1.7% hike

Roy calls budget 'reasonable'

By BERNIE O'HARE
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

It's the worst of both worlds. Bethlehem school directors were presented with a preliminary $202 million budget April 26 containing the elimination of 178.5 people from its staff and no funding for buses that would return kindergarten students home after school. It eliminates coed soccer in middle schools. It even removes police protection. Yet it still calls for a 1.7 percent tax hike, which is projected to cost the average homeowner an additional $56.

Before an audience of about 60 people at East Hills MS, Superintendent Dr. Joseph J. Roy called it a "reasonable budget" that avoids infringing on the "classroom circle." But directors Rosario S. Amato, Irene Follweiler, Loretta M. Leeson and Benjamin M. Tenaglia III made clear, in an informal polling, that they would prefer to see no tax hike at all.

Leeson said she was upset at just receiving the budget, but nevertheless went through a line-by-

Bethlehem's 16th annual Spring on Fourth! What's on Third festival drew record crowds on the beautiful Saturday morning of April 30. The Southside festival included an annual chili contest, live entertainment, family activities and sales at many neighborhood shops. The chili contest, a perennial favorite, sold out the 7,500 tastings by noon. Thirty-seven local business prepared chili to support the local event.

LEHIGH County gaming grants

Fountain Hill, Salisbury Twp. share in revenues

Fountain Hill and Salisbury Township were big winners last week when Lehigh County Executive Don Cunningham announced the award of Lehigh County's portion of gaming host fee revenues from the Sands Casino in South Bethlehem.

Recommended awards for this round of gaming grants include:

*$61,748 to the Borough of Fountain Hill for upgrades to Delaware Avenue in order to handle additional traffic. This money comes from slot machine revenues.

*$12,025 to the Borough of Fountain Hill to cover the cost of outfitting and training an additional police officer. These funds are from table game revenues.

*$15,447 to Salisbury Township for traffic safety and enforcement along the casino corridor in the eastern portion of the township. These funds are generated by slot machine revenues.

Lehigh County's gaming revenue will be distributed in the form of grants to municipalities who have been affected by the addition of gaming to the Lehigh Valley.

'Sometimes they touch our souls'

Bethlehem native, NCC grad wins 4th Pulitzer

By HEIDI BUTLER
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

On April 18, Carol Guzy, Bethlehem native and 1977 Northampton Community College graduate, became one of a handful of individuals to win four Pulitzer Prizes. While the recognition for her work is affirming, the work itself has been full of heartache.

Guzy's career as a photojournalist has brought her face to face with tragedy and with danger as she has covered political uprisings, earthquakes, volcano eruptions, mudslides, genocide and civil war.

Her most recent Pulitzer came for photographs she and two of her colleagues from The Washington Post took in Haiti after an earthquake ripped the country and its people's lives apart in January 2010. The photos do not spare the viewer's emotions. Neither did the hurricane.

"There is a danger in censoring reality," Guzy told students in a talk at Northampton in 2008.

But in the midst of horror, Guzy almost always finds evidence of hope. Glimpses of kindness and compassion are also part of her photographic tableau.

Guzy studied nursing at NCC before discovering an interest in and passion for photography. Her former professor, Barbara Roper, says, "You can see the attributes of a good nurse - compassion, attention to detail, caring for humanity - in her photography."

Given her sensitivity to pain, how does the former nursing major cope with the suffering around her? In a Q&A published in The Washington Post on the day the Pulitzers were announced, Guzy says, "Initially the camera is a bit of a shield ... You have to have some protective barrier around your heart so you can do your job. You tend to have a delayed reaction to things. I feel things more deeply after I put the camera down."

Despite the emotional toll, Guzy keeps taking pictures. Her first Pulitzer came 25 years ago for photographs taken after the eruption of a volcano killed 23,000 people in Colombia and a mudslide destroyed the homes of many of the survivors.

Ten years later she earned a second Pulitzer; this one for

During her career Guzy has been named Photographer of the Year three times by the National Press Photographers Association, as well as being awarded the grand prize in international photography in a competition that honors Robert F. In the Q&A published in The Washington Post this April, Guzy and her fellow photojournalists acknowledge that while awards are nice, "It's hard to celebrate an award for something that's so very sad."

line review, looking for areas to cut. When warned that additional cuts could interfere in the classroom, she dismissed it as a "scare tactic."

The preliminary budget produced on April 26 is the result of six previous workshops. Final budget adoption is scheduled for June 13. Roy explained he would like to adopt a budget as soon as possible so that furloughed employees would have as much notice as possible.

Directors were particularly bothered by the elimination of mid-day bus runs for kindergarten students.

"We cannot take kids to school and then not take them home when they're 4 or 5 years old," complained Michael E. Facinnetto.

"I don't know why the administration would put down a one-way ticket to school. Are they trying to insult us?" asked Rosario S. Amato, who claimed these children were being given a "one-way ticket to Hell."

Eugene C. McKeon likened it to the Bataan Death March.

Restoring this service would cost the school district $114,500, which translates to an additional 0.092 percent tax hike.

A majority of school directors propose restoring high school resource officers, i.e. a police presence. But William J. Burkhardt complained that police are only present at schools 60 percent of the time, and were absent during a recent assault at Liberty HS. He said he prefers a 100 percent police presence.

Board members also oppose personnel cuts for high school guidance counselors. But despite pleas from students, co-ed soccer at the middle schools is still on the chopping block. Attorney Janet Jackson argued that students involved in sports tend to stay out of juvenile court, but not one director seemed interested in restoring that $24,000 in funding, which would increase the tax bite by 0.19 percent.

During her presentation, district business manager Stacy Gober told directors that $1 million was being taken from $2.6 million in the budgetary reserve. Follweiler questioned whether this would affect the school district's credit rating, and this concern was echoed by Leeson, Amato and Tenaglia.

Directors and administrators will tangle with the budget again on May 9, 6 p.m., at East Hills MS.

Ordinance a 'no brainer'

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

BETHLEHEM

Sixty-five Lehigh Valley residents, nearly every one of them proudly wearing "Civil Rights Now" stickers, sacrificed a pleasant spring evening April 28 to appear in Bethlehem's Town Hall to support an ordinance that banishes discrimination and establishes a Human Relations Commission.

During a three hour long hearing before Gordon Mowrer's Human Resources Committee, nearly every one of these people had something to say, some of them several times.

They said it to every single council member, too. Although there are only three members on Mowrer's committee, all seven council members were present.

One speaker, ironically, was a former Bethlehem City Council member. Ismael Arcelay, who now serves on the Pa. Human Relations Commission, talked about his life in Bethlehem as a Latino. He claimed that 20 years ago, if he walked down a Bethlehem street without a suit and tie, he would be treated much differently because he's a Latino. He lamented that even now, there is still "disparate treatment," and it extends to Bethlehem's educational institutions and even exists inside City Hall.

Discrimination is alive and well in the housing industry, too, according to former Bethlehem realtor Rob Hopkins, who now works as an assessor in Lehigh County. He claims to have personally experienced seeing tenants ejected from apartments because of who they are. He has seen homeowners refuse to sell to a person who is different.

Racism still rears its ugly head, even in the rarefied academic atmosphere of Lehigh University, according to Professor Addison Gross. After Obama's election as [president], Gross told council that several black students were taunted with epithets. Just last November, two white students wore blackface.

A lesbian who worked as a nurse in Bethlehem found that a special set of rules existed for her.

She learned that she could be fired and would be without recourse because Bethlehem has no law to protect her right to be different. She no longer works in Bethlehem. A Lehigh student added that, though she loves the Christmas City, she could never remain in a city that refuses to protect diversity.

In addition to those who came to tell their story, the aristocracy of the gay and lesbian community was on hand. Liz Bradbury, executive Director of the Pa. Diversity Network, told council that it's completely legal to fire someone in Bethlehem for being pregnant. Equality Pa. Executive Director Ted Martin noted that a recent poll shows that 69 percent of Pennsylvanians support anti-discrimination legislation.

"It's embarrassing," said J. Willie Reynolds, after listening to the public.

"This is a no-brainer," remarked Dave DiGiacinto.

Mayor John Callahan brought a special guest to council, Pa. Human Relations Commission Chairman Steve Glassman. Arriving a little late, Callahan explained that he and Glassman were working on some changes to the ordinance, designed to make it stronger.

But Bethlehem resident Tim Chadwick questioned Callahan's sincerity. Chadwick reminded Callahan that in 2002, Callahan was much less enthusiastic about anti-discrimination legislation.

"I don't want to anger that old lady up on the Main Street extension," is what Chadwick contends Callahan said then.

Although the legislation itself may be a "no-brainer" to most council members, DiGiacinto had several amendments, addressing issues from how members are appointed to a possible sunset provision in three years. Glassman had several suggestions as well, designed to bring the proposed ordinance closer to state law. After some debate, Mowrer's committee moved to advance the legislation to the full council, where the sausage-making will continue.

Council President Bob Donchez stated that a full council will consider the legislation at its May 18 meeting, with a final vote slated for June. If it passes, Bethlehem will be the 21st municipality in Pennsylvania to pass a non-discrimination law at the local level.

If passed, this legislation will make it illegal to discriminate in employment, housing, education or public accommodation in the City of Bethlehem based on a series of protected classes.

But will it stop? That was the concern raised by Bethlehem resident Mary Pongraz. "Discrimination has no address," she reminded everyone. "If you look for discrimination, you will find it."

Lehigh Valley, Lehigh County's municipalities have an opportunity to recapture some of the money that they spend in maintaining adequate public safety and infrastructure for the increased demands created by gaming," Cunningham said. "Fountain Hill and Salisbury are the most impacted among Lehigh County's municipalities at present, because they are closest to the site."

The grants are recommended by a committee comprised of the County Executive, the Director of Community and Economic Development, the Chair of the Board of Commissioners and the District 5 Commissioner, who represents the municipalities closest to the casino.

The recommendations must be approved by the Lehigh County Board of Commissioners after two public readings. First reading of these grant recommendations took place April 27.

Halting Between Two
After God delivered the Israelites from Egyptian bondage, He required their exclusive loyalty: "Thou shalt have no other gods" declaring "for I the LORD thy God am a jealous God" (Exodus 20:3-5). They repeatedly violated this first command and became enamored with the gods of other nations. During the rule of King Ahab, Baal worship became popular under the influence of his ungodly heathen wife, Jezebel. God punished Israel by withholding rain for over three years and sent His prophet, Elijah, to rebuke them by asking, "How long halt ye between two opinions? If the LORD be God, follow him: but if Baal, then follow him" (1 Kings 18:21). One of the definitions of the word "halt" is "to limp" like a person whose hip is out of joint and staggers from side to side.
"How long halt ye between two opinions?" It is the question to be asked of those who call themselves "Christians" today, but are halting—limping—staggering between two opinions! The fact is that it is impossible to serve two contradictory masters as Jesus so emphatically stated, "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other" (Matthew 6:24). If you are wavering in your love between Jesus Christ and this world, I urge you to hear the word of the Lord: "Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God" (James 4:4). "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him" (1 John 2:15).
"How long halt ye between two opinions?" How long? It is time to make a clear-cut decision for Jesus! "Choose you this day whom ye will serve" (Joshua 24:15). "Now is the accepted time" (2 Corinthians 6:2).

STATE POLICE
Drug bust

Colonial Regional Police and Hecktown Fire Department emergency personnel responded to a fire alarm at a room of the Hampton Inn in Lower Nazareth Township around 10:50 a.m. April 4.

According to police, room resident Todd Laudenbach opened the door, revealing stinky white chemical smoke within. Laudenbach, 37, of Wind Gap, allegedly admitted to officers he and another man were cooking meth and it went wrong.

Laudenbach, who had methamphetamine in his pocket, and Denene Noel, 38, of Saylorburg, were committed to Northampton County Prison in lieu of $200,000 bail. They are charged with possession of liquified ammonia gas, precursors and chemicals, risking catastrophe, and manufacturing, possession and possession with intent to deliver methamphetamine.

Mall plans get better reception

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Lou Pektor struggled with Bethlehem Township planners in March, when he presented sketch plans for the development of an 8.8-acre commercial tract across the street from Farmersville ES. Pektor had presented planners with a seven-building strip mall plan containing a convenience gas station, tire store, bank, pharmacy and daycare. Chairman Lee Snover characterized it a "hodgepodge," not a plan.

But Pektor had a completely different reception when he presented revised sketch plans to commissioners at their April 18 meeting. This one retained the gas station, pharmacy and daycare, but made most of the changes recommended by planners.

President Arthur Murphy took planners to task for discouraging Pektor from building a bank. "Anything legal is all right with me," he said.

"So if you want to pursue the bank end of it, I would have no problem with putting a bank in there."

Michael Hudak agreed with Murphy, stating, "An allowable use is an allowable use," and Paul Weiss said he was "very, very happy" at the changes made by Pektor. But Jerry Batcha did voice some concern about a daycare extending up to the sidewalk in a busy area, as well as storm water runoff.

In other business, independent auditor Todd Bushta told commissioners there were "no significant audit findings" and "no difficulties encountered" in his review of the 2010 Budget, adding that the "manager is doing an outstanding job." The audit will be posted on the township's web page. Commissioner Thomas Nolan relayed resident complaints about ATV use near Farmersville Road. Although the ATVs have remained on private property, neighbors are concerned by noise at all hours. Because these ATVs drive close to property lines, parents are also concerned about the safety of their children.

Township manager Howard Kutzler provided commissioners with a North Whitehall Township ordinance regulating ATV use, which will be studied before the next meeting.

Commissioners commended the Public Works Department for the quick action they took to repair the Lehigh River tow path, following a March 11 storm. Commissioner Thomas Hudak reported that he received six telephone calls from residents who were delighted by the work done. Best of all, according to Kutzler, the expense was minimal.

CITY POLICE
Shooting

A 23-year-old man was shot as he walked on Alaska Street around 9:30 p.m. April 26, police said.

The man was on the west side of the street near Broadway when a gray vehicle, described as a PT Cruiser or 300, drove past.

Several shots were fired and the victim suffered multiple wounds to his legs, possibly including a broken bone.

Police said no casings, bullet holes or blood were found at the scene, but the victim was transported to St. Luke's Hospital for treatment, where he was listed in stable condition the following day.

"Anyone with information about this incident is asked to call Det. Chris Beebe at 610-997-7681 or the anonymous Tip Line at 610-691-6660.

Violations

Twenty-three-year-old Nicole Becaccio, of Bunny Boulevard in Effort, caused an early-hours incident at the East Broad Street 7-Eleven April 26.

According to police, Becaccio was observed stealing Combos and Kandy Kakes. Officers arrived and charged her with retail theft around 3:25 a.m.

About 20 minutes later, "unable or refusing to pay a cab fare", Becaccio was searched by officers, who found charred "cook spoons" on her person and declared her intoxicated.

She is additionally charged with possession of paraphernalia and public drunkenness.

AREA POLICE
DUI

Freemansburg Police arrested 22-year-old Brandon Cogley, of South Boundbrook, N.J., around 6 a.m. April 16.

Officers observed Cogley's vehicle driving erratically and striking parked cars. When stopped, Cogley allegedly smelled very strongly of alcohol, and his eyes were glassy. He failed field sobriety tests and had a blood alcohol level of .16 percent.

Cogley was transported to the Easton DUI Center for processing and is charged with driving under the influence.

Street, Act 537 decisions still waiting

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzanski@tronline.com

Borough Council reviewed several issues but made little progress at its April 18 meeting.

Specifically, work toward reaching an agreement with the city on Act 537 water and sewer plans and the possibility of closing a portion of Main Street are foremost in council's thoughts, but realistically still in limbo.

Borough Manager Judith Danko said despite new representation in William Erdman's Keystone Consulting engineers, council is still awaiting reviews of meetings between Erdman and the city so an educated decision can be made regarding Act 537. The city wants Freemansburg's willing inclusion in and approval for new water and sewer plans so it can receive state investiture, but the borough is holding out until it can be guaranteed indemnification for flood and sewer overflow damage. Meanwhile the borough's teeth gnashing with PennDOT over a collapsed culvert at Main and Washington streets continues to be lively. Though it repaired an identical problem mere yards away, PennDOT assures the borough that the second culvert is not its responsibility.

But council is standing firm, Danko said. "The Borough Council has been very adamant in believing that the issue is a PennDOT issue. They have been trying very hard to work with PennDOT, although due to it being a safety issue, if PennDOT will not help rectify the situation, the council continues to believe they have no other choice but to close the road until further notice."

Council is investigating the cost of making or renting signage indicating the closure and detour.

Gold and Silver Coins Selling for Highest Prices in Over 30 Years Due to Weak Economy and it's Happening Right Here in Bethlehem!

By KEN MCINTOSH
STAFF WRITER

ICCA will be placing ads in newspapers, radio and running television spots this week asking people to bring in any old silver and gold coins made before 1965. Those that bring in their coins will be able to speak with collectors one on one and have their coins looked at by a specialist. With the help of these ICCA members, offers will be made to those that have coins made before 1965. Offers will be made based on silver or gold content and the rarity of the coins. All coins made before 1965 will be examined and purchased including gold coins, silver coins, silver dollars, all types of nickels and pennies. Those that decide to sell their coins will be paid on the spot.

If you are like a lot of people you might have a few old coins or even a coffee can full lying around. If you have ever wondered what they are worth now might be your chance to find out and even sell them if you choose. They could be worth a lot according to the International Coin Collectors Association also known as ICCA. Collectors will pay a fortune for some coins and currency for their collections. If it is rare enough, one coin could be worth over $100,000 according to Eric Helms, coin collector and ICCA member. One ultra rare dime, an 1894S Barber, sold for a record $1.9 million to a collector in July of 2007. While that is an extreme example, many rare and valuable coins are stashed away in dresser drawers or lock boxes around the country. The ICCA and its collector members have organized a traveling event in search of all types of coins and currency. Even common coins can be worth a significant amount due to the high price of silver and gold, says Helms. Washington quarters and Roosevelt dimes can be worth many times their face value. Recent silver markets have driven the price up on common coins made of silver. Helms explains that all half dollars, quarters and dimes made before 1965 contain 90% silver and are sought after any time silver prices rise. Right now it's a sellers market he said.

What We Buy:

COINS

Any and all coins made before 1965, rare coins, entire collections, Silver Dollars, Half Dollars, Quarters, Dimes, Half Dimes, Nickels, Three Cent Pieces, Two Cent Pieces, Cents, Large Cents, Half Cents and all others.

PAPER MONEY

All denominations made before 1934.

GOLD COINS

Including $20, $10, $5, $4, $3, $2.5, $1, Private Gold, Gold Bars, etc.

INVESTMENT GOLD

Kruggerands, Canadian Maple Leafs, Pandas, Gold Bars, U.S. Eagles and Buffalos, etc.

GOLD
IS TRADING AT ALL TIME HIGHS
NOW IS THE TIME TO CASH IN!

SCRAP GOLD

Broken and unused jewelry, dental gold.

JEWELRY

Diamond rings, bracelets, earrings, loose diamonds, all gem stones, etc.

PLATINUM

Anything made of platinum.

SILVER

Flatware, tea sets, goblets, jewelry, etc. and anything marked sterling.

The rarest coins these collectors are looking for include $20, $10, $5 and $2 1/2 gold coins and any coin made before 1850. These coins always bring big premiums according to the ICCA. Silver dollars are also very sought after nowadays.

Other types of items the ICCA will be purchasing during this event include U.S. currency, gold bullion, investment gold, silver bars, silver rounds, proof sets, etc. Even foreign coins are sought after and will be purchased.

Also at this event anyone can sell their gold jewelry, dental gold or anything made of gold on the spot. Gold is currently trading at over $1,500.00 per ounce near an all time high. Bring anything you think might be gold and the collectors will examine, test and price it for free. If you decide to sell, you will be paid on the spot - it has been an unknown fact that coin dealers have always paid more for jewelry and scrap gold than other jewelers and pawn brokers.

So whether you have one coin you think might be valuable or a large collection you recently inherited, you can talk to these collectors for free. If your're lucky you may have a rarity worth thousands. Either way there is nothing to lose and it sounds like fun!

A clean energy revolution

Moravian College observes Earth Day with climate change activist

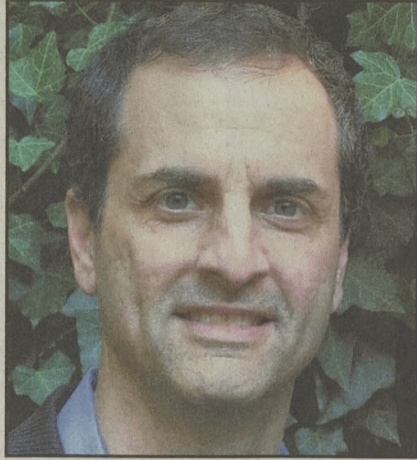

By DOROTHY GLEW
Special to the Bethlehem Press

"Become the greatest generation," Eban Goodstein challenged his audience of mostly Moravian College students April 20 in Prosser Auditorium. The battle of their generation will not be fought on the beaches of Normandy, but their struggle against global warming will be just as compelling, he said.

Goodstein's talk, "Reconciling the Science and Economics of Climate Change," was one of several events held at the college to observe Earth Day. His talk was and jointly sponsored by Moravian College's Environmental Studies and Sciences Program and the Economics and Business Department.

Goodstein is an economist well known nationally for his involvement in the clean energy movement. For more than a decade, he has worked to raise awareness of global warming and motivate people to become actively involved in efforts to arrest it. In support of these goals, he founded the Green House Network in 1999.

Weaving our "best science" into his observations on climate change, Goodstein observed that carbon emissions are the major driver of climate change. The thicker the "carbon blanket" created by emissions, the warmer the planet gets. As the planet heats up, fire-driven deforestation will become more commonplace. The National Center for Atmospheric Research has declared that drought is going to be the defining feature of climate change.

Eban Goodstein believes that the message on climate change is most effective when it is made personal.

Goodstein noted that the Arctic ice cap, "the planet's air conditioner," is breaking down. As Arctic ice sheets collapse, sea levels will rise 35 to 40 feet, and, once the process starts, it will be irreversible. He noted that 2010 was the hottest year on record.

Goodstein advocates cost benefit analysis as a decision-making tool for shaping climate policy. He argued for the necessity of getting solid scientific information to economists, so they can put a dollar figure on the cost of damages to the environment and determine who benefits from global warming and who is harmed by it. While economists' cost estimates to date have varied, the dollar figures they are generating are high. For example, it is estimated that over the next 40 years Arctic ice melt will take an economic toll of between $2.4 trillion and $24 trillion unless we change course quickly.

In urging students to transform the planet, Goodstein argued for the necessity of new political leadership committed to investing in clean energy research. Just as cell phone technology has transformed the planet, so can energy technology. Clean energy research is necessary to produce electricity from clean energy sources. Wind and solar power are currently the two fastest-growing energy sources. We also need to continue to invest in geothermal technology, he said.

In addition, while the demand for oil is increasing, the supply is not, so prices are rising. Oil companies are "awash in profits" and can halt action by using their earnings to lobby the government to do nothing because it serves their interest. He said we need to produce more energy efficient cars and to change our driving habits. More important, we need people at the highest levels of government who will commit to reducing our dependence on oil.

Goodstein told students that as members of the Greatest Generation they will need to do no less than oversee a clean energy revolution that rewrites the planet and re-invents transportation by the time they are his age (51). He urged students to become leaders in arresting climate change by running for office.

Police report huge spike in traffic citations

By MATT HENGEVELD
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Traffic citations in Fountain Hill saw a huge spike in March. More than 100 extra violations were cited in comparison with March of 2010.

According to Sgt. Shane Anthony of the Fountain Hill Police the large increase stems from a multitude of factors. "The department received an aggressive driving grant. We're going to have to have more people out there patrolling the streets."

Anthony also says that phoned-in parking complaints have led to many tickets. Notably, many of these violations came from St. Luke's Hospital, but "citations were sporadic, throughout the borough."

When a police officer receives a complaint about a parking violation, the officer must cite all nearby offenders. "One complaint can often lead to four, five or six citations," Anthony explained.

In total there were 189 citations handed out, 139 stemming from violations, such as speeding, aggressive driving and other traffic violations.

Other crimes such as theft and assault also saw a slight

The Fountain Hill Police Department was given praise for its efforts during an armed robbery in Emmaus at a KNTB bank on Dec. 30, 2010. All three bank robbers were taken into custody.

Emmaus Chief David A. Faust sent a letter to the borough, giving thanks for the assistance.

"The cooperation between federal, state and local officers was at its very best," said Faust. "As a small law enforcement agency, we would have been unable to provide the caliber of response required on our own."

HELLERTOWN

Hellertown chief of police, Robert Shupp, asked borough council members if they could redesignate and redefine the section of the commercial vehicle parking ordinance for vehicles over 22 feet in length, during Hellertown's April 18 council meeting.

According to Shupp, nearly all of the 100 tickets the borough has issued while enforcing the new abandoned vehicle ordinance were for commercial vehicles parked on public roadways.

Specifically, Shupp asked council to redesignate a commercial vehicle as any vehicle more than 22 feet long, Shupp said redrafting the commercial vehicle ordinance would allow individuals to park dual purposed vehicles, 22 feet and under, on the public roads.

"By doing this, the person who brings a truck home from work or uses it for commercial purposes, could still park it on the street," Shupp explained.

Shupp further asked council and borough solicitor Michael Corriere if the police department could suspend the issuance of tickets for vehicles in violation of the commercial vehicle ordinance until council researches that section of the statute.

"It's not a council decision," said council member, John Bates. "It comes down to the mayor and the chief."

"I don't think that's a problem, if the chief does not want to go out and enforce that section of the statute," Corriere said. "It's always in the discretion of the mayor and police."

"I think what we've come up with is more than a fair solution," Shupp said.

In other business, members of council unanimously approved Ordinance 613, the rails to trails user rules.

Council voted to prohibit horseback riding on the trail, as well as prohibiting defacing post it notices along the trail and requiring pets to be leashed by their owners.

"I am absolutely for horses not allowed on trails at this particular time," said council member Stephanie Kovacs. "The trail is too small to have horses and people with the big baby buggies. Upper Saucon doesn't allow horses on their trail."

According to borough manager Cathy Kichline, the current borough park rules are silent as to horseback riding.

During the meeting, members of council also unanimously approved Joseph Chernaskey to serve as the borough's zoning and code enforcement officer and Jennifer Yanek to serve on the planning commission. Yanek will replace Ron Shegda, who recently resigned from the position. Yanek's term runs until Dec. 31, 2012.

Yanek, a professional engineer with Gilmore & Associates, said she felt compelled to serve on the planning commission as a means of contributing to the improvement of Hellertown.

"I would like to see Hellertown continue to be a great place to live," she said.

Freedom tennis team captures city title

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcaldonald@tnonline.com

The Freedom Patriots became city tennis champs after back-to-back wins over Liberty, 4-3, and Becahi, 5-2, last week.

Because Adam Seltzer was the only singles winner for Freedom in the Liberty match, the Patriots had to rely on its doubles players for the team victory.

Geoff Hart and Shane Sternberg defeated Alec Gerhart and John Labiak, 6-0, 6-4 at number-three doubles, and Robbie Edwards and Bill Leeson defeated Inshal Malik and Jacob Peskin, 6-4, 6-4 at number-four doubles.

"It felt really good because [Shane and I] didn't beat Liberty last year. We played really well," said Hart.

Freedom's number-two doubles team of Haroon Ahmed and Tom Nguyen had lost to Liberty's Sean Ankrom and Ryan Lichty, 6-3, 6-3, so the match came down to number-one doubles.

"We were pretty nervous, but I had pretty good confidence in Bogardo and Adam. It took forever. Obviously, we wanted to win against Liberty," Hart said. "Last year, it came down to number one doubles, and it took three sets."

In the last match of the day, Seltzer and Rob Bogardo teamed up to defeat Grant Wilsterman and David Krauss, 7-6 (7-5), 4-6, 6-3.

"It was crazy," said Bogardo. "We started up three games in the first set. We got into the tiebreak, and we got a couple more service points. I think we just kept our consistency a little better than them."

Wilsterman and Krauss turned the tables on the Patriots by winning the second set.

"We were feeling so good and then they broke us. It happened so fast. We dropped it a little bit. See Tennis on Page A13

VOLLEYBALL Time running out for Patriots

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Freedom's backs are against the wall and head coach John Yanek fully understands that.

He just isn't sure how they've gotten themselves in this position.

The Pates volleyball team sat with a 6-6 record heading into last night's pivotal match against Emmaus (9-1). With three matches left in the season, all against divisional foes, the Pates need two wins to qualify for districts.

Yanek knows that the Emmaus contest, which is past Press deadlines, wasn't going to be an easy task, nor will next week's bout with Bethlehem Catholic (10-1). That makes Thursday's contest with Easton (7-4) and their regular season finale against Liberty (7-6) next week do or die situations.

"We definitely know that we don't have an easy way to end the season," said Yanek. "It's been a frustrating year, but we just haven't been able to get it done on the court. The kids have been great all year and have worked hard, but we just haven't been able to put it together on a consistent basis."

That predicament puts the Pates postseason lives in limbo, which is something that has rarely occurred in Yanek's 20-plus years at the helm.

After a 5-3 weekend at the Quakertown Invitational, Freedom may have done what Yanek expected, but now they have to up the ante if a district berth is what they want to attain.

"Maybe it's been an experience issue for us this year, but I really feel that we're not much different than last year's team," said Yanek in reference to his team last spring that finished the season 13-8 and comfortably reached the postseason. "We've just had too many missed

Clutch play hasn't been the staple for Becahi

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Sometimes clutch plays can define seasons and that's part of the identity problem that Bethlehem Catholic has faced all season.

The Hawks went down again on Monday, losing to Emmaus 5-4 during a nine inning baseball affair that added another woe to head coach Mike Grasso.

The Hawks led 4-0 through three innings and had a bases loaded opportunity with no outs in the frame and couldn't capitalize.

That inability to capitalize has been an issue all year.

The loss dropped Becahi to 5-8 overall on the year and 2-7 in the Lehigh Valley Conference to give Grasso and company little leeway the rest of the year. "Well, we can only afford to lose two more games the rest of the year if we want to make the playoffs," said Grasso. "With seven games left, we know it's not an easy task, but if there's one thing these kids are going to do, it's fight till the end."

The Hawks will need that type of resilience with three divisional games left on the calendar along with non-league games against Salisbury and Pottsville. They also play Dieruff.

But after leaving 10 men on base against Emmaus (7-5) on Monday, Grasso is just hoping that his team's fortunes can turn around sooner rather than later.

It only takes one to win, but for the Hurricanes, it took two big hits to defeat Emmaus on Saturday, 6-5.

With two outs and the bases empty in the bottom of the seventh inning, Liberty second baseman Jensen Appleman hit an in-the-park home run to centerfield, tying the score 5-5.

"I was thinking I can score on this, and I'll just run as fast as I can," said Appleman. "My team was relying on me to keep [the game] alive. I was focused on hitting the ball and getting on base."

Teammate Dior George found herself in an almost identical situation in the bottom of the eighth.

With two outs and two strikes, the Liberty centerfielder hit the game winner to the leftfield fence, scoring Erin Wilson for the Hurricane victory.

"I was really excited that I could do it for my team. It seems like we're always in that position-one run up or one run down," said George. "I

LHS girls go unbeaten

By KATIE MCDONALD

Liberty's girls' track team completed another undefeated season with victories over Freedom, Emmaus, and Nazareth.

"It feels really good, but now it puts more pressure on next year," said distance runner, Amy Darlington.

In the Hurricanes' meets against Emmaus and Nazareth, Kali Shumock won the 400 in 1:04.5, Darlington won the 800 in 2:22, Jess Cygan won the 1600 in 5:16, and Vrin-da Jagota won the 3200 in 12:07.

Shumock, Darlington, Shay Lewis, and Emily McBride took first place in the 4x4 relay in 4:16.9, and Becky Tomlin, Lewis, McBride, and Darlington placed first in the 4x8 relay in 10:49.

With leagues and districts around the corner, Darlington would like to see the Hurricanes' 4x4 relay team get closer to a time of 4:10, which they clocked in the meet against Parkland this year.

In addition, one of Darlington and Cygan's goals this season is to break 5:00 in the 1600. Still over 5:00, the Liberty teammates broke the meet record at the Allen Invitational last Friday.

Liberty distance runners have their eyes on Pottsville's Paige Stoner, who won the silver medal at the PIAA Cross Country Championships last fall.

"We're going to try to run good times at leagues and districts. She's a pretty good distance runner," Darlington said.

Pates Halper seeing progress at Freedom

By PETER CAR
pcar@ttonline.com

The wins may not be pouring in for Freedom's soccer team, but progress is being made.

The Pates earned their fourth win of the season Monday, knocking off Pocono Mountain West 2-1 at home. Sarah Bilheimer and Dana Wetmore tallied first half goals for Freedom to give head coach Jamie Halper something to smile about to open the week.

Despite their 4-11 record overall, Halper isn't discouraged at all about the direction of the program.

"We've been playing a much better game of soccer lately and that's a good step for these girls," said Halper. "We're definitely playing better than last year. It's really just taking baby steps for the program and have these girls move forward."

The Pates have already improved from last year's 1-17 mark and Monday's win showcased that the Pates haven't given up on a lost season. Despite being eliminated from the postseason last week, Freedom's three remaining games on the schedule are important to Halper to have the players build confidence heading into the off-season.

Freedom took on Bethlehem Catholic (10-4-1) yesterday past Press deadlines, and close out the season against Liberty and Wil- son next week.

With a rivalry game against the Hurricanes (5-10) suited to be a battle, Halper knows that finishing strong is the key for more positive steps to be taken.

"I see it with the girls in how they're responding," Halper said of how her team has played down the stretch. "I think they all have a real belief that things are getting better for the program. It's just going to take time."

Becahi pounded Cata-sauqua 6-0 on Monday with Bridget Smith and Michaela Love each scoring twice. The Hawks have won five straight games since their midseason slump and have clinched a district berth.

Still, tomorrow's contest against division leader Easton (13-3) is the one game that the Hawks are gearing up for.

Becahi lost to the Rovers 3-0 on April 25, which was also the last time the Hawks lost this year.

LHS finally holds signing day

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Liberty's letter of intent signing day was a long time coming, but it was a welcoming affair last week at the high school when 17 college-bound athletes made their decisions official.

After being delayed originally because of a water main break in the city, the original contingent of 10 student-athletes nearly doubled when it came time to do a roll call last week.

Darrun Hilliard made his appearance for his well-known decision to play college basketball at Villanova, but Athletic Director Sam Senneka had plenty of other students to praise as well.

Jess Cygan's decision to attend William & Mary to run cross country and track wasn't the most talked about, but certainly boasted it's own impressive mantle.

Cygan plans to study kinesiology and fell in love with the historic campus during her visit to set the school apart from the rest of the pack.

"I visited a couple of other colleges before that and I wasn't really excited about any of them," said Cygan. "Once I visited William & Mary and met the team and coaches, it felt like it was the best for me. After going through the campus I really could see myself going there."

Anthony Cabrera will also find himself on a historic campus as he'll wrestle at Ithaca College.

Cabrera hopes to wrestle at 125-pounds next season for the Division-III school.

"I love the campus up there and it was just a great fit," he said. "It didn't really matter to me about wrestling D-I. That makes it more of a job, where I want to get my education and wrestle."

There were 17 students who signed letters of intent last week at Liberty.

Drew Persa chose to stay local and attend West Chester to play football.

Persa felt comfortable with the coaching staff, as well as having family nearby by the area. The sights and sounds of West Chester also mimicked the scenes of Bethlehem, which made the school an enticing pick for the Division-II bound linebacker.

"I love Bethlehem and the downtown area of West Chester is awesome," said

Persa. "It reminds me a lot like home and to be honest, I couldn't find any negatives about going there."

Other students to sign were: Ashley Bothwell (Widner University, swimming); Sam Boyer (Moravian College, football); Vanessa Chambers (Muhlenberg College, track); Tom Darlington (Monmouth University, cross country and track); William Duffy (East Stroudsburg University, football); Caroline Fitch (Kings College, swimming); Dior George (Moravian College, softball); Thomas Haller (York College, baseball); Dante Holmes (Dean College, football); Jacob Kelhart (Clarion University, swimming); James Sawyer (University of Scranton, baseball); Kaitlyn Schnalzer (Widener University, volleyball) and Ellen Walker (University of Scranton, soccer).

Wilson hopes to make U.S. National team

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Sean Wilson doesn't live the stereotypical life of the average eighth grader. He visited Mexico in January not for the plush resorts of the warm sun and soft sand, but to train with the United States U-14 national soccer team. The eighth grader at Broughal Middle School wants to be a lawyer one day, but that goal is superceded by his dream to be a professional soccer player.

Wilson is currently getting his chance to cut his teeth even deeper into the national team pool as he's in Carson, Calif., all week for a final trial run with the U.S. team.

Thirty-eight players from across the country have convened at the Home Depot Center, home of Major League Soccer's LA Galaxy and Chivas USA, to train from May 1-8 to undergo two training sessions a day, along with various scrimmages against elite level academy clubs.

They'll also get a chance to watch the Galaxy play the New York Red Bulls on Saturday night.

Amidst the opportunity comes a final decision, as 18 players will be chosen for the U-14 national team.

Soccer has taken Broughal student Sean Wilson many places so far.

Not being chosen isn't an option for Wilson.

"That's something that I haven't even thought about," said Wilson. "I'm just going to go out there and play hard. I think after going through the Mexico trip, I'll be more comfortable with everything."

For Wilson's mother Jennifer, the journey has been quite an experience for the family. Sean was trained by his father Sean, who played for the West Indies national team.

After being born in the Bronx, Wilson lived in Easton and then in Las Vegas. He moved back into Bethlehem last year and started playing his club soccer for Players Development Academy in New Jersey. He was scouted at a regional ODP event last year, where he got the chance to crack the U.S. national team.

"It gives us great pride to know we raised a young boy that takes pride in what he does," said Jennifer. "He makes us all so proud."

Wilson may go to Broughal, but he'll spend his high school years in New Jersey, attending St. Benedict's Prep. The school's soccer program was ranked first in the nation in 2006 and has a prestigious soccer tradition. Wilson just hopes he can make his own mark in the sport.

"My favorite player is Michael Essien (Chelsea/English Premier League) and that's who I try to play like," he said. "That's the same thing I want to do this week. Just play hard like Essien."

and we needed to regroup," Bogardo said.

Seltzer and Bogardo tried to limit unforced errors, and keep the ball low and crosscourt.

"We wanted to keep the ball away from the net, away from Grant and out of his reach, and we wanted to keep the rallies going," said Bogardo. "It worked out pretty well."

Winning their matches for the Hurricanes were Krauss over Bogardo at number-two singles, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, and Kyle Manley over Theo Kourpas at number-three singles, 4-6, 7-6, 6-3.

The following day, Freedom defeated Becahi, 5-2. Seltzer, Bogardo, and Kourpas won their singles matches over Stephen Rossi, Frank Shi, and Chris Blaszk.

However, Becahi's Marcin Boraganli and Paolo Turco defeated Matt Ashton and Mike Samuelson, 8-3, at number-one doubles, and Jeff Stefanick and Dante Villagomez defeated Ahmed and Nguyen, 6-4, 6-4, at number-two doubles. Sealing the deal for the Patriots, Hart and Sternberg defeated Kevin Hamilton and Andrew Hoppe at number-three doubles, 6-0, 6-2, and Edwards and Leeson defeated Pat Keenan and Gian Turco at number-four doubles, 6-2, 6-4.

"This is probably one of the best seasons we've ever had, and these wins added to that," said Sternberg. "Over the past couple years, we've been working really hard, and we have a young team, but we've been working to get a lot better."

Baseball

"We just haven't been able to get the big hit this year," he said. "The same thing happened during our loss [6-5] to Parkland [last Friday]. We had bases loaded again and couldn't get a big hit. We're in these games, but we just haven't been able to get some crucial wins."

Freedom (6-8) missed a major opportunity to help their postseason cause on Monday, by losing to Dieruff 4-2. It was the second win of the year for the Huskies and came at a bad time for Nick D'Amico's group. With Emmaus, Easton and Whitehall on tap the rest of this week, the Pates don't have an easy stretch run.

Liberty (9-4) couldn't tame the beast that is Nazareth (12-0) on Monday, falling to the undefeated Blue Eagles 6-3. The Hurricanes will have their chance at redemption this week with four more games against Emmaus, Northampton, Becahi and Pleasant Valley.

had some confidence because I was hitting well that game, but I actually was nervous because I'm always in that position, and I always want to succeed."

The day before, the Hurricanes also won by one run, this time against Whitehall, 5-4.

Both victories came after Liberty lost to Easton last Wednesday, 4-3.

Coach Rich Giering said, "We just didn't put enough hits together. Every time we play them is a battle. We couldn't get the bunt down. It happens."

Freedom and Becahi continue to battle for the East Division along with Liberty.

The Pates lost to Parkland 6-5, blasted Pocono Mountain West 20-0 in three innings and then blanked Dieruff 12-0 on Monday.

Emily Gundrum didn't allow a hit in the five-inning game.

Becahi, meanwhile, blanked Northampton last week 2-0 behind Joelle Morey, who didn't allow a hit while collecting two hits of her own.

We had a couple of matches that we shouldn't have lost and some games that we could have taken advantage of, but it just hasn't gone our way. Hopefully that will change over the next week."

Liberty also has their backs against the wall in the playoff race. The 'Canes took on Northampton last night followed by tonight's match against Becahi. They battle Dieruff on Friday, followed by next week's contests against Easton and Freedom.

Becahi has given themselves a three-game cushion over Easton (7-4) for the division lead and the right to qualify for the Lehigh Valley Conference playoffs. The Hawks suffered their first setback of the season last week, losing to Emmaus in three games (25-23, 25-17 and 25-19) last Thursday.

The Hawks travel to the State College Invitational this weekend for their final major tuneup before rounding out the regular season next week.

Becahi made the finals of the Quakertown Invitational last weekend, but lost to Hempfield for the championship.

Steel's Quincy Bent

There may not be a street named after him like other Bethlehem Steel executives, but Quincy Bent was well respected among his peers in the steel industry. In 1901 Bent began his career working as an engineer at the Pennsylvania Steel Company near Harrisburg. He retired in 1947 from Bethlehem Steel Company as a director and vice-president under president Eugene Grace.

Karen M. Samuels
Columnist

Bent was born on July 28, 1879, in Steelton, Pa., to Luther Stedman Bent and Mary Sterns Felton. His father was superintendent of the Pennsylvania Steel Company in their hometown. When Quincy headed off to Williams College in Massachusetts, his family moved to Philadelphia. Luther worked as a financial analyst for the steel company. Immediately after his graduation from Williams in 1901, Quincy began his long career in steel.

Quincy met and married Deborah Norris Brock of Philadelphia. Both Quincy and Deborah were listed in Philadelphia Social Register. Her parents were Horace Brock, iron and steel industry owner, and Deborah Norris Coleman. The Bents were married in 1910 and had two sons, Quincy and Horace. When Bethlehem Steel purchased Pennsylvania Steel Company in 1916, they also got, as Schwab said, "the biggest asset in Pennsylvania Steel," Quincy Bent.

The Bent family moved to Bethlehem to a home at Fourth and Seneca streets in South Bethlehem. A few years later they were residing at 707 Delaware Ave., Fountain Hill, next door to William L. Estes, superintendent and chief of staff at St. Luke's Hospital. In 1918, Bent became vice president of operations and was a recipient of the bonus system.

In 1928, Quincy and Deborah purchased a 500-acre farm in Saucon Valley, which would later become the Saucon Valley Country Club. They established a successful dairy farm they named "Weyhill Farms." It was a beautiful property with Saucon Creek winding through the gentle rolling hills. The Bents built a large barn for their holstein and guernsey cows. They added 3,250 chickens, wild pheasants, sheep and pigs to their livestock. They also raised springer spaniels. Their milk won a top prize at the State Farm Show in 1935. The November 1935 issue of Country Life in America featured photographs of interior and exterior views of the farm.

In 1928 the Bents hired Philadelphia architect John Sinkler to expand and renovate the 140-year-old farmhouse on the property. Jakob and Susanna Gangewere originally built the farmhouse in 1790. Today Saucon Valley Country Club uses the building, which they named Weyhill Guest House.

During World War II, Bent volunteered on a number of boards. He served as a member of the Steel Advisory Committee of the Army and Navy Munitions Board and on the War Production Board. His son Horace enlisted during the war as an officer.

Quincy Bent became ill in the early 1950s and sold the farm to Bethlehem Steel in 1954, with the stipulation that the Bents could remain in their home. Quincy passed away on May 5, 1955 at home at age 75. Deborah Bent continued to live on the property until her death in 1964.

Hellertown hunt

PRESS PHOTOS BY MARK RECCEK

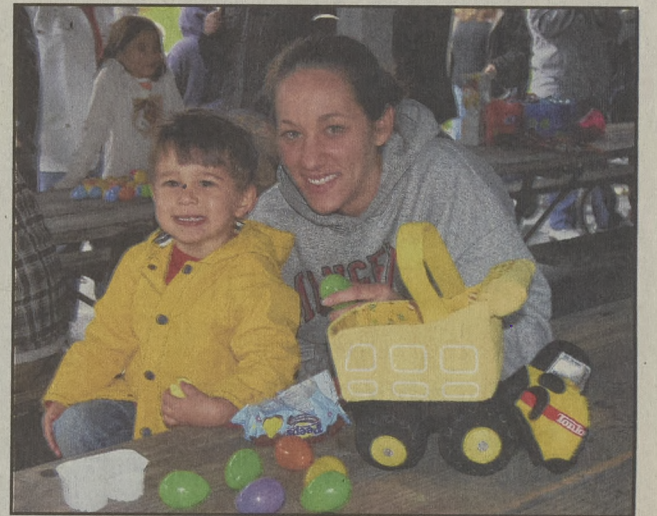

Hellertown and Saucon Valley children sprint off the line to gather as many Easter eggs as they can while family member watch the action. Hellertown held its annual Easter egg hunt at Dimmick Park the morning of April 23.

Saucon Valley ES students Hannah Anthony-Duffey and Spree Perez gladly show off the eggs they collected during the Easter egg hunt.

Brooke Stauffer, of Hellertown, quickly reaches for a box of Easter candy to place in her basket.

Andrea Travisano, of Hellertown, helps her son, Mason Snyder, count and look through the eggs he gathered.

21 advance in SkillsUSA

April has been a busy month here at Bethlehem Area Vocational Technical School.

Megan Lillie
Bethlehem Area VTS

One of the most exciting high-lights was the Pennsylvania state-wide SkillsUSA Competition. On April 6-8, SkillsUSA held the competition in Hershey. Schools from all over the state competed with District 11, which includes Bethlehem AVTS, Career Institute of Technology, Lehigh Career and Technical Institute, Monroe Career and Technical Institute, Upper Bucks County Area Vocational-Technical School and Colonial Academy.

District winning students competed in their leadership and skill related areas against one another to advance to the national competition in Kansas City in June. Bethlehem AVTS sent 40 students from its sending districts, which include Freedom (FR), Liberty (LI), Nazareth (N), Northampton (NO), Notre Dame (ND) and Saucon Valley High School (SV).

Twenty-one gold medals were won by the following students who will advance to national competition.

Gold medal individuals

Action Skills, Andrew Acevedo, NO-10
 Esthetics, Janice Vazquez, LI-12 and model Lisette Garcia, FR-12

Heating Ventilation Air Conditioning, Matthew Edelman, NO-12

Another fun event that went on at the BAVTS campus was a visit from the inspirational author Quay Hanna of "Bus America, Revelation of a Redneck." He shared his story with BAVTS students and staff courtesy of the Literacy Initiative, headed by Linda Moyer.

Quay's story revolves around a "core message that we should live with respect for one another even if we disagree with lifestyles, beliefs, morals, religion or politics."

Fresh out of Bloomsburg University, Quay thought he was boarding a Greyhound bus simply to get out of small town Strasburg, Pa. He couldn't anticipate that the trip would challenge everything he thought he knew about life.

Students utilized this story to obtain professional development competencies on diversity for SkillsUSA and future employment opportunities.

Also, four students from the National Technical Honor Society had the pleasure of reading to Mrs. Nota's kindergarten class at Lehigh Elementary School (Northampton SD) on April 14. The four students who participated were Jessica Kline, Al Arthofer, Cody Budnick and Cassandra Campbell, all juniors at Northampton HS. The NTHS students briefly described the programs that they are involved in at BAVTS and how math and other academics are so important in their future and careers.

The kindergarten students even had the opportunity to try on welding gear, from the welding coat to the welding hood. It was a great learning experience for the children. The NTHS students then read a book to the class, and had the students participate in several other activities.

Fun upcoming events include the Bridges Ceremony Scholarship Recognition May 10. Also there is Senior Recognition May 18 and the BAVTS Carnival May 16.

The Bach experience

'St. John Passion' to 'Zimmermann's Coffee House,' Bethlehem fest the place to be two weekends in May

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
 Focus editor

For those passionate about Bach, there is only one place to be in May: the 104th Bethlehem Bach Festival, May 6 - 7 and 13 - 14.

Bach Choir Artistic Director and Conductor Greg Funfgeld has assembled a superb festival of performance, soloists and surprises that should please Bach neophytes and aficionados.

"The Saint John Passion" will be performed 8 p.m. May 6 and 13 in Packer Memorial Church, Lehigh University.

The other major work performed during the two weekends will be, as always, the "Mass in B Minor," 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. May 7 and 14 — a tradition dating to 1900 at the Bach Festival in Bethlehem.

World-renowned festival soloists include English tenor Charles Daniels, making his Bach Festival debut in the role of the Evangelist on the first Festival weekend; William Sharp, baritone, in the role of Jesus; Julia Doyle, soprano; Rosa Lamoreaux, soprano; Daniel Taylor, counter-tenor; Benjamin Butterfield, tenor; and Christoph-eren Nomura, bass-baritone.

Elizabeth Field, violin, Bach Festival Orchestra concertmaster, will play a prominent music role in "The Saint John Passion."

The weekends include two performances of Bach's "Saint John Passion" by the Bach Choir of Bethlehem and Bach Festival Orchestra, which will record the work for the Analekta label.

The recording takes place May 8, 9, 10 and 11 in First Presbyterian Church of Bethlehem. "It seems like a lot of time, but it really isn't. The clock seems to speed up when you're recording," Funfgeld says.

"The Saint John Passion" holds a hallowed place in the history of the Bach Choir of Bethlehem. Its first United States' performance was given in Bethlehem by the Bethlehem Choral Union, founded by J. Fred Wolle, who would assemble The Bach Choir of Bethlehem. It was last performed at the Bach Festival in 1988 and, in a non-festival setting, in Bethlehem in 2004.

"It's a work that has enjoyed some frequency," Funfgeld says of the work's performance by the Bach Choir.

By way of comparison, Funfgeld says, "St. Matthew" is the more contemplative. "The St. John" is more dramatic. It's more compact. There's less reflective commentary. I think it's a great piece for people to encounter."

As is the case with the Bach Festival, in addition to the well-known monumental "Passion" and "Mass," Funfgeld has again programmed with an ear for the Bach connoisseur.

A shorter, one-hour, concert, 4:30 p.m. May 6 and 13, will feature the Festival premiere of Bach's arrangement of Pergolesi's "Stabat Mater," a work which delighted Festival audiences last year when it was performed for the 300th anniversary of Pergolesi's birth (1710).

Bach arranged the score as a setting for the text of Psalm 51. It will be performed by Julia Doyle and Daniel Taylor with the Bach Festival Orchestra.

"It's a beautiful work," Funfgeld says of the composition.

"This was a work that Bach knew and admired. He took it and rewrote it. He greatly expanded the viola part. He set it to Psalm 51. It is one of the great penitential psalms — a confessional psalm — written by King David.

"There's this sort of conversation in the middle where he's [David] asking for mercy. It's just a beautiful piece of music. Having done the Pergolesi last year, we thought it would be appropriate to do the Bach version."

Bach's earliest motet, "Jesu Meine Freude," with 36 Bach Choir singers, completes the May 6 and 13 afternoon program.

"It makes a wonderful prelude to the evening performance of 'St. John.'" The latter will be performed without intermission.

"I think all three of the works breathe a similar spirit," says Funfgeld.

As noted, this year's Bach Festival weekends are filled with delights for the Bach devotee.

The Saturday morning concerts in honor of Bach Choir conductor Ifor Jones at First Presbyterian Church of Bethlehem at 10:30 a.m. May 7 and 14 are "The Great Eighteen Divided by Two." The collection of chorale preludes, formerly called "The Great Eighteen," and Franz Liszt's "Prelude and Fugue on B.A.C.H." will be played by Funfgeld, playing the organ, along with Tom Goeman, Bach Festival organist.

The organ console at The First Presbyterian Church of Bethlehem will be placed in the center of the Chancel, in full view of the audience. Funfgeld will provide commentary on the works and their inspiration.

"This is a collection of organ-chorale preludes that Bach wrote when he was in Weimar and then reworked when he was in Leipzig," Funfgeld says.

"He [Bach] just kind of writes this beautiful dance and then the hymn comes in at the end with pedals.

"They're just extraordinary works. When Bach would put these together, he would express his thinking. It's kind of his summary of the art of chorale preludes which in Bach's time was just huge for organists.

"It was a big responsibility for the organist to introduce the hymns, to prepare the congregation, to sing the hymn. These hymns were well-known at the time.

"The chorales were for Bach an endless source of stimulation. He just loved that music. It fires his creative genius in extraordinary ways."

To commemorate the 200th anniversary of the birth of Liszt, there's "Prelude and Fugue on B.A.C.H."

Funfgeld explained the specifics spelled out in the letters of Bach's last name: "Prelude and Fugue on B flat, A natural, C natural and the H, B natural.

"So, in the nomenclature of the time, Bach could put his signature in the music. Some people have said the fugue is mourning the death of Bach. It's very soulful. Liszt's incredible keyboard virtuosity, his knuckle-busters, his organ pieces — it's no small affair: It's a wonderful piece."

Also, on Saturday mornings is "Zimmermann's Coffee House Part 2 - Concertos and Sonatas on Period Instruments," 10:30 a.m. May 7 and 14, Peter Hall, Moravian College Priscilla Payne Hurd Campus.

"It was so well-received," Funfgeld says of last year's "Zimmermann's Coffee House Part 1," which recreated Bach's concerts at Gottfried Zimmermann's coffee house — sort of Bethlehem's Godfrey Daniels of its day — in Leipzig, Germany.

Virtuoso soloists of the Bach Festival Orchestra include Elizabeth Field, violin; Loretta O'Sullivan, cello; Mollie Glazer, viola da gamba; and Charlotte Mattax-Moersch, harpsichord.

"It's the kind of music Bach would have performed with students and colleagues and people who were passing through town," Funfgeld says.

"A lot of our musicians double on baroque instruments. It gives them a chance to use those chops and play those instruments," says Funfgeld of "Zimmermann's Coffee House."

Festival-goers can take in each of the Saturday morning performances by attending both weekends.

Dr. Christoph Wolff, probably the leading Bach scholar in the world, will present "The Saint John Passion: An Unfinished Work?," the Distinguished Scholar Lecture, 2 p.m. May 6 and 13, Black Box Theatre, Zoellner Arts Center, Lehigh University. No tickets are required.

"The chance to hear him [Wolff] is a golden opportunity and people should not miss it. His insights are profound. I can't encourage people enough to get to that lecture," Funfgeld says.

Dr. Larry Lipkis will offer informal talks on the Bach Festival repertoire at the Festival Dinners, 6 p.m. May 6 and 13, Asa Packer Room, Lehigh University Center.

Festival luncheons are, 12:30 p.m. May 7 and 14, Asa Packer Room, Lehigh University Center.

The Bach Choir of Bethlehem, founded in 1898, gave the first complete performances in the United States of "The Mass in B Minor" and "The Christmas Oratorio."

The Choir and Bach Festival Orchestra, under Funfgeld's direction since 1983, have received critical acclaim for performances at the Thomaskirche, Leipzig; Kennedy Center, Washington, D.C.; Carnegie Hall, New York City, and the BBC Proms, Royal Albert Hall, London.

The Choir has released six recordings on the Dorian and Analekta labels and was featured on "CBS Sunday Morning," BBC World Service, National Public Radio's "Performance Today" and "Prairie Home Companion," the PBS documentary, "Make a Joyful Noise," and the internationally-distributed DVD "Mr. Bach Comes to Call."

As Bach Festival Executive Bridget George puts it so well, "Our Bach Festival is still one of the most amazing classical music experiences in the United States, attracting people from across the country to come to the little town of Bethlehem."

ArtsQuest staging standup, improv

By DIANE BAKOS
Special to The Press

If laughter's the best medicine, Bethlehem's about to get a whole lot healthier.

ArtsQuest is launching "Two Laugh Minimum," its new Wednesday comedy line-up, which will showcase a total of 22 comedians and eight improv troupes, including the Lehigh Valley's own Associated Mess.

Shows will be presented in the Fowler Blast Furnace Room, ArtsQuest Center at SteelStacks.

Ryan Hill, ArtsQuest Programming Manager-comedy and film, says he's bringing in "some of the best new comics from New York, Philly and all around. We'll also have local comics opening up."

First up onstage at 8 p.m. May 4 in the Fowler Blast Furnace Room: Myq Kaplan, a finalist in the 2010 Last Comic Standing competition. (And yes, "Myq" is "Mike," spelled ... funny.)

You'll marvel at Kaplan's way with words, his panache with puns, his verbal verve. This guy happens to hold a Master's in Linguistics. He claims his favorite activity is "entertaining his demographic, which is anyone who might know the word, 'demographic.'"

Kaplan will make you laugh and dare you to think.

"We're trying to have a good time, but not necessarily by having comics who go for the easy laugh. I'm looking for a higher level than that," says Hill.

"My goal is to bring in people that wouldn't normally have come here. We want the young crowd, the up and coming crowd." It's humor, Hill says, that will appeal to 20- as well as 40-somethings.

Sunday night will be improv night, anchored by The Associated Mess. Hill is Managing Director of "The Mess," Joshua Neth is its Artistic Director, and the entire company is comprised of about 20 performers who rotate shows.

"Before SteelStacks," Hill says, "there wasn't a great place in Bethlehem to perform." The Associated Mess's regular appearances were at The Civic Theatre of Allentown Theatre 514 and The Allentown BrewWorks.

"This is a huge deal just in the sense that we're in Bethlehem now. I love being part of Allentown and being part of that city's rebirth, but performing in this place is incredible," says Hill.

Another improv group appearing in May is The Improvised Shakespeare Company (ISC) from Chicago, May 21, 22. The audience offers one suggestion, and the ISC does an entire play in Elizabethan style. If this is a skill you'd like to hone, you can take the master class they'll be offering while they're in town. There's also a lesson planned for kids.

And even before the first standup takes the stage, Hill is working on expanding his offerings. He's got a new idea he's calling "Best of Craigslist." It'll be a variety show, he says, with improv, sketch, and standup, all based on real postings he's gathering from Craigslist.

Get your prescription now. Sounds like this is gonna be good for what ails ya.

What's on your bucket list?

I ask myself the same questions many older people ponder: What did I not do with my life that I would like to do? In other words, what's on my bucket list?

It's a short list with only one or two things on it: Return to Italy for another authentic Italian vacation; and, spend every day having fun. If I can't have fun all day, then I at least want to do one thing that I love.

That's it. My entire "bucket list" is only two lines. Seems to me I should be able to come up with more than that. Either I lack imagination or, I'm simply so content I don't long to do more.

I think the latter is true. It's hard to dream of new adventures or yearn to be elsewhere when my everyday life is so much fun. I keep looking around me, declaring, "I can't believe I'm so blessed to be living these precious, golden days."

I've only lived in Florida five years so I'm still in awe of my surroundings. When I'm outside with the sun warming my face as I listen to the birds thrill a sweet song, I couldn't wish for anything more.

When I'm swimming in my pool, (or doing what passes for swimming) I often have to pause to say, "Thank you, God. I can't believe I'm here doing this."

So, when I'm this content, it's hard to devise a bucket list of things I want to do before I die. But I'm still intrigued by the concept.

The term "bucket list" gained popularity after the 2007 Jack Nicholson movie. People were inspired by the story of two terminally ill men escaping from a cancer ward to do things on their wish list before they died.

The movie encouraged people to think about their own bucket list. There is even a web site, reaperlist.com, that encourages people to put together their own special to-do list, claiming making a list crystallizes ideas and turns vague notions into a lifetime plan of action.

That same website also allows people to share their bucket list with others who will hold them accountable for turning a wish into reality.

There are some interesting stories on the site written by people who have checked off items on their bucket list. I found some of the stories inspiring, just as they were meant to be.

One woman talked about caring for her terminally ill husband. He made a list of things he wanted to do before he died and they set off to do as many as possible. When he died, she realized she needed to start living her own bucket list.

I like to ask people "What's on your bucket list?"

My friend Ralph said he just accomplished the top thing on his bucket list - quitting his job while he still has the good health needed to enjoy retirement.

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik
newsgrl@comcast.net

In this shaky economy, he knew he was taking a risk to retire early but he also knew it was something he had to do.

"I've served in Vietnam, I've been exposed to Agent Orange and I already have had one serious case of cancer," he said.

"My brother-in-law kept saying we might only have another decade to enjoy life. It's time to do it."

Ralph has been retired now for almost a year and says he has never regretted it. "Ever since I stopped working, I find life is like one ongoing gift I get to unwrap every day," he says.

I like his newfound appreciation of life.

Ralph and Jeanne, his life partner, are now doing some of the things they always wanted to do but never had the time. Jeanne turned a top item on their wish list into reality by buying a tent and camping gear.

"I've traveled around the world but I haven't seen much of this country. One item on my bucket list is to camp out at national parks around the country," she said.

When they told me they were going to sleep on beaches and in a tent at various campgrounds, I worried their sixty-something bodies wouldn't be happy with sleeping on the ground night after night.

I was wrong. Both said their first camping trip to St. Augustine was a wonderful experience. They will soon leave for a cross-country camping trip and they want to do more of that simple kind of traveling.

Jeanne said her bucket list always consisted of other exotic countries she wanted to visit. So she traveled a lot and crossed country after country off her bucket list.

She still wants to visit China and Ralph wants to go back to Vietnam to see the area where he once served in the military.

But most of all, both say the top thing now on their bucket list is enjoying everyday life.

A lot of people share that aspiration.

My friends Martha and Hugh have also done a lot of trips abroad and have had many memorable adventures.

But they don't have to travel far to find adventure. What I love about them is that they make everyday life an adventure, doing things like camping out at beautiful but remote settings and kayaking to new destinations.

"We don't sit around longing to do something," said Hugh. "When we think of something we want to do, we do it."

"Do it now" might very well be the three words that should be included on any bucket list.

MASS has dazzled audiences at festivals and venues throughout the nation including the Kennedy Center of the Arts, Washington, D.C.; Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festival, Indio, Calif.; Lollapalooza, Chicago; and Bumbershoot Festival, Seattle.

McKenzie a real stretch to a better back

Second of two parts

Like millions of people who suffer back pain, I rely on a system developed by Robin McKenzie, a physiotherapist in New Zealand.

Ever since the age of 30, I have hurt my lower back many times. Eventually, I suffered from sciatica, a toothache-like pain that runs down my left buttock to my ankle. This is caused by a bulging lumbar disc.

I tried physiatrists, chiropractors and physical therapists. Then I was given a copy of the book, "Treat Your Own Back," by McKenzie. Since then, I have not been to a healthcare professional for help.

McKenzie discovered

HEALTHY GEEZER

By Fred Cicetti
fred@healthygeezers.com

the principle of his system by accident. He told a patient to lie face down on a treatment table. But the end of the table had been raised for a previous patient. Unnoticed by any of the clinical staff, the patient lay face down with his back arched and overstretched for about five minutes.

When McKenzie returned, he was extremely concerned to find the patient lying in what, at the time, was considered to be a very damaging position. However, the patient told McKenzie that he felt great.

The McKenzie system is used by thousands of doctors, physiotherapists and chiropractors to treat patients with back pain.

You need to understand the importance of that inward curve in the small of your back. This hollow is called the lumbar lordosis. You lose the lordosis when sitting or lying improperly and bending forward. Back problems develop when you eliminate the curvature for long periods.

It is essential that you read the entire book before attempting any of the exercises that are only summarized below. The McKenzie system is more extensive than just exercise, but reading about the exercises should give you a better understanding of the system.

There are seven exercises in the program. The first four are extension (bending backward), and the remaining three are flexion (bending forward) exercises.

1. Lie face down with arms at sides and head to one side. Take deep breaths and relax for a few minutes.

2. Lie face down and place your elbows under your shoulders so that you lean on your forearms. Stay in this position a few minutes.

3. Remain face down. Place your hands under your shoulders. Lift your head and torso off the floor by straightening your arms. Hold for a few seconds. Do not raise your lower body.

4. Stand upright with your feet slightly apart. Place the palms of your hands in the small of your back with your fingers pointed at your spine. Bend your trunk backward at the waist as far as you can. Keep your knees straight. Hold for a second or two. (This is my favorite exercise. I do it whenever my back feels tired.)

5. Lie on your back with knees bent and your feet flat on the floor. Using your hands, bring your knees to your chest. Hold for a second or two.

6. Sit on a chair with your feet well apart. Let your hands rest between your legs. Bend your trunk forward and touch the floor. Return to the starting position.

7. Stand upright with your feet apart and knees straight. Bend forward and run your fingers down your legs as far as you can reach. Return to standing position.

agers reporting to the Board in specific areas. These managers will now be led by Anen who will report to the Board.

"We are extremely excited to have a young, dynamic and supremely qualified individual like Rob Anen take a leadership role at Brookside Country Club," said Frank LaTerra, Club President.

services for the 2,700-member club.

St. Luke's organ donations honored with U.S. award

Today Gift of Life Donor Program presented St. Luke's Hospital - Bethlehem Campus with a Medal of Honor from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

St. Luke's Hospital-Bethlehem Campus was named a 2010 recipient of the award, which recognizes hospitals for achieving an organ donation rate of 75 percent or greater during a 12-month period.

St. Luke's is among only three percent of the nation's hospitals that have achieved this goal. St. Luke's Hospital-Bethlehem Campus has received the award every year since it was first offered in 2005.

The award presentation is part of the awareness activities undertaken in the month of April, which is National Donate Life Month. The month recognizes the critical need for organ and tissue donation, according to the Department of Health and Human Services.

"This honor means that at least three out of four eligible organ donors gave the gift of life to individuals who were waiting for life-saving organ transplants," said Scott Demczynski, Gift of Life Director of Transplant Services.

From January 2010 to date, 13 organ donors from St. Luke's Hospital-Bethlehem Campus resulted in 33 individuals receiving life-saving organ transplants.

"We are honored to recognize these public health stewards who offer such profound service to society," said HHS Assistant Secretary for Health

Howard K. Koh, M.D.,

M.P.H.

More than 6,400 men, women and children in the region are awaiting life-saving organ transplants. In the U.S., more than 110,000 people await life-saving organ transplants, and each day 18 of those people die waiting for their opportunity.

You will be 'Hoodwinked Too'

"Hoodwinked" is certainly an apt title. The question doesn't have anything to do with the full title, "Hoodwinked Too! Hood Vs. Evil."

Rather, it could be put this way: "Hoodwinked: 3D or Not 3D?"

That is the question. That is increasingly the question when determining whether it's prudent to pay the difference for you, a friend, or you, a significant other and children to see the latest 3D movie extravaganza.

Yes, a premium is charged for 3D. For a matinee, it's $11.50, compared to the regular $7.50 matinee charge.

So, is "Hoodwinked" worth the $4 difference? Frankly, no. The 3D effects are unremarkable. In fact, I repositioned my 3D glasses several times because I thought there was something wrong and I was missing the 3D effects.

There wasn't anything wrong except that there are not really that many, if any, spectacular 3D effects in "Hoodwinked."

So, you can easily see "Hoodwinked" in regular format and you will still see a lackluster, not very funny animated feature with not very interesting characters, along with not very distinctive voices.

"Hoodwinked" is a sequel in which the HEAA (Happily Ever After Agency) is back in action. That's rather funny — that fairy tales must have a happy ending and there is an agency to make certain that happens.

Beyond that, the writers, Cory Edwards, Todd Edwards and Tony Leech, each of whom worked on "Hoodwinked" (2004), and Mike Disa, don't really offer much more that will capture your imagination.

Mike Disa is in his feature film directorial debut after working in the animation departments on "Tarzan" (1999), "Casper" (1995) and "Pocahontas" (1995).

"Hoodwinked" has too many scenes of hitting and chasing and the garden-variety cartoon violence we've become accustomed to.

That, of course, doesn't make it good, or particularly watchable.

MOVIE REVIEW
By Paul Willistein

largely watchable. The story here involves Hansel and Gretel, who have been kidnapped. Ah, but there's a plot twist. We won't play spoiler and reveal it here.

Basically, the storyline is not unlike that of the "Mission: Impossible" movies — but without Tom Cruise — and instead with cuddly, or not so cuddly, animals. There's also something about a Sister Hood training organization and a Super Truffle that lends super powers.

And, yes, it's high in calories. If the characters are nondescript, it's even more surprising that the voices are, ahem, too, given the talent.

There's Glenn Close (Granny Puckett), Hayden Panettiere (Red Riding Hood, originally voiced by Anne Hathaway), Patrick Warburton (Big Bad Wolf), Joan Cusack (Verushka the Witch), Bill Hader (Hansel), Amy Poehler (Gretel) and David Ogden Stiers (Nicky Flippers)

The film's most humorous moments — and there are a few — occur in the side comments, or throwaway remarks. You have to listen closely for these, though, as they are delivered very fast.

For example, during one chase scene, one of the characters says, "I'm regretting that burrito."

And, the "Kung Fu Fighting" song melody plays as the ring tone on Red Riding Hood's cell phone.

Still, it all doesn't add up to a must-see movie. "Hoodwinked Too! Hood Vs. Evil," MPAA Rated PG (Parental Guidance Suggested). Some material may not be suitable for children for some mild rude humor, language and action; Genre: Animation; Run Time: 1 hr., 25 min.; Distributed by The Weinstein Company.

Credit Readers Anonymous: A few character voices are heard during the end credits for "Hoodwinked Too! Hood Vs. Evil," but this is one film that's not worth the wait.

Box Office, April 29: The summer movie season started early, as "Fast Five" became the year's biggest opening, No. 1, with $83.6 million, ending the two-week No. 1 run of "Rio," dropping to No. 2, $14.4 million, $103.6 million, three weeks.

3. "Madea's Big Happy Family," $10 million, $41 million, two weeks; 4. "Water for Elephants," $9.1 million, $32.2 million, two weeks. 5. "Prom," $5 million, opening; 6. "Hoodwinked Too! Hood Vs. Evil," $4.1 million; 7. "Soul Surfer," $3.3 million, $33.7 million, four weeks; 8. "Insidious," $2.6 million, $48.3 million, five weeks; 9. "Hop," $2.5 million, $105.2 million, five weeks; 10. "Source Code," $2.5 million, $48.9 million, five weeks

Unreel, May 6: "Thor," PG-13: Kenneth Branagh directs the story of Thor (Chris Hemsworth), the mythical God of Thunder, sent from Asgard to Earth by his father Odin (Anthony Hopkins). There, Thor falls in love with a scientist (Natalie Portman).

"Something Borrowed," PG-13: In the romantic comedy, Rachel (Ginnifer Goodwin) falls for Dex (Colin Egglesfield), the fiancé of her best friend Darcy (Kate Hudson)

"Jumping the Broom," PG-13: A Martha's Vineyard wedding brings together two families from different backgrounds. The cast of the drama-comedy includes Paula Patton, Laz Alonso and Angela Bassett.

Ask an Attorney

Allen I. Tullar is a domestic relations attorney with the law firm of Gross McGinley. He specializes in such matters as divorce, custody and child support. Attorney Tullar also served as a Master for Lehigh County Domestic Relations.

Question: What is legal separation and am I automatically divorced after we have been separated.

Answer: Lawyers hear these questions all the time. Pennsylvania, which shifted to no-fault divorce many years ago, now permits parties to divorce by claiming only that they have irreconcilable differences, or that the marriage is irretrievably broken.

If both parties consent, the necessary paperwork can be filed with the court as early as ninety days from the date the divorce complaint was filed and served (note that service is essential), and a divorce decree will be issued shortly thereafter. No muss, no fuss. You're done. Next please.

Sometimes, however, for as many reasons as there are grains of sand in the desert, one spouse decides not to cooperate. In those cases, unless you have grounds to pursue a fault divorce (a topic for another time), you will need to wait until you and your spouse have been separated for two years. Separation means, essentially, that you are no longer living together as husband and wife, and are not presenting yourself to the outside world as husband and wife. And yes, you can be legally separated while living together under the same roof, although, as you can imagine, it can be harder to prove. Physically separating is the easiest way, and now, under recent amendments to the divorce code, the filing date of a complaint in divorce creates a presumption of separation.

Don't be fooled though. There is nothing magical about that two year number. You are not automatically divorced once the time period is up. Instead, it simply means that the other spouse loses the ability to block the divorce from moving forward. There is still work to do when the timer goes off. And if you find yourself in that situation, it's probably the right time, if you don't have one already, to find yourself a lawyer.

Wright-Clayton

Couple plans June nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Wright of Palmyra, Mo., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Allison Margaret to David Nicoll Clayton, the son of Judge Robert M. Clayton II of Hannibal, Mo., and the late Frances Price "Nicky" Clayton.

The bride-elect's father is formerly of Northampton.

Allison, a graduate of Palmyra High School, is to graduate in 2012 from the University of Missouri-Columbia with a bachelor of science degree in elementary education.

She is employed by the University of Missouri Athletic Department Football program and is a member of the Alpha Phi Sorority.

She is on the University of Missouri's dean's list.

Her fiancé, a graduate of Hannibal High School, received a bachelor of arts degree in political science from Westminster College, Fulton, Mo.

He also received a juris doctor from the

David Nicoll Clayton and Allison Margaret Wright

University of Missouri-Kansas City.

He was previously employed by the Missouri Attorney General's Office and the Columbia, Missouri Public Defender's office.

He is an attorney with the Hannibal trial office of the Missouri State Public Defender System.

A June 2011 wedding is planned in Hannibal.

To the garden and beyond

Avoiding Allergens: Pollen particles are produced by flowers, tree and lawn grasses growing in most backyards. Airborne or "wind pollinated" pollens cause problems when they journey through the air and are inhaled by people instead of landing on other flowers to reproduce.

The particles cause allergic symptoms, such as sneezing, watery eyes, and coughing, and can make yard work less enjoyable. Limiting exposure to problem pollens can make outdoor activities a lot easier.

Here are some tips that can help allergy sufferers avoid misery and enjoy their gardens:

Avoid gardening in the early morning hours as well as before the sun sets.

This is when pollen counts are at their highest. Pollen counts are also highest on warm, sunny days and lowest on cool, cloudy days or after a rainfall.

Choose plants that are not wind pollinated, such as pansies, azaleas, tulips. These insect-pollinated plants contain pollens too heavy to be carried by wind currents.

Maintain lawns regularly to inhibit flowers that produce pollen.

Good Plant Growth: When planting new trees, shrubs and other ornamentals, establishing new roots is the key to successful and healthy plants. If you just take a plant out of its container, dig a hole and cover the root ball, that's almost guaranteed to slow or limit root growth.

The most important element in gardening is helping plants establish new roots into the soil. Here are a few tips to achieve success:

Remove plastic containsoil moisture in the entire area to prevent the fill from drying out.

It is also recommended to lay mulch over the fill soil and mulching several feet past the diameter of the planting hole to keep the proper levels of moisture around the root zone of newly planted trees and shrubs. Keep all mulch several inches away from the trunk or stem of all plants.

Thinning Vegetables: Early vegetables (radishes, leaf-lettuce, beets, Swiss chard, etc.) seeded outdoors may have come up too thick. If the plants aren't thinned, they will have no room to develop.

In each row, gently pull out the seedlings so there is about a finger space between those that remain. Later on, pull out every other one to allow even more space. In most cases, it is best to discard these thinnings.

Timely Harvest: It is harvest time by late May to mid June for many early crops. Peas, radishes, lettuce and spring onions, among others, will be ready. Even the best homegrown vegetables will not taste good if they are not harvested and eaten at their peak.

For answers to your garden questions, call the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension Office, 610-391-9840, or Northampton County Cooperative Extension Office, 610-746-1970, and ask to speak with a Master Gardener. Volunteers staff phone lines several days a week, Monday - Friday.

Growing Green is contributed by Lehigh County Cooperative Extension Office Staff and Master Gardeners.
