Homeowners beware of post-storm scam artists

By JIM PALMQUIST
Special to the Bethlehem Press

In the aftermath of Sandy come "storm chasers," aka rip-off repair people, who descend on areas after a natural disaster looking to scam those in need of home repairs.

Homeowners facing major repairs following Hurricane Sandy should be on alert for scam artists hoping to prey on older adults. AARP Pennsylvania wants to alert people about common contractor scams during a time when members may be most vulnerable.

First, check with your insurance company to see what your policy covers. Save all receipts, including those for food, hotel or other expenses that may be covered under your policy.

Before doing any major repair, get at least three estimates, making sure the contractor is licensed and insured to do business in your area. Never hire a contractor on the spot. Be suspicious of door-to-door salesmen using high-pressure tactics, especially those who show up without an appointment and offer to do the job. Check out repair companies by looking for consumer reviews on the BBB website and on social media sites such as Yelp or Angie's list.

AARP Pennsylvania also recommends that you avoid the paperless contractor. Reject anyone who has no business card or company fliers (or who lists a P.O. Box). See SCAM on Page A2

CITY Budget requires 8.5% tax increase

But trash hauling proposal could save residents $110

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzemski@tnonline.com

When Bethlehem Mayor John Callahan unveiled his proposed 2013 budget Friday afternoon, he said it will, among other things, raise property taxes 8.5 percent and save each resident $50 per year.

Those seemingly contradictory elements are contingent on the passage of both the budget and the mayor's plan to institute a single citywide trash hauler.

Callahan said the tax increase, a last resort after exploring all other options, is primarily due to vast legacy pensions owed to retirees and rising employee medical care and insurance costs. While Callahan said he believes the problem was fixed in the latest round of contract negotiations, which lowered pensions for police and fire department retirees about as much as legally permissible, the financial benefits will only be seen by future administrations.

Meanwhile, proposed See BUDGET on Page A2

HONORING VETERANS

The Veterans Day ceremony at the Steelworkers Veterans Memorial in South Bethlehem began with the National Anthem sung by guest soloist Michelle Gilletto and played by the Broughal MS Band. Major Erik Hilberg, head of the Lehigh University ROTC program, holds a rigid salute to the American flag in the Broughal color guard. More coverage on pages A2 and A3.

Freemansburg's lock a future classroom

By DOROTHY PYLES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Dennis Scholl started several years ago creating a curriculum, putting together a website and developing field trips for what he thought would be just a dream. But recently that dream became a reality when the Freemansburg canal lock was designated a one-of-a-kind classroom.

The idea of beginning a curriculum for fourth and fifth grade students sprang from "Tales of the Towpath," a storybook written by Scholl, the Delaware and Lehigh National Heritage Corridor coordinator. It now has become a project that has a committee that includes teachers, principals, curriculum coordinators, archeologists, historians and many more.

Scholl opened up his 'classroom' for a tour Oct. 13 for those who helped make the educational opportunity possible, including local citizens, school board members, educators and donors.

On the tour many of the activities students will be participating in were outlined. One such activity is a lesson in science. Outside the actual original locktender's house, one of only two on the stretch of the canal, stands an enormous tree scholars believe dates back to the Civil War era and refer to as "ye old tree." Students will have the opportunity to measure the tree and develop ideas about what this tree has done for nature since that time.

In addition to science, the program offers language arts lessons and an plans to enlist a single trash hauler - which Callahan said residents strongly preferred in a study if it saved money and simplified service - would save residents about $110 annually.

Even with the tax increase, the net benefit will be $50 unspent by residents. However, if city council declines the trash hauler plan, Callahan said, "They'll need to find $500,000 to balance the budget."

It is also best to make sure to get a written contract, specifying what work will be done, the materials that will be used and the price breakdown for labor and materials. Any promises made verbally should be written into the contract, including warranties. Also, make sure you have time to read the contract fully.

Lastly, never pay in advance - or in cash. While some companies may ask for a deposit, consumer advocates suggest paying no more than one-third of the job in advance. Deposits or upfront fees should not exceed 25 percent of the estimate. Pay them only after materials reach your home and work begins.

Problems with home improvement consistently rank among the top five complaints by the PA Office of Attorney General. That's why AARP pushed to win approval of the Home Improvement Consumer Protection Act in 2008 that requires contractors performing $5,000 of home improvements per year to register with the Attorney General's office.

Consumers can find out if contractors are registered with the state by visiting the Attorney General's website or calling toll free 1-888-520-6680.

ELECTION 2012

Dent retains 15th District seat

By KEN PETRINI
Special to The Press

Much like Hurricane Sandy, several elements came together to give Charlie Dent an easy path to re-election as the U.S. Representative from the 15th Congressional District of Pennsylvania.

The popular Republican had the advantage of incumbency heading into the election.

First elected in 2004, Dent has held onto his seat in Congress with wide margins in recent years.

In addition, Dent faced a lower profile candidate in 2012 in the person of Rick Daugherty, rather than in 2008 when he was also being targeted by the national Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. Finally, redistricting shifted Dent's 15th District to the west and eliminated Democratic strongholds in Northampton County.

The district, which long held a sizeable Democratic registration edge, despite being served by Republican Dent for more than a decade, had been made safer for a Republican through redistricting.

After the votes were cast Nov. 6, unofficial early results show Dent winning by about 40,000 votes with nearly 57 percent of the vote.

The vote was closer in Lehigh County, where Dent pulled approximately 53 percent of the vote. In Northampton County he had a margin of about 10 percent. The more rural and Republican areas in Near record numbers of voters who turned out to decide the presidential contest create long lines at the polls throughout the Lehigh Valley. The 15th ward 1st district poll station at Northeast MS was no exception, as election turnout was steady all day, with lines forming often where voters waited to sign in before voting.

Berks, Dauphin and Lebanon counties saw Dent receive from 63 percent to 68 percent of the vote in what has become more of a safe seat for the GOP.

Dent, a lifelong Lehigh Valley resident, has represented portions of the area for 22 years. He served eight years in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives and six years in the state Senate.

Dent will return to Washington with a Republican majority in the House of Representatives and an aim to restrain the growth of spending.

He serves on the Appropriations Committee and the Ethics Committee, as well as the Appropriations subcommittees dealing with Homeland Security, state and foreign operations and transportation, housing and urban development.

The congressman will serve all of Lehigh County for the first time, following redistricting.

Dent spoke with The Press Wednesday morning following the election.

"I truly want to thank all the people who worked for, supported and voted for me," Dent said. "Their support is deeply appreciated."

Dent said the country faces an enormous fiscal challenge.

"I will do all I can to help get the economy on track," Dent said.

He added the elected officials in Congress need to come together to deal with both tax and spending reforms.

"We need to develop energy resources, open markets and deal with the long-term debt. We need to resolve these issues in a constructive, bipartisan manner."

McNeill wins 133rd District

Democrat Daniel McNeill won the election Nov. 6 over Republican David Molony for the seat previously held by Democrat Joseph Brennan.

In Lehigh County, McNeill had 61 percent of the vote or 10,320 votes to Molony's 39 percent or 6,516 votes.

In Northampton County, McNeill took 79.39 percent of the vote or 2,977 votes to Molony's 20.40 percent or 765 votes.

McNeill ran on a five-point plan dealing with major issues facing Pennsylvania: quality education, job creation, safer communities, fiscal responsibility and tax reform.

All votes will be certified within the next few weeks.

interactive website with maps, historic videos animated geology lessons. The lessons can be taught both indoors and outdoors as the original mule barn will be made into an indoor classroom and one-and-a-half acres of the canal will make up the outdoor classroom.

In addition to using the mule barn, the project will restore the original locktender's house, which was first used in 1829. It was in this house that locktenders and their families, many with eight to 10 children, would live and work. In order to make the locktender's house more interactive for the students, Scholl hopes to start a sewing circle to make costume replicas, and even have local residents or volunteers make apple butter and sauerkraut, staples in the locktenders' diets. The first field trip of the historic Lock 44, which includes the locktender's house and mule barn, as well as the canal, is scheduled to take place next October. Scholl said that fall is a great time to implement this project, because it will be harvest time and the program wants to involve food and even raised garden beds next to the locktender's house. The program will be available to public, private, parochial and home schoolers in the five counties - Bucks, Lehigh, Northampton, Carbon, and Luzerne - that comprise the D&L Heritage Corridor.

Judson M. Kratzer, of Larson Design Group, explains the importance of the archeology of Freemansburg Lock 44 during a recent tour of the planned educational facility.

CONTRIBUTED PHOTO

Not even Hurricane Sandy dampened the Gerra family's tradition. After five days without power, the Gerra family - Nicholas, Lorraine, Alex and Paul - from Hanover Township participated in Part 1 of Scouting for Cans. Part 1 involved putting door hangers at residences requesting donations of cans, household items and dry goods. They also participated in Part 2 of Scouting for cans by returning to the residences to collect the donated items. Because of Hurricane Sandy, different troops have the option to pick up Nov. 10 or Nov. 17. The Gerra family has one son in Pack 302, where Todd Siegfried is Cubmaster, and another son is in Troop 302 where Paulo Benatti is the Scoutmaster. Pack 368 and Troop 302 together gathered 3,265 items for New Bethany Ministries in Bethlehem. To learn more about scouting, parents can go to www.beascout.org to find a troop near their home.

Bethlehem Area School Board members talked priorities at the Nov. 5 facilities meeting, establishing a list of proposed projects for consideration in the near future.

Director of Facilities and Operations Mark Stein summarized the 25-item list and the estimated finances.

"We're doing all right but there are a lot of ongoing needs," he said. "There's many needs in the district."

Residents Stephen Antalics and Randy Tomen mentioned an article published recently in the Morning Call citing a third-party estimator who placed repairs to Nitschmann MS at $15 million, rather than the $64 million listed in the district priorities. Both men suggested deeper analysis of the options, with Tomen loudly decrying a large expenditure as possibly unnecessary.

Board member Irene Follweiler and BASD Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy reminded the audience the citation in the article were taken from estimates provided by the district weeks ago as the cheapest of the Nitschmann renovation options.

"The Nitschmann project is still under discussion," Follweiler said. "No decision has been made."

Roy added the article's primary source is in favor of renovation and restoration, which would in reality be little more than a band-aid for the aging middle school.

Dr. Jack Silva, assistant superintendent for education, later outlined broad changes for the 2013-14 school year curriculum.

Silva described moving the system away from the Pa. System of School Assessment toward the nationwide trend of preparation for career and college and more student choice in flexible, personalized course paths. He said the new focus (rather than simply trying to test well) will be on problem-solving and higher level writing and reading, which is more in line with what employers are looking for.

Meanwhile the overly-complicated morass that is the upcoming Keystone test system implemented by the state will not, in fact, have any immediate affect on students other than their having to take the tests.

Board members William Burkhardt and Eugene McKeon each reiterated with Silva the exact nature of the Keystone tests - for any student currently in high school, they have to be taken, but the results will only be used by the state Department of Education to judge the district's Annual Yearly Progress evaluation.

Burkhardt scoffed at the waste of time and energy.

Roy said he feels the district could teach better without such constraints imposed by the state, but there's no choice but compliance.

Board postpones LERTA vote

By MARK RECCEK
Special to the Bethlehem

Unsure whether the measure will create jobs in the Lehigh Valley, the Saucon Valley School Board postponed extending a property tax relief program at its Oct. 9 meeting. The vote was tabled because school board members Edward Inghrim and Sandra Miller were absent.

The Local Economic Revitalization Tax Assistance (LERTA) program applies to 440 acres owned by Majestic Realty Company, along with areas of the Lehigh Valley Industrial Park VII land that currently sits undeveloped.

LERTA offers tax credits for a period of 10 years to businesses that locate to deteriorated areas.

SAUCON VALLEY SD

Hellertown resident Kevin Lott, a union worker, expressed concern area union workers would not be selected by Majestic for construction projects. He added residents of the community should be the recipients of tax benefits.

"If tax relief should be given out, it shouldn't be to billionaires," Lott said.

Ed Konjayan, vice president of Majestic, told Lott the company does not discriminate when choosing what company or organization will be awarded a contract to work on a proposed project.

School board member Michael Karabin said board members were not prepared to vote on the measure.

Board member Lanita Lum expressed a willingness to cast a vote. She said she could not vote for LERTA as it stands.

"The spirit of the act is being compromised on the back end of implementation," Lum said.

School board member Sharon Stack indicated she thinks the district is in need of commercial development.

theft around 10:35 a.m. Nov. 1.

According to police, burglar(s) entered the building through undisclosed means and stole a number of official car ID items. This included 29 emissions stickers and 19 state inspection stickers. They also stole three JBN amps.

Police said it was a loss of about $1,000 in goods.

Burglary

Police issued a warrant for the arrest of Jimmy Ortiz, 38, of East Sixth Street, after he broke into a home and threatened its residents.

Police said Ortiz entered the Second Avenue home of his ex-girlfriend and her current boyfriend around 7 a.m. Nov. 4. Ortiz allegedly threatened both with physical harm and declared the woman couldn't hide from him no matter where she went.

Ortiz then stole her wallet and cellular phone before leaving.

Ortiz is charged with criminal trespassing.

Healthy Eating Tips for Thanksgiving

- Don't go to the Thanksgiving dinner hungry; eat a wholesome breakfast and lunch on the day to avoid overeating at dinner time.
- Turkey - go skinless: choose your 4-oz turkey portion skinless to reduce calories and some fat and cholesterol.
- Side Dishes - watch your portion size: go for smaller portions. This way you can sample all the different foods. Moderation is always key.
- Make a conscious choice to limit high fat items: high fat food items are often the fried, creamy dishes or cheese-filled casseroles.
- Drink plenty of water: alcohol and sweetened coffees can add 250 to 350 calories per serving.
- Leftover Turkey? Instead of turkey sandwiches, use the leftover turkey to make a pot of soup with fresh chunky vegetables.

Board to tweak ordinance

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Last month, Bethlehem Township Commissioners changed the zoning ordinance to provide for prisons in the agricultural district. They had little choice.

The state's Commonwealth Court had ruled that the township must provide for prisons somewhere. But commissioners Marty Zawarski and Phil Bernard, the board's newest members, still dissented. They were concerned that a prison could still be built as close as 200 feet from someone's home. They may have lost that battle, but Township Manager Howard Kutzler and veteran commissioners listened. At the Nov. 5 meeting, Kutzler unveiled a proposal that will keep potential prisons at least 1,500 feet away from any homes.

BETHLEHEM TOWNSHIP

Changes last month already require a 1,500-foot buffer between prisons and sensitive uses like schools. Kutzler suggested that residences could simply be included in this 1,500-foot buffer zone, and land would still be available for a prison.

The area in question is on the north side of Route 22, bordered by Hecktown Road on the west, Farmersville Road on the east, and Lower Nazareth Township on the north.

Solicitor Jim Broughal advised commissioners that this change would comply with the Commonwealth Court's directive.

"The law does not require that the entire township be made available for prisons," he counseled, noting that the land is available, open and has all the necessary utilities.

The commissioners unanimously agreed to authorize Broughal to prepare and advertise an ordinance making this change.

In other business, commissioners unanimously agreed to revisions in the township's recycling ordinance, adding corrugated paper to the products being recycled.

The commissioners meet again Nov. 19 at 7 p.m. at the municipal building, 4225 Easton Ave.

Atiyeh appeals hospital decision

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Last month, Northampton County Judge Edward Smith ruled that Bethlehem's Planning Commission exceeded its authority in denying developer Abe Atiyeh's plans for a psychiatric hospital at the southeast corner of Center Street and Dewberry Avenue. But instead of reversing, he sent the matter to the Zoning Hearing Board to determine whether a hospital use is permitted at that site.

BETHLEHEM ZONING

Atiyeh has responded to this ruling with an appeal to Commonwealth Court, filed by Attorney Blake Marles Nov. 5. In addition, Marles has asked Judge Smith to reconsider, arguing that the only matter before him is whether the planning commission had a basis to deny the submitted plans.

He also points out that, since this matter was never in front of the Zoning Hearing Board, there is no basis for a remand. In fact, Marles insists that since there was no legitimate basis for the denial of the plan, it should be deemed approved.

After his bid for luxury apartments at that five-acre site failed, Atiyeh proposed a four-story, 125-bed, inpatient detox center and psychiatric center. The site in question is located in an institutional district, where a psychiatric hospital is a permitted use.

He Had Been Fighting God!

This story is continued from last week (see "Do You Have Your Ticket?") at: www.NAOG.ws/pc. I had just told the elderly man on the tour train that Jesus was the only ticket to heaven.

"I know that you must be born again. I once accepted Christ," he replied rather sadly. "Once? How are things now with you and the Lord?" I asked. "I'm not where I should be..." his voice trailed off and then came back filled with strong angry emotions. "Enough of this religious talk! You're going to make me mad! That's why I left Massachusetts! My sister is religious and is always talking to me about it. Now let's not talk about it any more!" But a few moments later he was back on the subject, "I believe in God. Look at all these beautiful trees. God made them." I agreed but did not pursue. Soon he was again talking about his need of getting back to God and again he became angry and said, "I told you I don't want to talk about it! Now let's drop it, OK?" "I didn't pick it up again—you did!" I protested. "Yes, well I guess I talk too much and get myself in trouble," he replied. After the ride he kept talking. "Your 100% right—1000% right. Thanks for the advice. Will you pray for me tonight?" I gave him a gospel tract and offered to pray for him there, but he declined. Later, the man stopped me and again thanked me for talking to him about getting back to God. Obviously, God's Spirit had been dealing with him. He had been fighting God!

How about you, reader friend? Has God been dealing with you? The Bible commands, "Yield yourselves unto God" (Romans 6:13), "Quench not the Spirit" (1Thessalonians 5:19), and "Grieve not the holy Spirit" (Ephesians 4:30). I urge you to respond to the Spirit of God now. Don't put it off for He warns, "My spirit shall not always strive with man" (Genesis 6:3).

Hawks fall in states

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

All good things must come to an end, but for Bethlehem Catholic's volleyball team, it was just a bit too early.

The Golden Hawks lost in their PIAA 2A opener last Thursday to Pope John Paul II in four games at William Tennent High School.

The Panthers (19-0) won 27-25, 25-22, 11-25 and 25-16 and kept their undefeated season going by winning their quarterfinal over the weekend against Berks Catholic to advance to yesterday's semifinals.

Despite the loss, Becahi head coach Paul Abi-Daher knows it was an experience the team can build from as they move forward with the loss of three seniors.

"None of our players have been to states before and I think they see it's a different level of play," said Abi-Daher. "I don't think we were nervous, but we did come out flat. It's a tough game to pin down on what exactly went wrong."

As Abi-Daher knew coming into the match, Pope John Paul II, the District One champion, was quite the test defensively, as the Panthers were able to dig many balls that other teams in the area haven't been able to.

Having that defensive prowess helped hold off Becahi's offensive thrust and their 2012 campaign, but Abi-Daher isn't walking away without a sense of accomplishment.

The Hawks won their first district title in three years, beat Central Catholic for the first time in 16 years and got a victory over Emmaus and pushed Parkland to five games.

Lauren Hess is the lone starter that will graduate from the team, as well as seniors Maddie Lopez and Jen Wilson.

With an experienced squad returning next season, Abi-Daher knows his team will have to meet expectations again.

Raider 80s go undefeated, win title

The 80-pound Bethlehem Raiders squad completed a 10-0, undefeated season with a 25-18 victory over the Bethlehem Township Bulldogs in the championship game on Sunday, Oct. 27.

The Raiders jumped out to a 19-0 lead midway through the second quarter on touchdown runs by quarterback Jaylin Freeman and running backs Kyndred Wright and Landon Foster. The Bulldogs rallied with three consecutive touchdown runs by Connor Bevan to close the gap to 19-18 midway through the fourth quarter.

The Raiders' defense stiffened late in the fourth quarter and came up with a game-changing turnover as Landon Foster scooped up a Bulldogs fumble and scampered for a Raiders winning touchdown.

The Raiders advanced to the Championship game after defeating the Bethlehem Steelers 20-0 the previous day. The Raiders 2012 perfect season consisted of victories over Lower Macungie, South Parkland, Mountainville, Bethlehem Bulldogs, Hokey, Bethlehem Saints, Lower Nazareth, Northampton and Bethlehem Steelers.

His best for last

KJ Williams goes out on top at LHS

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

When KJ Williams walks away from Liberty High School, being the best wide receiver in school history isn't the only part of the equation. Being a good student, good person and a good teammate were all things Williams mentioned.

Not surprisingly though, Williams, is more than just good on the football field.

He's stellar and a sure fit Division-I prospect that may have saved his best football game of his life in Liberty's season ending 41-14 victory over Freedom two weeks ago with a stat line that read six receptions for 132 yards and a touchdown, two defensive interceptions (one returned for a score) two kickoff returns for 58 yards, a punt return for 20 yards, as well as all kickoff and punting duties.

He just turned 17 a couple of weeks ago, so he really still has room to grow," said Liberty head coach Dave Brown about his prized junior. "For as easy things come to him on the field, it's pretty scary."

That raw athletic talent has transcended to 28 career touchdowns for Williams, including 10 this past season when he set school records for receptions (59) and receiving yards (986).

There haven't been many wide receivers to come out of the Lehigh Valley with the talent of Williams, but if there are any examples of former top-notch talent, Williams doesn't need to look further than Liberty's recent past.

Former standout wideouts Devin Street and Jarrod West were scary targets for quarterback Anthony Gonzalez during the Hurricanes state championship run in 2008.

Street and Gonzalez are now playing football at Pittsburgh, while West is at Syracuse.

Williams hasn't had the luxury of playing with a Division-I quarterback during his career, which exemplifies how talented he truly is.

"I got my chance to start during

Moravian inducts 2012 class into HOF

Tony Jaso (Bethlehem); Tara Wartman McClimon (Douglassville); Heidi Wolfsberger Peoples (Scranton) and Fred Reinhard (Palmerton) made up the class of 2012 that was inducted into the Moravian College Athletic Hall of Fame on Friday, Nov. 9, in Johnston Hall.

Also being honored was Bill Marsh (Carolina Shores, NC, who was presented with the Robert Martin Herbstman Award), and the 1989 men's track team.

Reinhard (also 'see right), who served as a longtime member of the Moravian College Board of Trustees, has been a major contributor and consistent supporter of the Greyhound Athletic program for years.

He is a regular at Moravian contests, and he has positively affected the athletic experience of scores of Moravian student-athletes. In 2011, he was elected as a Life Trustee member of the Moravian College Board of Trustees.

Jaso, a 1950 Moravian graduate, was a three-year standout on the football squad.

Jaso played on both the offensive and defensive line as well as a receiver during his career, and he was selected Honorable Mention All-State in 1946 after his freshman season. Before coming to Moravian, Jaso served in the United States Navy during World War II. Jaso, who is a retired educator, lives in Bethlehem with his wife Patricia.

McClimon, who graduated from Moravian in 1998, was a four-year member of the women's cross country and women's track teams. McClimon earned

All-America honors with a seventh place finish at the 1997 NCAA Division III cross country championships as a senior, and she captured the Middle Atlantic Conference title in both 1996 and 1997.

She helped lead her cross country squad to four MAC titles and a third-place finish at the 1995 NCAA Championship meet. On the track, McClimon was an All-American in the 3,000-meter run in 1997, and she competed in three events, the 3,000-meter, the 5,000-meter and the 10,000-meter runs at the NCAA Championships.

McClimon was a seven-time MAC champion in track including the 10,000-meter title for four-straight years. After leading the track team to four-straight MAC titles, McClimon was named Moravian's Outstanding Senior Female Athlete in 1998. McClimon lives in Douglassville with her husband Tyler, a 1999 Moravian graduate, and their two children - Corey and Mason.

Peoples, who graduated in 2002, was also a four-year standout on both the women's cross country and women's track teams, and she was Moravian's Outstanding Senior Athlete in 2002.

Peoples captured the 2001 NCAA Division III National Championship in the 1,500-meter run indoors, and she was the runner-up in the 1,500-meter run three other times in her career.

Peoples was also a two-time runner-up at the NCAA Division III Cross Country National Championships, and she completed her career as a 12-time All-American. Peoples helped the Greyhounds to four Middle Atlantic Conference cross country championships, and she was a three-time Most Outstanding Performer at the MAC Track Championships. Peoples won 14 MAC individual titles, and she was part of several more championships as a member of relay squads.

Peoples continued to run after graduation, and she is a two-time United States Women's Marathon Olympic trials qualifier and a two-time winner of the Steamtown Marathon including the course record.

Peoples is a teacher at Riverside High School, and she resides in Scranton with her husband William and their two children - Liam and Caroline.

Marsh, a 1956 graduate, was a four-year letter winner on the Moravian football team. Marsh was a quarterback for the Greyhounds and served as a team captain as a senior.

When he began his teaching career, Marsh was instrumental in recruiting students to attend Moravian. Marsh is a retired coach and educator in New Jersey. He currently resides in Carolina Shores, North Carolina, with his wife Helen.

The 1989 men's track team won both the Middle Atlantic Conference Indoor and Outdoor Championships while finishing ninth at the NCAA Division III Outdoor Championships.

The squad, coached by the late Doug Pollard, included four current Moravian Hall of Famers - Jeffrey Cullingford '90, Charlie Hoch '91, Rick Krouse '89 and Dan Reichenbach '91.

Tony Jaso, Heidi Wolfsberger Peoples, Fred Reinhard, Tara Wartman McClimon and Bill Marsh were inducted into the Moravian Athletic Hall of Fame on Friday, Nov. 9.

Reinhard among inductees

Fred Reinhard is the President and Chairman of Pencor Services, which is made up of 17 communication companies, including the Lehigh Valley Press newspapers, as well as other companies like PenTeleData, Blue Ridge Cable, Palmerton Telephone and the Times News newspaper.

In addition to supporting athletics, he has been a generous friend to the science department, the Hurd Academic Complex, the music department, among other programs. He's also known as the man behind the company who brought the Moravian College Christmas Vespers to more than 10 million viewers over the Pennsylvania Cable Network.

Other gifts have gone toward game-day field furnishings such as bleachers, barricades, shelters, storage sheds, towers, fencing, field maintenance equipment, new ticket booths at Steel Field, a washer/ extractor for the equipment room, the sports medicine department, and sponsored a "mental toughness" speaker.

Every varsity team has received direct gifts to enhance their individual programs. The spirit groups - the cheerleaders and mascot program - have been made safer and more visible through his donations.

Assistance in completing the Blue & Grey Pavilion at Steel Field gives the Blue & Grey Club a permanent home and a special place for parents, alumni, and friends to gather. Gifts toward the Breidegam Fieldhouse lobby, the construction of the new state-of-the-art fitness center, digital signage and graphic athletics imagery throughout the facilities not only reinforce that intangible called "Greyhound Pride" and makes the college a better place to be, but also makes it a better place for recruits to want to be.

Reinhard is the dad of two Moravian alums - daughter Joanie, a 1986 grad, and son Jeff, who graduated in 1990. Reinhard resides in Palmerton with his wife Rosalie.

my sophomore season and I took advantage of it," Williams said. "I really tried to get better over the summer at different passing camps and I just wanted to improve on my technique. I got faster, got better at running my routes and was able to improve on my route separation. Now I just need to work even harder for my senior season."

Williams is clearly Liberty's top talent returning next season and Brown hopes he understands the importance he brings on and off the field.

"He has the tools to excel on the field and in the classroom," said Brown. "He has the ability to dominate in all three phases of the game. He thrives on the energy he creates for himself on the field and he can be a great leader for us. He just needs to keep working hard."

And that's what Williams plans on doing.

"I still have basketball season coming up, but I'm going to be training hard all year for next season," he said. "It's an honor to be recognized as a great player, but I still have a lot of work to do."

Vacation vote

PRESS PHOTOS BY DANA GRUBB

On a recent brilliant morning Allegiant Air, which provides air services at Lehigh Valley International Airport, sent a bus to the Bethlehem area on the south end of Main Street promoting its "vote for vacation" contest.

IronPigs mascot FeRRIOUS keeps things loose and fast with his antics while onlookers wait for the Allegiant vacation bus.

Traveling in three buses to the 75 cities served by the airline, Allegiant Air staff drew shoppers, local officials and the curious to their stand as they were joined by the Just Born Peepster car, 99.9 The Hawk radio station, Bethlehem Police mounted patrol and Iron Pigs mascot FeRRIOUS in a festive event. Allegiant staff offered gifts, airfare tax discount vouchers and the opportunity to enter to win two free airline tickets and free airline tickets for four years, just by voting for one's favorite Allegiant Air destination. Dozens of people lined up to enter the contest on iPads provided by the airline, and were assisted by Allegiant Air staff.

ABOVE: The Allegiant Air vacation bus pulls up to the curb carrying Allegiant staff who conduct the vacation promotion.

Contest participants enter the Allegiant Air contest using an iPad, and Allegiant Air staff Ashley Phillips and Stephanie Hager, normally a financial analyst in sales/marketing and ticket clerk, respectively, are on hand to assist contestants with their entries.

Allegiant Air director of marketing Brian Davis outlines the vacation promotion to a gathering of more than 50 interested spectators.

Campaign ads

Did I miss something?

Nate Jastrzemski
Editorial assistant

Analysis of the presidential campaign is now taking up the space once used by the media to cover the presidential campaign, and television and radio sales reps must now contend with working for a living rather than simply filling all the available air time with political ads.

Or is this not the case?

The Republican Party was a super-PAC and big-business money-generating goliath that threw more than $1 billion into Mitt Romney's campaign. The Democrats, shocked by the Romney cash machine, pulled out all the stops and somehow spent almost as much.

The race — that is the presidential race alone — lasted a year and a half and poured $2 billion into a great hype war to buy the affection of the American people. Or to spur their condemnation. The polls even now are relating how the gobs of greenbacks tossed into whichever states swayed the minds of the populous.

To the people who so determinedly opened their wallets to maintain the battle for White House, I say this: What ads?

You see, I don't know whether I should be amused or saddened by the vast, wasteful expenditure because I've no idea what was ultimately produced.

I don't have cable. I never saw a single television ad. I think I heard two ads on the radio over the past month, but in my search for actual music I quickly changed the station.

Obviously I'm not their target demographic, or else they'd have been camping outside my window. In which case they could have kept us all warm during the hurricane blackout by burning all that money.

As I don't know what the candidates' people spent those unbelievable sums of cash on, I thought: What similarly useful things might we have done with $2 billion?

* We could rebuild and re-sink the RMS Titanic. Five times.

* Buy every single person in India a McVeggie sandwich and cola.

* Wrap a shoelace around the Earth 18 times.

* Construct a potato gun capable of using the planet Mercury for target practice 48 million miles away.

* Provide every North Atlantic Puffin with its very own North Atlantic island and connect them with a series of raised roadways like the Florida Keys.

Ok, I made up that last one. Puffins swim; they don't need roads.

Nevertheless, with all these wondrous possibilities available, I maintain spending all that money on a presidential election is rather silly.

Since it was a presidential election, schools were closed Nov. 6 which resulted in an increase of children accompanying their parents at the poll sites. As Elyse Johnson exits a voting booth, her children Eliya, 6, and Gabriel, 2, eagerly arise from conveniently located chairs to greet their mother in Bethlehem.

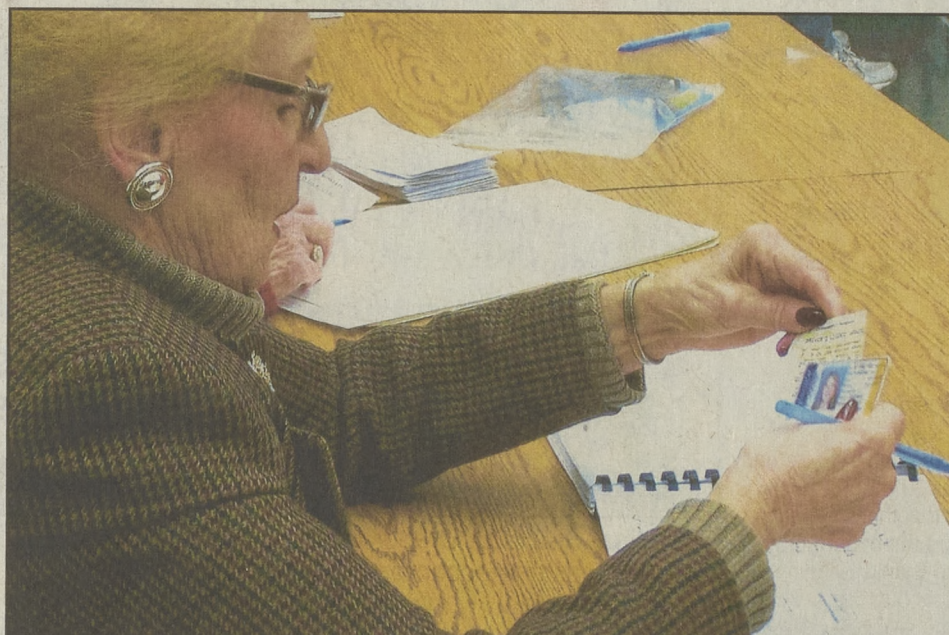

Nine-month-old Eva Kramer probably has no idea what all the commotion at the busy Bethlehem polling site is about as she waits patiently outside a voting booth where her father Michael is making his choices. Eva's mother, Katie Kramer, stood near the infant as her husband voted.

We saw you at the polls ...

Liberty HS senior Samantha Olewnik makes her first election candidate selections in a voting booth at the 15th ward, first district poll site in Bethlehem's Northeast MS, which she attended as a middle school student.

Poll worker Joyce LeWando checks a driver's license for Voter ID verification at a Bethlehem election site in Northampton County.

With her 90th birthday almost two weeks away, Nov. 21, Eva Newell turned out on Election Day to vote with her daughter Veronica Newell, who said her mother comes out every fourth year for presidential elections.

Longtime voter Catherine Lisowski, who turns 94 in February, is accompanied by her daughter, Mary Miller. "I never missed," said the old-time voter who said she has voted in every election since she was old enough. "She just got out of the hospital. She made me comer," smiled Mary Miller.

Alexander A. Ferencin

Bethlehem Catholic HS

Grade: 12

Family members: Wayne and Anne Marie Ferencin (parents)

Favorite subject: My favorite subject is calculus because it is definitive in that there is only one right answer, but creative in that there are many different ways to get that answer.

Activities: Band, theater, tennis, Boy Scouts, National Honor Society, JETS

Next steps: I plan to attend college to study chemical engineering.

Career goals: I want to be a chemical engineer for a major chemical producer or begin my own company producing specialized chemicals.

Heroes: One of my heroes is our current president, Barack Obama, because he exemplifies the American dream in that he was born into an average middle class household and worked hard to become the most powerful person on the planet.

Hobbies: I enjoy playing racquetball and tennis with friends and family, as well as building model rockets, working on old computers and playing trumpet, guitar and piano.

Current job(s): During the summer, I work as a technical assistant in Lehigh University's physics department.

Volunteer/community work: I have volunteered at Country Meadows, was a teacher's assistant at my church's CCD program, and completed my Eagle Scout service project by doing landscaping work and painting the lines in my church's parking lot.

Likes: I enjoy tennis, the occasional TV show such as Castle or Burn Notice, video games and listening to music.

Dislikes: I dislike politicians who are unwilling to compromise on issues.

Greatest accomplishment (so far): My greatest accomplishment is that I am nearing the completion of my Eagle Scout rank in the Boy Scouts of America. It took many months of hard work and dedication, but I am seeing the light at the end of the tunnel.

Advice for peers: My advice for my peers is to stay active in our school and in our community. We only go through high school once; it would be a shame for anyone to go through school not being involved and later wishing one had done more.

Like many elementary schools in the Bethlehem Area School District, Lincoln held its Octoberfest Parade of Halloween-costumed children through the surrounding neighborhood Oct. 26, as autumnal foliage provided a seasonal setting for the annual event. On Oct. 16, the student body was gifted with the profound insight of Holocaust survivor, Judy Meisel. Before the assembly, all of the students watched her documentary, "Tak for Alt," to learn about the terrors of the Holocaust she faced and her journey to safety. The student body prepared questions about her experiences and attitudes, which she courageously answered. Meisel was a source of inspiration and evoked poignant emotions as she assured us that the United States was the greatest nation in the world, spoke of the necessity of respect and gave advice to combat bullying.

"If you have saved one person, you have saved the world," Meisel said.

Robert Gowell, head of the Theology Department, has been collecting canned food contributions in his theology classes to give back to the community. On Nov. 5, he delivered boxes of student donations to New Bethany Ministries, restocking the shelves that Hurricane Sandy almost vacated. His efforts are ongoing as he continues to bring the provisions during intervals when supplies dwindle, both before and after the holidays. About 1,000 pounds are donated twice a year, often doubling New Bethany's canned goods supply. The much appreciated assistance is used to make food baskets and prepare hot meals. Gowell encourages all of his students to sacrifice and give back to others, as neighbors are in need of help and one can make a significant difference.

Also through New Bethany Ministries, the BECA family is working together to give its neighbors the opportunity for a delicious Thanksgiving meal. Canned food is being collected during the next few weeks in all homerooms.

Junior Mackenzie Bento led BECA's involvement with the relief effort for Sandy. In her undertaking to "Restore the Shore," Bento put boxes around BECA to collect necessities for those affected by the storm. This included clothes, See BECAH on Page A16

Christkindlmarkt Bethlehem, Nov. 15 - Dec. 23, SteelStacks, Bethlehem, has 125 vendors each week, the most in its 20-year history.

It's beginning to look a lot like Christkindlmarkt in Bethlehem

Thanksgiving is in one week and already it's beginning to look a lot like Christmas.

That's especially true in Bethlehem, the Christmas City.

And it's no more so than at ArtsQuest's SteelStacks on the city's southside.

During the past two decades, Christkindlmarkt Bethlehem has delighted almost one million guests from near and far with its mix of gift ideas, old-world charm and holiday cheer.

This year, the festival celebrates 20 years of holiday magic with a six-week run that features more than 125 vendors each week, the most in its history. The event, Nov. 15 - Dec. 23 (closed Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 22), PNC Plaza, SteelStacks, 645 E. First St., Bethlehem, includes more than 200 vendors during its six-week run, with artisans coming from 20 different states.

Christkindlmarkt Bethlehem, recognized as one of the top holiday markets in the world by Travel + Leisure magazine, features aisles of handmade works by the nation's finest artisans, the heart-warming sounds of live holiday music and German and Austrian favorites such as bratwurst, German roasted almonds and strudel.

Christkindlmarkt has also expanded its lineup of specialty food vendors, with Pennsylvania-pure maple syrup, locally-produced honey, freshly-baked artisan breads and more among the new items.

New this year is Hidden Pines Farms, offering live Christmas trees, wreaths and swag for sale. Patrons will be able to stroll Hidden Pines' rows of trees, selecting the perfect fir, spruce or pine for their home.

Other highlights include Make Your Own Glass Ornament Sessions, where children and adults work hand-in-hand with talented glass artists to create beautiful, hand-blown ornaments; ice carvers creating sculptures using chainsaws, picks and blowtorches; and Breakfast with St. Nicholas, where children can meet and have their photos taken with the jolly, old man himself.

Germany's Käthe Wohlfahrt, one of the most popular attractions at Christkindlmarkt, is also back with an amazing collection of handmade ornaments, nutcrackers and collectibles.

The 2012 holiday celebration features the return of the music and light show on the site's towering blast furnaces, a special holiday menu at the ArtsQuest Center and holiday performances in The Musikfest Café, on the third floor of the ArtsQuest Center, by the von Trapp Children, "American Idol"'s Clay Aiken, The Celtic Tenors, the Second

City, the Chapin Family, and David Parker and The Bang Group's "Nut-Cracked."

Every night from Nov. 15 - Dec. 31, the public can visit SteelStacks to stroll the walkways draped in holiday lights and 1930s-era decorations reminiscent of the days when Bethlehem first became known as The Christmas City.

At 5:30, 6:30, 7:30 and 8:30 p.m., there will be a holiday-themed music and light show on the former Bethlehem Steel blast furnaces, the iconic, eight-story-tall structures from which SteelStacks takes its name.

Guests can enjoy cozy, horse-drawn carriage and wagonette rides through Bethlehem's historic SouthSide Thursday - Sunday, starting Nov. 15, plus ride the free Christmas City Trolley every Thursday - Sunday, starting Nov. 23.

The Dexter Baker challenge will live on

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
 Focus Editor

Dexter F. Baker's mantra was "challenge the status quo."

Baker's words rang out at the launch party for the iDeX Creativity and Innovation Lab at Wilbur Powerhouse, Lehigh University, Bethlehem.

The launch party was one of the last major events attended by Dexter "Dex" Baker, 85, who died Nov. 1.

The Innovation Lab is part of Lehigh's Baker Institute for Entrepreneurship, Creativity and Innovation, founded and funded by Baker, who retired in 1992 as CEO and board chairman of Air Products. Baker received a BS in mechanical engineering ('50), MBA ('57) and honorary doctorate ('81) from Lehigh, where he was a Trustee Emeritus.

Baker and his wife Dorothy, who have lived in Salisbury Township, co-chaired the $33-million capital campaign for Lehigh's Zoellner Arts Center during the 1990s, with Baker Hall named in their honor.

The Bakers' contributions to the arts extend to Muhlenberg College, Allentown, where their namesakes include Baker Center for the Arts and the Dorothy Hess Baker Theatre.

month from Lehigh's College of Business and Economics.

Baker was beaming and ebullient at the exciting and inspiring Oct. 23 launch of the Innovation Lab at Wilbur Powerhouse as he greeted and chatted with professors and students who displayed their latest projects.

Todd Watkins, Baker Institute Executive Director; Marc de Vinck, Dexter F.

Baker Professor of Practice in Creativity; Pat Farrell, Lehigh University Provost; and Dexter Baker spoke to the more than 100 at the party, which included festively-decorated sheet cake and cupcakes.

The Wilbur Powerhouse is a perfect metaphor for the power of innovation. The facility, built in 1908, indeed once housed a coal-fired steam power plant at Lehigh. The 19,000-square-foot building was renovated in 2002.

"It's really great to see it repurposed. Steam and coal was the high-tech of that time," de Vinck said.

The Creativity & Innovation Lab at the Wilbur Powerhouse is described as Lehigh's "createspace" to inspire students from all disciplines to turn their ideas into reality.

party for the lab, Baker told a reporter for Lehigh Valley Press of his hopes for the facility's impact.

"The main thrust is to stimulate creativity on the part of Lehigh University students as a discipline," Baker said. "Most discoveries are part of the interaction of several disciplines."

Later, at the podium, Baker said, "Creativity and entrepreneurship and innovation are what make the world go round."

"If it wasn't for creativity, we'd be back in caves rubbing two sticks together," Baker added.

Holding a ballpoint pen designed to rest securely between one's thumb and index finger, Baker noted, "There's nothing that we can't improve upon."

"Our future is what we create for ourselves," Baker concluded.

The Wilbur Powerhouse facility includes 3-D printers; electronics work stations; prototyping materials; computer-driven router, mill and lathe; meeting spaces; and classrooms.

Since March 2010, the Baker Institute has held events for Lehigh alumni, students, faculty and staff about green and clean technologies, fashion and retail, start-up ventures with social impact, web technologies, biotech and start-ups in the arts.

Courses in entrepreneurship are offered at Lehigh across many disciplines, including venture capital, non-profit start-ups and pre-launch innovation. An annual Eureka! student competition and awards dinner is held.

Lehigh's Integrated Product Development (IPD) teams engineering, business and design arts juniors, seniors and graduates with industry partners to design, fabricate and produce new products. Sponsors include B Braun, Dresser-Rand, Lutron, OraSure, Stryker and Victaulic.

Student start-ups to ventures include EcoTech Marine, aquarium pumps; George Guest, Ltd., multi-functional backpack; Gigmax, online file storage; hField Technologies, Inc., WiFi products; and Vidler, video clips and photo sharing.

The IPD program has been lauded by The New York Times as a model for the "workplace and its cross-disciplinary teams."

The Baker Institute holds the International Undergraduate Workshop, May 22, June 12, 2013, for college students from around the world.

The Wilbur Powerhouse party was the last public event at Lehigh University attended by Dexter Baker.

Alice P. Gast, Lehigh University President, released the following statement on his passing:

"The Lehigh University community is saddened by the passing of Dexter F. Baker. He has been a friend of Lehigh University for more than 50 years and generous benefactor and passionate advocate for the arts, entrepreneurship, creativity and innovation."

"Dexter has been instrumental in shaping our university culture and encouraging our students to be creative and not accept the status quo. He has helped generations of students to develop a passionate pursuit of creativity and innovation. He leaves a lasting impact on the university and our students — a legacy we are proud to embrace."

Poetry, photos to be linked

Poet-photographer Marilyn Hazelton presents "Sustaining The Soul," 9 a.m. - noon Nov. 17, FloreAnt Projects Gallery-Studio, 215 Main St., Emmaus.

A selection of Hazelton's original photographic work combining tanka poetry, a Japanese five-phrase poetic form, and images is on display at the gallery Nov. 17- Dec. 15.

Photographers, painters, writers and students are invited to participate. A goal of the workshop is to deepen participants' insights into their own art and that of other artists and to discover new visual and textual meaning.

The program will also touch on creative process as an avenue of emotional, mental and spiritual clarity. Those taking the workshop may bring one to three photographs to respond to in writing, or choose to focus on photographs in the gallery exhibits. Through a technique called "link and shift," participants will gain insight into their own art.

"Linking poems and photographs can lead to new understanding of joy, love and hope, or grief, anger and fear; and sharpen artistic goals," said Hazelton.

An example of Hazelton's tanka poetry is: "how our lives shift and change the years when I was speechless are done"

"The inner strength that came from writing this tanka has been deepened by linking it with a photograph of holly berries and leaves wet with rain," Hazelton said.

Hazelton is a teaching artist with the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts. Her work includes residencies in France, Japan and Morocco. She is a regular presenter at Haiku Society of America meetings in Manhattan. She is Poet-in-Residence at The Swain School, Salisbury Township.

She received an Arts Ovation Award in Literary Arts in 2006 from the Allentown Arts Commission. She edits "red lights," an international tanka journal. Her writing has been published in a number of journals and venues.

Book signing set for Moravian putz book

Central Moravian Church is publishing a new book, "The Moravian Christmas Putz: Bethlehem Moravians Tell the Story of the Birth of Christ," this month, marking the 75 years since Bethlehem became known as Christmas City USA.

That same year, Central Moravian Church opened its doors to its Community Putz for the first time Dec. 24, 1937.

The 72-page volume, with 90 color pictures, tells the history and Moravian traditions surrounding the putz.

The book, scheduled to appear in local bookstores Nov. 23, was written by Vangie Roby Sweitzer and edited and designed by Nancy Rutman, both members of Central Moravian Church.

Sweitzer and Rutman will sign first editions 1 - 3 p.m. Nov. 23, Moravian Book Shop, 428 Main St., Bethlehem.

Sweitzer is also the author of "Christmas in Bethlehem: A Moravian Heritage," published in 2000 by Central Moravian Church.

The community putz is on display at Central Moravian Church the day after Thanksgiving for the Christian season of Advent. A putz is also displayed in many Moravian households during the season.

The Central Church putz features antique miniature figures of German origin set on a landscape of rolling hills, deserts, streams and live trees constructed by Central members who collected the natural material on "Moss-gathering Sunday" in early November in the Pocono Mountains.

Thousands from virtually every state in the U.S. and dozens of foreign countries annually view the Central Church putz.

The Central putz, from the German word putzen, meaning "to decorate," is in the Christian Education Building on the church campus, Main and West Church Streets, Bethlehem.

The Star and Candle Shoppe features holiday gifts, including Moravian stars, handmade beeswax candles, ornaments, scarves and jewelry.

The putz and the adjacent Star and Candle Shoppe is open 1 - 7 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays; 10 a.m. - 8 p.m. Saturdays, and 1 - 5 p.m. Sundays, Nov. 23 - Dec. 31.

The display and shop are closed Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

Living with a minimalist

When I was dating David, I was immensely impressed when I opened his kitchen drawers. I never saw a utensil drawer so neat.

Each kitchen utensil was evenly spaced in neat rows.

I told everyone he had to be the neatest guy on the face of this earth because every nook and cranny in his home was so clean and uncluttered.

When we got married and I moved into his home, I discovered why his home is uncluttered.

David is a minimalist. I discovered to what degree that is true when I tried to cook in his kitchen.

When I needed a ladle to dish out soup, there wasn't one.

When I needed a spatula, there wasn't one.

I asked David how in the world he could get by without those items.

"Don't need them," he said.

"Don't need it," is his answer to a lot of my inquiries.

"Look, you have to understand I lived on a sailboat for seven years," he said. "I learned to get by quite nicely without a lot of gadgets. When you live on a 35 foot sailboat, you learn to get by without a lot of stuff."

So out I went to buy the missing kitchen items. But one day when I went to flip over some eggs, there was no turner in the drawer. There was no soup ladle, either.

I thought I forgot to buy them and went out to buy more. The new ones disappeared, too.

I learned David was stashing the utensils in a back closet because he wasn't used to cluttered drawers.

Finally, I convinced him I am someone who loves to cook. I need my kitchen tools where I have easy access to them. He agreed to let my kitchen alone. But his minimalist leanings show in so many other ways.

When I told him I was buying him a fishing shirt, he said, "Don't need it. I have one."

When we sold our boat, I wanted to buy him a new kayak.

"Don't need it," he said. "I already have one."

Sure he does. It weighs 70 pounds, too heavy for me to handle. It needs a new seat and the rudder doesn't work, creating a rough situation during heavy winds.

But no way can anyone convince David he needs anything. His answer is always: "I already have one."

In Anna Quindlen's new book, "Lots of Candles, Plenty of Cake," she talks about a little boy being raised in a family of minimalists.

The little boy was allowed to open one present on Christmas Eve. The next day, when there were other presents for him under the tree, he said, "But I already have one."

My husband was probably a little boy like that. Quindlen makes the point that there aren't many minimalists in this world. Most of us have too much stuff and keep buying more, even though "stuff" doesn't have anything to do with real life.

I am neither a minimalist nor one who accumulates "stuff." About 25 years ago, I came to the conclusion that we don't own stuff.

Stuff owns us.

With that in mind, I cleared my house of most of my stuff, or so I thought.

But when I was moving from Pennsylvania to Florida, the "stuff" I was giving away from my kitchen cabinets alone filled three SUVs.

When I moved to Florida, I took only what would fit in my car. In many ways, that was completely freeing.

At this stage of life, I don't want to spend what little time I have left buying and caring for possessions.

I moved from a 10-room house with plenty of storage in the kitchen as well as extra kitchen cabinets in the basement. Every inch of space was stuffed.

In Florida, I have a small home with one shelf for pots and pans and very little room for dishes, much less extra stuff.

The funny thing is, that's all the room I really need.

Eight years ago, I enclosed a porch and made an extra room in my small house. I've yet to decide how to use it. I guess the truth is I don't need it.

We need far less than we think we do.

But no one would ever accuse me of being a minimalist— not after looking in my overflowing clothes closets. My kayak clothes alone take up one drawer. Biking and exercise clothes are in another drawer. Then there's a big section in my closet for dancing clothes.

David does just as many activities as I do but he can fit all his clothing in one small closet. Economy of space must be a guy thing.

When I watch HGTV, the women are always saying they need the big walk-in closet for themselves. Their husbands are relegated to a small closet.

I watched House Hunters last night where a newly married couple was searching for their first home.

They had to have three bathrooms, they said, one for each of them and one for guests. They also "needed" four bedrooms, an extra family room, a "guy cave" and a big room for a home office.

Times sure have changed. How we define our "needs" changed too. Look what has happened in just two generations.

Our grandparents raised big families or sometimes three generations of a family in homes with one bathroom.

Of course, more rooms need more stuff.

More stuff costs more money and requires more care.

Maybe minimalists like David have the right idea.

It's not always easy 'Going Green'

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Focus Editor

Theater-goers who enjoy avant-garde one-person shows should get a kick out of "Going Green the Wong Way," 8 p.m. Nov. 16, 17, Touchstone Theatre, 321 E. Fourth St., Bethlehem.

"It's really funny and silly. People who are jaded by environmentalism — it's a fun way to enter into it," says Kristina Wong, the show's creator and performer. "This, for me, is one response that makes the journey more enjoyable."

The Touchstone performances are part of a northeastern United States tour by the Los Angeles-based actor-playwright, who bases the show on her real-life experiences with a 1981 Mercedes-Benz converted to run on vegetable oil.

"Going Green," which is recommended for mature audiences — or "immature audiences," Wong quips — premiered two years ago in Miami and has since played Lost Angeles, San Francisco and the Edinburgh Fringe Festival.

"I think people can relate to the frustrations of trying to do the right thing.

"It's interesting and relevant now," Wong adds during a post Superstorm Sandy telephone interview from on the road in New England. "We need to face the fact that global warming is real."

Her other work includes "Cat Lady" and "Wong Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," the latter dealing with depression and what she says is a high rate of suicide among Asian-American women.

"Going Green" is an 80-min. performance piece presented in five acts with no intermission.

"We will need to wean ourselves off of convenience and having everything we want all the time," says Wong, who was an English and World Arts and Cultures major at UCLA.

In "Going Green," Wong recounts that when she was 11 she had a "Joan of Arc mission" to save the planet.

"Kids would tease me and make fun of me for caring."

"I have a good sense of humor about it," she reassures.

But the big question inquiring minds want to know is: Does Wong recycle?

"I do," she says.

Digging the roots of 'Field Recordings'

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Focus Editor

It would be difficult to encapsulate the impressive and exhaustive work that is musician-author Stephen Wade's "The Beautiful Music All Around Us: Field Recordings and the American Experience" (University of Illinois Press, $24.95, 477 pp.)

You'd best let Wade do so himself, 8 p.m. Nov. 17, Godfrey Daniels, 7 E. Fourth St., Bethlehem, when he performs selections from the CD that accompanies the book, as well as those from his latest CD, "Banjo Diary: Lessons from Tradition."

The elegantly-designed book, which contains some 50 evocative and historic photos, has been drawing rave reviews including this from The Wall Street Journal: "A masterpiece of humane scholarship."

Wade has only performed a concert based on his just-published book (already in its second printing) once before. Prior to Godfrey's, he'll perform it in Princeton, N.J., and afterwards in Philadelphia.

"What I'm going to do is tell the back story about the book. We will play our own interpretations of the songs and some new songs from my new album," Wade says, noting that at Godfrey's he will also screen about 200 images from the book project.

Expected to perform with him at Godfrey's are long-time music collaborators Mike Craver, Danny Knicely, James Leva and Zan McLeod.

Wade has previously performed at Godfrey's and encouraged Dave Fry to co-found the venue. Wade also performed at the former Pennsylvania Stage Company, Allentown.

Wade spent no fewer than 18 years researching, writing and editing the book, which weighs in at three pounds and includes about 100 pages of references.

"I've been exposed to these songs since I was a teen," Wade says in a recent telephone interview from his Maryland home.

"This is sort of a life-long pursuit," says Wade, who presented a paper based on a chapter from his book at the annual meeting of the American Folklore Society in New Orleans.

"It was clear in the method that I was going to visit and research — it was obvious — that it wouldn't fit within the perimeter of a jewel box [CD package]," Wade chuckles.

"The way to tell the story had to go beyond the confines of the library [Library of Congress] and the collectors to the players themselves and to the communities. In that sense, it echoed what I had already done," says Wade, who produced and annotated the 1997 Rounder Records collection that gave rise to the book.

Wade chose 30 songs for the 1997 album. He visited the locations of the recordings.

"Implicit in the [book] title is that folklore has infinite variety. It's not simply songs or log cabins or rituals around the dining room table. It's many things. This dimension is in many parts of our lives. It's not regulated by law. It's enormously variable."

Wade said completing the book was daunting.

"I never really knew until the end what I had. There was a time when I'd turn to my wife [Michaelle, to whom he dedicates the book], and say, 'I'm lost.' And she'd say, 'You'll find it.'"

That he did.

No cure for CMT, but it can be treated

Q. My 40-year-old son was just diagnosed with Charcot-Marie-Tooth disease. What can he expect from this as he gets older?

Charcot-Marie-Tooth disease (CMT) was identified in 1886 by three physicians: Jean-Martin Charcot (sharr-koe) and Pierre Marie in France, and Howard Henry Tooth in England.

CMT is also known as hereditary motor and sensory neuropathy (HMSN). CMT is a group of related conditions all caused by inherited mutations in genes.

While you probably have never heard of it, CMT is one of the most common inherited neurological disorders. It affects about 1 in 2,500 in the United States.

CMT impacts the peripheral nerves, the ones outside the brain and spinal cord. CMT affects both motor and sensory nerves.

HEALTHY GEEZER

By Fred Cicetti
fred@healthygeezers.com

Symptoms usually begin to show up in adolescence or early adulthood, but some begin to develop symptoms later. The severity of symptoms varies, even among family members with the disease.

There is a normal life expectancy for people with CMT.

CMT causes weakness, decreased muscle bulk and sensation in the feet and lower legs. The weakness can lead to deformities such as misshapen legs, high foot arches, curled toes, inverted heels and flat feet.

Muscle weakness can cause difficulty lifting your foot at the ankle (foot drop), a higher-than-normal step, tripping and falling.

The symptoms progress gradually. As the symptoms worsen, there can be weakness in the arms and hands. There is pain associated with CMT. In some cases, people with CMT have to use braces.

There is no cure for CMT. Symptoms are treated with physical therapy, occupational therapy, braces and other orthopedic devices. Sometimes, surgery is necessary.

Therapy involves strength-training, muscle and ligament stretching, stamina-training, and moderate aerobic exercise. Most therapists recommend low-impact exercises such as biking or swimming; they recommend against activities such as walking or jogging, which may put stress on muscles and joints.

Here's what you can do regularly at home if you have CMT:

Stretch to improve your range of motion and reduce joint deformities.

Exercise to keep your bones and muscles strong. Soak and moisturize your feet to reduce discomfort.

Inspect your feet to prevent calluses, ulcers, wounds and infections. Cut your nails to avoid ingrown toenails and infections. Professional pedicures are a good idea.

Wear shoes that fit and are protective. Consider wearing boots or high-top shoes for ankle support.

'Wreck-It' an apt description

Imagine having raspy-voiced John C. Reilly and whiny-voiced Sarah Silverman yelling, cajoling and yakking at you for one hour and 48 minutes.

That's one way to describe "Wreck-It Ralph," a garishly-colored, frantic, not very funny animated feature from Walt Disney.

The words of Vanellope, a Bratz doll style character voiced by comedian Sarah Silverman, used to describe Ralph, a Shrek-like character voiced by John C. Reilly ("Step Brothers," "Chicago") supporting actor Oscar nomination), best describe "Wreck-It Ralph" itself: "so freakishly annoying."

The animated film is basically a series of poundings, chases, gunfire and explosions — just like your typical video game — with lots of 3-D-ready visuals (I opted for regular format).

If you're a gamer, you may want to play the likely "Wreck-It Ralph" game version (as well ride a probable Disney World theme park attraction). If you're not a gamer, and have no interest in getting small and being inside a video game, "Wreck-It Ralph" will hold little interest for you.

The storyline, such as it is, has to do with Ralph not wanting to play a bad guy in "Fix-It Felix," a 1980's-style video game at an arcade.

Felix, a Super Mario Brothers style character, is voiced by Jack McBrayer (TV's "30 Rock").

Another of the film's main characters, Sgt. Calhoun, a female soldier, is voiced by Jane Lynch (TV's "Glee").

King Candy, a character that harks back to roles played by Keenan Wynn, is voiced by Alan Tudyk (TV's "Suburgatory").

Much of "Wreck-It Ralph" takes place, not in the video game, "Fix-It Felix," but in another video game, "Sugar Rush," where King Candy rules over

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein

Vanellope and a host of other subjects, some of whom are various permutations of some of your favorite candies.

The movie is directed by Rich Moore (TV's "Futurama" and "The Simpsons") in his big screen directorial debut.

The formulaic screenplay was written by Phil Johnson ("Cedar Rapids") and Jennifer Lee, with additional story material from John C. Reilly.

"Wreck-It Ralph" will probably be enjoyed by children 10 and under. Those older, as well as parents or guardians, might be better served by frequent trips to the concession stand to buy more candy.

Preceding "Wreck-It Ralph" is "Paperman," a wordless, black and white animated short that is charming, sophisticated and clever — pretty much everything "Wreck-It Ralph" is not.

"Wreck-It Ralph": MPAA rated PG (Parental Guidance Suggested). Some material may not be suitable for children for some rude humor and mild action-violence; Genre: Animation, Comedy, Family; Run time: 1 hr, 48 mins.; Distributed by Walt Disney Pictures.

Credit Readers Anonymous: Stay to the very end of the concluding "Wreck-It Ralph" credits to see a Pac-Man style video game character begin to gobble the Walt Disney Pictures logo before a glitch freezes it.

Box Office, Nov. 9: "Skyfall," the 23rd installment, 50th anniversary year and biggest James Bond film opening ever, was No. 1, with $87.8 million for the weekend and $90 million since Nov. 8.

2. "Wreck-It Ralph," $33.1 million; $93.6 million, two weeks; 3. "Flight," $15.1 million, $47.7 million, two weeks; 4. "Argo," $6.7 million, $85.7 million, five weeks; 5. "Taken 2," $4 million; $131 million, six weeks; 6. "Here Comes the Boom," $2.5 million, $39 million, five weeks; 7. "Cloud Atlas," $2.5 million, $22.7 million, three weeks; 8. "Pitch Perfect," $2.5 million, $59 million, seven weeks; 9. "The Man with the Iron Fists," $2.4 million, $12.7 million, two weeks; 10. "Hotel Transylvania," $2.3 million, $140.9 million, seven weeks.

Unreel, Nov. 16:

"The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn - Part 2," PG-13: Kristen Stewart, Robert Pattinson and Taylor Lautner are back in the romantic fantasy. With the birth of Renesmee, the Cullens must again thwart the Volturi.

"Anna Karenina," R: Leo Tolstoy's classic novel set in late 19th-century Russia is remade with a screenplay by Tom Stoppard and Keira Knightley in the lead role in the drama directed by Joe Wright and also starring Jude Law.

"Silver Linings Playbook," R: A former teacher (Bradley Cooper) facing divorce moves back in with his parents and meets a mystery woman (Jennifer Lawrence). David O. Russell directs the comedy-drama based on the novel by Matthew Quick. Robert De Niro co-stars.

"Price Check," No MPAA rating at Press time: Parker Posey stars in the comedy drama about a supermarket chain. Attention, coupon-clippers.

THEATER REVIEW

Pines' 'Christmas' readies you for season

By DEB BOYLAN
Special to The Press

It seems too soon to be thinking of Christmas. Was it not only a few short weeks ago when weather was still balmy with the kiss of summer?

The Pines Dinner Theatre production of "The Miracle of Christmas" changes all that, swiftly transporting theater-goers to the rustic charms of wintery Vermont.

As the holiday season launches into full gear, theater companies are bringing out their winter extravaganzas. Amidst revivals of classic fare, "The Miracle of Christmas," though Dec. 30, is an original work which explores the classic question: What is the meaning of Christmas?

Young Clara (Erisa Sloan) is a typical urban child who wants nothing more than to be left alone with her smart phone. Her mother, Stephanie (Jennie McGuinness), has decided that the pair will make a trip to see family for the Christmas holiday in rural Vermont. This is immediately met with great resistance by Clara, who pouts and stomps her disapproval.

Upon arriving in Vermont at Uncle Nick's Cabin, Clara meets for the first time her relatives who are over the top in their joy for the Christmas season. Clara is not taken with them and would like nothing more than to return to the familiar city life back home. With Vermont snowy and cold, will the family be able to thaw Clara's heart with Christmas season magic?

The musical is filled with familiar Christmas carols intermingled with original music and lyrics. Credit for the music and clever lyrics belongs to Oliver Blatt and Stacy Bechtel, music director, along with Jason Michael, who contributed to the songwriting.

The cozy Pine's Dinner Theatre is the perfect setting for this particular production. Theatergoers are seated cabaret-style in an intimate setting with clear sight lines in a small capacity room.

Set design and lighting, also the work of the show's director Blatt, brings to life each of the scenes. Blatt makes use of an opaque screen in the foreground of the stage to depict a forbidden forest and the evening stars, while the set pieces bring to life the rustic charm of a country Christmas in a wooded wonderland.

The cast of seven plays principal and supporting roles. The cast is strong in vocalization, harmonies and acting. Young Erisa Sloan as Clara projects convincing childhood frustration with her overly cheerful relatives through body language and facial expressions.

Ryan Kelly (Adam) and Jeffrey Mindock (Rudy) share chemistry and inject much of the comedy into the performance. Mindock has a scene-stealing comedic moment while venturing into the woods to find the "perfect" Christmas tree with the reluctant Clara. Kelly, a Pine's veteran is a gifted singer who once again showcases his vocal prowess.

Michael Pizolato plays kindly Uncle Nick with understated charm and takes a turn as Santa Claus, greeting the audience with handshakes and stopping at several tables as he makes his way toward the stage.

Jennie McGuinness as Stephanie, Clara's mother, is a delight. Amber Kerestes (Brittany) and Gwen Swanson-Vigorito (Sandy) have several shining moments as they guide Clara in her odyssey to discover the meaning of Christmas.

The Pines Dinner Theatre's "The Miracle of Christmas" will send audiences on their way with a twinkle in their eyes and hearts filled with the holiday spirit.

Hector Rosado and his Latin Orchestra, also known as Hector Rosado y Su Orq Hache, performs in the "Upstairs Cabaret Series," 7:30 p.m. Nov. 16, Rodale Community Room, Miller Symphony Hall, 23 N. Sixth St., Allentown.

Since his birth in Corozal, Puerto Rico, 49 years ago, Rosado has become a renowned percussionist, specializing in Latin music, especially drums, congas, timbales and bongos.

Rosado and his family moved to New York in 1964, and five years later moved to Pennsylvania.

According to Rosado, some of his neighbors formed a small group which leaned toward the Motown sound. "They wanted to add a conga player to the mix. It wasn't uncommon for bands in the 70's to use congas like bands playing for musicians like Al Jarreau.

"I ended up being the conga player with a borrowed conga, but shortly thereafter my mom went back to New York and bought me one.

"I was in sixth grade and the band was called The Back Street Boys and Black Diamonds. We used to rehearse in the old firehouse on 321 East Fourth Street, Bethlehem, which is now Touchtone Theater."

One of the first gigs the band had was Ralph Lopez's Saturday morning WKAP radio show.

"When I was 13, I had my first professional gig at Ray's place on Third Street in Bethlehem," says Rosado. "I think I made something like $12 that day."

Rosado remembers one gig in Reading when he was 14 because the band leader had to come to his house and ask permission from his parents for him to travel.

When he was 16, and with a little money, he packed a bag and travelled to his cousin's home in West New York, N.J., to further his career. He got a job in a factory. About eight months later, his cousin introduced him to a man who had a band that soon was playing all the hot clubs in New York City, including the Palladium, The Village Gate and Roseland.

After Rosado moved back to Pennsylvania, he says, "In 1989, a friend who played bongos introduced me to David Byrne, the leader of the Talking Heads, who gave me an audition. From there, my career took off.

"In 1999, I worked with Byrne, with the Johnny Carson Show band and also appeared with him [Byrne] on Jay Leno's show.

"I began to do tours all over Europe and Japan with Byrne, and, in addition, toured Venezuela with Edgar Joel, Santo Domingo Jose Alberto, accompanied the late Tito Puente, and performed with the late Celia Cruz in Columbia."

Rosado and his big band of 11 or 12 pieces plays every two months for "Salsa Night" in Musikfest Café, ArtsQuest Center, Steel Stacks, and every three months at the Sands Casino Resort Bethlehem. He teaches conga-playing at the Fowler Family Center, 504 E. Fourth St., Bethlehem.

He expects to release his first CD in about three months.

'Cinderella's Christmas' soon on Symphony Hall stage

By JENNIFER McKEEVER
Special to The Press

Who doesn't like the fairytale Cinderella? What if Cinderella goes to a Christmas Ball instead? Prince Charming must announce his new bride Christmas Eve.

The Kaleidoscope Children's Theatre presents "Cinderella's Christmas," 1 p.m. Nov. 24, Miller Symphony Hall, 23 N. Sixth St., Allentown.

The actors sing and dance, inviting children from the audience to join the cast on stage at the Christmas Ball.

Says Jamie Dellorco, who plays the Evil Stepsister, of her role in the two-act musical, "It's tons of fun," wearing a large nose and a lot of makeup, and attempting to force her foot into a sparkly slipper. David G. Payton wrote, including score and lyrics, and directs the original production. Kaleidoscope, based in Cranston, R. I., has performed for the past 35 years. "Cinderella's Christmas" was first presented in 1983 and will have its Lehigh Valley premiere at Symphony Hall.

The company performs various productions, predominantly in the New England area, touring schools to raise awareness about peer pressure and drug abuse. They go to the heart of the problem and explain it with drama, comedy, song and dance. During the summer, Kaleidoscope tours eight fairytale musicals.

The cast of eight adults and two children includes Jillian Rivers-Keegan (Princess) and Ben Church (Prince Charming). "It's a close-knit cast," Dellorco says.

"Cinderella's Christmas" is adorned with beautiful backdrops and lighting, which sets the stage for magical entertainment for all ages. According to Dellorco, "My father goes to the show even if I'm not performing."

"Cinderella," written by Charles Perrault and first published in 1889, has been translated into many versions all over the world. "Cinderella's Christmas" stays true to the original story, but is set at the most magical time of year, Christmas.

The show is part of Symphony Hall's "Family Series."

Concordia Lutheran Church celebrates 25th anniversary

Concordia Lutheran Church, Macungie, celebrated their 25th anniversary recently with a special service of thanksgiving to God. Guest Rev. Kevin D. Robson, pastor, Prince of Peace Evangelical Lutheran Church, Baxter, Minn., delivered the sermon at Octave Hall in the Allen Organ building with the theme, "Jesus Christ, the same, yesterday, today, forever." Earlier in day, the president of the Synod of Evangelical Lutheran Churches Rev. Dr. Carl H. Krueger Jr., was the guest preacher for the morning service at the church. After the special service at Allen Organ, there was a banquet back at the church. RIGHT: Rev. Waldemar R. Vinovskis shares the readings with the congregation during the morning service.

PUBLIC NOTICE
Notice is hereby given that the Zoning Hearing Board of South Whitehall Township will conduct public hearings on Wednesday November 28, 2012 at 7:30 p.m., in the South Whitehall Township Municipal Building located at 4444 Walbert Avenue, Allentown, Lehigh County, Pennsylvania, for the following zoning appeals: ZHB-2012-33: The appeal of Bruce Ebert, c/o Pipeline Petroleum, Inc. seeking a favorable interpretation regarding application of parking lot area setbacks for the property located at 2562 PA Route 309. The appellant is seeking the review regarding Section 12.38(b)(3) that requires the rear yard setback of parking areas for commercial uses to be double that specified in Section 12.38(b)(1) when the said parking area abuts the boundary line of a residential class district. The subject property is split zoned "NC", Neighborhood Commercial and "R-3", Low Density Residential. ZHB-2012-34: The appeal of The First Church of the Nazarene of Allentown, Pennsylvania, seeking a favorable interpretation regarding the term "legal capacity" in Section 12.38(e)(1)(D)(i) and how it is applied to the determination on the required minimum number of parking spaces for a proposed Place of Worship with athletic/recreation fields, for the property located at 3110 Ore-field Road at the southwest corner of Cedar Crest Blvd., including Lehigh County Tax Parcel IDs #547895220027, #54788477887, and #547885815842. In the alternative, the appellant is seeking variances to Sections 12.38(e)(1)(D)(i) and 12.38(e)(4) that parking requirements will result in unneeded parking, and that 300 spaces, with a reserve area for 75 more spaces is sufficient. The subject property is zoned "R-H", Rural Holding. Any above-referenced property is located in South Whitehall Township, Lehigh County, PA. Copies of any plans, applications, and/or supporting documents that were submitted are available for public inspection at the Township Building during normal business hours (it is recommended that appointments be made in advance). All appellants or their representative with legal standing must attend. All objectors and interested parties are invited to attend and will have the opportunity to be heard. Keith M. Zehner, Zoning Officer Nov. 7, 14
