United States as their reason for raising their voices in protest.

A hastily organized effort by the Lehigh Valley Tea Party was expected to attract patriot groups from elsewhere in the state as well as Washington, D.C., said Ronnie DelBacco, a member of the executive board of Lehigh Valley Tea party at the scene.

Meanwhile, Joe Welsh, of Easton, also at the scene but across the street, said he used social media and email contacts to reach out to his fellow counter-protestors.

Salisbury Township police and KidsPeace security were on hand to keep order.

Drivers honked horns, pumped fists and flashed peace signs in support of their preferred side. One driver blew a car horn playing the tune "Dixie."

Rumors of buses or van loads of children being brought to the Broadway campus prompted the

A group of well-behaved protesters on Broadway in Salisbury Township Sunday wait to meet a rumored bus with immigrant children and protest their arrival. The bus never arrived. "I'm fed-up," said Mike DeMeo of Hanover Township. "I pay taxes. Where is it going to end? The blue-collar guy has a burden of responsibility to pay for these programs. We need to pay our own bills, pay for our own kids and mortgages."

Jude Denis (far left rear) is from Breinigsville, Carol Front of Foglesville (center) and Cheryl Gilbert of Salisbury were in support of bringing immigrant children to KidsPeace. "America is the land of immigration," said Denis. "These are children," said Front. "We need to have a heart. They are coming from where gangs were recruiting children as young as four." "These are innocent children whose parents are trying to save them," said Gilbert.

Paul Saunders of Hanover Township said regardless of what the law says about immigration, "Moral law matters. Moral law trumps legal law." His sign reads, "Stop the immoral smuggling of children!"

Marcie Lightwood of Allentown said she was at the rally outside KidsPeace on Broadway in Salisbury, "Because these children are at the beginning of their lives. We want to give them a chance."

The Rev. Douglas Caldwell died Thursday in Hanover Township.

Caldwell memorial service July 26

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzemeski@tnonline.com

The Rev. Douglas Caldwell was a common feature at gatherings across the Lehigh Valley for many years. With a genuine warm smile and a firm handshake, he made every one of hundreds of guests feel welcome at events ostentatious and rudimentary. His drawled, laughing tones made every meeting feel a bit like a sit-down with an old friend.

He retired from the Central Moravian Church in 2009, but left decades of teachings, good community works and powerful relationships in his wake.

Caldwell died Thursday in Hanover Township. See SERVICE on Page A4

Lehigh Valley Tea Party to come out, DelBacco said.

"We're not here to cause a problem. We don't want to start any word wars (with counter-protestors)," DelBacco said.

Hand drawn placards on cardboard, posters and silk screened banners touted phrases such as "Secure Our Borders," "Stop the Immoral Smuggling of Children," and "Don't Tread on Me" above a rattlesnake against a gold background. At one point a red, white and blue banner was unfurled featuring a quote attributed to Thomas Jefferson.

Across the street, counter-protestors displayed signs declaring "No Child is Illegal," "No Place for Hate in the Lehigh Valley," and "We Support KidsPeace."

Both sides flew American flags.

"We're a good, kind, decent people," Welsh said of Americans, describing the counter-protest as an effort to show the Tea Party protest was not the only voice to be heard in the area.

"We believe in our principles so we don't need a crowd to say what we think," Welsh said, recognizing the counter-protestors were outnumbered by the protestors across the street.

Protestors from both sides began to gather mid-morning and numbers on both sides grew as the day wore on. Tea Party protestors used a portable public address system to be heard over the din of passing traffic. Counter-protestors used a bullhorn or their voices raised in shouts. Many on both sides stood silent and let the signs they held speak.

Police provided the rules of the protest early: To protect public safety no one was to walk on Broadway outside the marked crosswalk or stand on KidsPeace property. Officers occasionally directed traffic when the steady stream of traffic along Broadway got congested as drivers slowed to read signs or honk. An ambulance crew from St. Luke's Hospital delivered bottled water.

Bevin Theodore, director of public relations and communications for KidsPeace, noted KidsPeace is among facilities helping children crossing into the United States. With facilities in 10 states and Washington, D.C., including the residential campuses in Salisbury Township and Orefield, and outpatient programs including therapy and foster care, KidsPeace specializes in helping children.

ArtsQuest picks new CEO

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastzowski@ttonline.com

ArtsQuest announced July 15 the name of its new president and CEO: Katherine E. "Kassie" Hilgert, the nonprofit's senior vice president of marketing and advancement.

Hilgert will transition to the president's role over the next several months while working closely with ArtsQuest Founder and President Jeff Parks. She will officially assume the president's responsibilities upon Parks' retirement in January 2015.

The Hanover Township resident joined the company in 2008 and has overseen ArtsQuest's sponsorship, marketing, development, ticketing, public relations and volunteer departments; cultivated local partnerships to expand arts and cultural programming; secured support for Musikfest; and helped raise $26 million to construct the Steel-Stacks campus.

She is a graduate of Salisbury HS and Pennsylvania State University, and has extensive experience in marketing, development, corporate communications and community relations. She has worked at Medstar Television, Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Network and Air Products. She has also served on numerous boards, including Good Shepherd, Boy Scouts of America's Minsi Trails and the Lehigh Valley Economic Development Corporation.

"I am humbled to be selected as the next president and CEO of such a dynamic organization and to follow in the footsteps of a true visionary," said Hilgert. "Our mission is to provide unique arts and cultural experiences in a way that drives economic development in urban ArtsQuest has always been and will always be a community-based organization that thrives because of the tremendous and extensive support of our boards, donors, sponsors, volunteers, members, public partners, staff and so many others. ArtsQuest and the entire Lehigh Valley have a bright future, and I look forward to creating and strengthening the partnerships that drive us towards sustainable growth while delivering exceptional experiences."

Hilgert was recommended by a nomination committee following a nationwide search and was recently approved by the ArtsQuest Board of Trustees.

"The ArtsQuest Board of Trustees is very pleased to unanimously support Kassie Hilgert as our next president and CEO," said Chairman Joe Pietrantonio, "During our five-month search, Kassie clearly rose to the forefront in meeting the key criteria that we set for the next leader of the organization. She is exemplary in her knowledge and passion for the ArtsQuest mission, her leadership skills and her demonstrated ability to work with the many constituents of the Lehigh Valley who make ArtsQuest successful. We are all very excited about the future of ArtsQuest and are thrilled to have Kassie as our new leader."

Parks, meanwhile, will become executive director of the ArtsQuest Foundation, the nonprofit foundation established to help support the long-term sustainability of ArtsQuest. Parks was named the executive director by the ArtsQuest Foundation Board of Trustees and will begin the part-time position in May 2015.

KidsPeace 'refugee' housing issue began over a year ago

NEWS BACKGROUND

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
pwillistein@tnonline.com

The federal Office of Refugee Resettlement (ORR) began housing what are officially termed "refugee children" in May 2013 at the KidsPeace Broadway campus.

The program is funded by a $3.5-million ORR grant to house children allegedly caught at the Mexican border attempting to cross into the United States.

Up to 72 unaccompanied children for up to 45 days were to be housed at residential home at the KidsPeace Broadway campus along Broadway in eastern Salisbury Township near the border with the Borough of Fountain Hill. Up to 109 youths can be housed at KidsPeace Broadway.

Salisbury Township Director of Planning and Zoning Cynthia Sopka and Salisbury Township Manager Randy Soriano said the use of KidsPeace to house the children met the requirements of the township zoning ordinance.

Soriano told township commissioners at the May 9, 2013, township meeting that the KidsPeace housing of the children qualified under a special exception in the zoning ordinance.

"At this juncture, KidsPeace over the years has received permits indicating a host of uses that include group homes," Sopka stated in an email response to a reporter for Salisbury Press following the May 9, 2013, township meeting.

Salisbury Township Chief of Police Allen W. Stiles, Sopka and an Eastern Salisbury Township Fire Department official met May 8, 2013, with KidsPeace officials to discuss the housing of youths at the Broadway Campus.

Patrick Slattery of the KidsPeace Advancement Department had left a voicemail for Soriano, who spoke with him April 25, 2013, about KidsPeace Broadway housing the youths.

Stiles told township commissioners at the May 9,

It's the law

Federal law requires that HHS feed, shelter, and provide medical care for unaccompanied children until it is able to place them in a safe setting with family members or a sponsor, while they await an immigration proceeding.

Recently, because of a large increase in the number of unaccompanied children crossing the border, HHS has had to quickly open temporary shelters on three military bases to meet the needs of this vulnerable population.

However, for years, HHS has operated shelters throughout the United States for children who enter the country without their parent. These shelters are currently in many states, including Pennsylvania. These shelters are consistently quiet and good neighbors in the communities where they are located.

The impact of these shelters on the local community is minimal. HHS pays for and provides all services for the children through its network of grantees. This includes providing food, clothing, education and medical screening to the children. Children spend less than 30 days on average at the shelters and do not integrate into the local community. They remain under staff supervision at all times.

2013, meeting the youths ranged from 15 to 17 years old. "If the kids leave, then ICE will intervene," Stiles told commissioners.
ICE is the acronym for the United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement in the Department of Homeland Security.

"We have been reassured that the federal government was involved. They evaluated the [KidsPeace] site," Sopka told officials.
KidsPeace was said to have hired and trained an additional 60 bilingual employees to accommodate the children.

According to an April 24, 2013, KidsPeace press release, the Broadway Campus offers "a safe haven for these youth until they can be placed in permanent homes."
"Services include shelter care for up to 72 unaccompanied children at one time, daily education that will include core subjects, English language education, art, music, health and physical education, and citizenship; counseling from a bilingual master's level clinician; recreation; medical and mental health assessments, and ongoing medical, psychiatric and dental care as needed," KidsPeace Director of Public Relations and Communications Bevin Theodore stated in the April 24, 2013, press release.
KidsPeace anticipated an average length of stay to be 45 days, with the goal of moving the children toward reunification with relatives, or when that is not possible, returning them safely to their home countries.
KidsPeace was said to be one of the U.S. facilities housing the children. The other two facilities were said to be in Texas.
KidsPeace Broadway campus children residences were unoccupied since 2008 when youths were relocated to KidsPeace Orchard Hills Campus, Orefield, North Whitehall Township, where as many as 200 youths are housed.
ORR [The Office of Refugee Resettlement] is in the Office of the Administration for Children & Families in the U.S. Department of Health & Human Services.

Eichfeld decries science text

SAUCON VALLEY

By MARK RECCEK
mreccek@tnonline.com

Saucon Valley School District school board member Bryan Eichfeld considers a chapter of a high school environmental science textbook on global warming "propaganda."
At the board's June 24 meeting, Eichfeld urged the board to replace the textbook with what he called "true science."
"There's a lot of clear propaganda in this chapter," he told board members.
Eichfeld took issue with how the book presents global warming. According to him, the book presents the topic of global warming by offering political propaganda rather than science and fact.

District Superintendent Sandra Fellin said the textbook has been extensively reviewed by the science department to ensure it's a proper fit.
She said the books the board voted on for next academic year all line up with the district's curriculum.
Board member Sandra Miller said she was surprised a member of the school board would attempt to restructure the district curriculum based on a specific ideological viewpoint.

Miller said she is confident the science department made a reasoned decision in selecting the book and that the book is compatible with state educational standards.
"It's not appropriate for us to be going down this road," she said.
Board member Ralph Puerta said Eichfeld's suggestion leads the district to dispose of independent thought by its students. He said by virtue of the enormous amount of information available today, students themselves can make a reasoned decision.

Eichfeld's motion failed to generate support among the board.
In other business, the school board unanimously passed the 2014-15 budget amounting to $41 million.
It is the sixth year in a row the district has passed a budget with a zero percent tax increase.
The school district anticipates using roughly $87,000 from the $13 million savings account to balance the budget.
Included in the budget is $118,000 to purchase a new bus, $8,000 for new sand for the pool pumps and $7,500 for five new bus cameras.

Bethlehem Director of the City Water Department Ed Boscola spoke at the July 15 city council meeting, addressing the Bethlehem Water Treatment Plant's sixth consecutive year of winning the Area Wide Optimization Award for stringent water quality.
"As you know the city is blessed with a very pristine water flow up in the Poconos," Boscola said. "It helps us meet the EPA standards. It's another feather in our cap."

Also at the council meeting, council member Bryan Callahan made a statement to Mayor Robert Donchez and the entire community, thanking the people of the city for making Bethlehem one of the most livable cities in Pa.

"Thank you to our Mayor," Callahan said, "and to all of our departments, to our water department...to Movies in the Park...we were recently named one of the top 10 cities in Pennsylvania to live. We are being recognized for something we already know. We live in a wonderful place."
Bethlehem's popular upcoming MusikFest music festival was also addressed at the meeting. Council unanimously approved the raising of parking fines during Musikfest, to $30, twice their normal rate of $15.

Due to the large crowds and limited parking during MusikFest, council also unanimously approved moving the Aug. 5 council meeting from 7 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

HEARING LOSS: The Hidden Danger When the Brain Can't Hear

The consequences of an untreated hearing loss are real. Since we collect sound with our ears and process the sound in our brains, over time and without hearing assistance. We can lose the ability to understand the spoken word. This documented process is called "auditory deprivation."

Without receiving the appropriate stimuli the brain stops processing sounds like background noise and can no longer filter speech clearly. You may answer a question incorrectly, withdraw, smile and pretend you understood the conversation. This can be particularly troublesome when you are visiting the doctor, and important information is being relayed. In some cases, people have been "misdiagnosed" with Alzheimer's disease because they were unable to follow the conversation.

According to world renowned Otolaryngologist, Dr. John Shea Jr., of the famed Shea Ear Clinic, "If a person is hard of hearing and they don't get amplification, they are not hearing and they have the ability to understand." Once familiar sounds, slowly fade like the hum of a refrigerator and become unrecognizable noise, competing with spoken words.

Dr. Shea went to say, "When presented with amplification, or hearing aids, speech understanding becomes clearer. However, it is a continual process of improvement. Stimulating the brain with sound may help to overcome the auditory deprivation process, and getting help early is critical to a long term success."

Now, the goal is to do everything we can to maintain the speech recognition you have. You need to wear the best hearing aids you can afford, full-time in both ears to hear correctly. Hearing aids solve the problems people have with communication, and the help to preserve and protect the brain's ability to recognize. Hearing loss ranks number three behind hypertension and arthritis. Often called the invisible disability, hearing loss happens slowly over time and may go unnoticed for years.

According to an article in Post Graduate Medicine, by Dr.'s Shehet and Bent, "Loss of hearing is national health problem with significant physical and psychological repercussions."

Although there is no cure for certain forms of hearing loss, many patients can be helped, especially when the problem is recognized early. Wearing amplification (hearing aids) has been shown to help preserve the remaining hearing and speech clarity. If you think you may have hearing loss, the most important first step is to have your hearing tested. Your results will identify which frequencies or pitches you do or do not hear. If you do have a hearing loss, getting help has never been easier. With today's advanced technology you will get clear, crisp, and natural sound.

PEOPLE DON'T CARE HOW MUCH YOU KNOW, UNTIL THEY KNOW HOW MUCH WE CARE.

Use it, or LOSE it!

- Communication occurs in the brain.
- When we lose our ability to hear, the ear stops sending needed information to the brain, affecting the ability to understand what is being said.
- "Auditory Deprivation" can impair the way the brain processes sound.
- The solution is hearing aids; sending the correct information to the brain, protecting it from atrophy.

$21k for a Bog Turtle study?

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

For years, critics of environmental regulation have liked to joke about construction projects being put on hold because someone saw a bog turtle. It's no longer a joke in Northampton County. The Rasleytown Road bridge project in Plainfield Township has been put on hold because the area has been identified as a potential bog turtle habitat. Some even claim to have seen one or two of these tiny turtles, which have been on the threatened species list since 1997.

In addition to delaying the bridge work, the state Department of Environmental Protection is requiring a new study to determine whether the bridge work could adversely impact Pennsylvania's smallest turtle. It will cost the county $21,000, according to Public Works Director Richard Young.

The Rasleytown Road Bridge is one of 16 bridges under repair in the county, thanks to a $19.6 million bond floated a year ago.

By a 7-1 vote at their July 17 meeting, county council members agreed to foot the bill. Mat Benol voted no, but Bob Werner reminded him they really have no choice if they want to fix the bridge.

Of course, there were a few turtle jokes. Council member Hayden Phillips drew the biggest laugh at a Finance Committee meeting when he explained, "They're going to take pictures of individual turtles as they find them. I don't know if they have a yearbook. That's the EPA."

According to Pennsylvania's Fish and Boat Commission, bog turtles live about 20-30 years, but spend half that time in a dormant state, buried in mud.

They only grow four inches long. Their shells are too soft to protect themselves from predators, so they dive into the mud.

In other business, council approved more than $400,000 in grants for municipal park improvements in Lehigh,

Williams and Forks townships, as well as Hellertown and Northampton boroughs. The money for these grants derives from the half mill of tax for a "pay as you go" open space program, first approved by council in 2006.

Phillips voted against these grants, saying the county's unrestricted reserve, or rainy day fund, has dropped from about $60 million in 2006 to just $11.1 million at the end of last year. "That financial well is not there anymore," he said.

But Council member Glenn Geissinger disagreed, saying investments attract business and actually encourage economic development. "I think personally that this is why we pay taxes," added Benol.

No Outside Door Handle?

Have you seen Holman Hunt's picture of Jesus Christ entitled "Behold I Stand at the Door?" It depicts Christ standing at a door with His right hand upon the knocker. At His feet, weeds have grown long, a tell-tale sign that the door had not been opened in a long time. There He stands patiently awaiting a response. A lantern in His left hand casts a flickering light upon the weeds at the door and reveals the nail-prints in His pierced hands.

When the original was first exhibited in London, critics said that Hunt had made one omission. On the door there is a knocker; but there is no outside handle. Hunt replied, "This door opens only from the inside." It is the door of man's heart. Hunt's picture portrays the Scripture verse in Revelation 3:20 where Jesus said, "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." In this verse, we see that Jesus, the Son of God, wants to fellowship with you. Yes, with you! Jesus gave this invitation to everyone! It is given to you! If you will respond to Him and open the door of your heart today, Jesus will come into your life! Push aside the distractions of the world that would keep you from answering His knock. Throw the door of your heart wide open and receive Christ for "as many as received him, to them gave he power (the right or privilege) to become the sons of God" (John 1:12). Receive Him now and become a child of God!

Jesus is knocking on the door of your heart right now! He is waiting now for your response. Will you answer Him now? Will you swing open the door of your heart to Jesus now? Will you invite Him to come into your heart? Make this chorus your prayer: "Into my heart, into my heart, Come into my heart, Lord Jesus; Come into my heart, come in to stay, Come into my heart, Lord Jesus."

The Bethlehem Press' Athletes of the Year

2013-2014 Season

FREEDOM HIGH SCHOOL

Nigel Long is Patriots humble leader

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Nigel Long considers himself a leader. More importantly, he's humble.

So when people talk about Long as a person, it's easy to understand what everyone loves about the Freedom senior.

It's part of the reason he was chosen as male athlete of the year for Freedom, as well as for the Bethlehem Press.

The three-year varsity member of the soccer team and two-year varsity starter on the basketball team, was an engine for both sports during his tenure. Having a persistent motor for Freedom is something that all Patriots should be used to, as the comparisons to cross-town rival Liberty, are always prevalent, but among the list of accomplades that Long has collected over the years, having Freedom win "The Bell," which is an accumulation of wins and losses for all sports between the two schools, for the first time in 23 years, may have been the cherry on top for any departing Freedom senior athlete.

"I think being athlete of the year helps me leave a legacy at Freedom," said Long. "I definitely don't take that for granted. I take pride in the awards, but winning the bell is a big thing for all of us at Freedom. It shows everyone that we can compete with Liberty in anything."

And competing is what Long is all about. Outside of his leadership in the locker room, his work-ethic and persistence, Long knows all about the trials and tribulations that come from his 5-foot-8 frame,

Helen Hsu's work ethic 'second to none'

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Freedom High School coaches, Mike Evans and Jon Larson, have as much admiration and respect for Patriot golfer and swimmer, Helen Hsu, as she has for them.

Hsu won the Lehigh Valley Conference Girls Golf Championship with a 77 this past fall. This past winter, Hsu broke pool record after pool record, and school record after school record, in six events over the course of the swim season.

"Helen is very meticulous," said Evans. "She works hard at everything and she does it the right way. A big part of her success is her work ethic. It is second to none."

When Hsu plays a course, she takes detailed notes that include diagrams, the clubs she uses on certain holes, and the way the ball breaks in certain areas. If, for example, the Freedom junior needs to work on putting, she will practice that for two to three hours. Perhaps most importantly, Hsu keeps her emotions in check.

"Helen has a lot of inner confidence and doesn't get rattled at all. Technically, she doesn't worry about what her opponents are doing. She plays the course. She realizes there will be double bogeys, and she'll get birdies, but she doesn't get excited," said Evans.

Placing first in districts by ten strokes in 2012, Hsu went to this year's district tournament with a target on her back and placed second, shooting an 86 to Emmaus's Kelsey Patterson's 84.

The subsequent regional tournament pitted Hsu against the two-time defending state champ who also played in the U.S. Open.

"Helen didn't let that faze her at all. Then, she qualified for states," Evans said. "What's nice is that other players learn from her because she shows them what you need to succeed at the next level."

Hsu is the only girl who plays golf for Freedom, but she plays the rounds with the boys, and is such an easy going person, she can interact well with anybody.

Hsu said, "It's like having seven brothers. I've always been comfortable around the guys. Golf is individual, but your teammates make it fun."

During the LVC tournament, for example, the male golfers were ranking the conference coaches for fun, and Evans emerged in the top 2 for best coaches.

"I'm really lucky to have a coach like Mr. Evans. There's only so much a golf coach can actually do, but he really cares. He makes sure we have anything we need, and I really need to thank him for that. He's really easy to talk to, and he has a genuine willingness to help," said Hsu.

Hsu considered her game to have been "on again, off again" throughout last season, but was able to emerge on top at the LVC tournament.

"I was really happy. All the players are really, really good, but it set me up nicely, knowing what I could do for districts," she said.

In swimming, Hsu was also a district champ in the 100 backstroke this past winter, finishing with a time of 56.82 and breaking Freedom's school record.

At the time, Hsu said, "I was happy. It was kind of the highlight of entire districts. I just gave it all I had."

All season, Hsu gave it her all, breaking the 50 free and the 100 free pool records at Freedom (24.25, 52.22), the 200 free school record (1:53.71), the 200 IM school record (2:10.29), and the 100 butterfly school and pool record at Freedom (57.46).

At districts, Freedom's 400 free relay team of Shannon Howell, Raleigh Ellis, Carly DelFranco, and Hsu broke their school record (3:36.76), and at states, Freedom's 200 medley relay team of DelFranco, Kelly Kopko, Hsu, and Howell also broke their school record (1:48.57).

"It was great, but at the same time, I was really scared because I couldn't figure out why I was swimming that fast," said Hsu.

For Coach Larson, Hsu's accomplishments were probably less of a mystery.

"I watched Helen from afar before I became her coach. I saw a lot of talent and great skills, and she was what I would call a drop-dead sprinter. I wanted to know how she trained, but I had no clue," Larson said.

That's when Hsu turned over some log books to Larson.

"They were the most detailed I'd ever seen. She wrote about her technique, how she felt when she was swimming, her times. It was clear she was into the sport. I wanted to expand her list of events. I knew I was dealing with someone who would think and who could go with the flow," said Larson.

That would be just fine with Hsu, who appreciates Larson's style.

"Jon is willing to balance things. He works with what we have. He doesn't force anything really strictly, and he works with people's schedules. If you want to work on something specific, he'll work it out. He's not like, this is my game plan, and I'll knock down everyone in my way to get it. He gives people what they need,"

Hsu said.

Hsu went undefeated in every event in every dual meet this season. She was also a team captain.

"Just watching the interactions on the pool deck, you can get a feel for the vibe. Helen was involved with everyone. She was the first one in the locker room, the first one getting the lanes set up. I appreciate her leadership, and she's definitely a team person," said Larson.

Hsu's third place finish in the 100 free at districts was somewhat of a disappointment, but Larson took responsibility.

"I didn't prep her for that with tapering and shaving, [saving that for states]. It didn't end as well as I had hoped," he said.

Regarding next year, Larson plans to add some dryland programs to Hsu's training.

For Hsu, swimming and golf have been more than meets and matches.

"I take my academics very seriously and get stressed out about them, so when I swim, I can forget about all that. I've made extraordinary friends, and I've seen great leadership. In golf, it comes down to the people you meet and the experiences you have with them. It's just fun," she said.

There are two more people in her life, however, that Hsu would like to recognize.

"I've done all these interviews and articles, and somehow this never makes it in: I want to thank my parents. They don't put too much pressure on me. My mom always says, 'If you don't want to swim anymore, please tell me,'" Hsu laughed. "My mom used to drive me around everywhere. My parents go to the meets, and I want to thank them for the general support they've given me."

italize on them," he said, "because you never know when you're going to get back there."

Which is prophetic in part, because Long will never be back at Freedom either as a player, as he moves onto college this fall at The Catholic University of America in Washington D.C., where he'll play Division-III basketball.

With Freedom in the rear view, Long certainly made the most of his opportunity donning the black and gold.

"I look back at my years at Freedom and I don't have any regrets," said Long. "I'm just happy I got a chance to play and did the best I could with every opportunity given to me."

NORCO LEGION

Bath wins title

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Bath swept their way through the NORCO Legion postseason and are now trying to stay alive in the Region 2 American Legion Baseball Tournament.

After sweeping the Birchess in two games and finishing the series with a 5-4 victory last week to win the NORCO crown, Bath focused their efforts on regionals, which started with a loss.

Norchester dealt the local champions a 4-3 loss in the opening round of the double-elimination tournament last weekend to pit them in the losers bracket.

That loss snapped a nine-game win streak for Bath, who went 6-0 in the NORCO playoffs en route to their fifth overall title in NORCO and first since 2012.

Former Liberty ace, Mike Horvath, kept Bath's postseason alive on Monday afternoon, pitching his way to a complete game 4-2 victory over Pine Grove.

The win sets up Bath (18-9) with a battle against Bucks-Mont League champion Nor-Gwyn in Tuesday's fourth round of the tournament.

Nor-Gwyn fell to Lehigh County champion North Parkland in Monday's winner bracket.

The results of Tuesday's contest are past Press deadlines, but should Bath win, they would be one of three potential teams with one loss left in the true double-elimination tournament.

A lot of the scenario revolves around the North Parkland-Norchester contest, which took place last night. North Parkland entered that contest without a loss yet, which means they technically advance to Wednesday's final regardless of what happens against Norchester.

A win over Norchester and a Bath victory would pit those two teams in the finals, with Bath needing to defeat North Parkland twice in order to win the title.

which helped him land First-team Lehigh Valley Conference honors in basketball as a point guard, where he averaged 15 points and five assists a game, as well being a captain in basketball and soccer, where he scored nine goals and tallied five assists to help Freedom reach the district playoffs this past fall.

Long was part of the helping hand in winning "The Bell" back for Freedom, as both schools split their regular season encounters in basketball and soccer.

"One of the greatest memories I'll have from this year was scoring the game-winning goal against Liberty on senior night," said Long, about a 2-1 overtime victory over the Hurricanes. "We already qualified for districts heading into the game, but we always want to beat Liberty. Scoring that goal in double overtime was a great experience."

The boys basketball team didn't have the success that Long had hoped for, as they fell short of reaching the postseason, but that came after a junior season where the Patriots reached the district finals, only to fall to Parkland by a 65-50 affair to teach him a valuable lesson.

"You got to cherish those moments and capitalize on them," he said, "because you never know when you're going to get back there."

Which is prophetic in part, because Long will never be back at Freedom either as a player, as he moves onto college this fall at The Catholic University of America in Washington D.C., where he'll play Division-III basketball.

SPORTSFEST BASKETBALL

Pates take steps at Throwdown

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

If there's one thing that Joe Stellato took away from the A-town Throwdown over the weekend at SportsFest, it's that Freedom may be coming along as the summer winds down.

The Patriots were the only local team to reach Sunday's slate of action, reaching the round of 16 Sunday morning, before being bounced from the tournament by Reading during a 61-47 defeat.

For Stellato and Freedom, advancing to the final day of the event was a major plus for a Patriots' side that has struggled at Cedar Beach and Stellar.

"I was just happy to see us play well," said Stellato. "I just want us to do the right things on the court and it was nice to see some results with that this weekend."

Freedom advanced to the round of 16 based off point differential, since they lost their opener to North Hunterdon 38-37, followed by a 49-31 win over Sankofa and a 50-37 victory over Burlington Township.

Najee Cash was the star for the Pates throughout the weekend event, but Jason Fraser, Jeff Toronto and Demond Farley all played key roles.

"We were hoping that things would start clicking for us down the stretch," Stellato said of the sum-

'Running a tight ship'

MILLER-KEYSTONE GALA

"It was seamless," the boss told Miller-Keystone Blood Center Director of Development Sandra Thomas. A board member also complimented Thomas' work. "Job well done!"

Thomas said the compliments were similar to the praise she has been hearing about the recent fund-raising gala held at SteelStacks.

"It makes me feel that all the work was worthwhile."

More than 450 people attended "Cruise Aboard the Lifeline," a Roaring 20s-themed event that, besides raising money for Miller-Keystone, gave everyone a chance to dress up in their best 1920s look.

While this was an ocean cruise-themed party, Thomas - the person at the helm - is a real-life navy lieutenant in the reserves. She is used to having things ship shape while on "her watch."

Thomas was dressed in gangster pinstripes but when it comes to "running a tight ship," she was all business.

She was assisted by a strong contingent of volunteers like Laura Robinson, an officer at the Bar Association of Lehigh County.

"I would like to thank the many people who have donated their time and resources to make this event a success," said master of ceremonies John T. Yurconic, president of the John Yurconic Agency.

Miller-Keystone Blood Center serves as the exclusive blood supplier of blood products to 26 hospitals in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. In 2013, according to President-CEO Peter Castagna Jr., the company had nearly 95,000 donors and processed over 151,000 blood products.

"The need for blood exists every day," Castagna said. "In our region alone, we need more than 450 people to walk through our doors daily to meet the transfusion needs of our area hospitals. There is no substitute for blood; the only source is the volunteer blood donor."

Brown's cabinet picks confirmed

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

Three cabinet appointments from Northampton County Executive John Brown sailed through council's Personnel Committee and county council last week. Under the county's Home Rule Charter, a majority vote was needed for confirmation.

These appointments were first announced late on Thursday, July 10. Brown selected Luis E. Campos as director of administration (salary $87,838); James W. Hunter as director of fiscal affairs (salary $87,838); and David Dalrymple as sheriff (salary $91,422).

Prior to that, Brown had been criticized at several council meetings for waiting so long to fill his cabinet. On July 2, council member Scott Parsons told Brown "the process is taking too long." Fellow Democrat Lamont McClure agreed, and added that Brown had failed to provide "the blocking and tackling of county government."

July 16 Personnel Hearing
Ironically, the same council member who told Republican Brown that he was taking too long yesterday complained at the July 16 personnel hearing, "You didn't give us that much time." Democrat Bob Werner agreed, condemning the last minute notice on a Friday afternoon at 4:30 p.m., though the appointments were actually announced a week earlier. "I just think we need a little more time to review things," Werner said, calling it a professional courtesy.

Part of their ire was undoubtedly the result of the absence of Democrat Ken Kraft, chair of the Personnel Committee. He was unable to make the meeting as a result of a work conflict, and Council President Peg Ferraro elected to run the meeting without him instead of postponing the matter.

Council member Lamont McClure, the fourth Democrat, was absent.

Council member Hayden Phillips said he had zero difficulty reaching the conclusion that these are excellent appointments, and suggested a Google search would tell them everything they need to know.

All three nominees attended the July 16 confirmation hearing, and were present the following night, when council considered them for confirmation.

July 17 Confirmation
On a beautiful July evening, while most people watered flowers or went for walks, the council chamber was packed with vocal supporters from Latino, law enforcement and banking organizations. They were there to ask council to confirm Brown's appointments.

Wilson Borough Police Chief Steven Parkansky was there for Dalrymple, a retired major from the New Jersey State police. "The county executive could not have picked a better man than this one," declared this cop, who worked with Dalrymple on several cases. Thomas Fisher, Dalrymple's basketball coach at Phillipsburg HS, spoke on behalf of his former player. Noting that Dalrymple's father and sister were also New Jersey state troopers, he said he can't imagine a more qualified person.

Jim Hunter had lots of support from fellow bankers. Rocco Del Vecchio, president and COO of Lafayette Ambassador Bank, praised Hunter's work ethic. Upper Mount Bethel Township Manager Bob Cartwright drove 25 miles to urge supporters from Latino, law

HEALTHCARE SOLUTIONS FOR SENIORS LIVING AT HOME

Senior LIFE delivers complete healthcare – and great satisfaction.

Members and families give Senior LIFE high ratings.

By Melanie Klein for Senior LIFE

Quality Results

In a recent national survey conducted with LIFE Program participants and caregivers, Senior LIFE's care and services were found to be among the best in the country. Across all of its centers, Senior LIFE's overall satisfaction rating was 93%. This places Senior LIFE in the enviable 88th percentile nationally.

Senior LIFE gets high marks from Caregivers and Members

Senior LIFE can achieve such results because of its commitment to quality — in personnel and in process. "Providing excellent care to our members is our first priority," says Mark Irwin, Chief Operating Officer of Senior LIFE. "Our goal is to exceed expectations. We always want to know how we are doing, and I am very pleased by the high marks our members give us. Senior LIFE members can trust that we will always strive to deliver the highest quality of care."

This member-centered approach does not go unnoticed. Member Anna M. notes, "Before Senior LIFE I was in and out of the hospital and nursing home, but I'm so much better and stronger now. Senior LIFE helped me to walk again."

Among Senior LIFE members, 99% said that they would recommend Senior LIFE to a close friend or relative, and most caregivers agree. "My mother hasn't looked or felt this good in a long time," says the daughter of a member. "Senior LIFE saved her life and mine. She was declining and needing more and more care. I have children in school and I work full time. The entire family did everything we could for mom, but we needed help... a nursing home was out of the question. I was beside myself. Senior LIFE was our savior."

Free swim app now available

The American Red Cross recently announced its new free swim app to promote water safety for parents and caregivers of young people learning to swim.

The app allows iPhone, Android and Kindle Fire users to track a child's progress in Red Cross swim lessons and help the swimming student learn the key skills and goals for each swim level.

Features of the app include a progress tracker for goals achieved in swimming lessons, stroke videos and performance charts to help with proper swimming techniques, activities to do with young swimmers to reinforce what is covered in lessons and water safety and drowning prevention information for parents.

The app is available for free in the Apple App Store, Google Play Store for Android or Amazon Kindle Store by searching for American Red Cross or by going to redcross.org/mobileapps.

The Swim App is not a substitute for learning how to swim. Parents can contact local pools, aquatic facilities or park and recreation departments and ask for Red Cross swim lessons. Additional water safety tips are available at redcross.org/watersafety.

Other apps available from the American Red Cross include apps for first aid and pet first aid.

Minsi Eagles recongized at Court of Honor

A special recognition by the Scouts was extended to Don Walp, the oldest living Eagle Scout in Minsi Trails Council and former owner of the well-known Walp's Restaurant.

By DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The Eagle Scouts of the Minsi Trails Council gathered recently in Fogelsville to be recognized and honored for the many Eagle Scout projects they have completed in the several areas where Minsi Trails scouts call home.

Even though more than 220 Eagle Scouts were at the Eagle Scout Court of Honor and Recognition Dinner, they are still, statistically speaking, rare birds. Only 4 percent of boys enrolled in Boy Scouts nationwide earn the coveted ranking.

"It's not easy," said Master of Ceremonies Matthew Planer. "You need a tenacious mother!"

The many Eagle Scouts were honored for their accomplishments and community projects, which ranged from building a pergola for the Alburdis Community Pool (Eagle Scout Tyler Ables Troop 431) to landscaping and a restoration project at New Bethany Ministries in Bethlehem (Eagle Scout Robert Anderson, Troop 359).

Scholarship recipients were Anthony Sagrestano and Jacob Alfieri, both from the Forks of the Delaware Distret.

A special recognition by the Scouts was extended to Don Walp, the oldest living Eagle Scout in Minsi Trails Council and former owner of the well-known Walp's Restaurant that sat on the corner of Union Street and Airport Road in Allentown.

"Don Walp is almost 98 years old," said Don Sachs, an executive with Minsi Trails Council, "and he is very active as a member of the Minsi Trails Council Advisory Committee."

Another attendee was Eagle Scout John Lahutsky there with his mother, Paula. Lahutsky, standing with the aid of an aluminum walker, was adopted from Moscow as a child. In spite of having cerebral palsy, he has attained scouting's highest rank. He is from the South Mountain District.

Freedom HS senior Jacob Srock, 18, attended with his father, Matt Srock.

Keynote speaker Dr. Michael Manyak.

John Lahutsky with his mother, Paula.

Jacob Srock and his father and Scout leader, Matt Srock.

"The Boy Scouts taught me life lessons like overcoming obstacles, how to achieve goals and how to be a good person," Srock said.

Liberty HS student Tyler Reinhart, 16, attended the gala event.

"Scouting has been a huge honor for me," Reinhart said. "It has helped me develop skills I can pass on."

Bethlehem Catholic HS graduate Alex Ferencin, 18, also attended.

"Scouting gave me a chance to learn skills I wouldn't have learned in school," said Ferencin, the son of Wayne and Anne Ferencin of Bethlehem.

Jason Siegfried, 16, of Liberty HS, also attended. Jason is the son of Jeanine and Todd Siegfried of Hanover Township.

Keynote speaker Dr. Michael J. Manyak, executive director for global medical affairs for GlaxoSmithKline and a professor at George Washington University, led the Eagle Scouts and their guests on a world tour of adventure mixed with good advice.

"An adventure is an expedition that went wrong," said Manyak, who has been on many expeditions including diving to the Titanic and exploring the deepest canyon in Peru. He's been on trips to Central Africa and Mongolia among other places.

Manyak described a trip where he discovered human footprints believed to be between 30,000 to 120,000 years old.

Manyak described a program by the National Eagle Scouts Association (NESA) that encourages Eagle Scouts to apply for the world of exploration.

"The practice of sending an Eagle to a remote location dates to Paul Siple who accompanied the first Byrd Antarctic expedition in 1928 and later became an Explorers Club Fellow," said Manyak in a Washington Explorers Club newsletter.

"All of you - curiosity is in your DNA," Manyak reminded his audience.

cil to confirm Hunter, pledging that he'll give 150 percent. He credited Hunter with finding the financing for a local food pantry that feeds 400 people.

Maria Montero, executive director of the Pa. Commission for Women as well as The Governor's Advisory Commission on Latino Affairs, addressed council with both English and Spanish salutations. She spoke glowingly of Campos as an important addition for the Latino community. She was echoed by Allentown City Council President Julio Guridy, who told council he first met Campos when the nominee was studying for his master's degree at Lehigh University. "I am proud to call him my friend and peer," he remarked.

Aside from a few jabs at Hunter's golf game, there were no negative remarks about any of the nominees.

Some questions were raised about Dalrymple's ability to follow Pennsylvania's firearms laws, which are less restrictive than those in New Jersey. Second Amendment advocate Ed Reagan remarked that a sheriff should not be appointed by an executive and council but elected.

Northampton and Luzerne counties are the only two counties in the state that appoint, rather than elect, their sheriffs.

During his confirmation hearing, Dalrymple said, "It's not my job to interpret or make laws. It's to follow laws."

Council member Scott Parsons asked Brown whether state law required a sheriff to reside within the state and was assured there is no such requirement.

Brown was also asked whether the courts agreed with his selection, and he answered that they both interviewed Dalrymple together, and believes he was President Judge Stephan Baratta's first choice as well. Council President Peg Ferraro said she spoke to Judge Baratta and he was "fully in favor of his appointment."

Council member Mat Benol, who grew up near Dalrymple and delivered newspapers to him in Phillipsburg, told those concerned about his residency in New Jersey that Phillipsburg and Easton are basically the same town, separated by a river.

The Hunter and Campos nominations passed by an 8-0 vote. Sheriff Dalrymple was confirmed by a 7-1 vote with Lamont McClure voting "no" by phone. He did not elaborate on the reasons for his vote, but is an advocate of an elected sheriff.

Council member Ken Kraft, another advocate of an elected sheriff, was absent as a result of a business conflict.

After the meeting, a relieved John Brown called a news conference to express his appreciation to his new cabinet members and their supporters. He explained he took his time, "to ensure we had the best candidates for the positions, and I look forward to working closely with them. The citizens of Northampton County can be confident in the leadership of these individuals."

Hello, Marilu

Henner in Tony-winning Christopher Durang play

SPOTLIGHT ON

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Focus Editor

Marilu Henner had such a good time last summer at Bucks County Playhouse, she requested a return engagement.

"They said, 'If you're serious, we'll find a great play for you,'" says Henner.

Henner plays Masha in "Vanya & Sonia & Masha & Spike," the 2013 Tony Award winner as best play, through Aug. 10 at the storied New Hope theater that recently celebrated its 75th anniversary.

"Vanya & Sonia & Masha & Spike" playwright Christopher Durang, a Bucks County resident, plays Vanya in the Chekhov-inspired comedy set in Bucks County.

Henner, star of TV's "Taxi" (1978-'83) reprised her Broadway role in "The Tale of the Allergist's Wife" at Bucks.

"At the end of my run, I said, 'I love it so much here. I want to come back,'" Henner says in a recent phone interview.

In the Durang comedy, Masha, (Henner) is a narcissistic B-movie star who visits her siblings' home in Bucks.

"The play is about siblings and, believe me, I can relate to that," says Chicago native Henner, the third of six children. "It's so poignant and beautifully written and so special."

Acting opposite Durang has been "fantastic," Henner says.

"I've been a fan for years. He's such a wonderful actor. You can't catch him acting. He's so real.

"I keep saying the part of Masha is so much like me without all the years of therapy," Henner quips.

Los Angeles resident Henner became familiar with Bucks County during the 2000-01 National Tour of "Annie Get Your Gun." After its stop in Philadelphia, Henner and her family celebrated Christmas at the Aaron Burr House bed and breakfast, New Hope.

She bought Christmas gifts at Two Buttons, a Frenchtown, N.J., Asian import store owned and operated by "Eat, Pray, Love" author Elizabeth Gilbert.

Henner, who appeared on TV's "Evening Shade" (1990-'94) recently was on TV's "Brooklyn Nine-Nine" (2013-), starring Andy Samberg. She hosts the weekday morning "The Marilu Henner Show" radio show on GCN (Genesis Communications Network).

Her movie credits include starring roles in "Between The Lines" (1977), "Bloodbrothers" (1978), "Hammett" Marilu Henner stars as Masha in "Vanya & Sonia & Masha & Spike," through Aug. 10, Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope.

(1982), "The Man Who Loved Women" (1983), "Johnny Dangerously" (1984), "Perfect" (1985), "L.A. Story" (1991), "Noises Off" (1992) and "Man On The Moon" (1999).

Henner, 62, a vegetarian, became passionate about her health following the death of her father at 52 and her mother at 58.

"It totally informed my life. If we'd been dealt that genetic hand, I wanted to figure it out the best way to live for my brothers and sisters and me," says the former Prevention magazine cover girl.

Henner has written nine books on diet, health and memory, most notably, "Total Health Makeover," which advocates a non-dairy diet and exercise.

Her website, marilu.com, includes lifestyle tips, recipes, monthly online classes, and success stories. She's big on mnemonic catch-phrases: THM (Total Health Makeover), BEST (Balance, Energy, Stamina, Toxin-Free) and Progress Not perfection.

It's not that Henner needs memory devices. She's one of 12 documented persons who are part of a study of Highly Superior Autobiographical Memory (H-SAM). She can recall almost every day of her life. Give Henner a calendar date and she'll tell you the day of the week.

Henner was profiled by her friend Lesley Stahl on "60 Minutes." Henner is a consultant for "Unforgettable" (2011-) the CBS-TV show that stars Poppy Montgomery as a New York City detective with H-SAM.

Her ninth book, "Total Memory Makeover: Uncover Your Past, Take Charge of Your Future" (2012), a New York Times best-seller, instructs readers on accessing autobiographical memories.

Henner says she first knew of her prodigious recall ability at age six. "They called me Miss Memory or The Memory Kid.

"I had to dumb down to play Masha," Henner jokes.

The many muses of Gabriela Gonzalez Delloso

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
pwillistein@tonline.com

There's an extraordinary exhibit this summer at the Baum School of Art.

"Gabriela Gonzalez Delloso: Symbolism & Romance" surrounds you with the realm of the senses.

Dr. Christine I. Oaklander, former Director of Collections and Exhibitions, Allentown Art Museum; Arts Coordinator, Lehigh Valley Health Network, and guest curator, brought together 19 pastels and oils by Gonzalez Delloso, who teaches figure drawing and painting at the National Academy School, New York City.

Among those attending the July 9 opening reception was Gonzalez Delloso's mother, Alexandra Jalil, a frequent model for her paintings and subject of "Ruffled Swim Cap" (12 in. x 9 in., Oil on linen, 2010).

Gallery View

While the setting for the "avid swimmer" was an Ecuador beach, as with much of Gonzalez Delloso's work, the compositional inspiration is that of an Old Master, here, Dutch painter Rembrandt Van Rijn (1606 - 1669).

Gonzalez Delloso's paintings give intimate glimpses of unguarded seemingly mundane moments, mostly of women ("The Recyclers," Oil on linen, 40 in. x 60 in., 2009). Upon closer inspection, there's that inspiration: Michelangelo Merisi da Caravaggio (1571 - 1610).

The exhibition's centerpiece is "Beatrice Reading Dante" (Oil on linen, 36 in. x 50 in., 2013), accompanied by "Study For Beatrice Reading" (Oil on linen).

CONTRIBUTED IMAGE

One of Oaklander's excellent wall cards explains that "Beatrice Reading Dante" is inspired by Italian poet Dante Alighiera (1285 - 1321) whose "La Vita Nuova" ("The New Life"), in turn, was inspired by Beatrice Portinari, who also appears in "La Divina Commedia" ("The Divine Comedy") as a guide through Heaven.

Beatrice, who was Dante's muse, is depicted holding a book about Dante, a page turned to his portrait.

"Gabriela Gonzalez Delloso: Symbolism & Romance" is stunning, astounding, extraordinary, clearly the work of an emerging post-feminist master artist.

"A show like this takes place over months," says Oaklander, who began last October.

The paintings of Gabriela Gonzalez Delloso take a lifetime, or many lifetimes.

"Gabriela Gonzalez Delloso: Symbolism & Romance," 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. Monday - Thursday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Friday, closed Saturday, Sunday, through Aug. 8, The David E. Rodale and Rodale Family Galleries, 510 W. Linden St., Allentown. 610-433-0032

'Begin Again' minor-key major

"Begin Again" is one of the most unromantic romantic comedies in recent memory.

There's little romancing, but lots of talking about romance, and plenty of singing about romance in "Begin Again."

The film is of chief interest for the performance of its star, Keira Knightley, who finally breaks free of her bodice-bound costume drama roles, namely those in "Anna Karenina" (2012), "The Duchess" (2008), "Silk" (2007), "Atonement" (2007), "Pride & Prejudice" (2005) and "King Arthur" (2004).

It turns out that Knightley can be spontaneous, down-to-earth and act in a very naturalistic, believable way, not always the case with the historic dramas in which she has starred.

Knightley has also been in the three "Pirates of the Caribbean" blockbuster movies and has had roles in contemporary, smaller-budget films, so the potential has been there for a role that captures her vivacious yet reserved British charm.

"Begin Again," which has the sense of an indie production, is that film.

Knightley can also sing, in a clear, engaging soprano, which she's required to do, and which she does often, in "Begin Again."

It helps that the songs she sings, with some sung by Adam Levine, are well-written (mostly by John Carney, Gregg Alexander, Danielle Brisebois and Nick Lashley).

In "Begin Again," Knightley plays Gretta, an aspiring singer-songwriter best known for her collaboration with her boyfriend, Dave (Adam Levine of Maroon 5 and TV's "The Voice"). One night at a Greenwich Village, New York City tavern, the open mic host Steve (James Cordon) badgers her to go up on stage where she sings and plays one of her songs.

Dan (Mark Ruffalo), who has just been fired from his record company by his partner, Saul (Yaslin Bey, aka Mos Def), is in the audience and is immediately smitten with her talent. He wants to record and produce Gretta's songs.

Dan is estranged from his wife Miriam (Catherine Keener) and is a sometimes dad to their teen daughter Violet (Hailee Steinfeld).

Dan persuades Gretta to record her songs outdoors in New York City, financed by none other than CeeLo Green (as himself), a member of the hip-hop group, Gnarls Barkley, and also on TV's "The Voice."

"Begin Again" Irish writer-director John Carney revisits some of the same territory he did in the film, "Once" (2006), which was filmed with two digital camcorders in three weeks.

"Once" received a song Oscar and a Grammy for the song, "Falling Slowly." "Once" became a hit off-Broadway and Broadway musical, with 11 Tony nominations, receiving eight Tonys, including one for musical (2012).

Carney uses a clever flashback technique at the film's beginning to start the story. And the film's on-location scenes of concerts on the rooftop, on Central Park lake and in Washington Square, are like a New York City visit without traffic jams and pedestrian crush.

Carney gets a wonderful performance from Knightley Ruffalo, as the slapdash, profanity-spewing (too much for this reviewer), cigarette-smoking, curly-haired music producer, gives another of his seamless performances.

"Begin Again" will be enjoyed by music fans, and also fans of Knightley, Ruffalo and Levine.

The film provides some insights into the cut-throat world of the music business, where golden-throated singers are led like lambs to the slaughter after their talents are sheared for all their worth.

"Begin Again" is a minor classic in the key of G, that's Gee, Major.

"Begin Again," MPAA Rated R (Restricted. Children Under 17 Require Accompanying Parent or Adult Guardian.) for language; Genre: Comedy, Drama, Music Romance; Run Time: 1 hr., 44 min.; Distributed by The Weinstein Company.

Credit Readers Anonymous: Additional scenes are included in the "Begin Again" closing credits.

This column is dedicated to James Garner (1928 - 2014).

Box Office, July 18: "Dawn Of The Planet Of The Apes" hung on handily at No. 1, $36 million, $139 million, two weeks, purging three opening movies from top-spot potential: 2. "The Purge: Anarchy," $28.4 million; 3. "Planes: Fire & Rescue," $18 million; and 4. "Sex Tape," $15 million;

5. "Transformers: Age of Extinction," $10 million, $227.2 million, four weeks; 6. "Tammy," $7.6 million, $71.3 million, three weeks; 7. "22 Jump Street," $4.7 million, $180.5 million, six weeks; 8. "How To Train Your Dragon 2," $3.8 million, $160.7 million, six weeks; 9. "Maleficent," $3.3 million, $228.4 million, eight weeks; 10. "Earth To Echo," $3.3 million, $32 million, three weeks;

Unreel, July 25: "Hercules," Bethlehem Area School District product Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson stars as the legendary Greek God in the action-adventure film.

"Lucy," Luc Besson directs Scarlett Johansson as a woman who turns the tables on her captors in the sci-fi action film. Morgan Freeman co-stars.

"Magic In The Moonlight," Woody Allen directs Emma Stone and Colin Firth in the romantic comedy about an Englishman and a swindle.

Run River North plays immigrant songs

By CAMILLE CAPRIGLIONE
Special to The Press

The six members of Los Angeles-based folk-rock band Run River North, whose families emigrated to southern California from Korea, share the perspective of "children of immigrants," which ebbs and flows through their music.

Run River North is in concert, 8 p.m. July 25, Fowler Blast Furnace Room, ArtsQuest Center, SteelStacks, 101 Founders Way, Bethlehem.

Run River North, which formed in 2011, released a self-titled debut album earlier this year. Producer Phil Ek captured the group's energetic indie-rock style whose uplifting anthems, full of layered harmonies and dynamic instrumentation, reveal emotional topics and lyrical narratives.

Alex Hwang, lead singer, together with Daniel Chae and Jennifer Rim, both on strings; Joe Chun, bass; Sally Kang, keyboards, and John Chong, drums, went from playing local shows to catching the attention of Honda Motor Corporation and appearing before a television audience of millions on "Jimmy Kimmel Live!"

In a phone interview from his home in the San Fernando Valley, Hwang says his parents didn't listen to music when he was growing up, and his introduction to music came from animated Disney movies in the 1990's.

"Then I learned about the Beatles, and Crosby, Stills and Nash," says Hwang, whose music inspirations are anyone "with a strong voice in storytelling."

Hwang says with a laugh, "I'd like to consider us gangster-folk, but I don't think that's a genre yet. I admire storytellers. That's the category I want to be [considered]."

With only a six-song demo, the band won the Bronze Lion Award at the Cannes Film Festival for its video, "Surprising Monsters Calling Home."

The video shows how officials of Honda Motor Corporation, upon learning that the struggling band was recording in their Honda vehicles, booked the band for a show purportedly to be for Honda executives. But when the band arrived, they were told, while being filmed, that the booking was bogus and they were actually going to perform live on Jimmy Kimmel's late-night television show.

The original band name, Monsters Calling Home, was a reference to their parents: "Not quite American, and no longer Korean, they are 'monsters trying to figure out where they call home.'" The song, "Monsters Calling Home" references immigrant parents in their quest to make the American dream happen.

The band's name, Run River North, was inspired by a friend's daughter's name (River) and the fact that Hwang runs in the Los Angeles marathon. "And North," adds Hwang, "That's a nice direction."

"We lived with the name [for awhile]. It made sense for our band. River means movement."

Movement indeed. Run River North is charting its course and has sold out dates in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Los Angeles' legendary venue, The Troubadour.

The group's songs are intriguing musical journeys, such as "Growing Up," which possesses a delightful acoustic melody that includes soft tambourine and poignant violin.

"Lying Beast" is a prodigal-son tale based on an ancient Korean folk song.

Run River North's newfound notoriety is pleasantly surprising, but not unintentional.

"I definitely planned on it, although the timing is something I didn't expect," says Hwang. "Seeing the response to one song was amazing."

Run River North competed in Kollaboration 11 at the Nokia Theater, Los Angeles, in 2011.

"But we lost," Hwang says wryly. "We lost to a guy with two yo-yos and a hip-hop track."

The humbling experience helped the band stay on track and manage their expectations.

While on tour, Hwang continues to write new songs and hopes to record another album next year.

"We're still learning what it means to be a band," says Hwang. "We have a great label, agent and management. We're busy working. We can't bask in the glory yet."

Savor it or save it?

Sitting in my husband's yard is a new, sleek kayak.

Well, it's not exactly new. I bought it for his birthday a full year ago.

One of the reasons why David and I were attracted to each other is because we are both passionate about kayaking. We go as often as we can.

For his birthday, I replaced his old, heavy kayak with one of those lightweight, high-performance kayaks that make it much easier to carry and use.

So, with all that for background, how many times do you think he has used his new kayak all year?

I believe the answer is only about half a dozen times, maybe fewer.

Mostly, he takes his old, beat-up kayak.

Either the put-in is too muddy, he'll claim, or there are oyster shells that might damage the new one, or the concrete boat ramp might scratch it.

We are going on a kayaking-biking trip for his birthday. But he doesn't want to take his new kayak there, either. Someone might steal it, he says.

David calls all that taking care of his new kayak. I call it foolish.

We can savor something every time we use it, getting a lot of pleasure out of it. Or we can save it, keeping it pristine and protected. But not used.

I keep telling my husband we bought the new kayak to use it, not protect it. If it gets a few scratches, so what?

He looks at me like I'm committing heresy when I tell him that.

I'll say this. David takes great care of everything he owns. Often, "taking care of something" means not using it.

Case in point. He has lovely wineglasses that once belonged to his grandmother. He keeps those beautiful wineglasses, along with all his grandmother's other dishes, locked in a china closet. He doesn't want anything to get broken.

I think we should use and enjoy the things we own. If we don't use them during this life, when will we?

There are a lot of people who don't use what they have because it might get dirty or broken or ruined in some way.

I remember how my grandmother made doilies to cover the arms of every sofa and chair. My mother raised the bar on protecting new furniture. She covered it in sheets.

When I would visit and see her sitting on a sheet instead of just enjoying her new sofa, she would insist she was "taking care of it."

Years later, when she would decide to buy new furniture, the so-called "old stuff" would be passed along to me looking showroom perfect.

Trust me, I enjoyed having the furniture. Of course, it was never once covered with a sheet.

But I am not immune to the practice of covering furniture instead of using it.

For years, I owned a gorgeous Pennsylvania House dining room table. It was antique blue and white and quite stunning, I thought. But no one ever saw the table top. Not even me. From the time I brought it home I kept it covered with a thick pad so it wouldn't get ruined.

Thirty years later, when I was moving, I gave the dining room table away. The table top didn't have a scratch on it. I looked at it and wondered why I never exposed it so I could enjoy it.

OK, one would think I learned a lesson. Last year I bought another wooden dining room table. At first, I put pretty place mats on it for our meals and enjoyed using it every day.

But when I saw how the wooden top marked and smeared too easily, I started worrying the table would get ruined if something spilled on it.

I covered the lovely table top with a cloth that's far from attractive and left it there for months until I returned to my senses.

Off came the ugly tablecloth in favor of the pretty place mats. I intended to use the table, not worry about it. Or so I thought.

There have been times when I've saved something instead of using it because it was precious to me and I didn't want it to get ruined. So for years I put away the pretty candles that have sentimental value to me, never burning them, never displaying them so they wouldn't get dusty.

Isn't that silly? I think a lot of us fall into the trap of spending more time protecting something rather than using it.

I like the wisdom that says life is short. Burn your candles for you, not just for company. Use your best china and silverware for your own pleasure.

Don't hide all your good stuff away, pulling it out only for company.

Enjoy it now while you can.

I'm hoping I can convince David of that. When we take off for our kayaking vacation, I hope the new kayak comes along with us.

If not, it will sit home wrapped in a tarp, protected from the sun and the sea. But it will bring no joy to anyone.

When I was cleaning my dining room table this week as I get ready for a visit from longtime friends, I noticed it was hard to get the newspaper smudges off the table. And there were also some food stains.

Back came the ugly cover so I can protect the table from getting ruined.

Savor it or save it? Sometimes there is no clear-cut answer.

Achuar topic of lecture

Mateo Shakai, a member of the remote South American tribe known as the Achuar, will speak about the Achuar, their threatened forest, and an Achuar museum that he would like to create in Ecuador, 4 p.m. July 26, Museum of Indian Culture, 2825 Fish Hatchery Road, Allentown.

His friend Sam Crothers, an Allentown resident and researcher who works extensively in the Achuar area, will also speak about life in the forest.

Mateo will bring handicrafts from the Achuar.

The Achuar are a small tribe of indigenous people who live in the remote rainforest between Ecuador and Peru. They live without electricity or plumbing, without cars, and without stores.

They live on the rivers in the Amazon basin, hunting with blow guns and growing food in small gardens. They are mainly cut off from the outside world except for small bush planes which bring supplies and a few visitors to their lodge, Kapawi.

'Macular pucker' eye problem explained

Q. My brother told me he has a "macular pucker." Is this the same thing as macular degeneration?

The lens in the front of your eye focuses light on the retina in the back of your eye. The lens is like the one in a camera, and the retina is like film. The space between the lens and retina is filled with the vitreous, a clear gel that helps to maintain the shape of the eye.

The macula is at the center of the retina in the back of your eye. The retina transmits light from the eye to the brain. The macula allows us to perform tasks that require central vision such as reading and driving.

A blurred area in the middle of your vision is a symptom of age-related macular degeneration (AMD), a leading cause of vision loss in Americans 60 years of age and older.

AMD comes in two forms: wet and dry. Wet AMD occurs when blood vessels behind the retina start to leak and raise the macula. Dry AMD occurs when macular cells break down.

A macular pucker is scar tissue that has formed on the eye's macula. Like AMD, a macular pucker can blur central vision. Another symptom of macular pucker is seeing straight lines as wavy or broken.

People with a macular pucker might have difficulty seeing fine details and reading small print. They might also have a gray area in the center of vision, or even a blind spot.

Vision does not get progressively worse for most people with a macular pucker. Severe vision loss is uncommon. It is not unusual for someone to have puckers and still have normal vision. Usually, macular pucker affects one eye.

As we age, the vitreous slowly shrinks and pulls away from the retinal surface. In most cases, there are no serious adverse effects. However, sometimes there is damage to the retina's surface. As the damage heals, scar tissue is formed. When the scar tissue contracts, it causes the retina to pucker.

Sometimes macular pucker is caused by an injury or a medical condition, such as diabetes, that affects the eye. Macular puckers can sometimes form after eye surgery.

Macular pucker is also known as epiretinal membrane, preretinal membrane, cellophane maculopathy, retina wrinkle, surface wrinkling retinopathy, premacular fibrosis, and internal limiting membrane disease.

In many cases, the symptoms from macular pucker are mild, and don't require treatment. People usually adjust to mild visual distortion. In rare cases, surgery is required.

ArtsQuest's Hilgert chosen nonprofit's President-CEO

After retirement, Parks to become first director of ArtsQuest Foundation

ArtsQuest has announced that Katherine E. "Kassie" Hilgert has been named the new President and CEO of the Bethlehem-based nonprofit arts and cultural organization.

Hilgert, the organization's Senior Vice President of Marketing and Advancement, will transition to the president's role over the next several months while working with ArtsQuest Founder and President Jeff Parks. She will assume the President's responsibilities upon Parks' retirement in January 2015.

Following his retirement in January 2015, Parks will become the first Executive Director of the ArtsQuest Foundation, the nonprofit foundation established to help support the long-term sustainability of ArtsQuest. Parks was named Executive Director by the ArtsQuest Foundation Board of Trustees and will begin the part-time position in May 2015.

Hilgert was recommended for the position of ArtsQuest President and CEO by the ArtsQuest Nomination Committee following a nationwide search this past spring. Her selection was approved by the ArtsQuest Board of Trustees at its recent board meeting.

"The ArtsQuest Board of Trustees is very pleased to unanimously support Kassie Hilgert as our next President and CEO," said Joe Pietrantonio, Chairman of the 20-person Board of Trustees.

"During our five-month search, Kassie clearly rose to the forefront in meeting the key criteria that we set for the next leader of the organization. She is exemplary in her knowledge and passion for the ArtsQuest mission, her leadership skills and her demonstrated ability to work with the many constituents of the Lehigh Valley who make ArtsQuest successful. We are all very excited about the future of ArtsQuest and are thrilled to have Kassie as our new leader."

The ArtsQuest President and CEO is responsible for the overall leadership and direction of the nonprofit, advancing its arts and urban revitalization mission, and assuring the long-term sustainability of the organization.

"Kassie knows the Lehigh Valley, its people and its institutions, and she knows the relevance of ArtsQuest to the continued social, cultural and economic development of the region," said Parks.

"I am very confident that under her leadership with the support of our creative and dedicated staff, board and volunteers, ArtsQuest will continue to be a national leader in providing access to the arts while supporting community development, most likely in ways that we cannot even imagine today."

"I am humbled to be selected as the next President and CEO of such a dynamic organization and to follow in the footsteps of a true visionary," said Hilgert. "Our mission is to provide unique arts and cultural experiences in a way that drives economic development in urban areas, but it's a mission we cannot achieve alone."

"ArtsQuest has always been and will always be a community-based organization that thrives because of the tremendous and extensive support of our boards, donors, sponsors, volunteers, members, public partners, staff and so many others. ArtsQuest and the entire Lehigh Valley have a bright future, and I look forward to creating and strengthening partnerships that drive us towards sustainable growth while delivering exceptional experiences," Hilgert said.

Hilgert, a resident of Hanover Township, Northampton County, has been with ArtsQuest since 2008, starting as the organization's Vice President of Advancement before being promoted to Senior Vice President of Marketing and Advancement in 2010.

In her role as Senior Vice President, she is responsible for overseeing ArtsQuest's sponsorship, marketing, development, ticketing, public relations and volunteer departments, which include 27 full- and part-time employees.

During her six years with the nonprofit, Hilgert developed numerous partnerships with local, regional and national corporate partners, community organizations and foundations to help ArtsQuest expand its arts and cultural programming, which now includes more than 1,500 concerts, performances, educational programs and art classes annually.

Hilgert's accomplishments with ArtsQuest include playing a key role in helping to raise funds for the development of the $26-million ArtsQuest Center and ArtsQuest's programming at the SteelStacks arts and cultural campus, development of strategic partnerships with area nonprofits such as Historic Bethlehem Partnership to help expand the region's access to arts and cultural programs, and securing a record number of supporting sponsors for Musikfest 2013, helping the nonprofit to present more than 500 free performances at the festival. Most recently, Hilgert has led the development of the ArtsQuest Strategic Plan for 2014-'16, meeting with members of ArtsQuest's boards, volunteer leadership, staff and the community to help shape the nonprofit's direction and goals for the coming years.

State University, was Manager of Community Relations and Philanthropy at Air Products and Chemicals. She worked at Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Network, where she was the nonprofit's marketing manager. She began her career at Medstar Television.

Hilgert is on several nonprofit boards and committees in the region, including Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Network's Board of Trustees, where she is chair of the Marketing Committee; Boy Scouts of America's Minsi Trails Council's Executive Board of Trustees and Marketing Committee; and Discover Lehigh Valley's Executive Board of Trustees and Marketing Committee. She has also served on the Children's Home of Easton's Board of Trustees and the Lehigh Valley Economic Development Corporation's Board of Trustees, where she chaired the Marketing Committee.

As Executive Director of the ArtsQuest Foundation, Parks will work closely with the ArtsQuest Foundation Board of Trustees, ArtsQuest Board of Trustees and ArtsQuest's development staff to develop a comprehensive giving program and endowment fund to support ArtsQuest's arts and educational programming at Musikfest, the Banana Factory and SteelStacks.

Among his responsibilities will be the development and execution of the foundation's strategic plan, as well as working with individuals, foundations and others interested in giving back to the community through the support of ArtsQuest's arts, cultural and educational programming.

"As ArtsQuest continues to expand its arts and educational programs in the Lehigh Valley, establishing an endowment fund and planning giving program has become a necessity to help ensure the long-term sustainability of the nonprofit," said ArtsQuest Foundation President Jack Yaissle.

"Jeff has more than 30 years of experience promoting the arts, fund-raising and working with leaders throughout our community. In his new role as the Executive Director of the Foundation, he'll be able to focus on developing relationships and initiatives that will help ensure that ArtsQuest and its community-focused programming remain strong for decades to come, benefiting everyone throughout our region," Yaissle said.

The nonprofit ArtsQuest, founded in 1984, presents more than 1,500 concerts, performances, educational programs and art classes annually, with more than 65 percent of its programs available to the region free of charge.

ArtsQuest's initial event was Musikfest '84, which took place in August of that year, attracting more than 180,000 visitors to downtown Bethlehem.

Since that time, the nonprofit has developed the Banana Factory community arts center, Christkindlmarkt Bethlehem holiday market and partnered with the Bethlehem Redevelopment Authority, City of Bethlehem and other partners to develop the SteelStacks arts and cultural campus on the site of the city's former Bethlehem Steel south side Bethlehem plant.

The nonprofit's programming reaches more than 1.3 million people annually.

St. Peter's UCC Church transformed into a jungle

PRESS PHOTOS BY SHARON SCHRANTZ
Jasmine Loose, Cassidy Yard, crew leader, and Jacob Walter, participate in the St. Peter's Weird Animal Vacation Bible School recently. The question marks were put together to form a heart.

The Rev. Jerel Gade leads Vacation Bible School recently at St. Peter's UCC Church in Macungie with song and dance. The theme was Weird Animals. The church was transformed into a jungle where children learned Jesus's love is "one of a kind." They learned Jesus loves you even when you feel left out, even when you are different and even when you do not understand.
