MAJOR FRANCIS F. MEILICKE

Francis F. Meilicke
Attains Major's Rank
In Medical Corps

Mrs. C. A. Meilicke, Widows House, West Church St., received word of the promotion of her son, Capt. Francis F. Meilicke, to the rank of major in the U. S. Medical Corps. Major Meilicke is assistant to the chief surgeon at the Station Hospital, Indiantown Gap Military Reservation.

Major Meilicke entered the service in July, 1944, and received his basic training at Carlisle, Pa. He received further training at Camp Ellis, Ill., and Fort Ord, Calif., before going to the Philippines, where he served with the 72nd Field Hospital Unit, as a surgeon.

He took graduate work in surgery at the University of Pennsylvania and had his two-year surgical residency in the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, before entering the service. His wife and daughter reside in Lebanon. Major Meilicke is a son of the late Rev. C. A. Meilicke.
