Pvt. Joseph Betze
Instrument Expert

AN AIR SERVICE COMMAND STATION, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND—Daily precision bombing requires delicate instruments, carefully adjusted, to get our planes to their pin-point targets. The highly important job of overhauling and rebuilding all aircraft instruments belongs to the Accessories Section of an Air Service Command depot in England.

Pvt. Joseph Betze, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Betze of 1249 East Third Street, Bethlehem, is one of the highly-trained technicians whose job it is to see that those instruments are in perfect working order. He is one of the men recently commended by Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, Commanding General of the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe, when production at the depot increased by over 100 percent.

Before entering the Army, Pvt. Betze was employed by the Bethlehem Steel Company.
