

Miller Jr., Daniel J.

Bangor Navy Man Gets Rank Boost To Lieut. Comdr.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Miller Sr., 153 South Main Street, Bangor, have received word that their son, Daniel J. Miller Jr., United States Navy, has been advanced to the rank of lieut. commander in the Naval Reserve.

Oct 29 '45
Commander Miller is a graduate of Bangor High School, Blair Academy and Cornell University. He entered the Navy as an ensign in June, 1941. After three months of aeronautical engineering training at New York University, he spent a year at the Panama Canal Zone; two years as engineering officer at the Daytona Beach, Fla., Naval Air Station and during the past year has been stationed on an escort carrier in the Pacific. He took part in the invasions of Leyte, Luzon, Iwo Jima and Okinawa and is now stationed off the coast of Japan.

October 29, 1945