

Horn Jr., Alvin J.

HE'LL CHASE SUBS

Alvin J. Horn Jr., a peacetime resident of Bethlehem and now a fireman, third class, in the United States Navy, is receiving specialized training at Miami, Fla., to better fit him for what may be the most crucial battle of the war—the anti-submarine fight.

Young Horn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin J. Horn Sr., of 1240 Maple Street, enlisted in the Navy last October and now is enrolled in the rapidly expanding Submarine Chaser Training Center, the only service school of its kind in the country.

A former student of Bethlehem High School, Horn played varsity football and basketball on the school's teams. He also played semi-pro football and basketball for the Elliott A. C. MAY 1 1943

Following the completion of his training at Miami, he will be assigned to a combat submarine chasing unit charged with one purpose and one purpose only—to rid the United Nations supply routes of enemy raiders.
