City council passed a number of resolutions June 21, ranging from contract approvals to the awarding of a number of certificates of appropriateness for historic property alterations. However, two issues took center stage, a project honoring the local Lenape heritage and sales of used firearms by Bethlehem's Police Department.

Emily Newman, as part of the Lehigh Southside Permaculture, which includes Maddie Watts, and Corena Munroe, and Kat Neumann and Emily Michnowski, who are Lehigh University students assisting from personal interest, has a project she would like to formally submit for approval from council. They plan to build a garden on the corner of Webster and Adam streets, with native perennial plants historically used by the Lenape, also known as the Delawares, over hundreds of years, mainly for medicinal purposes. This garden See CITY on Page A2

EUA for baby COVID shots raises issues

BY THERESA O'BRIEN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

C COVID-19 shots have now been FDA-authorized for emergency use for babies, toddlers and preschoolers, as well as recommended by the CDC, but they remain controversial.

Pre-orders from state health departments for the shots were due by Tuesday, June 14, before the FDA's Vaccines and Related Biological Products Advisory Committee (VRBPAC) had even heard presentations from drug sponsors Pfizer and Moderna. Forty-nine states – every state except Florida – made pre-orders. (Physicians in Florida can order these shots directly from the federal government, which is making all purchases from Pfizer and Moderna.)

VRBPAC voted unanimously in favor of authorization for both products – two shots of Moderna's 25 micrograms each for ages 6 months through 5 years, and three shots of Pfizer's three micrograms for ages 6 months through 4 years – as well as for authorizing Moderna's adult shots for kids as young as 6. FDA issued the updated Emergency Use Authorizations (EUAs) just 45 minutes before the CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP) met to discuss recommending COVID-19 shots for children ages 6 months through 4 years.

ACIP voted unanimously to recommend the shots from both manufacturers for all children 6 months old and up.

Heart damage in young men

Although FDA's own internal analysis of vaccine adverse events did not identify a "significantly higher" risk of myocarditis/pericarditis [inflammation of the heart muscle or the sac surrounding the heart] following the second Moderna injection as compared with the second Pfizer injection among males 18-25 years of age, other nations have identified the Moderna shots as significantly riskier for this demographic group than the Pfizer injections. Several European countries, including France and Germany, have banned the administration of Moderna's COVID-19 shots in men younger than 30.

FDA's own analysis was not statistically high-powered enough to make a determination, although raw U.S. data from passive surveillance show Moderna's myocarditis/pericarditis risk in men ages 18 through 25 as 1.1 times higher than Pfizer's, and active surveillance shows a 130 percent to 150 percent elevation in risk from the Moderna product.

Any excess risk from the Moderna product is on top of a high observed rate of heart damage for young males who have taken the Pfizer product. The overall rate of myocarditis or pericarditis in recipients of the Pfizer mRNA shots is substantially higher than the "background" rate – the expected rate in a world without mRNA injections. For example, boys ages 12 See EUA on Page A2

"We'd be talking about vaccinating close to 20 million in order to prevent 200 deaths. I think the vaccine should be available for high-risk children and for families who are so concerned that they're troubled by that risk ratio, but parents should understand how small these numbers are."

would provide an interactive way for people to learn about the history of the Delaware and their contributions to this part of Pennsylvania. A number of councilors spoke privately with both students at the end of the meeting for more information on this potential project. (Four people - two students?)

Most of the resolutions on the evening's agenda passed without any issue. However, when the resolution pertaining to the sale by Bethlehem Police Department of a used firearm, council member Hillary Kwiatek questioned the overall nature of this procedure. The resolution in question dealt with the sale of a Glock 19 semi-automatic pistol to retired Bethlehem Police Officer Michael Manfred.

Before voting against the resolution, which passed 6-1, Kwiatek's concerns led to a discussion about gun-based community violence with President Michael Colon and Mayor William Reynolds. Reynolds said everyone must work together to reduce gun violence. He also mentioned that he will discuss with Police Chief Michelle Kott the raised concerns on the sale of used firearms.

Wide confidence intervals and negative vaccine efficacy cast doubt on the cost-benefit ratio for both the infant and toddler cohort and the preschooler cohort of Pfizer trial participants. (Data from FDA Briefing Document, "EUA amendment request for Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 Vaccine for use in children 6 months through 4 years of age.") through 15 who received two doses of the Pfizer product suffered myocarditis/pericarditis at a rate 40 to 80 times what physicians usually observe in boys of that age range. Young men between 18 and 25 who took one dose of the Pfizer product had heart injuries between twofold and eightfold higher than they would have in a world with no COVID-19 shots.

Unclear mechanism of action

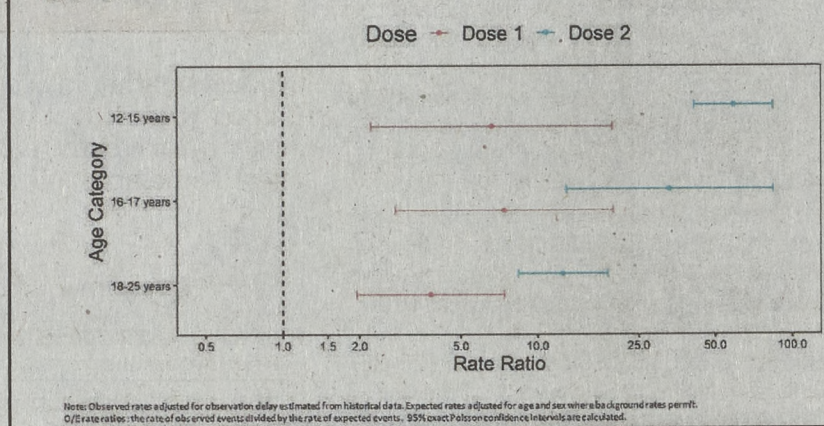

When asked, Pfizer's representative couldn't explain to VRBPAC members how the products work. Dr. Jay Portnoy, a professor of pediatrics who serves as the consumer representative on the committee, pointed out that the Pfizer injections for babies are three micrograms, compared with the Moderna shots, which are 25 micrograms. He asked Dr. Bill Gruber of Pfizer, "The purpose of mRNA is to induce protein production. Is your mRNA just more efficient at making cells produce spike protein?"

Gruber responded, "Obviously we don't have a complete understanding of the way the vaccine works in producing an immune response, so you have to go by the results. After a third dose, just as in adults with higher doses, we're getting an immune response [measured in terms of antibody levels] that's comparable."

Public commenters raised the question of biodistribution of the lipid nanoparticles that encapsulate the mRNA in both manufacturers' products: where they go, and how long the cells where they end up continue to produce the Wuhan spike protein. (Neither FDA nor vaccine sponsors typically answer public comments; the comments are for the consideration of the committee.)

Sparse efficacy data for babies and preschoolers

Perhaps more concerning, data for children ages 6 months through 23 months, and children ages 2 through 4 years (for Pfizer) and 5 years (for Moderna) did not demonstrate efficacy (preventing symptomatic illness) with high statistical confidence. Added to this weak data is some question as to whether an "emergency" even exists for preschool children and babies, who have a nearly 100 percent survival rate from COVID-19, and more than half of whom (according to CDC data) have already experienced the disease.

Although Pfizer's Bill Gruber presented slides showing high VE, the 95 percent confidence intervals were extremely wide. During the committee discussion, Dr. Paul Offit of Children's Hospital of Philadelphia noted that "Protective efficacy was listed, but those are based on very small numbers, 7 cases in one instance, 3 cases in another. It's hard to feel comfortable because the numbers are so low."

Moderna presented data showing VE between 12.5 percent and 54.0 percent for children ages 2-5 using the CDC case definition of COVID-19, and between 19.8 percent and 63.8 percent using the company's own definition of COVID-19 disease.

Moderna's baby and toddler VE (95 percent confidence interval) ranged from 21.4 percent and 68.6 percent using the CDC definition, and -27.7 percent and 62.0 percent using the company's own definition. The wide confidence intervals are indicative of the small number of cases used to calculate VE.

Both companies made additional efficacy claims based on "immunobridging," which is comparing the antibody levels of injected babies, toddlers and preschoolers with antibody levels of older vaccinated study participants, and assuming actual efficacy based on those numbers.

Dramatic public comment

The comments during the portion of the second day of the meeting open to the public were largely in favor of EUA expansion for both companies. This majority was driven by several parents of children younger than five years of age, who told the committee that they have essentially kept their children from all social contact for the past two years.

Caroline Bishop, an associate professor of classics at Texas Tech University, said that when her husband's workplace dropped its mask mandate, he "made the heart-breaking decision to move out to our guest house." Prof. Bishop described her 14-month-old daughter calling, "Dada" when she sees her father out in the yard and crying because she isn't allowed to touch him. She said that she received proof that her fears were justified when her husband, who is double-vaccinated and boosted, contracted COVID-19 last week. She begged the committee to vote to allow babies to receive the shots.

An alternate viewpoint was expressed by Rep. Louis Gohmert of Texas, who is one of 18 signatories to a June 8, letter from congressmen to the FDA. During the public comment, Gohmert posed a subset of the questions that he and his colleagues posed in their letter, including "What is the cardiac risk factor in administering these COVID vaccines to children?" and "Is it possible that the proposed COVID vaccines in young children could create increased risk from future novel COVID variants?"

Gohmert further questioned the fairness of the liability shield that protects COVID-19 shot providers and compels individuals alleging injury to seek compensation from the federal government, which usually denies it. He added that he was "working on [...] a bill [...] to allow civil and

In a graduation season rife with themes of overcoming adversity, Lehigh Valley Charter HS for the Arts' graduates relayed personal reflections of perseverance at Zoellner Arts Center June 13.

But not even tragedy and life-changing pandemic evoked a somber note from the life-affirming music and arts at this school.

After a terrible accident in her youth left her with a traumatic brain injury, student speaker Madilyn Grose was ostracized and disenchanted until chance brought her to Charter Arts. "My social connections were affected greatly and eventually I despised going to school. In the beginning of eighth grade, my mom told me about this school where they spend half the day making art. I figured if I had to go to school, I might as well go somewhere where I could do something I love.

"Here I found students who were willing to work with me and help me pursue every goal I had," Grose said. "They made me a better human and a 'better' student. I also to check on me and they continued to come back and sit with me every day.

"Those are the type of students who go to Charter Arts - the type that don't just see you in the hallways and smile, but come to help you, encourage you, and accept you exactly as you are. Charter Arts gives you the opportunity to see that anything is possible. Without this school I don't know where I would be. Some people think my life is a sob story, but quite frankly it's the complete opposite: I'm a success story.

"Thank you Charter Arts for not only changing my life, but for saving it."

Student speaker Juliann Williams said everyone at the school, from the educators to the vitamin D-deprived lower classmen whose days on the first and second floors criminal liabilities to vaccine providers, and accessories, despite an EUA, which should force more sensitivity to vaccine harm to our children.”

In explaining their “yes” votes, most VRB-PAC members said they wanted to give parents a choice, especially those who had chosen extreme social isolation for their children. However, most offered only tempered support for the two products.

Dr. Michael Nelson, chief of the Asthma, Allergy, and Immunology Division at the UVA School of Medicine, expressed concern that the children in the trials received their COVID-19 shots with a two-week buffer from flu shots and a one-month buffer from any other shot. No children were studied who received COVID-19 shots at the same time as other routine pediatric immunizations.

Along with Dr. Archana Chatterjee and Dr. Mark Sawyer, Dr. Nelson noted that children in the real world receive many shots in one day. He warned Moderna and Pfizer, “Coadministration is something I’ve been thinking about. I will tell you that if we don’t get a quick answer, that is going to be a barrier to BLA [biological license application, or full approval of a vaccine]. Having to get it in isolation is going to be a barrier for families.”

Other members sought to put parents’ fears in perspective. Dr. Cody Meissner of Tufts Medical School pointed out that in the past two years, 442 children younger than 5 have died while infected with SARS-CoV-2, approximately 220 deaths per year. He contextualized that statistic with the fact that 270 Americans are struck by lightning in any given year.

“We’d be talking about vaccinating close to 20 million in order to prevent 200 deaths,” Dr. Meissner said. “I think the vaccine should be available for high-risk children and for families who are so concerned that they’re troubled by that risk ratio, but parents should understand how small these numbers are.”

The Lehigh Valley Carpenter Cup softball team poses after day one of play.

Cup softball team falls in semifinals

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Lehigh Valley's Carpenter Cup softball team won its quarterfinal game against Delaware South, 5-3, before being eliminated in its semifinal against Mid Penn, 7-3, on June 22 at FDR Park in Philadelphia.

Delaware South led, 3-0, after five innings when Lehigh Valley scored two runs in the sixth inning and three runs in the seventh.

Catasauqua's Delaney Troxell pitched for four innings, and Palmerton's Carly Gaffney pitched for three innings in the victory.

Northampton's Hannah Makovsky collected two hits, Bethlehem

Catholic's Leah Chladny had a triple, and Whitehall's Kate Yadush had a double.

Lehigh Valley's runs were scored by Makovsky, Yadush, Emmaus's Shayla Morgan, Whitehall's Aubrey Steiner, and Parkland's Morgan Schultz-Stuardi.

Lehigh Valley then faced Mid Penn who won its quarterfinal by forfeit against Tri Cape. Due to COVID safety protocols, Tri Cape did not participate in the June 22 games, which were the remainder of the tournament.

In the semifinal, Mid Penn led Lehigh Valley, 6-0, after four innings.

Lehigh Valley scored one run in the fifth inning and two runs in the sixth inning on two RBIs by Gaffney and one RBI by Emmaus's Brianna Amey.

Northern Lehigh's Jordyn Hemingway, Emmaus's Taylor Gitski, Northwestern Lehigh's Sage Toman, and Allentown Central Catholic's Lauren Egan also had hits in the game.

Morgan and Hemingway scored Lehigh Valley's runs.

Troxell threw four innings, and Gaffney threw three innings.

Mid Penn won the Carpenter Cup after defeating Jersey Shore, 1-0, in the final.

Girls get 2 wins on day one

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Lehigh Valley claimed two victories at the Carpenter Cup Softball Classic, a tournament sponsored by the Philadelphia Phillies, with dramatic wins over Delaware County, 5-4, and Chester County, 6-5, on June 20 at FDR Park in Philadelphia.

Emmaus outfielder Shayla Morgan went 2-for-3 and scored two runs in Lehigh Valley's first game against Delco.

"It set us for the rest of our day and gave us energy and motivation to win the next game," said Morgan, who played on the Lehigh Valley team last year. "I love the fields here, and it's run very well, so it was very nice to be back."

Catasauqua pitcher Delaney Troxell's walk-off triple, scored as a double because the run by Whitehall infielder Kate Yadush ended the game, gave Lehigh Valley its second win of the day.

"I knew I had to be relaxed, hit how I've been hitting, and the next thing you know...I felt it right off my barrel," Troxell said. "We knew we had to win two to move on to Wednesday, and that was our main goal."

This is my first time ever being here, and it's a different atmosphere, all coming together and getting to know each other. It honestly feels great."

Lehigh Valley lost its third game of the day to Suburban One League, 9-7.

"We felt pretty confident and then we had one slip-up inning, so we just have to look forward and try not to let that happen again," said Yadush, who had a 2 RBI single to right field for a Lehigh Valley 5-0 lead. "I just thought to shorten up and drove it to the opposite side of the field."

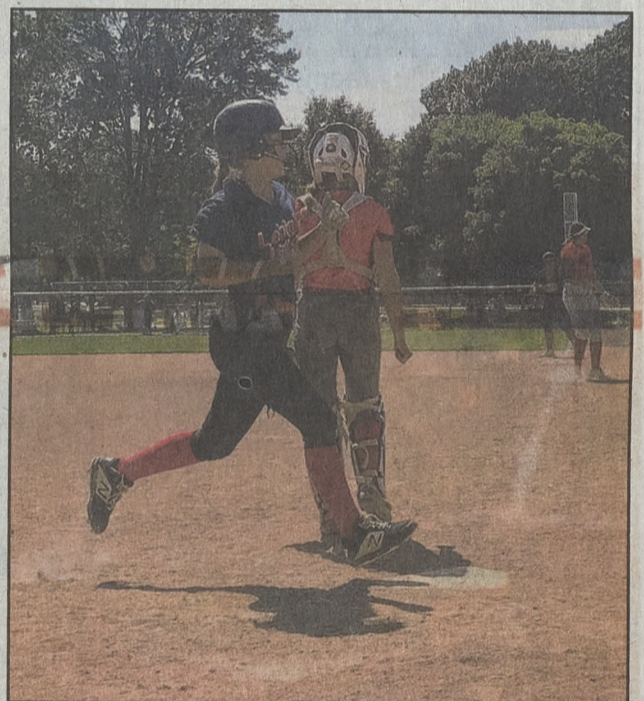

Bethlehem Catholic outfielder Leah Chladny had a 2 RBI triple to left field, giving Lehigh Valley its first runs of the game against Suburban One.

Infield errors cost Lehigh Valley when Suburban One exploded for seven runs in the third inning, but both teams finished at the top of their pool and will return to FDR Park on June 22 when a Carpenter Cup softball champion will be crowned.

"I had a lot of fun today," said assistant Lehigh Valley coach Kelly Dulaney. "It's cool to see it from the other side and use what I've learned coming through the game from the coaching side now. The pitchers did great."

SVCC caddies, friends get paired together

BY MIKE HAINES
mhaines@tnonline.com

Steve Frisch and Andrew Price were pretty happy just to be caddying in the US Senior Open.

The pair of longtime loopers at Saucon Valley Country Club were among the 17 SVCC caddies that carried a pro's bag in last week's event.

When two rounds were done both Frisch and Price were among the five local caddies whose players made the cut. As luck would have it, Frisch's man Craig Thomas and Price's player Jeffrey Schmid both shot 3-over par for the first two rounds and were paired together for Saturday's round.

The two close friends would get to work side by side at the biggest event of their careers.

"We're best buddies," said Frisch. "We've been doing this for years together. It was cool to be out there with one of your buddies that you're always palling around with. Not only did we make the cut, but we got paired together."

"It was the coolest thing in the entire world," said Price. "The biggest event in our caddie lives. It was like winning the lottery. That's like one in a million chance, getting to walk with your best friend in the Senior Open."

Frisch has some experience working for pros. He carried a bag in the 2009 US Women's Open at Saucon Valley. His player in that event hired him for a six-event stint in 2016.

He's also carried for his good friend Matt Mattare, a fellow Allentown Central Catholic grad who plays in high level amateur events.

For Price and most of the other SVCC caddies, this was their first time working inside the ropes at a professional event.

"I literally was like thank you God for this opportunity," said Price, a 36-year Bethlehem native who declined to disclose how many years he's been looping. "I have been caddying for X number of years and to get a cherry on top, I just felt so thankful."

"The experience was a grind as all caddying is a grind. We made the cut. Our guy is going to go home with some prize money. It was a success on all sides."

Brian Egan is an 18-year SVCC veteran from Coopersburg who worked for Brett Quigley at the Senior Open. While he was considered the most likely local caddie to make the cut, Quigley shot 7-over par and missed by two strokes.

"It was an experience of a lifetime," said Egan, who was in the gallery Saturday and Sunday cheering for his friends who were on bags that made the cut. "It was really awesome. You feel pride in the fact that local guys are bringing some of these big names through this place. When our guys got knocked out we came the next day to support our boys."

As Price pointed out, caddying isn't glamorous. It's hard work, especially when they find out just days before the event whose bag they'll be on. This week they had to get acquainted with their player's game, his personality and his wants and needs on the course all within a few days.

"You had to get to know your guy a little bit," said Price. "You had to adapt and be like a chameleon. I was gun-o in the beginning and wanted to be this fearless guide. I realized my guy didn't want to be guided. He just wanted accurate numbers. He just wanted the brass tacks business, so that's what I gave him."

SVCC caddie Marc Szilezy was on amateur Jerry Gunthrope's bag. He shot 17-over par and missed the cut. It took a couple days for Szilezy to get used to walking off yardage and doing the calculations to adjust for wind and slope. Range finders are not allowed at the highest levels of professional golf.

"The hardest part was not using our range finder," said Szilezy, a 13-year SVCC veteran. "My guy wanted front, middle and back. He wanted pin plus or minus. He wanted the actual pin number and the adjusted pin number. I had to do that math pretty quickly. After the two practice rounds I got comfortable and it felt like it was almost better because you get true numbers."

Saucon Valley caddy master Andy Rumble found out most of the names of players who needed caddies about a week or so before practice rounds, but others had last-minute needs that he had to fill.

Gold wins Classic

BY MIKE HAINES
mhaines@tnonline.com

The early part of the recent McDonald's Lehigh Valley All-Star Football Classic didn't look much like most all-star contests.

There wasn't a lot of scoring and both teams were playing stingy defense as only one touchdown was scored in the first half. The second half saw five scores with the Gold team holding on for a 24-21 win.

The Gold team, which was made up of senior players from Northampton County high schools and Phillipsburg, NJ, and Palisades, took a 10-0 lead in the first half but a pair of interceptions returned for touchdowns helped the Red team take a 21-17 lead in the fourth quarter.

"I thought we had it locked up there," said Parkland linebacker Nico Medlar, who had the second of those two pick sixes to give his team a lead with 4:43 left in the game. "The Gold squad, I can't say enough about them. They have plenty of talent over there, as we do here, and they came out on top unfortunately."

The Gold team took the lead on 17-yard Matthew Clark (Easton) field goal early in the second quarter. They extended it with a 1-yard run by Marcus Williams (Easton) with 13 seconds left in the first half.

The touchdown was set up by two big pass plays from Easton quarterback Cole Transue. He hit Nadir Sanders (Notre Dame GP) for 10 yards on a third-and-10 then connected with Zack Gillen (Wilson) on a 35-yard pass to the 1-yard line.

The Gold went ahead 17-0 when Transue hit Gillen again for 35 yards, this time for a score less than three minutes into the second half.

The Red team, made up of players from Lehigh and Monroe counties, along with some Carbon County players, got on the board when Ty Tremba (Parkland) picked off a Cayden Stem (Wilson) pass and took it 18 yards for a score with 3:54 left in the third quarter.

Northern Lehigh's Brett Misera picked off a Transue pass early in the fourth quarter for his second pick of the game. It set up the Red's first offensive touchdown, a 6-yard run by Northern Lehigh's Matt Frame that closed the deficit to 17-14 with over seven minutes left in the game.

Three plays into the Gold's next possession Medlar picked off Stem and took it back 34 yards for a touchdown and the lead.

"There was good pass rush," Medlar said of the play. "I saw the back go away cross body. I figured the quarterback was running right and wouldn't throw it to his left. I kind of just stuck to my zone. Somebody got a hit on [Stem] and the ball came my way. I was fortunate enough to catch it and run it back."

The Gold responded with a quick strike as Transue hit Gillen (5 receptions, 211 yards, two TDs) for a 79-yard touchdown two plays after losing the lead.

While the Red players were disappointed with the final score, they recognize this game had a lot of winners.

"Ultimately it's just an honor to be here and make relationships with people you didn't think you were going to make relationships with," said Emmaus offensive lineman Nick Davidson. "Sports in the Lehigh Valley is awesome. It's a great community. It was just an awesome night altogether."

Players selected to the McDonald's game get the opportunity to spend time with their counterparts from teams they've battled with for the past four years and sometimes back as far as their flag football days.

"A lot of friendships

I never thought I would have had if I wasn't selected for this game," said Emmaus offensive lineman Dylan McHugh, who bonded with some players from rival Parkland while participating in the McDonald's All-Star Game. "They're our big-time rivals and I ended up getting along with a lot of them. They're really good guys and you'd never think that on a Friday night when you're hashing it out with them."

The annual game benefits the Ronald McDonald House Charities.

"At the end of the day it's a bigger cause," said Medlar. "This game is doing so much for so many people and I can't be more happy to be a part of it."

Other Lehigh Valley Press area players who were selected to compete in the McDonald's Classic include Lorenzo Feliciano (Freedom), Dan Maccon (Freedom), Deante Crawford (Freedom), Ayden Kirby (Bethlehem Catholic), Ethan Schweitzer (Northampton), Juan Feliciano (Freedom), Stephen Hattala (Bethlehem Catholic), Taylor Wikert (Northwestern), Jaden Robinson (Emmaus), Adler Billig (Parkland), Ben Dunstan (Northwestern) and Gabe Toth (Catasauqua).

Some guys had experiences where they were just kind of carrying the bag and some of them were more involved," he said. "Most guys know how to adapt."

Not long after Pdraig Harrington received his trophy Sunday evening, all the professional golfers were gone and the club started to transform back into the place its members have enjoyed for over 100 years. This week the SVCC caddies will go back to carrying bags for members and guests like most have done for years. They still enjoy those walks with members. If they didn't they wouldn't be out there.

From now on every time they walk the old course it will bring back memories of the week they were inside the ropes where few caddies and even fewer people get to walk.

"The experience was once in a lifetime," said Szilezy.

He was more than confident his men would do a great job. On one level it's a lot like adjusting to different members and guests they work for on a regular basis. Except these players hit it much longer and more accurately.

Kassy Aquino in the first game, and Delaney and Carly Gaffney in the second and third games. They worked really well together, and it kind of throws the batters off when the other one comes in. Delaney has a little more speed, and Carly threw her change-up well today. She mixed it in a lot, and it was throwing the batters off like crazy."

Lehigh Valley head coach Brian Fehnel stressed the importance of winning the first game of the day.

"For me, that was big, settling the nerves, so I thought the girls were loose and free all day. Awesome to get a second day," Fehnel said. "They all hit. They all did their job, the whole team, at different points."

There were also a few other local caddies who helped for practice rounds but weren't needed for the tournament. And some of the tournament caddies carried for other players Sunday or Monday before their players arrived. At least a couple dozen worked for a pro at some point during Senior Open week.

The feedback Rumble received was all positive.

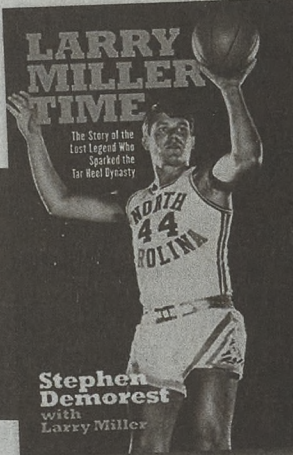

"The few that I talked to all had high praise for the guys that were with them," he said. "So that was nice."

Rumble had all his caddies' players book-marked on the leaderboards he watched all weekend on his US Open app and his office computer.

He was more than confident his men would do a great job. On one level it's a lot like adjusting to different members and guests they work for on a regular basis. Except these players hit it much longer and more accurately.

CREATURES THAT GLOW

Shiny spotlights on deep-sea fish, flashing worms, squids that squirt clouds of glowing ink—they have no plugs, wires or batteries. How do they glow?

It's bioluminescence (by-oh-loo-muh-NEHS-sense)—which means the making of light by living creatures.

Light in the Deep

Most of the world's glowing animals live in the sea.

These glowing creatures live down in the inky dark, deepest parts of the sea where sunlight can not reach. Glowing body parts attract prey and scare away predators. Some fish confuse their enemies by blinking on and off while zigzagging through the water. Others attract mates and communicate using their flashing lights.

About half of all kinds of jellyfish are bioluminescent.

Find the jellyfish that match.

Angler Fish

This deep-sea creature fishes for food. It has a long, skinny fin on top of its head that works like a fishing rod. A little bulb filled with glowing bioluminescent bacteria sits at the end of the rod.

When it wants to eat, the angler fish dangles the glowing bait in front of its mouth. A curious fish swims up for a closer look and—snap! the angler fish's huge jaws snatch it up!

Angler fish are small, but they can be big eaters. Once, a 3-1/2 inch angler was found with a nearly 7-inch lantern fish in its stretchable stomach!

Help this little fish escape the angler fish.

Continued from page A3 of the building lack windows, had an impact on her life and provided sanity when she was afraid she had none. "There's a quote by Henry Adams: 'A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops.' I want to represent all of us when I say, 'thank you.'"

"Thank you for putting up with us, for educating us, and for being there in times when we felt we didn't have anyone else. They influenced me to become a teacher myself."

Saying everyone at the school fits together like a puzzle, Williams examined many pieces of life and took meaning from its complexity. "The way we are raised is a piece of the puzzle, the people you surround yourself with, the happy moments, and certainly the bad ones. The moments that make you question yourself, your reality, and whether you'll make it through this; those pieces are most important. They shape you and make you stronger."

Revealing to the audience that she was a victim of domestic violence, Williams said, "Regardless of how bad a situation may be, I want you to acknowledge it and understand the growth that comes from it. I've experienced things I wouldn't wish upon my worst enemy. I won't stand here and say I'm made of iron, but I've accepted what happened and not let it rule my life. The world is not always a kind place, and you'll find yourself adding another negative piece to the puzzle, but no matter what happens you're stronger."

"Remember all the things you have to be proud of. You'll continue to figure out where all the little pieces fit in the world. I hope you all find peace and joy and that life gets better for every single one of you, and I hope you find your puzzle is complete with all the love and happiness you deserve."

Peering at the vast audience, CEO Dr. Carise Comstock deemed some clichéd phrases unworthy of the graduates before continuing in earnest. "I was looking for inspirational quotes for my graduation speech, but nothing really seemed to represent what the class of 2022 has been through the last few years, specifically a worldwide pandemic and a variety of challenges facing our world and our community that have impacted us in many ways. This one jumped out at me: 'Life isn't about finding yourself. Life is about creating yourself.'"

"You have made mistakes and important choices to create the best version of yourself that is here tonight, starting with auditioning for Charter Arts a few years ago.

"Today you're ready to take on the rest of the world," Comstock said. "We want you to take advantage of every opportunity that presents itself, even if it's way outside your comfort zone. Never give up, stay positive, and when the going gets tough, stop and take a deep breath and then keep going."

Comstock said the 151 graduates are already on the right path with an accumulated $3.7 million in scholarships to get them started.

"I know you're ready for the next stage in your life. Use your voice in ways that will impact the world."

Interim Principal Dr. Jennifer Levernier lauded the graduates' collective fortitude through trying times, saying, "For the past four years we've had ups and down, we've had good days – even really great days – but we also had hard days, and some days where we had to push through challenges just to get to the next day. But that's what life is all about."

"What makes all of you so unique and special is how you choose to live through these different types of days. On those great days, you find a way to capture the joy you're feeling, but most of all you make those hard days meaningful."

"We've seen lots of changes together," Levernier said. We have a common understanding that the arts are what ties us together as human beings. I couldn't be prouder of them or of their accomplishments. I'm pleased that Charter Arts cultivates an atmosphere for our students to grow and learn through the arts. Magic has happened within our halls.

"They put so much heart and passion into what they do every single day. Spontaneous creativity is everywhere. I encourage you all to really take a hold of your future and really do something amazing. Don't let anyone or anything hold you back from being as amazing as I know you all are. I know that you'll continue to make a difference on all the lives that you touch."

Lehigh Valley premiere Musical comedy 'Something Rotten!' arrives on NCC Summer Theatre stage

CURTAIN RISES

By Kathy Lauer-Williams

Jarrod Yuskas

Jake Ziman

Northampton Community College Summer Theatre presents the Lehigh Valley premiere of the Tony Award-winning Broadway musical comedy, "Something Rotten!" June 29 - July 17, Lipkin Theatre, on the Bethlehem Township campus.

The musical comedy was postponed from the NCC Summer Theatre 2020 season because of the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic shutdown.

"I'm really excited about the Lehigh Valley premiere of this show," says Bill Mutimer, artistic producing director of the summer theater. "This will be a chance for audiences to get out, have a good time and laugh. It's a wonderfully silly comedy."

Also back is Jarrod Yuskas, director of Moravian Academy's theater program, who was cast in the original production. Yuskas was in "Footloose" and "Jeffrey" at NCC this summer.

"It's great to have Jarrod back playing Nick Bottom," Mutimer says.

"Something Rotten!" follows the brothers, Nick and Nigel Bottom, who struggle to find success in the theater world of 1595 as they compete with the wild popularity of their contemporary, William Shakespeare.

Along the way, they get assistance from Nick's wife, Bea, and a soothsayer, Thomas Nostradamus, nephew of the famous prophet.

The book is by John O'Farrell and Karey Kirkpatrick, with music and lyrics by Karey Kirkpatrick and Wayne Kirkpatrick.

The original 2015 Broadway production was nominated for 10 Tony Awards, including Best Musical, and received one Tony for best featured actor.

The NCC production is directed by Mutimer, with music direction by Lucille De Masi Kincaid and choreography by Tina Williams.

Yuskas played Rev. Shaw Moore in "Footloose: The Musical" and Sterling in "Jeffrey" at NCC.

Jake Ziman, a recent graduate of Millikin University, plays Nigel Bottom. Previous roles include Seymour in "Little Shop of Horrors" and Doody in "Grease." He will play Mark in "Rent," NCC's summer season finale.

Meredith Doyle plays Bea. Doyle is a New York City actor who has appeared with Yuskas in "Gypsy" and "My Fair Lady" at Muhlenberg College Summer Theatre.

Ric Stoneback, a New York City actor, plays Thomas Nostradamus. Stoneback was in the NCC summer 2018 production of "1776" as Ben Franklin. He played Samuel Chase in "1776" on Broadway and is to appear in upcoming episodes of "The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel," streaming on Amazon Prime.

"Something Rotten!," 7:30 p.m. June 29 - July 2, July 6 - 9, 13 - 16; 2 p.m. July 3, 10, 12. The wearing of face masks is optional. Reserved seating. Tickets: www.nccitx.org; 484-484-3412

The Valley is rocking, and Steve Jones is in the middle of the action.

Jones runs "Rocking The Valley" (RTV), a combination of podcasts, radio shows and live-streams of performances.

RTV, now in its eighth year, "provides audio and video feeds of the musicians of the Lehigh Valley, showing what they can do."

"Many different talents are brought together to produce the final product. It is multi-faceted, all in support of live music," says Jones, of North Whitehall Township.

Jones, who celebrated the birth of his 13th grandchild before Christmas 2021, says, "At one time we had as many as eight shows running during the pandemic. We averaged four bands a week in the past six years."

It might be a surprise that there are that many bands in the Lehigh Valley. Jones says that many acts share performers. "I know one bass player that is in five different groups," says Jones in a phone interview.

"Rocking the Valley" started as a one-hour streaming Internet radio. After two years we moved to the Jetport in Allentown. At one time, there was a staff of almost 30 people involved. Now there are 10. There have

Lehigh Art Alliance 'Abstraction' at Baum School

The Lehigh Art Alliance "Contemporary Abstraction" exhibition of more than 50 works continues through July 7, David E. Rodale and Rodale Family Galleries, The Baum School of Art, Allentown.

Domenick Naccarato, a Lehigh Valley abstract artist and member of Lehigh Art Alliance (LAA), curated the members-only exhibition, assisted by LAA President Elena Shackleton.

"The last time that we had an abstract-only show was in 2014," Naccarato says. He discussed the matter with Shackleton. They agreed

"the time was right."

LAA members were each invited to submit two works. Some, such as Naccarato, create abstract works regularly. Others in LAA "dabble in abstract and non-representational work."

"The exhibition presents a broad array of mediums including collage, mosaic, digital photography, sculpture, and assemblage, illustrating that painting alone is not necessarily the dominant medium of abstract art," Naccarato says.

Naccarato's "Two Sets of Crossed Tie Straps" (2021, mixed media on plywood, 16 in. x 48 in.) features tie straps used in construction.

"I love using sort of untraditional elements in my work," Naccarato says.

A thank-you note in a time of sympathy

Dear Jacquelyn,
I recently lost a close family member and received a number of sympathy cards. What is the proper etiquette for sending thank-you cards for sympathy cards and is there a time window that is considered acceptable?

Dear Reader,
During such a difficult time, sending a thank-you card or note is not a must.

Although most people don't expect it during your time of grief, it's still a nice gesture to offer a show of gratitude for people who have been there for you during the difficult time

RESPECTFULLY YOURS
By Jacquelyn Youst

of mourning.

If you decide to send a personal thank-you to those whose kindness impacted you most during your difficult time, a short personal message on a note card is all that is necessary to convey your appreciation.

A simple thank-you or acknowledgment can go a long way especially when written with sincerity.

It can be something simple like, "Thank you for the card. Your kind words have been a comfort."

Two to three sentences are enough, and it doesn't need to be formal.

Do not feel pressured to send a thank-you card to every single person who expressed their condolences or to complete the cards all at once. If you aren't feeling up to the task, a family member or close friend can write the notes on your behalf.

There is no official time frame for sending out your thank-you notes.

Take as much time as you need. The recipients will be grateful to know you appreciate their sympathy card.

The etiquette of acknowledge is truly a very personal matter. While it may be difficult to find the energy to write a thank-you note after the loss of a loved one, doing so is an important way of acknowledging the kindness that friends and family have shown you during this challenging period in your life.

Respectfully Yours,
Jacquelyn

It's all good

It was a bad night. Intense, unexplained stomach pain meant I couldn't sleep.

I tried sleeping on the easy chair but my awkward sleeping position added neck pain.

Finally, I went back to bed and was sleeping soundly until 5 a.m.

What is it about our subconscious mind that refuses to turn off? Mine often seems to jar me out of bed at 5 a.m. by conjuring up worries about something I must do.

Why won't my mind sleep when I do?

If my mind wants to plague me about something, why must it be 5 a.m.?

I don't have "big stuff" that keeps me awake. It's little things that are waking me.

This time the worry was that I misplaced my car's owner's manual. I keep it in the glove compartment but carried it inside to read why the tire low pressure warning wouldn't turn off.

I looked through the house in a panic but couldn't find it. I prayed for help before going back to my car.

The owner's manual was right there where it belonged. It was almost like I could hear God's voice in my head saying, "Here it is. Now will you stop your incessant worrying?"

Then my inner voice reminded me of an important truism — It's all good.

The new day is here. Life is good.

It's all good.

My runaway mind that woke me resorted to good advice: Don't ruin a day by fretting about little problems.

I don't know who came up with the expression, "It's all good."

By when my daughters and I are sharing a problem we often end it by saying, "It's all good."

Sure, we may have a problem we have to solve.

But it's all good. Life is good.

Most problems are trivial — not worth wasting time worrying about it. Reminding each other of that keeps it all in perspective.

Saying "life is good" also grounds us, reminding us to be grateful for life, for all we have and for any help sent our way.

By reminding myself that life is good, it resets our mind off trivial concerns. It allows us to focus on what is important.

In my later years I've picked up a bad habit of letting trivial problems take up space in my mind, space that should be used for much better pursuits.

My worrying has gotten so bad that I have those 5 a.m. alarms in my subconscious, urging me up get up IMMEDIATELY and take action.

Worse yet, I realize the things I've been worrying about are basically inconsequential. If it were something big like worrying about having a serious illness, I could understand worrying.

This senseless worrying is something new to me. It's a habit that has to go.

In the not too distant past I used to use any early morning wake-ups with remembering something good. I like to think about good people and good times. Most of all I like to think about all the blessings that flow my way from a God who is always in control.

When I get up in the morning after thinking those good thoughts my day gets off to a great start.

I compare that to a morning like today when I started my day with needless worry. It's tiresome and unproductive.

My computer guru told me when my computer is acting up, one of the first things to do is to try resetting it. Sometime that's all it takes, he said.

The same thing is true with one's attitude. Sometimes we just need to refocus by resetting our attitude to something better.

This morning I reset my mind by calling my friend Kay, the friend I call Miss Sunshine.

It's one thing to be filled with sunshine when your life is glorious. But Kay stays calm and serene regardless of any problems.

She believes in the "it's all good" theory.

She was that way this morning even after getting news that would have left me in a dither.

Her grandson, his wife, year-old baby, dog and two cats are unexpectedly arriving in 10 days to live with Kay and her adult son.

The house her grandson thought they were moving into didn't work out. With rental property in short supply and the moving van on its way, they needed to find housing.

Kay said no problem. Move in with us until you find something.

Bear in mind they are arriving with a moving van filled with furniture.

To make room for their furniture, she looked around her own house to see what could go. She filled the curb with her furniture, free to anyone who wanted it.

She also moved out of her own bedroom to give it to her grandson.

"We'll get by," she said.

There was no panic. No worrying. Just action to solve the problem.

In the 15 years that I've known her, she overcomes so much with the same serenity.

I've never heard her express a worry, even when I think she should. COVID has hit our neighborhood and our friends, making me not want to visit anyone.

Kay isn't worried and won't let COVID imprison her, she says.

We both agree that every day of life is a precious gift.

Why waste it by worrying?

I'm trying to remember that whenever I start to worry too much.

ALS typically strikes between ages 40 to 70

Q. Is ALS an old-person's disease, or does it affect every age group?

Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS) usually strikes between the ages of 40 and 70. There have been cases of ALS in young adults, children and older people. The average age for getting ALS is 55.

In the United States, ALS is known as Lou Gehrig's disease. Gehrig, who played baseball for the New York Yankees, died of the disease in 1941. In other countries, ALS is often called motor neuron disease. It is not contagious.

ALS destroys nerve cells (motor neurons) that control muscle cells. In most cases, the cause is unknown. As the motor neurons are lost, the muscles they control weaken. Eventually, people with ALS are paralyzed.

Amyotrophic means "no muscle nourishment." Lateral identifies the affected areas in the spinal cord. Sclerosis refers to the scarring or hardening in the region.

ALS doesn't directly affect involuntary muscles, so the heart, digestive tract, bladder and sexual organs continue to work. Hearing, vision, touch and intellectual ability generally remain normal. Pain is not a major component of ALS.

The most common form of the disease in the United States is "sporadic" ALS. It may affect anyone, anywhere. "Familial" ALS is inherited. Only about 5 to 10 percent of all ALS patients appear to have the inherited form of ALS. In those families, there is a 50 percent chance each offspring will inherit the gene mutation and may develop the disease.

Respiratory problems usually kill those with ALS in three to five years after diagnosis. About 10 percent of those with ALS live more than 10 years. Some survive for many years. For example, the famed British physicist, Stephen Hawking had ALS from the 1960s until his death in 2018. In a small number of people, ALS mysteriously stops.

The usual early symptoms of ALS are weakness or spasms in a limb, and trouble speaking or swallowing. After the initial symptoms, the disease may progress in the following way: cramping of muscles, demitted use of the limbs; thick speech and difficulty projecting the voice; difficulty breathing.

Doctors begin testing for ALS by checking muscle and nerve function. The next step is usually an electromyogram (EMG). This test measures the signals that run between nerves and muscles and the electrical activity inside muscles. Additional tests may include a magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) scan, a spinal tap between two lower vertebrae, blood tests and muscle biopsies.

The drug Rilutek (riluzole) and the NeuRx Diaphragm Pacing System have been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for treating ALS.

The NeuRx Diaphragm Pacing System™ is a medical device used to help ALS patients breathe.

There are other treatments to help people with ALS. These include physical and occupational therapy, respiratory therapy and assisted ventilation, speech therapy, nutritional and emotional support. There are devices, too, such as special grips for writing implements and eating utensils, canes, supportive braces, walkers; wheelchairs and scooters.

been well over 50 people involved since the beginning."

RTV provides "Artist Spotlight," "Lehigh Valley Showcase," "Songwriters Alive!" with Tom Cooney, and "Cyber Speakeasy," which is "music, conversation and cocktails" with Not For Coltrane (Michael Duck).

"We let people do what they do best, unlocking their potential and giving them opportunity and a platform. Our goal is to have a group of people whose voices are respected."

RTV hosted a concert during the Christmas 2021 season at the Roxy Theatre, Northampton, that featured Jones playing the theater's organ.

As might be expected, the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic created some problems.

"The COVID audience is terrified. They don't know what to do. There is no consistent setup of procedures. It has to have some normalcy to it.

"COVID has turned live venues upside down. A lot of venues are closed. Changes in zoning have shut some of them down. Some are waiting to reopen. And relationships with many owners are gone. We are just trying to get people to come out."

Jones says that although there are new bands with younger musicians playing punk and grunge, the Lehigh Valley music scene is blues, rock, acoustic and R&B.

"The biggest problem is that bands are aging.

Equipment is not getting any lighter. The average age of band members is mid-50s."

None of this is stopping "Rocking The Valley". Jones is developing other platforms and experimenting with shows, dropping old ones and putting out new ones.

"Rocking The Valley" will rock on.

Realtors donate $2,500 to Marine Corps League

The Greater Lehigh Valley Realtors has donated $2,500 to the Lehigh Valley Marine Corps League.

Each year, the president of the Greater Lehigh Valley Realtors (GLVR) selects an organization or charity of choice to support.

GLVR 2022 President Howard Schaeffer, a former active-duty United States Marine, is a Realtor with RE-MAX Real Estate, Allentown. He chose Lehigh Valley Marine Corps League Detachment 296.

In selecting the Lehigh Valley Marine Corps League as a beneficiary, Schaeffer reflected back on when he first signed his contract to serve the United States military.

"In April 1987, when I signed that contract, I knew the United States Marine Corps and my service would be dear to my heart long after my active duty came to an end," Schaeffer said.

"Like Realtors, the Marine Corps League also serve the community in which we reside.

"The Lehigh Valley Marine Corps League Detachment 296 serves our local community with time and with finances. I felt it important to support this organization during my year as president of the Greater Lehigh Valley Realtors."

According to Schaeffer, who became a Life Member of the Marine Corps League in 2015, the programs offered by the organization would not be possible without support from the community.

Detachment 296 is a volunteer-run organization, with 100 percent of money donated going to veteran causes and the local community.

Among the organization's services are military funerals for fallen veterans, no matter their branch of service; a Color Guard available for ceremonies, parades and patriotic events; hospitals and nursing homes frequently visited to provide conversation and the lifting of spirits, and old and tattered flags given a proper retirement ceremony each year.

"Detachment 296 serves in so many ways," Schaeffer said. "Service is part of a Marine's DNA. I'm thankful, as president of the Greater Lehigh Valley Realtors, to have been given the opportunity to give back to the Marine Corps League, an organization that has been such an important and impactful part of my life."

Staged readings began in 2021 at PSF to bring new stories and perspectives to theater audiences, according to PSF officials.

"The River Bride," written by Marisela Treviño Orta, is said to combine Brazilian folklore and lyrical storytelling into a magical tale of love, fate and transformation.

In the storyline, a mysterious visitor arrives just before a much-anticipated family wedding. The story takes place in a small Brazilian fishing village. Two sisters cope with their own happily-ever-after as they attempt to remain true to themselves and each other.

Director KJ Sanchez, who helmed PSF's first staged reading, "Native Gardens," in 2021, is founder and CEO of the theater company, American Records, and head of the MFA playwriting and directing programs at the University of Texas at Austin.

Sanchez did voice character work for the animated series, "Dora the Explorer" (Nickelodeon, 2000-19) and "Go, Diego, Go!" (Nickelodeon, CBS, 2005-06).

The cast of "River Bride" includes Alina Collins Maldonado (Helena), Orlando Arriaga (Señor Costa), Hugo Carbajal (Moises), Eddie Cruz Jr. (Duarte), Sheila Tapia (Señora Costa) and Allie Vasquez (Belmira).

"The River Bride," 7:30 p.m. July 1, 2; 7:30 p.m. July 2; 2 p.m. July 3, Schubert Theatre, Labuda Center for the Performing Arts, DeSales University. Tickets: 610-282-9455, www.pashakespeare.org; 610-282-9455

Graduate Olivia Jones shares a bittersweet moment with her family as she remembers her beloved late great grandfather, Larry, to whom she dedicated her graduation. She was supported by her mom and dad, Sarah Hartzell and Terrance Jones, her best friend, Bekka Haidle, her aunt and uncle, Charles and Cindy Frey, and her grandmother, Laura Trenberth.

New graduate Gavin Gibbs reunites with his mom and dad, Rachelle and Aaron Gibbs, and his girlfriend, Amilia Lieb, following commencement. He is bound for Syracuse University in the fall where he will study mechanical engineering.

Graduates Jing Crystal Lin, Suphaya Inivangdee, and Cathryn Gianforcaro agree that they will miss seeing each other and the rest of their friends every day. Lin will begin studies in math at Rutgers University in the fall. Inivangdee, an exchange student, will return to Thailand to study mass communication, and Gianforcaro will study dance and criminology at Mercyhurst University.

Best friends and now graduates Luke Bittner, Danny Stambaugh and Tommy Wendland find each other after commencement. Bittner will attend Juniata College for psychology; Stambaugh is bound for NCC to pursue a degree as an automotive technician; Wendland is headed to Bloomsburg University to study exercise science.

Parents: Kira and Shean Wilson

Post-highschool plans: Attend Temple University to play womens basketball on an athletic scholarship to study real estate at the Fox School of Business

A word that best describes classmates: Vivacious

Fondest senior year memory: Senior night. It made me feel good to be able to wear my number 13, to get to warm up with my team, and to hear my name get called in the starting line up one last time

Message for incoming freshmen: High school is going to be a great experience but it may also suck at times. Teachers are going to grill you with work but their intentions are good; they want to be able to help their students succeed and see them grow both as scholars and most importantly people. You may think some teachers will hate you but that's their way of showing how much they care about you. You are not going to understand everything that they teach you but their job is to help you learn so do not be afraid to ask for help about anything, including life things.

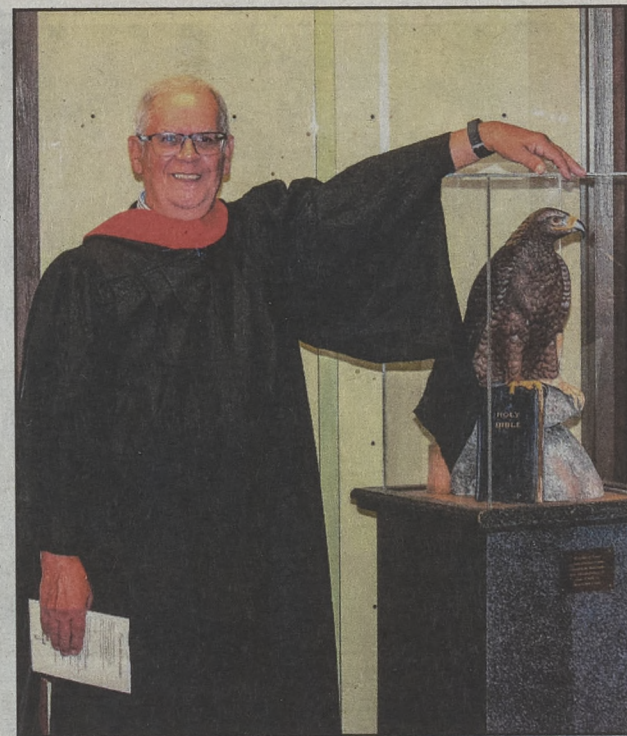

Wilson

You may get into drama with your friends that will seem like the end of the world but really a day later you guys will make up, and even if you don't it's okay. You may not find your crowd as quickly as others and that's OK. I didn't find my good groups of friends until senior year. High school does go by fast, so don't take for granted any moment you have before going into the real world.
