

Bluda, Charles Jr.

WRITES HE'S WELL, HAPPY.

SEP 12 1942

Charles Bluda Jr., pfc., U. S. M. C., writes from his post aboard a United States heavy cruiser "somewhere in the Pacific" to his mother, Mrs. Catherine Bluda, 1510 East Seventh Street, that he is well and happy and enjoying his work with Uncle Sam's Leathernecks. The letter was received September 2.

Bluda enlisted right after Pearl Harbor and on January 2 was called up for duty and sent to Parris Island, S. C., for his preliminary training. He was afterwards assigned to sea duty and from time to time has written his family of some of his experiences.
