WASHINGTON — Pled to impeach, the House sped ahead Monday with plans to oust President Donald Trump from office, warning he is a threat to democracy and pushing the vice president and Cabinet to act even more quickly in order to remove Trump in the final days of his presidency.

Trump faces a single charge — “incitement of insurrection” — after the deadly Capitol riot in an impeachment resolution that the House will begin debating Wednesday.

At the same time, the FBI warned of potential armed protests in Washington and many states by Trump loyalists ahead of President-elect Joe Biden’s inauguration Jan. 20. In a risk assessment, the Washington Monument was being closed to the public amid the threat of disruption.

Further eroding the nation’s security, acting Homeland Security Secretary Chad Wolf stepped down from his post, days after criticizing Trump over the riot.

Wolf said in a message to staff that he would not leave
