of interest.

If it does, it doesn't anymore. Lott produced a letter containing his resignation from Hellertown Borough Council. Lott was the sole applicant. He is the business agent of the Lehigh Valley Carpenters Union. He also serves on Pennsylvania's Uniform Commercial Code Review and Advisory Council, the Greater Lehigh Valley Chamber of Commerce and Lehigh Valley Planning Commission.

Lott was instrumental in the 2015 prosecution of Bethlehem construction firm Salukas and White for defrauding workers of decent wages and the government of taxes by deliberately misclassifying employees as subcontractors. Lott accused the firm of "exploiting people" who will end up on welfare when they turn 65 because they will be unable to collect Social Security. "It's a shame on every level."

He sued over the P3 bridge project, but withdrew his challenge.

A lifelong resident of Hellertown, Lott had an older brother who died when Kevin was a teen. The following year, his father died suddenly. The next year, his mother developed cancer, and the family fell on hard times. Lott said people in Hellertown would deliver groceries and provide odd jobs and kind words. Lott got his big break when Hellertown resident John Savitske introduced him to the Carpenters Union.

ed decreases, just in time for the fishing season in the spring.

As an advisor for a student-led initiative, Freudenberger said, "The most effective way of fighting the impending global warming crisis is to learn about your leaders and whose interest they are really serving — their voting record as your chosen representatives will speak for itself. If they are not acting in your interest, vote them out."

To instigate this, Adury led the voter registration drive at our school for the past two years. Adury and other students that are a part of High School Democrats of America and NHS at Liberty were trained by the New Voters organization to properly register their peers. With the midterms coming up, Adury wanted to register as many eligible students as possible. Last year, for the primary elections, Adury registered 251 students and this year, for the midterms, Adury registered 61 students.

Ultimately, we are the next generation and each action will impact the world we live in. Adury said, "It's important that we register eligible students so we can fight for a better tomorrow. The point to have a voter registration drive was to make registration as convenient as possible."

It is important that we take full advantage of our resources and rights as citizens. Among the other organizations and clubs that Liberty offers, National Honor Society, High School Democrats of America, and GRASS have especially been active and making impacts which can in turn change the outlook of our country.

HANOVER TOWNSHIP Chairman: Township at zero debt

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Hanover Township (NC) Manager Jay Finnigan provided supervisors on Oct 9 with his proposed budget for 2019. For the 10th straight year, he recommends they hold the line on taxes. He has cut spending by $200,000 from this year. There are also no plans to borrow money for anything. The township currently has zero debt.

The millage rate, which has remained the same since 2008 and includes a fire tax of 0.5 mills, will hold steady at 3.90 mills if Supervisors go along.

Part of the reason for a reduction in expenses is that Colonial Regional Police Department will be smaller as a result of the departure of Bath

Chairman John Diacogiannis announced that Hanover and Lower Nazareth townships have reached agreement in principle with the Colonial Regional Police Department on a new contract for the officers. He expects supervisors to vote on it at their Oct. 23 meeting.

Supervisor Jack Nagle is in China and was absent.

"He defected," wisecracked Public Works Director Vince Milite.

Manager Jay Finnigan's recommended budget includes an increase for Bethlehem Area Public Library.

Chairman John Diacogiannis expects a vote soon on new police association contract.

Kassis tapped for domestic violence unit

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

Animals are available for adoption at the Center for Animal Health & Welfare no-kill shelter, 1165 Island Park Road, Easton. The shelter is working to end pet overpopulation by running a clinic so animals can be spayed or neutered before they go home. For more information, call 610-252-7722 or visit www.healthyanimalcenter.org.

Daisy, a 5-year-old terrier mix, was picked up by animal control and lived at the Plainfield Township municipal building for a year. She is a sweet girl and would do well in a home with children. She would do best as the only pet in the home.

Charlotte is 8 years old and is a laid back older gal who loves affection. She would prefer to be the only animal in the home because she can get jealous when others receive attention. Charlotte loves lounging in the sunlight on her favorite bed.

District Attorney John Morganelli on Oct. 10 named veteran prosecutor Abe Kassis to lead the county's busy domestic violence unit. Kassis' unit handles 15-17 percent of the entire criminal caseload. Admitted to the bar in 1995, Kassis has been an Assistant District Attorney for the past 18 years.

Kassis is getting help. Morganelli has persuaded Attorney Judy Chaverri, a Berks County Public Defender who graduated from Villanova Law School to join Team Kassis. She is fluent in Spanish, which Morganelli believes will be a great help.

Morganelli has also assigned Detective Dean Wilson, a Bethlehem Township Police alumnus, to the unit. Wilson developed the "Every 15 Minutes" program, designed to educate teens about the dangers of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs. Morganelli has charged Wilson with designing a similar program for domestic violence. These moves are made as part of National Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

When he first ran for DA, Morganelli committed to (1) increasing the number of female prosecutors; (2) expanding a Victim/Witness Assistance Program; (3) prohibiting part-time Assistant DAs from representing parties in protection from Abuse matters; and (4) creating a Domestic Violence Unit.

He has kept all four promises. In fact, 50 percent of Morganelli's prosecutors are female.

The Domestic Violence Unit has existed for 20 years, and has been led by talented prosecutors, including Martricia McLaughlin, Teresa Miranda, Kelly Lewis, Jacqueline Taschner and Erika Farkas. Detectives assigned to that unit have included Reggie Cora, now deceased, and Frank Jordan, retired.

Since enactment of the Violence Against Women Act in 1994, Morganelli has noticed a two-thirds reduction in the overall rate of domestic violence. But as the criminal caseload suggests, the problem continues.

In recognition of National Domestic Violence Awareness Month, Morganelli was joined by Lori Sywesky of Turning Point and Suzanne Beck of Lehigh Valley Crime Victims.

"Unfortunately, the work of this team is as necessary today as it was two decades ago," said Sywesky. "Each year at Turning Point, we continue to help over 2,500 of our friends and neighbors who are living in violent and abusive homes here in Northampton County. Many are just reaching out to our hotline for the first time and learning for the first time that there are options and choices available to them. For many hundreds of people, they will turn to law enforcement and the courts for help. When they find the bravery to do this, it's critical that the helpers - investigators, prosecutors and judges - understand the seriousness of the danger in these relationships and respond to them with empathy."

"Survivors of domestic violence present differently than victims of other crimes," added Beck. "Many often minimize and recant or even altogether deny their abuse as a result of the power and control that permeates their relationships. Many victims have been physically, psychologically, socially and financially abused for so long that they distrust anyone who tries to help them."

"To help victims regain trust in themselves and in the justice system, it is imperative that the process offers consistency and continuity. Specially trained prosecutors and detectives, just like the ones here, have a better opportunity to build relationships with victims and ensure that consistency and continuity. Domestic violence units like those here in Northampton County are indeed best practices."

"The ultimate goal, the reason we're all here today, is to keep victims safe."

FHS looks to stay perfect

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

There are a lot of distractions this time of year for high school football teams as they head into the final week of the regular season. With rivalry week on tilt across the Lehigh Valley, the biggest and best one takes center stage Saturday afternoon at Bethlehem Area School District Stadium when Freedom and Liberty kickoff at 1 p.m.

The stakes are always high for city bragging rights, but this year's affair features Freedom coming in at a perfect 9-0 on the season, looking to become the first team in school history to finish the regular season undefeated, while Liberty (4-5) is looking to scrape themselves back to .500 with a win that would most likely secure them a District 11 6A playoff berth.

The Pates are coming off another convincing victory last week after blasting Central Catholic 42-17, building a 42-3 lead through three quarters on their way to the rout.

Liberty, meanwhile, earned a 41-21 win on the road against Whitehall, giving them their second straight win to push them in the conversation to clinch one of the final eight playoff spots in the 6A race.

Liberty won last year's affair by a 21-7 gritty effort, which helped them clinch a playoff berth, while Freedom used that loss as fuel toward reaching the district final.

And despite both teams having distinctly different seasons to this point, don't think that Freedom forgot about last year's drubbing.

"That loss is still fresh in our minds," said head coach Jason Roeder. "A lot of our off-season changes and emphasis came out of week 10 last year."

Whatever changes those are have led the Patriots one game away from clinching the top-seed in the district postseason, as well as winning the EPC South outright with a win over Liberty this week.

Eliminating the distractions of spirit week will be impossible, but staying focused shouldn't be an issue for this group of Freedom players, who have been locked in every week.

"With this group I anticipate for us to go out and play like we have through the first nine weeks of the season," said Roeder. "It's all about controlling what we can control. These guys can enjoy spirit week, but let's focus on winning this football game."

The Freedom Patriots were crowned EPC boys' soccer champions on Saturday after defeating Pleasant Valley in the final of the EPC tournament, 2-0, at Nazareth High School.

"I'm ecstatic," said Freedom coach Matt Reightler. "I knew these guys could do it."

The Patriots beat the Bears in the regular season, 3-0, but with the post season, everything is new.

"I told them we can't think about what happened when we played Pleasant Valley last time. This is a new game," Reightler said. "The main thing is that they've preached that they want that respect all year long, so all today was about stepping on this field and earning it, and they truly did."

The Patriots had their first goal when Daniel Ramirez scored with 9:23 left in the first half. It was initially thought that Ben Reich scored on a header, but the officials determined that Ramirez got the ball over the line before Reich headed the ball into the net.

Either way, that's when Coach Reightler believed the Patriots had the game.

"To be honest, after we scored that first goal. We haven't trailed much this year and when we score that first goal, there's always been a switch, and seeing those guys at halftime and the confidence they were showing, I knew we weren't giving up a goal today," he said.

Of course, league MVP Zion Moore was Heading into the finish of the EPC Cross Country Championships last Tuesday at Bethlehem Municipal Golf Course, Lauren Charboneau heard someone say she started her kick too early, but the Freedom sophomore knew better.

"I was like, OK, I have one person behind me, so I just have to pick it up, and I stopped hearing her over by the trees, but I had to keep pushing. And then I heard a Parkland person say, 'She started her kick too early,' but I knew I didn't because we did workouts right there," Charboneau said.

With that kick, Charboneau clinched first place in the girls' race.

"I was excited, and I was really proud of the other runners," she said. "There were a lot of skilled girls so I knew I was going to have competition, but I know myself and I was going to do my normal strategy. From Paul Short, I knew I couldn't go out too fast because that would end badly for me."

Hawks fall to EHS in high-scoring game

BY STEVE ALTHOUSE

You knew it would come to this. It always comes to this after every football game for the Bethlehem Catholic Golden Hawks.

"Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name..."

It places the 50-49 EPC South loss to the Emmaus Green Hornets (8-1, 6-1 EPC South) on Oct. 20 at BASD Stadium in perspective. It is, after all, a football game. It is not a matter of life or death. But that doesn't mean a loss like this doesn't hurt, and hurt like a swift kick to the groin. Why? Mistakes. Too many mistakes sabotaged the Golden Hawks.

"We have to understand we can be a great football team," Henrich said after the game. "We are a talented football team. We are good. But I don't know what it takes to get us to focus to not hurt ourselves so much, and stop doing these little things that kill us... We lost that game."

Normally, a team that accumulates 623 yards in total offense can name the final score. This was a game the Golden Hawks could have won and should have won. They led 14-0 early in the second first quarter and 49-35 in the fourth quarter, but could not seal the deal. The loss drops the Golden Hawks to 6-3, 4-3. If there is a bright spot, it's that Becahi already has a District 11 4A birth in the bank.

"They didn't make the mistakes," Emmaus coach Harold Fairclough said. "It's not about who has more talent all the time. With evenly-matched talent, it comes down to execution."

In a game where 99 combined points were scored, defense was at a premium. Ironically, Emmaus won the game on a defensive stop.

Late in the fourth quarter, Emmaus embarked on its game-winning drive. It was culminated by a 29-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Ethan Parvel to Deonte Castro. The touchdown cut the Becahi lead to one point at 49-48. Fairclough rolled the dice and went for two. After a timeout, Parvel attempted to run to his right but cut all the way back to his left to score.

"We got a two-point conversion stopped in the backfield and can't finish," Henrich said.

Pate duo wins title

BY KATIE MCDONALD

Freedom tennis players Natalie Sinai and Tashanna Smith sailed through the District XI Class 3A Doubles Tennis Tournament last week and were ultimately crowned district champions last Thursday at Lehigh University.

The pair had not lost a game all week until the first set of the final against Parkland's Patricia Yao and Joanna Wu.

Sinai and Smith defeated the Trojan duo, 6-2, 6-0.

Two days earlier, Sinai and Smith defeated Stroudsburg's Sara Denny and Paris Briegel, 6-0, 6-0, in the semifinal, and Emmaus's Shannon Stewart and Jocelyn Chow in the quarterfinal, 6-0, 6-0.

The district doubles tournament began last Monday when Sinai and Smith won their first round match against East Stroudsburg North's Josie Cucullo and Aaliyah Brunson, 6-0, 6-0, and their second round match against Easton's Victoria Santos and Giavanna Williams, 6-0, 6-0.

In the Class 2A doubles tournament, Bethlehem Catholic's Belen Blasco and Jessica Marks made it to the district final but had to forfeit due to an injury sustained before that match.

The Hawks' tournament also began last Monday with victories over Jim Thorpe's Chloe Getz and Trista Gehris, 6-0, 6-0, and Saucon Valley's Sarah Inglis and Katya Yeager, 6-0, 6-0.

In the quarterfinal, Blasco and Marks defeated Salisbury's Bryn Kubinsky and Paige Gibbons, and in the semifinal defeated Moravian Academy's Isabella Bartolacci and Miranda Gibson, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Notre Dame's Logan Lencheski and Keiran Lencheski were then crowned Class 2A champs.

Pates win, LHS falls

The EPC soccer championships continued Thursday with semifinals when Freedom's boys prevailed over Parkland, 1-0, but Liberty's boys lost to Pleasant Valley, 1-0.

The Patriots had not faced the Trojans all season and hadn't won a game against Parkland in the past three years until last Thursday night at Whitehall High School.

"Getting a goal early set the tone," said Freedom senior Bradley Turocy. "We did get run on a lot the end of the first half, but the second half started up and we really wanted to win this game. I haven't beaten Parkland once in soccer my entire four years, so this was the greatest feeling."

It was Turocy who scored the only goal of the game on an assist by Daniel Ramirez.

"We started the game coming at them really hard and the ball just came to me," Ramirez said. "I knew Brad was going to be up there because he's my guy, and I passed it to him."

The goal came less than halfway through the first half.

"We were doing a great job controlling the midfield in the first ten minutes and Dan turned on the kid, I lost Connor Burke and I made a through ball, Dan played a through ball over the top and I got onto it," said Turocy. "We switched to more of a defensive position toward the end of the game. We wanted to keep possession and keep the ball out of our half."

The second half was quiet offensively, making the defense's job even more crucial.

I felt like there was a lot of pressure, yes. We just kept focus on the game, focus on the ball, and focus on the players," said Freedom defender Wes Young. "It was immediate joy."

The victory took the Patriots to the final, facing Pleasant Valley.

"We're all really excited. We beat Pleasant Valley in the regular season but that means nothing. We have to really come hard," Turocy said.

EPC girls' and boys' soccer quarterfinals were played last Tuesday when Liberty's boys and Freedom's boys advanced to semifinals and Liberty's girls did not.

The Hurricane boys took on Easton for the third time this season and won on Tuesday night, 1-0.

"We tied them before and we beat them so we were pretty confident we would get the job done," said Hurricane defender David Reagan. "We knew we were the better team and could put them away."

The game remained scoreless at halftime, so the Hurricanes talked about how to proceed.

"They like to play top so definitely the head-ers, and keeping our shape, keeping it compact and tight. Keep up the intensity," Reagan said.

In the second half, Spencer Koski scored the winning goal off a corner kick.

"Ricardo [Carcamo] is the one who's been taking all the corners for us. In the first half he put in a really good

NASCAR THIS WEEK

SPEED FREAKS

A few questions we had to ask ourselves

Of the eight remaining, who's your biggest surprise?

GODSPEAK: Chase Elliott. When this season started, he had no wins and was doing so-so. Suddenly, he's the guy to beat.

KEN'S CALL: It's easy to suggest Aric Almirola, and maybe even Clint Bowyer, but I'll say Kurt Busch because he's a lame duck at Stewart-Haas Racing, yet keeps it alive.

On the other side, whose departure is most surprising?

GODSPEAK: Sorry to see Ryan Blaney get weeded out of the playoff pot. Coolheaded driver who makes things happen.

KEN'S CALL: Three of the four must be disappointed, but most disappointed should be Kyle Larson, because his entire season seems to be a downer.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

RYAN BLANEY VS. NASCAR

POINTS: Blaney had a good day despite kissing the wall with his No. 12 Ford during the race. He finished seventh, but six points out of the playoffs.

GODWIN KELLY'S TAKE: Blaney is going to learn from this experience and become a real threat next year and in seasons to come. "I messed up and cost us a shot," Blaney said.

GODWIN'S PICKS FOR MARTINSVILLE

WINNER: Jimmie Johnson
REST OF TOP 5: Kyle Busch, Joey Logano, Chase Elliott, Kevin Harvick

FIRST ONE OUT: William Byron
DARK HORSE: Denny Hamlin

DON'T BE SURPRISED IF: Johnson wins. This is where Hendrick Motorsports drivers have the best chance to score a victory.

MARTINSVILLE THREE THINGS TO WATCH

While Chase Elliott enjoyed his second win in three weeks and advanced in the playoffs, four other drivers were cut from postseason play following the race at Kansas. [AP/COLIN E. BRALEY]

1. The fallen four

Four drivers were cut from the playoff herd Sunday at Kansas Speedway as the NASCAR Cup Series heads into the Round of 8. The drivers failing to make the cut were Brad Keselowski, Ryan Blaney, Kyle Larson and Alex Bowman. "I am proud of what we did down the stretch of the year," Keselowski said. "We won three races and did all that ... but of course the ultimate goal is to win a championship."

2. Ford's odds

Going strictly by strength in numbers, Ford's chances of winning the driver's championship look very good at this point. Of the eight drivers still in play, five are from the Ford camp, including all four cars from Stewart-Haas Racing. Toyota has a pair of candidates in Kyle Busch and Martin Truex Jr., while Chevrolet is represented by Chase Elliott. "We will take it one week at a time," said Harvick, a Ford driver.

3. Abbreviated schedule

Martinsville will have only two days of racing activity, and if you blink you might miss practice or a race. The NASCAR Camping World Truck Series will qualify and race on Saturday. The race is scheduled for 1 p.m. on Fox Sports 1. The NASCAR Cup Series has two practices scheduled Saturday, but both will be broadcast on NBC's stock-market network, CNBC. Guess it fits because this is STOCK car racing.

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

What happened to the 'Big 3'?

They're all still very much alive in the playoffs ... well, at least two of them. But it's true, what looked to be a three-man show through summer has given way to Chase Elliott's current roll. Kyle Busch showed good form at Kansas, finishing second, but that came after finishes of 32nd, eighth and 26th the previous three weeks. Kevin Harvick was 28th and 12th the past two weeks, with his most recent win coming Aug. 12 at Michigan. And Martin Truex Jr., who seems out of stride since his team's lame-duck status became official, finally got back into the top 10 at Kansas after three races outside of it.

So now it's a 'Big ... 1'?

Momentum is only as good as your next set of tires, so don't start thinking Elliott's No. 9 team has it all figured out. Someone will hit on something over the next few weeks and find the fast lane, and given their 2018 track records, don't bet against the Harvick and Kyle Busch teams.

KANSAS THREE THINGS WE LEARNED

1. Much ado

There was a lot of talk about Kyle Larson's 10-point penalty, which knocked him out of a mathematical chance of moving into the Round of 8. Ganassi Racing appealed and lost. "I don't know much about the appeal stuff," Larson said. "I kind of just drive the race car."

2. When you're hot

When you're hot, you're hot. It took Chase Elliott three seasons to win his first race, but in his past 11 starts, he has won three races, including a pair of victories in the Round of 12. "This is a huge time of year," Elliott said. "We have a lot of work to do and a long way to go."

Kyle Larson's team had a controversial week, but he put the blinders on heading into Kansas. [AP/COLIN E. BRALEY]

3. Bowman beaming

As expected, Alex Bowman's playoff came to an end, but he was just happy to make the field. "I'm very proud of the progress we've made over the course of the year and how everybody at Hendrick Motorsports has stepped up," said Bowman, who replaced Dale Earnhardt Jr. in '18.

Liberty looking for volleyball redemption

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Second chances don't always come in life, but for Liberty's volleyball team, they'll have that opportunity when the District 11 tournament kicks off this Thursday.

Liberty (14-3), who lost to Central Catholic in the opening round of the EPC tournament, takes on Delaware Valley (14-3) in a four-five matchup at home with the hopes of making a run in districts. The Hurricanes are in the opposite half of the bracket, meaning they'll likely get a semifinal round battle against top-seeded Emmaus (16-4) should both teams advance.

After winning the EPC the past two seasons, Missy Lynn's crew is picking up the pieces after a first round exit.

"We're back at practice, business as usual," she said. "They know what they have to do. We had a breakdown in passing against Central, and ended up out of system for the majority of the match. It's not typically a skill I need to worry about with these girls. They have to be able to refocus and not let one bad pass turn into a bad game or match. I think, physically, we're as ready as we're doing to be. We just have to toughen up mentally."

Freedom (11-7), the seventh seed, unfortunately finds themselves in the bottom bracket with the likes of third-seeded Nazareth (20-3), the EPC champ, and second-seeded Parkland (16-3), the EPC runner-up.

The Pates take on Easton, the tenth seed, in Thursday's opening round at Parkland with the winner facing the Trojans that night at 6:45 p.m.

Liberty's bout with Emmaus seems like a lock and the Hurricanes seem focused at the task at hand.

"I have a lot of confidence in my team," said Lynn. "We should match up well against Delaware Valley. We haven't played Emmaus yet, but we're on a collision course with them and I'm excited to see what we can do against such a strong team. The top of this district is pretty evenly matched. I think we're all in for some fun volleyball."

In 3A, Bethlehem Catholic (12-6) faces a Central Catholic (12-6) in a four-five matchup in Wednesday's opening round. The Vikings swept the Hawks earlier this season, but look for a dose of revenge in a rivalry contest to open the postseason.

The winner of match will take on top-seeded Southern Lehigh.

Fermin, Frank finish in top-10

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Liberty distance runners Darlyn Fermin and Cole Frank medaled at the EPC Cross Country Championships last Tuesday at Bethlehem Municipal Golf Course.

Fermin placed sixth with a time of 17:00.4.

"I went out faster than my normal pace," Fermin said. "I don't like it cold. I was doing fine until the second mile. At the finish, I had nothing left in my tank.

[For districts] I may try to stay behind the top five and let them take the air. Then after that, I'll have to go early with my kick."

Frank placed eighth with a time of 17:10.1.

"I started off easy because I knew the hills were coming up, and then after the hills I really pushed it on the golf course," Frank said. "After the first hill we went up, my arms started to get really tight and then I kind of loosened them up at the top and I felt better. I wanted to go 17 flat, but that's OK."

Freedom's Nick Bauer placed 33rd in 18:02.1, Liberty's Casey Frank was 43rd in 18:21.7, Liberty's Ryan Wycherley came in 51st in 18:36.7, Freedom's Dylan Stahl was 56th in 18:45.2, Liberty's Paul Jensen was 57th in 18:45.8, and Bethlehem Catholic's Matt Millen placed 58th in 18:48.9.

Liberty's Philip Bezas finished in 63rd in 18:58.0, Freedom's Josh Noel was 65th in 19:07.7, Freedom's Josh Konschnik was 69th in 19:14.1, Freedom's Christian Jancsarics was 70th in 19:16.9, Liberty's Sam Graybeal placed 73rd in 19:18.4, and Bechahi's Owen Fitzgerald was 77th in 19:23.3.

In team results, Liberty placed sixth, Freedom placed eighth, and Bechahi was 14th.

Parkland's boys placed first overall.

'Canes top Whitehall; set for Freedom showdown

BY STEVE ANDRES
Special to the Press

Liberty leaned on their ground game as they bowled over Whitehall last Friday, setting up a showdown with crosstown rival Freedom that could decide its postseason fate.

The 'Canes rolled up 364 rushing yards, using a power running attack to earn the 41-21 win at Zephyr Stadium, and in the process kept the door open for a possible District XI 6A playoff berth.

It was the second win in a row for the 'Canes (4-5) who will try to hand the Patriots their first loss of the season this Friday. Freedom comes into the game 9-0 as they defeated Allentown Central Catholic 42-17 last week.

Liberty wasted no time in asserting itself on the ground as they took their opening possession and marched 80 yards for the score. That drive was highlighted by big runs from Todd Erney and Nasir Legree, the latter barreling 26 yards to get them just outside the red zone. Erney capped the drive with a 6-yard run to get them on the board, a lead they would never relinquish in their crucial EPC South win.

They added TD runs of 7, 11, 19, 3, and 16 yards as Erney, Legree and Jaiden Canada tore through the Whitehall defense all night long to set up that showdown with Freedom.

Legree's night produced 139 yards on the ground, along with a bevy of battered Zephyrs who bounced off the powerful runner as broke through initial contact almost every time he had the ball. He was often dragging tacklers well down the field, always churning his legs for extra yards. For him, fighting through those tackles is a mindset.

"Honestly, that's just mental," said Legree. "Every play I'm thinking, I want to go, I want to go, I don't want to stop. It's just mentally being focused and staying determined and just working and pushing my legs."

Legree said that it all begins in practice with the line focusing on their technique, and taking care of what they have to do up front. That lays the foundation for his role.

"Then I do whatever I can," said Legree.

That whatever makes Liberty a dangerous team as the vie for a postseason spot. They have a potent ground game, one that can control the clock and keep their offense on the field. Still, Legree knows that a big game is looming and they'll need to be prepared if they want to spoil Freedom's undefeated season.

"Just a lot of focus and discipline," said Legree. "As long as we stay disciplined we can accomplish anything we want to do."

Head coach John Truby said that their ground game returned back in force and that they were able to hit a few big plays that kept the chains moving all night. Canada (11-81) hit a run for 45 yards, while Erney finished with 134 yards, including a long of 36 yards.

The 'Canes only threw the ball for 19 yards, and that's an area he would like to see some improvement, but their ground game was too efficient to abandon.

"If you're running the ball the way we were, you just can't stop," said Truby.

Truby said that Legree is a special player and he helps make their ground attack one of the best in the league.

"He's a special kid, he's a great kid, and I'm really very happy for him because we're getting close to some records, and I hope we can build on the success we had tonight," said Truby.

Truby said that their early struggles served as a learning experience, and now they must make sure they're "ready to go" this week.

"I think it's one of those games where you can toss all the records out, but at the same time, they're a very, very good football team," said Truby. "Freedom is undefeated for a reason. They're very good and we have to make sure we're a little more consistent on all phases of the game. If we're able to do that, we'll see."

Truby said that their fate rests in their own hands, and if they beat Freedom they're in the playoffs. They're vying for that final spot with Pocono Mountain West who takes on Pocono Mountain East (4-5), a 5A school, in their own end-of-season grudge match.

Truby would rather get into the playoffs on their own merit.

"That's kind of our attitude," said Truby. "Tonight was a playoff game, next week is a playoff game. For us we didn't do enough in the beginning of the season, and hopefully we can do enough now."

After these two wins, Legree says that their trending the right way. He said that everyone's playing a role, including players on the sidelines who encouraging their teammates on the field.

"You need that as a team," said Legree.

Tavion Banks returned the ensuing kickoff with a rush to the Emmaus 48-yard line. After a few plays, the Hawks had moved to the Emmaus 27, but two ambush sacks took them out of field goal range. Forced to gamble on fourth and long, Bechahi came up empty.

The cruel loss in no way diminishes two awesome rushing performances by Banks and backfield mate Zaheer Seabrooks. Time and again this dynamic duo went into the Emmaus meat grinder and time and again they emerged with legs still chopping. They did it with a combination of bullheaded running and fancy feet. It often took half the Hornet defense to tame Banks and Seabrooks after they were initially hit. Sometimes the rushers would run through arm tackles with defiance. Other times, they would use a shake and bake.

Banks racked up 226 yards on 24 carries and four touchdowns. Seabrooks carried the pill 22 times for 186 yards and two touchdowns. Most of the night the Bechahi offensive line won their individual battles and even when they didn't, Banks and Seabrooks still managed to escape the clutches.

Bethlehem Catholic quarterback Zamar Brake was also superb. He completed 12 of 13 passes for 154 yards. His lone incompleteness came in the second quarter, when Emmaus' Sone Ntoh picked off an underthrown pass.

"I thought we played hard, I thought we kept battling, never say die," Henrich said. "The bottom line was they out-executed us at critical times."

Unfortunately for Bechahi, its defense was not nearly as good. Emmaus' offense is dangerous. The Hornets accumulated 357 yards of offense, but also received two gift-wrapped scores, thanks to Bethlehem Catholic fumbles. With 9:50 remaining in the third quarter, Ntoh journeyed 68 yards for a touchdown with a fumble recovery to give the Hornets a 28-21 lead. With the clock showing 10:46 in the fourth quarter, Gabe Trexler recovered a fumble in the end zone on a Emmaus kickoff to tie it 42-42.

"We gave up two fumbles for touchdowns," Henrich said after the game, shaking his head. "...We have got to find a way, if we are going to reach our goals, one week at a time, to focus and be smarter. Execute at a higher level. That's what it comes down to."

on the Patriot defense's radar as one of the Bears who could have spoiled that for them.

"Coach didn't tell me to mark him or anything, but I knew he was the league MVP for a reason, and I took it upon myself to really go at him whenever he got the ball and make sure he didn't have any real chances on that," said Patriot defender Zachary Shay. "I was thinking about closing Zion down the entire game."

In the final minute of the first half, Shay stayed on Moore and foiled his chances as the Pleasant Valley forward threatened to score.

"Coming down the wing and one-on-one, if he would have gotten by me, he would have been one-on-one with the goalie, but getting the ball from him and then clearing it up down the line and hearing the crowd was probably the best feeling," Shay said.

Earlier in the game in the 13th minute, Moore took a hard shot that was stopped by Freedom goalkeeper Derek Bast, his first of four saves.

With almost the same time on the clock in the second half, Jared Whitehorn took the ball down the field on a pass from Wes Young and scored the Patriots' second goal.

"Once I had that step of space, I knew I had to rip it. As soon as I saw it roll into the back of the net, I've never felt a feeling like that," especially in an EPC final," Whitehorn said.

Gold medals were presented to the Patriots by Reightler, Freedom athletic director Nate Stanard, and Freedom principal Michael LaPorta before the EPC trophy presentation made by Fred Harris.

"It's been a long time coming," said Whitehorn. "It's something we've been working toward for four years now. We celebrate tonight, but as soon as next week starts, we have to look at districts and look to win that title."

Also on Tuesday night, Freedom's boys defeated Pocono Mountain East, 4-1.

Liberty's girls lost to Whitehall, 3-0, on Tuesday afternoon.

was 19:36.3.

"I knew if Lauren ran really well, she was going to be hard to beat," said Freedom coach Bob Thear. "We talked about going out with the beginning of the pack and at the mile she was behind two Easton girls, but she didn't go out that hard, so I thought she was in a great spot."

"She made her move kind of coming up that second hill and took the lead and it was her and the girl from Parkland from there on out. Coming around at the end, she looked strong and I knew she had a good chance at that point. It was just a matter of what the girl from Parkland was going to do, what kind of kick she had."

But Charboneau had the right kind of kick, and Parkland's Maddie Zahn placed second in 19:44.9.

The top 12 finishers, including Liberty's Emily Jobs who placed ninth in 20:33.3, received medals.

Bethlehem Catholic's Marcela Banuelos placed 15th in 20:59.8, Liberty's Belle Weikert was 20th in 21:11.5, Grace Haas, also from Liberty, was 22nd in 21:20.3, and Freedom's Cailin Connelly was 24th in 21:24.3. Liberty's Greta Stuckey was 28th in 21:33.7, Freedom's Mary Sweeney placed 41st in 22:02.7, Elizabeth Fihlman, placed 46th in 22:06.8, and Camrey Yeager was 51st in 22:18.0, both for the Patriots, and Liberty's Everlyn Sharkan came in 52nd in 22:22.0.

Freedom's Shannon Connelly was 57th in 22:25.2, followed by Liberty's Kaitlyn Murphy, 58th in 22:26.2, Liberty's Camryn Bortz who was 63rd in 22:44.6, Freedom's Sophie Twigg who was 64th in 22:46.6, and Liberty's Madison Drager who came in 65th in 22:47.2.

In team results, Liberty placed fifth, Freedom placed seventh, and Bechahi was 11th.

Easton's girls placed first overall.

"I gave both [girls' and boys'] teams the same goal," Thear said. "I said let's beat somebody today that we lost to."

The week before, the Patriots lost to Northampton, Nazareth, and Easton, and Thear didn't think they would lose by as much as they did.

"I thought we'd mix it up better with them, so I thought those were good goals. The girls beat Nazareth today and they weren't that far behind Northampton. Cailin, she ran great. And three others ran 22, so I was collectively very pleased with our girls," Thear said.

31st Celtic Classic

Nice weather, big crowds

BY MARK KIRLIN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The 31st annual Celtic Classic Highland Games and Festival was held in Bethlehem Sept. 28-30. The festival is the largest free Celtic festival in North America, and this year's event benefited from sunny weather with temperatures in the low 70s on both Saturday and Sunday.

With the nice weather came large crowds that most likely allowed the event to reach its historical average of over 280,000 people during the three days.

New for this year was the women's highland games demonstration. Three of the top women contenders in the country participated in a demonstration that featured the same type of highland games the men traditionally take part in. Event organizers are hopeful that the women's portion garners enough interest to host a full fledged women's competition in the coming years.

Other popular traditions included an assortment of food, music, merchandise, pipe bands, highland games, dance, blacksmiths, poetry, oral history, baking contests, fiddle demonstrations and many other activities.

One of the vendors was Heavens Honey, operated by Sarah Ervin. Sarah is a local beekeeper and sells honey in front of the State Farm Agency on Route 378.

During the festival there were an assortment of vendors selling hats. Above is young Matias Paredes, who is very eager to pose with one of the hats.

They performed at the Ice House on Sand Island.

'Seamus Kennedy' carries on with the audience, playing fun Irish music in his solo act. He often poked fun at the audience pulling out big laughs, including Press photographer Lori Patrick, when he told the audience during a song, "wait, a photographer is taking my picture, I need to stop for a pose," resulting in this picture and lots of clapping. A Good Sinner?

Evangelist Eddie Martin told of a lady who came forward in response to a salvation invitation. He took her hand and began to lead her in a sinner's prayer asking her to repeat after him, "Dear Lord, I know I'm a no-good sinner..." She never said a word. He looked at her and said, "Don't you want to be saved?" She said, "Yes, but I'm not a sinner." "Then you can't be saved," Eddie said, "Jesus only died for sinners." "But, Mr. Martin," she replied, "I'm a good sinner."

"A good sinner? Lady, there are no good sinners! You will have to take your seat. God can't save you until you become conscious that you are a no-good sinner and need His forgiveness." "But you don't understand," she said, "I'm really not a bad sinner."

Evangelist Martin relates, "I told her to go sit down. She held onto my hand with a vise-like grip. Finally she said, 'Oh, please forgive me. I know I am a no-good, hell-deserving sinner. I am a proud, no-good sinner. I do need Christ to forgive me of my sins.' I said, 'Now, lady, you are ready to do business with God.' We prayed—she came clean with God and He saved her!"

The Bible declares, "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us" (1John 1:8). Let us cry out to God as did the prophet Isaiah, "Woe is me! for I am undone" (Isaiah 6:5) and admit, "all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags" (Isaiah 64:6). If we have the attitude of the prodigal son, "Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son" (Luke 15:21), and pray with David, "O LORD, pardon mine iniquity; for it is great" (Psalm 25:11), God will hear us as He did the publican who prayed, "God be merciful to me a sinner" (Luke 18:13). The Bible states, "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1John 1:9). See "A SINNER'S PRAYER" at www.naog.ws/message.htm

'Rise' to the occasion

Daniel Rodriguez to sing, Daniel Roebuck to narrate ASO Veterans' Day concerts

CLASSICAL VIEWS

By Diane Wittry

The Armistice of Nov. 11, 1918, was the document that ended the fighting on land, sea, and air in World War I between the Allies and their opponent, Germany. The signing of this document took place at the "eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month" of 1918. It is a national holiday in many countries.

Over time, the name was changed in the United States in order to honor veterans who have served in the military. We now call Nov. 11 Veterans Day.

In honor of the 100th anniversary of Armistice Day, the Allentown Symphony commissioned Grammy-nominated Chinese-American composer Zhou Tian to write a new piece of music to open the 7:30 p.m. Nov. 10 and 3 p.m. Nov. 11 concerts. The opening piece, "Rise," was inspired by diaries written by American soldiers during World War I.

Wrote Zhou Tian about his latest work:

"While visiting the Library of Congress, I was drawn to the personal and unmediated experiences and emotions that the soldiers themselves wrote on the battleground.

"Whether it is a brief note about the weather, a long entry about losing a comrade, or a touching moment when a letter from home arrives, the stories moved me deeply.

"Rise' attempts to convey the emotions of the servicemen, their fears, frustrations, love and awe, through the intimacy and power of the symphony orchestra."

Each piece in the Nov. 10 and 11 concerts is thematically-connected to a particular United States' war.

Daniel Roebuck, renowned movie and television actor born and raised in Bethlehem, will read the narration for Aaron Copland's "Lincoln Portrait" that features text from Lincoln's State of the Union address of 1862 and the Gettysburg Address during the Civil War in 1863.

To commemorate the Vietnam War, the Allentown Symphony will perform Samuel Barber's

"Adagio for Strings," which has been heard on soundtracks See VIEWS on Page B2 for the films "Saving Private Ryan" and "Platoon." The "Adagio" is one of the most moving pieces of music I know and shows how music can communicate emotions so much more powerfully than words.

Shortly after the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks on the Twin Towers of the World Trade Center in New York City, the world turned to music to express its grief and sorrow.

In the weeks that followed, Daniel Rodriguez, a Puerto Rican-American who worked for the New York City Police Department, became known as "The Singing Policeman." He received widespread attention with his rendition of "God Bless America," which he sang at memorial events commemorating those who died on 9/11. For the Allentown Symphony concerts, he will sing "God Bless America" and "America the Beautiful."

The second half of the Veterans Day concerts program commemorates the end of World War II.

Shortly after the Battle of Normandy in the summer of 1944, Russian composer Serge Prokofiev was hard at work at a composer's retreat outside of Moscow on his Symphony No. 5. After having lived through many years of being surrounded by war, his Symphony No. 5 was written to "celebrate the spirit of man."

Prokofiev said, "In the Fifth Symphony, I wanted to sing the praises of the free and happy man, his strength, his generosity and the purity of his soul."

During the difficult war years in Russia, the government dictated that music "was meant to console and uplift, to encourage and exhort; nothing else mattered." The officials wanted music that was "happy" and "for the people."

Underneath the surface melodies and textures of Prokofiev's "Symphony No. 5," however, one hears insinuations of the violence of warfare, the drama, the brooding, the irony, the searching for meaning, the grief of facing of death, and finally, in the final movement, the release of joy and triumph.

The performance of Prokofiev's Symphony No. 5 was much anticipated and the audience was excited because at that time, Russia was winning the war. Immediately before the concert began, it was announced that the Russian army had had a big victory on the River Vistula.

But when Prokofiev took his place on the podium to conduct and lifted his arms to start the piece, he had to stop because suddenly artillery sounded nearby in the city of Moscow. It was only after the canons had stopped their barrage that he was able to begin the piece. It was almost like the signal of a turning point in the war.

Because of Symphony No. 5's close connection to the end of World War II and its celebration of the "spirit of man," I felt it was the perfect piece for the second half of the Allentown Symphony Orchestra's concert commemorating the veterans who have served in war, protecting and preserving freedom and human rights for all.

Throughout the concert, we will be using quotes from servicemen's letters, along with famous speeches, as well as photographs from United States' wars to enhance our musical journey.

If you have family photographs or letters that you would like to be considered for inclusion in the concert, please scan them and send electronically as an attachment to: mangelo@allentownsymphony.org.

The United States was built on the strong foundation of freedom for all, and so many men and women over the years have sacrificed their lives to sustain that vision. The music performed by the Allentown Symphony during this musical tribute to our veterans will communicate far beyond what words can say about our appreciation for their dedication and their great sacrifice.

"Meet the Artist," with Allentown Symphony Music Director-Conductor Diane Wittry, actor Daniel Roebuck and vocalist Daniel Rodriguez, noon-1 p.m. Nov. 9, Miller Symphony Hall, Allentown. The talk is free and open to the public.

Diane Wittry, Music Director and Conductor of the Allentown Symphony Orchestra and The Garden State Philharmonic, New Jersey, is author of "Beyond the Baton" and "Baton Basics." She teaches conducting workshops throughout the United States and Europe.

Tickets: Miller Symphony Hall Box Office, 23 N. Sixth St., Allentown; allentownsymphony.org; 610-432-6715. Free student tickets, underwritten by a grant from the Century Fund, are available for Allentown Symphony Orchestra concerts.

Why no more Sunday-best for church?

Dear Jacquelyn, I've noticed for years now that people don't bother to get dressed up to attend church services anymore. When I was a child, putting on nice Sunday clothing was expected. I know that I am not alone when I say that I grow weary of seeing people come to church in clothes that they would wear to clean out the garage. Why don't people wear their Sunday-best to church anymore?

RESPECTFULLY YOURS
By Jacquelyn Youst

approach to dressing down for Sunday service has gotten sloppy. Some saunter into church in baggy shorts, sweats and tennis shoes. Clothing like this isn't inappropriate in itself, but too often it can be worn in the wrong context.

If you had the opportunity to meet the Queen of England, you wouldn't show up in at Windsor Castle dressed in your sweatpants. Another example is: We honor the dead and show respect by dressing nicely for funeral and viewing services. But, today it's not typical on Sundays in God's house.

Going to church should not be a lax process of picking the wrinkled shirt and worn jeans randomly grabbed off the floor. Dressing nicely for church has nothing to do with putting up fronts or appeasing people. It's a personal decision to be made that states our intention.

I agree that more time and thought should be given to Sunday service attire. The question that needs to be asked is: "Why walk into God's house with dirty sneakers when there's a pair of clean shoes sitting at home?"

Part of the divide in this is mainly generational. Over the last several generations, attire in general has swayed toward the informal. There's an older generation that has been taught that one of the ways we show honor and respect is to dress up. Then there's a whole generation of people who either haven't been taught that, or just disagree with that whole notion.

Keep in mind that church attire is a preference formed by culture and tradition. Abiding by the silent code that when you dress up for something, you reveal the importance you attach to an occasion. I think it is wise to show respect, and wear your best when going to church.

Respectfully Yours,
Jacquelyn

What the heck should I eat?

When I was a kid, I loved hearing my dad talk about his childhood.

One of the stories he told was about the apple tree in his neighbor's backyard.

One time my dad climbed the tree and ate so many apples he had awful stomach pain because they were crabapples.

He ate so many, he said, because he was hungry and had nothing else to eat.

From the other stories I heard from my parents, I know they struggled during hard times to put enough food on the table.

My mother said if my dad weren't a hunter they would not have had any meat. She admitted there were times when she only had a quarter for groceries because the mines were flooded and my dad couldn't work for weeks.

They never put their hands out for help.

How ironic is it that in just one generation our family doesn't struggle to find enough to eat. We struggle because we have too much to eat.

In two generations, it gets worse. My daughter admits she sometimes throws away fattening food because she doesn't want to be tempted to eat it.

I grew up in a home where one of the biggest crimes you could commit was wasting food. Even when economic times improved and there were no worries about affording food, my mom was fierce about never wasting so much as a piece of celery. She would be rolling over in her grave to know my daughter is deliberately throwing food away.

I never waste any food. But I am consumed with worries about food. I worry because I eat too much, not because I have nothing to eat.

Like so many people who grow more health-conscious as we age, I am consumed with wanting to eat healthy. When we see so many people our age falling over like pins in a bowling alley, we want to "eat healthy" so we can avoid that as long as possible.

The biggest irony now to the food situation is that most of us know more about nutrition and healthy eating than did past generations.

Yet, we are fatter with more health-related issues than previous generations.

I'm like millions of other people who say they would like to lose 10 pounds. But believe it or not, health is my focus, not weight.

I believe food expert Dr. Mark Hyman says good health starts at the end of your fork. Because I have seen many do it, I believe we can cure some of our aches, pains and illnesses by making lifestyle changes, starting with the food we eat.

Since I believe Dr. Hyman when he says, "We eat ourselves into diseases," I'm working on cleaning up my act.

I never thought I could give up things like potato chips and chocolate cake, but I'm focusing on avoiding things that are bad for my health such as excessive artificial sugars, high fructose corn syrup and hydrogenated oils.

Because of that I spent an hour and a half in the grocery store reading labels but walked away with only a small bag of groceries when I read what was in the food I would normally buy.

Like most people, I pick and choose what food advice I will accept. Dr. Hyman writes that most peanut butter contains high fructose corn syrup and hydrogenated oils. Is nothing sacred?

I'll switch to a healthier peanut butter, but I'm not giving up all my comfort food.

After reading Dr. Hyman's latest book, "Food — What the Heck Should I Eat?" I'm more confused than ever about what is good food and what is a health trap.

My friend Andy says it's easy to know what to eat. "Just eat what you like," he says.

There was a time when for me, eating what I liked best would be eating a huge bowl of spaghetti.

By paying attention to my body and to what happens after I eat certain things, I've learned eating like that makes me sluggish and sleepy.

The strange thing is concentrating on the fruits and vegetables I love hasn't taken the fun out of eating. But knowing what to cook is getting harder.

The other day one daughter sent a text saying she was making cauliflower steaks on the grill. The other daughter said she was making buffalo cauliflower that tastes like chicken wings. Much of that "new eating" has to do with an emphasis on what is supposed to be good for us.

You can see why I envy my Italian grandmother's generation that never believed in portion control or in turning down favorite foods.

My grandmother lived to the ripe old age of 92 and ate like a truck driver until she died.

But she never ate processed food, ate very little red meat, never had artificial sugar and thrived on everything made from scratch with the greens and vegetables in her garden.

She never heard of antioxidants, the glucose index, avoiding gluten or counting carbs.

So, with all our new understanding of nutrition, what have we gained and what have we lost?

I don't know how long I'm going to read the food books I bought before I decide I've had enough and tuck them away somewhere.

I do have to admit the books made me realize all the foolish food I ate, thinking it was good for me.

Maybe I'll get a little bit smarter. Maybe I'll even get a little bit healthier.

Or, maybe down the line another food expert will come along and point out how everything we are eating now is bad for us.

Who ever thought what to eat would be so confusing?

Toddler finds out four can be a crowd

Q. Our two-year-old was so excited when we brought home her new baby brother, but she has now done a complete turnaround. She screams, cries and whines about everything. She only wants her mommy, wants nothing to do with daddy, won't let him help her with anything or put her to bed anymore. She's always been a fantastic sleeper, but now she won't sleep in her own bed, and if she does, she is up at 3 a.m. and is in ours. How do we cope with a jealous toddler?

parents can love both of them."

It doesn't take long for the two-year-old to become aware of what behavior gets the most attention, according to Stefanyak, who added that the toddler is emulating what the baby does. It cries a lot and gets picked up. It wakes up at 3 a.m. to get fed. "By emulating these behaviors, the two-year-old is getting the attention she wants."

A turnaround in behavior of the toddler is to be expected, panelist Chad Stefanyak said: "A two-year-old mimics adults' excitement about whatever. When the baby comes home, the toddler begins to understand what a new baby means: reduced attention on the daughter, and everything that results from that."

"Most of mom's time is taken up with the new baby," panelist Denise Continenza observed, "and it is hard for the toddler to grasp that her should be other times during the day that the mother could set aside as "toddler time" when the daughter becomes the center of attention. Stefanyak encouraged the father to make a "big deal" out of seeing the two-year-old when he comes home from work.

Addressing the sleeping problem, panelist Mike Daniels said, "Co-sleeping in bed with parents isn't recommended, but it happens when co-sleeping is used as a stress reliever."

If the toddler is trying to sleep in her parents' bed, panelist Pam Wallace suggested making another place in the parents' room for the toddler to sleep. "When the baby goes back to his room, the toddler goes back to hers."

On the positive side, Stefanyak said, "Some of this will fix itself as the newborn falls into a routine and sleeps all night: "This, too, shall pass."

Life has no meaning. Most people are rotten. I'm weak. I hate myself-everyone. The future is awful. What's wrong with me? I'll never make it. What's the point of going on? Was I ever happy? I'm letting everyone down.

Pray or meditate every chance you get. This reduces stress and lead to joy and peace. I use this technique whenever I'm forced to wait anywhere but in traffic. Good use of what would be wasted time.

Take naps. Even a 15-minute power nap will improve your state of mind.

Walk in a pleasant, natural setting: the woods or a park. The beauty, exercise and fresh air are tonics.

Recall all the happiest, most serene moments in your life: weddings, births, vacations, successes. Dwell on these moments instead of the garbage dumped into your mind.

Remind yourself that negativity hurts you. It's worth the effort to be positive because it makes you feel better.

Read positive quotes. These will uplift you because of their message and the realization that so many wise people are life-affirming. A good place to find upbeat messages is in "The Book of Positive Quotations" by John Cook. Or, search the internet for "positive quotations." There are many websites that offer inspiration.

If you think negatively about someone, recall one of their good traits.

"Smile though your heart is breaking ... " There's wisdom in these lyrics from the song, "Smile," written by Charlie Chaplin. It's harder to be sad if you smile. The principle of this technique works with body language, too. Walk with your head up and shoulders back.

Avoid negative people if you can. They will bring you down.

Help others. The psychic income is invaluable. And you will stop thinking about your own troubles.

Gratitude. Count your blessings got to be a cliché because it works. If you're not grateful for what you have, you can never be happy.

Have fun. This is difficult when you're down. You're not in the mood for fun. You have to force yourself. After you've See GEEZER on Page B8

5 GREAT REASONS TO TAKE ENGAGEMENT PHOTOS

During their engagements, couples will make many decisions in regard to their weddings. Wedding planning can sometimes seem like a runaway train of appointments, schedules and deadlines. As a result, some couples do not take the time to enjoy being engaged, which is a special and unique time in their lives.

Engagement photo shoots can be a unique way for couples to commemorate and enjoy the months preceding their weddings. Engagement photos memorialize the engagement and provide many additional benefits as well.

1. Engagement photo shoots give couples a chance to connect with their photographers. Booking an engagement photo shoot provides helpful information to both the couple and the photographer. The photographer gets to see how the couple interacts in front of the lens and can determine any insecurities or strengths and weaknesses couples may have. These lessons can be filed away and help make wedding day photos look better. Similarly, spending time with the photographer gives the couple an opportunity to develop a rapport with their photographer. If couples and their photographer don't click, scheduling an engagement shoot well in advance of the wedding gives couples a chance to find someone else to take their photos.

2. An engagement photo shoot gives couples time to spend together. An engagement photo shoot is an ideal time to spend an afternoon in a special location focusing on each other without wedding planning taking up your time.

3. Photo shoots provide a chance to get comfortable in front of the camera. Professional photographs taken before the wedding enable couples to view how they will appear in pictures. Seeing these photos might help couples grow more comfortable in front of the camera. This practice can help couples temper their anxieties prior to the wedding. An engagement shoot also can be a great time for couples to speak with their photographers about angles or styles they prefer or dislike.

4. The bride and groom have save-the-date or social media photos. Engagement photographs can be used for save-the-date cards or social media postings (check with the photographer for licensing agreements). This can be a great way to spread excitement about the upcoming nuptials.

5. Photo shoots provide a chance to experiment with vivid backdrops. Engagement photography gives couples plenty of opportunities to experiment with different locales, which may not be possible come the wedding day.

Engagement photography can be a worthwhile inclusion in pre-wedding celebrations.

The grandeur that is Civic's Nineteenth Street Theatre

PRESS PHOTOS BY LORI PATRICK

Inside Civic Theatre of Allentown's renovated Nineteenth Street Theatre, the ceiling dome has been restored and the back wall's original painted murals have been refurbished.

New seats, an orchestra pit below stage-front, and new lighting, sound and HVAC system are some of the improvements that set the stage for "Billy Elliot: The Musical," which reopened the Nineteenth Street Theatre, Oct. 12-28, 2018.

The "Name a Seat" campaign is part of Civic Theatre's $5.5-million "The Next Act: Setting The Stage For The Future" Capital Campaign.

major dividends. The organization has played a notable part in Allentown's history and has been a constant companion to many people throughout the region. Annually, about 45,000 tickets are sold, and nearly 5,300 children from 12 elementary schools participate in Civic's art and literacy programs.

"It's a real gem in the Lehigh Valley and it has created so many memories," DeFebo-Edwards says.

The memories may exist, but it still wasn't an easy decision to reinvest in the facility. Polishing the stately Civic Theatre was "a giant leap of faith," DeFebo-Edwards says.

While the Nineteenth Street Theatre was structurally-sound, time had stolen some of the building's luster. In order to confidently move forward, leadership decided a restoration was essential.

The premise for "The Next Act: Setting the Stage for the Future"

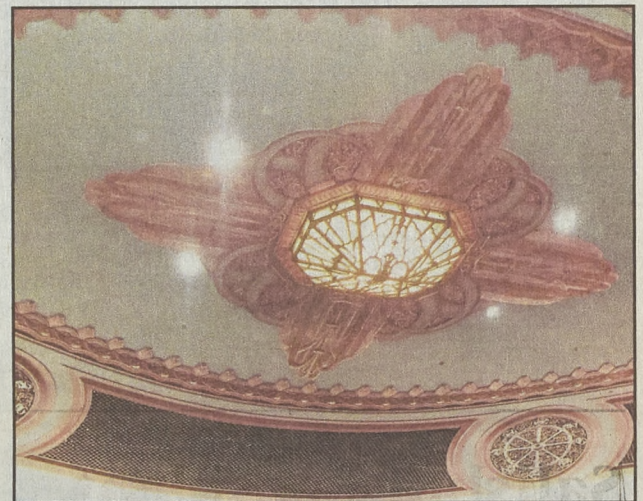

Capital Campaign was simple: Restore the proud building to its original splendor as a focal point of art deco architecture, and as a cultural hub for the Allentown West End Theatre District it calls home.

Civic's leadership settled on a strategy to invest $5.5 million. They were fortunate to receive a significant $2 million Redevelopment Assistance Capital Program (RACP) grant from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, leaving them with the task of raising $3.5 million.

The fundraising is taking place in three phrases. The first commenced in spring 2017 and ended that November with a $1.5 million mark. The second, taking place this year and ending in September, was expected to garner $3.5 million. The final portion takes place during a 10-month period with a goal of about $500,000.

"There's a new box office, a complete renovation of the auditorium and lobby," DeFebo-Edwards says.

In addition, improved access, stage and back-stage areas have been completed. For those who pay attention to details, you'll notice the wall frescoes and detailed ceiling dome have been refurbished. There are also additional comforts for the body and sound for the senses. A renovation of the second-floor classroom and rehearsal space awaits.

"We have new seats and a new sound system," says DeFebo-Edwards. Collectively, all the updates will enhance the theater-goers' experience, she notes.

For all the updates, the Civic Theatre is more than a building. It's an attitude about the arts. The arts, DeFebo-Edwards says, matter.

"We all believe so deeply in the arts," she says. "... It's a labor of love for everyone involved."

The non-profit organization presents locally-produced theater, shows independent films and provides performing arts instruction to thousands of children. That instruction is particularly important, as Civic officials say they want to see the letter "A" added to the traditional science and technology curriculum of STEM.

Established more than a half century ago, Civic Theatre's school program provides training in the theater arts. That training helps youngsters develop skills in teamwork, creativity, problem-solving and accountability.

"I really see Civic as partners supporting one another," DeFebo-Edwards says.

LV house sales again decrease, down 9.7 percent in September

BY PAUL WILLISTEIN
pwillistein@tronline.com

After a one-month uptick in closed sales for Lehigh Valley houses following six months of declines, sales of houses in the Valley decreased by nearly double digits in September.

Closed sales dropped 9.7 percent in September to 651 houses sold, down from 721 houses sold in September 2017, according to the Greater Lehigh Valley Realtors (GLVR) September report, released Oct. 15.

For the year-to-date, the percentage of closed sales for 2018 is down slightly, by 1.5 percent, with 6,267 houses sold, compared to 6,360 houses sold year-to-date in 2017.

Pending sales were also down in September, by 2.9 percent, to 674, compared to 694 in September 2017.

Pending sales for 2018 are up slightly, 0.3 percent to 6,759, compared to 6,738 year-to-date for 2017.

New listings also declined in September, by 5.2 percent to 942, compared to 994 in September 2017.

Inventory levels again shrank in September, down 12.5 percent to 2,111 units, compared to 2,412 units in September 2017.

Days on Market was down 23.8 percent to 32 days in September, compared to 42 days in September 2017.

The Months Supply of Inventory dropped 12.5 percent to 3 months in September, compared to 3.5 months in September 2017.

Market analysis
According to the GLVR, the September data showed continued buyer demand and sales excitement, despite the usual end-of-year cool down.

"As we've noted in the past, it was anticipated that the Lehigh Valley would see a gain in inventory numbers, which had basically bottomed out, slowly over time," said GLVR CEO Justin Porembo. "Over the last several months and into September, we're finally seeing inventory levels trending in a more positive direction."

The Median Sales Price increased 5.6 percent in September to $199,000, up from $188,500 in September 2017.

The Average Sales Price increased 1.4 percent in September to $222,635, compared to $219,613 in September 2017.

The Percentage of List Price Received increased 0.5 percent in August to 98.1 percent, compared to 97.6 percent in September 2017.

The Housing Affordability Index again decreased, down 15.3 percent in September, compared to September 2017.

The GLVR September report noted that some economy observers are pointing to 2018 "as the final period in a long string of sentences touting several happy years of buyer demand and sales excitement" for the housing industry.

Sean LaSalle, President of GLVR, said, "Although residential real estate should continue along a mostly positive line for the rest of the year, rising prices and interest rates, coupled with salary stagnation and a generational trend toward home purchase delay or even disinterest, could create an environment of declining sales.

"However, rather than dwelling on predictions of a somber future, it is well worth the effort to manage the fundamentals that will lead to an ongoing display of healthy balance," said LaSalle.

The GLVR report stated that tracking reputable news sources for housing market predictions makes good sense, as does observing trends based on meaningful statistics.

"By the numbers, we continue to see pockets of unprecedented price heights combined with low days on market and an economic backdrop conducive to consistent demand," stated the GLVR September report.

House sales
Closed sales in August were up 4.7 percent to 907, compared to 866 houses sold in August 2017.

Closed sales in July were down 16.8 percent to 655, compared to 787 houses sold in July 2017.

Closed sales in June were down 25.2 percent with 719 houses sold, compared to 961 houses sold in June 2017.

Closed sales in May were down 8.5 percent with 765 houses sold, compared to 836 houses sold in May 2017.

Closed sales in April were down 10.6 percent with 591 houses sold, compared to 661 houses sold in April 2017.

Closed sales for March were down 7.9 percent to 595 houses sold, compared to 646 houses sold in March 2017.

Closed sales for February were down 6.7 percent to 421 houses sold, compared to 451 houses sold in February 2017.

Closed sales for January were up 2.6 percent to 442 houses sold, compared to 431 houses sold in January 2017.

Carbon County
Carbon County saw another solid month and market balance, according to the GLVR.

In September, Closed Sales increased to 77. The Median Sales Price increased to $148,875.

Pending Sales climbed to 61. Inventory was up to 377 units.

It's bang, zoom, to 'Man' on the moon

"First Man" is fiery, from the incendiary launch of the Saturn rocket during liftoff at Cape Kennedy.

"First Man" is jolting, from the vibrations of the seat in the Imax theater where the movie was seen for this review.

"First Man" is tender, in scenes between Ryan Gosling, who portrays Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon, as he comforts his two-year-old daughter, who died of a brain tumor.

"First Man" is strong, in the strength of character, courage and resolve of Armstrong, and that of his wife, Janet (Claire Foy), the proverbial "behind every great man" there's an even greater, and stronger woman.

"First Man" is a triumph in real-life based space exploration movies, taking its place right up there with "The Right Stuff" (1983) and "Apollo 13" (1995).

Look for multiple Oscar nominations for "First Man," which is a must-see and is recommended to see in the Imax format.

"First Man" director Damien Chazelle, who won a director Oscar for "La La Land" (2016), works from a screenplay by Josh Singer (Oscar, original screenplay, "Spotlight," 2015).

This is a personal story of a United States astronaut during the space race between the U.S. and the former U.S.S.R. culminating in 1969 when Armstrong became the first human to land and set foot on the moon. "That's one small step for man. One giant leap for mankind," Armstrong famously said as the world

MOVIE REVIEW
By Paul Willistein
pwillistein@tronline.com

watched him on the telecast from the moon.

The movie and screenplay is based on the book, "First Man: The Life Of Neil A. Armstrong," written by James R. Hansen.

While the backdrop of triumphs and tragedies of the NASA Apollo moon-landing program is included, "First Man" concentrates on the emotional core of Armstrong and the impact of the lunar mission on himself, his fellow astronauts, and his family.

Gosling, who had the lead actor role in "La La Land," is particularly well-cast to play Armstrong. Gosling brings a near unflinching steely countenance to the role, mixed with quiet moments of inquisitiveness and fatherly love. As Armstrong, Gosling is not only the man on the moon, he's the man in the moon (check out the movie's poster).

Foy has many revelatory moments as Armstrong's independent-minded wife. Foy plays the role with as fiery a personality as that of a Saturn rocket blasting off from the launching pad.

"First Man" captures the awe of space travel, the challenges of the moon program's limited technology, and the thrill of the launch and journey to the moon. Credit Director of Photography Linus Sandgren (Oscar, cinematography, "La La Land") See REVIEW on Page B8

THEATER REVIEW

'Billy Elliot' dances to great success for Civic reopening

BY PAUL WILLISTEIN
pwillistein@tonline.com

"Billy Elliot The Musical" is a multi-layered show that has a bit of everything: family conflict, single parenthood, politics, labor strife, mentor and student, elder-care problems, boxing and ballet.

It's an alphabet-soup mix of themes that would challenge any community theater, much less a troupe returning to its main stage for the first time in about a year to open a renovated and restored new space.

Civic Theatre of Allentown's exuberant production of "Billy Elliot The Musical" hits all the right notes and steps in its Lehigh Valley debut on the main stage where it continues through Oct. 28 in the historic 19th Street Theatre, Allentown.

Director William Sanders, assisted by three choreographers, including Deena Linn, Sarah Parker and Jennifer Haltzman Tracy, the latter for the ballet sequences, keeps the complex storyline streamlined and moving briskly, propelled by a superb 10-piece orchestra, conducted by music director Frank Anonia.

The book by Lee Hall, who also wrote the lyrics, is based on the 1984 British National Union of Mineworkers strike in the coal fields of northern England. The basis for the 2008 Broadway musical, which received 10 Tony Awards, is the 2000 "Billy Elliot" film, nominated for three Oscars, for which Lee wrote the screenplay.

The musical has several opposing forces.

In the midst of the strife is young Billy Elliot (the extraordinary Parker James Fullmore), who seems to be pulled in each direction, that of a boxing career, a future working in the mines, or the possibility of breaking out through a dedication to studying ballet.

The gauntlet is thrown down from the start of the Oct. 12 opening night performance seen for this theater review, in the very first number, "The Stars Look Down," with powerful chorus singing by the Full Company in the clear signature of music by Elton John, which elevates the show throughout.

Early on, Billy faces a choice in "Shine," as Mrs. Wilkinson (deliciously peevish Kathleen Oswalt), the ballet school teacher, and the Ballet Girls (nine impressive young dancers), make the case that each has the opportunity to be true to one's heart's desire.

As if to emphasize choices made and chances lost, "We'd Go Dancing" by Grandma (the ever-sprightly scene-stealing Joann Wilchek Basist) and the Men's Ensemble posits that the music never really ends for those who follow their bliss.

The other polarity pulling on Billy is his Mum (a nicely ephemeral Veronica Bocian), who in spirit sings "Dear Billy," accompanied by Mrs. Wilkinson and Billy, giving him inspiration and fortitude.

Matters turn crucial in Act 2, where Dad (an amazing Robert Trexler) looms, conflicted about his job (as miner and father) and his son's dreams, exemplified by back-to-back show-stoppers, "Deep Into The Ground" with the Full Company, and "He Could Go And He Could Shine," with Dad, Tony (Ryan Murphy) and the Ensemble.

These numbers set up the musical's show-stopper of show-stoppers, "Electricity," proving why without a phenomenal young talent like Parker James Fullmore, there might be no "Billy Elliot The Musical" at Civic.

Fullmore is in great form, has a terrific stage presence, clear voice, and is poised and athletic in ballet, dance and gymnastic scenes. He has a great future on stage and screen. See him now in his Lehigh Valley debut at Civic. This is a "do you remember when ..." performance.

Also memorable is Oswalt, who, though she has given Civic audiences many wonderful performances ("Nine To Five," "God Of Carnage," "Cabaret") outdoes herself as Mrs. Wilkinson. Oswalt plays the range of the bristling, overbearing dance teacher: sassy and brassy, but also tough and tender. She's in fine voice in dialogue and song and has some great dance moves.

Special mention must also be given to Trexler, who has impressed previously at Civic ("Young Frankenstein," "The Full Monty"), but reaches down and in for something more as Dad. His singing is something to behold.

Wilchek-Basist also goes deep, bringing a special pathos to Grandma, imbued with an understanding of the dignity of age and a still flickering humor of youth.

Kudos to Costume-Lighting Designer Will Morris and Technical Director-Scenic Designer Joshua Deruosi who bring a gritty realism to the settings and characters with shop-worn sensibilities that bolster the entire production.

Sanders deserves heartfelt praise for bringing this pertinent production to life to fill the West End Theater District's storied venue with a show of equal splendor.

"Billy Elliot The Musical" is a gem of a production in a newly-minted gem of a theater.

"Billy Elliot" is a triumph for Sanders, for Parker James Fullmore, for the show's cast, musicians and technical staff, and for Civic Theatre of Allentown's board of directors and benefactors.

and Editor Tom Cross (Oscars, editing, "La La Land," "Whiplash," 2014). You really feel as though you are in the seat of the cramped Apollo space capsule.

What's most memorable about "First Man" is the portrayal of the passionate, yes, fiery, dedication of Armstrong and his fellow astronauts and those in NASA's Apollo program: ordinary, yet smart and talented men and women. Against almost insurmountable odds, they succeeded to create the "First Man."

"First Man," MPAA rated PG-13 (Parents Strongly Cautioned Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13. Parents are urged to be cautious. Some material may be inappropriate for pre-teenagers.) for some thematic content involving peril, and brief strong language; Genre:

Biography, Drama, History; Run time: 2 hrs, 21 mins.; Distributed by Universal Pictures.

Anonymous: The soundtrack, with Damien Chazelle again working with his composer collaborator, Justin Hurwitz (Oscar, original song, score, "La La Land"), includes the teen-age bachelor pad classic, Les Baxter's "Lunar Rhapsody" (written by Harry Revel and performed by Samuel Hoffman and Les Baxter), a favorite that the real-life

Neil Armstrong and his wife danced to.

Box Office, Oct. 19: Jamie Lee Curtis is "The Scream Queen" all over again as "Halloween" scared up $77.5 million to open at No. 1 at the weekend box office, the second largest October opening ever ($3 million less than "Venom"'s October weekend opening), keeping "A Star Is Born" at No. 2 with $19.3 million, $126.3 million, three weeks, and becoming the antidote to "Venom," at No. 3, dropping two places from two weeks at No. 1, with $18.1 million, $171.1 million, three weeks, as "Goosebumps 2: Haunted Halloween" continued at No. 4 with $9.7 million, $28.8 million, two weeks.

5. "First Man" orbited down two places, $8.5 million, $29.9 million. 6. "The Hate U Give" moved up three places, $7.5 million, $10.6 million, three weeks. 7. "Smallfoot" dropped two places, $6.6 million, $66.3 million, four weeks. 8. "Night School" dropped two places, $5 million, $66.9 million, four weeks. 9. "Bad Times At The El Royale" dropped two places, $3.3 million, $13.3 million, two weeks. 10. "The Old Man & The Gun" moved up five places, $2 million, $4.2 million, four weeks.

Unreel, Oct. 26: "Suspiria," R: Luca Guadagnino directs Dakota Johnson, Tilda Swinton, Doris Hick, and Malgorzata Bela in the Horror film. A dance company, an artistic director, a young dancer, and a nightmare. Pull up to the barre.

"Johnny English Strikes Again," PG: David Kerr directs Olga Kurylenko, Rowan Atkinson, Emma Thompson, and Charles Dance in the Comedy. Undercover agent Johnny English must track a hacker.

"Indivisible," PG-13: David G. Evans directs Justin Bruening, Sarah Drew, Jason George, and Tia Mowry-Hardrict in the Drama. The movie is based on the true story of Army Chaplain Darren Turner and his wife Heather and their marital woes.

"Stuck," PG-13: Michael Berry directs Giancarlo Esposito, Amy Madigan, Ashanti, and Arden Cho in the Musical. Six strangers are stranded on a New York City subway. So, they put on a show.
