BASD DOORS SHUT

Closure uses plans unveiled Dec. 7

BY THERESA O'BRIEN Special to the Bethlehem Press

At its Dec. 7 meeting, the BASD school board once again selected Mike Faccinetto as president and Shannon Patrick as vice president. Eight of nine members (all but Craig Neiman) were present; all motions passed 8-0.

Assistant Superintendent Dr. Jack Silva also revealed the district's plans for 100 percent virtual education. The completely remote schedule includes both synchro-

nous and asynchronous lessons. For a single remote-only day, no new material would be introduced; teachers would post review or extension lessons on Google Classroom or Schoology.

On Dec. 9, Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy notified parents that schools will be closed Dec. 14 through Jan. 11 in a move to pre-empt a forcible closure by Pa. Secretary of Health Dr. Rachel Levine. With some buildings nearing the mandatory shutdown positive test numbers set unilaterally by Levine Nov. 23, Roy told parents in a video message that "in order to pre-empt that, and to give parents to adjust, and to give teachers time to make adjustments, we will be moving to a fully remote learning schedule, effective Monday, Dec. 14." Instructional delivery schedules for various closure situations are posted online (https://go.boarddocs. com/pa/beth/Board. nsf/Public). Virtual schedules for closures of one week or longer are modeled on the combination of synchronous large group, synchronous small group, and asynchronous independent work already in use for eClassroom students. Elementary eClassroom students will remain in their preexisting eClassrooms; secondary eClassroom students will join classes with their ordinarily-hybrid peers, based on last names. Continued from page A1 be perfect this year,' Silva said at the Dec. 7 meeting. "We have to be as good as we can be." Asked by Dr. Kim Shively about data on students' success this year, Silva said that elementary students who were performing well academically at the last "normal" benchmark in 2019-20 are still showing strong performance. Looking at the first marking period grades for secondary students, Silva said that there are more "F" grades at this point this year than last year, but "not as many as you might think." He plans to present more data and analysis to the board in Jan. 2021. Asked by Patrick whether students are being taught the same amount of information as previous years. Dr. Silva said that they were not, but that the most important information was still being taught. Patrick also asked why BASD isn't planning on 100 percent synchronous instruction online, as Allentown has announced plans to do in case of closure. Silva explained that there are "two reasons: One, as far as what the evidence shows about what students are able to learn and retain in a blended format requires students to be able to do some reflection on the modeling that the teacher does [...] Other reasons are technical bandwidth, and number of devices - as well as a question of how long we want students to be online on Zoom [...] When students develop that skill, and can continue it and develop it over time, they tend to hit grade-level targets. When they become exclusively dependent on the teacher [that's less likely to happen]. Chief Facilities Officer Mark Stein discussed the Farmersville ES HVAC renovation project slated for next summer. The district's facilities department broke the project into its components - mechanical, electrical and controls integration - to increase the chances of receiving competitive bids. The recommended bids indicate a total project cost roughly $300,000 below the budgeted amount. Stein recommends Trefz Mechanical, Wind Gap Electric, and Johnson Controls, respectively; the board was to vote on contractor approval at its Dec. 14 meeting. The board was also to vote Dec. 14 on the purchase of software from Ellevation Inc. to support English language learners in schools. Schools currently use software developed by district IT staff, but BASD is considering switching to Ellevation because of its greater individualization capabilities and interoperability with other software already in use. Faccinetto informed the board that Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy has been nominated to serve on the Community Action Committee of the Lehigh Valley; because the seat is to represent a public entity, the board had to vote Dec. 14 to approve his nomination. Board member Dean Donaher voiced his excitement. "With the retirement of Alan Jennings looming, it's important that we have people like Dr. Roy on that committee [to have a voice in choosing the new executive director]." Roy also shared some more coronavirus data with the board. Between Monday and Friday the previous week, just over 70 positive tests were reported; most of the new positive tests happened over the Thanksgiving break. On Dec. 7, 24 more positive tests came in; however, 10 of these individuals had not been in any school building since Nov. 20.

"We have a new store at the Visitors Center at SteelStacks, but this will also take over some of the retail opportunity," said Jon Lunger, ArtsQuest's director of marketing, in a Zoom conference. "We will have ticket sales to ArtsQuest events and

This will give us a chance to be directly involved with our business partners of the Northside," Lunger added. "We have wanted to be a more active participant. By having a year round presence, we can participate in events like the Harvest Festival and the Mother's Day Fine Art and Craft Show."

The new location represents ArtsQuest's resilience in overcoming its revenue losses due to the COVID crisis.

"Our motto during this time has been 'adapt and overcome,'" said Selena Lavonier, ArtsQuest's senior director of advancement, via Zoom. "We have been continuing programming during difficult times. Opportunities like this have been made possible by the generous support of our volunteers, vendors, and sponsors, helping us to do a tremendous job of pivoting.'

New Salvation Army head finds Bethlehem a special place

BY CAROLE GORNEY Special to the Bethlehem Press

In August, the Bethlehem Salvation Army welcomed two new full-time leaders, who are responsible for maintaining the local corps' community center and its many ministries. Major Scott Peabody and his wife Major Karen Peabody, both ministers, transferred to Bethlehem from Greenfield, Mass., where they served the Salvation Army for the past five years.

In Greenfield, the Peabodys were involved with the homeless, and are credited with raising awareness of the issue. In 2018, there were plans to shut down a homeless encampment on the Town Common that had grown to more than a dozen tents. Peabody and Greenfield residents met with people to talk about housing options.

"There was a huge amount of need, and some expansion and good news came out of it," Peabody told the Bethlehem Press. Local officials were looking at a number of housing options, including some with jobs.

the Salvation Army full time. Having now spent 15 years with the corps, the couple came to Bethlehem each with the new rank of Major.

Besides conducting senior feeding and rental assistance programs, the Peabodys will conduct Sunday services and oversee the 50-65-member foundation. "We don't want to duplicate services, but I am working to raise funding to provide more virtual and interactive programming."

Speaking of fundraising, Peabody said the iconic Red Kettles would be out at 15 locations in Bethlehem starting Nov. 17 and continuing six weeks until Christmas Eve. Santa got a head start at the Moravian Book Shop in historic downtown Bethlehem Nov. 13.

Peabody said his first impression of Bethlehem is that it "is a very special place with special people. I'm very excited to be in Pennsylvania because I've been in New

In Bethlehem, Peabody said he and his wife will oversee many of the same kind of services as in Greenfield, in addition to a senior program and transitional housing for individuals recovering from crises. While he is still researching needs and resources, Peabody said he is already aware of the many different churches and agencies that are working together and caring for each other in the area. He called it a "really good safety net.

"Karen was born and raised in the Salvation Army, attending church services with her parents in Haverhill, Mass." Peabody explained. "I didn't know anything about the Salvation Army until I met her, and got involved with a kids' program on Friday nights to keep them out of trouble. I liked the 'boots on the ground' approach."

At the time, Peabody was a production manager for a tech company in New Hampshire. "It was all I had known for 20 years from high school." He kept his day job until 2002, when he took on England all my life. The communities here are very supportive, and I look forward to working with them."

Having now been officers with the Salvation Army for 15 years, the Peabodys will carry the title of "major" at the Bethlehem. branch, which is their fourth appointment.

The Salvation Army had its beginnings in England in the 1850s when minister William Booth abandoned the conventional church pulpit to walk the streets of London to care for the needy. Today, The Salvation Army is active in virtually every corner of the world and serves in over 100 countries.

Bran Rader volunteered to ring the bell the first day and encourage shoppers to donate money during the holidays to support year-round Salvation Army programs. The kettles are also in 14 other locations through Christmas Eve.

The Peabodys' 12-year-old daughter Kylee volunteers to make sandwiches for the 50 people attending Sunday religious services. Tuna fish is on the menu this week.

COMMUNITY UPDATE

BETHLEHEM

MUNICIPAL SKATING RINK: Mayor Bob Donchez announced that based on Governor Tom Wolf's latest shutdown order, the Municipal Ice Rink closed Dec. 12 until further notice.

Please monitor the city's website www.bethlehem-pa.gov and social media for additional information, including closures of city facilities, postponement of public meetings and updates on COVID-19.

SHOP AND STROLL: The Downtown Bethlehem Association (DBA) and the Southside Arts District are introducing a brand new event this holiday season. You can enjoy "A Merry Little Shop & Stroll" downtown in the Christmas City Dec. 19. It's an outdoor walking holiday food fair and sidewalk sale. Lehigh Valley Health Network is sponsoring free two-hour parking downtown during the event. DBA Manager Tammy Wendling said, "We wanted to create an event that balanced the business community's need for customers with the entire community's need for safety. This socially distanced outdoor event achieves that beautifully.

WIND CREEK CASINO: The Pennsylvania Gaming Control Board announced that it will be working with the 12 operating casinos in the commonwealth on closing procedures as part of a COVID-19 mitigation order announced by Governor Wolf today. Under the order, Wind Creek is one of 12 casinos that was to cease all gaming activities and patron entry by 12:01 a.m. Dec, 12.

Under the governor's order, casinos may reopen at 8:00 a.m. Monday, Jan. 4, 2021.

CITY HALL: Mayor Bob Donchez announced that Bethlehem city hall will continue to remain open for the general public to conduct business with the city. However, the public is encouraged to conduct as much business as possible via mail, email, online at www.bethlehem-pa.gov, phone and by appointment. The Bethlehem Service Center remains fully operational and can be reached at (610) 865-7000.

The city will continue to provide a drop-off area for customers on the first floor of City Hall to handle all inquiries, permit applications and to accept all payments. In addition, the public is encouraged to use the drop box outside the Church Street entrance to City Hall to make bill payments.

HOTEL BETHLEHEM: Christmas came early for Bethlehem this year and the Hotel Bethlehem rushed to put up their decorations to be a part of the holiday cheer in Historic Downtown Bethlehem. Sparkling lights, glistening ornaments and Christmas songs filled the lobby of Historic Hotel Bethlehem the first weekend of November. It may not have felt like the traditional "hustle and bustle" visitors were used to in the hotel lobby but Christmas was definitely happening. The goal was to maintain the Christmas festivities despite the unusual challenges from this pandemic.

However, with the new temporary mandates announced by the governor, the hotel was forced to close their restaurant and banquet operations. The hotel will not be offering take-out or curbside pickup during this period. In addition self-guided tours have been canceled until such time as the temporary mandate is lifted by the governor

Therefore, entry to the hotel will be closed to the general public during this period. Only registered overnight guests will be permitted to enter the hotel until this temporary mandate is lifted in 2021.

Hellertown Borough Council Nov. 2 primarily discussed the 2019 Hellertown Area Library report.

The report, presented by HAL Director Noelle Kramer, provided a rundown of its operations in 2019, with statistics indicating the number of community members served and items in circulation through the year. She also highlighted the over 500 programs the library held, with nearly 7,500 total participants ranging from toddlers to senior citizens. "We like to think we are a well-rounded option for all age groups and demographics," she said.

Kramer also touted the library's internet access services, helping adult citizens with "all sorts of different (items)," including "resumes, job applications, vehicle and voter registrations, banking and medical purposes, taxes and entertainment as

He said he spoke with the residents on the street, who are largely not against the idea, but described a potential issue with redirecting traffic to Oak Street, which he described as "not in very good shape" and even narrower than Furnace Street.

The council also heard a bid from J.P. also Mascaro and Sons, Inc. to provide recycling services for the borough. Borough Manager Cathy Hartranft explained that despite advertising the contract twice, Mascaro was the only bidder. Their bid would bring a 56 percent increase yearover-year, Rieger said, but in doing research he found that many other municipalities are seeing similar rises in cost. The council ultimately voted to award the contract to Mascaro, saying they felt as though they had no other choice but to do so.

GREATER LV YMCA: Beginning Sat., Dec. 12, the following Lehigh and Northampton County Ys are closed: Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton/Phillipsburg, Nazareth, Suburban North and Slate Belt through Jan. 3, 2021. We will reopen Jan. 4, 2021 at 8 a.m. At the Greater Valley YMCA, the community's health and safety is our foremost priority. In the wake of recent government announcements and mandated closures announced by Governor Wolf Dec. 10. the Y must temporarily close its facilities.

CENTER FOR HUMANISTIC CHANGE: Please note: Due to the uptick in local COVID-19 positivity rates, CHC's physical locations are closed until further notice. However, they are still here for you, working remotely with full access to email and phones. CHC continues to offer alcohol, tobacco and other drug prevention and life skills programs in a virtual manner, on the website, and on location (Onsite programming will continue, but is subject to change per mitigation orders delivered by the State of Pennsylvania). Please contact them with your requests so they can continue to offer critical prevention programming.

PENNSYLVANIA

RAPID ANTIGEN TESTS: The Wolf administration began distribution of the ninth allotment of COVID-19 antigen test kits provided by the federal government to Clinical Laboratory Improvement Amendments (CLIA)-certified institutions in Carbon, Clarion, Lycoming, Northampton, Potter and York counties.

"Antigen test cards are a timely, quick and easy-to-use tool for communities to receive rapid COVID-19 testing," Secretary of Health Dr. Rachel Levine said. "These test kits, provided by the federal government and being distributed to areas in need by the Wolf Administration, will further help communities struggling with the spread of COVID-19. Antigen tests look for pieces of proteins that make up the SARS-CoV-2 virus and are less sensitive than PCR tests for detecting COVID-19 infections."

TECH SAVVY: GearHungry.com, the leading resource for reviews of gear, gadgets and gifts, surveyed 3,000 65+ year olds to find out how they coped, and overall, a significant majority of Pennsylvania seniors (68 percent) said their understanding of technology has actually improved since the start of the pandemic.

Fifty-five percent of seniors say video apps have helped with loneliness. Two-thirds of people will avoid seeing extended family this Christmas in order to protect seniors from any risk.

VIDEO GAMING ROOMS: The Pennsylvania Gaming Control Board announced that it has ordered the closure of Video Gaming Terminal (VGTs) rooms located in truck stop establishments statewide Dec. 12 as part of a COVID-19 mitigation order announced by Governor Wolf.

Under the governor's order, the operation of VGTs may commence again at 8 a.m. Monday, Jan. 4, 2021.

PLCB ENFORCEMENT: Pennsylvania State Police Liquor Control Enforcement Officers visited 526 licensed liquor establishments from Friday, Dec. 11 through 13 to ensure businesses are abiding by COVID-19 mitigation requirements, including the suspension of in-person service from Dec. 12 through Jan. 4, 2021, as outlined in the limited-time mitigation order.

Liquor Control Enforcement Officers issued 14 notices of violation and 24 warnings for failing to follow COVID-19 requirements Complaints regarding licensees not complying with COVID-19 mitigation mandates may be directed to the BLCE at 1-800-932-0602 or reported through the BLCE's online complaint form.

for a new business entry door and canvas awning for their General Zapata Mexican Restaurant at 15 E. Fourth St.

The black awning measures 172 inches by 40 inches. It features four grouped red palm trees around a black "Z' logo on a warm white background at the center. The graphic matches the logo already in the storefront window. "General Zapata Mexican Restaurant" in warm white serif lettering is printed across the valance. The board stipulated the new awning material and frame be the same dimensions as the unit being replaced.

The new door with a full glass panel and bronze push/pull handles is to fit in the same space as the existing door. Since the dining area holds fewer than 50 people, the door can swing in and be Americans with Disabilities Act compliant. The applicants were advised to check with zoning to see if the ramp in front of the door is wide enough for the door to swing out, if they preferred that set up.

The three-story, three-bay, circa 1880 building is owned by Jae Chung.

Council lauds Light Up Night event

BY CHRIS HARING Special to the Bethlehem Press

Jessica O'Donnell and Lauren Bertucci from the Greater Lehigh Valley Chamber of Commerce joined the Dec. 7 virtual Heller-town Council meeting to thank the community, Mayor David Heintzelman, Public Works Director Barry Yonney and the council for their support of the Chamber's annual Light Up Night attraction.

With the pivot to a drive-thru format due to the COVID-19 pandemic, O'Donnell described the Nov. 28 Dimmick Park event as "definitely dif-ferent." She said she received much positive feedback from the community, however, and called the event a "hit."

The Holiday Weekend Extravaganza also featured a 'virtual tree lighting ceremony' the prior evening and was again sponsored by the Hellertown-Lower Saucon Chamber (a sub-sidiary of the GLVCC). Bertucci was excited by community turnout for the event, which also featured the opportunity for children to meet Santa Claus the following morning, adding, "we became a Disney ride, the park had a 50-minute wait to get inside... that ert Lepley, joined the meeting to provide some information about themselves and why they stepped forward to join the commission.

Kuhns, a Hellertown resident of eight years who indicated that he will be retiring in 2021 from a career in public service, most recently as a zoning officer in East Allen Township, an-swered questions from President Thomas Rieger, Jr. and other council members first. When asked why he was interested in joining the commission, Kuhns said, "my partner Beverly and I love this community and we'd like to do something to help out."

Lepley, a commercial lender with an extensive background in residential 'spec home'-build-ing, said he bought his first residence in Hellertown in 1998 and has lived in the borough ever since. "I love Hel-lertown to death," Lepley said, as he described raising his daughter in the borough. Both Lepley and Kuhns spoke of the importance of maintaining the balance between commercial and residential properties within Hellertown, as well as vehicular traffic and other concerns. They were both unanimously appointed to four-year terms.

Henrich steps away as BC coach

BY PETER CAR pcar@tnonline.com

Bethlehem Catholic announced on Friday morning that football coach Joe Henrich has resigned.

Henrich has been a staple with the program for the nine seasons, helping the Hawks win four district championships during a run that saw him finish with a 67-41 career mark, good for second on the program's wins list behind the legendary Bob Stem.

"Coach Henrich had a great run as head foot-ball coach at Becahi and we appreciate all that he has done for our school," athletic director Chris Domyan said in a press release. "He led the football program with class ministration over the and had many accom- See BC on Page A10

Henrich took over in 2011 and immediately turned around a struggling program. They won back-to-back dis-trict titles in 2013 and 2014. The Hawks then had a run of winning three straight district titles from 2016-18, as they advanced to the PIAA semifinals before falling to state Imhotep in both seasons. Henrich took a sabbatical year in 2016.

The Hawks finished this season with a 4-4 record, losing to Central Catholic in the District 11 4A semifinals.

Area divers coping with the delayed start

BY KATIE MCDONALD kmcdonald@tnonline.com

November was going to be a great month for high school divers from Freedom, Liberty, Bethlehem Catholic, and Moravian Academy.

"All the girls came back very eager because things stopped so abruptly in March," said Coach Emily Kocis.

Becahi sophomore Anna Petke and Moravian Academy junior Alexa Fegley hadn't even left home for the PIAA State Class 2A Diving Championships on March 12 at Bucknell University when the meet was shut down because of the coronavirus.

"We were very bummed and disappointed," Kocis said. "We had a little hope at first because they were talking about possibly rescheduling.

Valley experts describe COVID fight

BY LANI GOINS Special to the Bethlehem Press

The 2020 Great Decisions panel discussions began Oct. 14 with a session on COVID-19. The sessions are spon-sored by the YWCA, and Muhlenberg College. More panel discussions, on a variety of topics, will take place in 2021.

The discussion was moderated by Dr.Brian Mello, associate professor ofpPolitical science and director of the Center for Ethics at Muhlenberg College. The other panelists were Dr. Jeffrey Jahre, infec-tious disease specialist with Saint Lukes Health Network, and State Representative Michael Schlossberg.

Jahre opened the discussion, saying Pennsylvania and the Lehigh Valley have not been spared by any stretch of the imagination. There have been 6,368 deaths, and the numbers are going up. "When we look at cases though, it is important to put this into perspective. We are in a Moderate Zone; could be worse, could be better," he said.

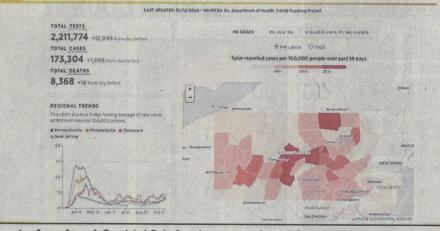

Jahre went on to explain that the height of daily cases and death rate so far was in April 2020. He said the case rate is rising, but the death rate is not, and hospitalizations are declining.

Representative Schlossberg added, "My worry is the trends. As contact tracing has evolved, my feeling is we need to err on the side of safety

"What did we do well?" asked Mello. Jahre replied, "Both the Lehigh Valley

Health Network and Saint Luke's Health Network had a pandemic response plan in place; we had to build on it. Both networks have a lot of hospitals in their orbit. We were able to transfer equipment and personnel to where they were needed.

He added that there was a team working on treatments, and "we have some of the best results nationally in terms of (patient) outcomes."

The national shortage of personal protective equipment did not spare the Lehigh Valley. Jahre pointed out two innovations in the Lehigh Valley that addressed this issue. He said, "The Zapper Machine, patented by engineers at Lehigh University, was the first such cleaning machine specifically for N95 masks." He also said, "Saint Luke's was the first health network in the country to produce 3d printed N95 masks.

Another simple but very successful part of the local response from St. Luke's was having information about COVID-19 distributed in and elderly citizens multiple languages. Jahre also complimented the organization structure, explaining that talented team members were given freedom and resources to run with their ideas.

Representative Schlossberg said the pandemic has shown "the need for strong county health departments'

He added the pandemic also revealed "systemic society issues, and vulnerable people." He added, "Federalism was not meant for pandemics.

He said both political parties failed in their response to the pandemic.

Moving forward, he said the federal government should be helping industries that have been devastated by the pandemic, by channeling resources to the state governments for implementation.

Both Jahre and Schlossberg agreed that the most crucial work is done at the local level.

Jahre also described the likely distribution of a vaccine when it is ready. First responders would be the first vaccine recipients. Next would be other essential workers. Months later, the vaccine would be distributed to the general population.

Jahre pointed to the effectiveness of the polio vaccine program as a model to follow.

But he cautioned that there is no "magic bullet" that will end the COVID-19 threat.

Schlossberg said his greatest fear is that COVID-19 will exacerbate the divide between the rich and the poor.' Mello added the situation is confounded by rising real estate prices.

Jahre said there "needs to be better cooperation because these things (pandemic) will happen in the future."

The Great Decisions panel discussions will continue in 2021. The discussions will be on Zoom on Wednesdays, beginning Feb. 3, and continuing weekly through March 24. To register, go to www. ywcabethlehem.org and click on Great Decisions.

LIBERTY HS NOTES By Mia Senick

The show must go on

It's always a great day to be a Hurricane. Liberty has been doing the utmost for its community as it closely adheres to COVID-19 guidelines during school and activities. The students of Liberty never fail to put their talent in the spotlight, despite the hardships they have been faced with this school year.

New records were accomplished by two Liberty cross country runners in the District 11 competition. Throughout their four years at Liberty, Cole Frank and Emily Jobes have had multiple high placements in district and EPC competitions. On Oct. 28, Liberty brought home two District 11 champions for the first time since 2004. Frank finished at 17:32 and Jobes finished at 20:46. This was the perfect outcome after an extremely successful season.

The Liberty versus Freedom rivalry game has been a Bethlehem tradition for decades. Students dressed in red and gold would fill the stadium as others would gather to tailgate and participate in activities related to the tradition. Unfortunately, the game had to be postponed and then later canceled due to COVID-19, which put a heartbreaking end to Liberty's football season. Students maintained their school spirit by decorating the halls with red and blue as they do each year.

Liberty theater always manages to put on a wonderful show for the community in both the fall and spring. Although their productions are unable to be performed live, the show must go on. The fall production, "Almost Maine," premiered virtually in November for friends and family to watch in the comfort of their homes. The cast list has been released for the spring musical, "Urinetown." The seniors will take the lead with the upcoming show as they fill most of the starring roles.

On Dec. 1, Liberty was able to host its annual National Honors Society induction. To make this event possible, it was held through a virtual live stream for families to view. Although the event looked different from previous years, it was a memorable moment for over 60 juniors and seniors who became members.

The beginning of winter sports and activities has been pushed back to a later date. Rather than starting in mid-November, winter sports are unable to begin until Jan. 11 due to COVID-19. The athletes and coaches hope to have a quick recovery from this setback and get to the unfinished business from last season's cancellations.

Tis the season of giving back to the community. Liberty students from both student government and the interact club are in the process of organizing virtual events and drives to donate toys and clothing to families in need throughout the month of December. Check out the Liberty website to see how you can become involved.

The season of submitting college applications is upon us. Liberty offers plenty of opportunities to have instant admission days through local colleges like Moravian College or Northampton Community College. There are also many scholarships available for applicants through Naviance. Though the pandemic hinders the ability to have in-person college visits, many virtual visits and college fairs can be found on Schoology or the Liberty website. If help is needed to complete a college application, closely check your email and Schoology for updates from your counselor.

Council race begins to heat up BY DOUGLAS GRAVES Special to the Bethlehem Press

Lehigh County Commissioners Percy Dougherty and Marc Grammes, both Republicans, have announced they will not run for office in 2021. Both have cited health reasons for their decision.

This makes the race for county commissioner a wide-open contest, with a total of five seats up for election. Geoff Brace's and Amy Zanelli's seats will also be on the slate, but neither Brace nor Zanelli were ready, when contacted, to announce their plans.

Dr. Percy Dougherty, 77, has served as a Lehigh County commissioner since January 1994. He will stay on the board until he is replaced by the candidate elected in 2021. That transfer will happen in Janusary 2022.

Dougherty represents Lehigh County District 2, which includes the townships of Upper Macungie, Lower Macungie, South Whitehall and Alburtis.

He said he has had health issues, including a suspected stroke that may have contributed to a fall. Subsequent blood poisoning hospitalized him earlier this year.

Dougherty is a former professor of geography and geology at Kutztown University.

Dougherty said he and his wife Anne have been married since 1966. He said they enjoy traveling the world, so they planned a trip to Antarctica for 2022; a trip they had originally planned for this year until the COVID-19 pandemic.

Marc Grammes, 62, a former merchant seaman officer and engineer, said he too is resigning because of health reasons.

Grammes represents Lehigh County District 1, which includes the communities of Slatington Borough, the Borough of Coplay and the townships of Whitehall, Wash-Weisenberg, ington, North Whitehall, Heidelberg, Lowhill and Lynn.

Elections are usually emotional events, especially for the candidates and their supporters. 2020 was an election on steroids. A hypercompetitive presidential election put on during a global pandemic -Hollywood could not script it better. Pennsylvania added one more wrinkle to the storyline that placed even more pressure on the counties running our elections. This fall was the first general election using the new changes brought about by the passage of Act 77. Act 77 permitted an additional 15 days for voters to register before an election, provided funding to counties for the purchase of new voting machines, eliminated the straight party voting option, and gave Pennsylvanians 50 days before an election to cast a no excuse mailin ballot. At the time, Pennsylvania joined 31 other states and the District of Columbia in offering a no excuse vote by mail option. Many of these states, like Oregon, have been operating robust mailin voting options for decades without controversy. Given all the rhetoric surrounding the election, it is easy to forget that this bill was passed Oct. 29, 2019 in a bipartisan fashion – well before anyone knew of something called COVID-19. On final passage, more Republicans in the Pennsylvania State House and Senate supported the bill than Democrats. Moreover, I can attest that no one in voting provisions of the bill would play a leading role in the 2020 election. In fact, at the time, safety was the primary concern, focused on our voting machines and needed security upgrades following what we learned in the wake of the 2016 election.

Fast forward three months. COVID hits, we need to postpone our primary until June and suddenly our new, untested no excuse mail-in voting option becomes the cornerstone for holding a safe election. During the primary, the demand for mail-in ballots brought to light some technical issues with the law that would have benefited from clarification by the legislature. The one fix that garnered near universal support was the need to allow counties to pre-canvass ballots earlier than 7 a.m. on election day. Every county in Pennsylvania warned that without more time, the results would not be known election night. Counties also would have benefited from other key questions being answered, including: Can counties use secure drop box locations to collect ballots? Can a county official or representative call a voter and let them know their vote might not count because their return envelope was not signed or a secrecy envelope was missing? Can a vote be counted if a return envelope is missing a date or the name of the county? These are all fair and legitimate concerns and I was hopeful we would have been able to find to remedy them.

Unfortunately, we in the legislature were unable to come to an agreement about these issues. Consequently, everyone turned to the courts as the Secretary of State attempted to guide the 67 counties through implementation of this new law. No disrespect to the courts, but it is never prudent in my opinion to have them resolve elections. Perhaps the most surprising lawsuit was the consti-tutional challenge to Act 77 raised at the conclusion of the election, especially considering the broad bi-partisan support demonstrated for the law not less than a year ago.

From my perspective, the mail-in voting law is an overwhelming success. We anticipated that interest in mail-in voting would grow incrementally as confidence in the process grew. COVID-19 changed all that and the law proved up to the challenge. 2.6 million people cast their vote by mail this fall, roughly 37 percent of all ballots cast in the general election. Speaking for myself, that number was beyond my wildest expectation when the bill passed in 2019. I honestly wonder how many of those voters may not have voted this year without the ease of our new mail-in option? As some elected officials continue to politicize our mail-in voting option, it is undeniable, that voting this year was more secure, more convenient and safer than ever in large part See VIEW on Page A16

The Pennsylvania Department of Transportation announced recently students in grades 9-12 are invited to participate in the fourth annual PennDOT Innovations Challenge, which encourages students to use their problem-solving, creative and strategic-thinking abilities to solve real-world transportation challenges in a competition among their peers.

"One of the goals of the Innovations Challenge is to open students' minds to the possibility of a career in transportation, maybe even with PennDOT," PennDOT Secretary Yassmin Gramian said. "Students working on this project will engage in the very real challenge facing the industry - finding a sustainable solution to transportation funding challenges.

Happy Holidays!

Parents: Give your child the gift of a bicycle and bike education

BY LANI GOINS Special to the Bethlehem Press

Do you know a child age 3-12 who needs a bicycle? Lehigh Valley Coalition for Appropriate Transportation (CAT), located at 1935 W. Broad St., Bethlehem, is giving away bikes and helmets this holiday season.

The volunteers at CAT refurbish old bikes and give them to children in need. It takes volunteers about four hours to rehab a bike. When a child comes to receive a bike, CAT volunteers make sure the bike fits the child, and they even have the child help with adding or removing training wheels. If a helmet is needed, it is provided.

Bikes are available through Dec. 30, or while supplies last. CAT hopes to distribute 75 bikes this season. Helmets and education are provided on site, sponsored by Lehigh Valley Transportation Study and PenDOT.

Community members are welcome to sponsor the bikes, and may include a holiday message for the recipient.

CAT volunteers also made a bicycle training course on the blacktop at Friendship Park, on North Street. The course has plenty of turns and stops, so new riders can practice steering and stopping. Bikes are given out by appointment. Call 610-954-5744 or email cat@ lvcat.org.

AARP UPDATES

Beware while on Facebook Marketplace

The holidays are getting close and many of us are looking for those last minute deals.

One place people are turning to is Facebook Marketplace, but beware, because scammers are lurking. The spike in online shopping has unfortunately led many victims right to the criminals who offer deals too good to pass up.

This fall, the AARP Fraud Watch Network Helpline received a high volume of calls from people losing money to scams on Facebook Marketplace.

Here are some tips to avoid online sales scams. Before making that purchase, research what similar items are selling for elsewhere; the greater the deal the greater the likelihood that it could be a scam.

Buy local versus having something shipped, and arrange to meet in a public space.

Pay cash - if asked to pay by a payment application, wire transfer or gift card, refuse.

Finally, if you need to get an item shipped, use a credit card which has fraud protections.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam

Report scams to local law enforcement. For help from AARP, call 1-877-908-3360 or visit the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork.

LVH - Cedar Crest expanded ER has COVID protocol

Lehigh Valley Health Network (LVHN) has cut the ribbon to provide access to what's said to be the largest and most advanced Emergency Department in Pennsylvania at Lehigh Valley Hospital (LVH) - Čedar Crest, Salisbury Township.

The $111-million investment will bring the number of care spaces to more than 200 in the Emergency Room (ER).

The new ER adds 130,000-square-feet of space to the hospital's ER, bringing the size to almost 160,000-square-feet.

The project includes an expanded adult Emergency Department, new observation unit and trauma facilities.

The next phase of construction now underway includes an expanded Children's ER

The ribbon-cutting was held Dec. 7 on so-cial media by LVHN leadership, including Brian Nester, DO, MBA, FACOEP, LVHN President and Chief Executive Officer.

About 90,000 adult and pediatric patients receive care in the LVH - Cedar Crest ER annually.

"Everything you need during an emergency is right here," said David Burmeister, DO, LVHN Chair of Emergency and Hospital Medicine.

Even though the coronavirus pandemic began after construction of the new ER was well underway, special considerations were included because of COVID-19 and will benefit the community and healthcare workers.

The considerations include enhanced air circulation so that it's being circulated out of the building more regularly, along with the addition of multiple negative pressure airflow rooms.

Increased space in the waiting room allows for greater social distancing. Pods were created in the ER. Each pod is made up of 12 rooms. The pods allow for dividing groups of rooms to help prevent the spread of viruses like the coronavirus.

Disenchanted with Santa

A highlight of the year for my women's group is our festive Christmas banquet where we all join in songs and games.

When it had to be canceled because coronavirus is raging out of control in our county, we decided to do a Zoom Christmas party.

Everyone was asked to come prepared to share a story about a memory. Christmas Most agreed it was hard to pick just one memory from our many years of Christmas celebrations.

I knew right away what memory I would share, even though it wouldn't evoke warm, fuzzy feelings.

It was a painful memory for me for several reasons but I thought it might offer food for thought.

My most memorable Christmas memory goes all the way back to when I was 10, and believe it or not, I still believed in Santa Claus.

Right before Christmas my next-door neighbor Joannie told me there was no such thing as Santa Claus. When I didn't believe her, she said I should look upstairs in the attic where I would see toys my parents bought waiting to put them under the tree and pretend they came from Santa.

I searched the attic several times but there were no toys or other gifts. So I waited with full confidence that Santa would come bearing gifts, like always.

Christmas morning our house was eerily silent. Worse yet, there were no Christmas presents under the tree. Nothing for me. Nothing for my little brother.

When I asked my mother why Santa didn't come to our house, she looked stunned. "I didn't know you still believed in Santa Claus," she and was strangely quiet.

I usually got.

I realize now that I overcompensated for my sad childhood Christmas.

While I still believed in Santa at 10, our daughters had doubts when they were 4 and 6.

They told me years later it was "reindeer tracks" in the snow on our roof that made them believe. They wanted to know how we put those tracks on the high roof.

We didn't. Maybe it was just the magic of Santa.

However, that was the year I became disillusioned with Santa when I witnessed the downside of believing in a generous Santa that magically knew what children wanted and put those gifts under the tree.

Christmas morning little neighbortwo hood kids came to visit our girls. Five- yearold Janie and 4-yearold Bobby were at first speechless when they saw the gifts piled high under the tree.

I'll never forget the look on their faces when they asked: "Why didn't Santa come to visit us?"

That's when I stopped believing in the magic of Santa Claus.

When I asked my friend, the youngsters' mother, why she didn't tell me she couldn't afford gifts, she said she had some on layaway and thought she would have them paid off in time for Christmas. It didn't work out that way

I resolved that year to do all in my power to make sure little kids have Christmas presents.

Fortunately, some wonderful churches and said. She looked so sad charities devote themselves to helping fami-I didn't understand lies in need, especially during the holidays. Coronavirus Grinch steals Christmas presence in LV

BY PAUL WILLISTEIN pwillistein@tnonline.com

"Covid Clampdown: The Sequel" opened Dec. 10 to again close indoor dining, movie theaters, museums and gyms just when many businesses and nonprofits were beginning to return to some semblance of normalcy.

The executive order Dec. 10 by Pennsylvania Gov. Wolf and backed by Pennsylvania Secretary of Health Dr. Rachel Levine was prompted by a post-Thanks-giving Day holiday surge in coronavirus (COVID-19) cases in the Commonwealth with 10,057 cases reported Dec. 12.

The new, limited-time mitigation orders took effect at 12:01 a.m. Dec. 12 and remain in effect until 8 a.m. Jan. 4, 2021. With the announcement came a wave of closings.

Theaters closed: Civic Theatre of Allentown, which opened "Who's Holiday," a one-woman show starring Cher-sites. yl Moritz, was ahead of the coronavirus curve.

Theatre is canceling the second weekend of our wonderful production of 'Who's Holiday.' It feels as if the Grinch won this time. Meanwhile, the State Theatre Center for the Arts performance of the "Moscow Ballet's Great Russian Nutcrack-er," which is annually presented live, can be streamed 8 p.m. Dec. 19. The stream benefits the State Theatre. Tickets: www.statetheatre.org

A videotaped performance from 2018 of Repertory Dance Theatre's "Nutcracker," accompanied by the Allentown Symphony Orchestra at Miller Symphony Hall, will be telecast at 7 p.m. Dec. 20 and 3 p.m. Dec. 27 on Service Electric Cable TV.

Burmeister said that, as 2020 has demonstrated in the Lehigh Valley, United States and the world, it's impossible to predict the exact number of patients who will need care at any given time. "What we do know is that this facility makes us even more prepared for the unpredictable and that we will always provide care to people who are experiencing the most critical symptoms first," said Burmeister.

'This plan has multiple patient-centered additions and efficiencies built into it, including major diagnostic testing, laboratory and trauma enhancements. Everything for providing acute care for our patients is available within this facility," Burmeister said. The "patient experience" was a major consideration in developing the new ER, according to are large waiting areas, Burmeister.

Dedicating an observation unit adjacent to the new emergency depart-ment for those who need additional care before discharge allows for more comprehensive, connected care. The ER and observation spaces include all private rooms with the latest technological advances.

It includes more than 120 adult beds available for emergency care, compared to the previous 47 beds; and 27 beds in the Children's ER, up from 12 beds, when that portion is completed. The adult and Children's ERs have their own entrances and waiting areas.

The expanded facility includes three trauma bays, with the ability to add a fourth; a dedicated MRI and CT scan; a dedi-cated full-service laboratory; critical-care space; cardiac testing; physical therapy, and behavioral health services. There

The 50-minute service will be pre-taped at the BWC Ministry Center and projected on the large movie screen at Becky's. If needed, the service will also be projected on the second screen at Becky's. The sound will be heard via the radio in each vehicle.

Pastor Kevin Fetter-hoff, BWC Cherryville lead pastor, will give the sermon. The Praise Worship Band, which accompanies services at the BWC Ministry Center, will perform. A children's service is included.

"There will be pre-service videos," says Add-ington. "One of them will be telling the Christmas story through the eyes of a child. There will also be Christmas trivia questions, some taken from the Bible and others taken from the traditions of Christmas.

Church members make Christmas gift baskets

BY WANDA KALUSKY Special to The Press

Members of Christ's Church at Lowhill recently filled 12 gift baskets with fruit, candy, nuts, cookies, bread, popcorn and hot chocolate to give to members and friends and spread holiday cheer during this difficult time during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Almost 100 holiday cards were sent out as part of the church's outreach with a Christmas message from Pastor Chris Cocca.

Baum School 'Holiday Gallery' in-person or onlin

BY ED COURRIER Special to The Press

The Baum School of Art has adapted to 2020's pandemic shopping challenge with a Holiday Gallery accessible online or in person by appointment.

More than 45 Lehigh Valley-based artists and artisans have handmade works, including ceramics, woodcraft, paintings, jewelry, ornaments, tote bags, fashion pieces and more, available for sale in the school's David E. Rodale and Rodale Family Galleries. Purchases benefit the artists and Baum School.

This seasonal sale, plus a special silent auc-tion of a fully-furnished doll house, continues through Dec. 22.

Donated by area artist Barbara Kozero in memory of her late sister-in-law Sandy, the doll house with its tiny furnishings are up for bid as a fund-raiser for the nonprofit educational organization.

The exhibit is sponsored by Bob and Sandy Lovett.

For online shopping go to:

Touchstone's 'Follies' alive and well online

BY KATHY LAUER-WILLIAMS Special to The Press

For 21 years, Touchstone Theatre has presented its hilarious and slightly off-kilter view of the holidays with its annual "Christmas City Follies."

However with concerns about the coronavirus (COVID-19), pandemic, the troupe couldn't present the show in its theater at 321 E. 4th St., Bethlehem.

"Christmas City Follies XXI" will be presented online, premiering at 7 p.m. Dec. 20 and available for viewing through Jan. 2.

The theater will hold a watch party for the premiere, which will be available on YouTube.

"Santa brought us all the gift of reinvention this year with our 21st edition of 'Follies,'" says Touchstone Theatre Artistic Director Jp Jordan. "It's exhilarating to be able to take on this work from a completely new perspective."

Touchstone decided to forgo the traditional in-person performance on the theater's black box stage in favor of shooting this year's Follies as a movie.

Returning are many of the show's beloved characters, including Mary Wright's Little Red and Bill George's Old Guy. The show, which is made up of original sketches, characters and songs, will bring back favorite skits like the "Shopping Cart Ballet" and the "Better Not Shout Network."

The show traditionally ranges from the sublime to the ridiculous, with subject matter that has included family stories, dancing hippos, snow camels, holiday yoga, and kazoo-playing Christmas trees.

The show has been filmed on Touchstone's property and around Bethlehem, using iconic Christmas City sites as backdrops.

'Hillbilly' haywire ride

"Hillbilly Elegy" is not your typical Ron Howard movie, if there is such a AT THE thing.

It's not a typical maincontemporary stream Hollywood movie, either. There are those.

Look at "Hillbilly Elegy" as the anti-Hallmark Movie (Not that there's inherently anything wrong with a Hallmark Movie).

"Hillbilly Elegy" is powerful cinema, and one of the best films of 2020. Look for multiple Oscar nominations.

"Hillbilly Elegy" is uncomfortan often able look at a southern family about which the psychological term, dysfunctional, might be an understatement. The film fortunately has a redemptive payoff that makes sitting through all that has gone before bearable.

In "Hillbilly Elegy," J. D. Vance (Owen Asztalos as young J. D. and Gabriel Basso as adult J. D.) is the son of Bev (Amy Adams), a mother who has a drug addiction.

J.D. shuttles back and forth mostly between Bev's residences a sailor but has the heart and that of his maternal grandmother, Bonnie "Mamaw" Vance (Glenn Close as adult Mamaw and Sunny Mabrey as young Bonnie).

As befits its subject matter, "Hillbilly Elegy' is a sprawling, brawling, messy film. It's not your tidy Ron Howard movie. The direction, cinematography and editing is loosey-goosey. This creates an off-kilter emotional effect, which keeps the movie-goer wondering what crazy thing is going to happen next.

Let's put it this way: If you were ever invited to a backyard barbecue at the Vance residence, you might have wanted to plan your escape route beforehand. Then again, maybe you should have politely declined the invitation.

To go into plot details of "Hillbilly Elegy" would spoil the movie-going experience for you. Suffice it to say, there are enough plot twists and turns to fill three movies.

"Hillbilly Elegy" is powered by two powerhouse performances by two women: Glenn Close and Amy Adams, either of whom may finally receive a deserved Oscar. They are nearly unrecognizable in their roles.

Glenn Close (seven-time Oscar nominee, actress, "The Wife," 2017; "Albert Nobbs," 2011; "Dangerous Liaisons," 1988; supporting actress, Natural, "The 1984; "The Big Chill," 1983; "The World According to Garp," 1982) slouches, limps and walks crab-like as Mamaw, the roughand-tough family matriarch who may swear like of a saint.

To look up the phrase "tough love" might yield a photo of Mamaw. She resembles Popeye the Sailor, with a chaw in her mouth or perhaps dentures on a bad Poligrip day. Close has some key scenes that are unforgettable. Look for a supporting actress Oscar nomination for Close.

Amy Adams (six-time Oscar nominee, actress, "American Hustle,' 2013; supporting actress, "Vice," 2018; "The Mas-ter," 2012; "The Fight-er," 2010; "Doubt," 2008; "Junebug," 2005) as Bev rages through the film like a house on fire. She captures the self-pitying, snake-charmer, excuse-laden life of an addict.

morals, no self-governing compass to guide her. The word "no" isn't in her vocabulary. She takes down everyone around her, even if they are wearing a badge as enforcers of the peace. Look for an actress Oscar nomination for Adams.

Gabriel Basso as the adult J.D. and Owen Asztalos as young J. D. are outstanding.

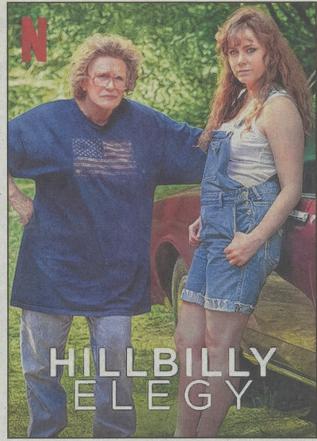

Memorable in supporting roles are Freida Pinto as Usha, J.D.'s girlfriend; Bo Hopkins as Papaw, Mamaw Vance's husband, and Haley Bennett as Lindsay Vance, J. D.'s sister.

Director Ron Howard (Two-time Oscar recipient, director, picture, "A Beautiful Mind," 2001; Two-time Oscar nominee, director, picture, "Frost/ Nixon," 2008) marshals his forces as a seasoned director and actor, no doubt recollecting the memories of his youth as Opie in Mayberry, N.C., on TV's "The Andy Griffith Show" (1960 - 1968). "Hillbilly Elegy" is more akin to the territory of Griffith's monumental performance in "A Face In The Crowd" (1957).

Howard gets up close and personal with the characters, He pulls few punches. The movie could be subtitled Ugly R Us. Flashbacks serve the story well. Look for a director Oscar nomination for Howard.

Perhaps most interestingly, "Hillbilly Elegy" is based on The New York Times bestseller, "Hill-billy Elegy: A Memoir of a Family and Culture in Crisis" (2016) by J. D. Vance. The book (and the film) take place in 1997 in Kentucky and Middletown, Ohio. Vance went on to receive a law degree from Yale University. "Hillbilly Elegy" is a peculiarly American story. Look for an adapted screenplay Oscar nomi-Bev has no remorse, no nation for the estimable Anonymous:
