COUNTY

No tax hike next year

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Last month, when Northampton County Executive John Stoffa presented next year's spending plan to County Council, he called it a "budget of choices." Council President Ron Angle was less charitable, calling it a "piece of crap."

But in a matter of days, Angle and Stoffa were working together to present a realistic budget. The teamwork paid off, and when the smoke had finally cleared at the end of the contentious 3 1/2 hour council meeting Nov. 4, seven council members voted to support Angle and Stoffa's controversial no-tax-increase $290 million budget. Councilman Lamont McClure voted "no" and Councilwoman Ann McHale was absent.

It's the first time since Home Rule that a county financial plan was adopted this early.

"I will never, ever, ever, ever, ever do your job again," Angle vowed, referring to Stoffa.

It's a budget that assumes the sale of Gracedale, the county nursing home, at some point next year. Only the first six months of operating expenses are funded.

It's also a budget that makes deep cuts in county personnel. It eliminates 60 vacant positions, as well as five positions that are occupied. County administrators told council that no one will be laid off.

This bare bones budget also freezes wages being paid to professional part-

Tiny town a big winner

Freemansburg gets top grant for police station

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

"I am confident in the gamblers of the Lehigh Valley that they will do their committed duty and spend at the Sands Casino."

Those were the marching orders of Stephanie Hoppes-Kovacs, Hellertown's representative on Northampton County's nine-member Gaming Authority, which on Oct. 25 made its first award of gambling impact grants, totaling $1.3 million, to three municipalities.

Instead of taking our money, the one-armed bandits at Bethlehem's Sands Casino are finally giving back to places hit hardest by gambling. The grand prize — $825,000 — went to tiny Freemansburg (population 2,063) for a police processing and holding facility. Other big winners were Hellertown (population 5,738) and Lower Saucon (population 10,000), which received the balance of the $1.3 million awarded for police officers, law enforcement training, cruisers, ambulances, pedestrian crosswalks and traffic light signalization.

Bethlehem Township (population 20,000) is largest. See GAMING on Page A3

'Their worlds turned upside down'

Apollo Grill to host benefit for 2 local military families

BY DANA GRUBB
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The Apollo Grill, the popular trendy restaurant located in downtown Bethlehem at 85 West Broad St., has long been noted for its fine food and excellent service. Owners Dyanne and Rod Holt and Patty and Tucker Lyons have also given more than $250,000 back to various community organizations and causes through annual fundraising events they've held since opening about 10 years ago.

On Nov. 14, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., they will once again pitch in to raise money to assist two Lehigh Valley families who have been tragically impacted by the war in Afghanistan.

Dyanne Holt recently talked about how Rosie and Adam Keys showed up at the restaurant in 2009 expecting to have a marriage ceremony performed somewhere within Bethlehem's downtown followed by a reception at the restaurant. Apollo staff made room in a corner of the dining area for the young couple to be married prior to 82nd Airborne member Adam shipping out to Afghanistan on deployment.

Thrills and chills for Halloween

By TIM GILMAN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The Bethlehem Halloween Parade went off without a hitch, except for those being used by the floats in the six-division procession which marched 15 city blocks. "The parade ran very smoothly," said Jane Persa, who heads up the City Recreation Department, which organizes the downtown event. Eager spectators lined both sides of Broad Street waiting for the parade to arrive from its starting point at 13th Avenue. Dressed for cooler fall weather, hundreds of families gathered along the parade route and young children stood or sat waiting in various costumes and clutched empty candy bags. Finally the mobile Halloween party arrived and adults and children were all smiles as the parade moved slowly east on Broad and then turned south onto Main. Then it passed the reviewing stand in front of the Hotel Bethlehem and disbanded in the city festival grounds below. The parade judges selected the following award recipients. Floats: Tammy's Treasures, first; Crayola Crayons, second; Bethlehem Steelers, third; and SOS Speed Team, fourth. Marching groups: Puppy Palace Doggie Day Care from Bethlehem, first; Our Eyes Have Paws, second; Cheryl Chickey's All American Performing Arts Center, third; and Third and Bethlehem Township Twirlers, fourth. Individual entries: Beverly Raymond of the Basset Hound Bath Time, first; Dawn Hockman of the Newfoundland Dogs & Owners, second; Alyssa Stauffer of Alyssa's Halloween Horses, third; and Brian Muthard of Little Red Riding Hood, fourth. Special category: 7-11 Convenience Stores, first; the Subway on Broad Street, second; DQ Grill 'n Chill, third; and The Morning Call, fourth. Scouting: Hanover Township Cub Pack 368 won for their "Stone Age Scouts" float and Cub Pack 360 was runner-up. Schools: Lehigh Valley Regional Charter School won the Mayor's special trophy and Holy Infancy took second. Committee award: The Sun Inn Preservation Association.

Brandon Bird holds his empty candy bag open in anticipation of the approaching parade. He is the son of James and Toni Bird of Bethlehem.

Colorfully dressed as a clown, Sophia Trombler holds her candy bucket as she watches the parade go by. She is the daughter of Ann and William Trombler of Bethlehem.

Sira Powell sleeps soundly in her tiger costume at the end of the parade route as Kayla Grant and Sioma Powell stand with Rosemary Duran from BonaVenture Academy.

Holiday book sale draws crowd

Lower Saucon Township resident Mia King was looking for a deal on any kind of music at the September book sale. "My mom and I are avid book sales people," she commented.

The Bethlehem Area Public Library's final two book sales of 2010, in September and November, netted an additional $12,736 and $10,972 bringing the year's proceeds to $71,881, according to special events manager Liza Holzinger. The final holiday book sale provided an opportunity for shoppers to find some great deals for gifts with about 10,000 books, movies and music covering topics with holiday themes, cooking, children stories, classics and best sellers. All proceeds benefited the library. For more information on the 2011 book sales call 610-867-3761 extension 259, or visit www.best-booksale.org both legs and an arm. He remains in critical condition at the University of Maryland Medical Center.

Two young families had their worlds turned upside down in an instant, and the Holts, Lyons and Apollo staff, who had been following Keys' service in Afghanistan via updates from family and friends, decided to undertake a special fundraising effort with encouragement from some Apollo Grill customers. While discussing the decision to forge ahead, Dyanne Holt said that it "doesn't matter which side of anything you're on." She adds that the $100 cost of a ticket is a lot to ask, but "these two guys gave a lot." Holt says a silent auction was an afterthought as Apollo staff were encouraged to think outside the box. "Let's raise as much money as we can," she told them. Silent auction items include Jason Werth, Cole Hamels, Roy Halliday and Ryan Howard autographed baseballs; a Julius Erving NBA jersey; Hamels and Werth major league baseball jerseys; gift boxes, baskets and certificates from area businesses; IronPigs tickets; four tickets to a Philadelphia 76ers game; and much more, according to Holt. So far about 100 tickets have been sold. Holt also points out that cash contributions have also been rolling in, mentioning a $900 donation from the Lehigh Valley Amateur Golf Tournament at Green Pond Country Club; a $100 donation from a restaurant patron who was visiting Bethlehem from Chicago; and a $50 check that was received. Tickets for the pizza-and-bottomless-mimosa-themed event may be purchased by calling the Apollo Grill at 610-865-9600. Donations may also be given to the restaurant. One hundred percent of the proceeds will be distributed evenly between the family of Jesse Reed, his wife Heather and her three young children; and Adam Keys, his wife Rosie and their son.

time employees, who are mostly lawyers. Council member John Cusick said, "It's tough for me to give pay raises when seniors have seen no increases for two years." But a 1 percent raise went to the county's nonunion workforce. Council member Peg Ferraro, a Republican, cautioned her colleagues against cutting too deeply. "I know it's the most unpopular thing in the world to say, but we can't keep scaling back," Ferraro said. She voted for the budget, "with regret." McClure, a Democrat and the sole council member to vote against the no-tax-increase budget, claimed Gracedale is actually a "winning proposition" that has made money. He condemned "skullduggery" in the anticipated sale. But council member Tom Dietrich said McClure was sugarcoating the facts, noting Gracedale would cost the county $6 million in operating costs next year, to say nothing of the capitol improvements needed for an aging building. By a 5-3 vote, council defeated an Angle-led effort to eliminate the director of Court Services, a cabinet level position held by Archie Disidore.

Frustrated, Angle asked, "Where are we going to get the money for this?" "Gracedale," answered Cusick, drawing angry jeers from some nursing home advocates in the audience. One program preserved in an otherwise lean budget is the county's open space program. Throughout the year, up to $2 million will be spent for farmland preservation. After the budget was adopted, Tom Dietrich proposed a 0.1 mill tax reduction, suggesting council dip into the county's reserve fund. "Why not a 2 mill tax decrease? Why not 3?"

responded Angle, who held his head in his hands as Dietrich argued for a small reduction. Dietrich's proposal failed 6-2, with only McClure joining him. At the end of this meeting, Angle drew attention to the Gracedale debate, and said nursing home proponents have vilified and demonized him as the source of their troubles. He then produced a letter resigning as president and told council he would step down if that was their wish. Angle's six Republican colleagues rejected his letter. McClure raised his hand to say something, but a satisfied Angle called for adjournment.

er than Hellertown, Lower Saucon and Freemansburg combined. But it was still the big loser. Despite three applications for an ambulance, police cruisers and a traffic signal device — items similar to what were awarded Hellertown and Lower Saucon — it kept rolling snake eyes. According to gaming commission officials, Bethlehem Township failed to supply the documentation provided by other municipalities. Thomas Nolan, Bethlehem Township's voice on the Authority, repeatedly complained that many of the grants being awarded to Hellertown and Lower Saucon are budgetary line items and annual operating expenses. When he attempted to justify an ambulance for Bethlehem Township, Authority Chair Jay Finnigan turned Nolan's argument against him. "Shouldn't that be part of the budget process?" asked Finnigan. Northampton County also lost out on a $480,000 criminal justice sharing system despite an impassioned plea from Bethlehem assistant solicitor Joe Kelly, who argued this would "better arm police officers" and "make the Lehigh Valley a better place." During a two-and-one-half hour hearing, the nine-member authority actually rejected 10 of the 17 applications. Kovacs, a tireless advocate for Hellertown, tried hard to convince Authority members to go along with a new dump truck. Failing, she wisecracked that they'd now need "sled dogs to get to the casino." Now the authority has a more daunting task. It must review 57 applications for grants that require no casino impact. "I don't think we can hear 57 applications," warned Finnigan. So they decided to form a three-person subcommittee to prescreen requests. Authority solicitor Scott Allinson advised that this subcommittee need not meet publicly, but Bethlehem's spokesperson — Joe Kelly — recommended that all meetings be conducted in the open. Authority members also plan to review the criteria by which they rate grant applications. Northampton County's Economic Development Administrator Alicia Karner, who has been collecting the data, advised Authority members that there is too wide a discrepancy in the ratings. The Gaming Authority will meet again Nov. 22, 5:30 p.m., at the Northampton County Courthouse, 669 Washington St., Easton.

U.S. House - PA 15th
CHARLIE DENT, R

I cannot express how honored I am to be entrusted with the responsibility to continue to serve as this district's representative. In this past Congress my job has been to stand against job-killing policies that take us in the wrong direction. In this new Congress I look forward to supporting constructive policies that will control spending, limit the role of government, enhance our freedoms, protect our homeland, and unleash the true power of America — our people and our innovative ideas — that will lead to more jobs.

We cannot let the energy that we have seen here today in the 15th District and across the country dissipate. The people are involved and engaged and are making sensible demands of their government — this must continue. If it only lasts for Election Day then nothing will really change.

I'm very pleased to have attained a little over 15,000 votes and I'm pleased a lot of people really respect that we were competing against guys with a big 'D' or 'R' next to their names but no new ideas. Both parties are the ones with problems, not just the Democrats or Republicans. We built a grassroots network here in the Lehigh Valley, and as for motivated volunteers I won hands-down.

I'm very pleased with the results of my race, at 64 percent. It was a politically tough year to get that overwhelming level of support, particularly in what was supposed to be a Republican year. I did have people tell me on election day I was the only Democrat they were voting for. The next two years will be daunting in terms of the challenges we'll face, but we'll have to put partisanship aside to try and make the best policies we can for the economy and job creation.

I'm grateful 36 percent of the electorate voted for yours truly, which I believe is the largest percentage to a challenger of Bob Freeman in his 30-plus years in Harrisburg. I'm saddened the voters did not see Bob Freeman has placed Pennsylvania in a state of financial insolvency, operating on borrowed money and taking good care of himself. It's not sour grapes; it's reality.

Goundie House turns 200
 HBP Nov. 12 reception marks anniversary

By JOAN CAMPION
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

Historic Bethlehem Partnership's Goundie House is 200 years old this year. On Friday, Nov. 12, from 5 to 7 p.m., the event will be celebrated with a special reception and exhibition on the building's history, to be held on site. Curator Amy Frey will conduct tours of the new exhibit, as well as of an exhibit already up.

The exhibit already in place, "Hidden History: Bethlehem's Past Revealed," shows the city's unusual connection to well-known people and things. These include U.S. Vice President Aaron Burr, who killed U.S. Treasury Secretary Alexander Hamilton in a duel; French hero of the American Revolution Marquis de Lafayette, who may or may not have had an affair with a local Moravian girl; the family of distinguished South Bethlehem entrepreneur E. P. Wilbur, and Bethlehem Steel executive Paul Mackall, who flew the so-called "millionaires' flight" on the ill-fated German airship "Hindenburg."

Built in 1810, the brick, Federal-style Goundie House once was home to controversial master brewer John Sebastian Goundie. His actions contributed to opening Bethlehem to private real estate ownership.

PRESS PHOTOS BY DANA GRUBB

The Goundie House sits at the intersection of Main and West Market streets.

A weathered historic marker denotes that the Goundie House was built in 1810.

The house is situated on the west side of Main Street, near the intersection with Market Street. Completely restored to its original layout, it now serves HBP as a setting for changing exhibits.

Following Friday's 200th anniversary reception, the Goundie House and Hidden History exhibits will remain up until mid-March 2011. They may be visited at any time during the hours of the Visitors Center next door. Handicapped access also is available through the Visitors Center.

Fire

Colonial Regional Police responded to a fire in a corn field on Gaspar Lane in Hanover Township around 3:30 p.m. Oct. 23.

Police said the field was ablaze and the wind was spreading the fire. The Hanover and East Allen township fire departments were called in to extinguish the field.

Neighbors allegedly observed a number of young males walking away from the area around the time the fire began. Police are asking anyone with information regarding the incident to call 610-861-4820.

AREA POLICE

Theft

A 29-year-old Freemansburg resident reported a theft to police around 5:20 p.m. Oct. 12.

According to police, the man observed two firearms were missing from his home in the 700 block of Bach Court. While cleaning a basement bedroom, he saw the bag in which the two pistols were kept was open, and he had last used them three months earlier.

One pistol is a SigSauer; the other is a Ruger. Police did not indicate if ammunition was also taken.

Wanted

Freemansburg police arrested a wanted man around 3 p.m. Oct. 15 on Cambria Street.

Police said Grimaldi Rivera, 25, of Mosser Street in Allentown, was initially pulled over for speeding — 34 miles-per-hour — in a 15 mile-per-hour stretch. An identification check revealed Rivera had an outstanding Northampton County warrant on unspecified charges. Rivera was remanded to the county sheriff and will also be charged with speeding in a school zone.

Planners question solar panels

BETHLEHEM TOWNSHIP

By ELISABETH KEMMERER
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem Township Planning Commissioners raised a number of important concerns before conditionally approving the installation of solar panels at Freedom HS Oct. 25.

As initially proposed by Bethlehem Area School District Engineer Arif Fazil of D'Huy Engineering, the panels will be installed on a faculty parking lot off Santee Road, which, to Fazil's surprise, sounded a number of structural and land-use alarms for township Engineer Kevin Chimics.

The panels will be attached to a large steel grate suspended on top of steel columns, still allowing cars access to the entire parking lot. After some difficulty classifying this structure, planners defined it as a carport because of its appearance and the fact that cars can park beneath it. According to Bethlehem Township solicitor Wendy Nicolosi, because a carport qualifies as an actual building, it will require Fazil to seek a waiver to bypass zoning regulations.

Fazil argued, though, that this structure is not a carport.

"We wanted to be smart with the space we had so the panels can serve their function and faculty will not lose their parking lot. The purpose of the structure is not to protect the cars from the elements," Fazil explained. "There will be space between the panels where rain water will seep through, so anything parked under there will still get wet."

Fazil argued that there is no real land development required for this project because the panels will be installed on a pre-existing parking lot and not infringe on parking. He also pointed out that overhead power lines, underground gas lines and storm shooters in the parking lot area had been approved in the past. The solar panel structure would merely add to the mix.

According to some of the planners, though, it is not that simple.

"Engineers may have approved certain features in the past, but that does not mean that those rulings are applicable now," said Planning Commissioner Les Walker.

Defined as a carport, the building would require a full lighting plan, the development of truck-turning templates to ensure tractor-trailer trucks can maneuver in and out of the area, and properly maintained signage and existing side parking, all for which Chimics recommends that Fazil seek zoning waivers.

Fazil assured Chimics and the planners that the current sketch plans already demonstrate fire truck access to the site and will implement truck-turning templates into the sketch plan.

The concerns that Chimics and the planners discussed at this past meeting echo earlier obstacles highlighted when Fazil first submitted the installation plans back in August. These include the need to scale back the right of way on Santee Road at the entrance to the school in accordance with building set back lines to ensure that there are no obstructions to traffic flow. Even though an attempt to comply with this requirement has already forced Fazil to cut back a section of the structure, the new dimensions still don't measure up to current zoning standards and will require him to seek another waiver.

Planner James Daley suggested a meeting with the township engineers and Fazil's engineers to discuss which features brought to the planners' attention do and do not require waivers.

Daley also highlighted that Fazil's tangent letter dated Oct. 18 states that the energy absorbed by the panels that is not used by the school will be "stored" in the community's grid, which, Daley says, is impossible.

"Electricity cannot be stored in a live grid system," explained Daley.

The energy that is not used, Fazil clarified, will actually be filtered through the grid for others in the community to use and the school will receive credit for this energy.

In a 5-2 vote, planners approved plans for the installation provided that Fazil obtains proper zoning waivers and corrects the tangent letter stating that electricity will be "stored" in the grid.

The township received federal funding in 2009 for the installation of solar panels at James Buchanan, Spring Garden and Farmersville elementary schools, East Hills MS and Freedom. The panels are under a 40-year warranty, have a life expectancy of 25 years, and put out 80 percent of the energy they absorb from the sun.

The panels will be managed, operated and maintained by Tangent Energy Solutions. Other than paying Tangent a flat fee that's been locked in for the next 20 years for their services, Fazil said, the school district would have no financial obligation.

Fazil said that if the installation at Freedom is not finished by the end of this year, it could jeopardize the completion of the entire project.

Fictitious incident

Police arrested John Ott, 33, of Third Avenue, for making a false claim around 4:30 a.m. Nov. 3.

According to police, Ott placed a report alleging he had been robbed and/or assaulted at the Sands Casino. During the interview process, it became clear he was lying and he later admitted it, police said. He is charged with false reports.

Police said the number of incidents similar to Ott's are on the rise and the reason for making such false claims remains a mystery to them.

DUI

Joel Colon, 30, of 702 Wyandotte St., was arrested for driving under the influence and a number of other charges around midnight Oct. 16.

Police said several motorists called reporting a possibly intoxicated driver on Linden Street, and officers found and followed the man, observing his driving. When police indicated he was to pull over, Colon allegedly veered right, struck a parked car and drove up over a curb. Colon was considered free of alcohol at the scene but failed sobriety exercises. Police said he admitted he used heroin in the morning, had a speedball (heroin and cocaine) for lunch and a Xanax prior to driving.

Colon was taken to the hospital for treatment and is charged with DUI, driving under suspension and careless driving.

BASD's Roy: Build on partnerships

By DENI THUMAN-EYER
Special to the Bethlehem Press

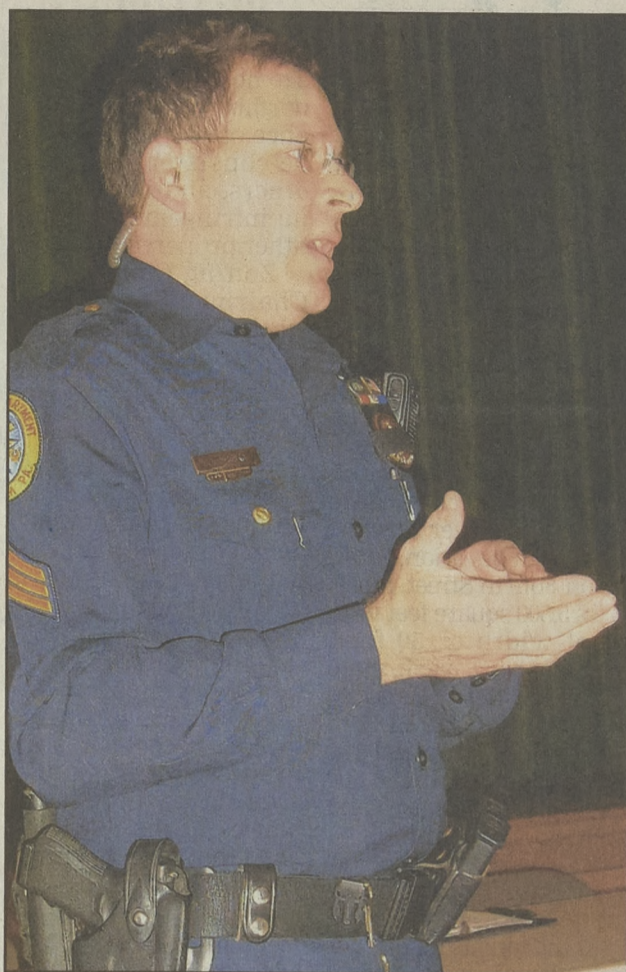

The Mayor's Southside Task Force met Oct. 26 at St. John's Windish Lutheran Church. More than a dozen agency and community representatives heard updates on recent activities on the South Side.

A highlight of the meeting was the introduction of Joseph Roy, Bethlehem Area School District's new superintendent. In introducing Roy, SSTF Chair Roger Hudak noted that he used to work for Roy when he was assistant principal at Liberty HS.

In his remarks, Roy said he intends to continue to build on the strong partnerships that exist in the district. He said the district is facing the toughest times anyone can recall with increases in the needs of students and decreases in the needed financial resources.

Steve Antalics, SSTF liaison to the BASD school board, commented that the interaction between the school board and the superintendent is positive: "Both have the best interests of the kids and the community in mind."

Six officers have been assigned a specific community section, and each will be working with the Block Watch group in his area. This will provide consistent communication with the police and the Block Watch groups.

Diane Elliot, director of New Bethany Ministries, reported that the organization is still in negotiations with Our Lady of Pompeii to purchase the closed facility and relocate to larger and more central quarters. Elliot also said the organization is seeking donations or food and volunteer helpers for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Twelve Lehigh University students are working together to develop a cultural design for the Greenway between New and Taylor streets. The design will be finalized by the end of this semester, according to LU's Director of Community Relations Dale Kochard.

Zoners nix luxury apartments

Despite a parade of five witnesses and 26 exhibits over two lengthy nights of testimony, Bethlehem zoners rejected Abe Atiyeh's request for a 102-unit "luxury" apartment complex on five acres located at the corner of Center Street and Dewberry Avenue. Immediately following an Oct. 20 2-1 vote in Bethlehem Library's Conference Room, an audience of about 25 opponents of the plan burst into applause. Allentown Attorney Bill Malkames, who represents Atiyeh, stated that his client will likely

As it turned out, that was the central issue in this zoning appeal. Atiyeh had originally intended to build an assisted-living facility at the site but was unable to spark enough interest to get financing.

"I'm extremely embarrassed that this is a failed project," Atiyeh stated during the first night of testimony. His proposed apartment complex, located in an area zoned insti-

Zoners approve home on Fourth

By ELISABETH KEMMERER
Special to the Bethlehem Press

BETHLEHEM TOWNSHIP

The Bethlehem Township Zoning Hearing Board granted two variances permitting a single-family home to be built on a smaller-than-preferred lot on Fourth Street at its Oct. 27 meeting, but not without some hot-tempered opposition from residents.

Current zoning code requires a lot area of 10,000 square feet with a lot width of 80 feet for a single-family detached dwelling with public water and sewer service. The lot in question, located on Fourth Street, measures 5,500 square feet with a lot width of 50 feet. Christopher Zajacik, managing partner at Hanover Group Builders, LLC in Bethlehem, applied for variances equaling 4,500 square feet in lot area and 30 feet in lot width.

While Zajacik's attorney, Paul Harak, questioned him, he testified that the lot has no merger issues against it — that it has always been freestanding and never combined with another lot. The property currently contains an unused, dilapidated garage that would be torn down in favor of putting up a single-family home with a one-car garage.

"All of the homes in this neighborhood are single-family homes," attested Zajacik. "There are no businesses in the neighborhood, the appearance of the home would be consistent with the others, and it would be no infringement on any other properties."

Zoning Commission Chairman Stephen Szy, who said he is not in favor of building homes on such small parcels, confirmed with Zajacik that there is no way to increase the lot size to 10,000 feet. Due to its unique size, the lot would get no other usage without relief from the board.

Even though there are several other 50-foot-wide lots that contain single-family homes in the neighborhood, including the lot adjacent to the one in question, residents argued that there are no houses in the neighborhood that resemble what they feel this house would look like.

"With such a narrow lot width, the house would be too long and look too out of place," said resident Frank Wachter, who then suggested a playground be built on the property instead.

"This lot width measures 50 feet because it was designed for a garage. Past regulations prevented anything else from being built there for all this time. I'm not in favor of seeing the rules change after so long," added resident Cathy Vogrin.

Szy explained that according to state law, anyone privately owning a pre-existing lot has the right to build on it, which means the Zoning Board must grant Zajacik the variances he is seeking, or they would be breaking the law. He also clarified that this law is nothing new.

"Whoever first bought this property could have built a house on it if they wanted to, just like whoever owns it now can build a house on it if they want. The law says so," said Szy. "In the same respect, if residents would rather put a playground on it, they need to purchase the lot from Hanover Group Builders on their own and build the playground with personal funds."

Vogrin argued that a resident who previously lived across the street from this lot owned it at one point, thinking this meant the property, in fact, was at one time joined with another, which would constitute a merger. Szy clarified that the Law of Merger only applies to adjacent properties that are physically touching; essentially, the street running between them kept them apart and disqualifies a merger.

"The only other way to prevent a build from taking place on this property is to sterilize the land," Szy said, meaning remove all ownership from it so that it cannot be used. "That is against the law in this case because, again, it is a pre-existing, privately owned lot. Under state law, sterilizing this property would put the township in the position of having to buy it. They could sue the Zoning Board for that."

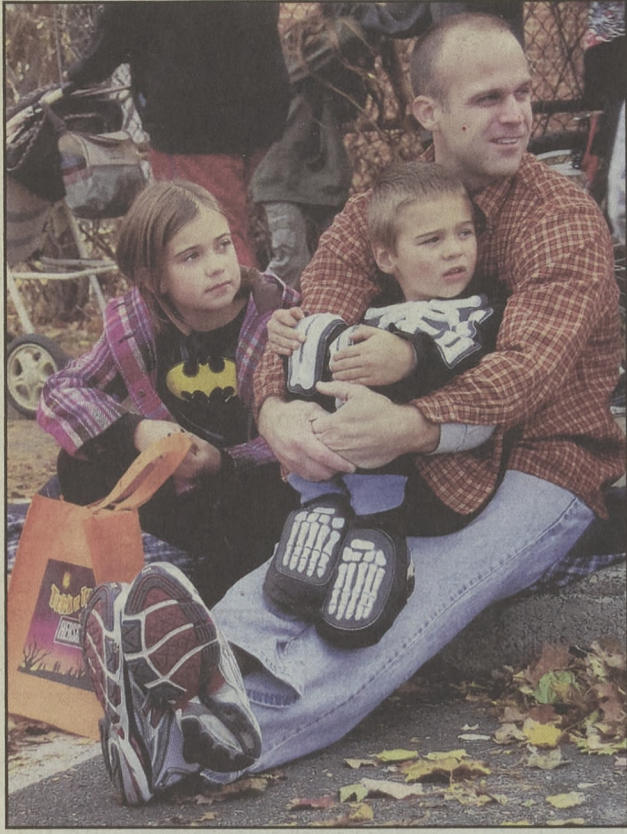

Throughout the heated debate, residents interjected questions about past zoning hearings, asking why other neighbors related projects were turned down.

After attempting to answer some of their questions, Szy responded, "These are separate issues, each with their own separate set of circumstances."

Wachter, saying he'd been inside the garage on the property numerous times, attested to having seen puddles of dried oil on the cement floor. He expressed concern about this oil contaminating the ground during demolition.

Szy said that issue would fall under the Environmental Protection Agency's discretion.

"We will certainly conform to all EPA guidelines during the course of this build," Harak said.

HELLERTOWN

"When I see you're looking at raising taxes 6.25 percent in the worst economy that we've seen since the Great Depression ... my concern is this: We need to take a look at cutting expenses because the expenses are going to continue to rise."

This admonition, which comes from self-described Tea Party member Bryan Eichfeld, was delivered to Hellertown Borough Council at its Nov. 1 meeting. Hellertown has only collected $370,580 of the $500,000 in revenues anticipated this year.

"When we're raising a mill just to pay salaries, that scares me, it really does," said council member Stephanie Kovacs, who spent the evening questioning line item after line item in an unsuccessful effort to reduce expenses.

Richard Staffieri, who has served on council for more than 40 years, condemned paying "salaries that are outrageous when the people who are paying the salaries aren't working." But he added, "I agree with 51 percent of this budget, so I'll vote for this budget."

With council members Kovacs and Thomas Rieger voting "no," the other members agreed to a Staffieri motion to advertise the budget as a preliminary step toward adoption. Council President Philip Weber advised that, though advertised, the budget can still be modified until Dec. 6, the date set for adoption. The budget is available at Borough Hall for public review until Nov. 29.

In addition to agreeing to advertise a budget calling for a possible 6.25 percent tax hike, council members listened to a report from their engineer. Hellertown's busy Main Street is sometimes referred to as a "Berlin Wall," separating the western and eastern parts of the borough. Borough Engineer Bryan Smith has attempted to tear down that wall, unveiling the results of a $90,500, nine-month "walkable community, smart transportation study."

Among 28 recommendations to make Hellertown more walker friendly, Smith proposes installing two additional traffic lights on Main Street, and reducing its speed limit to 25 mph. He also urged that borough council make some changes to the intersection of Main Street and Easton Avenue, and advised that the Lehigh Valley Planning Commission has up to $500,000 available. While Kovacs opposed the action, council gave Smith a green light to apply for some of this grant money.

Public Works Director Tom Henshaw reported that Santa Claus will visit Hellertown at 7 p.m. Nov. 26 to celebrate "Light Up Night" at the Fountain Plaza.

tutional, requires a use variance.

But numerous neighbors, from Carver House Vice President Terry Beidleman to Mike Polay, were worried that the increased traffic would ruin their neighborhood. They scoffed at testimony from PE David Hart, who insisted that traffic from this apartment complex would be no greater than the traffic from an assisted-living center.

They were worried that Atiyeh, if unsuccessful, would walk away from the project.

"We don't want to be stuck with another slum," warned Frank Kovacs.

Englishman Mark Blomfeld, who has lived in the U.S. for seven years, told zoners Bethlehem is the best of the cities in which he's lived.

"I feel very lucky and fortunate and proud to live where I live and to have the neighbors I have," Blomfeld said. "This is not the neighborhood I moved into. We're being asked to take it on the chin because a previous business idea isn't quite what [Atiyeh] wants it to be."

Malkames argued,

"Every property has to have a viable use," and a lack of meaningful uses has created a hardship that can only be cured by a variance permitting an apartment complex. Zoners Loupos and Bill Fitzpatrick, voting to reject the variance, disagreed. Board member Ken Kraft cast his vote with Atiyeh.

Why Giving Thanks Is Good

This past Sunday evening I preached on, "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the LORD" (Psalm 92:1), and I asked, "What is it that makes giving thanks a good thing?"

Gratefulness "is a good thing" for us! Psychologists tell us that gratitude is the healthiest of all human emotions. Hans Selye, the father of stress studies, said that gratitude produces more positive emotional energy than any other attitude in life. Thankfulness will increase your personal happiness.

A thankful heart "is a good thing" because it endears others to us and us to others. Thanksgiving is good for both the giver and the receiver! For instance, as the receiver of our thanksgiving, God takes pleasure in it. It rightfully glorifies and honors Him as the Maker and Giver of all. Revelation 4:11 states, "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created." Our gratitude pleases Him. "I... will magnify him with thanksgiving... This also shall please the LORD" (Psalm 69:30-31). It is what He appreciated from His people who in 2 Chronicles 5:13-14 were "thanking the LORD," when the temple "was filled with a cloud... for the glory of the LORD had filled the house of God." Hearing thanksgiving emanating from His people, He drew near. Thanksgiving endears us to God and attracts His presence.

Giving thanks to God "is a good thing" because it endears God to us and draws us closer to Him. If we are not grateful to God, our ingratitude will have the opposite effect as we read in Romans 1:21, "Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened." People who are ungrateful to God will soon fall away from Him!

Note: Part 2 next week will list more reasons why giving thanks is a good thing. Hear this complete message at: www.naog.ws/sermons.htm

Liberty looks for revenge

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

If Liberty ever had a shot at revenge, it'll come Friday night at home.

The Hurricanes (6-4) will host Parkland (4-6) in the opening round of the 4A Eastern Conference playoffs.

Liberty is the top-seed in the four team tournament with Emmaus taking on Pocono Mountain West in the other pairing.

The Hurricanes just missed out on the District 11-2-4 subregional playoffs after defeating Freedom 35-13 over the weekend, due to Williamsport upsetting Wyoming Valley West.

However, the Hurricanes can store part of the blame at failing to qualify for districts at an October 1 loss at home to Parkland.

The Trojans used a Dusty Dvoracek touchdown with seven seconds left in the contest to pull ahead 28-21 to hand the 'Canes their third straight loss of the season. Liberty fell to 2-3 at that point before winning four out of their last five games.

Head coach Dave Brown put any speculation about his team finishing the season after last week's regular season finale to bed after thumping Freedom.

"We'll definitely be playing next week," said Brown about the Eastern Conference invite. "The kids have worked too hard to not keep this thing going."

Kasean Boyd opened the scoring against Parkland on the first play from scrimmage for the Hurricanes when he rumbled 80 yards for a score to give Liberty a 7-0 lead 13 seconds into the game.

Jimmy McCarthy added a 70-yard TD

'Canes rout Freedom

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It was the way that Liberty hoped it could end its regular season and continued the reality of how Freedom's year had sunk so low.

Liberty jumped out to an early lead after two plays last Saturday in the city championship against arch-rival Freedom and never looked back en route to a 35-13 thrashing at Frank Banko Field.

Mike Harris rushed for 45 yards on the opening play of the game, followed by Devon Jones 35-yard TD scamper a play later to give Liberty a 7-0 lead 32 seconds into the contest.

It marked the third-straight game that the Hurricanes have capitalized on their opening possessions, scoring on two or fewer plays in each of the last three games.

Against Freedom, it just started what the Hurricanes hoped would happen all day.

"That's something we try to do every game," said Harris of building an early lead. "I think teams have trouble adjusting to our speed initially. That gives us a chance to get on top early and that obviously has them playing from behind right away."

Harris would continue his torrid demise of Freedom's defense by breaking a 57-yard run on the Hurricanes next series to set up a six-yard TD run by quarterback Jimmy McCarthy to give the 'Canes a 14-0 lead.

Harris capped off his monster first quarter by hauling in a 47-yard touchdown reception on Liberty's third drive to build a 21-0 advantage with 1:19 left in the opening period.

LHS soccer falls in district finals

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

The look of anguish was plastered over the faces of dejected Liberty players following last Saturday's loss to Easton in the District 11 3A soccer finals at the Whitehall Athletic Complex.

Ryan Davie and Alejandro Pascual each tallied goals in the respective halves to give the Red Rovers a 2-0 victory for their first ever district championship.

The loss left a damning feeling for the Hurricanes, who went without many quality chances on the night in a contest that became bitterly chippy as the night sailed well past 10 p.m. because of delays in the A and AA finals.

Once the final whistle blew however, Easton's jubilation became reality, while Liberty's anguish salted in pain.

"It's just a tough way to end the season," said Liberty head coach Jason Horvath. "We wanted to limit guys like Davie and Gabe Robinson, but they're great players and they made plays. You have to give them credit for that."

The loss gives Horvath his second district title defeat during his five years at the helm of the program. Getting to the coveted final entailed enough work, including a 2-0 win over rival Freedom in the semifinals last week, but coming up short against a brewing rival in Easton made Saturday night a difficult situation.

"You work so hard to get here and then to have these guys come away with a loss is tough," Horvath said. "We have nine seniors on this team and it's a tough way to say good-bye."

While Horvath has had teams with bigger names in the past, this resilient group has shown that a work ethic and positive attitude can help a team exceed expectations.

"I hope what these guys have done this year shows the underclassmen how they need to go about things," he said. "We don't have superstars, but we have guys that work and they brought us pretty close to winning a district championship."

VOLLEYBALL Hawks fall in finals

By KATIE MCDONALD

Becahi's volleyball team went into the District 11 Class AA final against Southern Lehigh, knowing full well how tough the match would be.

The Hawks also went in with a new defensive strategy, several in fact, but it was not enough to win the championship last week at Liberty High School.

For the second year in a row, the Spartans defeated the Hawks for a District 11 championship, this time 25-20, 25-23, 21-25, 25-16.

"It was a tough loss. We went out playing our hardest, and we were honestly trying to keep each other motivated," said senior, Tori Vidumsky. "We learned a completely new defense, and it was hard to get used to."

All-in-all, the Hawks stayed close to the Spartans in the first two games, tying at 18 in game one and tying at 21 in game two.

In the third game, which was won by Becahi, the Hawks trailed by one or two points until Coach Howard Vernick called a timeout. Becahi scored three straight points to eventually tie at 17. A kill by Becahi's Anna Domyan just about sealed the deal for the Hawks, and Leslie Tintle scored the game-winning point. See Hawks on Page A13

CROSS COUNTRY LHS girls hoped for more success

By KATIE MCDONALD

The PIAA Class AAA Cross Country Championships did not bring as much success for the Liberty girls team as expected last weekend at the Parkview Cross Country Course in Hershey.

"We didn't start as fast as we should have. Jess [Cygan] and Amy [Darlington] got caught in the beginning and were further back than we wanted them to be," said Liberty coach Mark Will-Weber.

Darlington placed 55th in 20:06, and Cygan placed 65th in 20:14. Vrinda Jagota placed 117th in 20:44.

"This meet was the fastest and deepest I've seen. It was very competitive. Really tough competition," Will-Weber said. With high expectations for Cygan, the Liberty senior just had a bad day.

"The girl who got second place was the girl she beat in districts," said Will-Weber.

Competing for the Hurricane boys was Tommy Darlington, who finished in 17:23.

"Tommy went out so hard, but he paid the price a little in the end. For his first time at the state meet, he did pretty good," Will-Weber said.

Reminiscent of the district meet, Darlington and Freedom's Josh Ehret and Nate Palmer finished within seconds of each other, with Ehret coming in first of the three in 17:21. Palmer finished in 17:38.

Will-Weber said, "Tommy was ahead of Josh Ehret for most of the race, but Ehret nipped him at the end. Tommy was behind Palmer, who he eventually caught and beat."

As a team, the Hurricane girls placed 11th out of 24.

"We did great all year, and it was too bad to end on such a down note. It was sort of disappointing," said Will-Weber.

In Class AA Girls, Moravian Academy's Rebecca Askins-Gast took 37th place in 20:45, and Becahi's Jenny Schadt took 88th place in 21:29.

In Class AA Boys, Moravian Academy's Alex Crain finished in 19:11.

Becahi football team hopes better days ahead

By PETER CAR
pcar@tronline.com

It didn't end pretty, but that summed up the type of season Bethlehem Catholic endured after losing at Easton last Friday night 47-20.

Without two of their top backs, the Rovers got 114 yards and three touchdowns out of sophomore Austin Brown to lead the Rovers (9-1) to grabbing the top seed in the District 11-2-4 sub-regional playoffs this week.

For Bethlehem Catholic (2-8) the end of a long year finally closed on them.

"It was definitely a tough year for our kids, but they battled through everything," said head coach Mike Palos. "We were without five or six starters because of injury over the last three games and takes a toll on a school of our size."

"I'd love to suit up 60 or 70 guys, but we all know that isn't the case at Becahi. Even when I played we didn't have those numbers, but the kids did everything we asked of them this year and that's all I can ask for."

With wins over Dieruff and Allen this year, the Hawks certainly have plenty of work to do if they want to progress with a competitive future in the Lehigh Valley Conference. Palos said that all starts with more dedication in the weight room.

"We're definitely going to have our guys more focused on what they need to do in the weight room," he said. "A lot of underclassmen got playing time because of injuries to seniors and hopefully that pays dividends next year. Despite our record, I take a lot of positives into the offseason."

The Hawks graduate 17 seniors from this year's team, including their entire line. Having current underclassmen progressing next year will be critical, but Palos hopes that good days are coming for his program.

"Our freshman team was 7-1 this year and we've established the Catholic football league for third through sixth graders," said Palos. "We just have to stay optimistic about where we're going and what we're doing."

Freedom's Lukas Giovarelli had a career day in his final game, throwing for over 200 yards and a TD.

Harris finished the day with 117 yards on the ground and a score, along with his one TD reception of 47 yards.

"It was a game that we were all pumped for," said the Liberty senior back. "I think when we found out we weren't going to make districts, a lot of the guys were upset, but we had to get our focus back to play."

Head coach Dave Brown knew his players were disappointed with the fact of missing out on the subregional race, but was pleased at how his troops battled on a blistering Saturday afternoon.

"I knew that the kids were upset about districts, but this has been a year of success for these kids," he said. "I'm happy for them to get this win. Beating Freedom doesn't really mean that much to me. It means more to the kids and we just came out and did our job."

The Patriots never seemed to get into any type of rhythm on both sides of the field, as they could only muster 78 yards on the ground, giving up over 300 to Liberty's ground attack as they built a 28-0 lead at halftime.

Quarterback Lukas Giovarelli was 16-for-23 for 206 yards and a touchdown for Freedom, while Eddie Elliott rushed for 94 yards and a score to keep the Pates from being shutout.

For Giovarelli, it was a career day to mark the end of his football career at Freedom.

In total, Liberty out gained Freedom 487 to 284.

"This is not where we want Freedom football to be," said head coach Jason Roeder. "We don't want this to be an acceptable form of play for our kids or the program. It's always tough to have a season like this, but we just have to keep working."

Harris knows that his team will have at least one more week of work left by qualifying for the 4A Eastern Conference playoffs.

"I know there were some guys who wanted to end the year after this game, but I really hoped that we would play in the Eastern Conference playoffs," he said. "These guys have become a family to me and I want to keep it going for as long as we can."

strike to Mikey Harris in the first half, but Parkland countered with two touchdown runs by Dvoracek and Jarel Elder to tie the game at 14 heading into halftime.

McCarthy added a 16-yard TD run in the third, but Dvoracek, who rushed for 81 yards and three touchdowns on the night, secured his second score of with 9:48 to play to bring things even again. But on a night where Liberty hurt themselves, the 'Canes made a series of mistakes as they looked to take the lead with under seven minutes left to cost them the contest.

Liberty had a 1st-and-10 at the Parkland 18, but an illegal block pushed them back to the 35.

McCarthy then found

This touchdown by Dvoracek may have cost Liberty a chance at districts.

Devon Jones over the middle for a sure score, but he dropped the ball. That was ensued by Dan Castillo's interception at the goal line to give Parkland life and momentum, which eventually led to Dvoracek's final TD run to cement the win.

Liberty certainly isn't the same team they were on Oct. 1, and Brown understands that they need to refocus at this point of the season.

"Winning the city championship was nice, but now we have to get back to work and focus on the playoffs," he said. "That's what it's always been about with us and that won't change this week."

Persa returns

Nearly spoils Joe Paterno's chance for win number-400

By TJ ENGLE
Special to the Press

STATE COLLEGE — All last week, Dan Persa was geared to finally be able to step foot on the grass turf of Beaver Stadium in his home state of Pennsylvania.

With his Northwestern football team returning to Happy Valley for the first time since 2006, the former Liberty High School quarterback was looking forward to his first collegiate start behind center against Penn State.

Persa was glad to come back home and have the chance to lead his Wildcats in a key Big Ten Conference showdown against the Nittany Lions.

"Yeah, how could you not be," said Persa, who was a PIAA Class 4A All-State quarterback in 2006. "The biggest stage and Coach (Joe Paterno) going for his 400th."

While history was definitely looming around Beaver Stadium, Persa looked to make the most of the opportunity in front of plenty of friends and family from Bethlehem.

It didn't take him long to lead the Wildcats on their very first offensive series of the game. Northwestern put together a seven-play, 74 yard drive, in which Persa capped it off with six-yard scamper for the game's first touchdown.

Persa silenced the crowd of 107,147 quickly, as he finished with four carries for 44 yards, including a 31-yard run on his first snap of the game. He also hit tailback Mike Trumpy twice for 31 yards passing.

After finishing the first quarter with 76 yards rushing, Persa used his feet once again to put the Wildcats up 14-0, this time with a four-yard touchdown run early in the second quarter. Late in the second quarter, Persa used his arm, and found Drake Dunsmore for a beautiful, one-handed nine-yard TD catch in the back of the end zone.

With 89-yards rushing and two touchdowns, along with 103 yards passing and a touchdown, it looked as if Persa and Northwestern were bound to spoil Paterno's first back at another milestone coaching victory, building a quick 21-0 lead.

However football is just like the others as far as momentum.

With 50-seconds on the clock, Paterno and his offensive coordinator Galen Hall decided to go all out.

The call was a good one and the Lions stole the momentum from underneath the Wildcats' feet as his counterpart Matt McGloin led a Lions' drive that covered 91 yards on nine plays. McGloin found Brett Brackett in the back of the end zone, tiptoeing before going out of bounds for a nine-yard touchdown reception.

After halftime, it was a whole different story for Persa and the Wildcats.

The Nittany Lions rattled off 28 unanswered points by scoring on four-straight offensive series, while Persa and his offense punted the ball on three different occasions and turned the ball over twice in the second half.

"It was the same stuff," said Persa when asked if Penn State did anything different on the defensive attack. "I think we didn't come out ready to fight like they did. We stalled out on offense and we just have to make more plays than we did. They got the momentum and didn't give it back. I think the score right before half — they got a little bit of momentum and then they came right out and scored again."

"Our offense just didn't do a good job getting a drive together and couldn't score. We never really got the momentum back."

While Persa stated he knew "someone had to put an end to it," he put the blame on himself saying, "I didn't do a good job of that."

Northwestern head coach Pat Fitzgerald immediately backed his red shirt sophomore signal-caller in the postgame press conference.

"It's about momentum and I thought Danny did everything in his power to help us win the football game," Fitzgerald said. "Dan is a warrior. If you give me 22 Dan Persas, I'll show you a Super Bowl and a National Champion. He's a war-daddy and he gives everything he's got on every single play and he's a great leader. We wouldn't be in the position we are at to have a significant month without him."

"He stepped up in a major way and he'll take this one hard tonight. But, we have a 24 hour rule in our program and we'll get up tomorrow and coach the guys up Monday morning and learn from it."

But, it wasn't the way the 2006 Maxwell Club Award winner wanted to head back to Evanston.

"It's definitely not where we want to be," said Persa, who finished with 224 yards of Northwestern's 271 total yards of offense (86 yards rushing and 138 yards passing). "We laid an egg in the second half. Offensively, we just can't score 21 points and expect to win."

"Obviously, we didn't get the job done and it was pretty disappointing."

Hawks

Domyan said, "In game three, we knew we had to do it. Our coach pulled me over to the side and said, we need you to step up and do this."

According to Vernick, winning game three gave the Hawks a confidence boost.

"It gave us hope," he said.

Also during game three, junior setter, Ashley McCauley had her 1,000th assist.

"Even though we got the silver, it was an accomplishment. We worked hard," McCauley said.

In game four, the Hawks and the Spartans played point-for-point to ten, until Southern Lehigh pulled away twice, prompting a Becahi timeout with the score 17-14. Southern Lehigh proceeded to win on a blocked shot.

"We fought hard, but we made some bad mistakes at the end and just lost it," Vernick said.

Becahi's Taylor Beck had 16 kills, Domyan had 12 kills, and Nicole Morin had 9 kills. Tintle had 8 kills and 2 aces, Vidumsky had 3 aces, and McCauley had 45 assists.

'I've never taken freedom for granted' Bethlehem Twp. church salutes veterans

By DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

U. S. Rep. Charlie Dent paid his respects to area veterans during services Nov. 7 at the Ebenezer Bible Fellowship Church in Bethlehem Township. The Sunday evening service attracted about 120 veterans, their family members and government officials.

The recently re-elected congressman described one of his trips to Iraq, where he said he was impressed by the level of sensitivity of the military leaders to the needs of veterans and the need for post service treatment of post-traumatic stress disorder and brain trauma caused by blast injury.

"We are working with all of them," he said, referring to local veteran-centered organizations like Treatment Trends of Allentown, where he recently attended a ceremony.

Sunday's program included musical entertainment by local groups including students from Freedom HS.

Featured speaker Frank Ginther, a former Navy communications specialist, was on the U.S.S. Pueblo when North Korea captured it in January 1968.

"I was a believer in Jesus Christ," he said, crediting his religious convictions with helping him survive the 11 months of brutal captivity.

He said the North Koreans released him and his shipmates after an American general signed a "false document" to secure their release.

He said that he and his fellow sailors and Marines walked across a bridge into South Korea to freedom in December 1968.

The bridge got its name, the "Bridge of No Return," when NATO prisoners were given the choice of staying in North Korea or returning to the NATO lines, but if they decided to stay in North Korea, they could "never return."

The U.S.S. Pueblo remains in North Korea.

Ginther said that Veterans Day is a great time to honor veterans. He also warned against what he described as an "internal conflict," wherein some people want to remove the words "under God" from the pledge of allegiance and "In God We Trust" from U. S. currency.

"I've never taken freedom for granted," said Ginther. He recited the poem, "It Is The Veteran," which includes the lines: "It is the Veteran, not the preacher, who has given us freedom of religion; It is the Veteran, not the reporter, who has given us freedom of the press."

Ginther's career combines his communications training and his faith in God. He is the station manager of WJCS 89.3 FM in Allentown, a station featuring a religious format. He lives in Bethlehem with his wife, Judy.

The Navy awarded him the Purple Heart Medal, recognizing the torture he endured. He also wears the Prisoner of War Medal.

Norman Failla recounted his trip back to South Korea where the South Korean government paid for most of his expenses while there. Officials there awarded him the Ambassador of Peace medal. He said that his group of veterans was teamed with South Korean students for a lunch courtesy of South Korea as part of the government's effort to ensure that the younger generation understands what their history is.

Morris Metz, president of the Lehigh Valley Veterans of the Battle of the Bulge, spoke about the power of prayer. He cited Gen. George Patton's order to a chaplain to write an appropriate prayer on the eve of a pending battle.

He said that Patton ordered copies of the prayer printed and distributed to 486,000 men in the Third Army.

The Bethlehem MORA (Men of Retirement Age) Club offered a medley of songs honoring each of the military services.

Bethlehem native Charles M. Sandwick Jr. stood up, gripping his walker as they sang "Anchors Aweigh." Sandwick, there with his daughter and grandson, graduated from Easton HS in 1944.

He served in the U. S. Navy 1944 to 1946. He was undergoing torpedo patrol boat training preparing for the invasion of Japan when he heard that the Army Air Corps had dropped an atom bomb on Japan.

Mike Frisoci of Bethlehem stood for the Army hymn, "The Caissons Go Rolling Along." He served in the U.S. Army from 1948 through 1968. He saw combat in an artillery battery in Korea during the Korean War.

Air Force veteran John C. Buttillo of Hanover Township stood when the MORA group sang the Air Force hymn, "Off We Go Into the Wild Blue Yonder." He served from 1948 to 1952. Buttillo's wife of 53 years, Dolores, accompanied him.

Freedom HS bagpipers Kimberlee and Travis Leidich marched to the altar and played "Amazing Grace."

The Nostalgia Group, with singers Dale Sine and Ron and Pat DiStefano offered a series of songs including "Don't Sit Under The Apple Tree," and "Don't Get Around Much Anymore."

Ebenezer Bible Fellowship Church pastor used the patriotic tribute to remind his guests that, "Freedom is not free" and that "Jesus was the greatest freedom fighter of them all."

Jenna Collins, a member of the Ebenezer Church, sang "Let There Be Peace," and "God Bless America."

Devaughn Roberts from Freedom HS played "Taps," concluding the ceremony.

Mayor Fink resigns; nominees sought

Fountain Hill Mayor Ned Fink submitted his resignation to the borough council at its Nov. 1 meeting. Fink recently moved to Springfield.

Council member Carolee Gifford moved that the council accept the resignation "with regret and gratitude." Several council members wondered if they could do more to express their gratitude.

Council President Lawrence Rapp pointed out that council will need to appoint a new mayor before its next regular meeting. Rapp invited candidates to send letters to Executive Administrator Rick Prill at Borough Hall, 941 Long St., Fountain Hill, PA 18015.

Fountain Hill's "Spooky Forest" event Oct. 22 was a great success, according to David Apgar, community police officer. Apgar reported that approximately 2,000 people attended the event.

Apgar told council that the event had grossed $4,692, giving the Community Police a balance of more than $2,000 in its account, money that Apgar suggested could be used to purchase a few security cameras for the park.

He also thanked the Fountain Hill Fire Department, which helped by supplying security and selling hot dogs. Their efforts raised approximately $315 for the event. The organizers took in $510 in donations before the event and an additional $105 afterward.

There were a few areas of concern about the event, he pointed out. Most notably, there were adults who were apparently unaware that the event was designed for children.

"Some adults needed bars of soap in their mouths the way they treated our actors," Apgar said. He added that some actors were abused to the point that they left.

He also noted that there was one theft, when a woman took some prizes from a child and ran away.

"We were able to replace the child's prizes," he was pleased to say.

Museum celebrates opening

Easton's Sigal Museum marked its grand opening with a one-day celebration Aug. 14. Special activities featured at the opening included a five-and-drum procession from Centre Square to the museum, costumed interpreters and storytellers, a children's fracture workshop, spinning demonstrations and musical performances. The Sigal Museum, which features exhibits about American history made in Northampton County, is located at 342 Northampton St. More information is available at www.sigalmuseum.org.

'Our shelves are pretty bare' Nov. 13 Scouting for Food collection to benefit several local food pantries

With 30 to 50 people visiting their food pantry every day, Bethlehem's Salvation Army Captain Tim Lavenbein is hopeful the annual Scouting for Food drive conducted by Cub Scout Pack 317 and Boy Scout Troop 317 will help them handle the extra need brought on by the holidays.

"Our shelves are pretty bare, and when kids are out of school for the holidays the need for food is even greater," explained "Captain Tim," who helps coordinate the food pantry and soup kitchen at the Pembroke Road location. Without the free or low-cost breakfasts and lunches many kids would usually receive at school, this puts much more pressure on parents who have lost their jobs or are struggling to get by.

According to Scouting for Food South Mountain District Chair Mark Firth, Scouting for Food is the largest food drive in the Lehigh Valley and last year more than 200,000 pounds were collected by scouts in the Minsi Trails Council.

Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts started spreading the word Oct. 6 to their neighbors to help fill empty food pantries and soup kitchens that serve struggling neighbors in the area. Scouts across the region went door-to-door in their annual Scouting for Food activity, leaving thousands of door-hanger reminders and will return Nov. 13 to pick up and deliver curbside donations to food pantries.

For more information, contact Cub Scout Pack 317 Scouting for Food Coordinator Wendy Olshefski at 610-390-3929.

Chinese missionary Elvira Mary Strunk

By KAREN M. SAMUELS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The settlement of Bethlehem was founded by the Moravians for the purpose of supporting their missionaries. Elvira Mary Strunk, with roots in Bethlehem, dedicated her life as a Christian missionary in China. For the 21 years she worked as a missionary for the American Lutheran Mission, she maintained a Bethlehem address at 68 E. Union St.

Strunk was born in Center Valley June 10, 1884 to Henry S. and Mary (Koons) Strunk. She earned a B.S. at Albright College, then taught science courses at Cedar Crest College for nine years. She also taught Sunday School at the St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Allentown, where she was a member of the congregation.

In 1918, Strunk became a missionary and traveled to Jimo (Tsimo), Shandong Province, China, to supervise a Lutheran girls school. Jimo was one of the three main stations of the United Lutheran Church in the America China Mission. The name "Jimo" means "Black Ink" and was located along the Baisha River.

Strunk's district covered 60 square miles, which was mostly farmland. During her years working as a missionary, a chapel was built and an addition was added to the girls school. The missionaries had use of an old Ford, which was used to visit each village in the district. The car initially caused quite a commotion with some of the villagers who had not seen a car before.

Due to lack of medical personnel, Strunk on two occasions assisted women in childbirth. Her years as an educator and administrator prepared her for any emergency.

Strunk returned to Bethlehem for a few years during the 1920s to earn her master of science degree from Lehigh University. She wrote for various Lutheran Missionary publications during the 1930s. In the February 1938 issue of Lutheran Women's Work, Strunk described the village under threat of attack by Japan.

"Fear possessed everyone because of the airplane attacks on women and children. Tsimo is surrounded everywhere by trenches, and dugouts were dug wherever ground space permitted. We have four big ones on the school campus. If planes come this way, we are prepared to hoist five American flags by Consul orders."

In July 1938, Strunk suffered minor injuries from a Japanese bombing raid on the school and mission. She was ordered to return to the United States by the American Consul in Tsingtao. This was fortunate for her, as two years later the Japanese captured all the remaining missionaries and held them as hostages. They were held in jail or house arrest until the end of World War II, when they were exchanged for Japanese prisoners of war.

On Strunk's return to Bethlehem she began a campaign to "Stop Arming Japan." Through her efforts, Pennsylvania congressmen received a deluge of letters supporting Roosevelt's neutrality program. That year the Department of State notified U.S. manufacturers that the U.S. government was strongly opposed to the sale of airplanes and aeronautical equipment to countries whose armed forces were using the equipment for attack on civilian populations.

Strunk spoke at more than 200 churches, clubs and schools around the country about her 21 years as a missionary in China. Chinese Ambassador Hu Shih and Secretary of State Cordell Hull welcomed her visit with them in Washington, D.C.

Strunk attempted to return to China during World War II but was denied permission. She spent the 1940s educating people in the United States about China. Strunk taught courses in Chinatown in San Francisco, at the Rocky Boy's Indian Reservation in Montana and at Mitchell College in Statesville, N.C.

A local newspaper in Statesville, in its "About Town" column, teased that Strunk was spotted eating spaghetti with chopsticks. Strunk became ill with an unknown disease and returned to Bethlehem around 1950. She was admitted to St. Luke's Hospital for over a month before she passed away Nov. 18, 1952. Her only surviving relatives were three cousins, Lilly Geisinger (famous for her Moravian sugar cookies), Mrs. William Faust and Mary E. Davis.

A meeting of ages at the polls

Even though there were only four contested races on the ballot for the recent midterm general election, voters turned out in surprisingly high numbers and kept the polling workers busy at Northeast MS in Bethlehem. The Ward 15 District 1 handled 40 voters in the first hour, starting at 7 a.m. The day ended at 8 p.m. with just over 600 ballots cast. Northampton County electoral officials have reported that about 40 percent of the region's registered voters turned out at the polls. Among the steady flow of voters at the Ward 15-1 Northeast MS, some interesting generational members were part of the voting process.

VETERANS DAY

Who we celebrate

On Nov. 11, our country will honor its veterans, as it does every year, with parades, ceremonies, speeches and patriotic music. Schools will welcome us into their classrooms and ask us to tell our stories, and everywhere we go young and old alike will clasp our hands and say, "Thank you for serving." We are blessed to live in a grateful nation.

We also live in an incredibly diverse nation. Our veteran population - just over 23 million and counting - reflects that. As Americans seek out those in their communities who wore the uniform to recognize them this Veterans Day, they'll find that women and minorities are serving in the military in greater numbers than ever before.

According to the National Center for Veterans Analysis and Statistics, about 2,600,000 living U.S. veterans - 11 percent - are black. Another 1,824,000 - 8 percent - are women. Smaller percentages include Hispanics (5.8 percent), Asian/Pacific

Jimmie L. Foster
Guest columnist

Islanders (1.5 percent) American Indian/Alaska natives (0.8 percent) and "other" (1.3 percent). These numbers are always changing, but together, they're about 29 percent of America's veterans, or about 6,700,000. We're no longer Sgt. Rock's army.

Addressing The American Legion's 92nd National Convention in Milwaukee, I expressed my desire to see more of this diversity in our own ranks - not because our organization is a promoter of diversity for diversity's sake, but because from its inception, the Legion has always maintained that a veteran is a veteran. From Frank Buckles, the last living World War I veteran, to Dawn Halfaker, who lost an arm in combat during Operation Iraqi Freedom and now serves on The American Legion small Business Task Force, we all share a common bond, regardless of our gender or race.

This is not a new development. Women were welcomed into the Legion before they had the right to vote in the United States. One of our founders, Hamilton Fish, is probably best known as the commander of the first all-black U.S. combat unit shipped overseas in World War I - the Harlem Hellfighters, who in 191 days of duty at the front didn't have any men captured or ground lost. Two of the country's most prominent civil-rights voices, Earl Dickerson and Corneal Davis, were among the first black veterans to join the newly formed American Legion and organize posts for black soldiers.

If you honorably served our country during wartime, you have a home in the Legion, period. We know, and cherish, a camaraderie rarely found elsewhere in society - a camaraderie that is colorblind and, increasingly, genderblind. The oath we swore was the same. The commitment we made. The discipline we endured. The joy and pride we felt serving something greater than ourselves.

On this Veterans Day, let us thank God for the gift of freedom made possible by those who served our nation with honor, courage and commitment in our armed forces during all wars that enabled so many of them to earn that coveted title of an "American veteran."

Jimmie L. Foster of Anchorage, Alaska is national commander of the 2.4-million member American Legion, the nation's largest veterans service organization. For more information, go to www.legion.org.

Favorite subject: History and languages. I like memorization and the way things fit together. I love how languages allow me to talk to so many interesting people and that history enables me to understand them.

Activities: Boys & Girls Club, Rotary Interact

Next steps: College, then graduate school; possible gap year to study in a foreign country

Career goals: International relations/affairs

Hobbies: Tennis, friends, Zumba, traveling

Current job(s): Sales representative at PacSun

Likes: Traveling, kids, languages, music, chocolate

Dislikes: Cold weather

Greatest accomplishment (so far): Learning how to adapt to new situations and environments. I'm really proud of the fact that I have been able to go abroad and make lifelong friendships both in Spanish and English. I spent my second semester of freshman year in Puerto Rico and it really helped me to open up to people, especially because for the most part I was forced to make friends in Spanish.

Advice for peers: Befriend your teachers and don't be afraid to branch out of your comfort zone. Your teachers are definitely great resources for help. And as far as branching out is concerned, after you try it for the first time it really does get easier. The more you practice putting yourself out there and trying new things, the more you'll enjoy it and the more natural it will be.

'Who's Who on the Southside' Local teens create documentary about the area

By ELISABETH KEMMERER
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Nine Southside teenagers spent their summer vacation creating a professional documentary film about their community and got a hands-on taste of how the television industry works.

The final cut of "Who's Who on the Southside" premiered at the Fowler Youth Center Aug. 26 with more than 50 Southside residents and community leaders in attendance.

Participating teens were enrolled in the Southside Media Club, a partnership between the Council of Spanish Speaking Organizations of the Lehigh Valley and the Fowler Community Technology Center, a program of the Community Action Committee of the Lehigh Valley (CACLV). The project lasted from July 12 through Aug. 13 and was made possible through a grant from Southside Vision 2014, a 12-year neighborhood revitalization program focused on south Bethlehem and administered by the Community Action Development Corporation of Bethlehem.

The teens were involved in every aspect of creating the film, from interviewing business and community leaders in front of the camera, to filming, directing and editing behind the scenes.

"I had never done anything like this before and was nervous about interviewing business owners, but that turned out to be my favorite part," said Josh Morales, 17, who worked as a cameraman and field reporter for the project. "I learned about the time and dedication it really takes to make a movie, too."

Shepherding the teens through the entire process was Frank Ortiz, owner of Blue Anchor Productions and a 10-year resident of the Southside. He began with showing them how to operate the video camera, assemble the video set and lighting and, finally, to handle the scripting.

Their preparation also included a tour of the Channel 69 News studio where they watched a live 12 o'clock news broadcast. Ortiz says he found himself overwhelmed time and time again by the opportunity to work with the teens.

"The kids are so smart and advanced; they learned film production at a rapid pace," Ortiz explained. "I only wish we had a program like this when I was their age."

"The kids are so smart and advanced; they learned film production at a rapid pace. I only wish we had a program like this when I was their age."

FRANK ORTIZ

Anthony Garcia, 19, anchored the film and describes having enjoyed waking up early during his summer vacation, a requirement of the program.

"We had to be here and ready to work by 10 a.m., but I actually wanted to," said Garcia, who is an aspiring rap artist and entrepreneur. "Being here is an inspiration to me. Frank has so much positive energy and he taught us at our pace. I feel like I could do something like this for the rest of my life."

"The kids caught on really quickly once they were shown what to do," said Frank Posivak, program director for the Fowler Community Technology Center. "Every day was a different experience with them, which made it really exciting and fun."

The evening opened with fancy footwork from the local hip-hop dance team, Versatix, followed by welcoming remarks from Olga Negron, executive director of the Hispanic Center. Ortiz and Negron presented each of the teens with a certificate of completion for their participation in the program and, finally, the night culminated with the unveiling of the film.

The 30-minute documentary begins with coverage of the grand opening of the Skate Plaza July 16 that includes an interview with Bethlehem Mayor John B. Callahan. Following this are interviews with M.O.S. (Monsters of Success), a local hip-hop and R&B duo, Versatix and a myriad of cornerstone small businesses and organizations spotlighting what they offer and how they came to the Southside.

According to Negron, not only did this project teach the teens all about the technicalities of making a movie and how to engage their community, it helped keep them from getting into trouble during the summer.

"This opportunity kept [the kids] busy with something exciting and positive," explained Negron. "Just the fact that a group of youths from our community 'survived' another summer without getting involved with gangs

Football win caps Spirit Week

For me, a Liberty HS sophomore, life is getting hectic. Joining as much as humanly possible and still maintaining a high GPA was a goal of mine at the beginning of this year. I take all honors in school; I am also involved in my school's newspaper, Liberty Life, as an assistant features editor.

I am also part of my school's Latino Youth Leadership, Relay for Life, Students Against Destructive Decisions, and my school's tennis and track and field teams. I am also an alumna of the Jr. National Young Leaders Conference and the National Hispanic Institutes' Great Debate and shall be attending the Lorenzo de Zavala program this summer.

In sports, the rivalry between Freedom and Liberty is felt even by the freshmen who only recently began attending, so the week before the big Liberty vs. Freedom football game is full of excitement. Spirit week consisted of Superhero Day Monday, Nerd Day Tuesday, Western Day Wednesday, Disney Day on Thursday, all leading up to Red and Blue Day on Friday, the day before the game.

Spirit Week is special at Liberty due to the school spirit we possess and the strong support we have for our teams. Despite strong emotions, there is always a greater sense of pride and passion that flows through the school when Freedom is involved.

As a result of Saturday's action, I can proudly state that the bell remains where it belongs after Liberty beat Freedom 35-13.

In addition to the hype surrounding the football game, the boys varsity soccer team also made it to the final round of districts, although they didn't have as much luck as the football team, losing to Easton 0-2 on Saturday night.

Moving from our sports excellence to other extracurricular activities, many clubs at the school have been busy giving back to the Bethlehem community, through clubs and organizations such as Key Club and Relay for Life.

Relay for Life, run by juniors Marissa Guarriello, Ashley Matus and Victor Neumann, had a big fundraiser Oct. 29 which caught the whole school's attention. Some club members collected money by having students and faculty vote by giving money to the person they thought wore the best costume. The costume contest was a fun and successful way to raise money for the American Cancer Society.

Members of Students in Action, a branch of the National Honors Society, are collecting toys, books, scarves, winter clothes and sports items to send to India as flood relief fund.

A major part of the pride we have here at Liberty is our tremendous Grenadier Band. Feb. 1 to 6, band will be traveling to Disney World to perform at parades as part of "The Happiest Place on Earth." Liberty has great pride in our band and bagpipes section, so we hope they perform well and in keeping with tradition, bring home plenty of medals for our display case.

and drugs is another big step toward a better community."

The "Who's Who on the Southside" project was spawned from an earlier anti-gang documentary that Ortiz put together a few years ago focusing on what factors on the Southside were leading to teenage gang recruitment. Featured in the film were teens from the Fowler Youth Center who became so enthralled with the process of making a documentary that they wanted to create one of their own, leading to the formation of the Media Club.

Negron said she is excited about the new interests that this project has sparked within the teens, including the desire for a college education, possibility going into the production industry, and making a positive impact on their community. Laeylea Lopez, 14, already had aspirations to become a special education teacher, but now hopes to enhance her career with the new skills she picked up from this experience. She would like to, perhaps, record her students at events, like the Special Olympics, to add to their experience, she said.

"It is important to be proud of where you are from and to instill that pride in our kids because, one day, they will lead us," Negron said. "My own children are grown and off to college, but I feel I have a whole slew of other children that I must be a guardian angel for. It's my turn to give back and make sure the rest of these kids stay on track."

When asked in an interview with Danielle Diaz if she sees the project continuing, Negron responded, optimistically, "We are hopeful that we will receive the support we need from the community to keep this going. If we do, we intend to make the Media Club a regular part of the after-school program at the Fowler Youth Center."

Water Ice comes to town

Polish Water Ice owner Matt Dugan and employee Zack Winter dish out freshly made ice cream treats to beat the heat in mid-August. Having just opened weeks earlier, Polish Water Ice's new Bethlehem franchise brought a bit of cool boardwalk refreshment to town. Dugan and co-owner Jay Charlie, childhood friends from Allentown, decided to bring the Ocean City, N.J., franchise home to Bethlehem, at 1521 Easton Ave., because it sounded like a good business to be in on. "We really enjoy the people," Dugan said. "We're always updating online on our Facebook page, the kids love it, and we're putting smiles on people's faces. What's not to like?" Polish Water Ice sells an ever-changing selection of smooth ice and ice cream-blended dishes, from pina colada to root beer to strawberry and their large location lets customers come in from the sweltering summer to sit down or play some boardwalk-style games.

The Nov. 13 fundraising gala concert for the Bach Choir of Bethlehem features Tiempo Libre, above. The group's album, "Bach in Havana," fuses J.S. Bach classical and Cuban timba.

Bach Choir books hip Cuban group for annual fundraiser concert gala

By JERRY DUCKETT
 Special to The Press

What happens when seven classically-trained young Cuban musicians begin to explore their music, and mix their contemporary Cuban music with jazz?

"You get a relatively new genre called timba," says Jorge Gomez, pianist and music director of Tiempo Libre, which he started in 2001. By 2008, the group was lauded as the most successful salsa group in the United States by The New Times of Miami.

So, it's no wonder that officials of the Bach Choir of Bethlehem chose Tiempo Libre to headline its annual Gala Concert and Fundraiser at 8 p.m. Nov. 13 in Baker Hall, Zoellner Arts Center, Lehigh University.

The Bach Choir has continued its trend of presenting Gala events with world-class guest artists in different musical genres. Last year, it was pianist Dave Brubeck, and prior to that, cellist Yo-Yo Ma. According to Bach Artistic Director and conductor Greg Funfgeld, "We like to keep expanding the envelope with all different forms of music, and Tiempo Libre, and their music was the next logical step."

In 2005, Tiempo Libre debuted its first album, "Arroz Con Mango," a Best Salsa-Merengue Album Grammy-nominee.

In 2007, the group received a Best Latin Tropical Album Grammy nomination for "La Queue Serapes - What Have You Been Waiting For."

But it was the group's third CD, also a Best Tropical Latin Album Grammy nominee, "Bach in Havana," which fuses the classical music of John Sebastian Bach with Cuban timba music that caught the Bach Choir's attention.

"Bach in Havana," released by Sony, mixes Bach's special genius with the best of the Cuban jazz scene, and includes music, which has been an inspiration to the members of Tiempo Libre, since their school days. See GALA on Page B4

Governor visits Baum: The Baum School of Art 2010 Scholarship Gala brought festively-attired patrons together for "Masquerade" Oct. 30 at the Fifth and Linden streets, Allentown, facility for a sumptuous dinner by Catering by Karen Hunter.

Those attending wore masks, adding some mystery to the occasion, which included a silent auction.

There was no masquerading a special guest, Pennsylvania Gov. Ed Rendell, who stopped by to greet the attendees before the dinner.

"Nothing raises your spirits like arts and culture," Rendell said. "You lose yourself in the majesty of what's going on."

Philip Horn, Executive Director, Pennsylvania Council on the Arts, referred to the 2001 Governor's Arts Awards, which then Gov. Tom Ridge refused to postpone at Symphony Hall, the Allentown Art Museum and the Baum School in a gesture of solidarity and tribute only days after 9/11.

"It's really great to see the Arts Park, which was inspired when we were here for the Governor's Arts Awards," Horn said.

Also presenting remarks, were Shannon Slattery Fugate, Executive Director; Rose Ackerman, Director of Development; and Rudy Ackerman, Director of Exhibitions & Collections, Baum School of Art.

Leaves, my friends, blowin' in the wind

Close encounters of the casual kind

BUD'S VIEW

Blue enjoying a short rest in the leaves.

Have you thought about living in the woods? It had always been a dream of mine. I longed for the shade of the trees, the quiet solitude of a wooded setting, the soft comforting sound of the wind whistling through the evergreens and the magic of the colorful birds flying from tree to tree, looking for food and mates.

Well, I now live among the trees. We have about 80 mature trees consisting of at least 20 different species. We have white, chestnut, black, red and pin oaks. We have red maples, Norway maples and sugar maples. Tulip, sassafras, white ash, dogwood, black walnut, hickory, beech, black locust, hemlock, white pine, red spruce and concolor fir. This sounds wonderful doesn't it? It is definitely akin to living in a park.

The former owner told me, when we first toured the property, that he could gather the leaves in two or three evenings after work. Unfortunately, I'm the type of person who believes what he hears and it all sounded great because we loved the house and the property. The house was in a development, the woodlot at the back of the yard formed a buffer area between the property and a Christmas tree farm and no other homes were visible from the patio. Everything seemed perfect. We bought the house and moved in in February.

In spring, I picked up the sticks and the branches that lost their battle with the winter winds and I picked up the few leaves that had blown back into the yard. The property, a bit more than one acre, was all mature trees and lawn. All was well with the world. It took about three hours to mow the lawn, but I did not mind my time on the tractor.

Then it happened: mid-August arrived. I thought leaves fell at about the same time over a period of several weeks. But soon the black walnut leaves began to die and fall. The falling walnut leaves were followed by the dogwood and ash leaves. I raked some and picked most of them up with my tractor. But before they had all come down, the red maples began falling and so did the tulip leaves and the oak leaves and acorns. Plus, windy days were frustrating because the leaves fell as quickly as I gathered them from the ground.

As mid-September mornings arrived with as many leaves on the ground as I had picked up the night before I was wondering how the former owner picked up all the leaves in two or three nights. He must have had a crew of 100 people helping him. I also made the mistake of charting my hours gathering the leaves. Big mistake. By the end of September I had logged 110 hours either bagging the leaves with the tractor or raking them. The leaves often piled up so quickly that the tractor couldn't handle them.

When I hit 110 hours I quit keeping track of my time. One morning, I waved to one of my new neighbors. He was on his tractor. It was near the end of September and we stopped to talk. He told me that the leaves would be finished falling by Thanksgiving. He had tears in his eyes as he talked. I don't know if it was from the wind or six more weeks of falling leaves. Thanksgiving, I thought as I drove away. Tears began to well in my eyes, too. Darn wind!

One morning, during the fourth fall, after picking up every leaf the night before, I glanced out the back window. The lawn was covered with leaves again. The wind and rain had ripped more leaves from the trees during the night. Tears filled my eyes as I stood by the window. Darn wind!

Today, I have pathways through the yard. I only have to gather leaves along the paths or blow them into the islands. No more 110-plus hours gathering leaves and there are also fewer tears from the wind. One problem though, my dog, Blue, thinks that it is fun to jump in the piles of leaves and scatter them about. The smile on his face is worth the extra time placing the leaves back on the pile.

I have four suggestions for anyone who wants to live in the woods: 1. Build your house in the middle of the woodlot. 2. Do not plant a lawn. 3. Do not have neighbors. 4. Enjoy your trees and let the leaves lie where they fall.

Well, I have to quit writing to go out to gather leaves. Darn wind.

That's the way I see it! Email comments and questions to: bbbc@enter.net. To schedule programs, hikes and birthday parties, call 610-767-4043.

Sometimes the most casual of contacts can be life changing.

We never know where a casual contact will lead. And we never know which contact will impact us. That's part of what makes life so interesting.

Here's just one example of how a casual encounter can change lives.

A few years ago, when I was living in Palmerston, whitewater kayaking was my passion. I sometimes traveled two hours each way to kayak with an outdoor club.

During one of those trips on the Delaware River, a bubbly blonde who introduced herself as Barbara Shanko paddled next to me and we struck up a conversation. She happened to mention she just bought a home in southwest Florida.

I told her I just came back from visiting friends in Sarasota. They were urging me to buy a home there. But Sarasota is too busy and congested for my taste. I told Barbara I was looking for a laid back place with a water view near the Gulf of Mexico.

She asked if I ever looked in Englewood. She said she's excited about owning a home there and went on to expound about how Charlotte County is an outdoor lover's paradise.

"Where in the world is Englewood?" I asked.

One thing I learned early about Barbara is that she is a "sharer." She makes things happen for others by sharing information and contacts.

Maybe my conversation with her lasted ten minutes. When I left the river that day, I had no idea an encounter on the water would lead to a life change.

But on my next visit to Florida, I had my Sarasota friends drive me to Englewood. We popped into a Realtor's office where we met Zita Bartoloma. Talk about another lucky encounter. She turned into a treasured friend.

Zita spent days patiently driving me all over Charlotte County. She understood the kind of place I wanted and eventually found the perfect home for me in Rotonda West.

When I moved to Florida and joined two kayaking clubs, I found the outdoor lifestyle I craved. I also found something else that was unexpected. I found David. Next month we will celebrate our first wedding anniversary.

When Barbara Shanko joined our kayak club for our recent trip to Tarpon Springs, I told her David and I owe our happiness to her. If it weren't for my chance encounter with her, I would never live in this perfect little piece of Paradise where wonderful things keep happening.

WARMEST REGARDS

Spielman know all about the wonders of a chance encounter.

They built their dream home in Charlotte County but didn't get involved in all the area has to offer because they were too busy taking care of family needs back in Maryland.

All that changed when they went to a picnic in Venice. They filled their plates with wonderful Jewish food and looked for a place to sit down. Howie happened to sit next to a stranger named Jan Norvelle.

What began with a chance encounter over chopped liver led to endearing friendships and lifestyle changes for the Spielmans.

"I didn't know Jan at the time but she looked over at the chopped liver on my plate and mentioned how much she loved it. I offered to share mine and we all struck up a conversation," recalls Howie about his chance meeting with Jan and Ron Norvelle.

Jan told the Spielmans about the Port Charlotte Kayak Club, suggesting they might like to join the club. They did exactly that.

Jan has a knack for listening well when people talk. Best of all, she has a wonderful knack for connecting people with activities and with others who enjoy similar activities.

When she heard Howie talk about having a boat, she also suggested they join the local boat club. She told them it was a great club that will lead to wonderful friendships.

Shirley and Howie found both the kayak club and boat club lived up to Jan's promises. They are now active in both, thriving in new friendships and fun adventures on the water. And it all started because of a chance encounter over chopped liver.

"Jan changes lives," said Shirley.

Shirley is right. I've watched Jan do that many times. In her low-keyed way, she is great at getting people involved in new adventures.

"I don't do anything special," insists Jan. We beg to differ with her.

Shirley notes that Jan introduced others to the joy of ballroom dancing by giving free lessons. She also leads kayak outings for those wanting to try the sport.

Best of all, Jan has been the catalyst for many new friendships because of her knack for introducing people.

If you're lucky enough to have a chance encounter with "sharers" like Barbara or Jan, you never know where it will lead.

Chance encounters can have all sorts of surprising results. Once, while flying to Florida, I found an excellent job after a conversation with a stranger on a plane.

There are business groups that set up socials just so people can benefit from networking.

But we don't have to structure socials to network. It can happen anytime, anywhere, just through a chance encounter.

A chance encounter can lead to a job, a new adventure, a rewarding friendship, or even to love.

That's the beauty of close encounters of the casual kind - we never know what will spring from one little moment in time.

Listen to 'Tales'

The children's storybook, "Tales of the Towpath," has been released as an audio book for use in teaching low-level readers, visually-impaired students and English as a Second Language (ESL) students taking part in the Delaware & Lehigh National Heritage Corridor's Tales of the Towpath curriculum.

The audio book was produced by Touchstone Theater of Bethlehem. Bill George, a Touchstone co-founder, narrates the 24-chapter audio book, providing the voices of the book's protagonist, Finn Gorman, and other book characters.

Direction, recording and sound design was done by Touchstone Ensemble Member JP Jordan. The project was funded through a grant from the Lehigh Valley Community Foundation.

"Tales of the Towpath" was written by D&L Outreach Coordinator Dennis Scholl, and is the focal point of a state-approved, standardized elementary school curriculum that introduces students to life in eastern Pennsylvania in the 1850s, when anthracite coal mined in Carbon and Luzerne counties was fueling unbridled industrial growth along the Lehigh and Delaware canals.

The book is available at local bookstores. The audio book is available to participating schools.

The curriculum is being taught to fourth- and fifth-grade students in 57 public, private, parochial and charter schools in Lehigh, Northampton, Bucks, Carbon and Luzerne counties.

Readership Initiative Award

John A. Kirkpatrick, left, Publisher and President of The Patriot-News, Harrisburg, congratulates Paul Willistein, right, Focus Editor, The Lehigh Valley Press, on the newspapers' receiving third place in the 2010 Readership Initiative Award from the Pennsylvania Newspaper Association Foundation. The award, given for the Focus section's annual Student Poetry Project, was presented at an Oct. 29 brunch at the foundation's 86th annual convention at the Lancaster Marriott at Penn Square, Lancaster. The contest included daily and weekly newspapers.

$2-million grant to curb LVIA emissions

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has issued a $2,548,065 grant to the Lehigh-Northampton Airport Authority (LNAA) under its Voluntary Airport Low Emissions (VALE) Program.

The three primary elements of the project are: acquisition of six hybrid fleet vehicles, installation of eight pre-conditioned air units on passenger loading bridges and acquisition of eight pieces of electric-powered ground service equipment and the construction of three charging stations. VALE is a national program to reduce airport ground emissions at commercial service airports in designated air quality nonattainment and maintenance areas.

"We have worked very hard during the past year to design and bid the projects that will be funded by this grant. We were also fortunate to receive a $700,000 grant earlier this year from the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection under their Alternative Fuel Incentive Grant Program, which will be combined with the FAA grant," said Larry Krauter, Interim Executive Director for the Lehigh-Northampton Airport Authority.

"Under the VALE program, the FAA, Pennsylvania DEP and LNAA are working together to enhance the sustainability of future airport development and operations through environmental commitments to reduce air emissions from aircraft, ground support equipment and fleet vehicles," Krauter said. "Pursuing environmental initiatives that provide direct and measurable benefits to the airport and the surrounding communities is an important priority and one of our strategic goals. The VALE projects are estimated to reduce ozone precursor emissions by three tons per year and fine particle emissions by 0.4 tons per year," said David C. Haines, Chairman of the Lehigh-Northampton Airport Authority Board of Governors.

'Christmas' arrives at Pines

By TRACY ANTONIOLI
Special to The Press

The holiday season is almost upon us, and there's no better way to get into the spirit than spending an afternoon or evening enjoying "A Pines Country Christmas" at The Pines Dinner Theater, Allentown.

"Country Christmas," which continues through Dec. 26, is an old-fashioned holiday musical revue complete with singing, dancing and laugh-out-loud funny skits featuring a tree-slitting salesman and a bunch of bumbling elves.

All of the old favorite Christmas songs make an appearance, from "Oh, Christmas Tree" to "Oh Come, All Ye Faithful," along with many contemporary holiday tunes, including "Boogie Woogie Santa Claus" and "Hot Rod Sleigh." Though the latter are not classic holiday numbers, perhaps they should be.

The performers serve up a huge helping of holiday enthusiasm. Flawless harmonies, energetic dance numbers and artful comedic timing combine to keep audiences on their mistletoes.

Particularly memorable vocal performances include a shiver-inducing rendition of "I'll Be Home For Christmas" by Jon Statrom, and a "Glee"-worthy spiritual mash-up that includes the classic hits "What Child is This?" "We Three Kings," "Carol of the Bells," and, of course, "Silent Night."

The first act features the multi-talented trio of Stacy Bechtel, Nathan Druckenmiller and Gene Kutzler on several different instruments. They return near the end of the second act to round out the production.

Bechtel, the show's music director and Pines' house manager, performs on not only the banjo, but also the bass and the saxophone. Kutzler brings acoustic guitar to the mix, while Druckenmiller manages to look equally at home fiddling during "Bluegrass Christmas" and rocking the electric guitar during the "Rockin' Country Christmas" medley. If you've never heard "Blue Christmas" bluegrass style, you'll be more than pleasantly surprised.

The festive mood is set with a holiday dinner served before the show. For Christmas dinner, guests can choose from a selection of traditional holiday fare, including carved ham and roast turkey, both of which are perfectly prepared and served with a rib-sticking side of potato filling and sweet corn.

But the meal, while delightful, is just part of the entire Yuletide experience. Soon after dessert is served, the curtain rises and the entertainment starts.

"Country Christmas" is a must-do for all who love the most wonderful time of the year. Fans of Bing Crosby movies will not be disappointed, children will marvel to see not just one, but four Santas on stage, and people of all ages will enjoy the fun and festivity of this fabulous production.

'Megamind' over matter

The big question in moviegoers' minds concerning the animated feature film, "Megamind," is whether or not to see the movie in 3-D.

While there are certain scenes where 3-D enhances the visuals, paying the premium to see "Megamind" in 3-D is not necessary.

"Megamind" features the voice talents of Will Ferrell as Megamind, the Evil Overlord; Tina Fey as Roxanne, a TV news reporter; Jonah Hill as Hal, a TV cameraman Megamind transforms into arch enemy, Tighten; Brad Pitt as superhero good guy, Metro Man; and David Cross as Megamind sidekick, Minion.

Tom McGrath ("Madagascar") directs from a first-time screenplay by Alan J. Schoolcraft and Brent Simons that is a cut-and-paste job of any number of live-action, animated and superhero-themed movies, as well as the web series and play, "Dr. Horrible's Sing-Along Blog."

While the film-makers attempt to flesh out the story with a back story, there is scant character development. The main characters are not visually memorable and are reminiscent of those in "The Incredibles" (2004). One of Megamind's incarnations invokes Marlon Brando as Jor-El in "Superman" (1978). There's also a "Star Wars"-style Transformers' style battlebot.

The dialogue lacks few of the quips that are de rigueur with animated features, surprising given that funny persons Ferrell and Fey are on board.

None of the vocalizations is particularly memorable, again surprising considering the talent.

Lacking the aforesaid elements, the film-makers resort to numerous fight scenes between Mega-in Havana.

Many of Bach's masterpieces appear in the album, including the C Major and Minor Preludes & Fugues from the first book of "The Well-Tempered Clavier," with the C Major opening into a sonic world of the interplay of bata (African percussion), and the C Minor propelling an intense ride over the rhythms of guaguanco, a Latin youthful courtship dance.

Gomez and the members of Tiempo Libre grew up in Cuba and for 15 years studied at the island's top conservatory, Escuela Nacional de Arte in Havana. Eventually, they all left Cuba through different countries, including Italy and Argentina, using various methods, but all ended up in Miami.

Gomez left for Guatemala in 1995 after receiving permission to visit members of his family who were living there. He was in the army at the time and never returned. He arrived in the United States five years later.

Says Gomez, "The original idea to do the Bach album was not only mine. There was also great participation from Sony. I told them that classical music and Afro-Cuban rhythms were my life, and I wanted to start to play that music again. I grew up with it, so I thought it was a great idea."

"We are presently working on many ideas, which are too many to discuss, because I can't tell which one will end up being the best. The Bach idea was so far the greatest and it gave us worldwide attention."

"Our biggest audience so far was 18,000 people at the Playboy Jazz Festival in the Hollywood Bowl in March, but we have also toured Malasia, Hong Kong, Singapore, Hawaii and Australia, and will continue to travel."

Tiempo Libre was invited to collaborate on the duet, "Para Ti," with violinist Joshua Bell, which was featured on Bell's album, "At Home with Friends." The group also performed the track with Bell on the "Tonight Show with Conan O'Brien" Jan. 21 live from Lincoln Center, Bell's "Home with Friends" PBS special and on New York's WNYC Radio station's "Soundcheck."

And, the group received one of pop culture's highest stamps of approval when millions of television viewers saw the group's performance of "Tu Conga Bach" from "Bach in Havana" on TV's "Dancing with the Stars."

In conjunction with the concert, "Cuban Selections from the Lehigh University Teaching Collection" in the Zoellner Arts Center Gallery, organized by Curator Ricardo Viera, will be open for the Nov. 13 Gala.

There will be a dance floor in front of the stage in Baker Hall for the Tiempo Libre concert. Hispanic American League of Artists dancers will lead the audience in dancing to select sizzling dance numbers.

There are several ticket levels for the concert. Gala Benefactors enjoy pre-event cocktails at 5 p.m. in the Butz Lobby followed by an authentic Latin-themed dinner at 6 p.m. with an opportunity to bid on music treasures during the live auction, and reserved seating for the concert. Gala Benefactors and Patrons also enjoy a post-concert dessert reception, which includes a meet-and-greet with Tiempo Libre.

The patron ticket level includes reserved seating and the post-concert dessert reception, including the meet-and-greet.

Bioterrorism could still plague

Q. Does the plague still exist?

In the 1300s, the Black Death, as plague was called, killed about one-third of the population of Europe. A combination of antibiotics and improved living conditions have made plague rare today.

HEALTHY GEEZER

By Fred Cicetti
fred@healthygeez.com

Plague is found throughout the world, except for Australia. The greatest number of human plague infections occurs in African countries. However, the largest concentration of infected animals is in the United States and in the former Soviet Union.

The World Health Organization reports 1,000 to 3,000 cases of plague worldwide every year. An average of five to 15 cases occur each year in the western United States.

These cases are usually scattered in rural areas; they are caused by bites primarily from infected prairie dogs. There has not been a case of person-to-person infection in the United States since 1924.

Plague is often mentioned as a bioterrorism weapon along with anthrax, smallpox and botulism. A bioweapon carrying plague is possible because the bacterium that causes plague occurs in nature and could be isolated and grown in quantity in a laboratory.

Plague bacteria could be sprayed through the air, infecting anyone who inhales it. In this scenario, antibiotics would treat the plague effectively if they are used soon after infection. There is no vaccine for plague.

With prompt treatment, the overall fatality rate from plague is less than 15 percent. Without treatment, mortality rates can be as high as 60 percent for bubonic plague and 100 percent for pneumonic plague. Death can occur within days after symptoms appear.

National and state public health officials have large supplies of drugs needed in the event of a bioterrorism attack.

Plague is an infection caused by the bacterium Yersinia pestis. The bacteria are found mainly in rats and their resident fleas. Rat or flea bites spread plague.

There are three forms of plague: bubonic, septicemic and pneumonic. Bubonic inflames the tonsils, adenoids, spleen and thymus. It induces fever, aches, chills, fatigue and tender lymph glands. Bubonic plague is the most common type in humans, but is rarely spread from person to person.

Septicemic, in which bacteria multiply in the blood, causes fever, chills, shock, bleeding, abdominal pain, diarrhea, vomiting, and death of tissue in fingers, toes and nose.

Pneumonic plague occurs when the bacteria enter the lungs and cause pneumonia. This can be spread between people. It kills faster than the other forms of plague.

This form of the disease is the one that is feared by security officials. Symptoms include fever, nausea, vomiting, weakness, chest pain, difficulty breathing and a bloody cough.

WHEREAS, Act 141 of 2000 (the "Act"), which amends the Commonwealth's Liquor Code, authorizes the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board to approve, in certain instances, the transfer of restaurant liquor licenses across municipal boundaries within the same county regardless of the quota limitations provided for in Section 461 of the Liquor Code if, as in Hanover Township, Northampton County, Pennsylvania, sales of liquor and malt or brewed beverages are legal in the municipality receiving the license; and

WHEREAS, amendments to the Liquor Code stipulate that, prior to adoption of an ordinance by the receiving municipality, at least one public hearing be held for the purpose of permitting interested parties to state their concerns regarding the transfer of liquor license into the receiving municipality; and

WHEREAS, an application for transfer filed under the act must contain a copy of the Ordinance adopted by the municipality approving the transfer of liquor license into the municipality; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Supervisors of Hanover Township, Northampton County have held a public hearing to receive comments on the proposed liquor license transfer and, after consideration of the issues, finds that the transfer of restaurant liquor license #R-15999 into Hanover Township, Northampton County, Pennsylvania is in the best interests of Hanover Township, Northampton County, Pennsylvania, and will not be detrimental to the health, welfare, peace and morals of Hanover Township, Northampton County, Pennsylvania, or its residents; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Supervisors of Hanover Township, Northampton County, Pennsylvania, pursuant to the Pennsylvania Liquor Code, 47 P.S. 4-461, as amended, hereby ordains and enacts the following ordinance:

BE IT ENACTED AND ORDAINED, by the Supervisors of Hanover Township, Northampton County, Pennsylvania, wherein, it is hereby enacted and ordained by the authority of same, and pursuant to the authority granted to the Board of Supervisors by the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the "Second Class Township Code", as amended, of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as follows:

SECTION 2. REPEALER. All ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith be, and the same hereby are, repealed.

PUBLIC NOTICE
Notice is hereby given that the Zoning Hearing Board of South Whitehall Township will conduct hearings on Monday, November 22, 2010 at 7:00 p.m., in the South Whitehall Township Municipal Building located at 4444 Walbert Avenue, Allentown, Lehigh County, Pennsylvania, for the following zoning appeals:

ZHB-2010-49: The appeal of the Luis and Christine Cordero seeking relief to construct a thirty foot (30') by fifty foot (50') pole building on their single family dwelling property located at 4495 Parkland Drive. The appellants are seeking favorable interpretations: (1) that the proposal accessory use/building is compliant with the extent, size, and intensity of a permitted accessory use, as well as being consistent with the scale, nature, and characteristics of such a use for these particular circumstances; and (2) that a side yard setback should be applied from Parkland Drive instead of applying a front yard setback from that public street exposure. In the alternative the appellants are seeking variances on a de minimis basis, or if necessary, by traditional variance review, regarding building size related factors and setback requirements. The applicable sections of the zoning ordinance for this case are: 12.25(b), 12.28(c)(4), 12.33(d), 12.33(f)(3), and 12.47 definitions. The subject property is zoned "R-3", Low Density Residential.

ZHB-2010-50: The appeal of the Roma Development Co. seeking relief to erect two (3') by (4') "For Lease" signs at their coordinated development property located at 1603-1605 N. Cedar Crest Boulevard. The appellant is seeking a dimensional variance from the four (4) square foot maximum size requirement of Section 12.39(i)(2). The subject property is zoned "GC-1", General Commercial - 1.

ZHB-2010-51: The appeal of the Ibrahim Melhim seeking relief to add a front porch and a side garage onto the residence located at 2135 Belmont Street. The appellant is seeking variances from Sections 12.28(c)(6) and 12.32(a)(2), including its reference to Sections 12.25(e)(6)(A) and (C), so that the appellant's proposed additions may further encroach toward Belmont Street and the east side property line respectively. The subject property is zoned "R-5", Medium Density Residential.

ZHB-2010-52: The appeal of the Luis and Christine Cordero seeking relief to construct a solar array electricity generation system that is approximately thirty seven foot (37') by eleven foot (11') by sixteen foot (16') high, in the yard of their single family dwelling property located at 4495 Parkland Drive. The appellants are seeking favorable interpretations, or in the alternative use variances, that the proposal can be approved as submitted via Sections 12.28(c)(4), 12.26(a) and 12.33(q)(11). As another alternative, the appellants seek a Special Exception review as an experimental, new technology use by way of Section 12.22(d). The subject property is zoned "R-3", Low Density Residential.

Any above-referenced property is located in South Whitehall Township, Lehigh County, PA. Also scheduled to be heard as they were continued from a previous meeting are cases: ZHB-2010-47: Barto-Burger King; ZHB-2010-46 Lehigh Landholdings/Roy Knesz; and ZHB-2010-28 Frank & Sandra Nigro. Copies of any plans, applications, and/or supporting documents that were submitted are available for public inspection at the Township Building during normal business hours (it is recommended that appointments be made in advance). All appellants must attend. All objectors and interested parties are invited to attend and have the opportunity to be heard.
