Springlike weather of 62 degrees wasn't quite a record-breaker on the first day of February, but it brought people outdoors to enjoy the unseasonably mild temperatures. The 1989 record of 65 degrees stands.

Moravian Village resident Bill Morris took advantage of the mild weather to do some early spring yard work. Morris, who has lived in the Bethlehem retirement community for eight years with his wife Madeline, said that cabin fever drove him outside to prune his Pyracantha shrubs, which bear orange berries in the fall and white flowers in the spring.

Bethlehem painter Ed Brazee found a comfortable spot in Monocacy Park to set up an easel and paint a scene "Bent Sycamore Tree" along the Monocacy Creek. The retired school teacher said, "I like the outdoors." He especially enjoys painting with oils which he has been doing for 35 years as a hobby.

ney John Morganelli has said that the investigation grew from his office's scrutiny in late spring of the company and its dealings with the township, which is suing the company, Municipal Energy Managers Inc. and its principals, P. J. McLaine and Robert Kearns, according to published reports. The grand jury, whose proceedings are secret, began its investigation in September.

The company has drawn fire from several local towns for failing to follow through on its promises to pare thousands of dollars from their street lighting bills by buying the equipment from PPL instead of leasing it. MEM would upgrade and maintain the lights for a flat annual

PPL spokesman Michael Wood said early Monday that his com-

Efforts to reach Morganelli were unsuccessful early Monday, as were efforts to reach McLaine, Kearns and their attorney, John O'Boyle of Scranton.

Idea leads to NorCo savings

Back in 2010, in response to a complaint that the county was quickly running out of money, Northampton County Recorder of Deeds Ann Achatz, above, came up with a revenue-generating idea. She proposed charging a $10 fee for parcel identification checks in her office. Her boss, Vic Mazziotti, liked the idea, and proposed it to NorCo Council. They liked it, too, and adopted an ordinance authorizing the fee, starting in 2011. It was hoped this could raise $300,000, while simultaneously ensuring the accuracy of recorded documents. Achatz's idea did not to generate the hoped for $300,000 last year. The numbers have been tallied. County Executive John Stoffa told council at its Jan. 19 meeting that Achatz' idea actually brought $401,770 into county coffers. That's about $100,000 more than predicted, and in a poor economic climate, it's also the equivalent of eight county jobs.

The Becahi wrestling team defeated Pen Argyl 37-30 to capture their second straight district team title. The squad now travels to Hershey this week to attempt to earn their second-straight state championship.

Champs again! Hawks earn second-straight duals title

By PETER CAR pcar@tnonline.com

When it comes to expectations, Bethlehem Catholic's wrestling team may have the highest in the state. As far as a bulls-eye on their backs, the Hawks are unmatched with anyone in the PIAA.

As Becahi wrapped up their second straight District 11 2A title on Saturday with a 37-30 victory over Pen Argyl, the defending state champs set their conquests on capturing another state championship this week in Hershey when they open the 2A tournament on Thursday against District 3 runner-up Bermudian Springs.

The likelihood of a Becahi-Pen Argyl rematch on Saturday at 1 p.m. for the state championship isn't far fetched either.

The Knights do have a difficult opening round battle against District 7 champion Burrell, but local fans would salivate at the notion of seeing both programs battle each other for the state crown.

One wrestler whose fall in the Pen Argyl bout ended up giving the Hawks crucial bonus points came from junior 120-pounder Zeke Moisey. A week after losing a bout at Easton, Moisey looked rejuvenated and invigorated for the Hawks, as he decked Tyler Knapick just before the third period expired in 5:58 to give Becahi a major boost and put a wide grin on Karam's face.

More importantly, it gave Moisey a much needed confidence boost since he's struggled with a shoulder injury this season that has kept the highly talented grappler out of the lineup for over a month.

GIRLS BASKETBALL LHS survives in overtime

By KATIE MCDONALD kmcdonald@tnonline.com

The third time's the charm, but for Liberty, it was the fourth time, as in quadruple overtime. as the Hurricanes topped Pleasant Valley, 67-63 last week.

Ironically, Liberty had possession at the end of the fourth quarter and at the end of each overtime, but was unable to break the tie until their fifth attempt.

"I think we made some poor decisions. We tried to do too much too early,' said Liberty's CJ Hilliard. "When we slowed down, we pulled out the win."

No more than four points separated the two teams at any given time throughout the game. On the plus side, the Hurricanes began to pick up momentum at the end of the second quarter, as their running game began to pay off. On the minus side, center, Maggie Zerbe was in early foul trouble, and Kali Shumock sat out for most of the fourth quarter after being kneed in the thigh. Amanda Pinter was subbed in, alternately, for both players.

In the first overtime, Pleasant Valley led 49-46, but Jody Chickey's three pointer not only tied the game, but sparked the Hurricanes. Liberty called a timeout with 16 seconds left, but could not pull out the win.

The Hurricanes called another timeout at the end of the second and third overtimes, but still could not pull out the win. Finally, Liberty scored four points in the final overtime on two foul shots by Chickey and two foul shots by Hilliard to get the victory.

'We didn't know what to expect [from Pleasant Valley], but we ended their season last year for districts, so we knew it was going to be a tough game," Hilliard said.

Liberty had experienced several losses over the prior week and a half, so the victory came at the perfect time.

Hilliard said, "We've been struggling, and we're trying to peak at the right time for districts. We should be good for the rest of the season."

Also last week, Becahi defeated Dieruff, 66-38 and Freedom fell to Emmaus,

By KATIE MCDONALD kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Liberty's girls' swim team was neck-and-neck with Whitehall last week before pulling off a 98-78 victory over the Zephyrs.

Whitehall won the first and last events, the 200 medley relay and the 400 free relay, but Maggie Olock, Shelby Turner, Madison Sauers, and Emma Williams won the 200 free relay in 1:45.95 for the Hurricanes.

Also winning individual events for Liberty were Rachel Steiner in diving with 161.30 points, Sauers in the 500 free in 5:35.40, and Courtney Desh in the 100 breaststroke in 1:11.40.

Liberty's boys' swim team defeated Whitehall comfortably, 125-40.

The Hurricanes swept all relays.

Sean Vannatta, Eric Burcin, Matt Buell, and Jacob Jones took first place in the 200 medley relay in 1:48.17; Jones, Burcin, Evan Smith, and Zach Moll won the 200 free relay in 1:38.54; and Smith, Cameron Angstadt, Jones, and James Sheplock placed first in the 400 free relay in 3:43.73.

Also winning individual events for Liberty were Buell in the 200 free in 2:03.21, Burcin in the 50 free in 22.43 and the 100 breaststroke in 1:01.12, Sheplock in the 100 fly in 1:03.81, Angstadt in the 100 free in 54.19, and Vannatta in the 100 backstroke in 1:00.97.

Alex Caccamo won the diving event for the Hurricanes with 125.50 points.

Also last week, the Freedom Patriots swept all boys and girls events against Northampton for 124-42 and 118-68 victories, respectively.

Individual event win-ners were Seth Watlington and Helen Hsu in the 200 free, Eric Lawrence and Brooke Munion in the 200 IM, Watlington and Shannon Howell in the 50 free. Peter Conzola and Carly DelFranco in the 100 fly, Scott DelFranco and Munion in the 100 free, Sam Magnan and Carly DelFranco in the 500 free, Scott DelFranco and Helen Hsu in the 100 backstroke, and Danny Csakai and Kelly Kopko in the 100 breaststroke.

SHOT Show displays latest gear and guns

By NICK HROMIAK Special to the Press

Held at the Sands Expo Convention Center in Vegas, the Shooting, Hunting, Outdoor Trade Show (SHOT) is the largest dealer only trade show of its kind in the world. Some 1,600 exhibitors debuted or displayed their latest offerings be it guns, ammo, clothing, tree stands or a myriad of other gear including that for law enforcement domestically and internationally.

So what's hot for 2012? Here's a very small sampling of some interestingly new guns and gear for the upcoming hunting season and home security.

LONG GUNS: While every long-gun maker had a new model or enhancements to existing models, Mossberg (Mossberg.com) probably had the most interesting. Their Flex TLS 12-gauge pump shotgun is modular in that by releasing three tool-less locking connectors, the stocks, forends and recoil pads can be changed in seconds for a variety of shooting applications. And that includes being configurable for everything from goose hunting to tactical shotgun applications.

HANDGUNS: While Glock debuted more Gen4 models and Springfield Armory showcased their small XD-M .45 model autoloader, Sig Sauer introduced their P224, a 6.7-inch long subcompact all metal autoloader in 9mm (12 round

AMMO: There were loads of new offerings here but the most promising, especially for those deer hunting in our Special Regulation Areas, was Federal's (federalpremium.com) Trophy Copper 12-gauge sabot slugs that are capable of being effective out to 150 yards. Federal was able to accomplish this by reprogramming its trajectory and bullet design while the sabot uses a metal pusher plate on the back instead of plastic, the latter of which has a tendency to fail at high velocity.

PCP Ammo (pcpaamo.com) demonstrated their plastic cased ammo that is still in prototype testing with several hunting and tactical cartridges coming. The plastic cased ammo is supposedly lighter, more stabile with greater

HANDGUN SAFE: Wish I had known about Titan Gun Safe's before I bought two GunVault handgun safes as Christmas gifts for my son and sonin-law. Titan uses sensible and easy to install steel mounting plates whereby the safe itself merely locks onto them via a quick release lock arm in the safe. The GunVaults I bought took two hours to install (after much sweating and swearing) since the screws have to be screwedin from inside the small safe. Imagine Hamburg trying to hold wood screws and a sock-capacity), or, 11 round .357SIG and et or box wrench within a four-inch 40S&W calibers (Sigsauer.com). high blind opening. Then too, the Gunhigh blind opening. Then too, the Gun-Vaults battery pack that is used for an interior light and powering the automatic opening door, was just as bad to access and reinstall. The Titan doesn't need batteries to activate the door after entering a five-digit touch code on the safe. There are over 2200 possible combinations and its design makes it the fastest gun-deploying safe. Included is a removable holster that can hold revolvers or pistols up to 10 inches in length. And when the Titan's door springs open, the handgun automatically pops up a few inches for easy gripping. The Titan can be mounted in a home, on a bed frame, vehicle or hotel room as it TextPac is a hand warmer muff that comes with a steel cable and lock to will allow sportsmen to text on their secure to a bed frame.

GUN CLEANING: Otis' Zombie gun performance and accuracy than brass cleaning system (otisgun.com) is a must-have for sportsmen, particularly those who do a bit of traveling to their hunting site. This circular, pocket-sized pack holds a variety of bore brushes, jags, optics cloth and gun cleaning tools that can also be used for handguns. If hunting in Potter County, Canada, out West or Africa, you don't want to take a box of cleaning gear. The Otis system solves that problem and is usable as a primary gun cleaning kit. It will be available at Cabela's in

Broken Hearts

Max I. Reich saw a repair shop in the window of which was a sign readng: "We mend everything except broken hearts." When Mr. Reich entered, a young Jewess came forward to serve him and he said: "I saw your sign, and want to ask what you do with people who have broken hearts." "Oh!" she said: "We send them to the hospital.

"You are a Jewess, are you not?" responded Mr. Reich, "Did you ever read Isaiah 57:15? 'For thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy; I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones.' And," continued Mr. Reich, "there was also He who read Isaiah 61:1, in his hometown syn agogue at Nazareth. The verse contains the words 'He hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted.' And," said Mr. Reich, "the Messiah added 'This day is this scripture fulfilled."

Yes, Jesus Christ is the healer of broken hearts! Perhaps you have experienced the pain and hurt of a broken heart and it seems the future holds nothing for you. Maybe you have even considered suicide during some dark and hopeless moment. I have good news for you-the Lord is actually closer to you because of your broken heart! The Bible says "The LORD is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart; and saveth such as be of a contrite spirit" (Psalm 34:18). It also says, "He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their wounds" (Psalm 147:3). We are assured that "a broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise" (Psalm 51:17). I urge you to let Jesus heal your broken heart! In Matthew 11:28 He promises, "Come unto me, all ye that...are heavy laden, and I will give you rest!" Just go to Him in sincere prayer, humbly ask Him to forgive your sins, and He will mend your broken heart!

Preliminary budget passed

Board at odds over possible teacher cuts

The Bethlehem Area School Board approved the 2012-13 preliminary budget Jan. 23. The $210,837,542 preliminary budget approval allowed the administration to meet filing deadlines the following day.

The preliminary budget would require releasing 12 teachers, but board member Basilio Bonilla Jr. warned, at a previous budget workshop, that he would not vote to cut any teachers; board member Aurea Ortiz joined Bonilla in staking out the same "no fire" position.
"The district has cut all it can cut," said Bonilla. "No personnel cuts!" Bonilla said he would vote "no" on the preliminary budget.

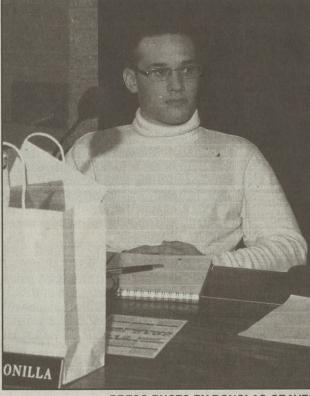

"No more cutting of teachers," said Ortiz.

In other business, the board approved $20,000 for a "structural investigation" into the safety of BASD's stadium's west bleachers next to Grenadier Boulevard, where administrators found a sinkhole last October. Officials estimate that the cost of repairs to the stadium will be between $400,000 and $500,000.

Meanwhile, the Freedom HS gymnasium is now officially the "Joseph J. McIntyre Gymnasium" after the school board unanimously approved the renaming of the gym.

McIntyre was the founding principal of Freedom HS in September 1967. He retired in 1982.

The administration plans develop appropriate signage and dedicated the gym in McIntyre's honor in the near future.

The honored principal's son, Andrew McIntyre and grandson, Joseph A. McIntyre attended the meeting.

"Thank you for acknowledging my father," said the honored principal's son, Andrew McIntyre, speaking to the school board and the BASD administration.

"I'm concerned about the interjection of outside influences, outside priorities, outside perspectives and agendas about the role of government being integrated into local government and trying to find cures where disease doesn't exist.

"The nature of county government, the nature of municipal government is really local government," Jones said.

After comments, the board voted 5-3 to appoint Schware as the interim commissioner, Dougherty, Jones and Commissioner Dan McCarthy casting the "no" votes.

Former Phillies' ace hurler Dickie Noles Atiyeh's closer

By BERNIE O'HARE Special to the Bethlehem Press

After six hearings and 21 hours of testimony that first began last October, Bethlehem's zoners have finally wrapped up testimony on developer Abe Atiyeh's request for a 70-bed voluntary inpatient substance abuse center, more commonly known as a drug and alcohol rehab center. What has made this project controversial is its location. It's proposed at the vacant Calvary Baptist Church, located at 111 Dewberry Ave., and more importantly, right next to Bethlehem Catholic HS.

If approved, it would be Institute, a for-profit venture with a 80-bed inpatient facility in Chester

Empowering HBP in its mission

Whilden, Moravians honored for preservation efforts

By PAT KESLING Special to the Bethlehem Press

At the 19th annual Holiday Dinner & Art Auction of the Historic Bethlehem Partnership, the premiere holiday event in the city, more than 300 formally dressed guests mingled, greeted old friends and dug deep in their pockets to raise an amazing and record $160,000 and to honor James Whilden and the Bethlehem Area Moravians for their many years of volunteer service.

"Your support empowers Historic Bethlehem Partnership to continue its mission of educating the public about Bethlehem's rich heritage," said Dolly Dyer, event chair of HBP's largest fundraiser. Many of the guests said they look forward every year to this spectacular event.

The setting in the Fowler Blast Furnace Room at Arts Quest's SteelStacks was perfect on a December night with the illuminated Stacks visible through the large windows. Inside, tables and walls were tastefully adorned with everything from artwork from talented local artists to a chance to bid on such things as landscaping from Joanne Kostecky's "Garden Design." All items were donated.

Among the Bethlehem artists providing artwork were Bernie Tyler, Noel Adams, Angie Snyder-Lande, Bebe Traylor, Lee Branigan, Frederick Munson and Edwin Havas.

Featured artist was Ruth Pook of Bethlehem, offering her oil painting "Bright Winter Day," which depicts Historic Bethlehem's Colonial Industrial Quarter. It is featured on the event's invitation and is the 2011 holiday greeting and note card. She has been a contributing artist since the inception of the dinner and auction in 1993.

Featured artist Ruth Pook, right, with her daughter. Beth Pook, Ruth's painting "Bright Winter Day," was offered as part of the auction.

Now residing at Kirkland Village, she has been painting since she was three years old and continues to paint commission pieces.

A highlight of the evening was the honoring of James "Jim" Whilden, a local architect, for 31 years of advocating for historic preservation in Bethlehem. Since his teen years, he has been fascinated with the local history. He began his volunteer service in 1981 when he joined the board of directors of the Kemerer Museum. He has served as president of the Kemerer board and of the Historic Bethlehem Partnership board. Whilden helped pioneer the Annual Members' Event and served as co-chair for the past five years. He worked for Spillman Farmer Architects as director and treasurer for 31 years. He is married to AnneMarie Whilden, who is also a HBP volunteer.

An especially happy note for Jim and AnneMarie was the presentation of Pook's "Bright Winter Day" painting by Frank Boyer, Jim's longtime friend, and his wife, Beth Williams Boyer, who bought it as a gift for the Whildens.

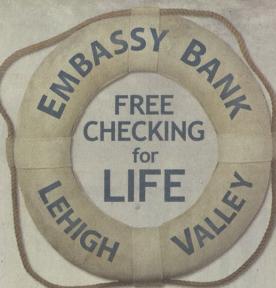

Also honored as the 2011 business honoree was the Bethlehem Area Moravians "for outstanding work in maintaining a significant number of historic buildings in Bethlehem.

The premier sponsor was KNBT and the dessert sponsor was Rodale Catering. Charlene Donchez Mowers, HBP president, said to the attendees, "Our mission is to bring history to life by educating the public about Bethlehem's rich heritage by preserving historic sites, and by collecting, preserving and exhibiting historical and artistic objects that can be used to tell stories of Bethlehem's people.

Super Bowl III featured "Broadway" Joe Namath guaranteeing the New York Jets' upset victory over the Baltimore Colts in 1969. Much like the event's namesake, this was a sellout spectacle, with more than 400 tickets sold.

Participants were given a checklist with all the competitors and their soups listed. They sampled and checked three "X's" next to their three favorite soups on sheets that were collected in a ballot box. The popular vote determined the top three spots and a panel of gories of winners.

Kelly Huth, an assistant features editor with the Express-Times, was one of the judges assigned to rate the best ethnic, cream based and vegetarian soups. Copperhead Grille's She crab soup had her vote in the cream category.

"It was nice and thick," described Huth. "You got crab in every bite, it was spiced perfectly."

While some participants like Huth quietly and methodically tested their samples, other groups jovialmerits of each flavorful samples of chicken chili. spoonful.

"This isn't our first rodeo," declared Jill Stauffer of Bethlehem. She and her husband John have been among the faithful since Souper Bowl I and were sampling soups with friends Rich and Debbie Miller of Easton. The majority of the group thought Jumbar's sopa gallega deserved top honors.

"There's a lot of flavor, a lot of vegetables, it was very well done," said John Stauffer. The one dissenting voice was Rich Miller, who favored the crab corn chowder from Cathy's Creative Catering & Cafe.

It didn't go unnoticed among studied participants like Hannah Burke of Bethlehem, that certain Souper Bowl trends are beginning to emerge. According to Burke,

The culinary arts students were forced to stay on stage as the Hampton Winds team took both second place overall for their turtle soup (a play on words for their chocolate, carmel and pecan desert concoction) and third place for their already awardwinning vegetable soup.

If Hannah Burke's theory on the pack mentality of past Souper Bowls is correct, we may see a lot more dessert soups in Souper Bowl IV, as first place overall went to The Gander Room of Bethlehem's fragoladi amore, a cream-based cold soup made from fresh strawberries and other fruit preserves, honey, amaretto, topped with white chocolate and ground Florentine cookies.

n Oct. 31, 1902, more than 500 people attended a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City to honor the 80th birthday of the great Bethlehem engineer John F.

Karen M. Samuels Columnist

Fritz. At the dinner, he was presented with many gifts, the most interesting being the establishment of the John Fritz Medal. The medal is awarded each year for scientific or industrial achievement in any field of pure or applied science. Recipients of the John Fritz Medal have been such innovators as Thomas Edison, Alexander Graham Bell, George Westinghouse and Orville Wright.

John Fritz was born Aug. 21, 1822, in Londonderry Township, Chester County, Pa. He was the oldest of the seven children born to George and Mary Meharg Fritz. Fritz's father was a farmer, millwright and machinist. Fritz had little formal education. He attended an old log schoolhouse, run by Quakers, six months a year. From an early age, watching his father fix the machinery in the local mills fascinated Fritz. He worked on his parent's farm and attended school until he was 16 when he left to work as an apprentice in a blacksmith and machinist shop.

In 1844, Fritz decided that he wanted to learn everything about the production of iron. He approached iron mill owners Moore and Hooven for a job. They were about to erect the Norristown Iron Mill. They hired him as a machinist, but they soon learned that Fritz had amazing gifts. He could fix any machine and worked long hours to study every step in making iron. Moore and Hooven soon made Fritz the superintendent of Fritz had a knack for maintaining good relations with the employees as well as the owners of the mills he supervised. He was so well-respected that he was able to secure the financial backing for a new idea in the construction of a mill. His new mill for the Cambria Iron Company in Johnstown, Pa., was designed for three 20-inch-diameter rolls. This process proved to be a success in producing high quality iron rails at reasonable costs. Fritz's design was soon copied throughout the United States and internationally.

When John Fritz arrived in Bethlehem with his wife Ellen and daughter Gertrude, he was 38 years old. Robert H. Sayre, the general superintendent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, actively campaigned to hire Fritz by visiting and writing to him. The Lehigh Valley Railroad purchased its good quality expensive rails from British companies or poor quality ones from the Lackawanna Iron Co. Sayre wanted Fritz and his new mill design for the local production of high quality iron rails. Fritz arrived July 5, 1860, to serve as the general supervisor and chief engineer for the newly organized Bethlehem Iron Co. Under his supervision, the company would become a successful producer of iron rails and eventually the more lucrative steel rails.

During his 30 years of work with Bethlehem Iron, Fritz introduced openhearth furnaces; improvements in automatic handling in the rolling mills; the adoption of the Whitworth forging press; the manufacture of armor plate, the application of the Bessemer process in steel making; and the erection of a 125-ton steam-hammer. In 1893, Bethlehem Iron Co. made a copy of the steam hammer for an exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago.

After his retirement from the Bethlehem Iron Co., Fritz continued to receive honorary academic degrees, awards and board positions. He was named one of the original board of trustees of Lehigh University in 1866. In 1909, Fritz donated the costs of an engineering laboratory for Lehigh University. He designed the building, selected the testing equipment and supervised the construction of the building, which was completed in 1910. The laboratory was the largest and bestequipped university structural laboratory in the United States at the time. Studies done at the lab led to the development of skyscrapers and other major structures. The total cost of the laboratory exceeded $50,000, to which Fritz subsequently added another $150,000 to serve as an endowment for continuing maintenance of the facility. Fritz married Ellen W. Maxwell in 1851. Ellen was born in White Marsh, Pa., June 8, 1833. Their only child, Gertrude, was born in 1853 and died in 1860. The Fritzes lived in the Eagle Hotel for several years. In 1902 they built a home, designed by A.W. Leh and constructed by John Anderson, on the northwest corner of Market and Center streets. Ellen Fritz died at home Feb. 6, 1908. Fritz followed her on Feb. 13, 1913. The Fritz family is buried at the Nisky

Every picture tells a story

Allentown Art Museum exhibition reveals rock & roll image-makers

By PAUL WILLISTEIN Focus Editor

Gail Buckland has not only unmasked the men and women behind some of rock music's famous photographs, she has illuminated the fascinating stories behind those iconic images.

Turn to Page 54 in Buckland's voluminous "Who Shot Rock & Roll: A Photographic History 1955 - Present" (Alfred A. Knopf, $40, 321 pp.) for the behind-the-scenes story about the cover photo on one of rock music's greatest albums: Bob Dylan's "Blonde On Blonde."

The 1966 double album's 72 minutes and 57 seconds of rock poetry includes the rollicking No. 2 Billboard hit single, "Rainy Day Women No. 12 & 35," and "Sad-Eyed Lady of the Lowlands," which takes up the entire fourth side.

What record-buyers saw on the cover before they heard the music inside was Jerry Schatzberg's out-of focus photo of Dylan in a brown double-breasted coat, with two-tone scarf wrapped around his neck, and his pensive face framed by a Brillo head of

Only one thing: The photo is out of focus.

As Buckland relates, Schatzberg took Dylan to New York City's meatpacking district, which had not yet gentrified into chic galleries and such.

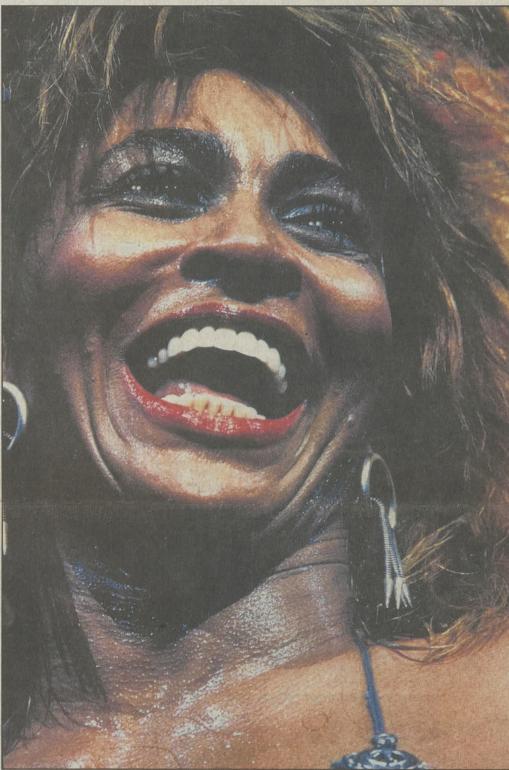

"It was very cold but we did one roll of 35mm outside, two maybe three, frames were fuzzy (the rest were sharp) because we were so cold and I kept on moving around a bit. Dylan to his credit chose one of the fuzzy ones,' Schatzberg told Buckland for "Who Shot Rock & Roll."

In a phone interview last week, photo historian Buckland observed of Dylan in the "Blonde On Blonde" album cover photo: "It looks like his brain is vibrating. It can't be still. It was very hard to focus in those days.

Jerry [Schatzberg] said he was kind of upset because he thought people would say he couldn't focus and here he was a professional photographer."

This story and others bring the 175 photos by 100 photographers into sharp focus in "Who Shot Rock & Roll," a must-have coffee table book for the rock music aficionado.

Buckland is guest curator of the exhibition, "Who Shot Rock & Roll: A Photographic History, 1955 to the Present." The traveling exhibition opens with a 7-11 p.m. Feb. 11 party at the Allentown Art Museum of the Lehigh Valley. The exhibi-

"Who Shot Rock & Roll" is the jump-off for "Rock Through the Valley," including a fundraising party, 7-11 p.m. Feb. 18, for Lehigh Valley Community Public Radio Station WDIY.

Related Art Museum events include several lectures: 2 p.m. Feb. 26, photographer Godlis, who documented punk music at New York's CBGB's; 6 p.m. March 1, Terry Stewart, President-CEO, Rock & Roll Hall of Fame; 6 p.m. March 22, Dick Boak, Director of Artist Relations, Martin Guitar; and 6 p.m. March 27, David Fricke, Senior Editor,

Buckland couldn't be happier that her book and the exhibition are bringing what she regards as long overdue attention to the men and women behind the cameras in the rock music world.

"This is really the first time that the photographer was put at the forefront," Buckland says of her book and exhibition. "Oftentimes, you don't even know the photogra-

"I had to go through thousands and thousands of photographs to make the selections.

"The first thing I was looking for was great photographs that had a truth, reality and weren't fabricated. That they weren't about the surface quality. They were about substance — especially, in a world where the celebrities are packaged. I wanted to keep it real.

"A photograph has to be more than a document. It has to move you. It has to somehow linger in the mind's eye. You have to want to look at it for more than a moment.

The Art Museum exhibition is organized by category: Behind the Scenes, Live Performances, Crowds & Fans, Portraits, Young Artists, and Conceptual Images & Album Covers.

"Looking at these album covers, they were like totems," Buckland says. "You can hold it. You can put it on the wall. It has a real presence."

She posits that the rock revolution was not only one of sound, but of image, as well. "These images affected how people cut their hair, their body language. That was all part of a re-invention."

My husband and I enjoy most of the same activities.

We both relish kayak- REGARDS ing, biking, dancing, By Pattie Mihalik nature walks and photography. That's fortunate because neither of us has to sit home alone while the other is out having fun. Togetherness can be a blessed thing and not a day goes by that I don't thank God for this gift.

But one thing my husband and I find hard to do together is to go to the movies. Our tastes run in totally opposite directions. He likes the shoot-em-up, mow-them-down, high speed, high action movies and I like the freely good movies.

I like clever dialogue that elicits feeling. When we watch a movie like that, he complains "nothing is happening.

The solution is simple. I go to the movies with my favorite friends. He stays home and watches sports.

My friends and I have great fun planning a day around a movie matinee or an occasional Girls Night Out.

But even then, I have a hard time convincing friends to see the shows I'm most interested in. When I go to the movies with a group of women, we vote "thumbs up" or "thumbs down" during the coming attractions. That's the way we pick our next movie outing.

During a recent vote, the only movie I voted to see was "Joyful Noise." Not a single other person wanted to go.

So I did a movie swap with my close friend, Jeanne. The plan was to each pick a show. She wanted to see "We Bought a Zoo" which didn't sound very appealing. I was wrong.

It turned out to be an enchanting "feel good' movie about a true-to-life family situation. At 7. Maggie Elizabeth Jones who played the part of movie is easily the most captivating actress I have seen since Shirley Temple grew up.

Now that I saw that movie with Jeanne, she agreed to see "Joyful Noise" with me— if it's still playing by the time we get there.

After I came home raving about the Zoo movie. my husband asked why I like "kiddie shows.

I guess it's because I'm just a grown kid – a kid who loves an uplifting story, whether it's in a book, a magazine or movie.

I also have a low tolerance for blood and gore on the big screen or for stories that depress me. Never pay to be depressed is one of my mottos.

I'm selective about time at any age.

WARMEST

what I read, what I see and the people with whom I spend my time. Life is so short. We can't do it all. So it makes sense to me to select people and activities that are uplifting.

One of my favorite friends is Fran, who manages to always stay upbeat despite some heavy setbacks. She and I both have busy schedules so it's a treat when we can plan an outing together.

The last time we "did lunch" we followed it with a movie matinee. Our movie theater has special senior citizen prices so a matinee is inexpensive

Fran and I never have a hard time settling on a movie since she, like me, wants to see uplifting, feel good movies. For our last outing, we chose "A Dolphin's Tale," a movie definitely worth seeing.

It's a true story about a dolphin that lost its tail learning to get by with a prosthesis. Winter, that dolphin, can now be seen at the Clearwater Marine Museum in Florida.

I called my daughters and told them to take their daughters to see it. But you don't have to be a kid to enjoy a movie like that. You just have to appreciate heart-warming entertain-

I'm sure you noticed how much "noise" there is in life. There are so many things clamoring for our attention and there are so many ways we can spend our time.

When we get that precious commodity called "free time," why not spend it in ways that inspire, or, at least make us feel good?

Last week I got a wonderful email from a woman in Bethlehem who said she, too, is very selective about what she and her family watches on TV. They really don't spend much time in front of the TV, she said, but they do have fun together in their family nights.

On weekends, Alita, her husband and children have "music night" where they listen to songs they download from the Inter-

While overall, the storyline is predictable, "Albert Nobbs" is satisfying, not unlike a good episode of "Masterpiece Theatre" or, at times, 'Upstairs, Downstairs."

The story takes place in "Morrison's Hotel" in Dublin in 1898. Albert Nobbs (Close) is a butler who is actually a woman doctor living in the hotel; posing a a man. The hotel is filled with a colorful staff and patrons and entertaining events, including dinners and an annual masked Nobbs' is saving her tip money to buy a building and turn it into a tobacco shop and cafe. A subplot is about Helen (always beguiling Mia Wasikowska of "Jane Eyre" and "Alice in Wonderland"), one of the hotel's young staff, and her romance with Joe expressed by Dr. Holloran, (Aaron Johnson, who played John Lennon in 'Nowhere Boy"). The story of Nobbs and Helen intertwine as does that of the such film with which you character played by McTeer.

Rodrigo García ("Mother and Child," "Passengers") directs the melodrama in a careful and non-exploitive way from a screenplay written by Close, John Banville (2005 Man Booker Prize, "The Sea") and Gabriella Prekop, based on a short story by George Moore.

"Alfred Nobbs" is also impressive in costuming and makeup, for which it has also received an Oscar nomination.

However, the performance by Close (TV's "Damages") is far from mere makeup. Her meticulous eyes scan her environs and those in it. She is a reserve of fear behind a mask of Described by another character in the film as "such a kind, little man," Close is economical in bearing, walking and powers of observation. In her black tuxedo servant's clothes, it is as though Close is encased in another person's body and looking out.

The cast includes fine performances by Brendan Gleeson as Dr. Holloran, a Pauline Collins, as Mrs. Baker, hotel proprietor; Maria Doyle Kennedy "The Commitments") as Mary, a hotel staffer; and Antonia Campbell-Hughes as Emmy, a hotel staffer.

"Albert Nobbs" is more than a great performance. Yes, it is that, as embodied by Glenn Close, perhaps being true to her first name. More than this, the film presents a challenging story, perhaps best who confides to Albert Nobbs: "We are both disguised as ourselves.

THEATER REVIEW

Pines musical is 'Perfect' fun

By PAUL WILLISTEIN pwillistein@tnonline.com

The road to marriage is paved with good intentions. "I Love You, You're Perfect, Now Change!, through March 11, The Pines Dinner Theatre, Allentown, is a GPS on dating, marriage and happily-ever-after laughter.

The two-act musical comedy, with book and lyrics by Joe DiPietro and music by Jimmy Roberts, is a series of vignettes by four actors in multiple roles (Erin Heatly, Bran-Wood, Jennie McGuinness, Ryan Paul Kelly), accompanied by Stacy Bechtel, piano, and Rob Kuntz, violin. Oliver Blatt is director-choreographer.

The stage is framed by large pink and purple replicas of those "Be Mine" children's candy Valentine hearts. The musical can be enjoyed by valentines new and old, and would make a and delivery of the cast. especially since it includes dinner or luncheon.

"I Love You" accentuates the positive with a good measure of humor and tunefulness. None of the songs is particularly memorable, say, in the sense of a "Promises, Promises." But, of course, that musical were written by Burt Bacharach Heatly is also charming in "I Can Live With That," a bittersweet ballad where she and a particularly sensitive Kelly portray an elderly couple who meet at that song and those for a funeral. If you can keep a dry eye during this lovely song and rendition, get your tear ducts examined.

Kelly leads the company through a hilarious "The Family That Drives Together," which includes inventive choreography utilizing chairs with casters as car seats, allowing like a speed-date blueprint the cast to "motor" around the stage.

Advent Moravian hosts Super Bowl Spaghetti Supper

PRESS PHOTOS BY TIM GILMAN

Advent Moravian Church, Hanover Township, hosted a Super Bowl Spaghetti Supper Feb. 4 as a prelude to the game Feb 5. The 18th annual fundraising event was held in Fellowship Hall which was decorated with balloons and tablecloths, but this year the decor was dominated by red, white and blue since the New York Giants and the New England Patriots have the same team colors.
