Amato: High school reading problems must be addressed

By DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Why can't Johnny read? The question, first posed by Rudolf Flesch in 1955 in a landmark indictment of the American school system, was still bedeviling the Bethlehem Area School Board at its Curriculum Committee meeting Sept. 20.

Flesch's book, "Why Johnny Can't Read-And What You Can Do About It," recommended that educators use phonics to teach kids reading instead of requiring them to memorize words via the "word method."

Flesch argued that most U.S. educators refused to recognize the word method's shortcomings, instead blaming reading failures on things such as "a broken home." School board member Rosario Amato echoed Flesch's concerns when he expressed the question in more contemporary terms, asking administrators, "Why do these kids go to Hades when they get to high school?"

BASD administrators, who have been nursing a recurring case of "not making adequate yearly progress" in the district's two high schools, want to use a remedial reading program that Dr. Joanne LoFaso said will help middle school and high school students learn Dick Haber nears the end of his Broadway debut conducting the "Phantom of the Opera" orchestra.

For Dick Haber, the jump from law office to orchestra pit was just another adventure

By DIANE BAKOS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Richard Haber is an unpredictable man. And that is as gross an understatement as you are ever likely to hear. Still, even those close to him were somewhat surprised when this well-known, highly respected, extremely successful attorney decided to leave his practice of 45 years and do something "different," which he'd longed to do since his childhood days. Something like, say, becoming a conductor. Of an orchestra. On Broadway.

Not something you would expect of a 65-year-old man? You bet it's not. But Dick Haber is not bound by the expectations of others.

Haber has a musical background. As a tot, he played records on the Victrolas in his father's appliance store while imitating the bandleaders he so often watched at the nearby Rose Garden. Then, when his family bought a piano for Haber's older sister to use for lessons, it was Dick who began toying with it and discovered he could play by ear.

"My parents were somewhat excited about this and so they arranged for me to take a music lesson," says Haber, who recalls being about seven at the time. But at his first lesson, the teacher proclaimed him to be beyond her capabilities and suggested he go to New York to study.

There wasn't money for that, so Haber kept playing on his own.

He also kept conducting pretend orchestras. He was doing just that at the Waldorf's Starlight Room the night before his sister's wedding, when the bandleader spotted him. He asked Haber if he was a musi-

Council approves Southside TIF 6-1

By DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem City Council has authorized Mayor John Callahan to sign the revised tax increment plan (TIF) that updates the plan first approved in 2000 with a view to resurrecting the sprawling Bethlehem Steel industrial complex in South Bethlehem.

Several citizens urged council Sept. 21 to delay the vote and do more study; but, as lone dissenting voter David DiGiacinto said, "It looks like a done deal."

The TIF passed, 6 -1. DiGiacinto cast the "no" vote.

One dissenting member of the public likened the supporters of the TIF plan to "card sharks" who were moving too fast.

Councilman J. William Reynolds, who voted for approval of the TIF, acknowledged that the biggest risk in the massive plan is the possibility that the casino - a major contributor to the tax base - would shut down.

Councilman Eric Evans said, "I like all parts of this. Within a year, the transformation will be phenomenal."

Councilwoman Karen D. Dolan also spoke in favor of the agreement.

"We understand the benefits and the risks," she said. "We have done very well by TIFs."

Letter urges quick decision from judge

"The Board requested that I contact you so that this case may be resolved. Can you please let me know when we can expect a decision to be filed?"

ZONING HEARING BOARD SOLICITOR MICKEY THOMPSON, IN A LETTER TO NORTHAMPTON COUNTY JUDGE EDWARD SMITH

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Back in May, when Northampton County Judge Edward Smith first heard the zoning challenge to a proposed expansion at Bethlehem's popular Elias Market, he urged owners and neighbors to resolve their differences. Bethlehem Planning Chair Lawrence Krauter echoed that same sentiment in August.

Since that time, the Elias family has conducted an open house, at its Linden Street business.

"We'll have as many meetings as we need," said Najwa Azar. Not to be outdone, homeowners are planning their own open house. But instead of open houses, Bethlehem zoners want a decision, and they want it as soon as possible.

In an unusual move for a quasi-judicial body, Zoning Hearing Board Solicitor Mickey Thompson has fired off a letter to Judge Smith, asking him for a ruling.

"The Board requested that I contact you so that this case may be resolved," Smith wrote in the letter. "Can you please let me know when we can expect a decision to be filed?"

Under Pennsylvania law, zoning hearing boards are subject to the open meeting provisions of the Sunshine Act, except for their actual deliberations during appeals.

Interestingly, there is no record that Thompson was directed to contact the court.

When asked to explain this apparent discrepancy, Thompson declined comment, directing all inquiries to Zoning Chair Constantine "Gus" Loupos.

Attempts to reach Loupos have been unsuccessful.

In Thompson's missive to Smith, he complains about "several negative" news accounts. He says the Planning Commission "chastised the Zoning Hearing Board in public for this decision." He adds that a proposed ZHB expansion, from three to five members, is a "manipulation" stemming from dissatisfaction over the Elias decision.

During a lengthy Planning Commission meeting Aug. 18, Elias Market did agree to give Bethlehem planners additional time to review the proposed business expansion. But at no time did any planners offer any derogatory remarks about the ZHB. Neither Thompson nor any zoner attended that meeting.

Bethlehem City Council is considering a proposal to expand the Zoning Board from three to five members, but the proposed expansion predates the Elias zoning appeal.

Council President Robert Donchez first floated the idea in January 2008, long before the Elias matter. In fact, Donchez advocated increasing the size of the Zoning Hearing Board when he himself was a member of that body.

Attorney David Backenstoe, who represents Bethlehem homeowners in this zoning appeal, declined to comment.

All American Handyman

Q&A

BY RUTH GRADY

Lehigh Valley resident Peter Wong was named All American Handyman Sunday on HGTV. His talent for fixing things began at a young age. After moving to the United States from Hong Kong at age 5, he quickly became handy, earning the nickname "MacGyver" in high school. Following a brief stint as a mechanic, he found his passion working as an engineer in the semiconductor industry at the Anadigics Company. He is a manager in the Warren Final Test Operations Department. He lives with his wife and two sons in a home he renovated. His reaction to winning the contest? "I feel great and it's the best thing I've done besides having my son and marrying my wife," he said Sunday evening. "It's an awesome feeling and such an accomplishment!"

as I could. I challenged myself to do the best I could in everything I did. I put forth my best efforts to be focused on my own projects and from time to time helped others on the show that needed help. I was extremely focused, like when I'm playing sports. I'm a big hockey nut and I coach the Easton High School varsity team. I love it. I'm super competitive and was brought up to fight for everything you want.

Q Were you at all nervous doing any of the challenges?

A At the beginning I had no idea what to expect and was very nervous just to be on TV and (have the) camera following my every step. There was TV lingo shouted out and I had no idea what they were saying and neither did the other contestants. I was stressed out just anticipating what we were going to do. I know I can do a lot of things, but cameras, people and of course (celebrity judges) Mike Holmes and Scott McGillivray watching and judging you is nerve wracking. I just couldn't believe I had made it that far. I knew I was blessed but it was coming down to the end and I could be the first All American Handyman in our country. I would be extremely proud if I could take home the title.

Q What was it like showing your abilities under the watchful eyes of HGTV's celebrity judges Mike Holmes and Scott McGillivray?

A Both judges are unbelievable people. They are great guys on and off the air. Mike Holmes is my new favorite idol. If I take home this title I will make him proud because I believe a lot of the things he preaches. All my closest friends know I am the same way—no holding back and doing everything right. My workers know what I mean at Anadigics. Back to the question, they are hard on you but at the same time offering their opinions and suggestions to help us through. They know we are under the gun and pressured to do the best we can. Sometimes you can lose your mind even though you know exactly what to do. I tried to focus by gathering all my thoughts within five minutes of each competition. You have no time to prepare. What you see on TV for the first time is what we see. They give you a time limit and say, 'Go build, fix or design something right now. The clock is ticking.'

Q If you win the competition, what are your plans?

A If I win I would love to host my own show. I have no idea what I would like it to be, but would love to have that experience. This is a once-in-a-lifetime chance. I would like to share my knowledge and at the same time help as many people as possible. I knew that I was supposed to have some kind of impact helping people at a young age. I am not famous or rich now but I help everyone that I can. This is how it all started: by helping myself, then others, because I could never afford to pay someone to fix anything for me, and I know that if I do it, it will be done correctly.

Q How did you hear about the All American Handyman challenge?

A My brother thought I had a great chance at doing very well, if not winning the whole thing. He emailed me the application and at first I didn't think I would even get called, so on the last few days before the deadline I opened my drawer where the application was and said, 'Whatever. I'll mail it in.' Then in a few days the network liked my application and called me to videotape a 5-minute video of myself. I said to my wife, 'I am definitely not doing this.' My wife encouraged me to just record myself and tell HGTV why I would be a great candidate. She went out to the store and I said, 'What the heck? It can't hurt.' When I came in from mowing the lawn I recorded a 2-minute video and mailed it in. They called me again and asked if I would still be interested in doing the show. I thought, 'You've got to be kidding. How many people do I know or, as a matter of fact, how many people do all my friends know that were ever on TV?' I said of course I would do it.

Q Why did you apply for this challenge?

A I thought it was God-sent, because I have the natural talent to fix just about anything, from homes, cars, motorcycles to my day-to-day job as an engineering manager. "Whatever you have broken, I can fix it." That is my slogan and I live by it. Things I do at work are typical production manufacturing and sustaining all equipment associated with the job, including all aspects of robotic repair to programming equipment or process flow.

Q Do you have a side business doing handyman work?

A I have just recently started my own official company called PG Construction. Since I was getting so many calls from everywhere before the show, I said, 'Why not make it official?'

Q What was it like competing with 19 other competitors?

A There was hardly any cut-throat (competition), like on most reality shows. Everyone was excited just to be there, so we were kind of rooting for each other. There were folks from all over the country. I made a lot of new friends.

Q As the competition narrowed down from 19 to three, what was going through your mind?

A All I cared about was getting each task that was in front of me completed as best LoFaso, the district's coordinator of literacy for kindergarten through fifth grade, recommended a new remedial program for the district's schools; one she says would improve the reading skills of middle and high school students.

She presented statistics to the school board, meeting as the curriculum committee, showing that in 2009-2010 tested third, fourth and fifth-graders improved their reading skills over the course of the school year with close one-on-one or small group instruction.

Administrators gave the evaluation tests to a small but statistically significant number of students to judge the overall ability of the student population.

In the sixth grade sample, no students had reading proficiency at the beginning of the year, but at the end of the year 36 percent had achieved proficiency.

Eighth-graders in the study began the year with zero percent in the "advanced" reading category, but 22 percent of students had reached the "advanced" category at the school year's end. However, the number of students with below-level reading proficiency dropped only slightly, from 24 percent to 23 percent.

Seventy percent of ninth-graders in the study began the year reading proficiently, and 26 percent had achieved proficiency at year's end. Even though this represented an increase, the numbers still show marginal reading ability. The same group started the year with 40 percent below acceptable levels (the lowest category) and at year's end that figure had gotten worse, climbing to 48 percent.

Results also indicated that 2 percent of the tested ninth-graders were "advanced" readers at the beginning of the year; a percentage that was unchanged at the end of the year.

"Why do these kids go to Hades when they get to high school?" asks school board member Rosario Amato, in response to information that BASD students do poorly in reading after they reach middle and high school.

Administrators were unclear why statistics for tenth-graders were incomplete for "advanced" and "proficient" categories. Their year-end results were not included in the report and the high school principals were not at the committee meeting to explain the missing numbers.

Tenth-graders' stats for "below basic" were available, however, and showed that the below basic percentage jumped from 35 percent at the beginning of the year to a whopping 80 percent at the end of the year.

The two high schools, according to the Pa. Dept. of Education's website, each had 19.1 percent of students with "below basic reading" in the most recent Pa. System of School Assessment (PSSA).

Both high schools remain in PSSA's "Corrective Action 2" status for the fourth straight year.

Dr. Margaret Barilla, consultant for curriculum and instruction, said all teachers need to teach reading skills in all disciplines, a strategy also suggested in other local school districts.

Barilla also told committee members that using high school-level textbooks is a challenge for poor readers coming from the middle schools. She urged administrators and committee members to develop a literacy strategy, to keep kids from "dropping off the cliff" when they get to high school.

LoFaso recommended that the school board buy a reading intervention program that will train teachers to teach reading skills. The training program would be augmented with a software program that allows teachers to monitor the reading progress or status of any given student.

LoFaso said a similar program licensed in the past had proven effective.

Board member and former Liberty principal William Burkhardt was more skeptical of the proposal.

"When kids get to high school, they have to want to read," Burkhardt said. "(The reading problem) starts in middle school and gets worse in high school."

"All this brain power is here, but no one has answered my questions," Amato said. "I've been on this school board for 14 years and I hear the same thing. There has to be something you can recommend!"

Supt. Joseph Roy responded by saying, "When kids get behind, it's an even greater challenge. We need targeted intervention."

"Teachers need to be trained on how to teach readers," Roy said.

LoFaso said that new teachers coming out of college don't necessarily have the skills to teach reading, referring to teachers whose disciplines are math, science and other high-level specialties.

Asst. Supt. for Human Resources Thomas Washington told the Press that teachers graduating from college learn how to teach, and that includes teaching reading skills, but teachers get better at it as they gain experience.

Barilla told the committee that during professional training of elementary school teachers, she noticed several teachers who showed talent in teaching reading skills.

"They really jumped out," she said.

"Professional training will reap benefits," Barilla added. "I know it costs you a lot, but you have a strong core of teachers. When I was in Allentown School District, we used to send our teachers to you to get trained."

TIF

She rejected critics who asked for more time.

"We were provided no shortage of information," she said. "I'm really proud of how the project will enhance (the city's) beauty."

In a special hearing prior to convening the city council meeting, representatives for both Art-sQuest and PBS39 presented their plans to build or expand at the Bethlehem Steel site.

Council President Robert Donchez praised the plan as a "win-win for the school district, the city and the county."

Last week, Northampton County Council approved the revised TIF plan, which redistributes the income in what supporters call a more equitable arrangement between the three taxing authorities that are part of the original TIF deal.

Tuesday's action leaves the Bethlehem Area School District (BASD) as the remaining signatory needed to sign on to the new arrangement.

Ron Angle, Northampton County Council president, was at the city council meeting and criticized the degree to which the Bethlehem Area School Board had participated in TIF negotiations. "I'm hard-pressed to believe the school district is on board," Angle said.

Leeson said the board is nearing an agreement on the revised plan; however, she said it would not be on the agenda for the board's Sept. 27 meeting.

She explained that the Bethlehem Redevelopment Authority did not respond to the district's request for additional information until after the district's deadline for adding the Southside TIF to the agenda.

Leeson also said there will likely be a special school board meeting to vote on the plan Oct. 4 at the Education Building on Sycamore Street.

Ron Angle, Northampton County Council president, was at the council meeting and criticized the degree to which the school board had participated.

"I'm hard-pressed to believe the school district is on board," Angle said. "I'm authorized to sign (the TIF) or bring suit."

"It's about coming together and working through the process," said Leeson, who had led the rejection of the initial plan presented to the school board.

According to the school board finance committee's chairman, Eugene McKeon, the district's share under the revised plan would be $15 to $16 million for the remainder of the agreement, which expires in 2020.

Under the new plan, $5.7 million will go the City of Bethlehem.

According to this plan, the city will retain $667,000 in fiscal year 2010 and receive $505,000 annually until 2020.

In other business, city council approved two new Zoning Hearing Board positions, which will bring the total number of hearing board members to five.

Council also approved a lease agreement for a new police substation at 745 Linden St.

HABER

cian. Haber said he played piano, and that night the little boy from Bethlehem made his musical debut with Eddie Duchin and his orchestra.

Haber is never one to back down from a challenge. While enrolled at Penn State in the ROTC program, he tried out for the Air Force band.

"What do you play?" he was asked.

"What do you need?" responded Haber.

"How about the bass drum?"

"Sure," said Haber, though he had never played a drum in his life. But he learned. Then he got "promoted" to cymbals, another instrument he had to learn. Then drum major. That's when he decided to march the entire band through the administrative offices, and the administrator suggested he keep right on marching. Band was over for Dick Haber.

No problem. He could indulge his musical sensitivities elsewhere. As chancellor of his fraternity, he decided it would be a good idea to have a piano in the house. So he ordered one. The night before its scheduled delivery, he realized his fraternity brothers had never voted on the purchase, so Haber called an emergency 10 p.m. meeting and got the motion passed. He noted that his frat brothers were rather amazed when the piano arrived a mere 10 hours later.

By 2004, Haber was married to Rosemary

Murdy-Haber, a musician in her own right as well as a teacher. By that time Haber was looking for an "exit strategy" from the legal world.

"I had always, since childhood, wanted to conduct," he says. "I asked Rosemary what the finest music school is, and she said Juilliard."

So 65-year-old Dick Haber applied to Juilliard, sat in the waiting room with the Broadway conductors of "Xanadu" and "Beauty and the Beast," and went in for his interview.

Maestro Professor Vincent La Selva describes their first conversation.

"I'm talking to him," La Selva says. "I found that he had never conducted. I found he was a little short in music. He didn't know much about anything."

One really important thing he didn't know much about was reading music. In all his years of playing piano, drums and cymbals, Haber hadn't learned to read a note of music. So how did he handle this seemingly major stumbling block? In typical Dick Haber fashion, he smashed the block to smithereens.

He put his heart and soul on paper, pleading his case and offering to audit the class for four weeks.

"At the end of four weeks if I can't conduct - if I fall on my face - you won't have to kick me out," he said. "I will leave gracefully. If not, I can stay in your course."

"Something in that letter told me, I just couldn't say no to him," La Selva says.

Haber did not fall on his face. He learned to read music and conducted "The Marriage of Figaro" for his class. In total, he spent more than eight semesters at Juilliard, never receiving a grade under A-.

Then in 2007 the attorney-turned-conductor led the orchestra for the payout - the closing music - of a real, live Broadway production of "Phantom of the Opera."

Rosemary lights up with the memory.

"I was in the front row taking pictures and video and yelling, 'Bravo!' at the end. I was very proud."

That memorable experience was the result of a program called "Broadway Cares." Potential conductors make a donation for AIDS prevention and in turn get to work with the production. In 2008 Haber went through the same program to conduct the payout for "Mary Poppins." Just before he raised his baton, though, lead actor Gavin Lee stopped the show. To Haber's surprise, Gavin announced that, "After 45 years of practicing law, this man has become a conductor."

The crowd erupted into cheers. Rosemary says she cried with pride.

Conductor Krisen Blodgett, who worked with Haber on "Mary Poppins," is full of praise, calling him "enthusiastic" and "passionate."

"He just has music in his soul," she said.

Conductor and Grammy Award-winning producer David Lai was Haber's mentor for "Phantom." He says the two have become fast friends.

"Dick is very unusual to begin with," Lai says. "He's very much a creative spirit. Music is his passion and he's pursuing it. He's a remarkable guy, and I'm inspired by him."

Haber has put his newfound skills on display at the local level, too, conducting the American Legion Band and "Carmen," "Haydn's Surprise," and "Aida" at Liberty HS. The school even granted him the honor of having him conduct his own composition, "America The Melting Pot."

However, Haber says, clients at home grew impatient with his absence and it became clear he needed to return to practicing law. He did so, establishing a solo practice in March.

"Reuniting with my old clients is like taking vitamins!" he enthused.

Maestro LaSelva released him with his blessings, promising there would always be a chair for him at Juilliard.

And perhaps Haber will return there someday. Or maybe another adventure will catch his fancy. If so, he will undoubtedly jump in happily with both feet.

"Life is so rich and full," he says, "and you have to be available to it. I believe everything happens for a reason. And if you do things with love in your heart, you can't go wrong."

Former Bethlehem Steel blast furnaces, silent since the "hot" portion of the Southside plant closed in 1995, come alive on the canvas of artist Paul McGinn, who likes to paint on-site in his favorite medium — oils. McGinn, who is a recent Lehigh Valley transplant and serves on the board of the Bethlehem Palette Club, was preparing for the annual Fall Juried Exhibition at ArtsQuest's Banana Factory. McGinn strategically set up with his easel in the shade along a parking lot treeline just west of the SteelStacks area, and said his unfinished oil was a possible entry for the show. Council wants accountability from agency's use of hotel tax

By CAROL SMITH
Special to the Bethlehem Press

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

Northampton County Council is calling for greater accountability when it comes to $700,000 in hotel tax money. The 7-2 vote on the Sept. 16 council resolution which demands that accountability also calls for an economic development study for Northampton County.

Council President Ron Angle said the lack of accountability to the county by the Lehigh Valley Economic Development Corporation has caused him to question whether Northampton County's economic development initiatives could be monitored better if performed in-house by county officials rather than the LVEDC.

Under the current hotel tax law in effect in both Northampton and Lehigh counties, both counties contribute $75,000 a year to LVEDC for economic development services. The hotel tax agreement, approved by Northampton County with a 2005 ordinance, is with Discover Lehigh Valley — formerly the Lehigh Valley Visitors and Convention Bureau — and the LVEDC. Under the agreement, 68.75 percent of hotel tax collections go to Discover Lehigh Valley, which has a 50-year agreement with LVEDC for 36.4 percent of the hotel tax it receives.

After the economic development review, council solicitor Philip Lauer said council would have the option to repeal the hotel tax or to designate another tourism agency to receive the monies.

While some council members object to the use of hotel tax money for economic development, Angle said he has lost confidence in the LVEDC's efforts to bring more businesses to the county.

"Northampton County is in the path of growth, no thanks to the LVEDC," said Angle, who attends LVEDC meetings as county council's liaison.

County Executive John Stoffa said he believes LVEDC needs defined goals as to what the county expects it to accomplish in the way of attracting businesses to the county. To bring this work in-house would require three additional staff members.

Councilman J. Michael Dowd said the hotel tax benefits both counties and offered examples, such as the construction of Coca-Cola Park, the IronPigs' baseball stadium in Allentown. Dowd said he would like the economic development study to determine what specifically the county plans to accomplish.

"I'm an advocate to get the best bang for our dollar," he added.

Councilwoman Ann McHale, who opposed the resolution, questioned county government's role in economic development.

The next council meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Oct. 6 at Northampton County Courthouse, 669 Washington St., Easton.

Freemansburg police arrested Deivi Ortiz, 32, of Main Street in the borough, following a traffic stop around 10:40 p.m. Sept. 11.

Police said they observed Ortiz drive through a red light before pulling him over. He allegedly smelled of alcohol and was arrested for DUI, but when an identity check was run, police saw he was wanted in Texas for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

Ortiz is also charged with being a fugitive from justice. He was remanded to Northampton County Prison.

A 21-year-old DeSales University student was arrested on the South Side for displaying extreme intoxication and generally having poor judgment around 2 a.m. Aug. 27.

According to police, Connor Bergeron, of Birkel Avenue, was probably drinking in the Tally Ho Tavern before coming outside and walking into the street. While in the westbound lane of West Fourth Street, he began directing traffic for no conceivable purpose. A number of drivers told him to get back onto the sidewalk, but were ignored.

When a police officer drove by and also told him to get out of the street, Bergeron allegedly yelled, "F--- that cop!"

Bergeron is charged with public drunkenness.

Fountain Hill Borough Council approved the promotions of a police officer and fire department officers at their Sept. 7 meeting.

Police officer Wayne Hochwarter was recognized for his promotion to sergeant.

"You know how they say your check is in the mail? Well your badge is in the mail," Mayor Ned Fink joked after he swore in Hochwarter.

Two fire department members were also sworn in: Richard Reis, as fire chief, and Daniel Pope, as deputy chief.

Also at the meeting, council members approved leveraging fees on residents for returned checks. The borough's financial department had recommended that council charge the bank fee plus $5 to cover administrative costs, but council vice president Norman Blatt thought that amount was too low.

"The $5 administrative fee over and above the bank charge doesn't even pay for the certified mail we have to send to notify them that their check was no good," Blatt said. "We're losing money in the deal."

Blatt proposed increasing the fee to $50, the maximum amount allowed by law.

The total amount owed to the borough by the property owners is $23,500, he said.

"That's a nice chunk of change," said council member Helen Halleman.

Lipson said the borough is moving ahead and taking legal action against the worst offenders at this time.

Council also unanimously approved an amendment to the police pension plan that eliminates the killed-in-service provision. Gifford noted that the state is picking up the funding for that provision.

In further business, council unanimously approved: a revision to the personnel policy and employee manual; the sale of public vehicles and equipment at public auction; the submission of a joint grant application to the Lehigh County Regional Initiative Program; the revision of parking restrictions on North Lynn Street and the installation of a handicapped parking sign on South Hoffert Street; and a curb cut crossover at 1510 Graham St.

Ultimately, council approved the financial department's recommendation of the bank fee plus $5.

Council also approved a 3.3 percent credit card processing fee for residents who wish to use a credit card to make payments to the borough.

In other business, borough solicitor Donald Lipson reported his findings on past due accounts, telling council that 24 property owners in the

Impersonation

On Sept. 18, police arrested Steven Nim, 35, of 1081 Chanticleer St., Cherry Hill, N.J., on a warrant for perpetrating fraud on at least two victims at the Sands Casino Resort Bethlehem.

According to police, one victim claimed that on Sept. 8 she answered a Craigslist advertisement for the recruitment of certified message therapists, allegedly for casino high-rollers. The woman met Nim at Sands the following night, where he allegedly introduced himself as a casino employee and gaming board member. A second female respondent was also there for at least part of the interview.

Nim then allegedly withdrew with the victim to the Comfort Suites, 120 W. Third St., where he said he needed to verify her massage skills.

Sands security officers worked with the state police gaming unit to find Nim, who is charged with impersonating a public official.

Police said the women should have been wary, as Nim neither displayed nor offered any official employee identification. They are searching for other possible victims, and ask anyone with information to notify them at 610-997-7674.

Officer asks council for full-time reinstatement

By JOSH POPICHAK
jpopichak@tntonline.com

A part-time officer with the Hellertown Police Department wants to be a full-time member of law enforcement again, and on Sept. 20, Officer Timothy Piotrowski wasn't shy about asking Borough Council members for his old job back.

Piotrowski, of Macungie, was at one time a full-time police officer in Hellertown.

Since returning to work part-time he has reconsidered his career goals and hopes to become a full-time officer again, Piotrowski told councilors during a pre-scheduled appearance at the meeting.

HELLERTOWN

"I give it 110 percent when I'm here," Piotrowski said. "I enjoy the work. That's one of the reasons I came back."

He has been part-time with the Hellertown department for the past three years, and he continues to work full-time outside the borough, he added.

Piotrowski said he disagrees with a recent decision by the borough's Civil Service Commission, which recommended that he not be reinstated to full-time status.

"I think there were some errors made in that decision," he said, before referencing the results of a physical performance test he was required to take in order to be considered for the promotion.

According to Piotrowski, he ran a 300-meter course in 71 seconds, which is less than the 77 second maximum time for officer candidates in his age bracket.

He was willing to wait until January 2011 — when the department had been slated to add another full-time officer to its ranks — to be reinstated to full-time, he added.

Council President Philip Weber, however, said the department's goal of hiring another full-time officer in January is not one council can guarantee will be met.

Council is presently beginning work on next year's budget, which

HANOVER TWP.

Hanover Township Manager Jay Finnigan attended a Bethlehem Area Public Library Board meeting Sept. 13, where he heard concern expressed about next year's budget.

In his report to township supervisors Sept. 14, Finnigan said that Lower Saucon Township has served notice of its intention to withdraw from the library, effective at the end of the year. Unless that changes, one gaping $168,552 hole exists in the library's funding plan.

Worse than that problem, Finnigan learned, is that Bethlehem itself has been shortchanging the library. Last year, the city failed to make approximately $400,000 in budgeted payments. This is in addition to state funding cuts of 9 and 21 percent to the library over the past two years, respectively.

During an Aug. 11 Bethlehem Finance Committee meeting, an independent audit revealed that Bethlehem missed its annual $2 million pension payment in 2009, but no mention was made of a missed payment to the library. City Council President Bob Donchez did express surprise that the library had taken out a line of credit during 2009, and speculated that it must have been the result of state funding cuts. Nobody from the administration informed Donchez that the city had failed to pay approximately $400,000 of the money budgeted by City Council at the time.

Bethlehem did catch up on its library payments in February of this year, but still kept $78,000 for a pension fund payment, Finnigan explained.

"There are two wild cards: Lower Saucon and the city," Finnigan told supervisors. "The city is seriously re-evaluating its relationship with the library, which will have an effect on neighboring municipalities."

Hanover Township contributed $163,049 to the Bethlehem Area Public Library this year, and expects to pay $167,831 in 2011. Its contract for library services goes back to 1965.

A telephone call to the library's executive director, Janet Fricker, was not returned.

In other business, supervisors listened as Piramal Critical Care, which has a plant located on Sheldon Circle, pitched a proposal to increase its parking lot size from 54 to 84 spaces. Hanover's zoning ordinance prohibits blacktop, i.e. "impervious surfaces," on more than 70 percent of a property without some kind of stormwater management plan in place.

Piramal's solution, proposed at the meeting, involves the use of porous pavements.

A Piramal engineer, introduced by attorney Chris Perruci, argued that porous pavements soak up water like a sponge, and should therefore be considered pervious surfaces. But supervisors seemed impervious to this argument.

"How do you determine if the surface is still impermeable after a period of time?" asked a dubious Stephen R. Salvesen. "Who does the vacuuming? We've got sinkholes here. We're at the back end of a big drainage system. It all goes down to Monocacy Creek."

Township engineer Jim Birdsall expressed reservations, too. He noted that porous surfaces need periodic vacuuming.

"All these best management practices are going to be very difficult to enforce as the years go by... Who enforces that? I don't know. Do I go out with my shop vac?"

Piramal will ask the Zoning Hearing Board for relief.

Finally, board chair John N. Diacogiannis said he was pleased with the large turnout of Boy and Girl scouts for a flag retirement ceremony Sept. 11. He thanked all who participated in the event.

will ultimately determine whether the police department receives the funding necessary to hire another full-time patrolman, he explained.
Borough Police Chief Robert Shupp, who has touted the importance of employing full-time officers on several occasions, was absent from the meeting, and therefore unavailable to comment on Piotrowski's statements to council at the time.
However, Piotrowski asserted that at least one part-time officer was reinstated to his former full-time position in the Hellertown Police Department in the past.

"I'm not trying to be controversial," Piotrowski emphasized.
Weber told Piotrowski that "council's not going to take a vote on this tonight," and informed him that "as far as council's concerned there's not an open (full-time) position (with the police department) at this time."
In other business, Borough Public Works Director Tom Henshaw announced that curbside yard waste pick-up will take place in Hellertown during the week of Oct. 4. Instructions for placing yard waste at the curb will be made public via media outlets prior to that time, Borough Manager Charlie Luthar added.

Fountain Hill observes first Community Day

Residents of Fountain Hill braved the heat and humidity June 26 for the town's first Community Day. Sponsored by St. Luke's Hospital, the event was free to the public and included a BBQ rib cook-off, a watermelon-eating contest and a petting zoo. As the sun went down later in the day, crowds danced to the music of The No Daddys and visited food vendors along Stanley Avenue. Mayor Ned Fink addressed the crowd at opening ceremonies. "We hope to make this an annual thing," Fink said.

On the hot and muggy June day, children had fun using a fire department hose to battle a cardboard "blaze."

Pates, 'Canes let one slip

Zephs come back to get win

By STEVE ANDRES
Special to the Press

The Liberty High School football team had the right formula in the first half, but in the end their recipe for success got spoiled by the Zephyrs. The Hurricanes lost 24-21, ending their winning streak over the Zephyrs. It was a game which saw the Hurricanes bolt out to a 14-3 lead, but too many mistakes and some big plays by the Zephyrs ultimately led to their second loss of the season.

In that first half, the 'Canes were gashing the Zephyrs defense with their potent running game led by quarterback James McCarthy who was able to find some seams all night, finishing the game with 118 yards on 13 carries, including two touchdowns. In that first scoring drive, he busted one for 21 yards, followed by the elusive Michael Harris who gained 37 yards to help open the scoring for Liberty. McCarthy finished that drive with a one-yard plunge.

With such success on the ground — McCarthy only attempted six passes all night — the 'Canes seemed to have the right formula to knock Whitehall from the ranks of the unbeaten. However, the sledding got rougher in the second half as the Whitehall defense bottled up the middle. Still, they had opportunities to get some points in the second half, but some

Hornets steal one on the road

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

The tone coming from Jason Roeder's postgame speech wasn't pleasant following Freedom's 20-14 loss to Emmaus last Friday night.

In a game where the Green Hornets pounded their way to the lead, courtesy of a 12-play, 91-yard drive that was capped off by a three-yard Joseph Williams TD with 1:56 to play, the manner of the defeat was the most troublesome for Roeder.

"We got to be tougher and more consistent in the fourth quarter," said Roeder. "We win as a team and we lose as a team. I'm not going to nitpick anyone. We just need to do a better job. That's the bottom line."

tom line."

Freedom (2-2, 1-2) had a chance to come back and pull off the late game heroics as quarterback Lukas Giovarelli marched the Pates down to the Emmaus 23-yard line. But with a 3rd and 10 situation, Giovarelli was picked off by defensive back Andrew Brown with seven seconds left to declare the final outcome.

After Eddie Elliot and Giovarelli both scored from the ground on Freedom's first two possessions, the Pates offense stalled the rest of the contest.

Elliot rushed for 89 yards and scored from six yards out in the first quarter to put his team ahead 7-0. Giovarelli muscled his way in from two-yards out with 11:56 left in the second quarter to give Freedom a 14-7 advantage, but that would be all the scoring the Pates would have the rest of the way.

Brian Velasco scored a two yard TD to even Elliot's score in the first quarter for Emmaus, but he leveled the contest again midway through the second quarter, picking off Giovarelli for a 39-yard interception return to make it 14-14.

Then came a grid locked third quarter that eventually led to Emmaus' storming drive in the fourth to prove who was the tougher team.

With Freedom unable to make a stop on Emmaus' final drive, Roeder wasn't sure if it was a mixture of problems that led to his team's downfall. "I don't know if our guys were gassed on that last drive, but they couldn't get off the field," he said. "We have a bunch of guys going two ways, we have some guys hurt, but when you lose in the fourth quarter, that always comes to mind."

One thing that Roeder and his team should have felt following Friday's loss was the nauseating feelings in their stomach after an unexpected loss.

"We got to be sick after this," said Roeder. "If our kids are sick about this and this motivates them to work even harder, it'll be a good thing. If not, we're in for a long year."

Up next on the agenda for Freedom is Dieruff (0-4, 0-3).

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Sometimes youth can be bliss in team sports and in the case of Liberty's field hockey team, its blinded youth may have led them to not fully embracing the accomplishment of knocking off Allen 2-1 in a rain-shortened contest last week.

The Hurricanes (5-5, 4-3) have won two straight games to jump into the division lead, but beating Allen (6-2, 4-2) may have been the marquee victory this program has been searching for.

Sarah Lindemuth and Nikki Gregoris both scored in the first half for Liberty against the Canaries and saw their efforts hold up as the game was called for lightning last Wednesday with 22 minutes left in the second half.

Liberty head coach Mary Kathryn Omdahl may have had some luck on her team's side, but they also showed they have the ability to play with the best teams too.

"I think when you look at that game, we had the better play in the first half," said Omdahl. "Nobody could predict what happened with the rain and lightning that night, but we were

Pates try to get on track

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It may be just a bump in the road for Freedom's soccer team, but head coach Karl Peters hopes his team can break from their current two-game losing streak.

The Pates, after starting out 6-2, dropped their last two contests to Nazareth and Northampton, allowing each opponent to score two goals in the second halves of their respective games to lose by 2-0 and 2-1 affairs.

The Pates led Northampton 1-0 at halftime on Saturday off a Nick Trzeniowski goal, but allowed two Kids' goals in the final 40 minutes to complete a loss that had Freedom reeling with no substitutes at the game's finale.

With injuries piling up, consecutive losses to deal with and league games against Parkland and Whitehall this week, Peters knows his team needs to hold the fort down.

"I really hope things turn around for us this week," said Peters, whose team is 3-4 in LVC play. "We just need the kids to rededicate themselves in practice. They have to realize this is a team sport and that all of us

VOLLEYBALL FHS gets by Allen, Eagles

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcaldonald@tnonline.com

Freedom volleyball coach, Joe Yoo, told his Patriots to get as many wins as they can now, because the tough games are still to come.

"This week, we have Northampton, Central, and Parkland. It's going to be a big week," said Yoo.

Freedom scored a victory over Allen last Tuesday (25-11, 25-22, 25-10), and another over Nazareth last Thursday (25-23, 25-13, 25-18).

In their first game against the Blue Eagles, the Patriots had a difficult time maintaining a comfortable lead.

Freedom junior, Brianne Giangio, said, "We didn't really wake up until the end of the first game. We would have a couple point lead, and then we'd let them back in again. We almost dug ourselves a hole, but we knew we could come together and win it."

The Patriots scored six quick points to start off the second game, leading to an easy victory, but Nazareth's aggression in the third game gave Freedom more competition than they had expected.

"I think we assumed we had the game in the bag. We underestimated them, but once we got that first kill, that first dig, that first set, it all just started flowing," said Giangio.

Giangio had 8 kills, 17 assists, and 2 blocks. Rylie Haas had 14 digs, Emily Gardiner had 3, and Logan Close had 4. Lindsey Gambocurta added 9 kills and 3 digs. Kayleigh Hudak contributed 9 kills and 10 assists. Caralyn Reese and Arielle Nicholson had 4 kills and 5 kills, respectively.

Giangio and Hudak, still getting used to their new positions as setters this season, are training with drills.

"Kayleigh and I are working really hard," Giangio said. "I'm not used to playing in the middle either, but I think we're doing good."

Coach Yoo is also pleased with their progress.

"They're talented enough to do it, and they're doing a good job. The only thing missing is consistency, but like anything else, it takes time," Yoo said. "It's a thinking position."

TENNIS Pates doubles team has key win in suspended match

By KATIE MCDONALD

Freedom's number-two doubles team scored a crucial victory in its match against Emmaus, forcing a match at number-one doubles, which will be played this week, to break a 3-3 tie.

Tiffany Stanley and Federica Maranzana defeated Christine Xue and Kelly Nguyen 6-2, 6-4 last Tuesday. Although Xue and Nguyen's strength was in their serving, Stanley and Maranzana were sure to hit cross court and to avoid double faults.

"Our coach always wants us to keep the ball in play," Stanley explained, "and we had no problem with calls today. We help each other out. If it's a deuce point, Federica will take it because she's better at strokes."

Maranzana is a freshman, while Stanley is a junior. Each brings her own kind of experience to the doubles team, resulting in a record of 4-4, as of Press deadlines. "Our coach told us that the next few teams would be tough, but if we played pretty well, we could beat them."

Also winning their matches against Emmaus were Marielle McIntyre, who defeated Megan Fitzmaurice, 6-4, 6-2 at number one singles, and Julie Boylan, who defeated Ally Long, 6-2, 6-3 at number two singles.

McIntyre and Boylan will team up at number one doubles to play Fitzmaurice and Emily Yan and decide the match this week.

playing well. Things were just clicking for us."

Liberty also knocked off Central Catholic 2-0 on Saturday with Paige Gross and Lindemuth checking in the scoring department. Lindemuth leads the team in goals with five on the year, but the Hurricanes have been a committee this year, with seven different players finding the back of the cage to spread the wealth.

"This isn't a team of superstars and we all know that," said Omdahl, "so we try to go out and work as hard as we can. I think that shows by how many girls have scored this year. They're all out there working as a unit."

With Dieruff, Emmaus and Stroudsburg on the schedule this week, the 'Canes are hoping to grab two out of three wins during an important week where they can bump themselves into greater position for district qualification.

Freedom (4-1, 3-1) is still treading on .500 water as the Pates fell victim to their biggest loss of the season on Saturday, a 6-0 defeat at the hands of Northampton. With Parkland and Whitehall on the agenda this week, the Pates face a tough task heading into the first week of the second half of the season.

Bethlehem Catholic (0-8-1, 0-6-1) are still trying to find the magic touch towards their first win. The Hawks fell to Nazareth 6-1 over the weekend, with Jackie Desarro netting the only goal for Becahi. With Whitehall, Parkland and Emmaus next on the docket, finding that winning mojo will be difficult.

need to pull our weight."

With the lack of depth on this year's team being a concern for Peters, his worst case scenario came true this week when players had to sit out because of injuries, card accumulations and disciplinary reasons.

With a fresh week ahead of them, despite the potential of playing Parkland yesterday, weather permitting, he hopes that the Pates can get back to their winning ways before it's too late.

"It's not too late for us to turn things around," he said. "We're just in a little bit of a funk that we need to get out of."

Liberty (5-6, 5-3) have won their last two games by 2-1 scores, knocking off Allen and Central Catholic to get back on track after dropping two straight to Northampton and Parkland. With Dieruff scheduled on tap for yesterday, the 'Canes round out their week with Emmaus on Thursday.

Bethlehem Catholic (4-5, 2-4) were winners of three straight and undefeated in their last four heading into Saturday's contest against Nazareth, but the Blue Eagles put the hammer down with a 4-0 win, that included three second half goals.

Now the Hawks face a tough week with Whitehall and Parkland in league play, followed by a Saturday tilt with East Stroudsburg North.

Hawks win; 'Canes need to learn to finish games

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Bethlehem Catholic (2-2, 2-1) got back on track with a 48-6 victory over Dieruff last week. Justin Millan, Martin Laluz and Joseph Ruggerio all scored on the ground for the Hawks, while Robert Leeson added a blocked punt return to bolster the Hawks confidence for a week.

Quarterback Luke Petro also threw touchdowns passes to Austin Vasko and Kaleb Bodisch to help round out the rout. Now the Hawks travel to Emmaus Friday night for a key showdown.

Two weeks up and then two weeks down. Liberty's 24-21 loss to Whitehall last week culminated the Hurricanes (2-2, 1-2) second consecutive loss of the season and head coach Dave Brown knows it didn't have to end that way.

After taking a 14-10 lead into halftime, Whitehall scored 14 unanswered points in the third quarter to propel the undefeated hosts (4-0, 2-0) to a pivotal LVC victory.

But for Brown, it's the way the first half ended and how the second half started which blew the tires out of the Hurricanes road to victory.

Tyler Artim caught a one-yard touchdown with 10 seconds left in the first half to give the Zephs momentum heading into intermission and their egos were boosted when quarterback Chris Polony found Eric Fiore for a 60-yard pitch and catch on the first play of the second half for the go-ahead touchdown.

"We got to be able to finish games," said Brown. "We're a young football team and that's one of the things we've struggled with over the past two weeks. They [Whitehall] basically scored 14 points in a minute and it was tough to overcome that."

"It came down to about two to three plays in the game and Whitehall made them."

The rushing combo of Mikey Harris and Devon Jones found themselves bottled up for consecutive weeks, as both gained a combined 78 yards, including a first half two-yard TD run by Jones.

Quarterback Jimmy McCarthy was the highlight on offense, rushing for 124 yards on 12 carries and two touchdowns, but the effort wasn't enough to hold off the Zephyrs. McCarthy's night was a bit overshadowed by his 3-for-6 performance in the air for 36 yards and two interceptions. Liberty had three turnovers on the night in total, which didn't help their cause.

But what bothered Brown even more is the fact that Liberty could of walked away from Whitehall with a win.

"We played well enough to win the game," he said. "It's a tough game to lose. With a young football team, keeping their confidence up is key. We need a better week of practice coming up because we face another tough task this week."

Liberty hosts a desperate Parkland (1-3, 1-2) team this Friday night, as a young Trojan squad is coming off a 21-7 loss to Easton.

Brown isn't saying this is a must-win scenario, but rather understands that every week is monumental in the LVC.

"It's high school football, every week is a big game," said Brown. "We just need to play better in all facets. It really comes down to focusing on the fundamentals and doing better in all phases."

turnovers, most notably an interception in the end zone, enabled the Zephs to come away with the victory.

For Liberty head coach Dave Brown, the Hurricanes fortunes hinged on a few select plays.

"I think it comes down to two or three plays in every close game," said Brown whose team is now 2-2 on the season. "You look at some of the mistakes we made; they had a long run; we had an issue with our kickoff team, giving them the short field, then we got stopped on the one-foot line. That's two plays right there."

It was Whitehall's passing game that accounted for that long "run" as tailback Eric Fiore, caught the ball in the flat on the Zephyr's 40-yard line and ran 55 yards for a touchdown. That play, which was the first play from scrimmage for the Zephyrs in the second half, gave them a 17-14 lead, an advantage they would never relinquish.

The Hurricanes also failed to punch it in from the 2-yard line in the fourth quarter as Stephon Font-Toomer was stopped on the doorstep. The decision to go for the score on fourth down was predicated on the fact that they needed a touchdown since they were trailing by 10 at that point, according to Brown.

"We needed a touchdown and a field goal, anyway," said Brown. "We're one yard away. We may not get that close next time."

With Whitehall pinned deep on the ensuing drive, the Hurricanes defense rose to the occasion, holding the Zephyrs to a mere two yards in that series. Once the offense got the ball, they marched down the field, covering 46 yards in six plays. The highlight of that scoring drive was the fourth down 19-yard scoring romp by McCarthy, closing the gap to 24-21.

The 'Canes seemed braced for a comeback, but Whitehall converted some critical third downs down the stretch to come away with the win.

The 'Canes had their running game in high gear for most of the game, out gaining the Zephs 234-129 on the ground. In addition to McCarthy's 100-plus night, Font-Toomer added 48, while Harris and Devon Jones had 35 and 33, respectively. While they won that battle, the game boiled down to desire in Brown's eyes.

"It all comes down to who wants it more," said Brown.

Johnny Appleseed

By KAREN M. SAMUELS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

At this time of year, we enjoy the seasonal harvest of apples along with fresh cider and delicious apple baked goods. Every American school student knows we can thank John Chapman, popularly known as "Johnny Appleseed," for our bounty of apples.

"Johnny Appleseed" was a vegetarian, a humanitarian and a deeply religious man. He began his legendary career as a nurseryman in Pennsylvania. In the 1790s, he could be found extracting apple seeds from pomace at cider mills along the Susquehanna River in Wilkes-Barre. The cider mill owners welcomed Chapman's plan to plant apple trees. The more apples that were available, the more cider they could produce.

For each trip, Chapman would gather more than a million seeds at the cider mills to fill his leather pouch. He would then carry the pouch deep into the wilderness, on his back, by horseback or canoe, until he found a potential fertile plot of land. He was astute at selecting the best property on which to grow his apple trees, as well as at predicting the routes of settlers who would become his customers.

The first documented property deeds attributed to Chapman were dated around 1800. He claimed a property on the shore of Broken Straw Creek, south of Warren, in Warren County. He then moved on to Franklin in Venango County, to an area known as French Creek. As Chapman planted his apple seeds further west into Ohio and Indiana, he continued to use the seeds from cider mills in Pennsylvania.

Much has been speculated about Chapman's early life. He was born Sept. 26, 1774, in Leominster, Mass., to Elizabeth Simonds and Nathaniel Chapman. He had an older sister named Elizabeth. Before Chapman turned 2, his father was away fighting for the Continental Army when his mother died. Chapman and his sister were cared for by relatives until their father could return.

Nathaniel Chapman fought at the Battle of Bunker Hill and in battles in New York state. He attained the rank of captain and served as an "artificer" or engineer. Nathaniel (age 34) returned to Leominster in 1780 and married Lucy Cooley (age 18). They had 10 children together.

John Chapman's half-sister, Persis, described John as a dreamer who loved to spend time in the woods. She said he was an avid reader who knew the Bible cover to cover.

Persis spoke of how her brother, as a child, would release any animal he found caught in traps. He would care for the injured wildlife he found. As a young boy, he worked for a neighbor, Mr. Crawford, who owned a large orchard. This early training led to his life's work.

In the 1800s, almost every farm had an apple tree if not an orchard. The apple tree was an easy tree to grow and produced apples within six years. Settlers used the fruit to feed their livestock and to make cider. The cider was usually allowed to ferment to create an alcoholic drink, consumed by young and old alike.

In 1805, Chapman assisted his father, stepmother and their children in establishing a home in Marietta, Ohio. After the family built a large log cabin, John Chapman left to lead his nomadic, unusual life. Always traveling, he had no need of a home and never married. In autumn he would return to Pennsylvania for apple seeds. In the spring, he would plant new nurseries, locating them further west. Chapman would build a fence of brush around the orchard to fend off hungry deer. As new settlers arrived to establish farms, Chapman had available to sell them 2-to-3-year-old apple trees, for about 5 cents each.

Chapman became a local legend while he was alive. He was known as "Johnny Appleseed" by 1806. First-hand accounts by the settlers who met him described him as being of medium height, with a thin, muscular body. He wore any kind of used clothing he could find.

Chapman had long dark hair and a beard and preferred to walk barefoot. Despite his eccentric appearance, he was welcomed in both settlers' and Native Americans' homes. Chapman was a vegetarian who would never harm a living creature. He was generous in offering apple trees on credit and sharing medicinal plants. Chapman was known as a great storyteller, entertaining the children in the homes he visited.

By the 1840s, Chapman owned at least 22 properties totaling about 1,200 acres in Ohio. He died in Fort Wayne, Ind., in March 1845, at age 70. He was visiting his friend, William Worth. He died during the night, possibly of pneumonia. In November 1871, a story about "Johnny Appleseed" in Harper's Magazine made him a national hero. He has been a favorite folk hero of children ever since.

This ink drawing, depicting Johnny Appleseed with his Bible tucked under his shirt, appeared in Life Magazine in 1944.

Residents and guests gather on the deck of the Blough Healthcare Center in Bethlehem as they ready their four-legged friends for participation in the Pet Parade.

Dog Day on a dog day

By LINDA ANTHONY
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Under sunny skies June 19, Blough Healthcare Center in Bethlehem held a pet parade for residents, employees, family and friends. Four-legged friends of all colors and sizes roamed the grounds in front of the center as residents and guests enjoyed the many benefits of pet therapy.

According to a flyer distributed by the facility, studies have shown the positive effects animal therapy has on older adults. Such effects include lowering blood pressure, lowering cholesterol, relaxing respiratory patterns, increasing physical motivation, decreasing pain, encouraging speech, making patients more receptive to medical care and nourishment, and even increasing a patient's will to live.

In addition to the four-legged variety of dog, there was also the edible variety that went in a bun with mustard and ketchup. Ice cream was also offered to help attendees cool off on the otherwise very warm day. The entertainment and the food were free.

Prizes were awarded for Best Dressed Dog, Best Trick Performed — and the most anticipated — Crowd Favorite. Each winner was awarded $25. Add to that the music of a professional DJ and crafts for the kids and you had a successful event on a beautiful day.

Alvin, a golden retriever belonging to Stephen Hujsa of Coopersburg, responds to a command to pick up a toolbox, as residents and guests enjoy the demonstration.

Mary Kate Sheplock of Bethlehem colors a dolphin at the Blough Healthcare Center during the Pet Parade. Sheplock's mother works at the facility.

Bethlehem resident Michael Hujsa cuddles with his Wheaten Terrier as he enjoys the Pet Parade.

Resident Ginnie Livirrie rests in the arms of her son, Roy Smith, under the shade of a tent during the Blough Healthcare Center's Pet Parade.

Note: The following are statements from candidates in the 15th U.S. congressional district race.

Callahan's budget claims contradicted

Bethlehem Mayor John Callahan has been contradicted by his city's auditor, by his predecessor and political mentor, and by the local press, but candidate Callahan still makes false claims about his fiscal management of Bethlehem. His website claims that he "balanced the budget four years in row without raising taxes." He produced six budgets as mayor. In his first two budgets, in 2005 and 2006, Callahan raised property taxes, including the single largest tax increase in 20 years. Recently, city auditors discovered that Callahan's budget resulted in a $2.7 million in deficit in 2008; a figure which grew to a total of $8.5 million by the end of 2009. Callahan has left millions of dollars in unpaid bills and has moved money from various city funds illegally, without prior council approval, to cover payments. Callahan has increased spending by 54 percent in six years.

Callahan promises to do the same thing in Washington that he did in Bethlehem. Callahan has endorsed the Washington agenda that has increased baseline federal spending by $4.4 trillion in 31 months; produced an annual deficit of nearly $1.4 trillion this year; doubles the deficit in five years and triples it in 10 years; and has given American taxpayers an $862 billion failed stimulus bill and an unsustainable $2.6 trillion health care program. "John Callahan needs to come clean about his record in Bethlehem and his plan to increase spending and raise your taxes," said Dent. "If John Callahan can't be truthful about his own record, he can't be trusted on his plans for Washington."

Callahan offers five-point job plan

Congressional challenger and Bethlehem Mayor John Callahan laid out his Five-Point Plan to spur job creation and repair the economic damage caused by years of what he argues are failed policies supported by Congressman Charlie Dent. The plan affirms his stance that working and middle class families in the Lehigh Valley will be his top priority if elected to Congress.

The five points of the plan are to eliminate tax loopholes for corporations that outsource American jobs overseas or use off-shore accounts to avoid paying their fair share; to provide tax credits to small businesses that hire new employees; to make college more affordable and job training more available; to cut wasteful spending and reduce the national debt, in order to reassure financial markets; and to cut the red tape and bureaucracy that prevent small businesses from thriving.

Callahan's plan and priorities stand in marked contrast to Dent's record, which includes voting to add $3 trillion to the national debt, voting to protect tax loopholes for corporations that outsource American jobs overseas and voting to bail out the big Wall Street banks with $850 billion of taxpayer money. The plan also builds on Callahan's successes as mayor of Bethlehem.

Callahan's plan creates jobs — in China

The failure of the Obama-Pelosi stimulus to boost the economy and create American jobs is evident. Since the stimulus became law, 3.6 million American jobs have been lost and 15 million Americans are looking for work. Unemployment, seven percent at the time of the stimulus, has remained above nine percent for 16 consecutive months. Democratic Congressional candidate John Callahan still sings the stimulus' praises.

In a Sept. 9, 2010 article, the Washington Times reported that $2.3 billion of manufacturing tax credits from the economic stimulus bill went to foreign firms that employed workers, primarily in countries like China, South Korea and Spain, rather than in the United States. The article reported that 11 U.S. wind farms used stimulus grants to purchase 695 out of 982 wind turbines from overseas suppliers. (1)

This followed a February 2010 ABC News report, done in conjunction with American University's Investigative Reporting Workshop, which noted that these projects received stimulus money "regardless of where the equipment is made." (2)

Congressman Charlie Dent said that Callahan supports sending tax dollars overseas to create foreign jobs, in countries such as China, one of our nation's greatest economic competitors. This kills jobs in America and results in higher taxes, more government mandates and unsustainable spending increases.

- 1 Patrice Hill, "Green' jobs no longer golden in stimulus," Washington Times, Sept. 9, 2010
- 2 "Green stimulus jobs going to China?," ABC News, Feb. 2, 2009

Callahan's office says Dent's stance clear

In a Sept. 1 press release, the John Callahan campaign said Congressman Charlie Dent has made his priorities clear: Dent is against tax cuts to help small businesses hire new employees, but for tax handouts to corporations that outsource jobs or use off-shore tax shelters to avoid U.S. taxes. Congressman Dent has accepted more than $1.7 million in corporate special interest

Bethlehem Twp. senior enjoys educational summer

By CAROL SMITH
csmith@tnonline.com

While Rebecca Dewey, a Blair Academy senior, does not view her achievements as anything special, Dewey's recent theatre accomplishments and summer trip to France are helping her shape her future.

The 17-year-old Dewey is a Freddy Award recipient and recently returned from a trip to France as part of the Normandy Allies International Experience.

When not boarding at the New-Jersey-based Academy, Dewey, lives with her mother, Lisa, in Bethlehem Township.

As Dewey prepares to return to Blair Aug. 31 as a senior and a resident assistant in the dormitories, she is looking forward to directing a one-act play, which will include everything from casting to opening night. She plans to use her love of history to study international relations and to learn a third language. Fluent in Spanish, Dewey would like to learn Chinese or Arabic. She would eventually like to have a foreign-service career either in government or with a corporation.

Dewey received this year's Freddy Award for directing the Blair Players "Once Upon a Mattress." Her prize was a paid internship with the Express-Times newspaper, where this summer she learned the basics of journalism by writing local interest stories and blogging. Hand-in-hand with this award was the Civic Theatre Emerging Young Director Award, which included an internship as assistant director on Mainstage with the Civic Theatre in Allentown. Because the theatre's fall production schedule conflicted with her school commitments, Dewey said she couldn't accept this internship.

As a kindergartner acting in Swain School productions, Dewey has had an interest in theater. For years she took acting classes with Pennsylvania Youth Theatre. From acting, she moved to backstage responsibilities such as set building and sound and lighting work. At Blair, under theatre director Craig Evans, Dewey took on the tasks of student director making sure the house opened on time, actors were in their places and cues were not missed. Dewey said, "It was my

Five Moravian Academy juniors are semifinalists in the 2011 National Merit Scholarship Competition. Michael Boreen, Alexander Crain, Tara Jain, Gordon McCambridge and Vivian Wang are among the nationwide pool of semifinalists, which represents less than one percent of U.S. high school seniors.

To become a finalist, a student must have an outstanding academic record throughout high school, be endorsed and recommended by the high school principal or director, and earn SAT scores that confirm the student's earlier performance on the qualifying test. A student's essay and information about the student's participation and leadership in school and community activities, along with a detailed scholarship application, must be submitted by the student and a high school official.

The Bridge
 The longest suspension bridge in the world was constructed in Japan to cross the treacherous Akashi Strait after two ferries sank in a storm there killing 168 children.
 The center span of the Akashi-Kaikyo Bridge, also known as Pearl Bridge, is 6,532 feet long. Its total length is 12,831 feet. Before it was built, ferries carried passengers across this dangerous waterway which often experiences severe storms as was the case in 1955 when the two ferries sank killing 168 children. The ensuing shock and public outrage convinced the Japanese government to build a suspension bridge to cross the strait. It took ten years to construct the bridge which opened with six lanes of traffic in 1998. The two main supporting towers rise 978 feet above sea level.
 There is a bridge greater than Pearl Bridge that spans an even greater chasm. The Bible declares in Isaiah 59:2 that sin creates a great separation between man and God: "Your iniquities have separated between you and your God." This great chasm exists between God and all mankind as Romans 3:23 states, "For all have sinned." Some vainly hope that their good works will bridge the great gap between themselves and a holy God, but all such human efforts are inadequate—they "come short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23). The only Bridge to God is Jesus. God "hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ" (2 Corinthians 5:18). Jesus spanned the great gulf between man and God by dying on the cross "that he might bring us to God" (1 Peter 3:18). Jesus declared Himself to be the only Bridge to God in John 14:6, "I am the way...no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." See www.naog.ws/theway.htm Will you repent of your sins and trust in Jesus as your Bridge to God now?

 money and he's repeatedly voted for them instead of small businesses. "Congressman Dent voted against tax cuts for small businesses and now he's defending off-shore tax shelters for his corporate contributors," Callahan said. "Congressman Dent has taken over $1.7 million from corporate special interests and now he's supporting tax giveaways to them."

Dent's office rebuts Callahan job plan

John Callahan is nine months late and tens of thousands of lost jobs short when it comes to the release of his job plan. He might want to read the opinion piece that Rep. Dent wrote in December of last year about real steps that can be taken to spur job creation.

Following the first debate in the 15th Congressional district race, Democrat John Callahan's "five-point plan" has been revealed to be a big tax increase on American manufacturers who export products, to pay for a plan that will be completely ineffective in creating jobs.

Aside from becoming confused on the five points while explaining his "real simple plan" Sept. 13, Callahan claimed that his plan would:

1. "Eliminate tax loopholes for corporations that outsource our jobs overseas or use off-shore accounts to avoid paying their fair share." In reality, Callahan supports a tax that will be placed on ALL American-based businesses that do business overseas. The National Association of Manufacturers says this tax "will jeopardize the jobs of American manufacturing employees and stifle our fragile economy." 1
2. "Provide tax credits for small businesses that hire new employees" — but the $1,000 tax credit he suggests is an idea dismissed by small business organizations as being completely useless in creating jobs.
3. "Make college more affordable and job training more available." This is something everyone supports, but thanks to Callahan's tax increases, more people will be going back to school because they're out of work.
4. "Cut wasteful spending and reduce the national debt in order to reassure financial markets." However, Callahan has fully endorsed the Washington agenda that produced an annual deficit of nearly $1.4 trillion this year, doubles the deficit in five years and triples it in 10 years; an $862 billion stimulus bill; and a $2.6 trillion health care program.
5. "Cut the red tape and bureaucracy that holds small businesses back" — but Callahan has endorsed the "1099 provision" of the health care law that the National Federation of Independent Businesses (NFIB) calls "another crippling paperwork mandate that unfairly targets small businesses," costing employers an average of $74 per hour for tax paperwork.

Callahan announces new TV campaign

On Sept. 2 Bethlehem Mayor and Congressional challenger John Callahan released his first television ad in the race for Pennsylvania's 15th Congressional District. The ad, "Main Street vs. Wall Street," highlights Mayor Callahan's record of working to bring more than 5,000 jobs to the Lehigh Valley while reducing more than $60 million in government debt, as opposed to Congressman Dent's votes for the $850 billion Wall Street bailout and to allow taxpayer-funded bonuses for Wall Street CEOs. Callahan said, "In this election, voters have a choice between Congressman Dent's record of $3 trillion in new debt, Tea Party candidate Jake Towne's conservative Palin-esque positions, or my record of reducing $60 million in government debt."

Dent's office comments on Callahan ads

Dent's office states that all the TV commercials in the world won't help John Callahan convince people into thinking he's fiscally responsible. Bethlehem finished the last two years a total of $8.5 million in the red, as the media and even Callahan's political mentor Don Cunningham noted. Instead of cutting spending, Callahan acted like a typical politician and raised property taxes four times. He said he would have voted for some of President Obama's and House Speaker Nancy Pelosi's most expensive policies, like the $862 billion Stimulus Bill, the $154 billion "Son of Stimulus" Bill and even the $2.6 trillion health care takeover. That's not fiscal commonsense — that's typical tax and spend nonsense, Dent said.

Callahan endorsed by two organizations

Mayor John Callahan pledged to work to stop Congressman Charlie Dent's Washington leaders from gambling Social Security on Wall Street or raising the retirement age to 70. Callahan says he is publicly signing a pledge to protect Social Security. If President Bush had privatized Social Security in 2005, seniors would have seen their benefits decrease by about 50 percent, yet Congressman Dent still supports this failed agenda. Callahan says he is honored to earn the endorsements of the National Committee to Protect Social Security and Medicare and the Pennsylvania Alliance for Retired Americans. "In Congress, I will work to protect seniors from failed Washington policies," stated Callahan. "The National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare is endorsing John Callahan because he will work to protect these vital programs for our seniors," said Max Richtman, Executive Vice President of the organization. "John Callahan is a friend of retired Americans and he'll work to protect the benefits we've earned from Washington politicians like Congressman Dent," said Charlie Kelly, Vice President board member of the Pennsylvania Alliance for Retired Americans.

"Everyone has to come together to have a great show," Dewey said of the cast members support of each other.

This July, Dewey's 12-day trip to France as a participant in the Normandy Allies International Experience was a memorable experience for the history buff. To see firsthand the beaches and the World War II battlefields and to meet the veterans who lived through this war reinforced for Dewey the importance of learning everything she can about history.

"History repeats itself," Dewey said. Lessons learned from the past will help us shape and create our future, she added. Part of her trip into the past enabled her to stay with a local family where she learned about current French events and culture. Dewey's host family included the mayor of the town who was also a member of Parliament.

Dewey's grandfather, a World War II pilot, sparked her interest in the war. She said her grandfather had difficulty sharing his experience because it was such an emotional time.

Dewey said she views her decision to go away to Blair, which is a boarding school, as her best life choice. It is the school's great community support, Dewey said that has "helped me build my talent and achieve success."

Arc of the covenant Sculpture honors what Steel built

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
 Focus editor

If Elena Colombo has anything to do with it, the monumental sculpture she designed for ArtsQuest will be made of American steel.

"Absolutely," Colombo said when asked by a reporter if the sculpture would use United States manufactured steel. "I actually don't buy Chinese steel for any of my pieces," she said.

Colombo's winning design, "The Bridge," to be placed at the SteelStacks Town Square on the site of the former Bethlehem Steel Corp. south side Bethlehem plant was unveiled at a Sept. 14 luncheon in the Crayola Gallery, Banana Factory, Bethlehem.

"Over a cup of coffee on a sunny morning, I thought of this idea. It just flashed in my heart. I drew a line on the piece of paper. I immediately started drawing," said Colombo, a Brooklyn, N.Y., resident and Scranton native.

As Colombo envisions it, a line of flames will run along the length of an arc, symbolizing the flames that burned continually at the former Bethlehem plant's blast furnaces.

The sculpture, positioned to point northward toward the blast furnaces, is to be dedicated in May when the ArtsQuest Center opens.

It's expected that four Bethlehem Steel I-Beams will support the approximate 30-foot-high, 35-ton sculpture. The cantilevered arc will extend approximately 70 feet and taper to a width of six-eight inches.

A burner to generate the flames is expected to be fueled by approximately 550,000 BTUs of natural gas.

"This is not an eternal flame. It will probably be lit from dark until 11 p.m.," said Jeff Parks, ArtsQuest president, at the press conference.

The flames will be about 10 feet above the sculpture's approximate 24-square-foot, 10-inch-thick base.

Dozens of plates affixed horizontally to the support beams will list significant bridges, buildings and projects where Bethlehem Steel was used, such as the Golden Gate Bridge, Rockefeller Center and the Empire State Building.

Estimate for the sculpture project is $400,000, funded by a $200,000 National Endowment for the Arts grant for which a $200,000 match must be obtained or raised.

Colombo is owner-operator of Colombo Construction Corp., Brooklyn, a design-build firm specializing in custom, site-specific work including environmental sculptures, memorials, markers and pieces that utilize fire, water and wind.

She is a 1984 graduate of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., where she received a bachelor's degree in fine arts and art history, with a concentration in architectural design, sculpture and etching. She studied at the Cesare Barbieri Center, Rome, and the Museum School, Boston, Mass.

Colombo's fire features grace the landscapes of Napa Valley vineyards and wineries; Pebble Beach Golf Resort; Hotel Roosevelt, Hollywood; and Ritz Carlton, W. Westin and St. Regis properties around the world.

From Ghirardelli Square, San Francisco, to the Maldiv Islands, Indian Ocean, and from Hawaii to southern France, her work draws people to congregate.

In a statement released at the press conference, Colombo explained, "The hearth has been the principal gathering place of communities since the beginning of time. My goal as an artist is to create works to which people are naturally drawn; a communal center for interaction, light and warmth, both literally and figuratively.

"A fire feature could not be more perfectly suited to a landscape than it will be at this former Bethlehem Steel plant. The symbolism and metaphorical significance are so great: rebirth, the blast furnaces, the heart of a community, a way of life, eternal light, beacons of hope and the list goes on."

Colombo said her father, Wellington, 90, a retired engineer; and mother, Jean, 75, are extremely proud of her work.

Three weeks of drawing, historic research, renderings and six more weeks of work by Colombo, assisted by a five-person staff, went into the design for the sculpture, which will be Colombo's largest.

Bethlehem gardens should be no secret

By TINA CANTELM
 BRADFORD
 Special to The Press

Whether one fancies a speakeasy, the symphony, fine art, a health walk or garden tour, autumn benefits promise to please with an array of Good Cause options across the Lehigh Valley.

History buffs and art and garden lovers will adore the "Secret Garden Tour," sponsored by the Historic Bethlehem Partnership, 10 a.m.- 4 p.m. Oct. 2.

Delighting the eye and senses, among the seven historic grounds to view include gardens spanning European inspiration to those boasting giant dahlias, a sundial dating to 1840, a koi pond plus beautiful fountains, patios and walkways.

There's a bit of panache too, as art forms, from plein air painting to mimes, will be presented at each garden on the tour. Proceeds benefit the Nain-Schober House along Heckewelder Place, Bethlehem. The Nain House is believed the sole authentic surviving structure of Native American culture in the Delaware and Lehigh National Heritage Corridor.

Tickets include refreshments served at the Moravian Museum. Ticket information: 800-360-

TOUR, 610-882-0450, ext. 10. Tickets may be purchased at the Visitors' Center, 505 Main St., Bethlehem, or at each garden location on the day of the tour.

Speakeasy clubs are all the rage, and ArtsQuest is quick to step in on this hip trend with its Southside Speakeasy Fundraiser Sept. 30 at The Banana Factory, 25 W. Third St., Bethlehem, for a swinging night of food and fun.

Roaring 20's inspired foods and lively libations, silent movies, parlor games and yes, of course, dancing to live jazz, plus swing and big band acts. Proceeds benefit the young adults in ArtsQuest's B-Smart after-school enrichment program.

Local residents Susan Mushock and Eva Grayzel, both oral cancer survivors, have organized the second annual Oral Cancer Awareness Walk of Lehigh Valley Oct. 2.

The three-mile walk starts at 11 a.m., with registration at 9:30 a.m., at Bethlehem Township Municipal Park, 2900 Farmersville Road. Those who register before day of the event receive a free T-shirt.

Proceeds benefit the Oral Cancer Foundation to help raise awareness and conduct life-saving research. There will be free oral cancer screenings by local dentists and hygienists, coffee and refreshments and music by oral cancer survivor DJ Fred "Dan" Donatelli of 99.9 The Hawk radio station.

Says Susan Mushock,

an oral cancer survivor and an organizer of the event, "The Oral Cancer Foundation provided the most comprehensive and accurate information on the disease, from symptoms to treatment options. For this reason, I became a volunteer and will be walking on October 2nd to raise critical funds for this important organization."

Survivor and story teller Eva Grayzel says, "When I got a second chance at life and learned that my dentist probably missed my diagnosis because of a lack of knowledge on the subject of oral cancer, I started sharing my story and putting my voice behind the oral cancer awareness campaign. I speak about my journey through stage four oral cancer because it's my tribute to all those who came before me and my obligation to those who will follow."

When found early, there is an 80 to 90 percent survival rate. The majority of cases are found as late-stage, and consequently, one person dies of oral cancer every hour of every day in the United States.

Tagging the mighty monarch migration

BUD'S VIEW

By Bud Cole

Fall migration begins in July along the United States' East Coast and usually ends in late November in the Lehigh Valley.

The fall migration period lasts more than two weeks as long as the spring flights back to the breeding grounds. Birds migrating in large flocks often make plenty of noise, alerting us to their seasonal movement. The honking of Canada Geese crossing the sky in V-shaped formations is a familiar sight during spring and fall.

One of the most amazing migration stories is not bird migration. Late summer changes in length of daylight and changes in temperature trigger the beautiful and graceful monarch butterfly to begin swarming together to form huge migratory flocks.

An estimated 250 million or more monarchs flee the cold weather by migrating from the United States and southern Canada, east of the Rocky Mountains, to overwintering roosts in the mountainous fir forests west of Mexico City in central Mexico.

After wintering in Mexico, they return north to produce two to three new generations. Unlike birds, the individual monarchs will only take the round trip once. Their offsprings' grandchildren participate in the following year's migration. This final generation of the summer will follow the same paths and use the same instincts as their ancient monarch ancestors once used to migrate both north and south.

The Lehigh Valley is about 40 degrees north latitude. According to the Monarch Watch Website, peak time for monarch abundance in the Lehigh Valley is now. It began in early September and ends at the beginning of October.

Members of nature groups tag captured monarchs before the flocks head south. I attended a tagging program at Jacobsburg Environmental Education Center (JEEC), near Belfast, Northampton County.

Monarch tags have three letters and three numbers. Each year, the tags have their own series. Tagging allows a comparison of the area of capture and to the point of recovery. Data from recovered monarchs determines migration routes, influences of weather on migration, survival rates and other scientific matters.

Many questions remain about monarch migration. Tagging programs, like the one at JEEC and other nature centers, plus follow-up studies, may clear up the mysteries of migrating butterflies.

You can find additional information on monarch tagging at Monarch Watch, www.MonarchWatch.org. If you find a monarch with a tag, report it to Monarch Watch.

Good neighbors are a home's best asset

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik
newsgrl@comcast.net

When we were building a new home in Palmerton decades ago, we had our choice of two lots within the borough.

Although they were quite different in characteristics, both would suit our purposes.

I picked a building lot based on something that was important to me — friendly neighbors. I knocked on the doors of those who lived next to the lots, telling them I was considering building there.

Impressed with the friendliness and sincerity of the East Princeton Street neighbors, I picked that location for our home. I wasn't disappointed. Mary, the daughter of the couple next door, is still the sister I picked for myself.

When I was looking for a home in Florida, I immediately liked a sweet little cottage with a spectacular view. But before I decided, I had a question for the seller: How friendly are the neighbors?

She went on and on, telling me how everyone on the block looks after each other. When you need help, she said, the neighbors are there without being asked. "They're the best neighbors in the world," she assured me.

She backed up her claim by telling me stories about how the neighbors take care of each other.

When she came down with non-Hodgkin's Lymphoma, it was her neighbors, she said, who drove her for treatments each day, cooked her meals and helped get her through the ordeal.

Kay's rave reviews about the neighbors proved to be true. It's the kind of neighborhood that's a throw back to the days when neighbors care about neighbors and everyone looks after each other.

Those who like privacy and don't want anyone to know their business won't like the neighborhood.

I laugh when I tell the story about having a new love seat delivered. Before the delivery truck ever pulled away, I had a phone call from a friend who lives 10 minutes away. "I hear you're getting new furniture," she said.

Some people would hate a neighborhood like that. But it has always made me feel safer. As a woman who lived alone for years, I like the security of having people keep an eye on me and on my home.

Sometimes, when I'm struggling to put my kayak on top of my car or to carry in a big box, neighbors come running to help.

It's just a small thing, I know, but that neighborliness adds to my delight in where I live.

Two months ago people who live along our street were sad to learn a young mother with three children is dying of cancer. Her husband hasn't been able to find a job for more than a year and she was the only one supporting the family.

In addition to their other problems, the roof leaks and that's a real problem here during the rainy season.

When some hear about problems like that, they may say, "that's a shame," and get on with their own lives.

Need hearing aid?

First of two parts

Q: I think I need a hearing aid. Any recommendations?

About one in three Americans over 60 suffers from loss of hearing, which can range from the inability to hear certain voices to deafness. About one out of five who would benefit from a hearing aid uses one.

A hearing aid will not restore your normal hearing. With practice, however, a hearing aid will

HEALTHY GEEZER

By Fred Cicetti
fred@healthygeezers.com

increase your awareness of sounds and what made them.

If you think you have a hearing problem, get checked by your doctor. If your hearing is diminished, the doctor will probably refer you to an otolaryngologist or audiologist.

An otolaryngologist is a physician who specializes in treating the ear, nose and throat. An audiologist is a health professional who conducts hearing tests to define your loss. Many otolaryngologists have audiologist associates in their offices.

Presbycusis, one form of hearing loss, occurs with age. Presbycusis can be caused by changes in the inner ear, auditory nerve, middle ear or outer ear. Some of its causes are aging, loud noise, heredity, head injury, infection, illness, certain prescription drugs and circulation problems such as high blood pressure. It seems to be inherited.

Tinnitus, also common in older people, is the ringing, hissing, or roaring sound in the ears frequently caused by exposure to loud noise or certain medicines. Tinnitus is a symptom that can come with any type of hearing loss.

Hearing loss can be caused by "ototoxic" medicines that damage the inner ear. Some antibiotics are ototoxic. Aspirin can cause temporary problems. If you're having a hearing problem, ask your doctor about medications you're taking.

Hearing aids have a microphone, amplifier and speaker. Sound is received by the microphone, which converts the sound waves to electrical signals and sends them to an amplifier. The amplifier boosts the signals and then sends them to the ear through a speaker.

Hearing aids are primarily useful to people who have suffered sensorineural hearing loss from damage to the small sensory cells in the inner ear known as hair cells. The damage can be caused by disease, aging, or injury from noise or drugs.

A hearing aid magnifies sound vibrations. Surviving hair cells detect the larger vibrations and convert them into signals that are sent to the brain.

There are limits to the amplification a hearing aid can provide. If the inner ear is too damaged, even large vibrations will not be converted into signals to the brain.

Next week: Getting a hearing aid

LVIA Air traffic up 24.2 percent

Passenger traffic at Lehigh Valley International Airport (LVIA) increased 24.29 percent in August, compared to the same period last year.

Year-to-date for 2010 passenger traffic is up 11.58 percent.

Passenger volume has been increasing steadily since July 2009 with the exception of weather-related cancellations earlier this year in February.

"We really have to thank Lehigh Valley travelers who have responded well to new airline service offerings, as well as to competitive air fares," said LVIA Interim Executive Director, Larry Krauter.

Time to invest in 'Wall Street'

"Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps" is the third significant fall studio movie, along with "The Town" and "The American." Look for several Oscar nominations for "Wall Street."

"Wall Street," its full title a nod to a Gordon Gekko (Michael Douglas) line in the original "Wall Street" (1987) and perhaps Neil Young's song, "Rust Never Sleeps" (1979), picks up the storyline in a post 9/11 Wall Street after Gekko's release doing an eight-year prison stint. "One gold money clip, with no money in it," the guard says, then hands him a cell phone the size of a shoe.

If not back on Wall Street, Gekko is on the lecture and book-signing circuit with "Is Greed Good?," a riposte to his "Greed is good" pronouncement in the first "Wall Street." The new movie gives Gekko opportunity to reevaluate his life choices. Money isn't everything. Time is.

Gekko is estranged from his daughter, Winnie (Carey Mulligan), whose boyfriend Jake (Shia LaBeouf) is an aspiring Wall Street trader. After the 2008 financial meltdown and death of his mentor, Louis Zabel (Frank Langella), Jake accepts a job with a rival firm run with primal instinct by Bretton James (Josh Brolin).

Oliver Stone, one of America's great contemporary directors (Oscars for directing "Platoon," 1986, and "Born on the Fourth of July," 1989; screenplay Oscar, "Midnight Express," 1978; as well as director of "W," 2008; "World Trade Center," 2006; "Nixon," 1995; "Natural Born Killers," 1994; "JFK" 1991; "The Doors," 1991), directs the screenplay by Allan Loeb ("21," "Things We Lost in the Fire") and Stephen Schiff ("True Crime"),

MOVIE REVIEW

based on characters created by Stanley Weiser and Stone for the original "Wall Street."

Douglas (actor Oscar for his first portrayal of Gekko) brings new dimensions to the uber-capitalist. Douglas has a crisp confidence and swagger right down to his vocal inflections. The performance is imbued with Douglas's own personal and family tragedy. Look for an actor Oscar nomination for Douglas.

Balanced against old-hand Douglas are two fine young actors. LaBeouf as Jake goes deep into character. Mulligan is dimpled-cheeked perfection as Winnie.

Brolin is Mr. Wall Street Insider personified. Langella, Susan Sarandon and Eli Wallach have smaller, but important roles. Don't miss a cameo by Charlie Sheen.

In the expertly-crafted movie, director of photography Rodrigo Prieto ("Brokeback Mountain," "Alexander") and production designer Kristi Zea ("Revolutionary Road," "The Departed") symbolize the Wall Street world: sweeping panoramas of the New York City skyline, tilt shots of skyscrapers, Wall Street trading floor LED stock ticker numbers marching across scenes, a swanky Metropolitan Museum of Art gala and CNBC and other TV financial news experts.

"Wall Street" has emotional resonance because it doesn't only follow the money, but rather the human fallout from the financial bailout.

"What — nobody around here believes in a comeback," Gekko wonders?

We do. The play for "Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps" is a convincing "buy."

"Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps," MPAA Rated PG-13 (Parents Strongly Cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13) for brief strong language and thematic elements; Genre: Drama; Run time: 2 hr., 13 min.; Distributed by 20th Century Fox.

Credit Readers Anonymous: Director Oliver

Stone appears briefly in two scenes in "Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps." David Byrne and Brian Eno wrote and perform "Home" during closing credits song. Jake Moore has "The Good, The Bad And The Ugly" movie theme by Ennio Morricone as his cell phone ring tone.

Box Office, Sept. 24: "Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps" returned Michael Douglas and Oliver Stone to No. 1, opening with $19 million, besting the 3-D animated "Legend of the Guardians: The Owls of Ga-Hoole," No. 2, opening with $16.3 million, and dropping "The Town" to No. 3, $16 million, $49.1 million, two weeks;

4. "Easy A," $10.7 million, $32.8 million, two weeks; 5. "You Again," $8.3 million, opening; 6. "Devil," $6.4 million, $21.7 million, two weeks; 7. "Resident Evil: Afterlife," $4.9 million, $52 million, three weeks; 8. "Alpha and Omega," $4.7 million, $15.1 million, two weeks; 9. "Takers," $1.6 million, $54.9 million, five weeks; 10. "Inception," $1.2 million, $287 million, 11 weeks

Unreel, Oct. 1: "The Social Network," Rated PG-13: David Fincher ("The Curious Case of Benjamin Button," "Panic Room," "Fight Club," "Se7en") directs Justin Timberlake, Jesse Eisenberg, Andrew Garfield and Rooney Mara in purportedly the real story behind the founding of Facebook.

"Let Me In," Rated R: "Cloverfield" director Matt Reeves directs Kodi Smit-McPhee, Chloe Moretz and Richard Jenkins in the vampire horror movie.

"Hatchet II," No MPAA Rating: After escaping Victor Crowley, Danielle Harris returns to the Louisiana bayou. Dumb move, but that's the stuff of horror movies.

"Case 39," Rated R: Renee Zellweger stars in the horror movie as a foster mother whose young charge has issues beyond her control.

CONTRIBUTED IMAGE COLOMBO CONSTRUCTION CORP.

Plates affixed to I-Beams on "The Bridge" will list significant bridges, buildings and projects where Bethlehem Steel was used.

Collaborating with her on the sculpture renderings and 3-D computer site models were Anne Rainey Rokahr, Colombo Construction Corp. managing director; Nick Spitzer, a designer with her firm, and Hans Eberdorfer.

Colombo has been working with Buro Happold, a Bath, England-based structural engineering firm, concerning load factors in the sculpture design.

"I had to be sure I could build this," Colombo said, noting that she would like to have the project documented.

Colombo's design was the unanimous selection committee choice of five invited sculptors' submissions.

The panel included: Bethlehem Mayor John Callahan; Philip and Muriel Berman Foundation Director Nancy Berman, Mortimer Levitt Foundation President Mimi Levitt, ArtsQuest Director of Visual Arts and Education Janice Lipzin, Lehigh Valley Health Network Arts Coordinator Christine I. Oaklander and Lehigh University Art Galleries Director Ricardo Viera.

"I think this is going to be a nationally-recognized sculpture," Lipzin said at the press conference. "The Bridge" is an iconic piece, which pays honor to the steelworker," Lipzin added.

"Artist Elena Colombo is bringing a living metaphor and symbolic community outdoor sculpture, where memories of the industrial past illuminate a sense of both history and place, as a significant work that celebrates art and technology," Viera said in a statement released at the luncheon.

Bethlehem artist Ben Marcune, who has a studio in the Banana Factory and attended the luncheon, lauded Colombo's design. "It captures the essence of ArtsQuest. I think it's a wonderful work," Marcune said.

"I'm about to cry. It's an incredible honor," Colombo said, soon after stepping behind the microphone at the podium in the Crayola Gallery. "I think it was divine intervention," Colombo said of her winning the sculpture design commission.

ArtsQuest getting state honor

ArtsQuest will receive one of the annual Governor's Awards for the Arts.

The Bethlehem arts organization that began as a downtown music festival in 1984 is receiving the Outstanding Arts Leadership & Service to Youth Award.

Pennsylvania's First Lady Judge Marjorie O. Rendell made the announcement Sept. 23.

Governor Ed Rendell will present the awards at 7 p.m. Nov. 30 in Perelman Theater, Kimmel Center, Philadelphia. The awards ceremony is free. Tickets will be available as of Oct. 15.

This year's recipients: Distinguished Arts Award — Charles Dutoit, chief conductor, The Philadelphia Orchestra; Pennsylvania Creative Community Award — John Vanco, director, Erie Art Museum; Patron Award — Carole Price Shanis and Joseph Shanis of Philadelphia; and Artist of the Year — Moe A. Brooker of Philadelphia, visual artist and teacher.

The honorees were selected from a field of more than 70 nominations submitted by arts organizations, artists, arts patrons, elected officials and the public.

The annual awards are a 30-year gubernatorial tradition honoring outstanding Pennsylvania artists, arts organizations and patrons who have made significant contributions to the advancement of the arts.

The ceremony moves to a different community each year. Past host cities include York, Greensburg, Wilkes-Barre, Reading, Pittsburgh, Allentown, Harrisburg, Altoona, Philadelphia, Gettysburg and Williamsport.

The Governor's Awards for the Arts are administered by the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts, a state agency under the Office of the Governor.
