Robert Margolis, Ex-Army Air Corps Officer, Enters U. of P. Law School

Robert Margolis, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Margolis, 1825 Jennings St., this city, entered the University of Pennsylvania Law School this morning.

He was discharged from the Army Air Force after active service in excess of two years as a first lieutenant and completed his bombing missions as a navigator with the Eighth Air Force, England. He was awarded the Air Medal with five oak leaf clusters and other citations. The former officer has finished two years of college work at Pennsylvania Military College and Lehigh University and his application for enrollment as a law student has been approved by the Pennsylvania State Board of Law Examiners.

Margolis has registered with Herbert J. Hartzog, as his preceptor. It is believed that Margolis will be one of the youngest students to enter law school with two years of army service.
