CITY Council supports bigger fines

BY DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Parking tickets just jumped; what was a $10 fine is now a $15 fine. As Bethlehem Parking Authority Chair Joe Hoffmeier and Executive Director Kevin Livingston looked on, council approved the increase 5-2.

For scofflaws who park in spaces reserved for the handicapped, the fine went from $50 to $100. Several other categories of violations also had fines increased.

The new fine schedule was not fine with Councilwomen Olga Negrón and Paige Van Wirt, the two "no" votes. "I think [the increase] will be a big burden, especially for the people downtown and in Southside," said Negrón. She said the movement to increase fines is a "snowball" that is growing and not stopping.

In other business, Director of Public Works Michael Alkhal explained to the council plans to move the recycling center from its current location on Illick's Mill Road to a new spot farther down the service road that runs through the existing facility. It will move the center away from the park-like area which is home to the Bethlehem Golf Club, Memorial Pool and the Pennsylvania Playhouse.

The hearing room was packed with supporters of a resolution

Broughal MS Assistant Principal Nancy Zoudeh pops into the conference room to invite Principal Rick Amato to another meeting. Discussing the 2019-20 school year with Amato are parents Josephine Young, Rachel Vaughn and Kumari Ghafoor-Davis. "Parents say they want their kids to go to school with the 'fast horses,'" Amato says. "Well, my kids are stallions."

'It starts from the top' Parents cite Broughal principal, faculty as crucial to their children's success

In June, BASD selected Broughal MS for a Comprehensive Support & Improvement (CSI) plan, based on the school's three-year average of math and English Language Arts (ELA) scores on the Pennsylvania System of School Assessment (PSSA) tests administered annually to eighth-graders. Broughal's CSI plan, using $545,000 of Title I federal funds, encompasses three main areas: culture and mindset; instruction and assessment; and professional development. Today's feature – part three in a series about the CSI plan – looks at the changes from the perspective of Broughal parents, with additional commentary from a local literacy advocate.

'The success plan'
Kumari Ghafoor-Davis has a son in seventh grade. "I actually drive my son here," she says, explaining that she withdrew her son from another BASD middle school last year. "I saw my child dimming [at his previous school]."

Broughal Band members march in the Nazareth Halloween parade Oct. 19, accompanied by Adam Stoltz. Stoltz, who leads the band, jazz band, orchestra, and other music and theater extracurriculars, along with Amy Putlock, Jenni Truchan and Jodi Trostle, is a favorite among Broughal students.

At Broughal, however, "he was here a month and they saw his talent. [The teachers] are interested, they're invested, and they care."

During the enrollment process at Broughal, she discussed her son's challenges in meeting his academic goals with the guidance counselor, who worked to determine appropriate supports and put them in place rapidly.

The counselor's responsiveness impressed Ghafoor-Davis.

"In my work," she said, "I want to know, What is the success plan? And [the guidance counselor] wanted my son to have a success plan."

One of the teachers helping her son succeed is math instructor Michael Weiss. Part of the learning environment at Broughal is the teachers' clearly expressed belief that "you can get this," Ghafoor-Davis asserts—a belief that contrasts with expectations other teachers have had for her son.

"They just assumed he'd do the wrong thing," she said.

Another component of Weiss's success in teaching math is a policy that encourages skill-building by allowing students to earn credit by making up missed assignments. In contrast to punitive, permanent grade-docking, incomplete work can be completed later, so students are encouraged to stay on top of the skills they're learning.

"He comes home and does IXL [math problem sets] himself," Ghafoor-Davis marveled.

'Teaching them to problem-solve, so they're ready'

Josephine Young also enrolled her son at Broughal after an unhappy beginning at another middle school. She explained that she supporting a Federal "Medicare care for all." Council voted unanimously to approve the non-binding resolution. Applause broke out around the room from supporters of the resolution.

"We face a crisis. Our nation's health care sector is eating the rest of the economy and our society alive," said Richard Master, who represented the group, which he said numbered about 800 members.

Master said in his company, a family health care plan costs $28,000 per year or $14 per hour. He said he expects that cost to go up 10 percent next year.

He said health care costs for the city of Bethlehem increase every year, but are "profound and volatile" and can't be accurately predicted, making it hard to budget.

"The only way to get this issue under control is by instituting a federally-financed, privately delivered health care system," said Master.

Several citizens spoke in support of the Medicare for All resolution, among them Anthony Downing, who, wearing a back brace, had slowly approached the lectern.

took advantage of open enrollment, but found that the other school ultimately didn't work for her son, who is now an eighth-grader at Broughal.

"As parents," she said, "we're raising men." She notes that at Broughal, all cultural heritage is deemed worthy of honor and recognition, and contrasts that attitude with a world that often sees only color.

Young praised the social and emotional learning that goes on at Broughal.

"They nip things in the bud here," she explains. However, teaching young teenagers to behave appropriately doesn't come at the cost of circumventing parents, she continued. "Teachers and parents play very strong roles - when athletes and movie stars thank people for their success, they thank their teachers and their parents. This school honors who I am by asking me to be part of it."

The changes in math instruction are also hitting home for Young and her son.

"They're teaching them to problem-solve," she asserts, noting some schools "manage to the numbers." As educational consultants explained, exploration before formalization is a more challenging way to teach math than process memorization, but it allows the students to own the skills they develop. BASD administrators deliberately selected a math professional development program for Broughal teachers that would improve students' critical thinking and problem-solving skills.

District officials hope to improve students' rapid recall of math facts, but more importantly, teach them how to use what they already know to tackle math problems posed in new and unexpected ways.

Rachel Vaughn, mother of a sixth-grade girl and two former Broughal students who are now at Liberty HS, concurs. If students just memorize steps, she says, they don't know why they're doing what they're doing. Vaughn said she sees the value of the students problem-solving out loud and in teams in the classroom.

"You have to learn from each other," she asserted, pointing out that solving a math problem can take many different paths. "One way doesn't work for everyone."

The problem-solving skills taught at Broughal go beyond math. Young believes the school's holistic approach to education is exactly what's needed.

"I just go around bragging about the school to people who don't know it," she said with a smile.

She reflected on her knowledge, as a parent, that her children have different personalities. At Broughal, she said, "they care about the whole child... the family."

Being seen as an individual has encouraged Young's son to do what it takes to be successful in school.

"It's a great feeling," she said, "when your son comes home and says he recognized he needed extra help" and proudly reports, "I brought a C up to a B."

'You're not in it for what I'm in it for'

Ghafoor-Davis, Vaughn, and Young are united in their praise for Principal Rick Amato.

"It starts with leadership," Young said. "It starts from the top."

Indeed, the "culturally responsive teaching" that Ghafoor-Davis sees her son receiving follows the tone set by Amato, who became Broughal principal in 2016.

"I realized my son loved [chorus director Amy] Putlock when he told me she read "The Hate U Give" and said, "She gets it, Mom."

"The Hate U Give" is a 2017 novel that covers issues like "code switching" (changing between dialects of English based on one's setting or audience) in the African-American community, the Black Lives Matter movement, and other urban themes.

"It's the difference between knowing you teach students of color," Ghafoor-Davis said, "and getting it. Having low expectations is just as bad as no expectations."

Vaughn concurred. "For young kids, it's easy for their minds to be trained in a direction," she contends, including an unproductive direction of low self-esteem and low personal expectations.

Vaughn's conviction that Broughal is the right place for her daughter testifies to the alignment of her own goals and the teachers' goals. She helped Ghafoor-Davis and Young put into words the disconnect they experienced at their children's former school: "You're not in it for what I'm in it for."

Amato's gift is wanting to know about students' lives and cultures, while never using environmental challenges as an excuse for low expectations. His bookshelf contains both "The Wisdom of Wooden" (by legendary UCLA basketball coach John Wooden) and Christopher Emdin's "For White Folks Who Teach in the Hood."

In his 2016 book about the "pedagogy of poverty," Emdin talks about the practice, deeply ingrained in education, of rewarding docility. Students who sit quietly and appear to listen are treated well; students who ask questions or display their lack of engagement are reprimanded or punished. The educational consultants interviewed for this series called the problem "playing the school game," and noted that children from privileged backgrounds may appear to do well because they've trained themselves to sit still and be quiet, but the inappropriate pedagogy and lack of engagement sells them short too.

Amato and his faculty are working on changing all that by building a program that neither ignores students' lives outside school nor uses cultural factors as an excuse for low achievement.

"The taxpayer ... doesn't recognize the impact this is going to have" The educational transformation at Broughal coincides with a larger community effort to improve academic achievement at all area schools. Tim Fallon, CEO of the Lehigh Valley Public Telecommunications Corporation, is leading an initiative called Lehigh Valley Reads. The goal of the program is to have 75 percent of local students entering fourth grade reading proficiently by 2021, and 100 percent grade-level reading proficiency for entering fourth-graders in 2025.

Lehigh Valley Reads is focused on primary-grade literacy, but Fallon sees the project growing.

"When we achieve that goal [of 100 percent literacy at the end of third grade], does it make sense to expand beyond it? Of course," he said. He points to other investments in education made by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, such as the American Graduate program, aimed at increasing high school graduation rates and helping high school graduates get the additional education or training they need to find gainful employment.

Fallon said he recognizes that investments in primary and secondary education can yield economic returns—something he thinks many Americans are too short-sighted to notice.

"I don't think taxpayers recognize the impact that this is going to have," he laments, "but they are going to pay less in taxes, because we're going to have lower school costs going forward, and most importantly, we'll have kids who will graduate, and be ready to go to work or college."

Nonprofit programs like Lehigh Valley Reads and BASD initiatives like RBG3, the district's phonemic-awareness-centered approach to elementary-grade literacy, as well as the Broughal CSI plan, are investments in the human assets of the Lehigh Valley. Fallon is adamant that they're not just the ethically right thing to do, but also the pragmatic choice - a view that is a stark counterpoint to the short-termism that plagues both corporate and public investment decisions.

"Spend the money now so you don't have to spend 10 times that amount later, is not something we as a Christian Mercado and Cheryl Zupko were two characters who appeared as part of the Lehigh Valley Charter HS for the Arts' Halloween parade float, titled Deus Ex Machina, inspired by Day of the Dead and Steampunk aesthetics. The float premiered at the Bethlehem City Halloween Parade Nov. 3 and also led the procession of students to the school's own Halloween costume contest at Levitt Pavilion Nov. 4. The float theme was fully developed, designed and executed by the Charter Arts Production Arts department. The sophomore class selected and altered the costumes. "You have to equip the teachers"

Math consultant Jason Adair describes the challenge of modern education this way: "I use a piece of data: the future jobs report that comes out every five years. In 2020, [the number-one skill that will be needed] is problem solving, number two is critical thinking, and number three is creativity. 'I do, you do, we do' does none of that. We have a generation of kids who look like good math students, but really, they're just good memorizers."

Broughal parents see the change happening, and welcome it.

"You have to equip the teachers so they can work with the children," Ghafoor-Davis said.

Challenged by the high expectations their parents and teachers have for them, and nurtured by a faculty that uses trauma-informed practices to make sure each child is positioned to learn, Broughal students are actively engaged in their own academic and personal growth. The children of these three parents are involved in the drama and music programs. Their favorite teachers are music instructor Adam Stoltz, vocal music instructor Amy Putlock, and math teacher Michael Weiss.

Vaughn's daughter has a passion for the arts and is considering a future in fashion design. Young's son has a "creative eye" and a vocal talent that earned him a solo at the recent Festival UnBound in Bethlehem. Ghafoor-Davis's son has an affinity for Dr. Phil McGraw and an interest in medicine that may lead to a career in psychology or psychiatry. Their parents and their teachers are united in their efforts to help them realize their potential.

This is the third part of a four-part series on the Comprehensive Support & Improvement plan at Broughal MS. Part one outlined the CSI plan; part two looked at the plan from the perspective of teachers and consultants involved in its implementation; part four will revisit Broughal at mid-year to evaluate the school's progress.

"As a working-class person in Bethlehem who is also a union member and union staff member, I am in gripping debt due to my own medical costs."

Downing said his mother had passed away with a genetic spine problem and that he has the same issue. He said he had recently had two spine surgeries - one on his neck and one on his back.

"This entire year I've been racking up medical debt," said Downing. "There is absolutely no way [of avoiding debt] in this system that we have now." He said a 90-day prescription had cost him $90,000.

Councilman Bryan Callahan spoke in support of Medicare for All, but made a derogatory reference to President Trump calling him, "the yellow haired guy." This drew an immediate rebuke from retired U.S. Army Green Beret Lt. Col. John McGeehan, who called Callahan's remark "inappropriate." McGeehan seemed to reflect a strong military article of faith that regardless of one's personal opinion of the office holder, the office of president and commander-in-chief must be respected.

The old Bon-Ton store in Westgate mall will be the site of a new Weis Market. Council approved the transfer of liquor license to allow the store to sell wine and beer.

Attorney Ellen M. Freeman, who represented Weis Market at the city council meeting, explained that liquor sales are closely monitored and restricted by specially trained clerks.

Bethlehem Food Co-op Board Chair Kelly Allen spoke to the council, urging continued support of the Co-op.

After exploring some concerns about potential conflicts of interest by council members, some of whom own stock in the Bethlehem Food Co-op, and being assured by counsel that it would not be an issue, council approved 7-0 the Community Development Block Grant for the Co-op.

Van Wirt said in the interest of avoiding even the appearance of a conflict of interest she would be turning her stock in Bethlehem Food Co-op back the cooperative.

Mayor Robert Donchez announced that Freedom High School students had designed a Census 2020 logo that the city plans to use on literature and other places in an effort to improve the census count next year.

Callahan, in attempting to develop a consensus among fellow council members to postpone a vote on awarding a contract for a South Bethlehem planning study, said he does not trust Director of Community and Economic Development Alicia Miller Karner to be associated with the study.

He referred to unspecified "influences" and "pressures" being "put on entities" regarding the approval of RFPs (Requests for Proposals). He subsequently identified the "entities" as members of the Bethlehem Parking Authority Board.

"I have a big concern with Miss Karner being at the helm of this; I really do," said Callahan. He then spoke directly to Karner: "Miss Karner, did you or did you not call the [Parking Authority Board] and put pressure on them?"

At this point, Van Wirt called for a point of order prompting President Adam Waldron to interrupt Callahan's impromptu interrogation of Karner. "I hope she doesn't lower herself to answer it [your question]," said Waldron.

Callahan continued pushing the topic, saying he had asked Donchez for an investigation of Karner. "That [action by Karner] was highly unethical," said Callahan.

"Point of order," called Van Wirt. "You can't call someone unethical."

"I'm not done speaking," said Callahan. "That's my personal opinion. All I'm asking for is that we get council representation on that committee."

Waldron had the last word to Callahan: "The Mayor may be open to putting a council member on [the committee], but I can assure you that it won't be you."

Council then voted on the contract for the study and passed it 6-1, with Callahan voting against.

SOUTH SIDE TASK FORCELU police to take kids shoppingBY ED COURRIER
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Lehigh University Police patrol officer Lora Martin described the department's "Shop with a Lehigh Cop" program for financially disadvantaged families at the Mayor's South Side Task Force meeting Oct. 29. Lehigh University Police Department receives referrals from Southside schools and other stakeholders in the area to help select families of kids age 10 or younger to participate in the annual program.

After breakfast with the police, the children will be bused to Target Dec. 14 to purchase holiday gifts for themselves and family members. Then it's lunch with their law enforcement hosts before going home. "It's for the kids to feel comfortable being around with first responders and not be intimidated" said Martin.

LU Police Captain Rich McGarr outlined the partnership they have with the Bethlehem Police Dept. that enables them to patrol neighborhoods adjoining the university to handle loud parties and student alcohol abuse. This is funded through a one-year state Liquor Control Board grant.

Adrienne McNeil from Lehigh University spoke about the recent groundbreaking for the new Health Science Technology Building. "That should be open for fall 2021," she added.

Janine Santoro from the Bethlehem Area Public Library listed several programs and events for November at the Southside branch. Included is a Women and Money Seminar scheduled for Nov. 30. Ongoing programs include Vocational ESL and Conversational Spanish classes for adults, and kid-friendly fall storytime and craft activities.

Santoro announced they raised $3,500 at their adults-only Halloween elevator fundraiser party Oct. 26. The branch continues to seek funding for a much-needed elevator that is estimated to cost between $100,000 and $200,000. The basement level of the branch is currently not accessible to the disabled.

through December. For information: 610-867-4681. "I have never seen that many different kinds of hors d'oeuvres in my life!" declared Chairman Roger Hudak about the recent Wind Creek grand opening he had attended. Hudak said that he is comfortable with the casino's new owners and current management team. "Everything will continue to go through Donna Taggart for Wind Creek," Hudak said about the not-for-profit organizations on the Southside seeking funding for projects.

Hudak also spoke about the City's holiday decorations still ending at Hayes Street. "We are the 'Christmas City' and the major gateway to the city is Route 412," he said, lamenting, "They don't have any Christmas lights." Hudak said he is pushing for digital projection of Christmas-themed images on the high house and other buildings along Route 412 east of Hayes Street.

The Mayor's South Side Task Force meets regularly on the last Tuesday of the month at Northampton Community College's E. Third street campus. The next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 26.

INNOVATION CHALLENGE

Pet care business competition focus

BY LANI GOINS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The Factory in the arts district of South Bethlehem hosted a Pet Innovation Challenge Oct. 2 and 3. One hundred innovative pet companies had applied. Ten were selected to compete. Each was allotted a short timed period to present their product. Audience members were able to ask questions at the end of each presentation.

The event began with an evening reception Oct. 2, during which guests could enjoy food prepared in the Factory's test kitchen, and browse displays for all 10 contestants, and meet them.

Company presentations began with introductions by Bethlehem Mayor Robert Donchez, who spoke of the Factory's investment in the city, as well as other successful medical centers, universities and festivals, and how they have improved the quality of life in the city. He also spoke about the Center for Animal Health and Welfare, and its programs involving the public in its work socializing and finding homes for pets. Factory founder and managing partner Richard Thompson spoke of the Factory's work and investment in the city, and the companies it has invested in.

The 10 Pitch Slam competitors included Animal Biome, whose experience with an unhealthy shelter dog led to microbiome testing and the development of supplements for health and wellness; Because Animals, a biotechnology company that makes pet food with cultured meat; Chippin, which produces treats made from sustainable proteins; Hachi Tami, makers of a smart cat litter box that helps early detection of chronic kidney disease; Jiminy's, which makes dog food and treats made from insect protein; Maranda, which provides veterinary-approved lab tests from home; Mella Petcare, producer of an axillary thermometer that takes non-rectal temperature readings and can also analyze body fat; Obe, developers of a patented Petelligence app that uses smart technology for personalized dog wellness; Primal Health, makers of a patented, clinically-proven drinkable dental prebiotic, Shameless Pets, providers of a different way to enable concerned pet owners to do their part for the planet; and Teef, maker of Teef water, which stops bad breath in dogs, and grows "good plaque."

Pitch Slam winner Shameless Pets received a cash prize, six months of entrepreneur services from the Factory, plus a free booth at Natural Products Expo East 2020.

The second part of the competition, the Innovation Challenge, took place Oct. 3. Dr. Katy Nelson, veterinarian and host and executive producer of "The Pet Show with Dr. Katy," gave the keynote address, discussing the state of the pet industry, and her work with various pet-related companies from Fortune 500 corporations to pet startups. The address was followed by a discussion and brainstorming session. The winners of the Innovation challenge were Teef, first place; Because Animals, first runner-up; and Chippin, second runner-up.

BRIEFLY BETHLEHEM

Christkindlmarkt gets nomination

Bethlehem's Christkindlmarkt has been nominated as one of the top holiday markets in North America in USA TODAY's 10 Best Readers' Choice competition.

Established in 1993, Christkindlmarkt is a one-of-a-kind holiday experience for the whole family that brings the spirit of Bethlehem, the Christmas City, alive with the season. The heart-warming holiday event features aisles of handmade works by the nation's finest artisans - with thousands of unique gift ideas for family and friends - as well as live Christmas music; an authentic German St. Nicholas; and European favorites like wursts and strudel.

Patrons can experience the Christmas event and all its holiday magic firsthand when it kicks off its 27th year Nov. 22-24 at SteelStacks in Bethlehem. Other 2019 Christkindlmarkt Bethlehem dates are Nov. 29-Dec. 1 and Dec. 5-8, 12-15 and 19-22.

Voting for the top holiday market is open through Dec. 2 at noon, and the winner will be announced Dec. 13. To vote for Christkindlmarkt in the poll, visit www.christmascity.org/vote.

STATE

PLCB seeks student artists

In an effort to continue the dialogue about the dangers of underage drinking, the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board is encouraging students from across the commonwealth to participate in the 28th annual alcohol awareness poster contest.

The contest is open to all Pennsylvania students in kindergarten through 12th grade, including those who are home-schooled or in private or parochial schools.

Students may enter through their schools, clubs, or scout troops, or individually.

Entries must feature a clear no-use message about underage drinking and may be created using any artistic medium.

Students are encouraged to use positive messages and images, such as the benefits of being alcohol-free or alternatives to underage drinking.

Posters are selected by a panel of judges for acknowledgment, and each artist who creates a selected poster will be notified of his or her accomplishment and awarded prize money and/or recognition by the PLCB.

Artwork may be reproduced in various formats and distributed across Pennsylvania.

Entries must be post-marked no later than Dec. 20.

Questions about the contest may be directed to 717-772-1432 or RA-LBEducation@pa.gov.

Grateful To Whom?
Harriet Martineau was an atheist. One morning she and a Christian friend stepped out into the glories of a beautiful fall morning. As Harriet saw the brilliant sun peaking through the haze, the frost on the meadow, and the brightly colored leaves making their way lazily to the ground, she was overwhelmed with the beauty and burst forth with "I am so thankful. I'm just so grateful for it all." Her believing friend asked, "Grateful to Whom, my dear?"
Jesus told of a wealthy farmer whose grounds had "brought forth plentifully" and who was planning to build larger barns to store his crops. He said to himself, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry" (Luke 12:19). This "self-made man" expressed no gratitude to God for his success, and he left God out of his future plans. But then God spoke to him, "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided?" (v.20). In this man's foolish conceit and pride he was blinded to the truth that his achievements and accumulated riches were directly attributable to God! After all, God made the seeds he had planted, God made the ground that "brought forth plentifully," and God gave the rain and sunshine! Further, he was a fool to leave God out of his future plans. Applying these truths to us, Jesus said, "So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God" (v.21).
Are you grateful and thankful to God for all He has given you and done for you? "Thine, O LORD, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine...therefore, our God, we thank thee...for all things come of thee" (1 Chronicles 29:11-14).

Residents raises money for MS

With the help of Traditions of Hanover resident, Edith Schwartz, the independent senior living community is working to raise awareness and funds for multiple sclerosis, more commonly known as MS.

During Family Day Sept. 8, residents, their families, and staff came together for the cause, which helped to raise over $400 from the sale of 50/50 and basket raffle tickets.

Continuing through mid-September, Traditions of Hanover residents competed among their floors, four in total, to see who could raise the most funds. But for Edith, it was more than a friendly competition – it's personal.

"I brought the idea to management to help raise awareness and funds to find a cure for MS," said Edith. "The people at Traditions of Hanover are wonderful for helping this cause that means so much to my family and me."

Edith's niece, Evonne, and daughter, Lisa Cyr, are living with the disease. In late August, Lisa helped residents kick off their fundraising efforts. She shared information about the immune-mediated disease, in which the body's immune system attacks the central nervous system, and affects more than 2.3 million people worldwide.

She also talked about Bike MS: City to Shore Ride, an event that is near and dear to her heart. She has participated in the cycling event for 28 years, which she began in honor of her cousin Evonne, who has progressive MS.

"It's an amazing experience, many people appreciate what you're Edith Schwartz, resident at Traditions of Hanover, stands next to collection boxes used to raise funds for multiple sclerosis. Schwartz approached management with the idea to help raise awareness and funds to find a cure for MS. The cause is personal to her because her niece and daughter are living with the the immune-mediated disease.

Lisa Cyr participates in Bike MS: City to Shore, the most extensive cycling series of the National MS Society. Cyr, who has relapsing-remitting MS, and with her twin sister, Linda Koontz, will be among 7,000 cyclists riding in this year's two-day event in September.

doing, and it's a great feeling of accomplishment, and for me, I'm lucky to be still able to participate, so I ride because I can – and for Evonne, and all those who can't," said Lisa.

Lisa was diagnosed in 1994 with relapsing-remitting MS or RRMS, which is characterized by clearly defined attacks of new or increasing neurologic symptoms, followed by periods of partial or complete recovery.

Symptoms can range from numbness and tingling to blindness and paralysis, and no two people have precisely the same symptoms, which can change and fluctuate over time.

With symptoms presently at bay, Lisa, alongside her unofficial teammate and twin sister, Linda Koontz, rode in Bike MS: City to Shore, the most extensive cycling series of the National MS Society Sept. 21-22.

The rain or shine, two-day event, which amasses over 7,000 cyclists of all experiences, began at PATCO's Woodcrest Station in Cherry Hill, New Jersey, and finished in Ocean City, New Jersey.

For information or to donate to Bike MS on behalf of Lisa, visit <https://bit.ly/2PgLxTp> or call 1-800-344-4867. For more information about MS, visit www.nationalmssociety.org.

Taliyah Medina will head to Villanova to play basketball next year.

Medina to 'Nova

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcald@tnonline.com

By this time next year, Taliyah Medina will have gone from Golden Hawk to Wildcat as the Bethlehem Catholic senior guard signed a National Letter of Intent on Nov. 13 to play basketball at Villanova University.

With parents Linette and Jose on either side of her, Medina signed her letter of intent in front of a roomful of family and friends at Coordinated Health in Bethlehem.

"Villanova is a good fit for me. It's close to home and because I'm so family-involved it only made sense that I stay close to home," Medina said. "Their style of play fits me. I could see myself playing with them. They're all players like me, kind of swing players who can handle the basketball, who can shoot the three, who can do a little bit of everything."

Medina explained how she built a relationship with Villanova basketball coach Harry Perretta and the Wildcats by attending camps there and Villanova Hoop Mania over the years.

"Definitely, I've been going there for quite awhile. They've been recruiting me since I was in eighth grade," she said. "I love the coaching staff. They were so nice to me. They came to my games, and they stuck with me throughout my process of being injured."

Medina recalled the day she tore her ACL, June 25, 2018, when her leg buckled after taking a step back during a game. The tear came just 48 hours after she returned home from a mission trip with her church to Guatemala.

"I saw what others didn't have and how happy they still were," Medina said. "I didn't have the chance to be devastated because of all the support I had."

Katie Flynn will continue her career at Temple.

Flynn to Temple

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcald@tnonline.com

Freedom senior lacrosse player Katie Flynn signed a National Letter of Intent on Nov. 13 to play lacrosse at Temple University.

"Everything the coaches were saying and how they were willing to help me, I knew it was the right place for me," Flynn said.

It was September of Flynn's junior year when she was contacted by the Temple Owls whose head coach is Bonnie Rosen. Flynn had a tour of the campus in December, and a week later, she was made an offer.

"They wanted me to love Temple for Temple. I felt at home there, and everything is so up-to-date," said Flynn, who then had an official visit this fall.

Flynn's future teammates told her that playing lacrosse for Rosen and her staff is amazing and that the coaches want the best for their athletes.

"I'm looking forward to the team and the coaches and the energy, and how the coaches are so into it for the kids," Flynn said. "I definitely think they will repeat [a good season] and that the incoming freshmen will help."

Flynn's parents are Enan and Brian, who is also Freedom's assistant girls' soccer coach. Flynn played both soccer and lacrosse all four years of high school.

"I feel like I'm better at lacrosse. I put my heart into lacrosse," said Flynn, an attack player. "I started playing in fifth grade, and I fell in love with it."

Three of Bethlehem Press's 2018-2019 athletes of the year, Brenna Magliochetti, Greta Stuckey, and Bradley Turocy are enjoying freshman year athletic success in college.

Bethlehem Catholic graduate Magliochetti and the Providence College women's tennis team won the PC Invitational this fall after winning 18 of 22 matches against Bryant, Holy Cross, and Merrimack.

Magliochetti was undefeated on the day.

The Friar freshman and her senior doubles partner Aidan Epstein defeated Merrimack, 7-6. Magliochetti also won singles matches against Bryant, 6-2, 6-2, and Holy Cross, 6-2, 6-1.

Liberty graduate Stuckey and Marist College's women's cross country team placed sixth out of 11 teams at the Albany Invitational this fall. Stuckey hit a new personal record with a time of 20:25.5.

The Marist women also placed second out of 11 teams at the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference Championships at Monmouth University where Stuckey's time was 25:39.8.

Freedom graduate Turocy and the East Stroudsburg University men's soccer team completed their season with a record of 11-5-3 overall, reaching the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference quarterfinals on Nov. 12.

On Nov. 13, it was announced that Turocy earned PSAC Men's Soccer Eastern Division Second-Team All-Conference honors.

Turocy played in all 19 games for the Warriors this season and had seven goals and three assists. He ranks second on the team in points, third in shots, and fourth in assists.

The Warrior freshman was also named the PSAC East Men's Soccer Athlete of the Week in September.

Turocy scored two goals against Felician that week, and had one goal and one assist against Jefferson.

Freedom graduate and Eastern University freshman Jared Whitehorn has played in all 17 soccer games for the Monarchs this season.

The Monarchs were crowned MAC Freedom Champions after defeating King's College, 3-1, on Nov. 9.

On Oct. 16 in a 3-0 victory over Delaware Valley University, Whitehorn played a part in Eastern's third goal when he ran up the right side and teammate Nik Kokolios picked up the ball, scoring inside the far post.

In an earlier season win over Cabrini, Whitehorn made two scoring attempts, one on a header that hit off the crossbar.

Former Freedom defender and Penn State Brandywine freshman Liam Pfeiffer has had two assists this season while playing in 17 games, and starting in three.

One of Pfeiffer's assists came in a 4-0 victory over Penn State Lehigh Valley.

Pfeiffer and the Penn State Brandywine Lions completed the season with a record of 17-6-1 and won the Penn State University Athletic Conference Championship.

SPEED FREAKS

A few questions we had to ask ourselves

You OK with the Kyle Busch championship?

GODSPEAK: Hey, to the victor goes the spoils. He advanced through the playoffs on points and nabbed the checkered flag at the right time.

KEN'S CALL: Let's say I've felt better. Kyle won it under the rules played by everyone, but it has an odd feel, given how he mostly lurked in the shadows from early June through November.

Early favorites for 2020?

GODSPEAK: Give me Denny Hamlin to go all the way in 2020. As for a surprise, how about Matt DiBenedetto in the Wood Brothers Racing Ford?

KEN'S CALL: Aside from the usual suspects, I look for Erik Jones to have a big year, and also one of the hotshot rookies ... hopefully Christopher Bell in the No. 95.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

MARTIN TRUFX JR. VS. WRONG TIRES

It's something you never see, but Truex's pit crew put his left-side tires on the right side during a pit stop, and he had to come back for new tires after a few laps.

GODWIN KELLY'S TAKE: Chalk that one up to the weight of championship pressure. "Yeah, I've never had that happen," Truex said. "It doesn't drive good with the left front on the right front."

GODWIN'S PICKS FOR 2020

WINNER: Denny Hamlin

REST OF TOP 5: Chase Elliott, Kevin Harvick, Martin Truex Jr., Joey Logano

FIRST ONE OUT: Jimmie Johnson

DARK HORSE: Kyle Larson
DON'T BE SURPRISED IF: Hamlin, who has been in the championship mix three times, breaks through next season.

OFF-SEASON THREE THINGS TO WATCH

1. Record-breaking

It's obvious that Toyota is at the top of its racing game in NASCAR. Joe Gibbs Racing scored a modern-era record 19 victories over the 36-race season. Hendrick Motorsports got 18 wins in 2007, while Roush Fenway Racing had 15 wins in 2005. Fourth on this list is again Gibbs Racing, which had a series-high 14 wins in 2015. Gibbs had three drivers in this title fight. "It's a thrill for us," he said. "The Lord blessed us."

2. About Busch

Kyle Busch became the 16th driver to win multiple NASCAR Cup Series championships. He became the first driver to win two titles in the current knock-out format, which was introduced in 2014. His first crown was won in 2015. The 34-year-old driver can make a strong argument for Driver of the Decade honors. From 2010 to '19, he scored a series-high 40 wins. He has 56 career wins going back to his 2005 rookie year.

3. Catching up

There are several big NASCAR race teams that will be playing catch-up this offseason. Richard Childress Racing and Roush Fenway Racing didn't get a win in 2019. Roush, who supplies engines to all Ford teams, has not won a race since 2017. Chevrolet scored three more wins (seven) than it did in 2018 but got no help from seven-time NASCAR champion Jimmie Johnson, who hasn't won the past two years.

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Were you underwhelmed?

Yes and no. Kyle Busch, cruising to victory without another car within a city block, wasn't what we were hoping for (and not just because it's Kyle Busch, of course). NASCAR's playoffs were born 15 years ago in an effort to nearly guarantee a close championship, then had to be tweaked a few times to further that effort. Still, with 20 or so laps remaining at Homestead, barring a caution, drama had gone behind the wall.

So you're calling it a downer?

Not necessarily. For the casual onlooker, or the football fan who mistakenly had his TV on Homestead and couldn't find the remote, it was a dull finish to it all. But for fans of auto racing, what happened to Martin Truex Jr. and Denny Hamlin offered reminders that there's a lot more to racing than just the guy behind the steering wheel. With so much that can go wrong over 400 miles, it's amazing anyone ever wins a race.

HOMESTEAD THREE THINGS WE LEARNED

1. Points matter

Kyle Busch was the only driver among the Championship Four to get in on points. The other three won races in Round 3. The regular-season champion used points all the way through the playoffs to make the finale, and he won (40th win this decade) when it really counted.

2. Little mistakes

Denny Hamlin and Martin Truex Jr. were hindered by their own pit crews at Homestead. They slapped a big wad of tape on Hamlin's grille, and it caused his engine to overheat. "We weren't going to make it," Hamlin said. Truex's pit crew put the wrong front tires on his No. 19 Toyota.

3. Chevy's title

Chevrolet had another rough year, but it can point to at least one season-ending high point. Daniel Hemric, who drove the No. 8 Richard Childress Racing Chevy, scored the NASCAR Cup Series Rookie of the Year Award. "It's pretty special to say the least," said Hemric, who nevertheless loses that ride next year.

Lehigh boys soccer team wins league title

For the third time in program history, the Lehigh men's soccer team has won the Patriot League Men's Soccer Championship, defeating rival Lafayette, 1-0 Saturday night at the Ulrich Sports Complex in front of a packed crowd of 1,705 people. After finishing the regular season with an unblemished 6-0-3 record, the Mountain Hawks head into the NCAA Tournament with an overall record of 13-4-3, the team's most wins since 2015 when they won the title for the second time.

"I'm so happy for the team, certainly they have earned the privilege of being here and they earned the win tonight," said head coach Dean Koski. "I couldn't be happier for them, this is a once in a lifetime experience for a lot of these guys and it secures their legacy of certainly one of the best seasons we've had since I've been here."

The Mountain Hawks had the first five shots of the game including a Stevo Bednarsky shot in the sixth minute that was saved by Alex Sutton. Natan Rosen had his shot saved in the 27th minute and Josh Luchini had a shot that was saved in the 34th minute. Two more shots went high in the final six minutes and Lehigh finished the first half with a 10-5 advantage in shots. Will Smith made three key saves in the first half to keep the score knotted at zero after the first 45 minutes.

Coming right out of the locker room the Mountain Hawks had two shots early before the chance of the game occurred. Sophomore forward Michael Tahiru was the game's hero early on with his game-winning goal in the 54th minute, off a great pass from Trevor Koski that found the back of the net, giving the Mountain Hawks a 1-0 lead. Tahiru's goal was his third of the season and Koski's assist was his fifth of the year. Senior goalkeeper Will Smith made six saves en route to his career-best 10th shutout of the season, the 25th of his career.

The biggest advantage for Lehigh on Saturday night was the crowd, the unofficially largest men's soccer crowd in the history of the program. At 1,705 people, it was the most since Lehigh's NCAA Tournament matchup vs. Rhode Island.

After clinching the program's third Patriot League Tournament championship on Saturday night against archrival Lafayette in a 1-0 shutout, the Lehigh men's soccer team has learned its fate for the NCAA Tournament first round after meeting and watching the NCAA Selection Show as a team earlier Monday.

The Mountain Hawks will visit and take on Pittsburgh of the ACC on Thursday night at 7 p.m. The Panthers are in the tournament for the first time since 1965 after accumulating an overall record of 9-7-2 and 4-3-1 in the ACC, falling to Clemson, 1-0 in the semifinal round.

Dawson-Amoah named tourney MVP

Senior Kweku Dawson-Amoah (Bethlehem Catholic) was named the Tournament Most Valuable Player leading the DeSales University men's basketball team past Alvernia University, 75-72, to take home the Quality Inn Tournament title at Oneonta on Saturday afternoon.

Dawson-Amoah

4:46 left on a three from senior Alex House. It was still a 10-point game after a layup from Dawson-Amoah with 31 seconds left before AU hit consecutive layups around a Bulldog turnover and a 3 after DSU missed two FT's to pull within three points with seven seconds left. Dawson-Amoah was fouled with 6.2 seconds left but missed both freebies but the Golden Wolves last second attempt saw a pass tipped out of bounds with one tenth of a second left and DSU ran out the clock to survive with the win.

Moravian

Senior guard C.J. Barnes (Egg Harbor Township, N.J./Holy Spirit HS) scored a game-high 23 points and was one of four players in double figures to lead the Moravian College men's basketball team to a 79-71 nonconference win in Johnston Hall Monday evening as the Greyhounds earned their first victory under the direction of first-year Head Coach Shawn Postiglione.

Junior guard Nick King (Freedom HS) had three points dished out three assists.

2019 basketball season her junior year. Those few seconds came at the end of Becahi's state championship victory in March 2019.

But Medina's therapist, Kaley Russin, said that when Medina was at her lowest point, she overcame so much with a smile on her face.

"Everyone has contributed. Every drop counts," said Jose Medina as he spoke to family and friends prior to the signing. "Words of encouragement at the right time in the right context."

Now recovered from her injury, Medina and the Hawks are set to open their season on Dec. 10 at home against city rival Freedom.

MS hockey team off to good start

The Bethlehem middle school ice hockey team got off to a fast start in the 2019-2020 season.

The team won a back and forth battle with Salisbury. Five minutes into the first period Caden Dudeck scored an unassisted goal to give Bethlehem a 1-0 lead. Salisbury answered three minutes later to tie the score. Salisbury had three, first-period power plays, but Bethlehem's defense limited Salisbury's opportunities. With six minutes left in the second period Nick Moniz scored for Bethlehem to break the tie.

Salisbury managed to even the score again with only 34 seconds left in the second. In the third period, Bethlehem erupted for three goals on 14 shots. On an early power play, Dudeck scored off a Salisbury turnover to give Bethlehem a one-goal lead for the third time in the game. One minute later, Salisbury responded to make the score 3-3. With eight minutes left, Dudek completed the hat trick with an assist from Landon McRae. This time Salisbury didn't have an answer. Patrick Michael found the back of the net to seal the victory for Bethlehem with one minute left on the clock.

McRae, Zander Frey, Thomas Horvath, Mason Beck, and Jayce Hamm anchored the Bethlehem defense which held off several Salisbury rushes late in the game. Ryan Fleming starred in goal for Bethlehem. He finished the game with 19 saves including a dazzling kick save on a breakaway with the game tied at 3-3.

Bethlehem did not have much time to enjoy the victory, as it hosted Phillipsburg the next day at Bethlehem Municipal Ice Rink. Bethlehem dominated puck possession and earned a 7-1 win.

Nick Moniz had a hat trick and scored two goals in the first four minutes to give Bethlehem an early lead. Moniz's first goal was assisted by Nolan Schleppey and Sam Neuffer. Phillipsburg scored late in the first to make it a 2-1 game after one period. In the first minute of the second period, Schleppey scored for Bethlehem with assists from Zander Frey and Neuffer. Seconds later, Moniz added his third to give Bethlehem a 4-1 lead.

Nick Howey continued the scoring in the third with a spectacular swirling goal that ricocheted in off the far post. Defenders Zander Frey and Landon McRae finished impressive full ice rushes to increase Bethlehem's lead.

Schleppey, Moniz and Neuffer all added third period assists. Both teams played the game with limited benches. Bethlehem stayed committed to short shifts and maintaining position on both ends of the ice. Despite limited action, goalie Ryan Fleming was once again solid in the net.

Fermin named Rookie of the Year

BY KATIE MCDONALD

Liberty graduate and Moravian College freshman Darlyn Fermin was named the Landmark Conference's Cross Country Rookie of the Year on Nov. 2.

Fermin had the top finish by a first-year collegiate runner at the Landmark Championships after placing seventh in the 8,000 meter race with a time of 26:56.33 at Catholic University of America, also on Nov. 2.

Fermin

Fermin also received All-Conference First Team honors after the meet in which the Greyhounds men's team placed second out of six teams.

On Nov. 16, the Greyhound men placed ninth out of 51 teams at the NCAA Division III Mid-east Regionals held at Lehigh University.

Fermin came in 60th out of 360 runners with a time of 26:17.7.

LU-PSU SOLD OUT

Lehigh Athletics has announced that the highly-anticipated wrestling match between the Mountain Hawks and top-ranked and four-time defending national champion Penn State on Friday, Dec. 6 at Stabler Arena is now sold out.

The current fixed-seat capacity for Stabler Arena is 5,619. Penn State's last visit to Stabler Arena in February 2016 set a Lehigh on-campus home dual record with 5,909 fans. Less than two years later, the Mountain Hawks and Nittany Lions helped set a Lehigh home dual meet attendance record with a crowd of 9,896 at a sold-out PPL Center in Allentown.

Medina's doctor at Coordinated Health, Dr. Nicholas Slenker, said that what stood out to him was that Medina's injury wasn't going to get her down.

Jose Medina, also the girls' basketball coach at Becahi, was adamant that his daughter's rehab was going to be done right and in as much time as was necessary for full recovery. That meant Medina would have strength and conditioning training at Coordinated Health, three to four times a week for nine months.

It also meant Medina would sit out for all but a few seconds of the 2018-

MAMA'S MUSINGS Toy obsession

Almost every Sunday my youngest son, James, is with his father. That day after breakfast, I do yoga. The first step is to clear the living room rug of toys. Sometimes this is a workout in itself.

James has a toy acquisition obsession. It is not pure greed. When he was 4 years old, there was a period of about seven weeks when we were homeless. We were fortunate during that time that we always had a roof over our heads, first at a relative's home, then at a motel that catered to weekly rentals. During that time, James' toys were in storage at another relative's home. We kept a small train track, a couple toy trains and a few storybooks with us.

A lot happened during that time, and much of it was awful. I didn't know the psychological repercussions would include James' ongoing obsession with acquiring toys.

We struggle with this almost daily, and any time we pass the local convenience store, or go to Target, or even to the grocery store. He also has ADHD, and behaviors, and all of this has led to times when I would buy him a toy just to get us through a shopping trip without everyone losing their minds.

Then one day not long ago, we were walking home from his school, and he said, "Do you remember when I was four? I only had one train track, and it was an oval." Boom. I quickly reassured him that during that time, many of his toys were visiting his cousin's house, and he has them back now.

I've started limiting toy acquisition to once per week or so, but it's not always easy. And recently, I have tried to show him that experiences are as valuable as toys. Sometimes, he goes with me to assignments he will enjoy. One Saturday we went to the dog races at SteelStacks, and he enjoyed taking photos with his tablet. From there, we went to a Fall Fest at Freedom HS. He loved the haunted house. Finally, we went to a hockey game. That was a very busy day. Other times, we might go to a park, or to the library.

Knowing the root of his obsession has helped me try to reason with him, or when that fails, bodily carry him out of a store while he cries for a toy. He has a new behavior chart at school, and the behavior support staff has been smartly rewarding him with goldfish some weeks, pretzels, and an occasional toy. That is helping. Even his father is finally realizing it isn't healthy for James to expect a new toy every time they are together.

Holiday Hope Chest gets record requests

LEHIGH VALLEY VOLUNTEER CENTER
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Holiday Hope Chests is entering its 19th year serving the greater Lehigh Valley community. Holiday Hope Chests is a national project adopted by the Volunteer Center of the Lehigh Valley to help less fortunate children living in the Lehigh Valley. Each year in the Lehigh Valley, generous supporters take part in the Holiday Hope Chests program - creating magical holiday memories for local children.

When we measure impact and numbers this is one program that we hope that we will see a decline in the need. Unfortunately, that has not been the case. Since 2017 this program has doubled in numbers, with the 2019 requests from 40 local nonprofit organizations coming in over 10,000 boxes needed/requested.

We recognize that part of the increase each year has been our expansion of the program in the age range, as well as the addition of gender-neutral boxes. We also know that we have been actively marketing this program to the nonprofit community through our social media, website and other means of promoting the program. Even said, there are 10,000 children/youth that this may be their only gift this holiday.

What we do know for sure is that 10,000 is a very tall order to fill. We have over 150 donors already pledging to help us meet the need. We know there are other holiday programs that compete for individuals, families and businesses each year to contribute / participate in a meaningful way to give back. Holiday Hope Chests is 100 percent a local program, supporting the needs of those who live in our community.

For this year we are partnering with local business organizations for donations of items that can be included in the shoebox. Donations of $25 per shoebox can be given and will be used to shop for items to fill shoeboxes. There are many ways to help. All of the information for the program can be found on our website at www.volunteerlv.org/holiday-hope-chests

Thank you to our sponsors to date: Enterprise Holdings, Just Born, Greater Lehigh Valley Auto Dealers Association, PennCap Properties and Uline.

The Volunteer Center of the Lehigh Valley has been connecting our community to the needs for over 30 years. We work collaboratively with businesses and nonprofits to educate, coordinate and motivate the true spirit of community support through our days of service, educational programs and recognition events.

Local groups suggest ways to support the families displaced by October fire

In response to the individuals and families affected by the Oct. 20 fire in Allentown, United Way of the Greater Lehigh Valley (UWGLV), Community Action Community of the Lehigh Valley (CACLV) and American Red Cross Lehigh Valley-Bucks Chapter have announced the Fountain Street Fire Fund. The three community groups have come together in support of a common cause and coordinate relief efforts for victims of the fire.

"We provided immediate assistance to 13 families, a total of 47 clients," said Peter Brown, executive director, American Red Cross Lehigh Valley-Bucks Chapter. "There are 17 children under the age of 18 and several infants; there are four senior citizens. Most of these families have lost everything and will not be able to return to their homes."

The American Red Cross steps in with support for essential needs immediately following a disaster. However, long term assistance will be needed and sparked the necessity for the Fountain Street Fire Fund. 100 percent of the funds will be used to aid those affected by this disaster.

"UWGLV mobilizes the community to support the common good," said David Lewis, president, United Way of the Greater Lehigh Valley. "Through this partnership with trusted and effective caregivers - United Way, American Red Cross and Community Action Committee - donors can take comfort in knowing that their funds will be properly managed and used only for those affected by the fire."

Donations can be made online at www.unitedwayglv.org/fire-fund or via mail (checks payable to UWGLV, 1110 American Parkway NE, Suite F-120, Allentown, PA 18109; attention "Fountain Street Fire Fund"). Additionally, individuals interested in making a donation can text "Fountain-Street" to 71777. Gift card donations are also encouraged.

"We don't want people getting assistance by luck or by some kind of prejudgement," says Alan Jennings, executive director at Community Action Committee of the Lehigh Valley. "There needs to be a systematic way that understands the circumstances of each family, what's needed to get them back in action and what amount the fund can help them with."

For additional information or questions on the fund, contact Priscilla Rosado at 610-807-5731.

Charter Arts welcomes Barnstone spirit in arts and education

Cat Barnstone Szafran presented an original Myron Barnstone painting, "Discovery," as well as two additional prints, as a gift to the Lehigh Valley Charter HS for the Arts at the Myron Barnstone: Master Student, Teacher & Artist exhibit last month.

The fact that one of his original paintings is now permanently returning to the Lehigh Valley, said Szafran, is exactly what her father would have wanted.

"Myron dedicated his life to his students," Szafran said. "To see this new generation of young artists learning the necessary skills from Barnstone alumni at Charter Arts is perfect synchronicity."

The school hosted the stunning exhibit for the past two months in its Corpora Gallery. Two Barnstone Studios alumni, Lorie Reinhard and Roger Brinker, are Charter Arts' director of Visual Art and Visual Art Faculty, respectively. Brinker, who also taught at Barnstone Studios, curated the Charter Arts exhibit that combines 38 Barnstone pieces, along with instructional posters that Brinker created.

Charter Arts' Executive Director Diane LaBelle said she was grateful and moved by Szafran's generous gift. "Thank you so much for this special gift," said LaBelle. "This is meaningful to us for so many reasons. Both Mr. Brinker and Ms. Reinhard were students of Mr. Barnstone, members of our alumni have studied with Mr. Barnstone and now the legacy will continue at Charter Arts. Current and future students will have these works to observe, study and learn from. This is a great honor for Charter Arts."

Thousands of the late Barnstone's alumni have gone on to distinguished careers in art-related fields and their works are in galleries and private collections literally around the globe. Some alumni traveled into Bethlehem from far and wide to attend the closing reception

In 1967, Myron Barnstone was the toast of Paris. "The Survivors" exhibit, with his passionate and haunting anti-war paintings and drawings, was extended several weeks at the Catacombs of the American Church in Paris. A classically trained artist himself, Barnstone first studied at the Boston School of Art and then the Ruskin School of Art at the University of Cambridge in England. He was growing increasingly frustrated that contemporary art schools abandoned the disciplined instruction of geometric design dubbed The Golden Section in favor of "what felt good." Despite his early acclaim, Barnstone made the decision to stop painting, and teach others the tools and techniques that were the foundation of his own success. Because he never wanted his work to unduly influence his students' artistic vision, Barnstone burned hundreds of his own pieces and locked away another 500. His work would remain hidden, packed in crates until after his death in 2016 at the age of 83.

As part of the exhibit, Szafran also unveiled a compilation of drawings from Barnstone's student sketchbooks during his studies at Ruskin School of Art, and other classes throughout the years. A limited edition of the sketchbooks have been available for sale, in addition to many of the Barnstone pieces on display.

Students, staff honor veterans

BY DANA GRUBB

Special to the Bethlehem Press

Students and staff welcomed and honored several dozen veterans at the Miller Heights ES's 19th annual Veterans Day program Nov. 12.

"Thank you veterans for coming. Your attendance helps our students understand how important this day is," Principal Deborah Roeder said.

Miller Heights fifth grade students performed a number of patriotic readings and songs to honor veterans who were present and elsewhere. Students from each grade delivered hand-written letters which are forwarded to veterans and active service members.

Musicians and singers from both Liberty and Freedom high schools provided instrumental and sung patriotic music.

During the "Armed Forces Medley," veterans who served in the Army, Marines, Navy, Coast Guard and Air Force stood to be recognized. They were treated to light refreshments upon conclusion of the program.

Miller Heights fifth graders perform a "Patriotic Melody" as they wave small flags.

Fifth grade Girl Scouts lead the assembly in the Pledge of Allegiance.

The Freedom HS men's choir performs "For the Fallen."

The Liberty HS brass ensemble performs one of several patriotic songs under the direction of assistant band director and veteran Allen Frank.

U.S. Navy veterans Gerald Lebeduik and John Miga Jr. honor the American flag during recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance.

Miller Heights fourth grade teacher and U.S. Air Force veteran Louis Poczak plays "Taps" to conclude the Veterans Day program.

Fifth grade student Emma Pineiro hands a program to Reva Taroc Enon, an E-4 specialist who served in the U.S. Army from 1979 to 1982 and Pa. National Guard from 1982 to 1986.

Family members: Dario (dad), Mary (sister)
Favorite subject: My favorite subject is history (both world and American) because I enjoy understanding the modern day world and what events and people helped to establish it.

Activities: SkillsUSA, National Technical Honor Society, local youth group.

Next steps: I would like to further my knowledge of the electrical field through a three-year apprenticeship with the IBEW, as well as attend a college to study theology.

Career goals: I am not entirely sure at the moment, but the most likely ideas are to be the head of my own electrical business as well as some place in Christian ministry.

Heroes: My mother, who was my example of hard work, positivity, and excellence as well as maintaining good character and integrity; my father, who has always encouraged me to always challenge myself both at home and in school; my uncles and my grandparents, who have always been there to encourage me and support me in many other various ways.

Hobbies: I enjoy coin collecting and filming with my action camera.

Current job(s): I am not currently working any jobs, although I have worked in the past.

Volunteer/community work: I volunteer at my church's food bank when I can and have also helped the Allentown Rescue Mission in the past. I also take advantage of any community service opportunities that Bethlehem Vo-Tech has to offer.

Likes: I enjoy watching soccer and football, playing video games, hiking, camping, fishing, canoeing or kayaking. I also enjoy building and working on various minor construction projects that I come up with.

Dislikes: I completely dislike losing track of personal items, losing in any sport or game, and missing out on unique opportunities.

Greatest accomplishment so far: Being a straight-A student and becoming an ambassador for SkillsUSA.

Advice for peers: Always challenge yourself in new ways. Never let unique opportunities pass you by, even if you're unsure or even afraid of them. Always be willing to learn. Lastly, make connections. Never be afraid of getting to know new people. Connections can be extremely useful in life.

Student profile subjects are selected by faculty and administration at the individual schools.

Food drive begins; veterans honored

Students at Bethlehem Area Vocational-Technical School have been busy gathering items for their annual Food Drive to provide baskets for 80 families. We are accepting cash and food donations to assemble the baskets. If you are interested in contributing to our efforts, please contact John Karb at karbj@bavts.org or leave a message at 610-866-8013, ext. 164.

Recently students from the esthetics program provided hand and arm massages with basic nail care to the guests at The Salvation Army in Bethlehem. The health care students performed life histories with the guests. This provided an opportunity for students to practice their communication skills and interact with them.

Another community outreach that occurred is that students from the cosmetology class shampooed, dried and styled wigs for patients at the Lehigh Valley Hospital Cancer centers. This is the third year the students have participated in preparing the wigs for those in need.

On Veterans Day, the SkillsUSA and HOSA students held their 25th Veterans Day ceremony, honoring the school's veterans and newly enlisted students. Destiny Deschamps sang the National Anthem a capella.

The school's veterans include Stan Dixon, building trades, USMC; Michael Galler, supervisor of Career & Technical Education, USMC; Officer Frank Hegedus, US Army Reserve and Pa. Air National Guard; Sergio Rivas, video media arts, US Army; and Kevin Strawn, electrical construction, U.S. Navy.

Students sold toy soldiers to benefit the 397th American Legion Post of Hellertown and presented a check to Commander Eric Medei for $357.

SkillsUSA students attended Ambassador Training and the Professional Development Conference at Camelback Resort. Ambassadors were instructed on personality traits, financial literacy, elevator speeches and ambassador mission and duties. Students attended training sessions, including social media, networking,

'It's a Wonderful Life'

Young George Bailey (Connor Sternberg) tells druggist Mr. Gower (Michael Weber) that he had mistakenly added a poisonous compound to a prescription.

Mother Bailey (Bernadette Candelario) tells her son George (Michael Sheridan) that Mary Hatch has returned to Bedford Falls and that he should pay her a visit.

The Freedom High School Theatre Company will perform "It's a Wonderful Life," the Frank Capra film and story written by Philip Van Doren Stern, which has been adopted for the stage by James W. Rodgers. Shows are scheduled Nov. 21, 22 and 23 at 7 p.m. and Nov. 24 at 2 p.m. in the Freedom HS auditorium theater. Director Justin Amann is assisted by Natalie Parker (assistant director), Denise Parker (vocal director), Christopher Domanski (set design), Priscilla Salazar (props and set painting), Rachel Lutz and Jessica Sturm (student assistant directors), Jodie Johnson (costume design) and Michael Mattia and Emma Ernst (stage managers). "It's a Wonderful life" is a classic story of how good vs. evil, success vs. failure and love vs. ugliness eventually win out and the movie has become a Christmas season staple on television. Tickets may be purchased online at showtix4u.com or by calling 610-867-5843 extension 53912.

Resident honored by for supporting serving employees

Pennsylvania Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve (ESGR), a Department of Defense program, announced that Michael Detwiler of Bayada Health Care was honored Nov. 1 with a Patriot Award in recognition of his exceptional support of employees serving in the Pennsylvania Guard and Reserves.

According to Roslyn Schroeder, Pennsylvania East Central Area ESGR volunteer, "the Patriot Award was created by ESGR to publicly recognize individuals who provide outstanding patriotic support and cooperation to their employees, who like the citizen warriors before them, have answered their nation's call to serve. Detwiler was nominated for the Patriot Award by Pennsylvania Air National Guard Master Sgt. Jessica Mateo."

In her Patriot Award nomination, Mateo said of Detwiler: "... My director makes sure that I have the resources and support prior to any military leave and he has no idea the amount of pressure he takes off my shoulders in doing so. The rest of the team is also very supportive and are more than happy to carry my caseload while I'm away. I can appreciate the importance of having a supportive employer."

ESGR, a Department of Defense office, seeks to foster a culture in which all employers support and value the employment and military service of members of the National Guard and Reserve in the United States. ESGR facilitates and promotes a cooperative culture of employer support for National Guard and Reserve service by developing and advocating mutually beneficial initiatives, recognizing outstanding employer support, increasing awareness of applicable laws and policies, resolving potential conflicts between employers and their service members, and acting as the employers' principal advocate within DoD. Paramount to ESGR's mission is encouraging employment of Guardsmen and Reservists who bring integrity, global

Queen's Cartoonists combine jazz and animation in concert

The Queen's Cartoonists play music accompanying classic cartoons, including "Looney Tunes," featuring the likes of Elmer Fudd, Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck.

Like most children, Joel Pierson grew up watching cartoons. From the wacky antics of Bugs Bunny and Elmer Fudd to the seductive exploits of flapper Betty Boop, he noticed that the cartoons' accompanying music soundtrack drew heavily from the jazz canon.

Pierson leads The Queen's Cartoonists, a classically-trained sextet whose unique performances include jazz compositions synchronized to video projections of the original classic cartoons on a screen behind the band.

In The Queen's Cartoonists' 7:30 p.m. Nov. 22 concert at Miller Symphony Hall, Allentown, the energetic group will lead the audience through a world of virtuosic musicianship, multi-instrumental mayhem and come-

1980s rocks back with Jessie's Girl

 Special to The Press

There was no decade quite like the 1980s, from the music, to the clothes, to the hairstyles.

There's been a resurgence of interest in hit pop-rock songs from the 1980s. The songs have had an influence on hit songs of the past few years, too.

As for the clothes and hairstyles? Not so much.

The party continues with "The Back to the Eighties Show with Jessie's Girl," 8 p.m. Nov. 22, Penn's Peak, Jim Thorpe. Doors open at 7 p.m.

Jessie's Girl performs masterful renditions of '80s' iconic songs, with band members dressed as performers who broke through to stardom in the decade, including Jon Bon Jovi, Cyndi Lauper, Michael Jackson, Madonna and Prince. The glitz and glam of the era abounds in the show, complete with lights, fog and

During holidays, the gift is to the giver

Dear Jacquelyn,
I was embarrassed and caught off-guard during the holidays last year. I received a gift I was not expecting and did not have one to give in return. What should you do when someone buys you a gift and you don't have a gift for the person?

Dear Reader,
Chances are that the gift-giver just wanted to treat you to something nice without expectations attached.

Naturally, it's awkward and uncomfortable when you are on the receiving end and you didn't buy the person

RESPECTFULLY YOURS
By Jacquelyn Youst

anything. Instead of getting hung up on that beautifully wrapped but totally unexpected present, try to concentrate on showing your gratitude. Thank the giver for the gift and respond in the same spirit that the gift was given.

Smile and show your genuine surprise and appreciation. To express heartfelt appreciation, say, "You are so thoughtful. Thank you for thinking of me." The worst thing you can do is make the giver feel he or she has made you uncomfortable.

Don't make excuses and pretend you have a gift at home. You can decide later if you would like to give the person a gift in kind, but there is no obligation. To further show your gratitude, follow up with a personal handwritten thank-you note.

Still unnerved by the idea of being without a gift this holiday season?

It's not a bad idea to have a few just-in-case, universally-liked gifts stored away. Have them wrapped with a tag that reads "From our home to yours." It is inevitable that there will be awkward moments during the holiday season. Keep in mind that many people give gifts without expecting anything in return. The gift is simply a thoughtful gesture.

Respectfully Yours,
Jacquelyn

Join the epidemic of kindness

When should we stay and fight for something we believe in, and when should we walk away and say, "I had enough?"

In my way of thinking the more dedicated and determined you are, the less likely you will walk away from conflict or controversy.

You will stay and try to make everything better.

I have a wonderful friend who happens to have held a major position in our homeowners' association.

For 10 years he had an invaluable role. He was the peacemaker, the bridge that joined differing sides together.

Truthfully, he was probably the most admired person in our community because he was the one who managed to get things done. Yet he never took credit for an idea. As soon as a project he proposed was accomplished, he put someone else in charge.

I know all this because of my newspaper role. When it came time for getting credit, he made sure it was someone else in the spotlight.

I don't know how many people outside of the board of directors knew all this. They only knew he didn't seem to have any enemies.

Do you realize as I write this I'm using past tense?

That's because last month my friend did the unthinkable. After being re-elected by the biggest majority ever, my good friend resigned. I couldn't believe it.

Because we're good friends, I sat down with him to ask what the heck happened.

He had to leave, he said, because he was drowning — drowning in negativity.

"People are changing," he said, "and it's not for the better. Why have we become so fast to criticize, so fast to tear someone down without the facts? So fast to fight?"

We talked about the changes we see on the national level and now in our own association. Whereas once we seemed to be people who liked each other, we now seem to pick each other apart, criticize other views and decisions.

At first my friend did what he's always done — he patiently explained and explained, sure that the nitpickers would understand.

Instead things kept getting worse. The entire atmosphere is changing.

As all this was happening, my friend got some bad news. His cancer has returned. His doctor said they got it all and it shouldn't be a life-threatening problem.

But that health scare forced my friend to take stock of his life and realize it was time to make changes.

"I need to surround myself with positivity, not negativity," he said.

So he walked. Now another close friend on that same board of directors is also walking away.

Too many malcontents, he said. Too many spreading false information.

I understand their reasoning. Yet I also understand if the good guys leave, they are leaving the inmates to run the insane asylum.

Kenny Rodgers had a song decades ago called "The Gambler." He sang, "You gotta know when to hold 'em, Know when to fold 'em.

Know when to walk away,

And know when to run."

My friends have chosen to walk away.

Others who were approached to take their place said they didn't want any part of dealing with all the dissension on a regular basis.

It doesn't bode well for the future of our community.

Maybe we need to take the long view which acknowledges boards will change. Those fighting to run the asylum will get the chance. Years later, others will come along to challenge and criticize them.

I keep asking myself if all good men (and women) won't get involved, doesn't that leave only the meanness and bickering?

Would I have made the same decision as my close friends who walked away?

Probably. Life is short.

Too short to spend it bickering or mired in negativity.

Truth be told, I run from negative people. I also run from those who spread malicious gossip and ugly accusations, especially when they're not true.

Here's a question. If you're a peace-loving person, what do you do when someone tells you a malicious falsehood you know to be untrue?

I tend to say, that's not true, and tell them why I believe it isn't. But I don't argue about it.

Last week as I listened to a woman spewing outrageous untruths about others, I laughed and gently said I didn't share those opinions. Then I changed the subject.

If this continues, I will have to do more than change the subject. I'm changing those companions.

Are people getting meaner?

There is a way to counter that. The rest of us have to get nicer. Kinder. Gentle with each other.

How about just doing that in little things. Let the person standing in a grocery store line get ahead of you if she only has a few items.

Look people in the eye and offer a smile. It costs nothing but does wonders for those who give smiles away and those who receive them.

This week health authorities Drs. Oz and Roizen ran a column titled "The incredible benefits of kindness and empathy."

They quoted research from around the globe that showed kindness and empathy aid greatly in our quest for better health.

Kindness works to reduce stress, increase happiness and ease inflammation, they conclude.

Hopefully more of us will join the kindness epidemic.

It's greatly needed, now more than ever.

Handling three out-of-control children

Q. I can't seem to take my children, ages 7, 5 and 3, anywhere. In the grocery store they run all over the place, and in restaurants they can't stay in their seats and eat. I am exhausted from trying to control them. Please help.

"I read in the question that the young kids run all over the place, and can't keep in their seats," panelist Mike Ramsey said.

"That is very normal for kids their age," Ramsey said. "The things I'd be more concerned about are their trying to stab each other with forks, or the throwing of food in the restaurant."

"It may be too early for the three-year-old, but the five- and seven-year-olds need to be told what their parents' expectations are for their behavior," panelist Erica Carter said.

"They need to understand that if their behavior is out of control in social settings, that is not acceptable, and there are consequences," said Carter.

THE FAMILY PROJECT
By Carole Gorney

Panelist Pam Wallace said she urges parents to start early introducing their young children to public places like restaurants and grocery stores.

"The three-year-old is going to imitate the behavior of his older siblings, so it is necessary for the parent to begin setting expectations as early as possible," said Wallace.

Panelist Denise Continenza cautioned against making expectations too high, or the time frames for required good behavior too long.

Ramsey said shopping with three children is a lot to manage, asking, "Are there options where she shops? Some businesses get this. That's why McDonalds has playgrounds."

The need for the parent to get support was mentioned by panelist Chad Stefanyak, who suggested looking for ways to not take all three children out at the same time.

Panelist Erin Stalsitz recommended giving the older children jobs to do like looking at the menu and helping order the food, or finding where the boxed spaghetti is in the grocery store, saying, "It's important to get them involved."

"We're talking about restaurants, but what about the dinner table at home?" Ramsey asked, adding, "You need to practice behavior at home first."

Said Stefanyak, "Kids need to know what a restaurant is, and how to behave. They need to be exposed to these things."

This week's team of parenting experts are: Pam Wallace, program coordinator, Project Child, a program of Valley Youth House; Mike Ramsey, program supervisor, Valley Youth House; Chad Stefanyak, school counselor; Denise Continenza, extension educator; Erin Stalsitz, Lehigh Children & Youth, and Erica Carter, functional family therapy therapist.

Chemotherapy side effects explained

First of two parts
Q. I may have to have chemotherapy. Will I go bald?

Hair loss is not certain with chemotherapy. Whether you lose hair depends upon the medication and dose your doctor prescribes.

Chemotherapy is a systemic treatment that uses drugs to kill malignant cells, bacteria, viruses and fungi. Chemotherapy drugs are used to treat cancer, bone marrow diseases, rheumatoid arthritis and lupus. The drugs can be given by injection or taken orally. There are also topical creams.

Chemotherapy drugs attack rapidly-growing cancer cells. They also attack other rapidly-growing cells in your body such as those in your hair roots. Each patient reacts differently to these drugs. Some newer chemotherapy drugs may cause fewer side effects.

Hair loss from chemotherapy is not confined to your head. It can affect hair all over your body.

In most cases, hair loss from chemotherapy is temporary. Patients usually regrow hair three to 10 months after treatment.

Chemotherapy is usually given in cycles. These cycles may last one day, several days, a week or more. There will usually be a rest period between each cycle. A rest period may last for days, weeks, or months. Different chemotherapy drugs may be given simultaneously or in sequence.

Hair loss is just one possible side effects of chemotherapy.

Others include: Nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, constipation, pain, fatigue, fever, bleeding, bruising, poor appetite, weight loss, mouth sores and reduced immunity.

Many of these side effects can be prevented or treated. Most side effects subside after treatment ends.

There can be persistent side effects such as lung damage, heart problems, infertility, kidney problems, nerve damage and risk of a second cancer.

Chemotherapy is employed in a variety of ways. It can be used to cure the cancer or just to slow its growth. It can be used alone or in conjunction with radiation or other therapies. Chemotherapy treatments can be given in a hospital, outpatient facility, a doctor's office or at home.

In adjuvant therapy, chemotherapy is used to attack hidden cancer cells after other treatments such as surgery. In neoadjuvant therapy, chemotherapy is used to shrink a tumor so that radiation or surgery are possible. Palliative chemotherapy is employed to ease symptoms of advanced cancer.

Next week: Combat chemotherapy side effects

dy. "At the heart of it all, we are a jazz band that plays music from cartoons," says Pierson in a phone interview. He founded the group in 2015.

Pierson, who studied classical and jazz piano and received a doctorate in composition, says he was looking to come up with "something unusual" for a performance concept when he hit upon the jazz-cartoon connection.

"I love cartoons," Pierson says. "I was very familiar with Raymond Scott, who was a jazz musician whose catalog was bought by Warner Brothers to use for cartoons."

Scott was known for penning novelty-jazz instrumentals with cartoon-evoking titles such as "The Penguin," "Reckless Night on Board an Ocean Liner," "War Dance for Wooden Indians," "Egyptian Barn Dance" and "Dinner Music for a Pack of Hungry Cannibals."

Warner Brothers' Carl Stalling adapted Scott's music for more than 120 Bugs Bunny, Porky Pig, Daffy Duck and other cartoons.

Scott's influence continued to modern-era cartoons. His composition "Powerhouse" was featured on Cartoon Network from 1998 to 2002. Pierson says his idea was to combine the "Golden Age of Jazz" with the "Golden Age of Animation."

The Golden Age of Jazz was the 1930s and 1940s when jazz music and dance styles rapidly gained nationwide popularity. The Golden Age of Animation began with the advent of sound cartoons in 1928 and continued with theatrical animated short films like "Looney Tunes" and "Merrie Melodies" through the 1960s.

Pierson, who says his motivation is entertainment as well as education, wanted to reach people who say they don't like jazz.

Pierson spent nearly a year transcribing the music and rehearsing to synchronize the music with the cartoon clips before debuting The Queen's Cartoonists.

He is joined by Drew Pitcher, clarinet; Mark Phillips, tenor saxophone; Greg Hammon-tree, trumpet; Matt Jung, bass, and Rossen Nedelchev, drummer.

All six musicians live in Queens, a borough of New York City, N.Y., prompting Pierson to come up with the group's name, even though it's stated in the singular.

"We're all Queens proud, he says.

The Queen's Cartoonists has played at performing arts centers in more than 20 states, opened for the New York Philharmonic, and been featured in The Wall Street Journal, The Chicago Tribune, Mashable, and on NPR.

Pierson says that, despite the cartoon focus, a Queen's Cartoonists' concert is truly for everybody.

"It's not for kids, but kids will like it," he says. "The music is crazy at times and we do some circus-type things on stage."

The band focuses on music from classic cartoons from the 1930s and 1940s from Warner Brothers, Walt Disney, smaller animation houses, including those that featured Betty Boop, Popeye the Sailor Man, Felix the Cat, and some cult cartoons and modern animation.

"We show a whole variety of cartoons," he says.

Tying it all together are comedic anecdotes involving the cartoons and composers and on-stage antics.

"It's so silly," admits Pierson. "But a lot of time, jazz can seem pretentious and we want to show jazz can be fun. It didn't start out pretentious. It was originally dance music."

For Dover Quartet, music is a bond for decade-plus

BY KATHY LAUER-WILLIAMS
Special to The Press

The Dover Quartet is somewhat unique among classical quartets, in that its four members have been playing together for nearly 11 years.

Violinists Joel Link and Bryan Lee, violist Milena Pajaro-van de Stadt and cellist Camden Shaw have been together since they met as students at Curtis Institute, Philadelphia.

"That we have the same membership since we formed is a notable thing," says de Stadt. "We have such an intensive chemistry. It really feels like a family. And when it comes to playing in a quartet, it really is about the chemical reaction between four people."

The Dover Quartet performs, 2 p.m. Nov. 24, "Chamber On Stage" series, Miller Symphony Hall, Allentown.

In the series, ensembles perform on the stage, but with the performers' backs to the orchestra seats in which the audience usually sits. Instead, audience members are seated at the back of the stage facing the performers, creating the feeling of an intimate space, while still taking advantage of the acoustics of the hall.

The Dover Quartet's rise from an up-and-coming ensemble to a top spot in their field has been fast. The Philadelphia-based quartet catapulted to international notoriety after a sweep of the 2013 Banff International String Quartet Competition.

De Stadt says the four members began playing in chamber groups at Curtis but not together. She and Shaw were playing in one quartet while Link and Lee, who had met at age 13 at a summer music camp, were playing in a different quartet.

De Stadt says she and Shaw had taken note of the talent of the two violinists and when their quartet started to disintegrate "we pounced on them."

"We like to say we formed from a topless quartet and a bottomless quartet," she quips.

Right away the performers clicked and they had the "relationship talk," de Stadt says.

"Everyone was cautiously optimistic about going for it as a group," she says.

The group stayed at Curtis for an extra year, fine-tuning their technique and then auditioned as a quartet for the master's program at Rice University.

"Doing that was the biggest sign of our commitment to each other," de Stadt says.

After graduating from Rice University, Dover Quartet competed at Banff Competition, where the young performers swept the awards.

"That's when our career really launched," de Stadt says.

The quartet was in huge demand all over Canada after winning the high-profile competition in Alberta.

Since then the quartet has performed 120-150 concerts a year and has returned from a whirlwind European tour in which they gave seven concerts in eight days. The group has performed internationally including in Australia, Tasmania and Hong Kong.

The four members are outstanding solo artists. Link took first prize at the Menuhin Competition; Lee and de Stadt have played as soloists with the Philadelphia Orchestra and Tokyo Philharmonic, and Shaw has released a solo album debut on the Unipheye Music label.

De Stadt credits the group's meteoric success to its unique sound as well as to each musician's talent.

"By nature we're a unique group," she says. "We think of our instruments as our voices. We view our music as if we are expressing ourselves vocally. Even when we argue, we sing things to each other."

The quartet fell in love with the standard repertoire and play everything from Mozart, Beethoven and Haydn to Bartok and Shostakovich.

For the Symphony Hall concert, Dover Quartet will perform an eclectic program, including Mozart, Paul Hindemuth and Brahms.

The program opens with Mozart's "Adagio and Fugue, K. 546," a piece that de Stadt says is "quite fiery, even for Mozart."

Hindemith's "Quartet No. 3 in C Major, Op. 16" from 1924 is the "most out-there sounding piece on the program," de Stadt says.

"It taps into a more gnarly, chromatic world," she says.

The final piece, Brahms' "Quartet No. 3 in B-flat Major, Op. 67," is one of de Stadt's favorites.

pyrotechnics.

Jessie's Girl is named after Rick Springfield's hit song, which reached No. 1 on the "Billboard Hot 100" in 1981.

Jessie's Girl keyboardist and music director Paul "Sky" Armento recently spoke about the 1980s' band.

"A music director figures out what needs to be done musically," says Armento in a phone interview. "For Jessie's Girl, it's an easy job because everyone is so acclimated to what this is and they're such high-level professionals."

The Jessie's Girl lineup was created seven years ago. "Our musicians, the guitarist, bassist and drummer, have been playing together on the circuit for probably 25 years," says Armento. "We have a really tight rhythm section."

When it comes to '80s music, Armento knows whereof he speaks and plays. Armento was musical director for Debbie Gibson in the '80s, and has worked with Howard Jones, Clay Aiken, Dee Snider, MC Hammer, Tiffany, Rob Base, Naughty By Nature, the Sugar Hill Gang, Taylor Dayne, Bret Michaels, Tone Loc, Katrina Leskanich (Katrina and the Waves) Mike Score (A Flock of Seagulls) and Colin Hay (Men At Work).

Jessie's Girl performs every Saturday night at Le Poisson Rouge, along Bleeker Street in Greenwich Village, N.Y., as well as in concert and at private events.

"What we're doing with Jessie's Girl is authentic," says Armento. "We're playing like we played back in the Eighties. We like playing everything live. Occasionally, we'll throw in a track song, like 'Frankie Goes to Hollywood,' which has, like, 10 keyboard parts."

"[Our music's] a little bit heavier, a little bit cleaner. We're not making music like you hear on the radio. We're not using computers. We do revel in taking the authenticity of the Eighties and making that what we create a song from."

Armento also has an interest in stage design, which makes for visually appealing shows.

"I have a van full of pyrotechnics, spark throwers, CO2 cannons, because my love of EDM has got me involved in doing all the video work, lights and explosions. I make it like a real rock show."

St. Andrew's Lutheran Church holds designer purse bingo

PRESS PHOTOS BY DEBBIE GALBRAITH

St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, 4330 West Rock Road, Allentown, held its annual designer purse and gift card bingo Nov. 10 at Fearless Fire Company. ABOVE: Melissa and Kamryn Kratz, of Bethlehem, have their stampers ready for bingo. RIGHT: Ashley Richmond, of Lower Macungie, wins a $50 gift card to The Fresh Market at the St. Andrew's Lutheran Church bingo.

'Midway' the CGI way

"Midway" is a theatrical feature movie that would fit right in with the Turner Classic Movie channel's annual Veterans' Day telecast of military-themed movies.

One might reasonably ask why, at this time, a film about the Battle of Midway in 1942, a turning point in the United States' defeat of the Japanese Empire in World War II, needed to be made.

A film of the same title, "Midway," was released in 1976, with an all-star cast, including Charlton Heston, Henry Fonda, James Coburn, Glenn Ford, Hal Holbrook, Toshiro Mifune, Robert Mitchum, Cliff Robertson, Robert Wagner and Pat Morita. The film's soundtrack by John Williams, cinematography by director of photography Harry Stradling Jr., and Sensurround, which enhanced the battle sounds, were praised.

"Midway" was No. 10 at the box office in 1976. Sequences depicting Japanese air raids on Midway were from the feature movie, "Tora! Tora! Tora!" (1970) and director John Ford's documentary film, "The Battle of Midway" (1942), the latter which received the 1942 Oscar for documentary.

There's no such cribbing in "Midway," and the apparent authenticity makes the 2019 release worth seeing. There are incredible battle scenes from the opening moments nearly to the final frames. Most scenes were accomplished with Computer Generated Imagery (CGI). "Midway" is an example of a good use of CGI in cinema.

The visuals (Director of Photography Robby Baumgartner) of soaring and diving United States Grumman F4F Wildcat fighter planes, Douglas SBD Dauntless dive bombers and other airplanes, aerial dogfights and gunning between U.S. fighter planes and Japanese Zero fighter planes, and the aerial explosions and bombings of aircraft carriers and battleships are very realistic. Some battle scenes will make you jump in your seat, augmented by excellent sound design and the score (Harald Kloser, Thomas Wanker). The big action scenes are balanced with close-ups of the faces of fighter pilots and gunners. You feel their fear.

"Midway" traces the war in the Pacific from Japan's surprise Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor, to action in the Coral Sea, to the bombing of Toyko, to the June 4-7, 1941 Battle of Midway.

By Paul Willistein
pwillistein@tronline.com

"Midway" is based on real-life military leaders, soldiers and civilians, including fighter Pilots Dick Best (Ed Skrein), Wade McClusky (Luke Evans) and Clarence Dickinson (Luke Kleintank), Intelligence Officer Edwin Layton (Patrick Wilson), Admiral Chester W. Nimitz (Woody Harrelson), Vice Admiral William Halsey (Dennis Quaid), Lieutenant Colonel Jimmy Doolittle (Aaron Eckhart), Machinist Bruno Gaido (Nick Jonas), Chief Radioman James Murray (Kean Johnson), Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto (Etsushi Toyokawa) and Anne Best (Mandy Moore).

Although the derogatory nickname for persons of Japanese descent is used in the film, "Midway" seems to present a balanced view of the Japanese soldiers and their leaders, similar to that of the American and Japanese co-production, "Tora! Tora! Tora!"

From the United States' side, "Midway" gives a sense of the importance of the chain of command, teamwork and the heroic efforts of American soldiers, including Chief Cryptologist Joseph Rochefort (Brennan Brown), whose discovery of an impending Japanese attack prevented a repeat of an attack similar to that on Pearl Harbor.

Director Roland Emmerich ("Independence Day: Resurgence," 2016; "The Day After Tomorrow," 2004; "Godzilla," 1998; "Independence Day," 1996) works from a screenplay by Wes Tooke (TV series, "Colony," 2016-2018) in his theatrical movie screenplay debut.

"Midway" is a respectful recounting of an incredible battle that helped determine the outcome of World War II in the Pacific Theater.

It's worth seeing for veterans, World War II buffs and those who want to know what real heroism is all about.

At the film's conclusion, photos and information about the real-life soldiers are shown. Their courage made all the difference. So does "Midway."

Note: "Dauntless: The Battle of Midway," about two men adrift in the Pacific Ocean after they had to ditch their U.S.

Navy dive bomber, was released in 2019.

"Midway," MPAA rated PG-13 (Parents Strongly Cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13. Parents are urged to be cautious. Some material may be inappropriate for pre-teens.) for sequences of war violence and related images, language and smoking; Genre: Action, History. Run time: 2 hr., 18 min. Released by Lionsgate.

Credit Readers Anonymous: Portions of "Midway" are in Japanese with English subtitles. The song, "All Or Nothing At All," is sung by Annie Trousseau during the closing credits.

Box Office, Nov. 15-17: "Ford v Ferrari" received the checkered flag at the weekend box office, opening with $31 million, passing "Midway," which dropped one place from its one week at No. 1 to No. 2 with $8.7 million, $35.1 million, two weeks, as the "Charlie's Angels" remake finished at No. 3, opening with only $8.6 million.

4. "Playing with Fire" dropped one place, $8.5 million, $25.4 million, two weeks. 5. "Last Christmas" dropped one place, $6.7 million, $22.5 million, two weeks. 6. "Doctor Sleep" dropped four places, $6.1 million, $25 million, two weeks.

7. "The Good Liar," $5.6 million, opening. 8. "Joker" dropped two places, $5.6 million, $322.5 million, seven weeks. 9. "Maleficent: Mistress of Evil" dropped two places, $5.2 million, $106 million, five weeks. 10. "Harriet" dropped two places, $4.7 million, $31.8 million, three weeks.

Dr. Michael Birkner, Professor of History at Gettysburg College, speaks about James Buchanan and the Civil War, 1 p.m. Nov. 23, Lehigh Valley Heritage Museum, 432 W. Walnut St., Allentown.

Buchanan, of Franklin County, was the only United States president from Pennsylvania (1857-1861).

Birkner is the author or editor of 14 books and many articles on 19th and 20th century

U.S. political history, including three edited volumes about Buchanan and three others on President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Copies of two books on Buchanan edited by Birkner will be available for purchase. The author will sign copies following the presentation.

The talk is in conjunction with the Museum's exhibit on the American Presidency.
