A recent news report indicated that Yahoo is experiencing significant decreases in the time users spend on its sites. The directors of the company were even reported to be considering the sale of parts of the company. The reporter concluded that Yahoo was no longer relevant, as many internet users are not using Yahoo or any of its products.

Whether you believe that Yahoo is relevant to you or not, it is interesting to observe such a negative public discussion about a company that just 15 years ago could do no wrong. Many believed that Yahoo had a better future than this newspaper. There was the expectation that Yahoo, Microsoft and others would create local online communities where people could find the latest news and information.

In case you haven't noticed, they weren't successful in their attempts to provide local news. In fact, it is likely that any news you find on Yahoo, Google and other sites was probably produced by a newspaper or a newspaper-affiliated organization.

But that doesn't mean that the way people get their news isn't changing.

Business office woes continue

Retirees angered over failure to process paperwork

By DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Some Bethlehem Area School District (BASD) retirees will get late payments due to "clerical oversight," Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy said in a recent interview. He was responding to complaints retired art teacher Barbara Fowler took to the school board Sept 26.

"I felt insulted by my former employer," Fowler said. She said 43 teachers had been affected by the failure of the BASD business office to properly file the necessary retirement papers to notify the Public School Employees Retirement System (PSERS) that the teachers had retired.

Fowler said that when she contacted PSERS, they told her that she wasn't on the retired role.

She reminded the board of an earlier problem with W-2 Forms being improperly handled.

She said that only with the help of Pa. State Representative Steve Samuelson did the case get proper.

They'll strut their stuff On Main Street

By DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Area fashionistas will have a treat in what the Bethlehem Fashion Event organizers say is shaping up as a first class fashion show in Historic Bethlehem.

According to Christine Barnowsky, who is doing public relations on behalf of the event, organizers expect a great show "because talented people are working hard to make it happen."

The Bethlehem Fashion Event will be from 1:45 to 9 p. m. Oct. 15.

Barnowsky said the "high caliber of business owners working together to promote living locally and buying locally" will ensure the event's success.

About 30 models will be strutting their stuff on a runway right on Main Street. The models, who competed to be in the show, may be new to the business but they will have an impressive team behind the scenes.

Cori McConnell, who works backstage as a dresser at New York fashion shows, will be making sure things go smoothly on the runway. She has dressed models in clothing by Oscar de la Renta and other well-known designers.

Another seasoned professional, designer Pamela Ptak, will be giving her time and talent to help ensure success. Ptak, known to many for her role in the hit TV show Project Runway, teaches courses in fashion at the Baum Art Institute in Allentown. She has her own labels for her creations, "Pamela Ptak" and "Ptak Couture."

"It's going to mean a lot to local businesses," Barnowsky said.

Like any professional fashion show, the best

Postcard collector and author Bill Weiner in the Ambre Studio with some of the historic postcard images from his personal collection. The exhibit at has been extended to run until Oct. 14.

By DOROTHY GLEW
Special to the Bethlehem Press

William G. Weiner's postcards of Bethlehem collection is a perfect illustration of the truism that a picture is worth a thousand words. More than 200 of his postcards are now available in a book titled "Bethlehem Postcard History Series," a wonderfully informative look at the city from 1900 to the 1940s. It's part of the Arcadia Press's Postcard History Series. Arcadia is a publisher of local and regional United States history with more than 6,000 local history titles to its credit.

Born and raised on the north side of Bethlehem, Weiner is an author and financial advisor. He has collected more than 1,800 postcard scenes of Bethlehem over the past two decades, many of which have never been seen before.

Karen M. Samuels, co-author of the book, is a local historian who provided captions for the postcards. In addition to her involvement in local preservation efforts, she writes a weekly historical series for the Bethlehem Press.

Another individual whose work is reflected in the book is Gustav Adolph Conradi, a Bethlehem photographer. Conradi is responsible for many of the photo images on the postcards. His photos have appeared in the New York Times and National Geographic.

While many of the scenes in Weiner's postcards will look familiar, there are numerous buildings depicted that no longer exist. One example is the American Hotel, which was built in the 1850s and was located on the corner of Broad and New streets. It was originally a bed and breakfast called the American House. In time the building was enlarged, and its name was changed to reflect its capacity.

Local resident Minnie Poulton celebrated her 104th birthday Sept. 25 in Hellertown. Her eyes are just as clear as her mind.

Minnie Poulton celebrates 104th birthday

There are numerous memorable events in Poulton's youth that reflect early 20th century life in the Lehigh Valley. She recalls exhilarating sled rides down the unpaved snow-covered Wyandotte Street. Considering the heavy traffic there now, it is hard to imagine a time when no auto traffic passed in wintry conditions. The ride took the children from the top of the hill all the way down into the five-points intersection. The most difficult part of the adventure came when they had to hike back up the hill, sleds, icy feet and all. During the cold and pleasant weather Poulton could be found walking with her friends and siblings for miles between Center Valley and Bethlehem as they talked and laughed together. She credits her good health to these walks and points out the fact that the boys primarily stuck together while the girls stayed in their own giggly cluster.

Excerpt from "Life Experience of Minnie Poulton," written by Shawna Serpe 2011

"I think they're doing what every other bank is doing so they're upping the ante. They are a big bank so they charge more. It won't make me change banks."

Andrea Paparelli

"I'm surprised it hasn't happened sooner. I guess it's their prerogative as the bank. I'm glad I don't use Bank of America."

Jane Shipe, Joan Kester, Betty Ritter, Ana Marie Frustino and Helen Jones, friends from the Lady's Fellowship of Emanuel Assembly of God in Allentown surround Minnie Poulton. They have been visiting Minnie for eight years now.

Minnie's two children, Joan Weiser and Harold Poulton, and a host of family and friends joined her to celebrate her 104th birthday.

er attention from state and BASD authorities.

Fowler wasn't happy with voicemails from officials at BASD, calling them "curt."

Roy said that he believes the business office, which according to recent audits, has made many missteps in the past, is "making progress."

He said a new, more user-friendly payroll system with better accuracy will improve the business office's performance.

It's not only about not getting the money when they were supposed to. It's about lost opportunities.

"I lost over $2,000 in interest," said retired teacher Nanette Muth, referring to the money she thinks she would have made if she had invested the delayed payments.

In more pleasant school news, Roy announced that Moody's Investor Services had given BASD an A1 rating, which effectively removes the negative outlook on nearly two-thirds of BASD's $300 million debt.

"It's a good sign," Roy said. "The district is heading in the right direction. We've created a structural sound budget, created new debt structure and have a positive fund balance.

"It's a significant achievement in view of what some school boards have to face."

In other business, the board approved the administration's request to create new positions in the form of "middle school content area leaders" and "middle school grade level leaders" who will assist the principals in managing the teachers.

The board also approved the committee-level recommendation to sell the "Northampton Annex" for $610,000.

Marisa Langley, student representative to the school board for Freedom HS reported that students are adjusting well to the new restorative practice program that Freedom has started to use.

Restorative practice is a program introduced this year by Roy that focuses on repairing the harm caused by an offense and responding to the needs of the victims, those close to them and the larger community. By involving the victim and the offender in determining the outcome, both gain a sense of closure and may be more fully reintegrated back into the community.

Langley also told the board that the student council is working hard to give Freedom students a great homecoming dance scheduled for Oct. 7.

Liberty HS senior Darah Donaher, also a student representative to the school board, reported that Liberty students and faculty had been asked to wear pink for a week in memory of teacher Virginia Rohn who, according to Liberty Principal JoAnn Durante, died Sept. 25.

Durante said in an interview Rohn was an inspirational assistant volleyball coach and business teacher.

"We draw from her strength as we continue to fight for the cause. It really hit home."

"She was an inspiration to everyone who knew her," Donaher said.

because it is. Newspapers are still the number one source for local news, with more reporters than most any other organization in most cities in America. But what a self-deprecating group we are. We openly write about our own problems on the front pages, but it seems like we minimize our gains. To our detriment, we've made public the fact that circulation has dropped at many newspapers, yet rarely do we write about the fact that just as many people are consuming the information we produce, although now it is in print AND online. And things will continue to change. We expect that more readers in the future will be reading our stories on their iPad™ or other tablet and on their smart phones.

The next time you attend a local festival, football game, city council meeting, or just about any other local event, look around and you probably won't find a reporter with a Yahoo, Microsoft or Google press pass. But what you will see are reporters from your local newspaper. But, as a newspaper reader, you probably figured that out already, and it is certainly time to say thank you for reading this newspaper and making us your number one source for local news!

ity to accommodate more guests. Another is the New Merchants Hotel, which was located on South Fourth Street in South Bethlehem. Other buildings captured in Weiner's postcards include Madison Elementary School, Bethlehem Steel's Open Hearth Shop and the first Bethlehem Union Depot.

Still other pictures reflect the many changes the city has undergone. A picture of the Hotel Bethlehem in 1923 shows a music store beside it. In another photo a wooden, one-lane Broad Street Bridge is being rebuilt. In the same 1907 photo is a Bush and Bull Department Store sign. It was subsequently replaced by Orr's Department Store and is now the Bethlehem Brew Works, along with other businesses.

There is a wonderful postcard of south Main Street with horse-drawn wagons parked on both sides of the street and a trolley running down the middle. At the end of Main Street is the building that houses Moravian College's Music Department and is now part of the Priscilla Payne Hurd Campus.

ing appears pretty much as it looks today. Moravian's Main Street Campus, a mile north on Main Street, is another matter. Another Weiner postcard, dated 1905, depicts Comenius Hall, which houses the Helen Stadiger Borhek Memorial Chapel, standing in splendid isolation. The Harvey Memorial Library had not yet been added to Comenius Hall, and other buildings in the vicinity were yet to be built.

Visitors can get a taste of Weiner's postcard panorama of Bethlehem during the early 20th century at Ambre Studio on Broad Street. A display called "Greetings from Bethlehem" features digital scans of 27 of Weiner's postcards. The scans are the work of David Rider, a mechanical engineer who has considerable experience with 3D computer-aided design software and systems. Years ago, he enlarged one of Weiner's postcards through high-resolution scanning and photographic software. Both men were delighted with the result. Since then they have collaborated to produce Postcard Art, enlargements of postcards that are in great demand at bookstores and gift shops.

Ambre Studio is a fine example of the changes reflected in Weiner's postcards. In the early 1900s, it was Siegfried's Drugstore. The interior of Siegfried's, complete with soda fountain, is depicted in one of Weiner's postcards. Until 1981, it was the site of several other pharmacies. Evelyn Beckman, its current owner, has converted the building, which was designed by architect A.W. Lehigh, into a fine art gallery and studio.

Thank God for Ultrasounds

Recently a young lady told me that her friend's daughter was determined to have an abortion until she saw her baby via ultrasound. It totally changed her mind, and that baby lived! The beauty of the ultrasound is that it makes visual the living reality of the developing baby in the womb which our eyes cannot see, but which is so clearly seen by God as David said, "thou hast covered me in my mother's womb...My substance was not hid from thee, when I was made in secret...Thine eyes did see my substance, yet being unperfected" (Psalm 139:13-16). The ultrasound's revealing visualization of the unborn baby in the womb forcibly contradicts the abortionists' lies that the "fetus" is simply a blob of tissue. This young lady also told me her speech class was assigned the subject of abortion. While the others argued for a woman's right to terminate pregnancy, she was the only one in the class to speak in defense of the baby's life. When I commended her for courageously standing alone for truth, she said she was happy to meet the challenge and to be the lone voice in the class to take a different view and defend innocent unborn babies. I commented that the truth she shared with her classmates may very well come back to them in the future and save a baby's life.

According to John McCastle, President of Ultrasounds for Life, Inc., pregnancy centers across America are "seeing thousands of unborn babies saved from abortion due to the use of ultrasound machines that allow the unborn to audition for their very own lives." He declared, "The average result is over 90% of women seeking to abort their babies choose life for their child once they have seen the reality of their own baby via ultrasound!"

Car wash rain date

The Freedom HS baseball team held a car wash fundraiser at Lafayette Ambassador Bank from 1-4 p.m. Oct. 2. The bank is located on William Penn Highway across from Hess Gas Station. The donation cost was $5 per car. All proceeds benefited the FHS baseball team. This event gave the term "fair weather fan" a whole new meaning. Hopefully the weather will be fairer on Oct. 9 from noon-4 p.m. and all those fans who didn't make it out due to the rain will have another chance to support the team and come out CLEAN. ABOVE: There was no shortage of player power, let's look on the bright side, the rain actually helped with the rinse.

Developer wants to turn church into 36 apartments

by KAREN M. SAMUELS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

MAYOR'S SSTF

The monthly meeting of the Mayor's South Side Task Force took place Sept. 27 at the Forte Building, located at 5th and William Streets. Roger Hudak started the meeting off with a summary of events and recent changes on the Southside.

He mentioned that Concordia Lutheran Church is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year. WLVT PBS-39 has moved its headquarters into SteelStacks. The new mall attached to the Sands Casino Hotel will open with a few stores before this Thanksgiving. The rest of the stores will open before Christmas. The Second Street ramp to the Hill-to-Hill Bridge is open.

The Housing Development Corporation (HDC), a nonprofit developer from Lancaster, presented a plan to utilize St. Stanislaus Church and the surrounding property. The Allentown Diocese closed the church, located at 419-429 Hayes St., in 2008. HDC proposed to demolish the parsonage but retain the church building. Surrounding the church, they would build 36 one-, two- and three-bedroom units. The church will contain a community room, art gallery, performance space and laundry room in the basement.

The units are geared toward occupants who earn an average of $40,000 a year. The units will rent out for, on average, $650 a month. Creating a sufficient number of parking spaces has been challenging. HDC estimates that it will take 14 months to construct the development. The final plans have not been submitted for approval to Bethlehem Planning Commission.

New Bethany Ministries will demolish an old warehouse at East Fifth and Atlantic streets in Bethlehem and use the site for a large soup kitchen.

Dr. Robert Smith of Northampton Community College announced that the Pa. Civil War Road Show, a museum in a 40-foot trailer, will make a stop at the Fowler Family Southside Center next year. The museum will be parked in the parking lot across Third Street from Fowler.

Hudak led a discussion about the great need for volunteers at Donegan ES. With the recent school district budget cuts, many programs were cut. The students are in need of tutoring help.

Hudak also reported that the Little League baseball field was flooded and is unusable.

Representatives from Lehigh University and Bethlehem police departments discussed efforts to educate Lehigh students on how to be good neighbors. A Lehigh officer has woken up students early in the morning for two weekends running, to clean up the trash found on their rented properties. Since this past April, the Lehigh police have removed 200 abandoned vehicles in the university neighborhood.

Barnowsky said the event is sponsored by FIAT of Lehigh Valley and a large number of other businesses. She said that part of the proceeds from the event would go to the local chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

The fashion event will be preceded the night before by a "red carpet review party" and event kick-off sponsored by Lehigh Valley Style and Artfully Elegant. The party will include the show's models as guests.

Lehigh Valley Social will host an after-show party.

Assistant Manager of the Downtown Bethlehem Association (DBA), Kara Johnson credited Kate Falasca, of Sophistigate, with coming up with the idea for a community-wide fashion show. The DBA, an arm of the Greater Lehigh Valley Chamber of Commerce, is producing the show.

Johnson sees the Fashion Event as a boost to the local economy.

"It's a tough time with the economy. People are spending less money. We want to show them that they can come to downtown Bethlehem for quality, affordable fashion."

City authorities will close Main Street between Walnut and Broad streets to vehicle traffic for most of Saturday, Oct. 15. It will reopen after event organizers clear the street following the fashion show.

The schedule: Times are listed below for shows at the specially built models' runway on Main Street between Walnut and Broad streets on Oct. 15. All street addresses are in Bethlehem. Ten Bethlehem boutiques will feature their fall fashions and accessories.

1:45 p.m. Former Project Runway contestant and designer Pamela Ptak will introduce the event.

Zero carbon neighborhood on its way

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Developer Larry Eighmy wants to bring an "island of conservation and sensitivity" to South Bethlehem: A zero carbon neighborhood reducing emissions by 85 percent. But before that can happen, he needed a parking variance from the Zoning Hearing Board at its Sept. 28 meeting.

Eighmy's Sycamore Hill Farm Development LLC already owns numerous properties in the area, including the Flatiron Building located at 301 Broadway, which has a concentrated solar system on its roof. He's now planning a restaurant, with seating for 140 patrons, at 409 and 411 Wyandotte St., formerly home to the Globe Cafe.

Bethlehem Attorney Lisa Pereira, Eighmy's representative, said, "his isn't your average project." Instead of emptying storm water down a drain, the water will be used for non-potable purposes. The restaurant will be powered by a vegawatt, which uses waste vegetable oil to provide electricity and heat. In addition, the solar panels atop the Flatiron building will contribute to energy needs. A variable refrigerating system will be employed, and Eighmy has plans to introduce a car sharing program on site to reduce driving needs.

There's no parking at the proposed site, and no on-street parking in that area of Wyandotte Street. Fortunately, Eighmy owns six parking lots and garages adjacent to the proposed restaurant, with 91 spaces available for use.

According to Martha Popichak, who owns 417

BETHLEHEM ZONERS

Wyandotte St. across the street, that's not enough.

"We have our own hardship," she said, noting that it is difficult to find parking in that area, and that a restaurant with a 130-person capacity will only exacerbate that problem.

Although she complimented Eighmy's proposal as a "worthy plan," she told zoners, "you cannot forget the rest of the neighborhood." She said she's already lost two business tenants at her Wyandotte Street property because there's no place for customers to park.

Popichak told zoners this parking problem started when a parking lane was removed from Wyandotte Street. She added that, despite a 2008 City Council resolution calling for the parking lane's return, nothing has happened.

While zoners deliberated, so did Popichak and Eighmy. They agreed to lobby city officials for a return of the parking lane. After zoners voted unanimously to grant Eighmy a parking variance, member Bill Fitzpatrick suggested that Eighmy and Popichak get together with neighbors to "do something about that parking lane."

"We already had that conversation," Eighmy replied.

Borough responds well to recent Hurricane Irene

By MARK RECCEK
Special to the Bethlehem Press

"A lot of dedication was put in there and a lot of hard work," Dewey Fire Co. Chief Rick Delmore told Hellertown Borough Council Sept. 19 as he presented a report on the fire department's response during and after Hurricane Irene.

Delmore said between Saturday and Sunday, the fire department responded to 60 incidents and evacuated 18 people.

He said the fire department encountered two challenges during the course of the storm. One involved members of the public removing barricades and driving through blocked off flooded areas. The other problem involved water getting into the compressor system of one of the department's engine systems. Delmore also told council members he hopes to have all fire personnel properly trained in water rescue.

Council Vice President John Bate formally thanked the volunteers who gave of their time and energy to assist the borough during the storm.

"I just want the public to know how fortunate they were to have these volunteers," he said. "This community is really dependent on them."

FALL AUTO & TRUCK

Add years to a vehicle's life

Getting more for your money is a popular trend among consumers. As economic uncertainty reigns, smart consumers are looking for the best values in an effort to get the most out of each and every dollar they spend.

One of the best ways to stretch a dollar is to take better care of your vehicle. Buying a home and financing a college education are perhaps the only times many consumers will spend more money than they do when purchasing a vehicle. But unlike a home or an education, few people take their vehicles seriously, all too often avoiding vehicle maintenance that can greatly increase a car or truck's life expectancy.

Drivers who want to keep their cars going strong for years to come can do so in a handful of ways.

* Prevent, prevent, prevent. Preventive maintenance might seem like a boring way to spend a weekend morning or afternoon, but the efforts will be well worth it. Oil changes and filter replacements are quick and easy jobs but pay major dividends over the long haul. Drivers who aren't comfortable performing these tasks themselves need not worry about costly trips to the mechanic. Routine jobs like an oil change or air filter replacement are relatively inexpensive, and today's vehicles can go much longer between oil changes and filter replacements. Each vehicle manufacturer is different, so drivers should consult their owner's manual and adhere to the recommended maintenance schedule.

* Stay balanced. Balanced tires are tires that will last longer. But an out of balance tire will not only shorten the life of tires, it can also do damage to the rest of the vehicle while simultaneously making riding in the car much less comfortable. When a tire is properly balanced, its mass is uniformly distributed around the axle, making for a smooth, vibration-free ride. However, an out of balance tire shortens the life expectancy of suspension components, including bearings and shocks. Repairs that result from an unbalanced tire can prove costly. Should a vibration occur as the vehicle accelerates (typically this vibration will be noticeable when the car reaches speeds of 40-45 mph), chances are the tires are not properly balanced.

* Look good, feel good. The credo of "look good, feel good" isn't only applicable to humans. In fact, a car that looks good likely feels good as well. Washing and waxing a car regularly helps avoid rust under the carriage and in the wheel wells. The longer a car goes between washes, the more likely it is to rust, and the paint is likely to corrode as well. There is no quick fix to either of these problems, but preventive maintenance, like routine washing and waxing the vehicle, can keep these potentially menacing issues from ever rearing their rusty heads. Preventing rust and corrosion is also a good way to ensure a car's resale value does not diminish over time.

* Get out and drive. Cars that spend most of their life in stop-and-go traffic likely won't last as long as those that routinely get out and go. That's because city driving with lots of stopping and going is very taxing on an engine. On a highway, air flow to the radiator, oil flow to the engine and everything that makes a car run is much more consistent, reducing the stress on the engine as a result. Constantly accelerating and decelerating is hard on an engine, while the consistent speeds of highway driving offer a welcome respite to the engine. City dwellers should get out and drive their car on a highway at least once a month for no less than 30 minutes. This is also a good way to get rid of potentially harmful condensation that can negatively impact engine performance.

When looking to get more for your money, one of the best ways to do so is to take better care of the car sitting in your driveway.

Hellertown Borough Police Chief Robert Shupp added he believed the borough's preparation in advance aided in a successful outcome for the first responders and the community.

"I think we really prepared for this," Shupp said. "I think we all had a plan as to how this could work. That was a huge, huge thing."

Shupp noted the police department had eight officers out during the flood and the department had one felony arrest for an individual driving through a barricade during a state of emergency.

agency.

Also during the meeting, Hellertown resident Joe Delfoe again approached council regarding the status of an abandoned home located at 844 Maple St. Delfoe, holding up a rangy handful of uncut grass, demanded council take immediate action and cut the grass located on the property.

Hellertown solicitor Michael Corriere told Delfoe three notices were mailed to Bank of America regarding the condition of the property; the last notice mailed was dated Sept. 15.

Corriere recommended the borough cite the current property owner, then cut the grass. He added, if the grass is not cut, the borough can file a lien against the property.

"Why do we have to wait?" council member Richard Staffieri asked matter-of-factly. "Why can't we make the time because it's a pain in the neck to the neighbor and we don't do anything for them? The borough has changed."

Council member Gail Nolf interrupted Staffieri's comments and said, "the grass will be cut."

Delfoe, who said he believes the home is unfit for habitation and a public nuisance, spoke at the July 5 council meeting and asked members of borough council to take all necessary legal steps to remedy the nature and status of the property.

Council ultimately agreed to cite the property owner and cut the grass as soon as possible.

Borough Council also recognized Saucon Valley resident Jeanne Schrader by presenting her with a certificate of appreciation for her contribution to the arts in Hellertown. Schrader's most recent artistic creation, titled "The Recital," is currently on display in the borough municipal building.

"I've pushed for arts in this community because we really do have some talented people," Schrader shared with council members.

FALL AUTO & TRUCK

Cars, trucks need washing in winter

If you think a car wash is only for sunny summer days, think again. Washing a car in the winter months can help it operate at peak capacity despite harsh weather.

People take different tactics when it comes to washing their cars. Some prefer to hand wash their vehicles, taking care to primp and polish. While this might be easy when it is warm outside, cold weather can quickly zap ambition and actually make it downright painful to do so. Also, environmental experts tend to frown upon washing the car in the driveway because of the water waste and chemical detergents running into storm sewers. Commercial car washes recycle and filter their water.

Preventative car care is especially important when the cold weather sets in. The road additives — such as salt and sand — can wreak havoc on a car's paint, corrode the undercarriage of the vehicle and potentially rust the wheel wells. Keeping the car clean and waxed can protect the finish and help protect against scratches and marbling from any winter road debris.

Car corrosion damage is especially common during the winter months. Prevention remains the best solution to corrosion, and a car wash is a preventative measure that takes little effort.

Automatic car washes are a convenient way to clean a vehicle in the winter. However, these facilities tend to use harsh chemicals that eat through debris. This can result in swirling patterns and spotting on some cars. An alternative is to head to one of the self-wash carwash bays and bring along your own products or rely on theirs so that you will have a high-powered water supply for rinsing. Even if you cannot do the cleaning job you would in the warmer weather, rinsing some of the salt and grime from the car, especially underneath, can go a long way toward preventing corrosion.

It's essential to wash away road salt and other grime of the cold-weather season. Otherwise, drivers risk damage to the car's enamel and corrosion of its undercarriage.

Before the snowy season sets in, it's a good idea to do a thorough washing of the car and apply a new coat of a high-quality wax.

The wax will serve as an extra barrier against grime.

Before and after washing the car when it's below freezing, it's advisable to use a de-icing product on the doors and windows. If not, the windows might get stuck.

Washing a car in a cold climate is not something many people enjoy, but it's a good way to keep a car running strong and looking good.

Locals ask Casey for Fair Farms support

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzowski@ttonline.com

A handful of community members representing Food and Water Watch, a national food and water safety nonprofit, spoke publicly Sept. 27 in support of small-time farmers and regulations to keep them afloat.

The speakers, who could barely be heard over lunchtime traffic outside the Main Street Commons, gave information and asked for citizens to call in their support for Fair Farm Rules to Sen. Robert Casey's offices, part of a "statewide day of action." According to Watch organizer Mara Schechter, "Our fair farm bill campaign is focused on protecting the fair farm rules, or the [Grain Inspection, Packers and Stockyard Administration] rules, which would level the playing field for small and midsized independent family farmers. Congress passed the fair farm rules in the 2008 Farm Bill, and we need Senator Casey, who is on the Agriculture Committee, to protect these fair farm rules if we have any chance of progress in the next Farm Bill."

Local residents gather in front of Main Street commons Sept. 27, calling for Sen. Robert Casey to support small farmers.

Speakers stressed the overpowering reach of large companies and farms, as well as lack of proper attention and regulation of the GIPSA regulations.

John Place, who in 2007 started Keepsake dairy farm in Northampton, said local farmers are being squeezed out of business; in his 30 years alone the number of dairy farmers has halved, he said.

Dawn King, a Lehigh

University visiting professor and Southside gardens supporter, said the 2008 Farm Bill asks for transparency from the USDA to allow a free market to operate without wiping out small farmers. "Specifically, what they're asking the U.S. to implement are things like making large-profiters [sic] keep records of treatment ... keep track of how much they're paying for poultry, for livestock." She said huge companies pay for local groups to maintain numbers of livestock, but not only keep no official record of what they are paying, offer preferred status to the same groups repeatedly, cutting out competition.

Schechter said as of Sept. 29, 298 local and more than 800 statewide calls had been placed to offices of Sen. Casey.

Casey's Deputy Press Secretary, Ian Jannetta, via email, said GIPSA is now evaluating public comments in preparation for publishing a final rule. He said Casey, "is committed to fighting for Pennsylvania's farmers and he believes that small farms as well as bigger farms have an important role to play in today's market. He will continue to monitor the situation closely as the USDA reviews current proposals."

Revised solar dish installtion gets tabled

SOUTH BETHLEHEM HISTORIC

by KAREN M. SAMUELS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Representatives for the iconic flat iron building at 301 Broadway were back at the Sept. 19 South Bethlehem Historic Conservation Commission meeting.

This past May, owner Laurence Eighmy received a hard-won approval for the installation of a solar photovoltaic system on the roof of his A.W. Leh-designed office building. However, Robert Velekei and James Haze of Liberty Engineering, along with general contractor Michael Hubor, approached the commissioners again with a new request.

Still presenting the same vague image of the 30-foot wide structure, the group asked that they be approved to install the disc on a higher roof structure.

Liberty Engineering representatives now believe that the penthouse roof, eight feet higher than the main roof, is a more secure base to attach the disc.

Christine Ussler, Bethlehem historic officer, asked if the disc could be attached to the next-door parking deck roof, which is not a historic building. Velekei and Haze replied that they plan to install solar paneling on the parking deck roof so there is no space available. Velekei explained that the solar photovoltaic disc will save Eighmy $6,000 in heating bills a year.

Commissioner Mary

Pongracz replied, "I'm not here to save anyone money. If you can afford to buy a building, then you can afford $6,000."

Commissioner Craig Evans added, "Although the technology is commendable, we are charged by the city to preserve and protect the historic district. I personally do not see this happening. I live nearby and I do not want to look at this solar disc."

Ussler requested that Liberty Engineering prepare an elevation roof plan to better understand the amount of space the disc will require.

Pongracz made a motion to table the proposal, which passed unanimously.

As the three men rose to depart, Pongracz joked, "You are good-looking men but that doesn't get anywhere with me."

One of Hurricane Irene's victims, Carolyn Facchiano, requested approval to reroof her house and porch, replace her gutters and restore her two chimneys.

crushed the roof on her 917 Prospect Ave. property. The Wolle brothers built the two and a half story brick structure in 1894 for their mother, Cornelia L. Wolle. It was originally built on 23 acres. The damaged roof was the original roof from 1894.

Facchiano recently found a cigar box nailed into the rafter. It contained a newspaper published in German, a cigar butt and the remains of an apple. The commissioners unanimously approved the proposal for the needed repairs.

'Bridge' work at SteelStacks

Painters from Charles Dectis Painting put the finishing touches on ArtsQuest's 'The Bridge' sculpture during a pleasant summer morning. Longtime Dectis employees Janice Behler and Christopher Muthard painted the top and sealed the underside to add protection to the steel surface. 'The Bridge,' which is located on the Air Products Town Square, was made possible thanks to funding from the National Endowment for the Arts and John and Brenda McGlade. The sculpture was dedicated Sept. 6 and was designed by artist Elena Columbo.

Facelift planned for Eastern Gateway

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Planning Director Darlene Heller, joined by Ellen Larmer of Bethlehem's Community Action Development Corp., unveiled plans for a facelift to the South Bethlehem Eastern Gateway during a Sept. 27 meeting of city planners. Although the Route 412 approach to Bethlehem from Route I-78 is the "hub of a lot of activity" from a skate park, Daly Avenue and Sands Casino, Larmer lamented a "lack of sense of arrival" for city visitors. More importantly, she expressed concern for the safety of pedestrians in an area of the city dominated by mass transit users and walkers.

"It's pretty intimidating to walk there," she said.

About 5,000 residents live in this area, and a survey of them reflects "a lot of concern about the conditions of the sidewalks," Larmer said. She and Heller are proposing a "lighter, quicker and cheaper" approach to improvements in that area, amounting to $100,000 per year over the next 10 years.

These projects include planters with seasonal plantings on Fourth Street; wildflowers on sloped areas; encouraging local food vendors outside the Sands, Skateplaza and Gateway area; benches at the Skateplaza; trees at the Sands and Skateplaza entrance; murals on vacant facades; a sheltered bus stop; and more signage in appropriate areas.

Small businesses, especially restaurants with outdoor dining, will be encouraged in the area, as well as affordable housing. There was even discussion of housing that would appeal to the 74 percent Hispanic population in that area, including courtyards and larger bedrooms. Heller said that over time these improvements will "serve the neighborhood," making it a safer to walk and more pleasant to live.

Because Route 412 is a state highway, city officials will meet with PennDOT to discuss pedestrian improvements.

Parking summer income normal

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzmski@ttonline.com

Parking Authority Executive Director Tom Hartley reported at the group's first meeting in months a financially successful MusikFest season despite rather atrocious weather.

The August event suffered historic setbacks this year from heavy rains and flooding, but the authority still pulled in more than $100,000. By far the best parking attraction had been the Walnut Street garage, Hartley said, followed - oddly - by the Riverport. One board member suggested people going to Southside events parked at the Riverport complex because they simply didn't know where else to go.

Hartley said the good financial showing was due to increased operational efficiency and improved technologies.

One of those technologies was an early run of online parking reservations to the city's garages. Though the new system was not advertised because they didn't know how well it would work, more than 500 reservations were purchased during MusikFest, Hartley said. "From my perspective it worked really well. And people liked it."

The online reservation system also keeps ticket-holders up-to-date on changing events and on changing events and local traffic conditions, Hart-

Welcoming Oktober

Oktoberfest, Bethlehem's newest festival, kicked off Thursday night for a two-week-end celebration of German heritage with a Pennsylvania flavor. Unfortunately, inclement weather prevailed during the inaugural days of the festival, which offers a variety of music, food, Yuengling beer, games and family activities.

Despite the intermittent rain the crowds peaked during late afternoon and early evening hours. The festival is hosted by ArtsQuest at its new Steel-Stacks Center Campus. During the opening ceremonies at the start of Oktoberfest Thursday night, ArtsQuest President Jeff Parks, Mayor John Callahan and Dick Yuengling of America's Oldest Brewery toasted to the new festival.

Next weekend, Oct. 6-9, the festival continues with the same schedule, starting at 6 p.m. Thursday and noon Friday through Sunday.

FIELD HOCKEY Girls battle for berth

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It has been a difficult field hockey season for local teams as Bethlehem Catholic (3-7) and Freedom (1-10) have been on the wrong end of the box score more often than not.

Liberty (6-8), on the other hand, is still clinging to its hopes of making a qualifying run to the postseason.

With a 5-6 league record following last night's 5-0 loss to Whitehall, the Hurricanes have their district qualifying scenario spelled out for them.

With four games left on the schedule, three of which are league games against Bethlehem Catholic, Easton and Freedom, the Hurricanes can go 2-1 in the league the rest of the way and make the postseason with a .500 overall league mark.

With an out of conference finale against Pocono Mountain East slated for Oct. 15, that contest could mean something in the long run if the 'Canes need an overall .500 record to break into districts, but taking care of business in the LVC is first order of business.

"I believe the girls are capable of doing that," said head coach Mary Kathryn Omdahl of the team finishing strong. "They will need to work together for that common cause. We have grown a lot over the last three weeks and I look for that growth to continue as I start to see some leaders on the field emerge."

Liberty takes on Becahi this Thursday on the road for their final contest of the week before next week's determining gauntlet, which opens the week up with division leader Easton (7-4, 6-3) and closes the league schedule with Freedom the following Thursday.

Easton knocked off Liberty 2-0 earlier in the season and getting some redemption would be the perfect elixir.

"Right now, we are focused on the game that is coming up, but I know Easton is in the back of my mind," Omdahl said. "They are a good team and we did not show our best play last time. I hope to change that in our next meeting."

Paige Gross and Kira Huron have been two of the stalwarts that Omdahl Liberty's Mike Harris looks to get around Parkland's Anthony Campanelli during last Friday night's key Lehigh Valley Conference victory over the Trojans.

Orlando paces 'Canes Two interceptions make the difference

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It was a game of momentum, mistakes and making plays and Liberty came out on top last Friday night following a 35-28 road victory at Parkland.

Two second half interceptions by Liberty defensive back Anthony Orlando helped catapult the Hurricanes from a 21-14 third quarter deficit to 21 unanswered points, as Liberty snapped a two-game losing streak to upend the Trojans in a LVC pivotal contest.

Orlando's second half picks proved to be the difference as he first sniffed out a screen play in Parkland territory to set up a game tying 21-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jimmy McCarthy to running back Mikey Harris.

Orlando then picked off Parkland quarterback Tim Baranek for a second time in the quarter, reading a pass over the middle at the 20 and taking it to the Parkland five yard line.

McCarthy rushed for his second touchdown of the night from three yards out to put Liberty ahead by a 35-21 advantage with 1:01 left in the third quarter to give the 'Canes enough of a cushion to hold off the Trojans.

"We needed some big plays on defense and we were able to come up with them," said Orlando. "We all knew this was going to be a tough game and we didn't panic when they took the lead in the third. We just knew we had to play our game."

Parkland's Jarel Elder brought the Trojans within a score with 9:49 left in the fourth quarter following a dashing 72-yard run to pay dirt, but four Trojan turnovers proved to be too costly.

"We got to stop turning the ball over this much against good football teams," said Parkland head coach Jim Morgans. "Liberty's a good football team and we're a good football team. We got to find a way in big games to just settle down and make plays late."

"We just played a little too tight in the second half and Liberty capitalized on their opportuni-

Pates undefeated, Hawks fall to EHS

Jason Roeder has had some talented teams during his seven year tenure at Freedom, but this is the first time the Patriots have started the season 5-0 under Roeder.

Following last week's 48-0 victory over lowly Dieruff (0-5), the Pates are now in position to up the ante even further when they host Northampton (1-4) on Friday night at 7 p.m.

The K-Kids just earned their first victory of the season last week after beating Allen 52-12 to spur some confidence into a mostly loss-ridden season, but that isn't the worry for the Pates this week.

The motivational tools that Roeder hopes to use starts with Northampton's 21-14 victory over the Patriots last year.

"We see them as a team that beat us last year," said Roeder of Northampton. "They have a good quarterback [Patrick Cook] and we saw what they were capable of last week [against Allen]."

"They're a good team that has had a tough start to the season, but we also know they're a team that beat us last year and that's what we're worrying about."

The Kids have dealt with inexperience issues all year and in their three previous LVC contests this year against Liberty, Easton and Central Catholic, they've been outscored

Becahi's Randy Cruz decides on Lehigh

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

The best part of making your college destination official is, well, making it official.

All the stress of visits and checks and balances are put to rest once you pick your new home.

For Bethlehem Catholic senior Randy Cruz, that decision came over the weekend when he verbally committed to attend Lehigh University to wrestle.

The hardest part left for Cruz is now calling the other coaches that recruited the two-time PIAA 2A runner-up and letting them know that he's chosen to stay in Bethlehem.

"That's something I'm not looking forward to doing," said Cruz of notifying coaches of his decision to attend Lehigh. "It's just tough because all of these guys are so nice and they were all genuine, but I just felt like Lehigh was the best fit for me."

Cruz said his decision came down to two schools in the end, with Lehigh and Penn being the front-runners. Maryland and Pittsburgh were also on the radar, but the small school environment, coupled with staying close to home, as well as Lehigh's prestigious academic accolades really left him with one choice.

"Lehigh was the better fit for me because I felt more comfortable there," he said. "I called coach [Pat] Santoro on Saturday and told him I've decided to go to Lehigh and he said I made his day."

Hawks head coach Jeff Karam relished the feat of another top caliber wrestler going to a great program.

"I'm just really proud of Randy," Karam said. "We just had Kyle Dehaut go to Maryland and now Randy to Lehigh. It's great that I can still watch him wrestle right in Bethlehem."

Now, Cruz just hopes his decision could bring some more Hawks to the South Side of Bethlehem.

"I feel like I'm set now and I know what I'm going to do," said Cruz of the relief of making the decision. "I'd like to see some of my teammates come over to Lehigh too, but I don't know if that's going to happen. I'm just happy I'm going to wrestle at a great school and get a great education."

Cane girls win again

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@ttonline.com

Liberty's girls' cross country team added to its winning record (5-1) with victories over Nazareth, 26-33, and Northampton, 16-47, last week.

Earlier this season, the Hurricanes had fallen to the Blue Eagles at an invitational meet.

Liberty senior, Becky Tomlin, said, "We were really surprised to beat them. To come back and beat them in a dual meet, especially on their course, we were really happy."

Tomlin placed fifth, not far behind teammate, Amy Darlington, who took first place in 17:09. Abby Reagan took ninth place, and Shay Lewis took tenth. Also in the top 20 were Aria Sivick, Kristin Epsaro, Camila Bauer, Emily MacBride, and Samantha Parks.

After graduating several seniors from last year's team, Tomlin said the Hurricanes are surprising themselves with how well they are competing.

"We're really happy with where we are right now," she said.

Freedom's girls split the dual meet with a 17-46 victory over Northampton, and a 22-35 loss to Nazareth.

Shaina Palmer placed fourth, Shana Peterson placed seventh, Alexa Deemer, took eighth place, and Caterina Atiyeh took 20th for the Patriots.

Freedom's boys also defeated Northampton, 27-30, and fell to Nazareth, 24-34, while Liberty's boys last to Nazareth, 19-39, and Northampton, 24-33.

Freedom's Nathaniel Palmer won the boys' meet in 14:52. Derek Detweiler placed seventh, Rob Bogardo placed tenth, and Doo Park placed 18th for the Patriots.

Liberty's Will Updegrave took fifth place, followed by Collin Dugan in 14th, Matt Allred in 15th, Everett DeLuca in 17th, and Matt Buell in 20th for the Hurricanes.

LHS gets win over Northampton

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@ttonline.com

Liberty's Ian Larimer and Richard Guedes scored one goal apiece in the Hurricanes' 2-1 victory over Northampton on Saturday night.

"The ball was skipping a couple of times, but it didn't change the way we played," said Liberty captain, Tyler Garr, regarding the continuous rain. "Northampton kept up with us pretty much the whole game."

The Hurricanes struck first when Larimer headed the ball into the goal off a corner kick in the first period.

At halftime, Coach Jason Horvath advised his team to keep their heads in the game, and to keep playing the way they had been playing all along.

"We were working together the whole night to make sure Northampton didn't get past our defense," Garr said.

Michael Berger, Fidel Bukuru, Andrew Muhl, and Garr were the Hurricane defenders.

Liberty's Richard Guedes scored the Hurricanes' second goal in the second period.

As of Press deadlines, the Hurricanes' record is 10-2, losing only to Parkland and, more recently, Emmaus.

"It was tough losing to Emmaus. We wanted to show that we were a contender in the conference. We thought we could beat them, and we still think we can," said Garr.

The Hurricanes could possibly face Emmaus again in postseason play.

For Bethlehem Catholic, there will be no postseason play, and although the Golden Hawks have nothing to lose as the season winds down, it does not mean that losing is an option.

Last week, Becahi's game against Dieruff ended in a 2-2 tie.

"It was nice to not lose in overtime, but we always want to win. We were so unfortunate because we were dominating the game for so long," said senior defender, CJ Daniels.

Becahi's Marcin Boraganli scored in the first period to tie 1-1. Minutes later, the Huskies scored again, as did the Hawks when Daniels's free kick scored another goal for Becahi.

"Actually, I was aiming for Chris [Blaszka], but it went toward the net, so he dummied it. I'm not usually the goal-scorer because I'm a defender. That was my first varsity goal, so I was pretty happy about that," Daniels said.

The Hawks approached the second period with the same intensity they had displayed in the first.

"We dominated the whole second half," said Daniels. "We hit the post twice."

By the time the first overtime began, red cards had been issued on both sides, which resulted in a more highly emotional game.

"Everyone was pumped," Daniels said. "Everyone wanted to get in there."

Bethlehem Catholic had 15 shots and 8 saves against the Huskies.

Freedom's troubles continued to follow them into last week with a 2-1 loss against Pleasant Valley, and a 4-0 loss against Emmaus.

DISTRICT 11 FOOTBALL NOTEBOOK

Notes and trivia courtesy of District 11 statistician Duke Helm

Week 4 notes

- Kevin Gulyas of Central Catholic now owns 'the big 3' career receiving records in District 11 after week 4. Gulyas has 151 career receptions for 2,618 yards and 33 touchdowns. Kowan Scott of Wilson set the yardage record last year 2,602 yards. Jeff McGeehin held the old record for receptions with 144 from 1971-73. Tim Masquoui (1998-00) of Parkland held the old TD record with 31.
- Matt Camilletti of Pius X moves into third place all-time in the district with 142 career receptions. He went by Tyler Artim of Whitehall, Fenton Black of Panther Valley and Bob Frederick of Allen. Camilletti also became the school record holder for career reception yards. He now has 2,113 yards breaking current ESU wide receiver

Wade Williams record of 2,026 yards that he set from 2005-07.

- Against Northampton, Brendan Nosovitch went over 3,000 yards rushing and over 50 TDs in his career. Nosovitch now has 3,120 yards rushing and has scored 52 touchdowns. He leaptfrogged the bottom five in the '3000 yard club.' They are Rick Sterner (PA), Dave Wilson (BECA), Mark Madson (NAZ), Joe Pawloski (PME) and Joe Baker (SV). Dylan Evans of Pen Argyl needs 91 yards to join Nosovitch in the '3,000 yard club.' He also needs two TDs to reach 60. He is currently tied with Liberty's Darren Mason (1997-99) and Leighton's (UConn, Kutztown) Robbie Frey (2004-06) with 58. Colin McDermott of Central Catholic and Robert Bennie of Stroudsburg are both nearing 2,000 yards rushing in their career. Daniel Harding of Nazareth needs 49 yards to reach 3,000 yards passing in his career. Harding is averaging 284.5 yards per game this season.

- Pen Argyl's Zach Miller caught three passes against Wilson for 180 yards and three touchdowns. The 180 yards is a new school record. Miller broke Austin Williams record of 165 yards that he set in 2008. In that same game Williams set the school record for receptions with 10 and also had 3 TD catches.

Season Bests

245 rushing yards - Paul Martin (Marian Catholic), 225 - Ty Cunningham (Northwestern)

5 TDs - Joe Clouse (East Stroudsburg North)

391 passing yards - Daniel Harding (Nazareth), 323 - Brendan Nosovitch (Cen. Catholic)

4 TD passes - Daniel Harding (Nazareth), Pat Duvigneaud (Jim Thorpe), AJ Long (Pius X)

12 receptions - Adam Bridgeforth (Nazareth), 11 - Kevin Gulyas (Cen. Catholic)

184 reception yardage - Andrew Bridgeforth (Nazareth), 171 - Kevin Gulyas (Cen. Catholic).

After Further Review

After stating last week (from the stats provided by Nazareth) that Adam Bridgeforth of Nazareth broke two school records vs. Liberty, it was brought to my attention by a reporter that he thought the Bridgeforth twins receiving yardage was reversed. I recorded every play (yard for yard) of the game using the TV video on demand. He was correct. Adam did catch 12 passes in the game for a new school record, but only had 117 yards. His twin brother, Andrew caught six passes for a school record 184 yards including touchdown catches of 18, 51 and 32 yards along with a 59 yard bomb in the third quarter. He also made a spectacular catch down the sideline that was ruled out of bounds (freeze frame shows it was a good catch) that would have put him in the elite '200 yard club.'

Week 5 Trivia

The Bridgeforth twins from Nazareth both hold a receiving record at their school. What other area brother tandem also has both of them holding a receiving record at their school?

Answer to Week 4 Trivia

Brendan Nosovitch went over 9,000 total yards combined for passing and rushing. He now has 9,372 yards. Who holds the District 11 record for combined yardage (pass, rush)?

DJ Lenehan of Wilson with 9,450 yards: 7,765 passing yards and 1,685 rushing yards.

Pete's Top-10: A new number-one

By PETER CAR
pcar@ttonline.com

Well, what a surprise, a new team sits at the top of the poll again this week.

In reality, Nazareth probably shouldn't have ever moved since the Blue Eagles are this year's version of the cardiac kids.

I mean, one-point comeback victories over Central and Liberty along with a 14-point fourth quarter comeback over Easton this year, and dare I say it, this may be the most exciting season in Nazareth football history.

Kudos to Melosky for having these kids believe. Now the read the top-ten ...

1. Nazareth (5-0)
Last week's rank: #2
Rob Melosky has coach of the year written all over him.
The Pick: Nazareth 49 - Bethlehem Catholic 14
2. Whitehall (4-1)
Last week's rank: #1
Can't fall behind 17-0 at home like they did against Easton. Nosovitch will be a handful this week.
The Pick: Central Catholic 28 - Whitehall 27
3. Freedom (5-0)
Last week's rank: #3
Pates will be 6-0.
The Pick: Freedom 34 - Northampton 7
4. Liberty (3-2)

It was a must-win situation last week and the Hurricanes rallied. Emmaus will be equally difficult.

Last week's rank: #7
Rovers proved again why you can never count Easton out of anything.
The Pick: Easton 56 - Dieruff 0

Last week's rank: #5
They were a kick away from knocking off the top team. One more chance to stay in, Central.
The Pick: Central 28 - Whitehall 27
7. Pen Argyl (5-0)
Last week's rank: #8
Knights get a bump. They've allowed 27 points through five games, but get a real test this week.

Both Liberty and Parkland sit at 3-2 overall and 2-2 in the Lehigh Valley Conference following Friday night's clash.

Liberty travels to Emmaus Friday night, while Parkland takes on lowly Allen this week, but 'Canes head coach Dave Brown knew this was a special victory for his troops, especially after the Hurricanes dropped their last two home games.

"We played well defensively and we were opportunistic when we needed to be," Brown said. "It was all about making more plays. We were able to do that tonight and we didn't turn the ball over at all. It's a big win for us, but every week is big."

Liberty opened the scoring of the contest with a 53-yard run by Harris (93 yards rushing) in the second quarter and Parkland answered with a 19-yard run by Rob Dvoracek (63 yards rushing, two touchdowns).

Parkland answered quickly in the second half with Dvoracek taking a six-yard run out of the Wildcat formation for a score with 11:27 in the third, followed by a 42-yard run by Baranek to put Parkland ahead 21-14.

That's when Orlando turned the game on its head with back-to-back turnovers to shift the momentum.

11-13.

Freedom, on the other hand, knows they would like to get back to some normal action. The Pates have beaten up on Allen and Dieruff twice in the past three weeks and played a rain soaked contest at Emmaus in the mud in between their Allentown foes.

All of that combined leaves Roeder desiring some better play Friday night.

"We really haven't been able to throw the ball the past couple weeks," said Roeder. "Our starters haven't played full games against Dieruff or Allen and we weren't able to throw the ball in the rain against Emmaus, so that's something we're looking forward to getting back to this week."

One thing the Pates have going for them this year is a strong sense of senior leadership that has led the way this season, spearheaded by senior Okezie Alozie.

Alozie has scored 11 touchdowns in his role at running back, along with being the veteran leader in the secondary.

That type of play has rubbed off on the whole Patriots squad to help them get to where they are now.

"We really have practiced great as a team this year," Roeder said. "Part of that is because of the way these seniors work. Guys like Okezie show everyone else how to work everyday and that rubs off on the rest of the guys."

Bethlehem Catholic (3-2, 2-2) fell to head coach Joe Henrich's former team, Emmaus, last week by a 49-14 margin. A 28-point second quarter by the Hornets broke things open for a 28-14 halftime lead.

Hawks QB Connor Casey rushed for 120 yards and two scores, as well as threw for 135 yards on 10-for-15 passing, but that wasn't enough, as Emmaus running back Khalel Artis rushed for 236 yards and four touchdowns.

The road for Becahi doesn't get any easier, as they take on perhaps the best team in the LVC, with Nazareth (5-0, 4-0) next on the docket this Saturday.

According to PennDOT spokesperson Ron Young, the Fahy Bridge sidewalk has been closed until further notice due to deteriorated steel supports and paving. Safety tape, barriers and signs warn anyone seeking to cross the walkway not to use it. Unfortunately, in this photo, the tape has been removed, the barriers shifted and the signage is being ignored. In a matter of just several minutes, six runners, three cyclists and four pedestrians were spotted using the sidewalk, which appears to be the primary crossing point between the south and north sides of Bethlehem for non-vehicular traffic.

Expansion approved a 3rd time

By BERNIE O'HARE

It was an anti-climatic end to Bethlehem's most controversial zoning matter in recent years. But on Sept. 28, as a hard rain pelted Town Hall, few of the original participants were present. Gus Elias, one of the owners of Elias' Farmers Market, located at 3131 Linden St., sat in a back row, next to his attorney, Joe Piperato. On the other side of the room sat city council candidate Al Bernotas, one of the three litigants who have fought this proposed expansion tooth and nail. He was flanked by a West Easton Borough Council candidate.

After a 35-minute executive session, the zoners approved the expansion for a third time in a 2-1 vote, with Ron Lutes dissenting. After four hearings, a judicial remand, four lawyers and 14 hours of testimony before packed houses, Bethlehem zoners reached the same conclusion they've already reached twice.

Once again, there are strict conditions.

- The use of the warehouse for wholesale distribution is banned.

- Idling by any vehicles or storage of any buses or trucks not already owned by Elias is prohibited.

- No refrigerated trucks may run on the property and compressors must face Linden Street, away from residences.

- Buffering and landscaping is required.

- No expansion in hours of operation is allowed and no additional retail space is permitted.

- No future expansions of the warehouse will be permitted, and no trash pick-up is permitted before 8 a.m.

Bernotas has vowed an appeal, once he receives the written opinion.

City zoners are going to the dogs

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

No matter what it does, Bethlehem's Zoning Hearing Board is going to make somebody unhappy. Neighbors opposed to an Elias Farmers' Market expansion took their case to court. So did developer Abe Atiyeh, after the zoners nixed his luxury apartment proposal at the corner of Center Street and Dewberry Avenue. And now it's official. The Zoning Hearing Board has gone to the dogs.

It all started when Tara Uhnak asked them at their Sept. 28 meeting to approve her pet-sitting business at 1887 Lincoln St. Representing Uhnak, Bethlehem Attorney Lisa Pereira presented a compelling case. Uhnak already has a fenced-in yard, and is unable to have more than six animals of any kind at her home, thanks to another ordinance. She never takes more than one family's pet at any given time and would first have a meet 'n greet with her own two dogs to make sure they socialize well.

Uhnak is a DeSales biology grad, and has been working in veterinary offices since she was 14.

When one neighbor pointed out that a child might stick his hand through the fence and be bitten, Uhnak told her she's insured by Pet Sitters International, and that the fence is located within her boundary lines. "Then I'm for it," answered the neighbor.

Thomas Bellesfield, who lives right across the street, told zoners he walks and runs by Uhnak's home all the time.

"I've never encountered a problem with odor," he stated, adding that it's the "nicest house in the neighborhood."

But zoner Ken Kraft asked, "What if I had a pack of rats and was going on vacation?" No problem, answered Uhnak.

Zoner Bill Fitzpatrick then warned Uhnak, "He's been known to tote a 10-foot rat," referring to an inflatable rat used by unions from time to time. Kraft, who is a union agent with the Painters' Union, responded, "It's 20 feet."

After a brief executive session in which zoners could be heard discussing ferrets, guinea pigs and goldfish, they granted Uhnak's appeal unanimously.

The joking continued in the next appeal, when Larry and Joan Haas sought a variance at their 1034 N. New St. property for a garage that would be attached to and considered part of their prop-

IRS offering relief to victims of Irene

Victims of Hurricane Irene that began on Aug. 26, 2011 in parts of Pennsylvania may qualify for tax relief from the Internal Revenue Service.

The President has declared several local counties as a federal disaster area, including Lehigh County. The declaration permits the IRS to postpone certain deadlines for taxpayers who reside or have a business in the disaster area. For instance, certain deadlines falling on or after Aug. 26, and on or before Oct. 31, have been postponed to Oct. 31, 2011. This includes corporations and other businesses that previously obtained an extension until Sept. 15 to file their 2010 returns, and individuals and businesses that received a similar extension until Oct. 17. It also includes the estimated tax payment for the third quarter, normally due Sept. 15.

In addition, the IRS is waiving the failure-to-deposit penalties for employment and excise tax deposits due on or after Aug. 26, and on or before Sept. 12, as long as the deposits are made by Sept. 12, 2011.

If an affected taxpayer receives a penalty notice from the IRS, the taxpayer should call the telephone number on the notice to have the IRS abate any interest and any late filing or late payment penalties that would otherwise apply. Penalties or interest will be abated only for taxpayers who have an original or extended filing, payment or deposit due date, including an extended filing or payment due date, that falls within the postponement period.

Affected taxpayers in a federally declared disaster area have the option of claiming disaster-related casualty losses on their federal income tax return for either this year or last year. Claiming the loss on an original or amended return for last year will get the taxpayer an earlier refund, but waiting to claim the loss on this year's return could result in a greater tax savings, depending on other income factors.

Individuals may deduct personal property losses that are not covered by insurance or other reimbursements. For details, see Form 4684 and its instructions. Affected taxpayers claiming the disaster loss on last year's return should put the Disaster Designation "Pennsylvania/Hurricane Irene" at the top of the form so the IRS can expedite the processing of the refund.

Taxpayers may download forms and publications from the official IRS website, irs.gov, or order them by calling 1-800-TAX-FORM (1-800-829-3676). The IRS toll-free number for general tax questions is 1-800-829-1040.

erty. They told zoners there would be no commercial use, and it could not be used as a living space because there were no utilities.

Louis Zsido, with his right arm in a sling, wanted to testify in support of the Haas family.

"Can you raise your right hand, please?" joked solicitor Mickey Thompson.

Before unanimously granting the Haas application, Kraft continued asking questions about rats.

For their final case, zoners would hear from Pamela Rodweller, whose name was pronounced "Rottweiler."

"Yeah, I get that a lot," she said. But as a result of a mix-up, Rodweller was never supplied with the placard to place on her property and provide notice of her appeal for a small addition to her home.

Zoners apologized to Rodweller, and told her they would consider her matter first at their next meeting.

Homer Research Labs

Bethlehem Steel Company dedicated its new $25 million research center built atop South Mountain Oct. 9, 1961. The center was named in honor of Arthur Bartlett Homer, the chairman of Bethlehem Steel.

Karen M. Samuels
Columnist

Homer declared at the ceremony that the labs were "a new horizon for steelmaking and the past is prologue."

Homer began his career with Bethlehem Steel in 1919 as assistant to the general superintendent of the Quincy Yard in their ship building division. He was born on April 14, 1896, in Belmont, Mass., into a family of descendants of Winslow Homer. He showed an early proclivity toward building machines, which he demonstrated at the Rhode Island School of Design. His father, Eleazer Bartlett Homer, was the director of the school. He went on to attend Brown University and spent his summers doing manual labor in manufacturing companies. Two months after Homer graduated from Brown, the United States entered World War I.

After graduating from the Naval Academy at Annapolis and the Submarine School in New London, Conn., Homer entered the Navy submarine service as a lieutenant. It was when he was assigned as the engineering officer of the first Navy fleet of submarines that he became acquainted with Bethlehem Steel. After the war, he was hired to work in its ship building division. In 1921, Homer transferred to Bethlehem as manager of diesel engineering and sales. Over the years he moved up to more powerful positions at Bethlehem Steel.

In 1940 Homer was made vice president in charge of the ship-building division. He led the production of more than 1,100 ships. Homer received the Presidential Certificate of Merit for Outstanding Service for his leadership during World War II. He became president of Bethlehem Steel in 1945 and chief executive officer in 1957. He was the highest-paid U.S. business executive in 1958. His yearly salary and bonuses totaled $511,249 at a time when the average worker's pay was $3,904. Homer was awarded doctorate degrees from five different colleges.

Homer married Sara Yocum in 1923. They resided in a large home next to Saucon Valley Country Club with their three children. Homer often played golf at the neighboring courses. He enjoyed hobbies of designing furniture and yaws, a two-masted sailboat. Homer sailed his sailboats to win many races. After his retirement from Steel in 1964, the couple moved to Old Saybrook, Conn. Homer passed away on June 18, 1972.

In 1958, Bethlehem Steel broke ground for the new research center on 1,000 acres stretched across the mountain. The company expanded the center in 1963 with a raw materials research center. Homer Labs attracted some of the best scientific minds in the steel business. The research labs were the largest in the world. More than 1,000 scientists and engineers worked there behind guarded gates.

Several new products were developed at the center such as Galvalume, a sheet metal with a zinc and aluminum coating used for roofs, siding and gutters. Dr. Vincent H. K. Chu, through his work at the lab, was awarded six patents in metallurgy, becoming one of the first Chinese Americans to hold patents in the United States. George William Ward received five patents for the development of chromium-coated containers that replaced tin beverage cans. One of the buildings contained a miniature cold rolling mill to test new methods of rolling steel.

In 1986, Bethlehem Steel sold five research buildings and 742 acres of land to Lehigh University for $18.75 million. In 2003, the International Steel Group (ISG) purchased Bethlehem Steel for $1.5 billion and kept three of the research buildings along with 75 former Steel employees. At the same time ISG closed Martin Tower, with most of the 300 employees there losing their jobs.

Mittal Steel Co. bought out ISG in 2005 and closed down the remaining three labs. The company moved 20 former ISG employees and lab equipment to their new expanded laboratory in Chicago in 2006. Lehigh University is making full use of their Mountain Top buildings which house the Ben Franklin Technology Ventures, the printing/mailling operations, Iacocca and Jordan halls. There has been no word of Mittal's plans for its three closed labs. The Northampton County tax assessment website does display information on any of the eight labs.

NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK

Newspapers are number one

BY BILL WILLIAMS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Newspapers are the number one source of local news. That's the theme of National Newspaper Week, Oct. 2-8. Well, duh. Of course they are.

Except for perhaps a few well-known papers that market themselves as national, every newspaper in the land considers local news its bread and butter. Consider all the newspapers in the country. Their combined news staffs dwarf those of any other medium. At virtually any function that is considered to be a potential source for news, newspaper reporters are there, while other news media have to cherry pick for the juiciest plums.

Other media often get their tips on the top breaking news stories of the day from what comes out in print, or from what shows up on newspapers' websites.

In the same sense that all politics is local, so is all news. It is the impact on a local reader that makes a happening newsworthy. Good editors instruct their writers to evaluate events by how they stand to affect the reader. Part of good news coverage is taking the time, and the words, to explain why a news item is significant. That can be tough for electronic media, which are forced to concentrate on brief, punchy reports.

Newspapers have the advantage of all that space. The number of words on the front page of a daily U.S. newspaper exceeds the number of words of an entire 30-minute network newscast, the Newspaper Association of America (NAA) has calculated.

Here are some more factsoids from NAA:

- The Super Bowl attracts about 49 percent of U.S. households. In Super Bowl week, 70 percent of U.S. adults read a newspaper.
- Ten million adults used Twitter in the past month, while 164 million read a newspaper in print or online in the past WEEK.
- In the last month, 82 percent of adults took some action as a result of newspaper advertising.

CNN founder Ted Turner once famously predicted that printed newspapers would disappear within 10 years. His prediction was made 30 years ago. With a nod to Mr. Turner, it should be acknowledged that an increasing number of people get their news from a newspaper's website rather than from its print edition. But newspapers are no junior players in cyberspace. NAA says that the leading local website in the top 25 markets across the nation are those of the local papers.

But aren't newspapers fading? Well, NAA says newspaper subscription cancellation rates dropped 42 percent in the last decade. Ink on paper is still king.

Bill Williams is the editorial editor for the The Paris Post-Intelligencer in Paris, Tenn.

The most trusted source of news

By DOUG ANSTAETT
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Despite all the doom-sayers out there writing obituaries for the nation's newspaper industry, 150 million Americans — two out of three adults — read a local newspaper last week.

Newspaper Association of America research from 2011 by Scarborough USA indicates almost 70 percent of your neighbors read either a printed newspaper or its online counterpart within the past seven days. How could that be?

Anstaett

Well, it's because newspapers still represent the most trusted source of news in America. I know that's hard to believe when you hear the mainstream media criticized at every turn on cable TV.

But it's true. When citizens want to get the facts, they turn to their local newspaper.

This is National Newspaper Week, and this year's theme, "Newspapers — Your Number One Source for Local News," underscores the importance of the nation's newspapers in the daily lives of citizens.

Newspapers certainly have their competitors out there: a hundred million websites, hundreds of thousands of bloggers, Facebook, Twitter, billboards, radio and television. And that competition is formidable.

But where does the vast majority of the "authoritative" news coverage originate that other media outlets utilize? Simple ... the nation's daily and weekly newspapers.

If print is dead, then why do more than 7,000 weekly, and 1,400 daily newspapers still open their doors every day and report what is happening in their communities?

Because they take seriously the importance of local news. They know those who plunk down their hard-earned cash want their newspaper to cover those events that are unique to each community.

Every day, newspapers in our local communities cover the big stories and the routine as well. Editors take to heart the newspaper's role as the most comprehensive source of a community's historical record, so births, deaths, weddings, engagements, business accomplishments, crime, courts, real estate transactions and a myriad of other day-to-day news events are covered along with the important governmental decisions that affect our lives.

Newspapers are the number one source of local news in every city and county in America because we show up each and every day and cover those stories. It's what our readers have come to expect.

And it's what we do better than any other news source in America.

Doug Anstaett is executive director of the Kansas Press Association and current president of the Newspaper Association Managers.

ELECTION POLICY
To candidates, readers

As we approach the Nov. 8 municipal election, the Bethlehem Press, in the interest of fairness, will halt the publication of columns by local government officials and letters to the editor submitted by those running for office.

The last week for publication of columns by local government officials will be the Oct. 5 edition.

We will, of course, continue to cover the local races, in news stories generated by our own reporters.

Letters to the editor, written by members of the community in support of a candidate, need to be received no later than 5 p.m., Oct. 21.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Zoning ordinance requires more work

Dear Editor:
I have been accepting the idea that a change from General Commercial (CG) to Limited Commercial (CL) has been a downzoning, notably on West Broad Street from First to Fifteenth Avenues, and also for much smaller sections of East Broad Street, Linden Street, and East Fourth Street. But as I have noted before, the height limits in the new CL would be greater than in the old CL and would be in fact greater than the old CG. I would like to discuss the new uses that would be permitted in this most restricted commercial district in the revision of the zoning ordinance proposed by the administration.

First, I would like to briefly mention improvements that have been made. Commercial communication towers will no longer be allowed as a matter of right in a CL district, a change that is long overdue. Five uses that used to require a special exception from the Zoning Hearing Board (ZHB) would be prohibited: parking lots that are not accessory to a permitted use, residential treatment facilities, assisted living facilities, personal care centers, and a funeral home with a crematorium. Funeral homes without a crematorium would still be permitted as a matter of right. A bar is now permitted as a matter of right while the proposed ordinance would require a special exception from the ZHB for a tavern. Given the present inclinations of the Zoning Hearing Board, this is probably not a significant difference. Finally, child day care centers and bed and breakfast inns would no longer

Children, with the help of volunteers, put their names on bags as they identify the artifacts they found during the Hunt for History Club. This particular event, held at Burnside Plantation, taught the children about archaeology.

When it's OK to play in the dirt

Shovels, buckets, trowels, brushes, screens, dirt, and dozens of children all came together as Burnside Plantation played host to "Archaeologist in Training", a Hunt for History Club event recently. And what child does not like to play in the dirt? Especially when the dirt holds treasures of pottery, glass, and small artifacts, such as arrowheads. The children learned about the changes of people and culture over time, based on the scientific recovery of data from the ground. After the artifacts were uncov-

Participating in the Hunt for History Club, the youngsters used trowels, shovels and buckets to excavate a site on the grounds in the garden area of Burnside Plantation. The children are all from Bethlehem. Gillette, also from Bethlehem, is a museum teacher and an employee of Historic Bethlehem Partnership.

ered they were placed in a bag and labeled with information. Muhlenberg College archaeologist and volunteer, Ben Carter, oversaw the event. "It is great to work with enthusiastic children who are excited to learn," he said. The Hunt for History Club is presented by the Historic Bethlehem Partnership in association with the Smithsonian Institute. It is an interactive yearlong program for children ages 4 to 12. LVPA NEWS

'Children's Hour' opens Oct. 19

This year, LVPA began in its usual unique way of handing each student an individual red rose to welcome him/her to the new school year.

Katya Hrichak
LVPA

This year has been different in two ways: we welcomed a new principal and the school adopted a new theme. Sharon Fehlinger comes to us with a wealth of experience ranging from being a music educator and band director, a graduate studies adjunct professor, and an administrator. In addition to her desire to promote academic excellence as well as promoting the arts, she is encouraging a new theme. Our brightly colored walls are decorated with signs promoting the message of kindness.

In keeping with this theme, our school sponsored an assembly presented by the Rachel's Challenge Foundation. This program was developed by the family of Rachel Scott, the first student murdered at Columbine HS. They have developed this inspirational program to encourage others to extend Rachel's message by abiding by her five rules: 1) eliminate prejudice; 2) dare to dream; 3) choose your influences; 4) use kind words; and 5) start a chain reaction. Most students were profoundly moved by the program and have decided to accept Rachel's Challenge.

Tying in with Rachel's Challenge, the theater department is performing a play titled "The Children's Hour." This play was written by Lillian Hellman and is a story about how innocent peoples' lives can be destroyed with lies and gossip. The show runs from Oct. 19 through 23. Theater students will also be performing "Endgame," a one-act play, in November.

Another challenge posed to the students is to create a performance within their specific major, encompassing "What LVPA Means to Me." The winners of this competition will get the opportunity to showcase their piece during the walkathon Oct. 27. All students will be walking from LVPA to SteelStacks where the performance will be held. In addition to being a fundraiser, this is also part of LVPA's joint partnership with ArtsQuest's SteelStacks. In addition to the walkathon, select groups, including the jazz and woodwind ensembles and women's choir, will be performing there on a monthly basis.

Another exciting project that has been introduced this year is a literary magazine led by Jacqueline Pratt. Students are encouraged to submit their best written and artistic works. The students working on the literary magazine will have the opportunity to select and edit the submissions and follow the process through publication.

Dancers are preparing for their big showcase in November, Dance Soup. Dance Soup is a performance of student-choreographed works. The

'Shared Treasure'

Expanded Allentown Art Museum reopens with a party

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Focus Editor

The Allentown Art Museum returns to its roots for its reopening with a preview party, 6 - 8 p.m. Oct. 15, for "Shared Treasure: The Legacy of Samuel H. Kress."

The museum's inaugural exhibition celebrates the 50th anniversary of the gifting of the Kress Collection of Early European Art. It features 40 selections from the museum's permanent collection and 30 works borrowed from other museums and institutions, including the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco and the National Gallery of Art.

The Kress Collection is the centerpiece of the museum, founded in 1934 at the behest of American Impressionist painter Walter Emerson Baum in a city-owned Federal-style house at the Rose Garden.

Collector and philanthropist Samuel H. Kress donated 51 works to the museum in 1960 and 1961. The works reflect the spectrum of Renaissance and Baroque art, including Italian, Dutch, Flemish and rare German paintings, and early European sculpture.

The museum has acquiring additional works of art, including 17th-century Dutch and Flemish paintings. The Kress Collection is said to have set the foundation for the museum's collecting philosophy, leading it to add complementary collections of paintings, decorative arts, works on paper and textiles.

"Shared Treasure" continues through Jan. 15, 2012. The museum's grand reopening coincides with "Who Shot Rock & Roll: A Photographic History, 1955 to the Present," Feb. 11 - May 13, 2012.

The Oct. 16 reopening follows a major expansion and renovation, for which the museum was closed for approximately one year.

The $15.4-million expansion and renovation project, designed by Venturi, Scott Brown and Associates (VSBA) and constructed by Alvin H. Butz, Inc., adds 8,000-square-feet, 3,100 of which is new exhibition space.

"As one of the Lehigh Valley's cultural crown jewels, we are extremely excited to show the public our beautiful facility," Museum President and CEO Brooks Joyner said. "VSBA has given the community a revitalized landmark that integrates the old world grandeur with a modern design."

During an Aug. 17 media tour of the museum, Joyner said, "We hope to have possession by the first of September and put the art work back in."

The new museum entrance is at the portico of the original 1901 church building. A modernized façade aligns with the original building. There are new galleries, a new education classroom, additional collections storage space, art and artifact preparation space, improved shipping and receiving area, new floor surfaces, state-of-the-art gallery lighting, larger reception area and improved persons with disabilities access. A new cafe and larger gift shop is to open this winter.

A new sculpture garden featuring Jean-Léon Gérôme bronze masterpieces, "Metallurgical Science" and "Metallurgical Worker," and Harry Bertoia, "Double Branched Gongs," will be bordered by Linden and Fifth streets.

The museum is introducing a new logo designed by Klunk & Millan. A new museum website is to be launched this month.

Docents conduct free 25-minute tours describing highlights of the collection, exhibitions and the new building at 1, 1:30, 2, 3 and 3:30 p.m. Oct. 16. Joyner discusses the "Shared Treasure" exhibition at the 2 p.m. Oct. 16 tour.

Upcoming:

Teachers' preview, 4 - 5:30 p.m. Nov. 1 (free);

Gallery Talk, "Heaven on Earth: Textiles of the Renaissance and Baroque," noon Nov. 2; Dr. Jacqueline Atkins, Allentown Art Museum curatorial consultant; "Cocktails & Collecting," 6 - 9 p.m. Nov. 5;

Lecture: "Conserving the Kress Collection," 6 - 8 p.m. Nov. 8; Dr. Dianne Dwyer Modestini and Dr. Nica Gutman, New York University Conservation Center (Tickets: 610-432-4333, ext. 129, or emailing events@allentownartmuseum.org

Cover, "Songs Of Hope," Bach Choir of Bethlehem's latest CD

artist Elaine Christy, harp. From the Psalms of David to 18th century poetry by Christopher Smart written in an English lunatic asylum and 20th century poetry by Carl Sandburg written in Depression era Chicago, the texts of "Songs of Hope" are moving affirmations of hope in the face of adversity. In the hands of composers Bach, Britten, Bernstein, and Paulus, these amazing words resonate with the longing for peace and healing in our own time.

The recording includes: J.S. Bach, Motet "Singet dem Herrn," BWV 225; Benjamin Britten, "Rejoice in the Lamb, Opus 30"; Leonard Bernstein, "Chichester Psalms"; Stephen Paulus, "A Dream of Time."

The words of the psalmist, King David, are heard in both German and Hebrew, first in verses from Psalms 149 and 150 as set by Bach in the motet, "Singet dem Herrn ein neues Lied" (Sing unto the Lord a New Song) and at the end in verses from six Psalms in the original Hebrew as set by Bernstein in "Chichester Psalms," a version for chorus, countertenor, organ and percussion. It includes the well-known Psalm, "The Lord is my Shepherd."

In "Rejoice in the Lamb," Britten set lines from Christopher Smart's poem, "Jubilate Agno," for chorus, four soloists and organ.

The words of American poet-laureate Carl Sandburg were set by Paulus in "A Dream of Time." The work was commissioned by The Bach Choir in 2008 for Funfgeld's 25th anniversary as artistic director and conductor. It premiered at the 2009 Bethlehem Bach Festival.

The Bach Choir gave the New York City premiere of "A Dream of Time" Sept. 9, 2011, in Saint Paul's Chapel for the commemoration of the 10th anniversary of 9/11.

Sandburg's words include: "Hope is a tattered flag and a dream of time ... Hope is an echo, hope ties itself yonder, yonder. The spring grass showing itself where least expected, The rolling fluff of white clouds on a changeable sky. ..."

"And children singing chorals of the Christ child ... And Bach being broadcast from Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, And tall skyscrapers practically empty of tenants, And the hands of strong men groping for handholds ..."

The Sandburg text is interwoven with the text, "Dona Nobis Pacem." Paulus quotes the musical theme of Bach's "Dona Nobis Pacem" from the "Mass in B Minor."

The Choir has released seven recordings of Bach works on the Dorian and Analekta labels.

Musikfest Cafe goes to Smithereens

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Focus Editor

The Smithereens is a name derived from Warner Bros. "Looney Tunes" cartoon stalwart, Yosemite Sam, who was wont to say, "Varmint, I'm a-gonna blow you to smithereens!"

"I came up with the name," says Dennis Diken, drummer for The Smithereens. "For years, I wanted to be in a band. And every time I'd come up with a name, I'd jot it down in a notebook. The Smithereens was a name I'd heard growing up, watching cartoons."

The Smithereens — Jim Babjak, lead guitar; Severo "The Thrilla" Jornacion, bass; Pat DiNizio, lead vocals, and Diken — bring their power-pop sound to Musikfest Cafe, ArtsQuest Center, SteelStacks, Bethlehem, at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 9.

The band, which hails from New Jersey, has played Lehigh Valley venues, including the Sellersville Theatre.

DiNizio, who holds Memorial Day picnics where The Smithereens perform for a select group of fans at his Scotch Plains, N.J., home, played a gig last March as part of his "Recession-Buster" tour, at the home of Smithereens' fan, Jay Fletcher of Richland Township, Bucks County.

There's another local connection. Diken befriended jazz saxophone player and entertainer Willie Restum and saw him perform at the Allentown Fair.

In April, The Smithereens released their first CD of original music in a decade. At Musikfest Cafe, the group will play tunes from "Smithereens 2011," as well as their hits, "A Girl Like You," "Too Much Passion," "Blood and Roses" and "Only a Memory."

"We kind of wing it," Diken says of the band's concerts. "We cover all of the songs that we think people will want to hear. Pat [DiNizio] calls the sets and I think he senses the vibe in the room."

For the new CD, the band, which has been together for 31 years, reunited with one of their original producers, Don Dixon, at Mitch Easter's studio, Kernersville, N.C., after working on the songs at their original East Village rehearsal space. Basic tracks were recorded one year ago, with overdubs last December and January.

"Pat [DiNizio] is still the key songwriter. It was probably our most collaborative effort. This album presented an opportunity to work on the material together."

The band did two videos for the CD, for "Sorry," the first single, and for "One Look at You."

"There are more opportunities at everybody's fingertips to release and promote records. The record companies aren't these big banks anymore to lend money for tour support and to record."

"We just felt that the industry had changed so much so that there was not pressure to make a radio-friendly record. We went in and played our hearts out and threw all caution to the wind and made a record we were happy with as a result."

"We hit the road every year. I think there's a little more attention as a result of the album. It's very warmly-received. Our fans seem to like it."

"We're talking about working up material for a new album."

Diken drums for other concert acts, including, recently, Ronnie Spector. He writes CD liner notes for reissued records by the Four Seasons and Beach Boys. He even does some deejaying at WFMU.

He released a solo CD, "Late Music," by Dennis Diken with Bell Sound.

"I think being a fan keeps me going," says Diken, who lives in Woodridge, N.J.

That's how he met Willie Restum, an Allentown native who lived in Los Angeles and performed in Las Vegas, Miami Beach and Lake Tahoe.

"Your book [an as-told-to book published in 1986 and written by this writer] is the reason I know Willie [Restum]. The Smithereens were making our 'Blow Up' album in L.A. in '91. I was in a used book store. I was thumbing through 'They All Came To See Me' and saw all these photos." Diken helped arrange for an LA Weekly cover story on Restum, who had a cameo in the Rolling Stones' "Saint of Me" music video in 1998.

"We became real fast friends," Diken says of Restum, who died at 76 in 2006.

Diken says Restum was a trouper. So is Diken.

"I think that anybody who sticks it out — they're thanking their lucky stars that they can still do it and that there's still an audience for them. They're happy to be having fun doing it at this point."

"We're just having a ball doing it. I think what keeps everyone going is remember the thrill of picking up their first guitar or drums and doing it. I think that's what keeps Paul McCartney and Elvis Costello doing it — and us."

Kids' version of 'vacation' has changed

Is there one particular place you always associate with childhood joys?

When you think of your teen years, is there any teenage hangout that stays in your warm memory bank?

For me, the answer to both those questions is the same place — Knoebels Grove in Elysburg.

I grew up in Shamokin, about a 30-minute drive to Knoebels, or, shorter if you drove fast. When we went on rare family outings that were considered a special treat, we went to Knoebels.

When we had our yearly family reunion, we went to Knoebels. The amusement park has a big swimming pool, probably one of the nicest I've ever seen. But all we did as kids was look through the fence.

Our cooling off was confined to walking in the crystal clear creek that runs through Knoebels' scenic picnic area. But I'll tell you this: Never did we feel deprived as kids because we swam in the creek instead of the pool. We thought it was a big treat.

An even bigger treat was our yearly family vacation. Our extended family—grandmother, aunts, uncles and cousins—packed the cars and drove a half-hour to our vacation spot: Knoebels Grove.

At the time, Knoebels used to have small wooden cottages it rented to families. The cottages were in such demand we had to reserve a year ahead of time. And when it was time to go there, we kids thought it was Christmas all over again.

We stayed in cottages called The Old Schoolhouse and The Old Trolley Car. The entire cottage was about the size of a narrow trolley car.

It was lucky there were outdoor picnic tables because our family would never fit inside, even if we all stood up.

Sleeping arrangements were something kids today would report to authorities as child abuse. We kids slept three in a bed. Sometimes the fourth child slept on the bottom of the bed, beneath kicking feet.

I usually slept under the bed. It was nice and cool on the linoleum and no one kicked me or peed on me during the night.

We kids thought it was Utopia. Six decades later, I can still recall the taste and feel of those childhood vacations.

A classmate recently sent me a video of Knoebels Park during its recent flooding. It tore at my heart to see the devastation.

Roads we once trod on so happily are torn up. Chunks of roadway are on top of destroyed amusement rides. The picnic area, a place of so many timeless memories for me, is underwater in the photos.

But the classmate who sent the flood photos assured us Knoebels is open again. That place is amazing with superb management.

When disaster strikes, as it has periodically over the decades, the park management digs in, hires local help and does an incredible job of coming back quickly.

Knoebels always takes care of its own problems sufficiently by paying locals to help. But I suspect if it put out a call for volunteers many of us would come from all over. Our heartstrings are attached to our old teenage stomping grounds.

Knoebels was where we as teenagers went to dance, roller skate, and yes, to go on fun dates.

As I was reminiscing about Knoebels this week and thought back to our family vacations, it struck me how those simple, inexpensive outings contrast to what today's kids consider a treat.

In a few weeks, my grandkids are going on a family vacation. It won't be to a small cottage where they have to sleep three and four to a bed. They are going to South Africa for a safari adventure.

When I was a kid, I was never outside the country. Heck, I didn't get outside the state unless it was to visit my father in New Jersey.

My grandkids go to a different country each year, with Italy being their favorite destination. They are typical of their friends.

While they are probably more blessed than some kids, I doubt there are too many kids today who would jump up and down in excitement at being able to picnic in a park.

I doubt they would be thrilled at walking in the cool, clear waters of a creek. I think today's kids would feel deprived if they couldn't swim in the park's swimming pool.

Today's kids are used to more. Way more.

But I don't think they are having more fun.

Sometimes I feel sorry for kids who have so much and get so much more. I feel sorry for them because they'll never treasure simple childhood joys that were shiny moments in my childhood.

How many of today's kids would thrill to having a slice of cold watermelon that was chilled in the creek during a family picnic?

How many kids would feel privileged to finally be able to afford the admission to swim in a pool?

How many kids today find joy in walking through woods and running flower-filled meadows?

How many kids will feel a rush of happiness at picking wild blueberries and finding a lush patch waiting for eager mouths?

I don't know what memories will warm the hearts of today's kids when they are old.

But I do know when I think of my own childhood I think back to when I knew I was rich—rich with the simple joys of a very uncomplicated childhood.

Protect your home from winter 'visitors'

Fall is not necessarily the end to the pest season. Insects begin their preparations to "overwinter" so they can emerge next spring and start a new generation, and they often do this in your home.

Insects and rodents are hazardous to your health. Organisms that cause such diseases as typhus, typhoid, Lyme disease, West Nile virus and Bubonic plague are transmitted from pests to humans. Insect parts have been proven to cause allergies. Insects are destructive to property, causing billions of dollars of damage to construction. Rodents have been linked to almost 25 percent of all unexplained fires in the country.

Pest control is a combination of chemical and non-chemical methods and a collaborative effort between the professional pest manager and the homeowner.

According to research figures, two German cockroaches in early spring can become 500 by summer; or in just 90 days. Two fleas that hitch a ride indoors on the family pet need only 18 days to multiply to 500. Two mice can become 2,500 in a year's time.

The estimated multiplication rates at which common household pests can produce 500 offspring are: subterranean termites - three days; mice - four months; carpenter ants - one year.

Homeowners can take steps to help protect against infestation. Here are some indoor tips:

Store garbage pails in dry places, not moist, dark areas like under the kitchen sink; empty often and keep clean.

Don't keep old newspapers and paper bags for extended periods.

Recycle often. Inspect plants for pests before bringing indoors.

Transfer dry food products to air tight containers; keep cupboards clean.

Inspect for possible entry points such as windows, door frames and pipes; caulk or screen areas to seal openings.

Outdoor tips include: Store firewood outdoors, away from the side of the house and off the ground; shake off logs before bringing inside; only bring in what you will burn immediately.

Trim tree limbs so they don't touch or hang over the house.

Prevent leaves from accumulating in gutters or outside drains.

Minimize exterior lights on buildings.

Insect pests aren't the only things that would like to live in your house in the winter. Squirrels shop for cozy winter quarters, and your attic may be just the spot for them.

Check attic openings and vents. Seal any that may permit entry. Pieces of loose flashing or shingles should be refastened or replaced with hardwood (for example, oak).

Bats enter through spaces where joined materials have pulled away. They often get through louvered vents with loose screening, roof peaks, dormer windows or areas where flashing has pulled away from the roof or siding. Bats can crawl through holes the size of a quarter.

To cover louvered vents or large gaps and cracks, use window screening or hardware cloth. Fill smaller cracks with expanding foam insulation or caulking compound.

When bat-proofing, timing is crucial. Never seal holes May through July. You can trap the females and their pups inside.

Although people often aren't thrilled about sharing their living quarters with bats, bats make good neighbors. One little brown bat can eat 600 mosquitoes per hour, and big brown bats eat many agricultural pests.

Since bats tend to come back to the same place year after year, you might want to get a bat box so they have a safe place to raise their pups and you get the bats out of your house, while still benefiting from their insect control.

Paul Taylor set to dazzle at Lafayette

By JENNIFER MCKEEVER
Special to The Press

I guess you could call me a Paul Taylor groupie. I had the honor of working with Linda Kent, an original company member of Paul Taylor, who taught me how to soar. So I might be a little biased when I say that the Paul Taylor Dance Company is amazing.

I also know some Paul Taylor trivia. Taylor was elected to knighthood by the French government, and in 2000 was awarded legion d'Honneur for contributions to the French culture.

The Paul Taylor Dance Company performs at 8 p.m. Oct. 5 in Williams Center for the Arts, Lafayette College, Easton.

Taylor choreographs two pieces each year and attends rehearsal every morning, even though he is in his early eighties. He is one of the few choreographers who can present three different works so diverse you can't tell it's the same choreographer.

From a repertoire of 130 works, Taylor chooses 19 pieces for the company's annual tour. In the performance at the Williams Center, Sean Mahoney of Bensalem, Bucks County, will dance in every piece.

At one time, Mahoney had 24 understudies. Luckily for Mahoney and the 15 other dancers in the Taylor Company, there are very few injuries.

"Coming to Williams Center for the Arts takes you back to vaudeville and back to the roots," says Mahoney. He remembers performing at the State Theatre with American Repertory Ballet and "frequenting Perkins."

Taylor creates his work in a collaborative way by presenting his dancers with an idea. The dancers then interpret while Taylor manipulates the movement into his own work.

The Lafayette performance should expand everyone's expectations of how spectacularly the human body can move. Taylor's choreography should open your mind to depths of perception with extraordinary creation.

The vigorous "Mercuric Tidings" is one of the fastest musical pieces Mahoney has ever danced. The music is by Franz Schubert, with excerpts from Symphonies No. 1 and No. 2. In the work, originally performed in 1982, the 13 dancers negotiate patterns "like a molecular biologist works with atoms," says Mahoney. "It's an awesome dance."

"Beloved Renegade" is based on a Walt Whitman line from "Leaves of Grass": "I sound my barbaric yawp over the roofs of the world." According to Mahoney, "It's an idea, an inspiration, and if people walk away discussing whether they loved or hated it, the work has done its job." The music is Francis Poulenc's "Gloria."

"Piazzolla Caldera" is like a bolero, a styled version of modern dance with a tango flair; with music by Astor Piazzolla and Jerzy Peterburshsky. The men wear pinstripes and the women wear exquisite lacy dresses — all costumed by Santo Loquasto, with dramatic lighting by Jennifer Tipton.

'50/50' works the percentages

You'll laugh. You'll cry. It's your choice.

Choice is an underlying theme in "50/50," where the title refers to the 50 percent chance of a cancer patient to survive a particularly challenging spinal cancer.

The cancer patient, Adam (Joseph Gordon-Levitt), is a successful 27-year-old Seattle public radio station reporter, diagnosed with a rare form of spinal cancer.

His buddy, Kyle (Seth Rogen), who is always on the prowl, becomes his champion.

"50/50" is not a downer, though there are serious moments, obviously because of the subject matter. The comedy arises naturally from the dark humor of that same subject material.

Musing about Adam's 50 percent chance of survival, Kyle concludes optimistically, "If you're a casino, you'd have the best odds."

The movie has its raunchy "American Pie" moments, thanks to Rogen's off-hand comedic delivery. There are also a few "Grumpy Old Men" scenes with Adam's two older fellow chemo-therapy patients (Philip Baker Hall and Matt Frewer). The movie also has its "buddy film" moments with Rogen and Gordon-Levitt a great casting coup.

Bryce Dallas-Howard is another fine casting choice as Rachael, Adam's conflicted girlfriend who doesn't quite know how to handle his illness. Anna Kendrick ("Up in the Air") is also a wonderful choice as Katherine, Adam's therapist. Anjelica Huston plays Adam's mother.

The interesting back story to "50/50" is that Rogen befriended Will Reiser, who wrote the screenplay for the movie based on his own real-life bout with cancer.

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein

Look for a possible Oscar actor nomination for Gordon-Levitt whose sunny face (with those Roy Rogers' Asian eyes) undergoes some drastic changes to represent a cancer patient, but retains the open visage of a silent-movie star.

There also could be a Oscar supporting actor nomination for Rogen, who is remarkably good in the role.

Jonathan Levine directs the fine cast with a rare combination of sensitivity and rowdiness. He uses closeups and bright lighting effectively for conversation scenes between Gordon-Levitt and Rogen. Scenes between Gordon-Levitt and Dallas-Howard have romantic and darker tones.

"50/50" dares to joke about a very serious topic. Members of certain ethic groups can use certain words and not offend each other. So, too with screenwriter Will Reiser: He's been there. He's a survivor. He has more than earned the right to laugh at it. With "50/50," movie-goers who appreciate that will laugh along with him.

The status of statins detailed

First of two parts

Q. I've heard statins referred to as wonder drugs that we should put in our drinking water. Do they deserve this reputation?

Statins are worth two columns because so many seniors take them. We'll begin with background on cholesterol.

Cholesterol is a fat-like substance in blood. You need it to produce cell membranes, protect nerves, and make hormones.

The body can make all the cholesterol it needs. Most cholesterol is made by your liver. You also get cholesterol from foods such as meat, eggs and dairy products. Too much cholesterol is dangerous, because cholesterol can lead to blockages in your blood vessels.

Cholesterol is transported through the bloodstream in packages called lipoproteins. Low-density lipoproteins (LDL) deliver cholesterol to the body. High-density lipoproteins (HDL) remove cholesterol from the bloodstream. LDLs are often described as "bad" cholesterol; HDLs are called "good" cholesterol.

If there are too many LDLs in the blood, they will combine with other material in your bloodstream to manufacture plaque, a waxy crud that builds up on the inner walls of the blood vessels that feed your brain and heart. When this build-up occurs, you have a condition called "atherosclerosis," which is commonly referred to as "hardening of the arteries."

If a clot forms in blood vessels narrowed by plaque, it can block blood flow, which can cause a heart attack or a stroke. The recommended levels of cholesterol are as follows:

Total cholesterol level should be less than 200 mg/dL (milligram per deciliter) "Borderline high" is defined as between 200 and 239 mg/dL. You're risking heart disease if your reading is 240 mg/dL or more.

LDL cholesterol level should be less than 130 mg/dL. "Borderline high" is between 130 and 159 mg/dL. There's heart-disease risk if your reading is 160 mg/dL or more.

HDL cholesterol levels should be at 60 mg/dL or higher to cut the risk of heart disease. You're at high risk for heart disease if you have a reading less than 40 mg/dL.

If your total cholesterol level is high because of high LDLs, you may be at higher risk of heart disease or stroke. If your total level is high only because of a high HDLs, you're probably not at higher risk.

Some physicians use the ratio of total cholesterol to HDLs. The ratio is obtained by dividing the HDLs into the total cholesterol. The goal is to keep the ratio below 5 to 1.

Statins, which are also known as HMG-CoA reductase inhibitors, are drugs that reduce cholesterol by blocking the liver substance responsible for making cholesterol. Statins may also help your body reabsorb cholesterol that has accumulated on your artery walls.

Statins are relatively safe for most people.

Some of the best-known statins include simvastatin (Zocor), atorvastatin (Lipitor), lovastatin (Mevacor), pravastatin (Pravachol), rosuvastatin (Crestor), and fluvastatin (Lescol).

Your cholesterol level is just one number doctors consider before prescribing a statin. If your only risk for heart attack or stroke is high cholesterol, you may not need medication.

Other risk factors are: lifestyle, age, family history of heart attack and stroke, smoking, weight, blood pressure, diabetes, narrowing of arteries in your neck/extremities and overall health.

Changes to your lifestyle such as quitting smoking and exercising may have a greater impact on reducing risk of heart disease and stroke than medication alone.

Statins can have potential side effects such as liver damage, pain in muscles and joints, constipation, nausea and diarrhea. Those who take statins have their liver function tested periodically.

Next week: More benefits from taking statins.
