Brown's aim is steady taxes

By BERNIE O'HARE
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

Northampton County Executive John Brown thinks he can make it through next year without a tax hike. He released his budget message for next year during a news conference Oct. 2 at the Centralized Human Services Building. The budget itself was released the next day and posted on Northampton County's web page.

Brown

Next year, Brown is projecting only $279.5 million in total revenue. That's a $9.4 million drop from this year, and is due primarily to cuts in human services grant funding, as well as a stagnant real estate market.

He's proposing a $334.4 million budget, a $16.2 million cut from this year. The tax rate stays steady at 10.8 mills.

It's a bare-bones budget that sets aside no money for purchases of land, despite council's See BROWN on Page A2

Dancing in the streets

The fourth annual Oktoberfest kicked off Friday with its special celebration of German culture and "much more" under the direction of ArtsQuest at its SteelStacks campus in South Bethlehem. The six-day festival, which resumes Oct. 10-12, has expanded its size and activities to coincide with a new free admission policy this year. The changes are designed to boost attendance by attracting more families and members of the Lehigh Valley community and beyond. Yuengling continues to be the principal supporter of Oktoberfest in Bethlehem. The festival's hours are 5-11 p.m. Friday, noon-11 p.m. Saturday and noon-8 p.m. Sunday. More information is available at artsquest.org/oktoberfest and 610-332-1300.

Dressed in traditional German festival attire, Greatsinger said she is a guest member of the Kastner Family Players, although she is not from Germany like those in the traveling group for festival appearances. ## Main Street paint debate

'Tiger Hall' to get facelift

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
 njastrzemski@tnonline.com

The city's Historical Review Board interjected several unplanned hearings into its preferred scheduled-only agenda Oct. 1 at city hall, but all proved brief. Despite the unplanned appearances' brevity, however, the meeting still lasted more than an hour and a half.

The committee is an advisory body to city council which works to maintain the integrity of buildings in historic districts, advising owners and residents how to make necessary or cosmetic changes while keeping with the neighborhood aesthetic.

At this meeting, committee members agreed to recommend certificates of appropriateness to council regarding a reroofing on Center Street, another on an unused old building in Union Cemetery (itself a part of the greater Nisky Hill cemetery) and the addition of a tiny "BYOB" See DEBATE on Page A2

Developing a sense of community

By KEITH ANDERSON
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

There are hundreds of beautiful towns in the United States, and each of them has a claim to fame. Whether it's the Fire Hydrant Capital of the world in Albertville, Ala.; the giant statue of Paul Bunyan welcoming visitors to Brainerd, Minn.; or the giant ice cream sundae statue in LeMars, Iowa; every city has a desire to be known for something.

It's part of what makes living in a community so special. Everyone wants to have a sense of home, a place where they can be involved and where getting to know neighbors is a blessing, not something to be avoided.

It does take some effort to create a sense of community, though. It doesn't happen without the investment of people who care. And it's always more difficult when there isn't a unifying bond, that one source who will always be there to offer a place to share ideas, offer constructive criticism, examine difficult topics, share accomplishments, remember loved ones, experience setbacks and revel in victories.

Community journalism has played this role for decades. And in the places where it exists, you will most certainly find people who care about See WEEK on Page A2

PEOPLE SAY

BY DANA GRUBB

How do you feel about the Bethlehem Parking Authority's proposal to increase parking meter tickets from $10 to $25?

"I'm not sure how anybody would be in favor of that, especially people who come to downtown Bethlehem. Will it be a detriment? I don't know, but it certainly won't help."

Bob Montgomery
Phillipsburg, N.J.

"I think it's completely ridiculous. They ticket cars all around here all of the time and make lots of money doing it. I think it's outrageous."

Martin DiMaria
Bethlehem

"They really want to deter people from coming downtown."

Arielle Brockel
Bethlehem

"We think it's too high. For people who are out of town and don't know where to park, this will discourage them from coming into town."

John and Karen Gugliotta
Hanover Township

"I think $10 is fair, but if they put it up to $25 they should be more lenient."

Mike Vanderperre
Larchmont, N.Y.

"I think it'll have a negative impact on the shopping district because it will prevent somebody like me from coming here."

decision in 2006 to set aside one-half mill every year for open space. It does still continue spending for farmland preservation at $3.9 million, although open space projects have been reduced 28 percent.

He asked department heads to come up with 10 percent in cuts and was able to realize 6 percent ($3.5 million). In his budget message, he states, "[o]ur employees are the most valuable asset we have." Forty-five percent of the budget, about $147 million, pays for the people working for the county. But he's offering no wage increases other than those already contained in previously approved union contracts. He has also reduced the county's contribution to health care for its 2,200-person workforce. Though he was unable to recall how much that saves in his news conference, the released budget shows that these controversial cuts will save only $164,500; about 0.5 percent of the budget. The budget projects total benefits cuts of $1 million.

His proposed budget includes only minimal capital improvements, although the county will continue on the work started with a 2013 bond issue for bridge reconstruction and rehabilitation, replacement of generators at the courthouse and Gracedale, and a boiler house for Gracedale.

The county contribution to Gracedale, its nursing home, is projected at $7.7 million. A $1 million increase in revenue to the home realized by patient payments is offset by $2 million in declining intergovernmental revenue.

Slots revenue from the Sands Casino, which is projected to drop to slightly under $1 million, is administered by a nine-member gaming board. The budget proposed gives the executive sole control over $3 million in table games revenue.

The most interesting feature of his budget message is a proposed $20 million line of credit. Brown downplayed this in his news conference, calling it a backup plan. His budget message states it will be used only if revenue is insufficient to support operating expenditure requirements. But it also states a line of credit is proposed to balance the budget.

Northampton County's Home Rule Charter expressly prohibits any form of borrowing to finance annual operating programs or services, with the exception of emergency borrowing. The Home Rule Charter also expressly requires a balanced budget. It states, "The total of proposed expenditures shall not exceed the total of anticipated funds available."

Several members of council have suggested that this may very well be illegal, and have asked their solicitor, Phil Lauer, to review the matter.

Brown was asked repeatedly whether this line of credit violates the Home Rule Charter requirement of a balanced budget, and he stated he would have to research that question. In his campaign literature, Brown criticized Mayor John Callahan for borrowing money. "Bottom line: if we don't have it, we shouldn't spend it. It's that simple. Recklessly spending against our children's future is wrong, and Brown will oppose any attempts to do so."

sign in a Main Street shop window.

Much of the meeting was actually focused on the painting of 518 Main St., called "Tiger Hall" for the longstanding sign on its front. Applicant Jennifer Burns said she was told - abruptly - the building had to be repainted to pass inspection before her early November purchase closing date. Acting swiftly, she arrived at the meeting with a painter and designer and hoping to clear the unexpected hurdle and move on to the next.

After nearly 20 minutes of discussion about the paint scheme - the brand, number and use of colors in what places with consideration to shadows across the building's surface throughout the day - committee member and former painter Holly Sachdev offered to give Burns' bunch a quick hand while other business was attended to.

When they returned, the scheme was mapped out and discussed a bit more and then quickly approved to help Burns complete her closing. She was told council will likely review her proposal Oct. 20.

In the interim, a resident hoping to open a salon on East Broad Street sought permission for signage. She was immediately told the lot in question was not within the historic district and she only needed to go to zoners. Laughing, the woman quickly gathered up her belongings and said, "Even though I'm a young resident, I'm glad you do this every month - take pride in the history of Bethlehem."

With hasty thanks she dashed from the Rotunda for another office.

others and are willing to invest their time and talents to improve their communities.

A few years ago a Lions club in a small town in rural Minnesota decided it would cover the expense to send any interested World War II veterans from the area to the World War II Memorial in Washington, D.C. The one-day trip to the memorial did not cost the more than 100 veterans a dime. But the planning and fundraising for this trip took months of effort and involved hundreds of people, including school children, local businesses, parents, churches, an airline, a hospital and dozens of volunteers. It was the community's way of thanking those proud veterans for the tremendous sacrifices performed so long ago.

The local newspaper covered the event; from the moment the idea was announced, through all the fundraising efforts, to the day veterans boarded buses for the airport. The paper was there during the eerie silence on the airplane during the journey to our nation's Capitol, and finally at the memorial, where old men wept and leaned on thick slabs of granite where names of fallen soldiers were etched. A lifetime of captured emotion flowed that day as men were reduced to children and silent pride was replaced with protected tears. It was the type of story few reporters ever have a chance to share or experience, but more importantly, it was the kind of story parents, schoolchildren, volunteers, business owners, doctors and nurses and perhaps most importantly, those veterans, wanted to share.

They needed a way to experience this event which crossed generations and created strong bonds. Veterans may not have realized they needed to share their stories and accept the appreciation of an entire region - until that day. It was a perfect moment in time where a community was able to reach out and change the final days of life for tired men who had given so much and asked for so little.

The paper was naturally the place where a community turned to share its stories, to announce its fundraisers, to share met goals, to list the names of those making the trip, to thank donors, to detail travel plans, to seek volunteers, to plan welcome home events and finally to share the event through photos, letters and messages.

Newspapers have a tremendous role in small and large communities across this country. We hold elected officials accountable so they truly represent the best interests of our communities. We demand transparency in a time when often it seems much easier for some decision-makers to operate in the margins. We offer insight on political races and we seek advice from local experts who can share experience with our readers. We report on and lead discussions that seek to improve our schools and we share stories of selfless leaders who otherwise go unnoticed. We are a target when it's necessary and a beacon in darkness. It is a tremendous responsibility, but one journalists embrace because we know there is so much at stake when it comes to our communities.

Community journalism isn't about paper and ink or websites and unique visitors. It's not about awards for writing or quotes that sting.

Community journalism is a living, breathing, shared connection of people which propels us to take chances, to realize life is not always safe, clean and tidy, but that through our connection there is plenty to celebrate and adventures to explore.

There are challenges ahead, just as there have been obstacles in the past. But there is also tremendous opportunity just waiting to be shared.

Together, we are community.

Jesus Stopped A Suicide Bomber

A "JESUS" film team went into a village in a dangerous, mountainous area with a DVD of "JESUS," part of the JESUS Film Project, a ministry of Cru. The team gathered about 250 into a community hall. They plugged a small DVD player into a television and closed the windows for secrecy. It was crowded and the screen was relatively small, but everyone stayed and watched the entire film on the life of Christ.

Suddenly, a man sitting on the floor stood. He opened his shirt so all could see. Strapped to his chest were explosives—a suicide vest. Panic set in. "Wait...wait! Don't leave. I'm not going to blow myself up. I need to tell you what just happened. I heard that you were going to show a blasphemous film. My leaders agreed you should die. I strapped on this bomb and came to kill you all. When the film started I reached for the detonator and tried to push the button. But as I watched the film, Jesus turned and pointed right at me. He called my name and said, 'Don't do that...follow Me.' Over and over I tried. Every time I reached for the button He pointed to me and said, 'Don't do that...follow Me.' My hand froze every time. I couldn't move my thumb. I gave up and just stayed to watch. Now I believe. I want Jesus to be my Savior. Can you help me know more about Him?"

The team leader said, "Yes, but first you must take off that vest!" He went out of the building far away and took it off. When he returned, the team prayed for him, but that's not all. The people had learned of the truth of the gospel for the first time ever. Further, they were amazed by this man's testimony. He was a radical who would stop at nothing. They knew they had just seen a miracle. When the team leader asked who wanted to receive Christ and pray, everyone did—all of them! The next day, 250 new believers were baptized in their new faith, including the man with the suicide vest!

SOUTH BETHLEHEM

Benner proposes 9-story project

By KRISTINE PORTER
Special to the Bethlehem Press

For two-and-a-half hours, members of the Southside Historic Architecture Review Board, community and developer Dennis Benner debated the demolition of 24 W. Fourth St. in Bethlehem and the construction of a nine-story mixed use, commercial building in its place. The meeting took so long that the Banana Factory, where the meeting was held, closed, and the fates of the issues were left to a continuance.

When asked how the lack of a decision affects a construction schedule, Benner initially said the project has taken so long a little more time wasn't important, but upon reflecting on it further changed his mind.

"It will affect me in major ways," he said.

Benner came to the board wanting to expand the building to cover both 24 and 30 W. Fourth St. Demolition of the latter property had already been approved. He also asked to increase the height from the previously approved seven stories to a nine-story building.

"This is a very high class project," Benner said in place of how much the building would cost to construct. He said he wants to use the CRIZ (City Revitalization Improvement Zone) tax incentive to help with funding of the project.

At the meeting, Benner told the board, "I want to take you folks to a new place... to a renaissance, to the Southside renaissance."

He told the board he doesn't want to try to recreate something that is long gone.

"I want to have a town that starts at 5 o'clock,

The property at 24 W. Fourth Street that would be demolished to make room for a nine-story mixed use structure. The current property would require more than $300,000 in repairs.

not stops," he said.

Benner believes a night life in Southside will jolt the economy. He wants to construct buildings that will attract people to the businesses and create a college town where the business district and university flow into one another. And students commonly patronize the businesses.

Beth Starbucks, chair for the historic board, said, "We definitely want a vibrant downtown on the Southside," but she stressed it was the strict standards of historic preservation that has enabled the north side to maintain its historic look.

"The north side has 15 percent higher (property) values because of the strictness," she said.

In reply, Benner said, "Why is it that the north side has developed and the south side hasn't? There are grand old homes over there."

The building plans at issue would include a commercial front on the first floor, followed by several floors of multiple apartments and a penthouse on the top. Board member Christine Ussler read a description of the ninth-floor explaining that it would be recessed by five feet on all four sides in order to reduce the perception of height.

Board member Greg Lader explained that the height of the building would be 85 feet to the edge where the recess begins. The overall height would be 96 feet tall. The length of the building would be approximately 120 feet with a narrower width. The former Bethlehem Steel SGO building is 13 stories, Ussler said, and the Bethlehem Steel building that now houses Northampton Community College's Fowler Southside Center is 75 feet tall. In the area of the proposed building, the church spire nearby reaches a height comparable to the height of the proposed building, she said.

Starbucks explained to the community members attending the meeting that this height was being considered because of the history of tall buildings in south side Bethlehem.

Seth Moglen, a professor at Lehigh University, addressed the board and Benner saying, "The renaissance of south side Bethlehem has happened. We are actually making it happen. I suspect there's a pretty strong consensus know the future vitality of the community is tied to the historic preservation. Is there anyone on the board who thinks nine stories might be right for that spot?"

No one on the board spoke up in favor for that height.

As far as preservation of the building considered for demolition, Ussler read a description that noted that the property is condemned, the foundation is crumbling and the floors are not stable.

Jim Eck, president of Quadratus Construction in Allentown, spoke to the board on behalf of Benner about the condition of the building. Eck said there is deterioration inside and out, joint issues and insect damage. He ventured to the second and third floors, but did not go onto the floors because they are not stable.

Starbucks asked him if the building could be repaired, and he answered yes.

"The biggest challenge is what we uncover as we work," he said.

Eck said the base price for refurbishing the building is about $360,000.

Board member Carolyn Facchiano said she thinks they should consider that if Benner would be able to get his money out of the investment by not only paying for the property,

STATE POLICE

DUI

Colonial Regional Police arrested a 47-year-old man following a report of a reckless driver on Route 191 around 8:30 p.m. Oct. 1.

According to police, Bryan Cowan of Easton Avenue in Bethlehem was observed swerving his vehicle back and forth on the road, passing through a red light and nearly striking another vehicle.

Upon being approached by officers, Cowan allegedly appeared highly intoxicated and said, "I screwed up. I'm drunk."

Cowan was taken to St. Luke's University Hospital for treatment and is charged with DUI.

Shoplifting

Lower Saucon Township Police arrested Javier Ortiz, 39, of Livingston Street in Bethlehem, following multiple alleged thefts from a Route 378 Radio Shack.

Officers responded to a report of a man throwing unusual objects into a public trash bins where they found a gray hoodie, ball cap and empty mobile phone cases.

Police confirmed with a store employee a man of Ortiz' description and dress had been inside and acting strangely. They confronted Ortiz and he allegedly admitted to the theft of two phones. An investigation determined he also stole two Bluetooth devices two weeks earlier.

For the nearly $400 in stolen items, combined with multiple previous convictions for theft, Ortiz is charged with receiving stolen property, retail theft and possession instruments of crime (box-cutters to remove security tags).

He was committed to Northampton County Prison in lieu of $20,000 bail.

DUI

Lower Suacon Township police conducting a sobriety checkpoint Sept. 6 arrested a Bethlehem resident for suspected intoxicated driving.

Julian Laslo, of Woodfield Drive, passed the checkpoint around 2 a.m., allegedly smelled strongly of alcohol and showed signs of impairment.

Laslo failed field sobriety tests and is charged with DUI.

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY OPEN GATE FARM TOUR

Sat., October 11 & Sun., October 12, 2014
1:00 - 5:00 p.m.

Agriculture in Northampton County has many faces. Take advantage of this once-a-year opportunity to learn about local agriculture during the Open Gate Farm Tour sponsored by Penn State Extension in Northampton County. This annual event has been conducted in Northampton County for over 40 years. There is no charge to go to any of these sites. Visit as many or as few as you like. Bring your family to any of these locations on Saturday, October 11th and Sunday, October 12th between the hours of 1:00 and 5:00 p.m. It's rain or shine. Dress casually and enjoy the weekend! Look for the number on the sign that coincides with the number listed below.

The Open Gate Farm Tour is part of Penn State Extension's program in Northampton County. For more information on this and other programs, contact us at 610-746-1970.

1. AMORE FARMS, 7054 Beth Bath Pike, Bath, PA 18014
2. BAARDA FARM, 1566 River Road, Mount Bethel, PA 18343
3. BURNSIDE PLANTATION, 1461 Schoenersville Road, Bethlehem, PA 18018- Only October 12th
4. BUZAS GREENHOUSE AND FARM, 3927 Newburg Road, Easton, PA 18045
5. CLEAR SPRING FARM, 206 Garr Road, Easton, PA 18040 - Clear Spring Farm is a 23-acre vegetable and pumpkin farm. They have been running a CSA (community supported agriculture) for ten years. They will offer walking tours of the farm to the pumpkin patch. They have three high tunnel greenhouses for season extension of their products. You will be able to check out the high tunnels where they will be starting their strawberries for early picking. They also have a farmstand on site. Follow Uhler Road toward Martins Creek, past Forks Equipment. Take the next left onto Ayers Road (sign), bear two hard rights. The farm is on the left.
6. EASTON URBAN FARM, 902 Philadelphia Road, Easton, PA 18042
7. GRAVER FARMSTEAD, 820 South Delps Road, Bath, PA 18014 - Graver Farmstead is a preserved family farm raising grass-fed beef and natural pork. Visit with the animal families, take a look at the high tunnel and vegetables, watch the bale wrapper work, and ponder over the various old farm hand tools found on the farm. Learn about farm conservation practices, crop production for the grass-fed beef, rotational grazing, and herd management. Take Route 987 north from Bath. Go straight through the stop sign at the intersection of Routes 987 and 946. Turn on Point Phillips Road at Klecknersville. Take the first left on South Delps Road. The farm is 1/2 mile on the right.
8. JUNIPERDALE FARMS, 1015 Browntown Road, Nazareth, PA 18064 - Juniperdale Farms is a 20-acre fruit and vegetable farm with a variety of field crops. This is a family farm run by Brian and Eva Fulmer with their children, nieces and nephews. They have a high tunnel to start selling vegetables earlier in the season and a few beef animals. During strawberry season, they have a pick-your-own strawberry patch. In fall, they offer pick-your-own pumpkins and hayrides to the patch. The nearest highway is Route 33. If coming from Route 22 or I-78, take Route 33 north to the Belfast exit. When you come to a four-way stop, turn left and go about 1/2 mile. Turn right on Fulmer Road. From I-80, take Route 33 south to Route 512 exit. Take left on Route 512 to light and take a right. Proceed two miles and turn left on Fulmer Road.
9. KLEIN FARMS, 410 Klein Road, Easton, PA 18040
10. POINT PHILLIP PERENNIALS, 2764 West Scenic Drive, Danielsville, PA 18038

Zoners grant relief to three homeowners

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

CITY

Though Bethlehem's Zoning Hearing Board is known for five and six hour meetings, a light agenda and little controversy made for a quick meeting on Aug. 24. Three homeowners were granted relief in about an hour.

This winter, Otilia and Raymond Rivera will have a carport over an existing asphalt pad at their 1427 Chelsea Ave. home. Rivera, an ER physician's assistant, told zoners that last winter the heavy and frequent snow convinced him he needed to do something. His neighbor, Charles Bickert, agreed. "He works in a hospital and has to get out," Bickert noted. "This is a benefit to everyone."

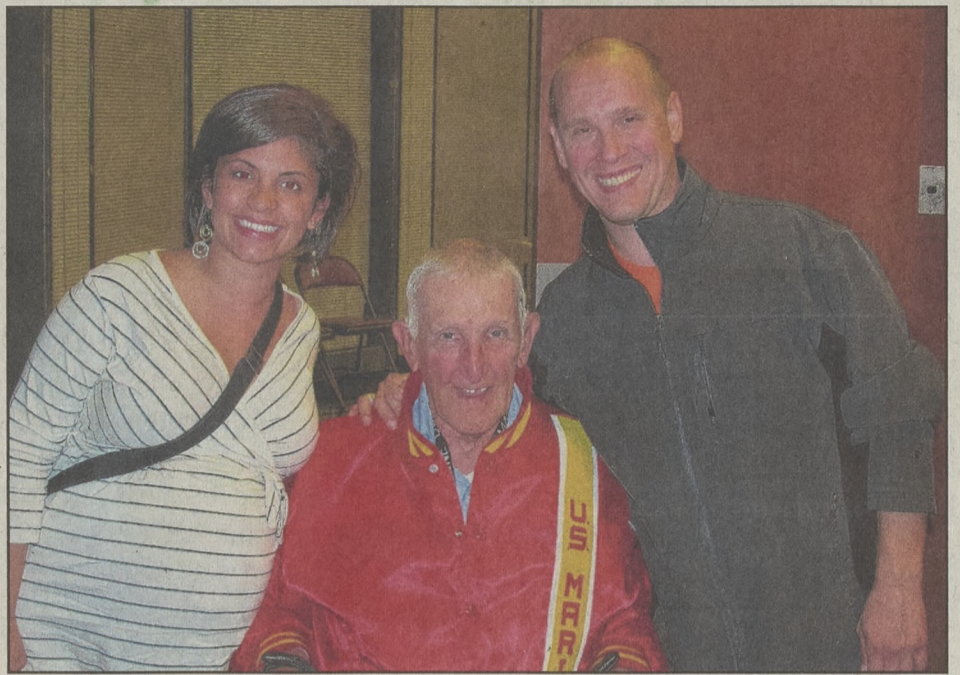

In the second matter, Ann Miller was granted permission to run her life and health insurance business from her home, something known in zoning parlance as a major home occupation. Zoners also waived a requirement that she provide an additional parking spot on her property. Though Bill Scheier lives more than a mile away from Miller, he objected to relief. In addition to claiming he never saw the posted notice, he warned zoners that her office would be too close to nearby Calypso ES.

Denying any desire to disparage Miller's clientele, he nevertheless complained. "Society has an ongoing problem with people hanging around schools," said Scheier. Miller, who testified that she posted her property, was corroborated by her sole employee. She ignored Scheier's other accusation, and Scheier produced no evidence that her clients are in any way unusual.

The final matter considered was an expansion at 2111 Boyd St.

Owner Francis Macklin's proposed master bedroom will make his home extend two feet closer to the adjoining rear property than is allowed under the zoning ordinance. Macklin explained that his backyard is fenced, and there are 15 18-foot arborvitae trees between his and the rear property.

Despite being wheelchair bound, Charles Bickert (center) asked zoners to grant relief to his neighbors, Otilia and Raymond Rivera.

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY County council condemns Easton's commuter tax

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Unlike Bethlehem, Easton imposes an unpopular commuter tax, more technically called a non-resident wage tax, on people who work but don't live in the city. This 1.75 percent tax is a drain on the income of many of the 900 county employees who work at the courthouse.

When it was imposed in 2012, Northampton County Council adopted a resolution condemning it as a form of taxation without representation.

It took no other action despite a criticism from Easton Mayor Sal Panto. "If you want to live in the lily white beautiful suburban community, you have to do something to pay for that," he said, and even encouraged the county body to leave his city. "The county can continue to threaten to leave and I say 'Go ahead,'" he taunted.

The county did move out of the Governor Wolf Building, and now Panto has proposed increasing the commuter tax to 1.95 percent. This time, howev-

SAUCON VALLEY Reading program selected

By MARK RECCEK
mreccek@nonline.com

Saucon Valley officials hope a literacy program will help students read on grade level by the third grade.

At the Sept. 23 board meeting, district Superintendent Monica McHale-Small told board members the program is needed.

"The single largest predictor of whether or not a student will graduate on time is how close they are to reading on grade level by third grade," she said.

The program will be funded by a $110,000 Ready to Learn state grant. The grant will allow the district to purchase the Superkids program. The program helps children read and comprehend the text in a book.

"The program is very engaging," McHale-Small said.

Saucon Valley ES Principal Cindy Motter noted third-grade state standardized test scores have taken a hit from 92 percent in 2009 to 78 percent in 2013.

McHale-Small said she used the program in the previous school district she worked in. Motter agreed, saying, "The results are unmatched by any other program."

The district hopes to begin the program in January.

TAX

er, the county might do a bit more than issue a condemnation.

That's because on the day before Panto announced his tax hike, a judge determined that Scranton's commuter tax is illegal. At the suggestion of District Attorney John Morganelli, Brown has agreed to review the tax to determine whether it should be challenged.

Northampton County Council has decided to send a message, too.

At its Oct. 2 meeting, as Mayor Panto stood in the back of Courtroom #1, Northampton County Council voted unanimously to condemn the commuter tax and the proposed increase. It also requested Executive John Brown take all actions to prevent the tax's collection, including the suspension of collection and the filing of a declaratory judgment action.

"We fought wars over this," complained Controller Steve Barron, who pledged to join in any law suit filed by the county. "Stop collecting it," he suggested. "Let him sue us." Panto had nothing to say in response to the unanimous vote. But he has previously stated that, without the tax, Easton will go bankrupt.

The resolution, proposed by Republican Peg Ferraro and Democrat Ken Kraft, is nonbinding, but is a rare sign of bipartisan unity.

In addition to legal concerns, the resolution points out that a 14-year phased reduction of the wage tax in Philadelphia has resulted in a steady increase in jobs.

DISTRICT 11 TENNIS
Peterson earns silver

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Liberty High School's number one singles player, Samantha Peterson, took the silver medal at the District XI Girls Singles Tennis Championships at Lehigh University on Monday.

"I really didn't expect it [to get to finals]. Second's not too bad," Peterson said.

The singles tournament began last week at Saucon Valley High School where Peterson defeated Emmaus's Elise VanOrmer, 6-3, 6-2, and Nazareth's Amber Achenbach, 6-1, 6-1.

In the quarterfinal match, Peterson went to three sets with Southern Lehigh's Katie Cole, ultimately winning, 2-6, 7-5, 6-2.

"In the second set, I was down 4 to love, but I had a triple match point. Somehow, I tried to stay in the match and eventually caught up," said Peterson. "I injured my leg toward the end of the second set, but it actually made me focus on something else."

The semifinal match, Peterson's second of the day, resulted in a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Northampton's Emma Angle.

"I was definitely really tired. She has deep, solid ground strokes, so I kept it deep and moved her around," Peterson said.

Monday's final at Lehigh University pitted Peterson, the number three seed, against Southern Lehigh's Nina DeLuna, the number one seed.

"I knew she was really good. I hit the night before at Liberty and worked on hitting good strokes," said Peterson.

Peterson ultimately lost, 6-0, 6-0.

Coach Leo Schnalzer said, "Sam hit a lot of good backhands to stay in the point. I think [winning] game 4 in the first set and game 1 in the second set [Peterson's strongest] would have made a difference in the match."

DISTRICT 11 GOLF CHAMPIONSHIPS

Maff wins 2A golf title

Pates Juhasz falls in playoff for 3A title

By TODD KRESS
Special to the Press

Bethlehem Catholic's Nick Maff grabbed attention across the Lehigh Valley golf scene when he won a district championship two years ago as a freshman.

That's when the district tournament played 27 holes instead of the current 18-hole format. That's also when Becahi was slated in Class AAA competition.

But while the number of holes changed, and Becahi dropped to AA, Maff's performance didn't alter much from two years ago.

In fact, it was on the same greens of Shawnee Inn and Golf Resort that Maff was able to capture his second district title with a 2-over par 74 on Monday afternoon.

"Freshman year, I shot four-under [par]," Maff said, who finished with a 104 on 27 holes two years ago. "I knew that would have been a tough task to do again. Of course I wanted to win, but I wanted to take it one shot at a time, and shoot as low as I could."

After winning as a freshman, Maff took fourth last season in Class AAA competition with a score of 77. He improved that finish by three strokes, and a large part of that was due to his consistent play across the round.

"It felt good because I really struck the ball well," Maff said. "I missed a lot of putts and left a lot of strokes out there, but I'm glad I grinded it out."

"I really just kept the ball in play. I didn't make a lot of big mistakes, and when I did make a mistake, I didn't compound See Golf on Page A11

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL WEEK 6

Pates, Hawks unbeaten

Pates survive vs. Dieruff

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

A 14-0 third quarter deficit to Dieruff was the last thing on the mind for anyone in Freedom's football program, but the Patriots escaped last Friday's tussle with the Huskies unscathed in the loss department, as the Patriots scored 21 unanswered points in the final 16 minutes of the contest to keep their undefeated record going at 6-0.

However, as head coach Jason Roeder admitted his team walked away with "a sense of relief," the end product is not how Roeder envisioned a contest against a 2-4 opponent unfolding.

"I think one thing we were good at the first four weeks of the season was not turning the ball over,"

Roeder said. "We turned it over last week and we had two fumbles this week. We also had too many penalties (16-for-130 yards) that came at crucial times."

"It just seemed like everything went bad at the same time, so we come out of this game with a sense of relief."

Dieruff got the scoring started in the second quarter off a four-yard touchdown run by Devonte Robinson to take a 7-0 lead into halftime.

Robinson gave Dieruff a shocking 14-0 lead with 4:20 left in the third quarter off a one-yard plunge, but that's when Freedom's offense finally hit pay dirt, as quarterback Joe Young ran from eight yards out for the Pates first score of the game.

On Dieruff's next play from scrimmage, Joe Young intercepted Huskies' quarterback Chris Marks and returned it 26-yards to even the score at 14 apiece with 1:05 left in the third quarter.

Roberto Diez scored the eventual game-winner from a yard out to push Freedom ahead 21-14 in the fourth.

The Huskies committed five turnovers on the night to help Freedom's cause, as the Patriots hit the road Friday night for a huge matchup against Whitehall (5-1).

The Zephyrs are coming off a 63-49 defeat at Easton last week and Roeder knows this is a massive test for his squad at Zephyr Stadium.

Becahi wins despite issues on defense

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Bethlehem Catholic defeated East Stroudsburg North 41-24 last week, but that doesn't mean everything is bliss in Golden Hawk land.

The Hawks improved to 6-0 on the season, but their defense continues to be an area of concern after giving up 362 yards on the ground last week to a 2-4 ESN team.

Head coach Joe Henrich sees the struggles first hand and hopes his team can get back to playing fundamental football on the defensive side.

"I wasn't thrilled with how we played," said Henrich of last week's win. "I thought we were sloppy. We executed well offensively, but had problems with our defensive responsibilities. We've had two starting linebackers out with injuries, which plays a role in our struggles on defense, but when you rely on your offense so much, you need the defensive side of the ball to get better."

Elijah McBride and Thomas Melchion each ran for 128 yards apiece last week against the Hawks in the surprising rushing effort ESN was able to sustain off the Hawks, considering that they only completed one of five passes through the air last week.

Hawks' quarterback Julian Spigner was consistent and effective as usual, going 15-of-23 for 242 yards and three touchdowns. Michael McDaniel added 96 yards on the ground and two scores to give Becahi balance, but having ESN essentially run the ball down the Hawks' throat 53 times last week, the cause for concern is evident.

The Hawks travel to Pocono Mountain East (1-5) this Friday, but have a looming matchup with Stroudsburg (6-0) the following week.

Keeping his team focused on the task at hand, is the biggest obstacle for Henrich this week.

"We are constantly talking about the here and now," he said. "I'm not sure if the kids always get their mindsets in the right mental state. Sometimes they think how they want and that can get you into trouble. I think that's played some part in our season."

VOLLEYBALL

Hawks, 'Canes set for EPC tourney

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

The final week of the volleyball season is upon us, but the inaugural East Penn Conference volleyball tournament will kick off this Saturday.

Bethlehem Catholic and Liberty both have clinched league tournament berths heading into this week, as Becahi (13-1) should grab the second seed in the tournament.

Liberty's (11-4) position in the EPC tournament is still up in the air, as the Hurricanes entered this week as the fourth seed after Becahi's three-game sweep over Liberty on Monday night.

Hawks head coach Paul Abi-Daher is hoping to finish this week strong heading into the start of the weekend tournament.

"We're welcoming the competition the EPC tournament can bring us," said Abi-Daher. "That's how I look at it. We want to finish strong this week and use this as a spring board for the league playoffs. We look forward to the league playoffs, because we won't see any of those teams in the district tournament, so it's really a launching pad for us."

Becahi finishes this week off with Easton and Allen, two matches they should come away with comfortable victories, which is something that has been a common theme for the Hawks this season.

Abi-Daher's team has rarely been tested this season, as only Central Catholic and Liberty have taken games from them this season, as the Hawks have swept every other opponent.

That has helped Becahi to their current mark, but Abi-Daher also wishes their was more competitive balance in the new EPC.

"I mean you look at a team like Central Catholic, who may not even make the league playoffs because they're in such a tough division," he said. "In most of our matches, teams are only able to score 15 points a game against us, so we're winning comfortably. I think we should just play everyone once in the league to make the schedule weighted. It's one of the reasons we're looking forward to the EPC tournament, because we want to play some more competition."

The EPC semifinals are slated for October 14 and the finals on October 16.

Freedom (7-8) swept Allen on Monday night to inch themselves closer to a district berth, as the Patriots will need to beat Liberty tonight to qualify for districts.

SOCCER

Pates clinch D-11 berth

By CHRISTA EATON
Special to the Press

This week for the Freedom girls' soccer team did not start out the way they wanted it to.

After suffering another 4-1 loss to Easton where Kiera Pheiffer scored the only goal for Freedom, the Pates were now focused on playing Liberty.

The game started out slowly for the girls after giving up a goal in the first half. Pheiffer scored again for the Patriots but in the last minute of the game, Liberty scored to win 2-1.

After their disappointing loss to rival Liberty, the Patriots came out hard against Dieruff. The Pates scored eight goals in the first half including three by Jaiden Coyne and two by Giselle Sanchez to lead the Patriots to a victory.

Freedom only needed one more win to get into districts as they went on to face Bethlehem Catholic. The Pates had multiple contributors in their 4-0 win over the Hawks.

Now that the Patriots have clinched a playoff spot, they will focus on their last two games of the regular season.

The girls start out the week by playing William Allen and then their final game against cross town rival: Liberty.

Liberty girls celebrate a victory over Freedom.

LHS girls get thrilling win

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Liberty's girls soccer team won in dramatic fashion over Freedom in the first game of a girl-boy doubleheader last week when Olivia Askernese scored the game-winning goal with 48 seconds left in regulation to pull out the 2-1 Hurricane victory.

Cailey Sanchez was credited with the assist after getting the ball on the 40 yard line and kicking it through two Freedom defenders.

Sanchez said, "We were so excited. We knew we had it then."

The Hurricanes did not want to repeat last year's overtime game when the Patriots scored and won within seconds.

"From that experience, we knew we couldn't put our heads down. We still had to bring it to them tonight," said Sanchez.

Liberty's boys also defeated Freedom, 3-0. The game ended with 6:35 left in regulation, however, due to lightning.

Sammy Abiles, who scored one goal and had two assists, said, "It was a great feeling because of the rivalry."

Teammate Chase Tackett agreed.

"We knew going out

Freedom's Adam Capuano looks to keep the ball away from a sliding Michael Visperas of Liberty during their recent contest.

that we were going to put a couple of goals away. Freedom's our biggest rival, and it was a good feeling in front of a big crowd," said Tackett.

The following day, the Hurricane boys took on Easton, losing 1-0.

Tackett said, "We took them lightly today."

Earlier in the season, Liberty defeated Easton, 5-2.

"Our intensity wasn't strong enough. It was just one of our down days," said Tackett.

With 45 seconds left in regulation, Marcus Gichiengo appeared to have scored a goal, but a handball was called. Two more attempts were made to score by Colin McIntyre and Tackett.

"We were unlucky, and we need to win out the rest of the week," Tackett said.

Freedom High School's number one singles player, Flannery Johnston, and Liberty High School's number two singles player, Madelyn Conrad, made it to the quarterfinal round in the District XI Girls Singles Tennis Tournament last week at Saucon Valley High School.

Conrad began the tournament with a win over Pocono Mountain West's Jolanta Dzimira, 6-0, 6-0, and a second win over Parkland's Shelby Knafo, 6-4, 6-4.

"I had more confidence in the second set [against Shelby Knafo] because I won the first set. I came up to the net more. I was trying to be more aggressive because she basically got everything back to me," Conrad said.

In Conrad's quarterfinal match, the Liberty junior lost to number one seeded, Nina DeLuna from Southern Lehigh, 6-0, 6-0.

"She was really consistent and has a nice serve when she gets it in," said Conrad.

Conrad will move on to the District XI Girls Doubles Tennis Tournament with teammate Samantha Peterson.

"We play well together. We're good friends. Last year we made it to the top eight. We've been taking doubles lessons together. Hopefully, we'll do pretty well," Conrad said.

Johnston, a Freedom High senior, defeated Stroudsburg's Sophia Restock, 6-0, 6-0 in the first round, and Easton's Cynthia Blay, 6-2, 6-1 in the second round.

In the quarterfinal, Johnston lost to Northampton's Emma Angle, 6-2, 7-6 (7-4).

Fitch, Alpaugh go 1-2

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

A fight to the finish for second place resulted in Liberty's Alex Fitch crossing the finish line one second before Freedom's Will Alpaugh in the neighboring rivals' cross country meet last week at Illicks Mill.

Fitch's time was 16:41, and Alpaugh's was 16:42. Pleasant Valley's Seth Slavin won the boys meet in 16:14.

As a team, Liberty defeated Pleasant Valley, 20-38, and Stroudsburg, 16-45, and Freedom defeated Pleasant Valley, 25-31, and Stroudsburg, 22-34. Bethlehem Catholic also competed, losing to Pleasant Valley, 21-39, and Stroudsburg, 21-36.

Will Masemore placed 4th in 17:23, Jonah George was 5th in 17:39, and Robert Appleby placed 6th in 17:40, all for the Hurricanes.

Freedom sophomore, Isaac Gross, placed 8th in 17:44.

"I normally try to stay with Jonah George from Liberty because I normally get out to a faster start than him, but he has a kick in the race. I tried to push it more on the hills here, and I tried to use the sidewalk to pick it up. At the sidewalk, [teammate] Tom Salerno picked it up, so I stayed with him. We had some injuries [on the team], so I had to step it up a little bit," Gross said.

Andrew Shaffer from Bethlehem Catholic placed 9th in 17:52, Salerno was 10th in 18:02, and Liberty senior, Josh Ledyard placed 11th in 18:03.

Ledyard said, "Obviously, you try not to go out too fast, but you've got to weave your way up there, and not get stuck behind people. I didn't run in spikes, and that helps, running on concrete. I passed two Stroudsburg kids on the uphill. They went too hard on the downhill. I would have liked to get under 18:00, but my Freedom time [at last week's meet at Freedom] was under 18:00, but I'm happy."

Also for the Hurricanes, Brendan Reilly placed 14th in 18:13, and Bryce Orloski was 15th in 18:18 for Becahi.

Freedom and Bethlehem Catholic's girls cross country teams split in their meets against Pleasant Valley and Stroudsburg, while Liberty lost to both the Bears and the Mountaineers last week.

Freedom senior, Shaina Palmer, won the meet with a time of 19:05 in the Patriots 26-30 victory over Pleasant Valley, and in their 27-28 loss to Stroudsburg.

Palmer said, "I changed my strategy. I wanted to stay with the front and let them pace me."

Liberty's Raisa Kochmaruk, who won last week's meet when Palmer placed second, was the biggest threat.

"I saw an opportunity when she slowed down a little at the top of the last hill, so I took that opportunity to make some space. I wasn't sure if I was going to hold her off," said Palmer.

Kochmaruk came in second with a time of 19:10, although Liberty's girls lost to the Bears, 26-30, and the Mountaineers, 23-34.

Finishing in 3rd place was Bethlehem Catholic's Kassi Yocco in 19:43. Rowan Pepe placed 6th in 20:34, Lauren Bunke was 10th in 21:25, and Samantha Kaeser placed 17th in 22:21, all for the Hawks.

Kaeser said, "I was kind of in between two packs. Usually, I just gauge myself with the Liberty or Freedom girl in front of or behind me. The girl from Freedom was right in front of me, and I tried to push it, so no one would pass me. I felt like I was more mentally prepared today."

Becahi defeated Pleasant Valley, 25-30, and tied with Stroudsburg, 29-29.

it. I just got the ball back in play."

Maff-who will advance to regional play shot a 1-under par on the first 11 holes.

Becahi's J.T. Barker finished right behind Maff in Class AA competition with a 4-over par 76. He is one of four individual golfers from AA boys that advanced to regionals.

In Class AAA competition, Freedom's Zach Juhasz shot a 1-over par 73 to position himself among the top of the pack once the scores trickled in. Unfortunately, Northampton's Carter Test shot a 73 as well to force a playoff hole to determine the first-place finisher.

And after the two double-bogeyed on the first playoff hole, Test edged out Juhasz for the championship on the next green. Juhasz finished second and is one of six Class AAA boys to advance onto regionals.

"Coming in, I tried to go as low as I could because it's my last year, and I was just trying to win it," Juhasz said. "It was a hard course today. The wind played a big factor, but it was a lot of fun."

Juhasz finished with two birdies, 13 pars and three bogeys.

Freedom's Helen Hsu earned a second-consecutive second-place finish at districts with a round of 78, the best score she has shot at Shawnee. Last year, she came up short to Emmaus' Kelsey Patterson. This year, it was a different Hornet-AAA champion Sam Fritzingier, who shot a 75.

For Hsu, her main focus was to keep her golf season alive by finishing as one of the top three girls in AAA competition, and advancing to regionals once again.

"I just wanted to play well," Hsu said. "I shot a 39 and a 39, so I think that was pretty stable. I topped three balls and got nervous for a little bit, but then I was all right."

Hsu finished with one birdie on the day.

Central Catholic's Franca Hurtado earned first in AA girls competition with an 84. Emmaus won the AAA team championships with a score of 315, while Moravian Academy's total of 323 was 48 strokes better than Mahanoy Area for first in AA.

Freedom's John Yocum (82), Liberty's Vinny Marfisi (82), Liberty's Jacob Siegfried (87), Liberty's Morgan Krause (104) and Bethlehem Catholic's Alexa Bartos (120) rounded out the area's finishers.

for the opportunity to play against a team like Whitehall and to play for first place in the conference," he said. "We really have to be solid in all three aspects of the game this week. Easton's a good football team and they did some nice things to Whitehall, but we know we have to play better."

"We've shown what we're capable of doing this year when we play well and then we've had some weeks where we haven't been as sharp. I think all our guys will be ready for this one."

Liberty

Liberty (3-3) dropped a 31-10 result to Parkland last week, as the Trojans bounced back from their first loss last week.

The Hurricanes trailed 17-10 at halftime, but saw Parkland score two second half touchdowns to pull away.

Liberty was hampered

Josiah Wright and the 'Canes saw Parkland pull away after a close first half.

by four turnovers on the night, including three interceptions from quarterback Doug Erney, who went 12-of-25 for 143 yards and a touchdown.

The Hurricanes only managed seven first downs and were stifled on the ground, as they had just 14 rushing yards.

Parkland's ground game kept them going, as the Trojans reeled off 312 yards, led by Nolan Ridgway's 175 yards and one touchdown effort.

Trojan quarterback Devante Cross added 69 yards on the ground and two touchdowns to go along with his 116 yards through the air and another score.

Liberty moves on to play Northampton (1-5) this week in a contest that should get them above the .500 mark.

Pete's Top-10: Easton vs. Parkland

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

If there's one thing we learned last week, it's that Shane Simpson wants people to remember him too. After scoring seven touchdowns against Whitehall and solidifying bragging rights for the rest of his life in male conversations, Simpson and Easton have proven that they're capable of anything.

And one thing they're also capable of is losing to Parkland. Remember, we're talking about high school football players here. Check out this week's top ten.

1. Easton (6-0)
Last week's rank: #2
Rovers won't score over 30 this week.
The Pick: Parkland 31 - Easton 28
2. Whitehall (5-1)
Last week's rank: #1
Zephyrs rebound at home.
The Pick: Whitehall 38 - Freedom 21
3. Parkland (5-1)
Last week's rank: #3
Remember we're dealing with high school kids here. Trojans should have a chip on their shoulder.
The Pick: Parkland 31 - Easton 28
4. Freedom (6-0)
Last week's rank: #4
Pates may be in trouble heading down the stretch.
The Pick: Whitehall 38 - Freedom 21
5. Bethlehem Catholic (6-0)
Last week's rank: #5
Golden Hawks defense is shaky.
The Pick: Becahi 56 - Pocono Mt East 20

6. Northwestern (6-0)
Last week's rank: #6
Tigers keep their stake on the Colonial League.
The Pick: Northwestern 30 - Solehi 24
7. Stroudsburg (6-0)
Last week's rank: #7
Mounties take on Becahi next week. Until then.
The Pick: Stroudsburg 49 - Allen 8
8. Liberty (3-3)
Last week's rank: #8
Poor Northampton.
The Pick: Liberty 42 - Northampton 14
9. Saucon Valley (5-1)
Last week's rank: #9
Tough season for the Senneca's at Wilson.
The Pick: Saucon Vv. 41 - Wilson 13
10. Southern Lehigh (5-1)
Last week's rank: #10
Spartans have a chance to prove a point.
The Pick: Northwestern 30 - Solehi 24
Last week's record: 8-1
Overall record: 46-3

Cousins Grace Tennant of Whitehall and Abby Caponigro, visiting from Michigan, share some french fries.

The 53rd annual Muhlenberg Summer Festival was held Aug. 13-16 in Bethlehem. The event took place for the third year with a new and larger site on the north side of the Lehigh Valley Hospital-Muhlenberg campus. The festival is one of the hospital's principal fundraisers to support various projects, programs and services for the patients of the medical care facility which is part of the Lehigh Valley Health Network. The four-day festival features games, rides, food, music and a juried arts and crafts show which make the free event an attraction for the Lehigh Valley community.

Grade: 12
Family members: My parents are Martin and Donna Hopper.
Favorite subject: My favorite subjects are Spanish and science. I love being able to learn a new language and I have always found science very fascinating. I especially love learning about the human body.
Activities: Activities I participate in at Notre Dame are Student Council: co-bonding coordinator; cheerleading; Key Club president; National Honor Society; spring chorus; track and field; peer listener; Spanish National Honor Society and Mini-THON.
Next steps: I plan to attend college and pursue a master's degree in speech pathology.
Career goals: After working as a speech pathologist, I would like to go back to college and earn my Ph.D. in speech pathology.
Heroes: My family members are all heroes and role models to me. My grandparents, cousins, parents, aunts and uncles have all shown me in special ways how to be the best version of me and to always give my all.
Hobbies: In my free time I enjoy shopping and spending time with friends and family.
Volunteer/community work: I spend a lot of my volunteer time tutoring outside of school. During the Christmas season, my family and I volunteer at and assist to organize the dinner for Project Hope of Easton. Additionally, through my extracurricular activities at school like Key Club and Student Council, I have been able to give back to my school and community through a variety of projects.

Likes: I enjoy the outdoors, spending time with family and friends, traveling and participating in a variety of school activities.
Dislikes: I very much dislike squirrels and fire.
Greatest accomplishment (so far): I am very proud to say that I set many goals for myself in regard to school and activities, and I have been able to succeed and accomplish what I wanted to do.
Advice for peers: I believe it is essential to believe in yourself and stay positive. Always set goals for yourself, push yourself to be the best version of you, and never expect anything less than your best.

LIBERTYNEWS

We're all Liberty Strong

It was a calm evening in late August when a dozen student leaders were asked to join administrators, several coaches, and athletic club officers for dinner at The Hotel Bethlehem. The leadership dinner was thought initially by students to be only a meet and greet type of event for Dr. Coyte Cooper of UNC Chapel Hill, who was speaking to all of the school's athletes the next day about character and personal branding. However, the meeting quickly developed into a more serious discussion on the state of school spirit at Liberty. In the wake of a close loss of the bell to Freedom last year, these students were gathered to contemplate what must be done to bring not only the athletic teams, but the organizations and students on campus closer together.
 After varsity cheerleading coach Erin Michael convened the meeting, she prompted words from Dr. Cooper by saying that the major reason for this night was a lull in school unity and spirit that has spanned several years, culminating with the first loss of the bell in decades. Michael went on to say that ever since the class of '08, things have not been the same. She shared stories of the compassion that the 2008 seniors showed toward not only each other, but everyone: "I remember one day there was a special needs kid eating alone outside of the cafeteria, and this big varsity football player came and approached him. He asked the younger kid if he wanted to come sit with him and proceeded to help take the boy's things back to his table of teammates. For the rest of the semester they sat together. How cool is that?"
 Dr. Cooper then was introduced, upon which he assessed what the students in attendance felt about spirit in their school and then spoke about how to go about solving these issues. Students admitted that there are many who do bleed red and blue, but all teams want support not only when they're winning and support that reaches from field to court to stadium to inside the school. Cooper gave the advice that fans love to be a part of something bigger than themselves and that people will support you if you give them something in return — some free merchandise or your support. Especially with conflicting practice and game schedules, the problem of how different teams could support each other was still there. For this Cooper offered that many athletic programs have catchy slogans used universally throughout their programs. It was then that the students decided this was a tactic that they were comfortable with.

Josh Ledyard

 And so the idea was put forth that to begin a new chapter in our history, to show that Liberty is strong. Initially proposed as the Liberty Strong Movement, it was within a minute shortened to the catchier phrase "Lib-Strong." Several T-shirts with this motto on it, one including a ribbon replacing the 'l' for breast cancer awareness month, have already been made and are being proudly worn by students.
 The hashtag 'libstrong' has taken off on Twitter, too, proving social media to be an excellent forum for students/athletes from different clubs/sports to congratulate, wish luck to, and inspire each other. The movement is succeeding in revitalizing pride because Liberty is not only who we are, but how we are: liberty is a way of life — perseverance when times are tough, going the extra mile, studying or rehearsing the extra hour.
 From these 12 students the diversity at liberty is clear: class presidents and cheerleaders, band officers and baseball players, wrestlers and runners, academics and advocates ... we may be different, but one thing remains constant — We are all Liberty Strong.

Continuing education fair Oct. 14

There will be a continuing education fair from 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 14 at the Arthur L. Spartan Center, Main Campus, 3835 Green Pond Road.

Representatives from more than 150 colleges, universities and technical schools will be at NCC to meet with high school students, their parents, transfer students and adults interested in continuing their education.

The free event is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of College Admission Counseling.

College selected as 'Military Friendly'

For the third year in a row, NCC has been named to the Military Friendly Schools list of the 20 percent of colleges, universities and trade schools in the country that are doing the most to embrace America's military service members, veterans and spouses as students and ensure their success on campus.

In addition to having a certifying official who can help veterans access the educational benefits they have earned and apply for state and federal financial aid, the college's support for veterans includes a special orientation program to help them transition to the college environment. The "Band of Brothers," a student-veteran club, focuses on veteran-related issues on campus. Visit www.militaryfriendlyschools.com and the school website for information.

NORCO Council proposes cutting own pay

By BERNIE O'HARE
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

Northampton County Council members Glenn Geissinger and Mat Benol are proposing a $1,500 pay cut to council members, knocking their annual salaries down from the current $9,500 to $8,000.

"County council must first look to itself to ensure it is a prudent steward of the public funds," states the proposed ordinance, which will be voted on at the Oct. 16 meeting. But because of the Home Rule Charter. It is unlawful to alter any elected official's salary during that person's term of office. So if the resolution passes, it would not impact current council members.

The $13,500 total savings would translate to 0.004 percent of the 2015 proposed $334.4 million budget.

'Broadway Rocks': Soloists, LV Charter High School for the Arts Touring Choir, Parkland High School Chorale accompany ASO Pops

Classical Views
By Diane Wittry

Since the 1950's, rock 'n' roll has infiltrated everything that we know. It is so much a part of our lives and our history that now it is often referred to as "classic rock."

As high school rock bands took over their parents' garages, drum sets, electric guitars and keyboard synthesizers also began to greatly influence the music of Broadway shows.

Most theater productions on Broadway now are written to music that has a strong beat and a prominent sense of rhythm. These newer shows feature the type of songs that make us want to dance, or at least tap our toes to the music.

The Allentown Symphony Orchestra gets into the act with "Broadway Rocks," a pops concert of rock 'n' roll influenced Broadway tunes featuring vocalists Christiane Noll, Rob Evans and Capathia Jenkins, all very experienced Broadway singers, 8 p.m. Oct. 11, Miller Symphony Hall, 23 N. Sixth St., Allentown.

Christiane Noll, soprano, made her Broadway debut starring in "Jekyll & Hyde," creating the role of Emma. She has also been a member of the national touring shows of "Grease," "Miss Saigon," "City of Angels" and "South Pacific." When she is not touring, she performs her own solo cabaret show.

Rob Evans, bass, has performed seven leading Broadway roles including being part of the original cast of "Jekyll & Hyde," where he played the title role for three years and participated in more than 1,000 performances worldwide. He has also performed in "Les Miserables," "Tarzan," "Little Shop of Horrors" and "Dance of the Vampires." He has also opened for and performed with Sir Elton John, Phil Collins, REM and many others.

Capathia Jenkins, soprano, most recently starred in the Disney production of "Newsies" on Broadway. Other productions she has sung in include "The Civil War," "Godspell" and "The Look of Love." Jenkins is also well-known on television and has appeared on

Rob Evans

"30 Rock," "The Practice," "Law and Order: SVU" and "The Sopranos."

Joining the Allentown Symphony Orchestra for this exciting performance will be members of the the Parkland High School Chorale, with director Frank Anonia, and the Lehigh Valley Charter High School for the Arts Touring Choir, with director David Macbeth.

For this performance, the Allentown Symphony will be conducted by Associate Conductor, Ronald Demkee, who is also the conductor of the Allentown Band.

The "Broadway Rocks" concert features music from many well-known musicals like "Mamma Mia!," "Jersey Boys," "Jesus Christ Superstar," "Hair," "The Lion King," "The Wiz," "Wicked," "Dream Girls" and "The Phantom of the Opera."

Popular tunes like "I Will Survive," "Come Sail Away," "Circle of Life" and "The Music of the Night" will be enjoyed by all. It is not often that you get to hear this music accompanied by a full symphony orchestra.

Feel free to hum along, tap your toes, wiggle your fingers, bob up and down in your seat, and thoroughly enjoy the sounds of the Allentown Symphony and their guest Broadway stars. We all grew up with this music. It will be so much fun to hear it live in a concert with the ASO.

Diane Wittry is Music Director-Conductor of the Allentown Symphony Orchestra, Artistic Director (USA), International Cultural Exchange Program for Classical Musicians, Sarajevo Philharmonic, Bosnia; and author; "Beyond the Baton" (Oxford University Press).

Lehigh Valley debut 'Mel Brooks' Young Frankenstein: The Musical' stomps onto Civic Theatre of Allentown main stage

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
pwillistein@tnonline.com

Franken-steen or Franken-stine?

That's just one of the musical questions in "Mel Brooks' Young Frankenstein: The Musical," making its Lehigh Valley debut, Oct. 10 - 26, as Civic Theatre of Allentown opens its 2014 - '15 season at the Nineteenth Street Theatre, 527 N. 19th St., Allentown.

Frankenstein is pronounced "Frankenstine." In the German language, when there are two vowels, the second vowel is pronounced (for example: Oscar Hammerstein, Michael Feinstein).

Proper pronunciation or not doesn't stop Dr. Frederick Frankenstein in "Young Frankenstein," Mel Brooks' movie of the musical on which it's based. Frederick, aka young Frankenstein, wants to distance himself from his mad-doctor family, including pronouncing his last name "Frankensteen."

"Young Frankenstein: The Musical," which is set in Transylvania, fits right in with the Halloween season and the film's 40th anniversary.

"There are some surprises within the production that are very Halloween-ish," says Civic Theatre of Allentown Artistic Director William Sanders, director and choreographer of Civic's "Young Frankenstein."

"The characterizations are homages to the original characters," Sanders says.

"Young Frankenstein" is the 35th area play debut for Civic during Sanders' tenure there.

Director of Theatre Arts, Upper School at Moravian Academy, is Dr. Frederick Frankenstein (Marty Feldman in the movie), grandson of monster-maker, Dr. Victor Frankenstein;

Morgan Reilly, a Muhlenberg College senior, plays Inga (Teri Garr in the movie), a lab assistant;

Noah Ruebeck, a Moravian Academy senior, is Igor (pronounced "Eye-gore," played by Marty Feldman in the movie), Frederick's sidekick;

Eileen Veghte, a Muhlenberg College senior, plays Elizabeth, Frederick's fiancé (Madeline Kahn in the movie);

Roseann Damico Schatkowski, Director of Marketing for Performing Arts at DeSales University, is Frau Blucher (Cloris Leachman in the movie);

Bob Trexler is The Monster, And, in a casting switch, JoAnn Basist plays Inspector Kemp (Kenneth Mars in the movie).

The cast of 22 includes: Connor Harrison, Gianna Beleno, Kate Varley, Kirk Lawrence-Howard, Kristen Sehn, Kristen Stachina, Marie Ann Sutera, Nina Attinello, Pamela Westphal, Patrick Mertz, Reese Diaz, Robert Stinner and Ted Williams.

Steve Reisteter is music director. There's a 13-piece orchestra. Gwen Swanson-Vigorito is assistant choreographer.

"Young Frankenstein: The Musical," which opened on Broadway in November 2007, has a book by Mel Brooks and Thomas Meehan (they co-wrote the 2005 musical, "The Producers," based on Brooks' 1968 film) with music and lyrics by Brooks. The movie screenplay was written by Wilder and Brooks, who directed the movie.

The musical includes the production number from the film, Irving Berlin's "Puttin' On The Ritzy," with The Monster singing and dancing in top hat and tails.

As with the film, the musical is heavy on double entendres, including the songs, "Please Don't Touch Me," sung by Elizabeth, and "Roll In the Hay," sung by Inga.

"The thing that's retained from the movie is all the lines and a lot of bawdy humor," Sanders says.

"Our original impulse is to do an homage to the original film," says Sanders. "They were rightly creating a Broadway musical. What we're trying to do is add more of a sensibility of what that original movie is like."

Mel Brooks' 1974 film is a spoof of "Frankenstein," 1931; "The Bride of Frankenstein," 1935; "Son Of Frankenstein," 1939, and "The Ghost Of Frankenstein," 1942, which were based on Mary Shelley's 1818 novel, "Frankenstein or The Modern Prometheus."

In keeping with the pristine black and white visuals of the Universal Studios' horror films, Sanders said of Civic's production, with set design by Jason Sherwood and lighting design by Will Morris:

"It's all black and white, meaning everything is black and white, with small surprising touches of color."

"That's one of my biggest memories of the movie, that it's black and white," Sanders continues. "There's something so Halloween about black and white."

When it rains on your parade

The birds are singing the sweetest song. It sounds like a big chorus with various kinds of birds singing different parts.

What makes it incongruous for me is the rest of the scene — the steady downpour that started early in the morning and won't let up.

I often wondered where birds go when it rains like this. I picture them with their heads turned under their feathered wings, hiding from the elements.

I don't picture them singing the sweetest symphony like they are now doing. It's as if they were thinking: OK. It's raining. So what? It's not going to ruin our day. We're still going to sing.

What do you do when it rains on your parade?

Do you sing your sweetest song? Or do you grumble about your ruined plans?

It rained on my parade twice this week. No wonder. It's been one of those weeks when God seems intent on watering the flowers all day long — with a fire hose.

A few days ago early in the morning David and I did what we so often do: We looked at each other and said the same thing: Let's go biking. It's like we share the same thought process.

Black clouds were moving fast, but it wasn't raining yet. We decided we could get a ride in if we went early enough.

"Don't go far," I told him. "We might get caught in the rain."

"So what?" he answered. "It's only water."

David always rides out front, leaving me to follow him. With the impending rain, I thought he was going too far from home, but of course I followed anyway.

About an hour from home, the heavens opened up and someone up there turned on the sprinkler system at full blast.

David kept riding. I kept following. But I told him if we got lightning, we had to seek shelter.

Sure enough. Thunder and lightning led us to take shelter under the eaves of someone's house. I figured even if they would have opened the door and found us there, they wouldn't mind giving us shelter from the storm.

We waited about 40 minutes with no further lightning, just rain ... lots of rain. But we started to ride the long way home anyway.

By then the gutters in the street were filling with rainwater, and we had to be extra careful of the sleek streets.

Wet is wet. So I thought we couldn't get any wetter. But when the rain came down even heavier, it felt like we were getting pelted with ice.

The funny thing is, when we got safely home, I said: Well, that was a fun adventure. All it took was some dry clothes and I was glad we got a ride in.

My upbeat attitude was a vast improvement over

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik

the old, less thoughtful me. Back then, as soon as we got off the bikes, I would have said: I TOLD you not to go far.

In later life I realize how harsh and unnecessary it is to ever say, "I TOLD you so."

I have an acquaintance who says that to her husband all the time. Last time I was there, she was berating him for cutting some boards the wrong size.

"I TOLD you to measure carefully," she chastised.

Her words didn't correct the situation, but it did make her husband walk away with slumped shoulders.

I couldn't complain about being caught in the rain even if I wanted to because David reminded me that I'm the one who always says I don't mind rain. I seldom let it ruin my parade.

For at least a few decades, whenever I go on vacation, I pack light rain gear. Then if it rains, and of course it always rains a bit on vacation, I can put on my rain gear and have an outdoor adventure.

That's what David and I had managed to do on our bikes. It rained on our parade, but we had fun anyway.

The next day, we went kayaking to a new kayak put-in in the county just built. We were looking forward to being two of the first kayakers to discover the newly built kayak put-in.

But when we got there, we discovered it was nothing but a smelly mudhole. We grumbled about the "the dumb county officials" who didn't finish the job by spreading some shells or gravel so people could get to the water.

A really nice guy who came to stand with us said he was one of the county officials responsible. He said the county had done all the government allowed it to do in federally protected mangroves.

Determined not to waste the day, we left that site for another close kayak put-in. We managed to find new water trails hidden away in creeks seldom traveled.

Much to our surprise, the trip turned out to be one of our favorite trips of the year. The scenery was all "old-Florida" with Spanish moss hanging from big oaks and no sign of civilization.

Although it wasn't the trip we had planned for the day, it was so much fun exploring hidden areas accessible only by kayak. We vowed to find more out of the way places like that.

I think what struck me about those two occasions was the renewed lesson to not give in to disappointment.

When it rains on your parade, find a new route.

Odds favor hip replacements, if needed

Q. I'm considering having a hip replaced. What are the odds that this operation will work?

The American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons says joint replacement surgery is successful in more than nine out of 10 people. And replacement of a hip or knee lasts at least 20 years in about 80 percent of those who have the surgery.

In the procedure, an arthritic or damaged joint is removed and replaced with an artificial joint called a "prosthesis." Artificial joints are medical devices, which must be cleared or approved by the FDA before they can be marketed in the United States.

The goal of surgery is to relieve the pain in the joint caused by the damage done to cartilage, the tissue that serves as a protective cushion and allows smooth, low-friction movement of the joint. Total joint replacement is considered if other treatment options will not bring relief.

HEALTHY GEEZER

By Fred Cicetti
fred@healthygeezer.com

In an arthritic knee, the damaged ends of the bones and cartilage are replaced with metal and plastic surfaces that are shaped to restore knee function. In an arthritic hip, the damaged ball and socket of this joint are replaced by a metal ball and plastic socket. Several metals are used, including stainless steel, alloys of cobalt and chrome, and titanium. The plastic material is durable and wear-resistant polyethylene.

The two most common joints requiring this form of surgery are the knee and hip, which are weight-bearing. But replacements can also be performed on other joints, including the ankle, foot, shoulder, elbow and fingers.

After total hip or knee replacement, you will often stand and begin walking the day after surgery. Initially, you will walk with a walker, crutches or a cane. Most patients have some temporary pain in the replaced joint because the surrounding muscles are weak from inactivity and the tissues are healing, but it will end in a few weeks or months.

Exercise is an important part of the recovery process. After your surgery, you may be permitted to play golf, walk and dance. However, more strenuous sports, such as tennis or running, may be discouraged.

There can be complications from joint-replacement surgery. These include infection, blood clots, loosening of the prosthesis, dislocation of the joint, excessive wear, prosthetic breakage and nerve injury. There are remedies for all of these complications, but sometimes the correction will take more surgery.

Surgeons are refining techniques and developing new ones such as minimal-incision surgery. In this type of surgery, smaller incisions are used. Minimal incisions reduce trauma, pain and hospital stays. Not all patients are candidates for minimal-incision surgery.

There is a surgical alternative to total hip replacement. It's called hip resurfacing. The primary difference in hip resurfacing is that the surgeon doesn't remove the ball at the top of the thigh bone. Instead, the damaged ball is reshaped, and then a metal cap is anchored over it.

Hip resurfacing, unlike hip replacement, preserves enough bone to permit a total replacement if it is necessary later. Resurfacing is not recommended for patients with osteoporosis, a disease that makes bones porous and vulnerable to fractures. Some healthcare experts advise getting a replacement hip joint, not a resurfacing, if you are older than 65.

William J. Albert remembered as 'the heart of Allentown Fair'

William J. Albert, president of the Lehigh County Agricultural Society (LCAS), the nonprofit owner and operator of the Allentown Fairgrounds and The Great Allentown Fair, who died Sept. 24 in Lehigh Valley Hospital, is being remembered as "the heart of the fair."

Albert was elected LCAS president by its members every year since 2008. LCAS spokesperson Bonnie Brosious said that LCAS members mourn the loss of a leader who was recognized for relentlessly promoting the organization's 162-year-old mission to support agriculture.

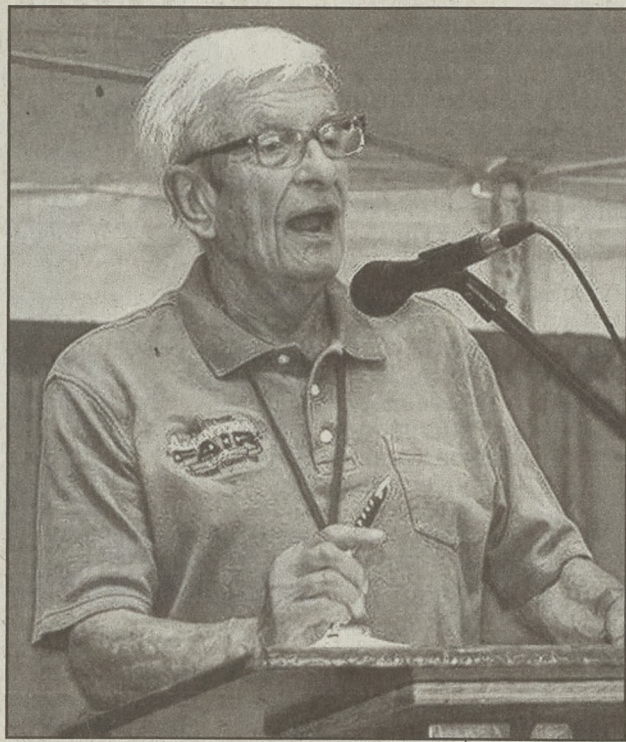

"Bill coined and personalized his passionate reference to our annual agricultural showcase as 'the heart of the fair.' He took every opportunity to remind fairgoers, 'If you come to the fair and do not visit Agri-Land at the west end of the grounds, you missed the fair,'" Brosious said.

LCAS Executive Committee Chairman-CEO Raymond Hoffman said, "The society has lost its biggest cheerleader and I have lost a great friend."

"Bill always had a smile on his face and enjoyed being around people and telling them stories about his many experiences at the fair. The executive committee and board of directors will greatly miss his fine leadership."

Albert, a community stalwart throughout his lifetime, became involved in the fair during the 1960s as a partner in Raleigh's, Inc., responsible for decorating the exhibit areas of the fair.

He was elected to the society's executive committee in 1987 and was appointed its liaison to the competitive exhibit operation of the fair. He championed the development of entry categories that would engage more participation and provide for innovative and interesting displays and competitions.

He and his predecessor as president, the late William Greenwald, co-chaired the committee to celebrate the society and fair's 150th anniversary in 2002.

With his decorating talent and love of history, Albert produced a retrospective walk-through exhibit that took thousands of fairgoers through the decades and centuries of The Great Allentown Fair. Parts of the exhibit remain displayed in the foyer of Agri-Plex's William T. Harris Agricultural Hall.

Albert worked closely with Lehigh and Berks counties 4-H, Agriculture Extension Services, Agriculture Education and FFA. During the fair's annual awards night, he relished handing out agricultural scholarships and awards to youth and deserving contributors to local agriculture.

He was surprised last year as the recipient of the Lehigh County Farm Bureau's Distinguished Service to Agriculture award and in 2012 as the selected Allentown Fair winner of Pennsylvania's Outstanding Fair Ambassador distinction.

Albert was instrumental in resurrecting the Allentown Fair's queen contest in 2009, annually selecting a young woman to extend agricultural education and fair promotion throughout the community year-round.

As a past president of AAA Lehigh Valley, he enlisted the travel organization's support in the development of the fair's "passport to the world of agriculture" program that offers fairgoers incentives and passport stamps as they use booklets to guide their visit to the fair's agricultural attractions.

A funeral mass for Albert was celebrated Oct. 4 in St. Lawrence the Martyr Catholic Church, North Catasauqua, following by a reception at the Catasauqua American Legion Post 215, Catasauqua.

'The Boxtrolls' is admirable

"The Boxtrolls" is a film more to be admired than loved.

The film utilizes stop-motion animation, whereby each, or several frames, of film are shot with minor adjustments to the figurines before the next shot.

As if to emphasize the exactitude of this process and how painstaking it is, during "The Boxtrolls" end credits, the film-makers pull back from the set to reveal in fast-motion, and in shadow, a puppet animator guiding each move of one of the film's main characters.

It's as if the film-makers are saying: "See how much work it was to make this film. How can you not love it?"

I was prepared to love "The Boxtrolls" because animation, and especially stop-motion animation, is one of my favorite film-making genres. Alas, I did not love "The Boxtrolls."

"The Boxtrolls" movie has a great steampunk look. "The Boxtrolls" characters sure are ugly-cute. They live in cardboard boxes and only emerge at night to become dumpster divers, making off with valuables like brass house address numbers.

Near the start of the film, Archibald Snatcher (voiced by Ben Kingsley) vows, "I will destroy every last Boxtroll."

That's pretty much the plot.

There's a boy named Eggs (Isaac Hempstead Wright), who was raised by Boxtrolls and who rallies them to fend for themselves. He teams up with Winnie (Elle Fanning).

The screenplay has a distinct lack of feature animation film zingers, quips and puns. That's refreshing. However, the film-makers haven't found a way to hold the interest of grown-up moviegoers, although young moviegoers should be fascinated with the characters and the world of "The Boxtrolls," which is very detailed and presented from an off-kilter perspective.

The voice casting is impressive, although, from the moviegoers' standpoint, not particularly memorable: Jared Harris (Lord Portly-Rind), Toni Collette (Lady Portly-Rind), Nick Frost (Mr. Trout), Tracy Morgan (Mr. Gristle) and Simon Pegg (Herbert Trubshaw).

The film is based on Alan Snow's 2005 British-published children's novel, "Here Be Monsters," subtitled "An adventure involving magic, trolls, and other creatures," and billed as Volume I of "The Ratbridge Chronicles."

Graham Annable (who worked on the feature films, "ParaNorman," 2012; "Coraline," 2009) and Anthony Stacchi (who worked on the feature films, "Open Season," 2006; "Hook," 1991) make their feature directorial debut with "The Boxtrolls."

Irena Brignull and Adam Pava (TV's "Foster's Home For Imaginary Friends") make their feature screenwriting debut with "The Boxtrolls."

Laika, the Portland, Ore., animation studio that produced "The Boxtrolls" and previously produced the Oscar-nominated stop-motion animation feature films, "ParaNorman" and "Coraline," is owned by Nike co-founder and chairman Phil Knight whose son, Travis Knight, is the studio's president and CEO.

"The Boxtrolls" was seen in the 3-D animation format, which I was also looking forward to, but I found unnecessary for viewing the film.

"The Boxtrolls" is not a bad film. It is an admirable film. It's just not a very loveable film.

"The Boxtrolls," MPAA rated PG (Parental Guidance Suggested. Some Material May Not Be Suitable For Children.) for action, some peril and mild rude humor; Genre: Animation, Adventure, Comedy, Fantasy; Run time: 1 hr, 36 min.; Distributed by Focus Features.

$10-million jobs training grant to be shared by LCCC, NCC

Lehigh Carbon Community College, Northampton Community College and Luzerne County Community College will receive a four-year $10-million federal grant to develop new degree, certificate and diploma programs in high priority career fields.

The announcement was made Sept. 29 by Vice President Joe Biden, U.S. Secretary of Labor Thomas E. Perez and U.S. Secretary of Education Arne Duncan.

The funding is part of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Community College and Career Training competitive grant program which is co-administered by the two departments.

The programs are intended to help to prepare low-wage workers for middle-class jobs and to grow the economy.

Lehigh Carbon Community College will receive $1,809,350; Northampton Community College, $6,354,436, and Luzerne County Community College, $1,836,214; to work with employers to develop affordable degree, certificate and diploma programs in three industry sectors: advanced manufacturing, healthcare, and logistics-transportation.

The occupations targeted include healthcare office specialist, healthcare office coordinator, pharmacy technician specialist, healthcare billing and coding specialist, machinery repair, instrumentation technician, advanced manufacturing/integrated systems technology specialists, welding and diesel engine specialist.

Employer partners include Airgas, B. Braun Medical Inc., Blue Mountain Health Systems, Fisher Clinical Services, Fresh Pet Kitchens, Just Born Inc., K-Fab Inc., Lehigh Valley Health Network, Linde Corporation, Machining Technologies, Mack Trucks, Martz Group, Medico Industries, Ocean Spray, Pocono Medical Center, St. Luke's Hospital Miner's Campus, St. Luke's Physician Group, Victaulic, and Waste Management.

Some of the programs will be offered at all three colleges while others may be specific to one of the colleges. Program development is expected to take 12 to 18 months. Students who enroll will have the benefit of remediation for those who need it and technology-enhanced learning proven to be effective in occupational training. Some students may also qualify for credit for prior learning.

Public workforce system partners include the Pennsylvania Department of Labor & Industry and its JobGateway and CareerCoach programs; the Business Services Teams at local CareerLinks, and the Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley, Luzerne-Schuylkill, Northern Tier, and Pocono Counties Workforce Investment Boards.

Lehigh Valley Zoo taps President-CEO

The Board of Directors of Lehigh Valley Zoological Society has selected Melissa Borland as the new President & CEO of Lehigh Valley Zoo, effective Sept. 15.

"She brings an incredible ability to run and operate a family-friendly operation," said Salvatore B. Verrastro, Principal, Spillman Farmer Architects and Lehigh Valley Zoological Society Chairman.

Prior to joining the Zoo, Borland was Executive Director of the Miracle League of Lehigh Valley. Borland previously worked for the Orefield campus of KidsPeace and Cornell Abraxas, operating programs for children in need.

"Lehigh Valley Zoo is a wonderful facility, with limitless potential for growth and enhancement.

Melissa Borland

I've devoted my career to promoting happiness for children and families. The Zoo is a perfect place to continue my journey," Borland said.

She is a graduate of Kutztown University.

Fulfillment center in Bethlehem to create 1,200 full-time jobs

The online retailer, zulily, will establish a fulfillment center in Bethlehem that is expected to create 1,200 new full-time jobs in the next three years.

The company received a funding proposal from the Department of Community and Economic Development that includes $3.6 million in Job Creation Tax Credits.

The project was coordinated by the Governor's Action Team, a group of economic development professionals who report directly to the governor and work with businesses that are considering locating or expanding in Pennsylvania.

"I believe our commonwealth is the best place to live, work and raise a family," said Gov. Tom Corbett.

"This is another example of our continued efforts to build a stronger Pennsylvania where job creators like zulily can thrive," Corbett said, crediting his administration's JOBS1st PA initiative.

Corbett launched JOBS1st PA as a comprehensive roadmap to economic recovery that harnessed the state's resources and talents to prioritize private-sector job creation and retention.

According to the Corbett administration, Pennsylvania's unemployment rate stands at a five-year low and jobs have been growing on a consistent basis for nearly four years.

The Bethlehem facility will be zulily's northeast fulfillment center. The company plans to make a multi-million dollar investment at the new site. The lease is to begin late this year with hiring to begin in the first half of 2015.

"We're happy to have selected the state of Pennsylvania and the city of Bethlehem as our next location to expand our fulfillment center network," said Bob Spieth, COO, zulily.

"This center, along with our newly-automated fulfillment center in Ohio and expansion in Nevada, will help us to better serve our growing customer base across the country," Spieth said.

zulily, an online retailer, was launched in 2010 and is headquartered in Seattle with locations in Reno, Columbus and London. zulily's shares are traded on the NASDAQ Global Select Market under the symbol ZU.

Hal Holbrook at State Theatre for his 'Mark Twain Tonight!'

Legendary actor Hal Holbrook performs "Mark Twain Tonight!," 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16, State Theatre for the Arts, Easton.

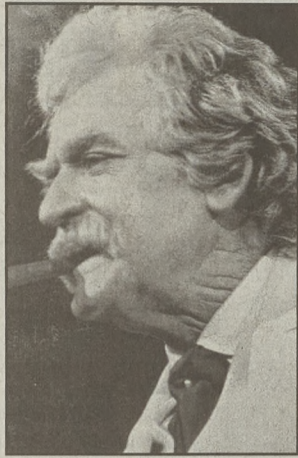

It's the 60th consecutive year for the one-man show by Holbrook.

An honors project about Mark Twain at Denison University led to Holbrook's one-man show.

According to Playbill, his first "Mark Twain Tonight!" performance was in 1954 at then Lock Haven State Teachers College.

His first TV performance as Mark Twain was in 1956 on "The Ed Sullivan Show." Holbrook presented "Mark Twain Tonight!" off-Broadway in 1959.

Holbrook's overnight success was as surprising to him as anyone. "The critics went wild." (Associated Press). "Mr. Holbrook's material is uproarious, his ability to hold an audience by acting is brilliant." (New York Times). "Uncanny. A dazzling display of virtuosity." (The New Yorker). "One of the treasures of the American

Hal Holbrook as Mark Twain

Theatre." (Life magazine). "Mark Twain Tonight!" was telecast in 1967 on CBS. Holbrook received an Emmy.

Holbrook's "Twain" first played on Broadway in 1966, for which he received a Tony, and again in 1977 and 2005. Holbrook was 80-years-old during his most recent Broadway run, older for the first time than the character he was portraying.

He has portrayed Twain in more than 2,000 performances, more than even Samuel Langhorne Clemens did.

"Mark Twain Tonight!" is believed to be the longest-running one-man show ever. Holbrook adds to his Twain material every year, editing and changing it to fit the times and has mined. He has no set program. He chooses from some 16 hours of material as he goes along.

Holbrook has some 130 credits in film and television.

He has been nominated for 12 Emmys and has received five Emmys.

He had roles in two sitcoms: "Designing Women" and "Evening Shade," and has made guest appearances on "The West Wing," "The Sopranos," "NCIS," "ER" and "Sons of Anarchy."

He received a supporting actor Oscar nomination for "Into The Wild" (2007). He played the character, Deep Throat, in "All The President's Men" (1976).

LV native Stephanie Gardner goes to Kickstarter for film

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
pwillistein@tnonline.com

A New York City-based film-maker and Emmaus High School Class of 2004 graduate is using Kickstarter to fund completion of her next film.

Stephanie Gardner, who needs to raise $6,000 by Oct. 17 for "If I Had a Piano (I'd Play You The Blues)," is using Kickstarter, a social media web site for funding-raising, for the first time.

"It's a little scary because it's all or nothing. But for the backers, it's risk-free. If I don't raise the full $6,000, I don't get any of the money," says Gardner. "We can exceed the goal."

According to the Lehigh Valley native, successful funding will allow her to complete principal photography in the Emmaus area and editing of the short film. Money raised will also go to final stipends for cast and crew and equipment for two days of filming.

While she has made about 14 films, Gardner's first professionally-produced 14-minute film, "And If I Stay," recently played at the Anthology Film Archives through the NewFilmmakers New York series, and is an official selection of the International Film Festival of Cinematic Arts Los Angeles 2014, which stated the film "deserves special recognition and was one among the very best of submissions we received from all over the world."

Prior films include "Ten to One Films,"

Stephanie Gardner

whereby she made one film a month for 10 months. "It was a way to take myself to film school," says Gardner, who received an MFA in Screenwriting from the Tisch School of the Arts at New York University, and a B.A. in Dramatic Literature, Music and Creative Writing from The George Washington University.

She is a daughter of Linda Kay Gardner and James Knoll Gardner of Upper Milford Township.

Gardner directed an original full-length musical comedy, "The Not So Average Joe," presented at Emmaus High School when she was a junior there. During her undergraduate college years, she wanted to pursue theater. "In grad school, I got seduced by film," she says.

"If I Had a Piano (I'd Play You The Blues)," based on a poem Gardner wrote, stars Portuguese actor Pedro Carmo and his wife Ana Maria. The dialogue will be in Portuguese. Approximately half of the film has already been shot in Queens, N.Y.

Gardner describes the film thusly: "The film inter-cuts between their characters' reality and desires, represented by an aesthetically pleasing alternate world. The film seeks to sweep the audience away from everyday reality to create an artistic, sublime experience of love and romance."

Gardner sees "If I Had a Piano" as pivotal to her film-making career:

"The important thing to me is that this ['If I Had a Piano'] is a launching pad for my first feature film. It's a calling card to show off my aesthetic vision as a filmmaker and the work of my team, which I believe in very strongly, and to show off the location of Emmaus and the Lehigh Valley where I eventually want to shoot my first feature film."

"I think Pennsylvania, the Lehigh Valley and Emmaus is rich and diverse. It's a landscape that you don't see a lot in cinema. Being from here, I feel very attached to my roots."

Those interested in contributing to Gardner's film project, may go to the Kickstarter web site and search for "If I Had a Piano," where there is a pitch video, which is also on her web site. thestephaniegardner.com

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the Macungie Borough Council will hold a public hearing on November 3, 2014 at 7:30 p.m. and consider for possible adoption and may adopt an Ordinance, of which this notice is a summary, to be added to Chapter 313 of the Macungie Borough Code of Ordinances, establishing and adopting a Local Services Tax that will authorize the collection and manner of collection of a Local Services Tax in the amount of Fifty-Two Dollars ($52.00) annually for the purpose of providing revenue for emergency services, road maintenance and construction and reductions and relief to property taxes. The Local Services Tax Ordinance provides for exemptions to said tax and establishes penalties for violations in accordance with Pennsylvania Law. The Local Services Tax will be levied on each adult resident and nonresident employed and/or engaged in an occupation within the Borough. The total revenue from the tax is unknown at this time. The Local Services Tax will replace and the Ordinance will repeal the Occupational Privilege Tax within the Borough. The title of the Ordinance is as follows:

An Ordinance of the Macungie Borough Council, Lehigh County, Pennsylvania, adopting by Ordinance a Local Services Tax to be added to Chapter 313 of the Macungie Borough Code of Ordinances, replacing and repealing the Occupational Privilege Tax and authorizing the collection of the Local Services Tax and providing for exemptions to said tax in accordance with Pennsylvania State Law.

The Council will hold the public hearing to consider the Ordinance and thereafter may adopt the Ordinance at its meeting on November 3, 2014 at 7:30 p.m. at the Macungie Institute Auditorium, 510 E. Main Street, Macungie, Pennsylvania. Copies of the full text of the ordinance are available at the Borough office, the Lehigh County Solicitor's Office, and the office of this newspaper during normal business hours. All interested parties are invited to attend.
