

HORNINGER, Martin J.

Soldier In Texas Likes To Read Globe-Times

From Camp Hood, Texas, where Uncle Sam's nephews are training in the gentle art of tank destruction under the motto, "Seek, Strike, Destroy," comes a letter to The Globe-Times from Private Martin J. Horninger, a former resident at 430 Adams Street, Bethlehem.

Writes Horninger: "I have just received the latest edition of The Bethlehem Globe-Times and just want you to know that it is certainly swell to see a home-town newspaper . . . Now that it is being sent to me here at Camp Hood I can read up on the civic and social events in which I am interested."

As if to prove that he reads The Globe-Times from page one to the last column of the last page, Private Horninger remarks on the picture which appeared April 22 of a group of soldiers operating the "Bazooka gun." He says that training in the use of this deadly weapon is part of his basic work. Another gun shown in the picture, with which the young soldier also is working, is the new type U. S. carbine, a small but particularly effective arm.

APR 30 1943

April 30, 1943