Peter J. Schneck is now on the Zoning Hearing Board (ZHB), after a revised list of nominees for the board was approved by council with a unanimous vote. At the last meeting, Mayor Robert Donchez had withdrawn his nominee list. Donchez, after surveying the council members, said his original pick didn't have enough votes for confirmation. Council also confirmed other mayoral appoin-Mary-Frances tees: Stone to the ZHB: Peter John Mayes, Jane Persa and Steven Fernstrom, all to the Recreation

Gastinger called such a challenge "truly a David and Goliath situation.'

In June of this year, Governor Tom Wolf signed legislation that blocks municipalities from banning or taxing plastic bags for at least one year. The measure was attached to a budget-related bill and was sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Jake Corman, a Republican, who reportedly said he wanted the provision because his district includes a plastics manufacturer and a township was considering imposing a fee on plastic bags.

Stephen Antalics spoke briefly, saying he was "deeply embarrassed" at the conduct of the city council at the last meeting when chasing 30. "I believe our current enrollment is somewhere around 16 or 17 students," Dr. Rosenberger said. She explained that each license is good for six years, not necessarily to be used consecutively. This would mean that up to 180 students can use the digital tool over a number of years. Board member Bryan Eichfeld posited that "theoreti-cally, then if this maintains, this could be a 12-year license." Rosenberger replied "yeah, it's possible, depending on enrollment."

Board President Susan Baxter did say that despite this possibility, generally courses upgrade to newer textbooks sooner than that. Rosenberger went on to explain that even though only a handful of hard copy books might be necessary from yearto-year, that bundle pricing from the publisher renders it to be significantly more cost-effective for the district to See SAUCON on Page A4

Fighting for the 9/11 first responders, volunteers

BY DEB GALBRAITH dgalbraith@tnonline.com

As we remember the horrific events from Sept. 11, 2001, we cannot ignore the many first responders and volunteers who ran toward the twin towers of the World Trade Center to help those in need.

These heroes have been in the news recently, fighting for the compensation fund to continue to care for those facing serious medical issues as a result of the survivor search and debris removal efforts.

Due to recent legislation, these first responders will get the help they need.

Thanks to Zoe Wilson-Meyer, in the office of U.S. Rep. Susan Wild, D-7th, I was able to learn more about this fund.

On Sept. 22, 2001, the Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act was passed.

"The September 11th Victim Compensation Fund was created and operated from 2001 to 2004. The fund was created to provide compensation for any individual (or a personal representative of a deceased individual) who suffered physical harm or was killed as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of Sept. 11, 2001, or the debris removal efforts that took place in the immediate aftermath of those crashes." according to its website, www.

As first responders continued to fall sick, the fund was reactivated.

The James Zadroga 9/11 Health and Compensation Act of 2010 was signed into law Jan. 2. 2011. by President Barack Obama, with a reauthorization for five years, expiring in October 2016

President Obama signed into law a bill reauthorizing the James Zadroga 9/11 Health and Compensation Act of 2010. It was extended for five years - allowing individuals to submit claims until Dec. 18, 2020.

The law also instituted changes to the policies and procedures for evaluating claims and calculations such as capping loss from a cancer, calculating other noneconomic loss, prioritizing claims for victims and removing the $10,000 minimum award.

News about this fund came to the forefront in June when former Daily Show host Jon Stewart advocated for 9/11 first responders by appearing before the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Civil Rights and Civil Liberties. He began advocating for this fund and the first responders in

In a Newsweek article from 2016, Dr. Michael Crane, World Trade Center Health Program, said first responders were breathing burning jet fuel, plastics, metal, fiberglass and asbestos while trying to search for survivors.

Crews worked at Ground Zero without respirators, as they were told the air was "safe to breathe and the water is safe to drink,' by Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Christine Todd Whitman, according to an article by Matt Stieb for The Intelligencer.

Wild co-sponsored and voted to pass the Never Forget the Heroes: Permanent Authorization of the September 11th Victim Compensation Fund Act, ensuring that the fund to compensate victims of the Sept. 11, 2001, terror attacks never runs out of money.

"When we promise to never forget the events of 9/11, we promise to never forget the needs of the first responders and survivors living in the aftermath. It is our moral duty to provide enduring and unfailing support for all those who showed enormous courage in one of our nation's darkest hours - both those who were there at the World Trade Center on 9/11 as well as those who risked their lives in the months of cleanup that followed," Wild said.

The vote was 402-12 in favor of funding the VCF Act in the House of Representatives. Nineteen members did not vote.

The vote was 97-2 in favor of funding the VCF Act in the Senate. One member did note vote. Both votes were cited on www.Gov. Trak.us.

On July 29, President Donald Trump signed into law the Never Forget the Heroes: James Zadroga, Ray Pfeifer and Luis Alvarez Permanent Authorization of the September 11th VCF.

"The VCF Permanent Authorization Act extends the VCF's claim filing deadline from Dec. 18, 2020, to Oct. 1, 2090, and appropriates such funds as may be necessary to pay all approved claims," according to the fund's website.

The funding comes from the federal government. The costs of VCF benefits and administration were financed by the $2.775 billion in appropriations provided by the Zadroga Act (2011 law). Costs for benefits and administration are financed by the one-time appropriation of $4.6 billion provided in the Zadroga Reauthorization Act of 2015 (2015 law). The total funding available for the VCF since its reopening is $7.375 billion.

As of Aug. 31, the VCF has found 24,907 claimants eligible for compensation. Another 26,909 claims have not yet been decided, are awaiting review, are duplicates or cannot be processed.

I never knew about an issue with this fund until Jon Stewart was featured on the news advocating for those first responders who could not speak for them-

Would the compensation fund have continued without a celebrity bringing the issue to light?

Passing this law was necessary; however, this will not bring back the lives of those who have died as a direct result of 9/11 or those who are suffering with cancer or a chronic illness.

May God be with those first responders and volunteers now as He was with those who lost their lives Sept. 11, 2001.

FACES OF NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

Assistant district attorney John Obrecht, with criminal defense lawyer Phil Lauer and assistant district attorney Richard Pepper, reflects on their years of service in the county judicial system.

The Old Guard

BY BERNIE O'HARE Special to the Bethlehem Press

Editor's Note: This is the first in an irregular series called "Faces of Northampton County." It attempts to explain what county government does, as revealed by the rank-and-file people there. One of its core functions is the back-end of crime. Police make the arrests. What happens next is up to our judicial

When a new Northampton County District Attorney takes office in January, there will be no part-time prosecutors left. All 20 assistant DAs will be fulltime. The last two part-timers, John Obrecht and Richard Huntington Pepper, are calling it quits after a combined 64 years of service under John Morganelli and before him Don Corriere. They will be replaced by a single full-time prosecutor in an office far different than the one in which they started.

Both veteran lawyers insist the switch to full-time prosecutors is a good thing, but a lot of institutional knowledge will be lost when they leave. The old guard, along with noted criminal defense lawyer Phil Lauer, reluctantly shared some war stories in a recent interview.

On his first day as an assistant DA, Pepper accompanied a raid at the Hawthorne House Bar & Grill in Bethlehem. He recalls that, as cops stormed in, proprietor Francis T. "Goo Goo" Rich was attempting to eat betting slips. Pepper directed police to arrest everyone inside, only to discover later that one of the customers was his mother, a local real-tor. She had been eating lunch.

A few years later, while picking a jury, Pepper asked the panel whether any of them knew him.

er," responded one. The judge excused her, and ordered Pepper to have dinner with her that weekend after she complained he never comes around. A little less flamboyant than Pepper, Obrecht found himself immersed in interesting was no discovery (the and sometimes difficult cases. His first trial involved a tavern robbery in which the defendant assaulted the barmaid and actually knocked her false teeth down her throat.

Obrecht has prosecuted murderers, rapists and violent robberies. But he cautioned, "When you're a prosecutor, you're job is not necessarily to get convictions, but to do justice."

Pepper and Obrecht had little time to prepare. More often than not, they would just be handed a file and told to pick a jury

Defense lawyer Phil Lauer was even in worse shape. As a young lawyer, he'd sit in the well of the court during criminal court, hoping to learn. The late to learn while waiting and great Judge Clinton for verdicts to return Budd Palmer noticed this, and called Lauer to the bench. "Mr. Lauer, I'd like you to meet Mr. Jones. He's your client, and we're picking a jury at 1:30 p.m." It was a different time, in which there exchange of information between prosecution and defense) and no plea agreements. Many defendants chose to roll the dice. Jury panels, which often consisted of regulars, would be around the entire week. Trials were the norm, and all three lawyers said it was common to try two and sometimes three cases over the course of just one week.

During these long criminal weeks, all three lawyers honed their trial skills. Some might call them thespians, but Obrecht insists they were really learning the Socratic method. "All knowledge is already there," said Obrecht. "You just have to ask the right questions." All three lawyers had ample opportunity on many snowy Friday

Today, things are much different. Now there is discovery, and no prosecutor or defense lawyer goes to trial without being fully prepared. Plea agreements with recommended sentences are now Partnership. It was constructed in 1979.

Colony Meadery owner Greg Heller-LaBelle scored approval for proposed signage for his recently relocated business at 211 E. Third St. Heller-La-Belle provided board members with an additional drawing at the meeting, showing the proposed signs for the façade and windows to scale. The 6-foot by 32-inch black steel sign centered over the entry features cutouts of the company name with "Est. 2012" with a translucent vinyl panel attached to the back of it. The sign is designed to project outward and be back lit. A pinstripe surrounds the sign.

A two-sided blade sign, measuring 20 inches by 30 inches, is to project from the right corner of the facade on an existing bracket. Beth Starbuck noted the original logo's cutout design would be read backward from the opposite side. She suggested that painting the logo on it would solve that problem. The applicant agreed to add a pin stripe around the painted logo.

Vinyl window and door signs featuring the company name, logo and hours in off white and frosted white were also approved. Historic officer Jeff Long pointed out an inconsistency between the fonts making up the "C" for "Colony" in the submitted materials. One was plain while the other featured "bee's wings." Heller-LaBelle replied that he was looking to use the fancier font. The circa 1920s one-story painted brick and stucco storefront with diamond shapes on its face is owned by 211 E. Third St. LLC. Colony Meadery was previously located inside the Moravian Book Shop, across the river. All decisions were unanimous.

The Bethlehem HCC is charged with the task of determining if new signs or other alterations to a building's exterior would be an appropriate fit for the neighborhood in one of three designated historic districts. Hearings are regularly scheduled on the third Monday of the month.

Obtaining a certificate of appropriateness is only a first step for business owners and residents in a designated historic district who wish to make alterations to a building's exterior. The BHCC's recommendations are later reviewed, then voted on by city council before any project is allowed to

AMERICA'S OLDEST TOYOTA DEALERSHIP

FACES

Continued from page A6 the norm. A criminal defendant knows what will happen if he pleads, so there is less incentive to roll the dice. As a result, there are far fewer jury trials.

Though lawyers agree that many of the changes are an improvement in criminal justice, they all agree that something has been lost with the decline in jury trials. Lauer calls it a "human connection" in which judges, prosecutors, witnesses, jurors, defendants and police all realized we are in this mess called life together. A judge might wear a black robe and be perched higher than anyone else, but underneath all that, his underwear is no different. Underneath the veneer, this human connection often made its presence felt.

Very often, this took the form of humor, particularly from judges who spent a lot of time on the bench.

We all like to sleep, especially on hot afternoons in a stuffy courtroom with no air conditioning. On one occasion, Lauer was questioning a witness and noticed, out of the corner of his eye, that two jurors had fallen asleep during his use of the Socratic method. He approached the bench and asked Judge Palmer whether he had noticed two jurors were asleep.

"Why yes, I have. You're welcome to wake them up.'

Lauer let them sleep. The Socratic method even infected Judge Richard D Grifo as well in a case tried by both Lauer and Pepper. Lauer solved that situation by accidentally dropping several law books to the floor.

Perhaps the best example of this human connection was evident in a minor case being prosecuted by Pepper. During the call of the list, in which there were over 100 cases, an elderly man carrying a paper bag stood up when his case was called. He had no lawyer.

"Guilty, your honor," he said before he could even be asked how he pleaded. "It's getting cold out there, I have my smokes and all my friends are in jail. "How about 30 days?" suggested Judge Palm-

"Could you make it

"If you don't shut up, I'll put you on probation.

Laughing at this, Lauer provided another example of the human connection involving, once again, the late Judge Palmer.

Lauer was representing an 85 year-old woman who was unable to stop shoplifting. She had been arrested at least 15 times in the past, and under our enlightened laws today, she'd be shipped off to state prison with little fuss. But Palmer intuitively knew that some seniors are forgetful, and shoplifting is often more a mental illness than a crime.

Looking at this woman sternly, Judge

Palmer reminded her that he had told her if he ever saw her again, she'd regret it. "I hereby remand you to the custody of the warden until such time and place as you can be taken to state prison, where you will spend the rest of your natural life.

As she was slumping into Lauer's arms, Palmer added, "Just kidding."

She never shoplifted

Judges then even sentenced defendants to one-way bus tickets to New York City, directing prosecutors to pay the fare.

No one disputes that changes in the criminal justice system have been a natural evolution to promote more fairness. The two prosecutors view the district attorney's office as family.

Though both will continue their private practice, they say they will miss representing the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Joe Henrich said that high school football can be a crazy game. If you saw last week's Bethlehem Catholic-Liberty affair, that sentiment would be justified.

The Golden Hawks escaped with a 27-22 win at BASD Stadium, thanks to Matt Stianche's 30yard TD grab in the final minute of the fourth quarter to catapult Beca-grit and staying with the hi (2-1) to the win and rip the hearts out of their get a win, but I think our the hearts out of their city rival Hurricanes (2-

Another big victory for Freedom

Who's your first four out of the playoffs? GODSPEAK: William Byron, Alex Bowman, Aric Almirola and Ryan Blaney. They don't have enough safetynet playoff points.

KEN'S CALL: Alex Bowman, William Byron, Ryan Newman and Aric Almirola. But Kurt Busch might sneak into the exit portal.

Will Jimmie Johnson ever make the playoffs again? GODSPEAK: Yes, "Seven Time" will return to the postseason in what could be next year's farewell KEN'S CALL: I say he sneaks into next year's playoffs, but I think his contending days are over.

The 16 drivers in the NASCAR Cup Series playoffs gather for a group photo at Indianapolis. TAP/DARRON CUMMINGS1

1. Playoff drivers

Kyle Busch will take 45 playoff points into the first round of the postseason, which means he is almost guaranteed to make it into the second round. On the other end of the line, Clint Bowyer and Ryan Newman took the final two playoff berths. "We are doing the right things and putting ourselves in the right situations to capitalize on other people's mishaps instead of being the one that makes the mishap," Bowyer said.

2. Out, not down

For the first time since NASCAR introduced a playoff format to the Cup Series in 2004, Jimmie Johnson will not be competing in postseason play. He missed the cut at Indianapolis. But fear not, No. 48 Chevy fans, JJ is not giving up. "Sure we wanted it to continue on, but the goal is to win a race," Johnson said. "This team is getting stronger each and every week ... we're ready to

3. Worth noting

Chad Knaus, who was Johnson's crew chief from 2002-18, got his driver, William Byron, into the NASCAR playoffs. Johnson and Byron are teammates at Hendrick Motorsports, which put three drivers into postseason play - Chase Elliott and Alex Bowman join Byron. The top three drivers in the playoff standings wheel Joe Gibbs Racing Toyotas. The next three are Ford drivers, while the next three are from the Chevrolet camp.

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Rethinking your pecking order?

Gee, you think? For the longest time, you basically knew the eventual champ would be a Gibbs or Penske driver. Then the Penske drivers (Joey Logano, Brad Keselowski) began treading water, so it was simply a Gibbs intramural affair. And just when we had it figured out again, the old warhorse comes galloping into the fray.

Can Harvick do it?

He has three wins in the past seven races, with only one clanker in there (a forgivable 39th at Bristol). With Martin Truex Jr. slightly limping into the playoffs, right now the momentum is owned by Kevin Harvick and Denny Hamlin, but Kyle Busch gets a mulligan for the Brickyard and will obviously be a player. And by the way, did you notice that Joey Logano resurfaced at Indy with a runner-up? Interesting timing.

INDIANAPOUS THREE THINGS WE LEARNED

1. Harvick peak

Kevin Harvick looks like his No. 4 Ford is peaking at just the right time. Harvick has three regularseason wins, and they all happened since the July 21 race at New Hampshire. He now marches into the 10-race playoffs with 28 playoff points as a foundation for a title run.

2. The champ

Even though Kyle Busch watched the final laps of the Brickyard 400 from the garage - his motor blew up on Lap 90 - he was crowned regular-season Cup champion. "It would be nice to be headed into the playoffs with a little momentum on our side," he said. "That's not the

Becahi tennis starts season off at 7-0

BY KATIE MCDONALD kmcdonald@tnonline.com

As Bethlehem Catholic's girls' tennis team heads into rivalry match week, the Hawks take a record of 7-0 with them.

Their closest matches of the season to date ended in 5-2 Becahi victories over Nazareth and Emmaus.

Last week, Becahi shut out East Stroudsburg South and Pocono Mountain West.

In the Hawks' match against the Cavaliers last Tuesday, Shannon Stewart won by default, Cara Magliochetti defeated Klaudia Antoniak, 6-0, 6-1, and Taylor Adams defeated Hannah Owusu-Afryie, 6-0, 6-0.

In doubles play, Cait-lin Maloney and Alexa Schoenfield defeated Elena Boyer and Grace Doolittle, 6-1, 7-6, at number two.

St. Anne's, Knights of Columbus annual community fundraiser

BY DOROTHY GLEW
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Anyone needing luggage, dishes, pots and pans, furniture, mirrors, vases, etc., would have found all of these donated items and more in good condition at the Knights of Columbus's fifth annual sale Aug. 17, on the front lawn of St. Anne's convent.

Founded in 1882, the Knights is the largest Catholic Men's Fraternal Organization in the world. The sale is the local Knights' biggest fundraiser of the year. Among this year's major beneficiaries are the Cay Galgon Life House for unwed mothers-to-be in need of support, Coats for Kids, Special Olympics, Mercy School for Special Learning, and scholarships for seminarians.

For those who enjoy sports, there were basketballs, cycling helmets, golf clubs and roller blades, as well as other sports equipment. Children who visited found toys to ride on, puzzles, games and books. Visitors looking for a painting to decorate a bare wall had many to choose from. In short, everything from Christmas ornaments to baseball cards was on sale.

In addition to St.
Anne's parishioners, attendees included people who happened to be driving by on Washington Avenue and stopped to shop. If the number of customers at the sale or the number and variety of items available to buy are any measure, the sale was a great success.

This year there was a bonus. After shopping, customers could pull into the school yard next to the sale and have their cars washed. The car washers were Boy Scouts and leaders from Troop 306, which is based at St. Anne's, who did a very thorough job on the cars to raise money for their troop.

What brought him to the sale? Carmelo Rivera discovered a multi-use appliance for a bargain price.

Carlos Lopez didn't have anything particular in mind when he arrived. He just wanted to check stuff out.

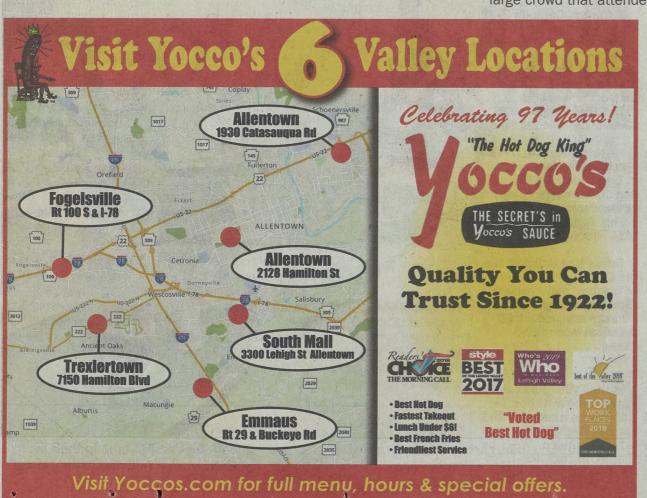

Were kids bored at the sale? Not Hyrum Dodge, who found a new set of wheels.

Why did Michael Ramos stop at the sale? "For the kids," he explains.

"Location, location, location" are the three keys to success in real estate sales, according to tradition. The location of St. Anne's between two of the busiest intersections in North Bethlehem may help explain the large crowd that attended the sale.

Five Crossing Guards serve the neighborhood around Thomas Jefferson ES. The crossing guards are employees of the Bethlehem City Police Department. Many of Thomas Jefferson's students walk to and from school, and the crossing guards keep them safe at some of North Bethlehem's busiest intersections. Some of the guards also cross students from Northeast MS and other local schools. They know many of the students by name, and with almost 95 years of combined experience, they know some of the students' parents and grandparents too.

Michael Pragheimer crosses students at Center and North streets. He has been a crossing guard for 18 years. He also serves as a crossing guard for Moravian Academy.

Mary Toy has been a crossing guard for eight years. She is at the intersection of Broad and Linden streets. For 16 years prior, she was a substitute teacher, because, she says, "I love kids!"

Lisa Ramos is the newest of the Thomas Jefferson crossing guards. She has been on the job for a little more than a year. Her post is the intersection of North and Maple streets, right in front of the school, so almost every student and staff member sees her daily.

Lois Elliot has been a crossing guard for 19 years. Her post is at Maple and Broad, and she also helps students from the Lehigh Valley Dual Language Charter School cross the busy intersection. Once she is done her crossing duties in the afternoon, she works for the Bethlehem School District after school care, located at Thomas Jefferson.

Sue Schmidli has the longest tenure of all of Thomas Jefferson's crossing guards. She has been on the job since 1971. Her area is the intersection of North and Linden streets. Sue also trains Seeing Eye puppies with her sister. She brings pup Pepsi every afternoon. Readers may also have seen Sue and her sister at Musikfest, where they volunteer.

For some, Aug. 26 was a daunting experience: their first day of school ever. For others it was the first day of their last year at St. Anne's ES.

A warm welcome awaited all 270 students from Father Anthony Mongiello, Principal Karen Bentz and teachers from kindergarten to eighth grade.

Shortly after arriving, they all gathered in the gym, where Father Mongiello led them in a prayer. Then each class and teacher were introduced. Introductions were followed by an all-student parade around the block, with each student holding up a sign which read "St. Anne's School, Bethlehem, PA." So began a new school year at St. Anne's.

Fr. Anthony Mongiello, pastor of St. Anne's, greets two returning students, Joseph Muhoro, fifth grade, and his sister, Mary Ann Muhoro, first grade.

Karen Bentz, principal of St. Anne's school, walks to the building with Evalyz Vargas, a third grader.

To fire up her third grade class, Mrs. Blumetti has them repeat after her: "WE ARE ... ST. ANNE'S!" The class includes Julia Jennings, Jax Rhinehart, Mia Avila and Patrick Parkes.

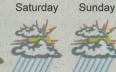

Cynthia Kurtz, kindergarten teacher, tries to line up her students for the first time in their lives: Isaac DeJesus, Rebecca Bowlby, Vincenzo Amato, Colin Kelly, Grace Apgar, Andrew Guidon, Noah Flick, Wyatt Young and Sawyer Grant.

Pennsylvania Republican U.S. Sen. Pat Toomey, R-Pa., addressed a number of issues during a Washington, D.C. update presentation Aug. 29, at the Lehigh Country Club.

Toomey answered questions posed by Tony Ianelli, president and CEO of the Greater Lehigh Valley Chamber of Commerce, during a live videotaping session of the chamber's WFMZ television program, "Business Matters." The show aired 7:30 p.m. Sept. 9.

After Death - What?

"If a man die, shall he live again?" Job's question voices the inquiry of men's minds from the beginning of time. The question has been authoritatively answered by Christ--and in the affirmative--for Christ both died authoritatively answered by Christ--and in the affirmative--for Christ both died and arose again from the dead.

Well over a thousand years ago, Christian missionaries landed on the shores of heathen England to bring the Good News to the idol-worshiping inhabitants. The king called a council to determine whether the missionaries should be heard. As the nobles sat in the dimly lighted hall discussing the matter, a lone bird flew in through an open window. Traversing the length of the room, it vanished through a doorway into the dark. "King," remarked a noble, "you saw the bird just now? It came in we know not whence, and after a brief passage through the room, it went we cannot tell whither. It is so with us. We come through the room, it went we cannot tell whither. It is so with us. We come for a short time into the world, we know not from where. Neither do we know where we are going. If the strangers know, let us hear them."

The Bible says, "All have sinned, and come short of the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23). The Good News is this--Jesus Christ died on the cross to pay the penalty for our sins. Whoever believes in Jesus and accepts Him as Savior and Lord will "...not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). For the believer, death is but "...to depart, and be with Christ" (Phil. 1:23). But what is after death for the non-believer? The Bibie says, "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment" (Heb. 9:27). Now is the time of God's grace and mercy. "...Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (II Cor. 6:2). By accepting Jesus Christ you accept God's mercy. Those who reject Him pay the penalty for their own sins, after death, in hell. "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36).

Here's the song we're singing in Florida:

"Tis the season to be fearful. Fa, la, la, la, la Hope not we're doomed."

I for one can put the fear of hurricanes out of my mind — until one is about to hit.

Let me tell you what happens here in Florida when weather forecasters tell us to be prepared because the hurricane hitting the Bahamas might next pay an unwelcome visit to Florida.

First, everyone panics and rushes to the supermarket to get food and supplies.

A 'Hobbs'-ian choice

It's an odd movie title: "Fast & Furious Pres ents: Hobbs & Shaw."

How can a movie present two of its characters?

Perhaps the title was chosen so as to not confuse the movie with the "Calvin and Hobbes" strip (1985-1995) by United States cartoonist Bill Watterson.

Just kiddin.'

There's no confusas well be enclosed in er. cartoon word balloons.

The movie's title, which is almost as long as the movie, is to brand "Hobbs & Shaw" as part of the "Fast & Furious" franchise, while setting it apart from the series. That it does.

10th "Fast & Furious"

"Hobbs & Shaw" the "Fast & Furious" sewas released in 2001. The having taken in more than $5 billion.

"Hobbs & Shaw" is one-part James Bond, one-part "Mission: Impossible," one-part "The Bourne Identity," onepart buddy-cop film, onepart "Iron Man" Marvel Cinematic Universe superhero film, one-part medieval, with "family Mixed Martial Arts com- heirlooms" turned into Mixed Martial Arts competition, and one-part "Terminator."

Luke Hobbs (Dwayne Johnson) and Deckard Shaw (Jason Statham) can't stand each other but must team up, along with Shaw's sister, Hattie (Vanessa Kirby), to prevent a cyber bio-engineered terrorist, Brixton (Idris Elba) from implementing a deadly virus.

This leads to all manner of mayhem, competition between Hobbs and Shaw, and some tender moments, too, between Hobbs and his daughter and Shaw and his sister.

There's all manner of car chases, including one through the streets of London with Statham behind the wheel of a McLaren 720S gull-wing, two-door sports car, as Elba is in hot pursuit on a motorcycle. Daryl Hall, left, and John Oates, right, concluded Fairgrounds
Grandstand concerts Sept. 1 at the 167th Great Allentown Fair before a near-capacity crowd. The formerly Philadelphia-based duo, backed by a six-piece band, opened the show with "Maneater," played numerous other hit songs, as well as some deep catalogue tunes, including "Adult Education," written by Hall as an ode to his days as a studemt at Pottstown's Owen J. Roberts High School.

'She Loves Me" is an intimate, warm, romantic comedy, with an endearing innocence and a touch of old-world elegance. Set in a Hungarian parfumerie, it's full of comic twists and turns; a journey of mistaken identity, and letter-writing where two feuding clerks have no idea that they are in love.

"She Loves Me" is considered the most charming, romantic musical ever written. It is the quest for love before Match.com.
