County executive search under way

By ANDREW CASS
 Special to The Press

For the second time in as many years, the search is on for a new Lehigh County executive.

William Hansel resigned May 18 due to failing health and the county commissioners have until July 2 to fill the vacancy.

"First and foremost, our thoughts and hopes and prayers go out to Bill Hansel and his family," County Chairwoman Lisa Scheller said.

Scheller said applications for the position must be handed in by Tuesday, May 28, 10 days after the vacancy occurred. The deadline for recommendation from the intergovernmental and appointments committee is June 17. The commissioners then have until July 2 to fill the vacancy.

"Certainly we can move faster," Scheller said. "Because this is a very important position and because we are in the last six months of an existing term, commissioners can move faster than the July 2 deadline and it is

Nitschmann MS Principal Jackie Santanasto ends 36-year public school career

Outgoing Nitschmann MS Principal Jackie Santanasto was toasted and roasted at a May 28 retirement reception held in the ArtsQuest Center's Fowler Room by more than 125 of her family, friends and education colleagues.

In a short video prepared for the occasion by Nitschmann staff, Santanasto was identified by her colleagues as "inspirational, supportive, positive, a team player, elegant, compassionate and caring." Perhaps the one description that best summed up all the sentiment was one that called Santanasto "one in a million."

She was joined by her husband Jim at the celebration, and they were roasted together by her Nitschmann co-workers as gag gifts and tongue-in-cheek retirement scenarios were played out under the direction of industrial arts teacher Pete Bertalan. Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy turned over the "Santanasto file" in a very thick three ring binder, to a roomful of laughter.

Pa. State Representative Steve Samuelson also attended and presented her with a State Senate citation from Senator Lisa Boscola, who was unable to

Gov. Wolf Building will become high-end apartment, retail center

By BERNIE O'HARE
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

The latest chapter in Easton's Governor Wolf Building, named after the only Northampton County resident ever to become the state's governor, is about to begin. At a May 29 news conference at the steps of the 1893 schoolhouse, County Executive John Stoffa announced that he's found a buyer. Mark Mulligan, along with partners David Dallas and Bill Vogt, have signed an agreement to purchase the 52,171-square-foot schoolhouse, which sits atop 3.4 acres with a commanding view of the Delaware.

In addition to paying $1.925 million for the property, located at 45 North Second St., Mulligan and his partners plan to invest another $3.5 million and completely gut the interior for a June 2015 grand opening for high-end apartments, with the possibility of some commercial use.

Stoffa explained that in 1986 when the county purchased the schoolhouse for $912,000, it was

Contractors sever UGI gas line

FOUNTAIN HILL

By JIM MARSH
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

Fountain Hill Fire Department first responders and officials of the Lehigh County Special Operations Team closed streets around Delaware Avenue and Mohican Street, near St. Luke's University Hospital's main campus in Fountain Hill May 28, after concrete contractors working on a sidewalk crossing project struck and severed a UGI gas main.

Incident command officer David Boehrer, assistant chief of the Fountain Hill Fire Department, said several homes and businesses and a day care near the intersection were briefly evacuated as a precautionary measure.

Cedarbrook Fountain Hill facility were alerted but no evacuation was ordered.

Eastern Salisbury Fire Department firefighters were called in to help take air quality readings in the evacuated structures to assure there was no residual gas in the buildings. While the affected gas line was quickly isolated and bypassed, an army of UGI workers converged on the site to repair the line.

Salisbury Police Department and Fountain Hill Police Department units patrolled the area to keep roadways clear as Fountain Hill and Eastern Salisbury fire police closed off public access until Boehrer and Kalynch declared the area safe.

Santanasto will wrap up a 36-year career in education, the last six of which were spent as the principal at Nitschmann MS. However, Santanasto's commitment to education and youth will continue as she assumes a coaching and mentoring position in the Graduate School of Education at Lehigh University this fall.
Dr. Jack Silva, assistant superintendent for education/ chief academic officer, summed up his professional experience working with Santanasto by calling her a "good person, good colleague and the best instructional leader I've worked worth."

Jackie Santanasto receives well wishes from many of her colleagues in the education field.

Continued from page A1 intended to be the one-stop center for human services. But as the demand grew, the county purchased the Bechtel Building in Bethlehem.
But both buildings require $4.3 million in capital repairs and improvements, according to county officials. So in February, council voted 8-1 to lease a new human services building on Emrick Boulevard in Bethlehem Township. That decision came on the heels of a jaw-dropping Powerpoint presentation by caseworkers depicting poor conditions at Governor Wolf that endanger not only the people who work there, but innocent children who are already the victims of abuse and neglect.
Governor Wolf is plagued by asbestos, mold, chipping lead paint, bats, guano and an excessive number of large bugs. Supervised child visitation takes place in rooms where lead paint is chipping along the floor and windowsills. Ceilings are moldy and vents are collapsing.
This is where real estate magnate Mark Mulligan, who specializes in the adaptive reuse of historic buildings, comes to the rescue. His master's degree was not earned at Harvard or Wharton, but at Juilliard.

"He studied to be an opera singer, so I trust him," Stoffa joked.
Stoffa called the sale a win-win situation. "Northampton County will reinvest the revenue from this sale into the new Human Service facility that can better serve our 18,000 clients while at the same time we are able to contribute to the economic development and historic preservation of downtown Easton," he said.
Buyers Mulligan, Vogt and Dallas have more than 50 years experience working in real estate development, property management and commercial real estate. Their partnership is developing the Simon Silk Mill and recently renovated the Pomeroy Building, just a few blocks away from Governor Wolf.

According to Easton Mayor Sal Panto, who lauded the sale, Mulligan's group was also involved in the redevelopment of the now-full National Building as well as Maxim's 22, which employs between 70 and 80 people. The second-term mayor pointed to the mix of development on Second Street, which includes a combination of modest homes with high-end law firms and other businesses and homes. Panto, who lives on the city's Southside, eschews the gentrification model practiced in many other cities.
"I don't believe in it," he said, adding, "We still want to be a city - an urban center."
Panto also praised Stoffa, whose government service is ending this year. "He will be missed," Panto said.

Mulligan plans to make no changes to the building's exterior, which includes elaborate brickwork, stained glass windows, a bell tower and the ornate Governor Wolf Memorial Arch. It's also known as the "Penny Arch" because it was funded by pennies donated by school children and their families. The arch is topped by a marble globe of the world.
The agreement of sale has provisions requiring the preservation of these historic features.
The agreement also includes the county leasing back the 5,883-square-foot warehouse behind the Wolf Building to consolidate storage it has in other leased or owned facilities. This will actually save the county approximately $2,700 per year.

Gov. Wolf ES students win big

Scores of students at Governor Wolf ES started their late May morning with a round of applause for themselves and the community. Regional representatives of the Giant supermarket chain shared congratulations and big check for more than $21,000 the students earned in the A+ Rewards program. Friends and family register for the annual event and use their bonus cards while shopping at Giant to earn points for the school to win a grant that can be used for playground equipment, field trips and classroom supplies. Governor Wolf came in first this year out of all the participating schools in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Elmer A. Diehl, 92, formerly of Bethlehem, died May 17, 2013, in United Hospice, Raleigh, N.C. He was the husband of the late Marian (Parker) Diehl.

He is survived by a daughter, Cathy and her husband Michael Slivka of Raleigh; a son, David and his wife Darla of Rochester, N.Y.; four grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Arrangements were made by James Funeral Home & Cremation Service P.C., Bethlehem.

A Memorial Day ceremony, "A Time to Remember" in honor of Lehigh Valley's fallen soldiers was held May 27 at the SteelStacks campus in South Bethlehem. Burglary

Freemansburg police arrested an alleged burglar shortly after a reported crime on Main Street in the borough May 18.

According to police, officers were dispatched to a burglary in progress around 2:30 p.m. and investigated the scene of the incident, discovering a residence in the 300 block was broken into and a big screen television was taken. Witnesses said a suspect drove off in a metallic-colored SUV.

The suspected vehicle was found in the 3500 block of Keystone Street in Bethlehem Township with the television visible inside.

Jason J. Kociolek, 33, of the 1500 block of Livingston Street in Bethlehem allegedly admitted to the crime and is charged with theft and burglary.

Drug possession

Police arrested a woman at the Southside's Five Points McDonald's restaurant on Wyandotte Street on several drug-related charges around 1:20 p.m. May 25.

According to police, 44-year-old Cheryl Rowe of Easton Avenue was found unconscious in the bathroom. Numerous empty baggies, syringes and a crack pipe were found on her, and she allegedly admitted to having used the narcotic earlier in the day.

Rowe is charged with public drunkenness, possession of paraphernalia and possession of a controlled substance.

The warm sun beamed on the faces of the 75 hopeful Moravian Academy graduates Saturday during the school's commencement held on the Jacob Lawn of the Merle-Smith Campus.

Class of 2013 President Joshua Aurand provided the remarks. He thanked the many individuals who made graduation possible, from parents and family to the teachers and staff of the school.

"We have come a long way," he said. "We are officially done with high school."

Although the graduates successfully completed one stage of their life, Aurand wryly asked the new graduates to reflect back to their freshman year.

"You can see how much we have come into our own," he said. "We have all proven ourselves in one way or the other."

director of the upper school, spoke of the diverse group in the class of 2013, ranging from athletes, artists and poets to budding scientists and those committed to making the world a better place.

"This class is a group of dedicated students," Krohn said. "They've challenged themselves. Moravian Academy will miss them."

The ceremony concluded with the playing of the alma mater and the graduates, with diplomas in hand, recessing outward.

The class of 2013 graduates will further their educations at institutions such as the College of William & Mary, Boston University, Fordham University, Harvard College, Lafayette College, Lehigh University, Pennsylvania State University, Southern Methodist University, University of Virginia, Wesleyan College and Williams College.

"It has been an honor and congratulations to us all," Aurand told the graduating class.

"We better enter those woods," Aurand said. "Just like high school is not college, college is not the real world."

NOTRE DAME HS - JUNE 2, 2013

'Be who you are and be that well'

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The stands were packed at Notre Dame's gridiron June 2. But instead of shoulder pads and helmets, the uniform of the day was Oxford caps and graduation gowns as the Bethlehem Township school said good-bye to 123 seniors.

"The world is ours," announced valedictorian Jessica Ann Petrakovic, an Easton resident. If Notre Dame's graduating seniors are any indication, it will be a better world.

Among all the scholarships and honors bestowed, the one that meant most to them was a simple plaque from Diane Silviotti to graduating senior Hunter MacMillan. Silviotti, herself a Notre Dame grad, suffers from cerebral palsy and was the victim of a $22,000 home robbery in 2009 and was unable to pay her property taxes. MacMillan came to the rescue, raising $1,000 by devoting a summer to collecting aluminum cans. He was aided in that quest by Principal Joseph Kramer.

MacMillan is also the departing Student Council president.

There should have been 124 graduates. But one of the class members, Kimmy Gillow, passed away in her freshman year after a courageous battle against cancer.

honor. In a stirring valedictory address, Petrakovic predicted, "We will all mess up beautifully, and we will all be far better people for it." Quoting Ralph Waldo Emerson, Bottled water was plentiful during the graduation ceremony as a relief from the heat. Gabriella DeMartino of Bethlehem drinks as her twin sister Nicola sits alongside. she encouraged graduates to go "where there is no path and leave a trail."

But the Most Reverend John O. Barres, bishop of the Allentown Diocese, cautioned that wherever that trailblazing might lead, it had better include Sunday Mass.

Following the awarding of diplomas, the class of 2013 was officially recognized and allowed to move their tassels to the other side of their graduation caps. Tyler Fernandez of Bethlehem fiddles with his tassel after making the switch.

Bishop Barres also reminded graduates of the admonition of St. Francis de Sales, patron saint of writers and journalists.

"Be who you are and be that well," advised the 17th Century French Bishop.

A little more worldly, salutatorian Jamee Beth Lopiano, of Bethlehem, spoke of high school memories that will stay with them all.

Notre Dame HS is a private, coed Roman Catholic high school in Bethlehem Township with an enrollment of about 570, taught by a 40-person faculty. It includes ninth through 12th grades.

Revenues up 24% over 2012

HANOVER TOWNSHIP

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Hanover Township supervisors learned that their finances are in good shape during their May 14 meeting. Independent auditor Todd Bushta, in a review of 2012's revenues and expenditures, has issued what he calls a "clean report" in the accounting of $23,821,814 in net assets at the end of the year. Total revenue was $8,840,837, of which $5,090,316 came from taxes.

Expenses were $7,907,171, leaving the township with a surplus of $933,666.

One piece of good news is that the township's debt service, currently set at $500,000 per year, will drop significantly in 2016 to about $147,500 per year.

"I don't think any municipality can make that claim," stated Township Manager Jay Finnigan.

On another financial front, treasurer Ryan Kish told supervisors that revenues are up 24 percent while expenses are down 13 percent from over the same period last year.

"I guess we should keep our treasurer," joked Chairman John N. Diaciannis.

Public Works Director Vince Milite explained one way in which expenses have been reduced. Changing electricity providers to Patriot Energy has saved the township $15,000 on its electric bills over the past two years.

Milite also reported that his department has just finished installing 136 new traffic warning signs throughout the township. In 2011, the township installed new traffic advisory signs.

Supervisors also awarded a $246,537 road paving contract to Hanson Aggregates, located in Stroudsburg, for this year's road paving.

Nancy Run getting a makeover

BETHLEHEM TOWNSHIP

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

From a fire company expansion to an ammo purchase, public safety issues dominated the recent meeting of Bethlehem Township Commissioners.

Nancy Run Fire Company will start a $1 million expansion this summer, according to trustee Bill Andress.

At their May 20 meeting, commissioners approved a building additions and renovations plan by a 4-0 vote. Commissioner Tom Nolan was absent. Although commissioners have given a green light, the volunteer fire company still had a zoning hearing scheduled for May 29, at which dimensional variances were to be sought.

Nancy Run Fire Company, located on Easton Avenue, has existed since 1931. Staffed by 40 volunteers, and with no paid staff, this fire company responded to 850 calls last year. It has grown from a department that mostly put out agricultural fires to one that responds to motor vehicle accidents, automatic alarms and even assists the City of Bethlehem. As its service expands, so has its need for space.

The biggest change, according to Andress, will be expanding the ceiling space in three of the fire company's five bays. At 12'4", these bays are too small for modern fire apparatus. The fire company will also add training rooms, and will retain 900 square feet for future expansion.

This expansion is being funded in part by a $100,000 grant from the Pa. Department of Community and Economic Development.

Andress is also hopeful for some funding from the Gaming Authority. No township resources have been expended.

In other business, commissioners authorized township officials to apply for an annual $20,000 grant for DUI enforcement. Township Manager Howard Kutzler explained that police use this funding for 24 "events" every year.

Most are roving patrols, with only one sobriety checkpoint.

Finally, commissioners set aside $14,799 for the purchase of ammunition for police. Kutzler told commissioners that what used to be a two to four-week waiting period is now 14-18 months, if a state contract is pursued. With an outright purchase, it's still a four to six month wait.

Can't Out-give God

"You can't go anywhere without benefiting from the genius of R.G. LeTourneau," states writer Jim Ray. "The pioneering industrialist helped build many of America's roads, bridges and dams in the twentieth century, and those he didn't build were made possible by earthmoving machinery he invented. LeTourneau was a prolific giver who eventually gave away 90 percent of his income and was still a wealthy man with the fraction remaining, but his commitment to giving started when he was broke and deeply in debt. Nevertheless, he pledged $5,000 to his church for missionary work—a huge sum during the depression era—at a time when he was $100,000 in debt (the equivalent of about six million in 2013 dollars). The rest is history." It is also an example of the truth God gave in Malachi 3:10, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse...and prove me now herewith, saith the LORD of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

A report entitled "20 Truths about Tithers" by Brian Kluth presents facts about Christians who give at least ten percent of their income to God: "Tithers are twice as likely to be debt-free than Christian non-tithers! 80 percent of tithers have no unpaid credit card bills! Almost half of all tithers own a home that is paid off, versus one-third of the non-tithers! Tithers comprise between five and 20 percent of the givers in a typical church congregation, but they donate up to 80 percent of the money!" Brian says, "A non-tither looks at that and says, 'Oh, they give because they're better off.'" But Brian says the truth is: "God's blessings follow your generosity!"

LeTourneau liked to say that he could never out-give God. "I shovel it out," he said, "and God shovels it back ... but God has a bigger shovel!" Jesus said it like this, "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over" (Luke 6:38).

Bethlehem Catholic's softball team poses as a team after winning the District 11 3A title last week.

Second title in three years

Bethlehem Catholic pitcher, Joelle Morey, was one strike away from a Class 3A District 11 championship last Thursday at Pates Park when Becahi fans started clapping.

"I was so nervous. I didn't know what to do. It was so much pressure," Morey said.

Morey, however, knew exactly what to do.

The Becahi senior threw a strike, and the Hawks were district champions, defeating Palmerton, 9-0.

Becahi shortstop, Emily Brandstetter, scored the first run in the first inning on an RBI single by first baseman, Courtney Joelle Morey helped to keep the Bombers scoreless.

DuPont. In the fourth inning, Brandstetter hit a double over third base.

"Since their third baseman was in, we would have a girl stealing, and I was supposed to hit it in the hole, but I hit it over her head," said Brandstetter.

Jackie DeSarro's single then scored Brandstetter and Lauren Visconti, who had also singled. DeSarro ended up advancing to third base when a throw to home failed for the Blue Bombers.

"I knew I needed to get something down, no matter what it was. I didn't know about the overthrow until I saw Coach Bob," said DeSarro. "I'm speechless right now. I couldn't ask for anything more, except states."

No sooner had the Liberty Hurricanes lost the Class 4A District 11 championship to Northampton, 3-0, last Thursday at Pates Park than Liberty softball coach Rich Giering was ready to start preparing for next season.

"I'm disappointed, but I told them, there are good winners and there are good losers. I'm ready for next season; well, maybe after a little break. I love it," said Giering.

Liberty pitcher, Lauren Epsaro, led off the first inning with a walk after a ten-pitch at bat, but the Hurricanes first hit did not come until the third inning, when Deb Renner hit a single between first and second base. Renner later had a single to center field.

Northampton struck early when Leandra Serner hit a triple down the third base line, scoring on Taylor Kerbacher's RBI in the first inning.

Maria Kondravy makes a play at first base during the Hurricanes loss to the Kids in the District 11 4A finals last week.

Liberty's Nicole Iasiello also had a hit down the third base line, but the Hurricanes were unable to capitalize in the top of the fifth inning.

In the bottom of the fifth, Northampton scored two more runs when Kendra Makovsky scored on Kerbacher's RBI, and Kerbacher scored on an error. Liberty's Lily Acosta led off the sixth inning with a walk, and Maria Kondravy had a single, but the Hurricanes left both on base.

Defensively, Alyshia Dellatore and Emily Cecchini had nice plays in the infield, stealing hits

Freedom's Sinai takes bronze at states

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

To compete in the PIAA State Tennis Championships as a sophomore in high school can be overwhelming, but to win a state bronze medal shows that focusing on your game, no matter what your age, can lead to success, as was the case with Freedom's Andrew Sinai.

The Patriots' number one singles player proved to be the third best tennis player in Pennsylvania after defeating Mount Lebanon's Peter Hazlett, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, in Sinai's last match of the tournament on May 25 at Hershey Racquet Club.

"It was a lot of pressure because I wanted to end the season on a high note. I had a tough match in the morning, but I really wanted to win that [final match], and I did that through focusing and playing my match," said Sinai.

Earlier in the day, Sinai was defeated in the semifinal by Central Catholic of Pittsburgh's Adam Blasinsky. (No scores available.)

"I got beat pretty bad," Sinai said.

The pivotal match for Sinai, however, proved to be his quarterfinal victory over Conestoga's Brian Grodecki, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

"That was the most important match of the tournament. I was down the whole time, but I was able to get through it. Once I got through the second set, I really believed I could be there," said Sinai.

There were times when Sinai had his doubts.

"I kind of felt like I was in over my head. A lot of things were happening at once, but my coach [Jeff Young] helped me and kept me in there. I did better than I thought," he said.

Sinai's first-round match was the kind of match to which he had become accustomed, defeating O b a m a Academy's M i c a h Byrum, 6-0, 6-0.

"Going into the season, I just wanted to have a perfect season in the LVC and the area. My main goal was to win districts. States was just an extra thing on the end there. It was a great first experience there," said Sinai.

When considering the fact that Sinai has two more years to become a state champion, the Freedom sophomore knows he has plenty of time for that.

"For now, I just want to become a better tennis player," he said.

Freedom's Andrew Sinai took bronze.

Deppe Classic for good cause

By CHUCK HIXSON
Special to the Press

The 28th Annual Howard E. Deppe All-Star Baseball Classic was played Saturday at Limeport Stadium, with a team comprised primarily of players from the Lehigh Valley Conference (red team) downing a team assembled generally from teams in the Colonial League (blue team) 11-4.

The game raises money for the American Cancer Society and also provides a final high school memory for graduating seniors from area schools. Easton's Nick Beinlich was chosen as the Outstanding Player of the game for the red team as he found ways to contribute throughout the game.

Beinlich drew a walk in the first inning and stole two bases before scoring on an RBI single as the red team grabbed an early 4-0 lead. Later in the game, Beinlich doubled to contribute again to the offense. With his team holding a 4-2 edge, Beinlich came on to pitch two perfect innings, striking out three hitters.

Catasauqua's Zac Edwards picked up two hits, two RBI and a stolen base and was chosen as the Outstanding Player of the Game for the blue squad.

"I was a little surprised, but I'm just grateful to receive the award," said Edwards. "It's great, because it benefits beating cancer and it's great just to come out and get to play against these guys."

William Lopez and Sean Wrobel of Freedom and Nick Vigilanti of Liberty all played in this year's game. In addition, Branden Knipe and Tyler

Pieper of Bethlehem Catholic also played in the contest. Becahi's Mike Grasso served as coach of the red team and thought the game was a great setting for seniors to have some fun and give something back to the community.

"It's great when you can combine something you love with a way to help a charity and the kids all had a great time today, they played hard and in the end, we all walk away with a good feeling," explained Grasso. "This wasn't about runs or who won, it's about seeing kids play one last time as high school players and raising money for the Cancer Society."

The event also featured a pregame hitting contest, where contestants were awarded points for how far they were able to hit each of ten pitches. The hitting contest was won by Northwestern's Richard Perry, who got the nod by two points.

"I felt pretty good after my round, but I didn't necessarily expect to win," said Perry. "There were a lot of batters and they're all pretty good, so I'm happy for it."

The game featured a unique way of involving literally every player. The batting order included every player on the roster and they hit in the order of their jersey number. Players were also allowed to be reinserted defensively throughout the game. Because of PIAA rules, players from schools that are involved in the PIAA tournament were ineligible to play, keeping players from Parkland and Salisbury on the sidelines.

LEGION BASEBALL

Wanderers looking for improvement

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It's early in the legion summer, but there's one thing that every coach knows he'll need from their team and it's quality pitching.

The Wanderers hope that can stay true for their season, as they sit at 1-1 through Monday's schedule.

Dwight Pulieri is back in the fold as manager of the club and looks to improve off last season's 11-10 mark.

"To be competitive night in and night out, no matter who we play," said Pulieri about the team goals. "With a 20 game schedule in five weeks, pitching depth as always is a major concern. We will use 'Johnny Whole Staff' mentality throughout this season."

The Wanderers registered an 8-4 victory over

Hellertown, but lost to Jeffs 2-0 this year and come equipped with a roster filled with Bethlehem talent.

Eddie Bonilla (2B/P, Freedom), Bryce Hudak (1B/P, Freedom), Ed Milisits (1B, Freedom), Dan Mitchell, (1B, Liberty), Anthony Trapani (3B/P, Bethlehem Catholic) and Sean Wrobel (OF/SS, Freedom) are some of the key players on the Wanderers this summer, as they head into another week of action, starting with Thursday's road tilt against the Birches, followed by a Friday night contest at home against Northampton.

Pulieri and company may need more time to see what his team is capable of this summer, but he knows that every night is a battle for the team to qualify for the playoffs.

Working off their strengths and improving in their important areas of play will be keys for them moving forward.

"These guys have great team chemistry," he said. "This team is a pleasure to coach and be around. Even though we have only played two games, we are a very strong defensive team. We just need to take advantage of the offensive opportunities that we are given with timely hitting."

Bryce Hudak will be counted on to pitch again this year for the Wanderers Legion team.

"Whether we lost or not, we're so proud to be here. We put a lot of hard work into it. We were in back-to-back district finals, and [today] we came in as the underdog. I'm so proud," said Dellatore.

The Hurricanes knew

"I was definitely not [trying for a big hit]. I was just trying to get on," Markovic said.

Morey, Kate Yanders, Julia Madison, and Marissa Merriman also had hits for the Hawks in the district championship.

Bethlehem Catholic will advance to states this week, with their first game against Donegal High School.

that their biggest challenge would be Northampton pitcher, Marly Laubach.

"Because Marly pitches faster, we turned up the machine so we would be more prepared for faster pitches," said Cecchini. "It was great to come back [to the district final]. No one was expecting us to be here, but we came together and proved everyone wrong."

Coach Giering could not have been prouder of his Hurricanes.

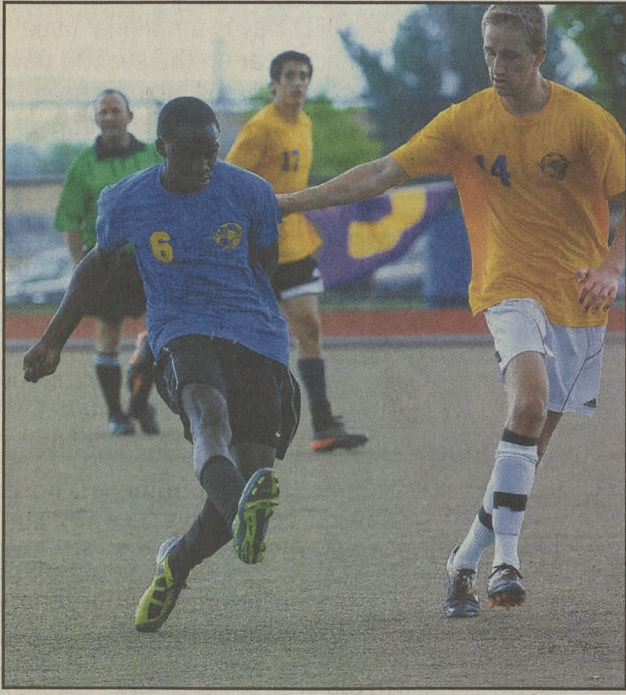

"I thought we hit the ball pretty good off [Marly Laubach]. We talked about how we were going to challenge right back. I told the girls we were the best team in the upper bracket. Their effort was second to none," he said.

LVC boys win, girls tie at Lions All-Star Classic

By CJ HEMERLY
Special to the Press

With both the boys and girls soccer seasons in the fall for the first time this year, the 32nd Annual Lions All-Star Soccer Classic was played nearly six months after the final kick for many of these local high school area players. The Mountain Valley Conference/Colonial League boys gave up three goals in losing 3-0 to the Lehigh Valley Conference all-stars. The girls teams tied 2-2 in a rain shortened game. Both games were played last Sunday afternoon at Whitehall High School.

With the long layoff since the last time these players stepped on a soccer field, it was expected that there would be some rust. And most of the players have never played with their teammates before, except for on opposing ends.

For the first fifteen minutes the teams tested each other out and just tried to get back into the flow of soccer.

In the 17th minute, two Emmaus Green Hornets connected on a nice aerial pass down the sidelines. Ben Rhoda chipped a ball over the defense to a running AJ Bishop. Bishop eluded two defenders and laid off a pass to Parkland's Nick Hutchinson who ripped a shot into the back of the net for the first goal of the game.

Roda got his name onto the score sheet just a little over two minutes later.

"It was fun because we haven't seen each other since October with all of the different clubs and everything," added Hutchinson. "It was just good to get back out there and play with friends again."

In the second half, Baidy Ba from Freedom stole an attempted back pass to the goalkeeper, and took one quick dribble to elude the goalie and put away the third and final goal. Ba nearly missed a second minutes later.

The MVC/Colonial team had their chances, but could not capitalize. Team offensive MVP Jordan Ellison of Stroudsburg saw a couple of shots get saved into the hands of the LVC goalkeepers.

Liberty's Ian Larimer was named the defensive MVP for the LVC. His high school teammate Sean McIntyre played in a mid-field role. Freedom was well represented with Ba, Brendan Kaulius, Quinn Ackerman, and Mohammed Bah. Bethlehem Catholic's lone representative was Matt Collier.

In the girls game, the scoring was higher and at a quicker pace. In the 5th minute Pleasant Valley's Maria Cimino ripped a shot off the crossbar that just stayed out of the net. Just two minutes later, Callie Duliba of Palisades sneaked a low shot under the legs of the LVC goalie Victoria Ruvolis for the first goal of the game.

Lightning forced a 45 minute delay at the end of the first half. With just a 20 minute shortened second half, the teams combined for three goals.

Connor of Pleasant Valley brought her team back into the lead with a ten yard strike. But Cunningham, playing on her home turf, didn't want to go down with a loss in her last career high school game at Zephyr stadium. She leveled the score with just two minutes to play, and the teams ended at a 2-2 draw.

"It was a great experience just being able to put my shin guards back on and to play on this field for the last time," said Cunningham. "It was even more special being able to play with the best girls in the Lehigh Valley. It was such a great experience."

Midfielder Bridget Smith from Bethlehem Catholic took home the scholar athlete award for the LVC team for her work on and off the field. Teammate Abby Guman played up top, and had a few good looks on goal.

Freedom and Liberty also had two representatives. Molly Magan and Bryna Phieffer for the Patriots, and Vicki Koutsouris and Meghan Mello for the Hurricanes participated in the classic.

EAGLES CAMP

With former Philadelphia Eagles like Fred Barnett, Bill Bergey, Brian Dawkins, Garry Cobb, Vince Papale, Ben Hawkins, William Thomas and others providing support, Philadelphia Eagles Youth Football Camps will return this summer, including a camp at Bethlehem Catholic, July 22-26, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Philadelphia Eagles Youth Football Camps provide noncontact instruction to kids from ages 6-14 years old. Led by professional coaches and Philadelphia Eagles Heroes, kids learn to run, throw, catch, defend and compete the Eagles way. Through safe, noncontact instruction, the program develops athletic skills and life skills through football.

There are three program options. The Comprehensive Skills Camp is for newcomers ages 6-14 or kids that want to give it a try. The Accelerated Skills Camp is for league-experienced players ages 9-14. This is an advanced class room within our Comprehensive Skills Camps. Private instruction students receive position-specific football training from an expert coach.

Cost is $349. Visit www.EaglesCamps.com or call 888-226-9919.

Nearly 20 Keller Williams Realty employees from the Bethlehem area office descended on the Southside branch of the Bethlehem Area Public Library May 9 to freshen up the basement meeting and staff rooms, hallways and doors with a new coat of paint. The national realty company's annual RED (renew, energize, and donate) Day community service initiative is Keller Williams' way of "living the golden rule," according to Diana Hodgson, an eight-year Keller Williams realtor, she chairs the local Keller Williams culture committee, which is charged with scheduling the RED Day activities. RED Day is a national initiative held each year on the second day of May. Keller Williams also assisted the library with moving its inventory of books into the basement, where they were stored during recent renovations at the facility. Hodgson said she hoped to continue to work with the BAPL on its 'Room to Grow' campaign in the future. "We give where we live, which exemplifies who we are," added Hodgson. Keller Williams has 80,000 agents working out of 700 offices nationally, according to Hodgson.

New at LVH-Muhlenberg

Faster healing for wounds and injuries

Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy

Some wounds or damaged tissues require more oxygen than normal in order to heal. Patients with these conditions may be a candidate for hyperbaric oxygen (HBO) therapy at Lehigh Valley Hospital-Muhlenberg. During HBO therapy treatments, a patient breathes 100 percent oxygen for designated intervals of time. This raises the amount of oxygen that can be delivered to the injured or damaged tissues and increases the body's ability to heal.

To learn more about the ways we heal wounds, call 610-402-CARE or visit LVHN.org/woundhealing

'Next stop, Pacific House!'

Ken Ranieri
Columnist

This is the story of a South Bethlehem hotel - a "mythical" establishment that existed from the 1870s into the early 1900s known as "Pacific House." The hotel was located across from Victorian-era Union Station at the junction of the North Penn and Lehigh Valley railroads. Today, little remains except a wall of its foundation below the west side of the Hill-to-Hill Bridge along the Lehigh River.

Opposite Union Station, travelers conveniently lodged at the 3.5-story triangular-shaped Pacific House - its northern side perched on a stone wall above the Lehigh River. Of the hotel's four sides, north was the only "peaceful" side, where lodgers might view occasional boaters on the river.

On the east side of the hotel, the second floor porch overlooked busy Wyandotte Street. From this vantage point, guests endured the racket of horse hooves and wagon wheels on their approach to the covered bridge over the Lehigh. The hotel's short south wall faced the railroad tracks of the North Penn and Lehigh Valley railroads; and the west wall sat along a single Jersey Central Railroad track from an iron bridge that crossed the river. With noisy horses, wagons and railroad traffic, the term "Pacific" must have seemed a joke to South Bethlehem residents.

Pacific House owners, Aaron, Thomas and Joseph Marsteller, formed a company to operate the hotel. However, Thomas and Joseph became sole proprietors of the hotel after the death of their brothers, Samuel (1868) and Aaron (1877).

Situated at the railroad junction and South Bethlehem's early business district, the hotel gave access to the Anthracite Building (1872) on Lehigh (now Brighton) Street. The building housed offices of the E.P. Wilbur Banking Company, offices of businessmen and attorneys, and was headquarters of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Thomas F. Marsteller certainly witnessed the development of South Bethlehem as proprietor of Pacific House. On the hotel's first floor, he greeted guests and booked their rooms at the front desk. Morris Albright was in charge of livery and horse stables; male guests in need of a haircut and a shave went to Walter Starr's barber shop, and guests who felt peckish after their long journey were seated in the restaurant where meals were served in the public rooms.

By winter of 1890, electric service was installed in the hotel but not yet in service. In February, Marsteller nearly lost his guests to asphyxiation when gas lines suddenly froze, blowing out flames that illuminated the hotel rooms. Hours later, when gas was restored to the lines, jets which were not turned off allowed gas to seep into the rooms. Aware the gas was back on, a frantic Marsteller ran from room to room, awakened his guests and turned off the gas jets.

Several years later, another incident put Pacific House back in the public eye - but this incident potentially could have lost the hotel its liquor license.

Marsteller was allegedly unaware that a ring of criminals used his public rooms to prey on unsuspecting guests. Much to his surprise, this revelation came to light March 23, 1897, during a court hearing while he applied for his liquor license.

At the hearing, court members and community paragons Robert H. Sayre, A.W. Cleaver and R.M. Gummere, showed more interest in complaints of "bands of professional criminals, who operated and conducted a certain scheme known as the 'Green Goods Game.'" Furthermore, they claimed, "... the 'Green Goods Game' is so notorious [to so many] that it must be known to T.F. Marsteller, proprietor" [of the hotel].

Pacific House porter Morris Hottenstein testified, "it was six, eight and 10 green goods men [who met] at the hotel at one time, who made no effort to conceal their game --and the proprietor of the hotel... was well aware of what was going on in the place." What the court didn't know was that Hottenstein was a go-between in the "game." Harry Lutz, a passenger on the North Penn Railroad, testified that among railroad men, Pacific House had a reputation of being "a green goods and confidence joint."

He said he had directed some pretty good-sized "marks" or "suckers" away from the place after many of them told him in confidence that they were going to [Pacific House] to buy "green goods." He told them they should "... take the next train back home..." and keep their money.

On March 24, the court charged Marsteller with knowledge and support of the criminal 'Green Goods Game' at Pacific House.

The Green Goods Game

After reviews and the testimonies of witnesses, the scheme behind the "green goods game" was duly revealed:

"Sharps" (professional swindlers from New York and Jersey City) boarded passenger trains every hour from New York City; they arrived at Union Station and were met by porter Hottenstein, who escorted them across Wyandotte Street to Pacific House. There they waited more than three hours for the next trains to arrive with additional colleagues.

"Suckers" were usually farmers from the West and the South, known by their clothing and broad-rimmed hats. They were steered to Pacific House, according to Hottenstein, a total of "a couple hundred during the last year." Once "roped in" by "sharps," farmers who paid $300 (worth $8,010 today) were the recipients of counterfeit money, "so perfect, that nobody could tell it from the genuine article."

When the farmer and "sharper" met in one of the public rooms at Pacific House, $1,000 in real money (worth $26,700 today), "was counted out and placed in a tin box right before the farmer's eyes." The box was provided with a lock and the farmer was always cautioned, "not to open the box" until he got home, "lest he got caught by a government officer for having counterfeit money."

Unbeknown to the farmer, he didn't get the box he paid for; instead, he received a similar tin box filled with strips of blank paper cut the same size as ordinary dollar bills, "one or two good ones on the top of the pile next to the lid."

Eventually the game was busted and Pacific House was clean of criminal activity. As for Marsteller, the court proved him not guilty as an accomplice in the "Green Goods Game" and granted him the liquor license.

This caper pales next to 20th century events during Prohibition and the Great Depression, when South Bethlehem was considered a wide open town - a haven of vice, speakeasies and prostitution, attractive to out-of-towners. But that's another story.

Memorial Day weekend homecoming WW II veteran laid to rest

By MARK RECCEK

Special to the Bethlehem Press

It was only fitting that World War II veteran Pvt. William Yawney's remains were finally laid to rest two days before Memorial Day.

Strong winds were coupled with blue skies as family and friends gathered at St. John the Baptist Ukrainian Cemetery in Northampton the morning of May 25 for his funeral, 69 years after his death.

Yawney, originally from Freemansburg, served at the age of 23 as a private in the U.S. Army in Delta Company, 1st Battalion, 105th Infantry Regiment, 27th Infantry Division, and was deployed to the Pacific Theatre late in the war.

Yawney's nephew, John Yawney of Hanover Township, said the family had mailed countless letters to Yawney in 1944 that went unanswered.

"All the aunts and uncles were sending him letters and not getting a response," John said.

Yawney's mother, Katherine, was told her son was still alive but unable to respond due to a secret mission he was on.

But in July 1944, she received word that her son had been killed in action during a mission on the island of Saipan. But even that information proved to be inaccurate.

It was only after a friend Yawney had served with returned home that the family learned Yawney had not died in July, but rather in May.

"They found out he had been dead for months," John said.

Katherine was also told her son was provided with a military burial.

In 1949, the military began relocating dead World War II soldiers to their homes, but Yawney's remains could not be located.

"They opened up the grave and there were no remains," John said. "His remains were unrecoverable."

Then in 2011, an archaeological team on a digging mission in Saipan came across a WWII bunker containing the remains of a human.

John said his uncle Michael Yawney sent in a DNA sample, which came back as a match to the remains found in the bunker.

"I was overjoyed and my uncle was extremely happy," said John of the return of Yawney's remains.

Although elected officials did not provide much assistance to the Yawneys in locating the remains, John said, he credits his Uncle Michael with bringing William Yawney home.

"It was because of him and his determination and persistence that they actually made a connection," he said.

The funeral service became emotional as the Rev. Dan Gurovich prayed for Yawney and sprinkled holy water over his remains, and John accepted a flag in honor of his uncle from U.S. Army Lt. Benjamin Dickey.

William Yawney was awarded the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart. The funeral concluded with a 21-gun salute.

Katherine passed away in 1983. According to John, she would have found peace May 25 as her son's remains were buried below his name on the tombstone, which she had had engraved decades earlier.

Pvt. William Yawney is finally laid to rest May 25, in the same burial plot as his mother and father.

Seniors' 'last dance'

Here at Moravian, June is an exciting month: it's when the school year ends! Wednesday, June 5 is the magic date most students at the Upper School have circled or highlighted on their calendars, while the seniors were released slightly earlier on June 1.

Josh Aurand
Moravian Academy

Per usual, the seniors completed APs and senior exams in May and then began to vanish from the grounds. They came back for Senior Fun Day, bringing with them super soakers, video games, a moon bounce and even a roast pig on a spit, all of which left a jealous taste in the mouths of the underclassmen. Then they thanked their teachers, cleaned out their lockers and were never heard from again.

Just kidding! Many seniors presented a parting gift in the form of their involvement in Moravian's Spring Choral and Handbell Concert, which featured all of Moravian's talented singing groups and bell ensembles, or those who played music here one last time in the spring instrumental concert. There were also seniors who gave final demonstrations of their athletic prowess by continuing to compete on their sports teams until the season's end. And of course many seniors enjoyed their "last dance" at the Prom.

Soon thereafter, seniors left for post term projects, through which they pursued pre-professional (or casual) interests and learned something new about themselves. They shadowed doctors, worked with animators and photographers, volunteered with various chapters of Habitat for Humanity, and even hung out on the set of Good Morning America.

For the seniors who stayed local and for the school as a whole, a special treat came in the form of the Freddy Awards, where Moravian Academy won Freddys in the categories of "Outstanding Overall Production by a Smaller School" and "Outstanding Featured Performance by an Actor" (senior Connor McInerney). Seniors Evan Richter and Emma Brown and junior Andie Burns also participated in the Freddys, to the delight of fans and fellow students.

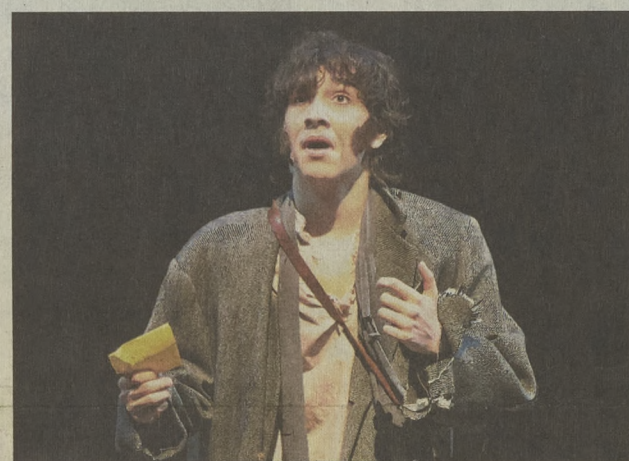

But as seniors are preparing to depart, there are many things they're not doing. Underclassmen have signed up for next year's classes, and are beginning to consider the social ramifications of moving up a level in the high school hierarchy. They are still attending classes, and spending all day at school. They are looking excitedly toward the summer, secure with the knowledge that Moravian will be waiting for them in the fall. They will graduate soon too, after some exams, celebrations of faculty who are leaving or retiring, and references to next year.

But as a senior, I can say that it's an odd feeling. I'm about to graduate and this is my last column writing about Moravian. I'm excited to go where I'm going, but leaving is still an adjustment. I have attended this school practically as long as I can remember, so as I again discuss all the newest happenings at Moravian, I am confronted with the obvious but still surprising reality that Moravian Academy life will go on without me. My time here has been special, but I'm beginning to see that having a special time at Moravian is in no way unique.

MORAVIAN: Madeline West (Helena Landless), Connor McInerney (The Chairman) and Megan Keller (Princess Puffer) perform "There You Are" at the start of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood".

Freddys for area productions

FREEDOM: Jean Valjean (Daniel Youngelman) is so moved by the Bishop's kindness that he vows to change his life for the better in "Who Am I?"

Three Bethlehem area high school musicals won Freddy recognition recently. Moravian Academy's production of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" was named Outstanding Production by a Small School. Connor McInerney, of Moravian, won the Outstanding Performance by an Actor for his role as Mr. Cartwright/Mayor Sapsea. Notre Dame's Michael Guerriere won the Outstanding Performance by a Featured Dancer award in "The Music Man." Freedom HS's Daniel Youngelman won the Vic Kumma Award for Outstanding Solo Vocal Performance for "Bring Him Home" in "Les Miserables" (school edition). Freedom's "Les Miserables" also won awards for Outstanding Stage Crew and for Achievement in Lighting.

FREEDOM: Enjolras (Justin Roth) demands a better life for all the people of Paris with Marius (Lex Donatelli) and several beggars (Abby Arnold, Madison Donchez, Colleen Chemidlin, Lizie Trosle, Nick Harms - up top are Christine Wieder and Nikki Slavic).

NOTRE DAME: Michael Guerriere as former con man Marcellus Washburn lands in old friend Tyler Fernandez's (Harold Hill's) arms at the end of "The Sadder-But-Wiser Girl."

Bethlehem Catholic High School honored three of its alumni recently by presenting each with the school's Distinguished Graduate Award. Bernard "Bernie" Brown, class of 1981, Lt. Col. Patrick Dundon, class of 1985, and Commander Andrew "Drew" Karabin (retired), class of 1979, were recognized. After a small luncheon with their families, principal John Petruzzelli and other school officials, the honorees were feted at a school assembly. Brown was introduced by son Bryan, a senior, and daughter Alyssa, a junior; Dundon by daughters Elizabeth, a sophomore, and Madelyn, a freshman; and Karabin by son Nicholas, a junior.

Each offered remarks thanking their teachers, coaches and school administrators. "The older I get I realize how much the coaches, teachers and others helped to mold me," said Brown. Stressing school relationships, Karabin added, "Enjoy your time here. It will be gone before you know it." Staying on theme, Dundon remarked, "Whatever small success I've had in my career is due to the faculty, coaches and clergy." Brown is owner of B. F. Brown Company, Inc., a construction firm. Dundon is a Lieutenant Colonel in the U.S. Army Special Forces who is currently serving in the office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Special Operations. Karabin is a Retired Commander in the U.S. Naval Reserve and a mortgage consultant for Wells Fargo Home Mortgage.

'Shakespeare for everyone'

Variety is the spice of the 22nd year at Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
 Focus Editor

This year's Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival (PSF) is not unlike a "who's who" and "greatest hits," with several popular actors and directors returning for a 22nd season that includes a huge musical, comedies and rarely-staged works of The Bard at DeSales University, Center Valley.

Jim Helsinger, Orlando Shakespeare Festival artistic director who has delighted PSF audiences, is back to direct and appear as Lady Bracknell in "The Importance of Being Earnest," July 10 - Aug. 4, Main Stage.

The Oscar Wilde comedy is presented in repertory with "Measure for Measure," July 18 - Aug. 4, Main Stage, in its PSF debut. The repertory cast includes PSF favorites Greg Wood, Wayne S. Turney, Brad DePlanche, Zach Robidas, Alexie Gilmore and Suzanne O'Donnell.

Also in its PSF debut is "Henry VIII," July 24 - Aug. 4, Schubert Theatre. In the tradition of William Shakespeare's company, there's no director or designers. Actors choose costumes from the PSF wardrobe and rehearse for a few days, compared to the usual four weeks.

Dennis Razze, the go-to-guy for musicals at PSF, directs the Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II classic, "Oklahoma!," June 12 - 30, Main Stage.

Steve Burns (TV's original "Blues Clues"), Anthony Reimer and Genevieve Perrier are directed by Matt Pfeiffer as some 150 characters in "The 39 Steps," a comedy based on the Alfred Hitchcock film noir, June 19 - July 14, Schubert Theatre.

Two acclaimed one-night shows include Wayne S. Turney, "The Gospel According to Saint Mark," 7:30 p.m. June 24, and Anthony Lawton, C.S. Lewis' "The Screwtape Letters," 7:30 p.m. July 29.

The PSF gala, "Luminosity," was held June 1.

The children's show, "Beauty and the Beast," by Michele L. Vacca and directed by Gina Lamparella, opened and runs May 31 through Aug. 3, Schubert Theatre.

"Shakespeare for Kids," directed by Erin Hurley, is July 24 - Aug. 3, Main Stage.

You might say, to quote Rodney Dangerfield from the movie "Back to School" (1986), the philosophy at PSF is "Shakespeare for everyone."

Here's more of what's in store for PSF 22, from those who are putting on the Lehigh Valley region summer theater's really big shows.

Patrick Mulcahy
 Repertory theater, in its third year at PSF, "continues to be pretty exciting for everybody," says Patrick Mulcahy, PSF producing artistic director. "It helps us attract better actors because they get to play two roles rather than one."

Of "The Importance of Being Earnest," Mulcahy says, "It's one of the funniest classical plays ever written. I think it's Wilde's masterpiece. Having Jim Helsinger both direct the piece and play Lady Bracknell is pretty exciting."

"There's a tradition of having men play that role — not always. Brian Bedford did in recently on Broadway. Geoffrey Rush did it. Jim is one of the funniest people I know on stage."

"I think one of the reasons it's so appealing is that Lady Bracknell brings both kind of feminine and masculine energies. She's forceful, direct and domineering, but she engages those energies as a matron who is very much attached to appropriate Victorian formality.

"Casting a man underscores the more conventionally-masculine traits but in the preservation of feminine decorum."

"But the biggest reason to do it is it's a wonderful comic role and Jim is a wonderful comic actor. His innate comedic sense goes right to the bone. Every ounce of him is engaged in what is funny in a given moment in a performance."

Matt Pfeiffer is associate director. Bob Phillips is set designer. Lisa Zinni is costume designer.

Alexie Gilmore, a DeSales theater department graduate who plays Gwendolyn in "The Importance of Being Earnest," has an extensive film and TV resume, including "Mercy" (2010), starring James Caan; "Surfer, Dude," (2008), opposite its star Matthew McConaughey; and "World's Greatest Dad" (2005), starring Robin Williams.

As an example of the caliber of PSF performers, Spencer Plachy was to be in rep for "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "Measure for Measure," but was lost to Broadway for "Romeo and Juliet," starring Orlando Bloom, with previews Aug. 24 for a Sept. 19 opening at the Richard Rodgers Theatre. Los Angeles actor Blake Ellis, who had auditioned, stepped into the PSF rep production.

Zach Robidas has a list of TV credits and was in "Arbitrage" (2012), starring Richard Gere, and "It's Complicated" (2009).

"These two plays are not at all similar," Mulcahy says of "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "Measure for Measure," adding,

"That's the fun of rep — there's a different skill set and energy to them."

"Rep is very challenging, but actors love it. When an actor is in school, they're working on multiple projects all the time. So, those muscles do get flexed."

"I think it elevates everybody's game. There's more excitement in the building. The actors know that what's demanded is going to stretch them. I think they're at the top of their game as a result. They're more artistically alive."

"It gives the audience a chance to see what an actor can really do — especially if they see it in the same day or weekend. They get to see transformation."

Of "Measure for Measure," Mulcahy says, "This is a really terrific play. And it's not one you're going to get to see that often. It's not one of the Top 10 plays you're going to read in high school."

"The central plotline is so fascinating. There's such dramatic tension with a man who's built his career and his identity on the purity of his virtue."

"While it's not on the high school reading list, it's definitely on the college reading list. If you take a course in Shakespeare plays, you're definitely going to read this."

"It's probably in that second tier of popular plays. It is held in high regard. It's one of those really interesting plays which is hard to categorize. It's classified in the folio as a comedy. There are funny scenes and funny characters. It's funny in the way 'The Merchant of Venice' is funny."

"Measure and Measure" and "Henry VIII" are the 25th and 26th plays of the estimated 39 in the Shakespeare canon produced by PSF. Fontaine Syer, who directed "King Lear" (2008) and "Othello" (2006) at PSF, is directing "Measure for Measure." Bob Phillips is set designer. Marla Jurgran is costume designer.

Of "Henry VIII," Mulcahy says, "If 'Measure for Measure' is a play that you might get to see once in a decade, 'Henry VIII' is a play you might get to see once in a lifetime."

"Part of the fun of doing it this year is that it's 400 years after what we believe is the first production in 1613. June 29, 1613, is when the Globe burned to the ground when they fired off a cannon in the middle of 'Henry VIII' and it lit the thatch on fire."

"The only injury was to a man whose britches were set ablaze. But a pot of ale took care of that. No cannons will be fired in this production," Mulcahy promises.

"Henry VIII" includes PSF all-stars: Ian Bedford (King Henry VIII), Susan Riley Stevens (Queen Katherine), Christopher Patrick Mullen (multiple roles), Anthony Lawton (multiple roles), Richard B. "Doc" Watson (Cardinal Wolsey) and Brandon Meeks (Duke of Norfolk).

Dennis Razze
 Says Dennis Razze, PSF associate artistic director, of the 22nd season, "Patrick [Mulcahy] and I carefully picked it to be a really good variety of offerings. I think each of the shows are really different. Each show couldn't be more different in look and feel."

"The 39 Steps," 'Oklahoma!' and 'Measure for Measure' are three shows we've wanted the festival to do for a long time. The

"Altogether ooky": The 2013-2014 National Tour of the musical, "The Addams Family," above, based on the bizarre and beloved family of characters created by legendary cartoonist Charles Addams, comes to the State Theatre for the Arts, 453 Northampton St., Easton, for two shows, 7 p.m. June 10 and 11. "The Addams Family" began performances in March 2010 at the Lunt-Fontanne Theatre and ran through December 2011. The show has a book by Marshall Brickman and Rick Elice, and music and lyrics by Andrew Lippa. The production is directed by Jerry Zaks with choreography by Sergio Trujillo. Addams created several thousand cartoons, sketches and drawings, many of which were published in The New Yorker magazine. The Addams Family cartoons also inspired "The Addams Family" TV show (1964 -1966) and a feature movie (1991). Tickets: statetheatre.org, 610-252-3132

Hollywood on Cedar Crest

By DIANE BAKOS
Special to The Press

Hollywood needs you. And it's now recruiting, at a college near you.

From July 12 through Aug. 10, Cedar Crest College, Allentown, is offering an opportunity for 50 students to learn how to take a TV, film, or stage production from conception to completion.

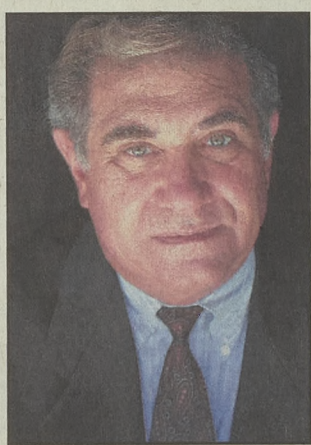

The twist: You'll learn how to do it not only under the tutelage of Cedar Crest Assistant Professor Kevin Gallagher and Kutztown University Professor James Ogden, you're going to be directed by three Hollywood professionals: actors Dan Lauria ("The Wonder Years," "Sullivan & Sons"), Kate Vernon ("Battlestar Galactica," "Malcolm X") and writer-actor-director Frank Megna ("The Seekers," "Wiseguy").

Through an acting friend, Ogden became a marketing agent to the stars. And it's through those interactions that he says this germ of an idea was born.

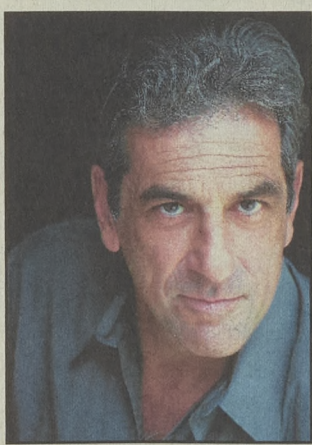

"We wanted to come up with another method of communicating with kids to encourage writing, particularly for the stage. I've done workshops all over the place, and it just seemed it would work as a class. I talked to Cedar Crest, called Frank, and he said 'Yeah, he'll play with me. Dan was excited, as well. Kate called Dan or Frank and asked if she could play."

These "players," though, have a bigger goal.

Yes, students will receive three credits for the six-class course, held Fridays and Saturdays. But these

Dan Lauria

Frank Megna

Hollywood types want more. They hope to inspire revolution.

Lauria complains that the film and television industries have become formulaic, with every decision financially-based: "They don't really need actors and writers and directors any more. Everything looks the same. Everything's a talking head. And the writing went from 20 minutes of dialogue and five minutes of action, to five minutes of dialogue and 20 minutes of action. That's all corporate."

He and Megna believe that by teaching writers how producers work, by helping actors understand budget constraints, by introducing creative people to all sides of the production process, sea change is possible.

"There's a monetary side of this thing," Megna concedes, "but let's not forget what's at the core of it. It's not just selling pretty people. It's about saying something and reaching people out there with something worth reaching them with."

"And that's what this industry really needs, is creative producers, more than anything else," Megna continues. "The guy who steps up and says, 'OK, I'm gonna take this thing on. I can make this happen.'"

Lauria admits it's an uphill battle. "I give up and go back to the theater. I never go a year without doing a play. Because when the curtain goes up, it's like, 'They can't cut it.'"

Registration deadline is June 14. The course costs $1,395. It sounds steep, but Ogden argues it's a real deal: "You're going to get contacts. Frank Megna is writing a four-act play. Two of the students will be chosen to be actors in that, and they're going to get a credit showing them working with Dan Lauria and Kate. Writers will be in contact with the writers, etcetera. I just think it's a win-win for everybody involved."

And if you get the chance, ask Dan Lauria about what he calls "the next big thing." He'll tell you. And he'll tell you what it'll take to make it happen: revolutionaries. Like you.

An 'Epic' disappointment

The animated family feature movie, "Epic," is beautiful, especially in the 3D format in which it was seen for this review.

Unfortunately, "Epic" lacks a cohesive storyline, the clever dialogue we've grown accustomed to in animated features and memorable animated characters.

That's not good. The art form is, after all, about character animation.

Moreover, the concept for "Epic" is ill-conceived. Much of the action takes place in a dark forest. Other scenes are in caves and the interior of a castle. The good guys, the Leaf Men, are, naturally enough, attired in leafy green. The bad guys, named the Boggans, are in shades of gray. The 3D process tends to darken scenes. Why do film-makers make choices that do not best serve the medium and the moviegoer?

"Epic" provides fascinating glimpses into the world of "the little people," or sprites, fairies and tiny mythical animals of legend and imagination, mixed with actual denizens of the forest such as birds, toads, slugs and the like.

I wanted to like "Epic" more than I did.

That's because the lead character, the protagonist, Mary Katherine, nicknamed M.K., is voiced by Allentown native Amanda Seyfried, fresh off her red-carpet walk and onstage performance for "Les Miserables" during this year's Oscars' telecast.

Seyfried is in fine voice. However, the character she voices resembles Taylor Swift, with a slimmer face than that of Seyfried, voted as having one of the "Most Beautiful Famous Faces" for six consecutive years on the list of "The Annual Independent Critics List of the 100 Most Beautiful Famous Faces From Around the World."

The other lead characters in "Epic" are as generic as the film's title. Ronin (voiced by Colin Farrell), the romantic interest opposite M.K., looks like your standard-issue Disney prince.

Beyonce Knowles (Queen Tara) is given a non African-American visage.

Several characters have the potential for development, including Mub the slug (voiced by Aziz Ansari) and Bufo the Toad (Pitbull).

The voice of Christoph Waltz (Mandrake), leader of the Boggans, who are out to destroy the forest, is the

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein

most compelling.

The voice talent includes Jason Sudeikis (Bomba), as M.K.'s father, and rock group Aerosmith's Steven Tyler (Nim Galuu), as a caterpillar character similar to that in "Alice in Wonderland."

Few of the characters is given enough screen time for development. The plot, such as it is, about protecting the forest, is convoluted at best, incomprehensible at worst.

The film may be enjoyed by children. However, I was fixating not on the green on the 3D screen, but rather the green in the "Exit" sign.

Even the usually impressive Danny Elfman fails to score with the film's original music.

The only thing epic about the "Epic" screenplay is the number of writers who worked on it.

Director Chris Wedge ("Robots," 2005; "Ice Age," 2002) works from a screenplay by James V. Hart ("Sahara," "Contact," "Muppet Treasure Island" screenplays), Daniel Shere ("We Are Family"), Tom J. Astle and Matt Ember ("Get Smart," "Failure to Launch") and William Joyce from a story by Wedge, Hart and Joyce, on whose book, "The Leaf Men," the film is based.

"Epic" has a good pedigree. It seems the prime mover behind "Epic" is Joyce, whose film, "Rise of the Guardians" (2012) was based on his "The Guardians of Childhood." Joyce developed characters for "Toy Story" and "A Bug's Life." Joyce won a 2012 Animated Short Oscar for "The Fantastic Flying Books of Mr. Morris Lessmore."

Since Joyce is a writer, executive producer and production designer on "Epic," it's not as if someone hijacked the material. "Epic" is the film the film-makers wanted to make.

And that's what especially makes "Epic" an epic disappointment.

"Epic": MPAA Rated PG (Guidance Suggested. Some Material May Not Be Suitable For Children) for mild action, some scary images and brief rude language; Genre: Animation, Adventure, Family, Fantasy; Run time: 1 hour, 32 minutes; Distributed by 20th Century Fox. Credit Readers Anony-

ANNIVERSARY

Then: Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Eberhardt on their wedding day in 1963 ...

Eberhardt
Northampton couple marks golden anniversary

Dennis and Frieda Eberhardt of Northampton celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary June 1.

The couple was married by Rev. Stephen Vidoczky June 1, 1963, at Our Lady of Hungary Church, now Queenship of Mary Church, Northampton.

Dennis is the son of the late Paul and Cecelia Eberhardt and Frieda is the daughter of the late Felix and Lucia Mullner.

Dennis worked for Lehigh Structural Steel Co. and its subsidiary Utilities Service Corp., for many years, retiring from Lehigh Valley International Airport.

... and Dennis and Frieda Eberhardt now.

Frieda worked for Fuller Company and IBM Corp., retiring from SunGard Pentamation, Inc., Bethlehem, after many years.

The couple has two children: son Matthew Eberhardt and wife Kristin of Northampton, and daughter Karen Miller and husband Jack of Maryland.

They have four grandchildren: Hannah Eberhardt, and Blake, Bryce and Isabella Miller.

The couple celebrated with a surprise party given by their family.

NOTICE OF CATASAUQUA ZONING HEARING #6-13 & 7-13 JUNE 18 2013

The Catasauqua Zoning Hearing Board will hear the following appeal on Tuesday, June 18, 2013 at 7:30 P.M. in the Municipal Complex, 118 Bridge Street, Catasauqua, PA 18032. Approval of the minutes of the May 20, 2013 meeting.

APPEAL #7-13 The appeal of Renovation Properties, LLC, 1513 Washington Street, North Catasauqua, PA. The applicants are seeking variances related to the property at 415-417 Front Street, Catasauqua, PA. The applicant appeals from the denial of the Zoning Officer for parking and other relief and is requesting variances relating to parking, increase in impervious coverage and dwelling unit size. Specifically the applicant is requesting a four-space variance from the parking requirements of Section 280-38 and the Table of Required Off-Street Parking; a 10 foot variance from the requirements from Section 280-40c(2) relating to minimum aisle width for two way traffic. The site plan shows a 14 foot aisle width instead of the required 24 feet; a variance from the requirements of Section 280-41 relating to an off-street loading facility; a variance from Section 280-26 and Table 3 relating to lot coverage exceeding 90%; and a variance of 13 sq. ft. relating to unit #2 and 68 sq. ft. relating to unit #3, both from Section 280-54c relating to minimum size of dwelling units. The property is located in a DC-Downtown Commercial Zoning District in which apartments are permitted providing the buildings also includes an allowed principle non-residential use. The appeal of Cathy Holdings, LLC, 1177 N. Sixth Street, Whitehall, PA. The applicant has filed a challenge to the amendments to the Zoning Ordinance of the Borough of Catasauqua (Ordinance No. 1189) which were adopted by the Borough in Ordinance No. 1286 enacted by the Borough Council on March 4, 2013 amending various provisions of the Zoning Ordinance regarding residential uses permitted in the Waterfront Overlay District (WOD). The applicant filed its Notice of Appeal and Petition to Zoning Hearing Board designated "Substantive Ordinance Validity Appeal" on April 2, 2013 pursuant to Sections 909.1(a)(1) and 916.1(a)(1) and (b) of the Pennsylvania Municipalities Planning Code contending that the foregoing amendments to the Zoning Ordinance are invalid due to alleged inconsistency between the amendments and the Borough's Comprehensive Plan, due to the lack of prior notice and opportunity to comment on the adoption of the amendments, that the adoption of the amendments were violative of the applicant's due process rights and that the amendments are generally in violation of the provisions of the Municipalities Planning Code. The applicant is the owner of the property at 126 Bridge Street, Catasauqua, Pennsylvania. The documents filed by the applicant in support of its appeal are available for inspection at the Borough Offices at 118 Bridge Street, Catasauqua, Pennsylvania during normal business hours Monday thru Friday between 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.

APPEAL #6-13 Any other business that comes before the Board. Applicants must be present for their hearing. Parties interested in a scheduled hearing may review the application and supporting documents at the municipal building during regular business hours. Eugene L. Goldfeder, Zoning Officer May 29, June 5
