

Daniels, William

Operating Lathe
At English Depot

Applying his knowledge of machinery from ~~his~~ ^{own} experience to his Army work is Cpl. William Daniels, 27, the son of Mrs. Clara Daniels, RFD 3, Easton, who is a lathe operator at an important depot in England of the VIII AAF Service Command.

Prior to entering the army, he served as a machinist apprentice of the Sheridan Machine Company.

This depot is playing an all-important part in the war effort as it is supplying Allied airmen with incendiaries and munitions to aid them in their fight against Nazi-held countries on the continent.

Cpl. Daniels entered the service in March, 1941, and served at Mitchel Field, N. Y., Gunier Field, N. H., and March Field, Cal., prior to going overseas a year ago.

December 31, 1943