Spring IS ON THE horizon

Amy Maurer jogs with her canine companion this past weekend along East Broad Street as temperatures peaked at 43 degrees Saturday and 64 degrees Sunday, according to AccuWeather reports. The Bethlehem resident, who runs frequently in races up to half-marathons, said, "I run a lot, especially with my cattle dog lab-mix 'Brittaney.'" The mild weather encouraged many Lehigh Valley residents to enjoy the outdoors.

Snowbells bloom in the front yard of Tom Berback, who lives on Washington Avenue, despite the recent light snowfall. The perennials grow close to the ground in clusters and generally bloom during late winter, just before the vernal equinox. "They seem to like some warmth and sun," said Berback, Bethlehem Steel retiree. Berback said the hardy plants were growing in the same part of the yard when he bought his home many years ago. Spring officially arrives March 20 and the recent mild weather should help other plants to bloom early.

NEWMAN ASSOCIATION AT MORAVIAN COLLEGE

Prison ministry: A nun's perspective

BY DOROTHY GLEW
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

On Feb. 16, Moravian College's Newman Association hosted an unusual speaker, a nun who "stumbled into" prison ministry, work for which she had no preparation. Sister Martha Zammatore's talk, which was sponsored by the Moravian Catholic Campus Ministry, initiated a new speaker series called "Word on the Street." The series is intended to spark discussion of faith-related subjects for both practicing Catholics and others who may not normally attend an event of this nature.

During her presentation, "Christ in the Cell: Reflections on Prison Ministry," Sister Zammatore, a member of the Franciscan Order, exuded joy and positivity. Her messages were simple: We all need forgiveness, "God can reach all of us, if we only let Him in," and there is goodness in everyone.

Sister Zammatore recalled asking a group of prisoners why they were in jail. One inmate, whose father had abused him, had been in and out of reform school and doesn't think he can ever change. A fellow prisoner told him not to give up, that he can have a better life. Other prisoners also offered him encouragement. "I didn't have to say anything," said Sister Zammatore.

When prisoners leave, she said, they often come back. On the day one inmate was leaving prison, the other inmates tried to be encouraging, telling him to "believe in yourself and you won't be back." Said Sister Zammatore, "God knocks at the heart of even people who have committed terrible crimes."

She introduced the audience to the concept of "restorative justice," an alternative approach to criminal justice. According to a statement by the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops in 2000, the focus of this approach is "on the victim and the community that has been harmed by the crime rather than on the 'state-against-the-offender model.'" Elements of restorative justice include "offenders taking responsibility for their actions and making restitution to the victim and the community they have harmed."

In addition, offenders receive the support they need to change patterns of negative behavior. For example, something triggered a reaction in some prisoners, and they blew up and engaged in unlawful behavior. Behavior modification is necessary to enable these offenders to reintegrate into the community.

Another element of restorative justice is victim/offender mediation. "Both victims and offenders have a story to tell," said Sister Zammatore, "and mediation provides an opportunity for both parties to experience the healing they need."

Some inmates have discovered that writing poetry can be a powerful way of expressing regret for the crimes they've committed and joy in the change they have experienced. Sister Zammatore recounted the experience of one prisoner whose father left the family and whose mother is "broken mentally." The prisoner's family situation tore her apart. She never had a sense of her own worth, only sadness and self-hate, and she got into drugs. But, as Sister put it, "God pulled her out of the darkness, and she experienced deliverance." Now she uses poetry to heal.

Sister Zammatore distributed poems by these budding poets behind bars. She read one, titled "Surrender," which expresses an inmate's newfound belief in the saving power of God and her hope for a better future.

Here I am! broken, shattered, but not beyond repair

In Your eyes I am worthy and have much to share

I cannot explain it, it's amazing to me

That beyond all the darkness, it's my light that You see!

Memory Care facility opens

You have a busy day ahead of you, even if your plans are fluid. With a brisk walk you pass through several neighborhoods, chatting with acquaintances and stopping at small shops and public parks as you make your way to a public event. An entertainer is visiting, but you still take a few minutes at the library before you get to the venue and find your seat.

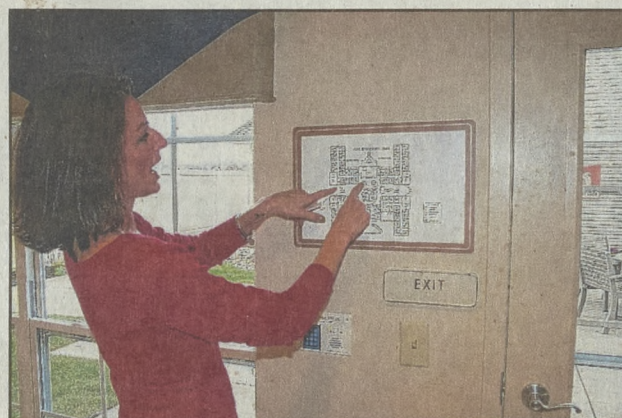

It may sound like a nice spring day for any of us, and that's intentional. In fact, that was an average day at HCR ManorCare's Arden Courts of Old Orchard, a brand new assisted living memory care community opening in Bethlehem Township.

With 20 years of experience and 55 Arden Court facilities nationwide, this newest community will provide full-time care for up to 64 residents. It will have a staff trained specifically in treating memory disorders, an array of activities geared toward keeping residents busy and moving, and a physical layout designed for safety and mental health needs. As mentioned above, each group of

'Honey for Heroes' benefits Gold Star Mothers' program

CONTRIBUTED ARTICLE

Through the efforts of Vietnam veteran Blaine Holden and the support of Lehigh Valley Beekeepers Association, a new program was introduced in 2015 encouraging association members to donate one-pound containers of honey from own their hives to be sold as a fundraiser by the local Gold Star Mothers Chapter to assist with their outreach to needy veterans in the area.

During the Pennsylvania Farm Show, the Lehigh Valley Beekeepers Association sold honey from the club's owned and operated hives at Lehigh Carbon Community College, using the proceeds to match the donations from their own members.

Vietnam veteran, Lehigh Valley Beekeepers Association member and Honey for Heroes founder Blaine Holden, Gold Star mother Sarah Wargo and Lehigh Valley Beekeepers Association member, World War II and Korean veteran Joe Zeller together at a recent meeting.

At a recent meeting, Holden presented a check for $500 from the Lehigh Valley Beekeepers Association to Gold Star Mother Sarah Wargo, whose son Michael died in 2013 after serving a tour of duty in Bagram, Afghanistan.

A special "Honey for Heroes" label, including the photos of local heroes who have died in military action since the terror attack in New York in 2001, is attached to each donated container and local "Honey for Heroes" containers are known to have been shipped all over the country, including to the national president of the Gold Star Mothers.

Surrounding county beekeeper associations have started similar programs in their areas.

Making world a better place

Peace Corps Director Carrie Hessler-Radelet, U.S. Congressman Charlie Dent promote service

CONTRIBUTED ARTICLE

Peace Corps Director Carrie Hessler-Radelet and U.S. Congressman Charlie Dent (PA-15) met with students, faculty and residents recently at The Pennsylvania State University in University Park to discuss the value of making a difference through Peace Corps and recognize the Keystone State's impetus for service. This year, Pennsylvania ranked as the No. 5 Peace Corps volunteer-producing state in the nation, with 286 residents currently serving overseas.

"With so many Penn State alumni serving and having served in Peace Corps around the world, it's clear that a desire to make the world a better place is ingrained in the spirit of Nittany Lions," Hessler-Radelet said. "It's my hope that some of you in the room today will go on to contribute to that legacy - to see what's possible through the Peace Corps."

Dent was also enthusiastic about the day's program.

"Thanks to Penn State for hosting today's great event. I have seen firsthand the tremendous impact that the Peace Corps volunteers have in some of the most troubled parts of the world. It is truly great news to hear that Pennsylvania ranks fifth among all the states in producing the number of volunteers currently serving communities overseas. Hopefully, some of those in attendance at today's event will decide to offer their time and service as well."

Since the Peace Corps was founded in 1961, 1,032 Penn State alumni have served overseas as Peace Corps volunteers. Penn State alumnus Mark Goldy-Brown, of Zionsville - who is currently serving as a Peace Corps volunteer in Peru - attended the event via Skype to field questions about his experience living and working overseas.

"During my time at Penn State, I was fortunate enough to have several opportunities to travel internationally for classes and coursework," Goldy-Brown said. "Such international exposure sparked my interest in culture and travel, eventually becoming one of the main reasons I began to look into the Peace Corps."

College graduates who serve with the Peace Corps return home with cross-cultural, leadership, community development and language skills that help to strengthen international ties and increase our country's global competitiveness.

The Peace Corps has three regional recruitment offices across the country that work closely with prospective volunteers of all ages and backgrounds to ensure that all Americans who want to serve have the opportunity to do so. Students and community members can contact the Peace Corps' East Region Office at nyinfo@peacecorps.gov for more information.

About the Peace Corps

The Peace Corps sends the best and brightest Americans abroad on behalf of the United States to tackle the most pressing needs of people around the world. Volunteers work at the grassroots level to develop sustainable solutions that address challenges in education, health, economic development, agriculture, environment and youth development. Through their service, volunteers gain a unique cultural understanding and a lifelong commitment to service that positions them to succeed in today's global economy. Since President John F. Kennedy established the Peace Corps in 1961, nearly 220,000 Americans of all ages have served in 140 countries worldwide. For more information, visit www.peacecorps.gov.

The "Miracle Well"

Desert Storm's most incredible story, says Marine Maj. Gen. Charles Krulak, was the "miracle well" that appeared out of nowhere to supply 100,000 gallons of water a day for U.S. soldiers during the 1991 war in the Persian Gulf.

Krulak was assigned to prepare supplies for the frontal assault by allied forces against Iraqi troops. As the threat of chemical warfare loomed, ample water for decontamination procedures became more apparent. Krulak had sufficient water available, but then he received orders to move his operation to an area called the "gravel plains," 74 miles to the northwest, where attempts to locate a water source repeatedly failed.

Krulak exhausted all resources except one which he consulted every morning. He had made a habit of praying with staff members who wished to join him at 7:15 a.m. "I was on my knees every day praying for water," Krulak said.

On Sunday before church with only a few days remaining before the ground attack, a colonel interrupted the early morning prayer with a request for Krulak to accompany him. As the two traveled, they came upon what looked like a pipe rising out of the ground about 30 yards off the road. Looking closer, they saw a brightly painted red pump at the base of the pipe, a green diesel generator, four new batteries still wrapped in plastic and 1,000 gallons of diesel fuel stored in a tank. All the equipment was new, and everything seemed ready to go. Krulak pushed the start button and the generator started! That well produced the 100,000 gallons of water a day needed for the assault!

"There was no way anyone could have driven down that road and not seen that well and equipment painted in multiple colors!" said Krulak. Yet, prior to that Sunday, he had often passed it without seeing it and so did 20,000 troops! Krulak firmly believes that the well appeared as an answer to prayer.

REGIONAL WRESTLING

Hawks advance nine Three win gold

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It's one thing to tire out your opponent on the wrestling mat, it's another thing to tire out the referee officiating the match.

That's exactly what Bethlehem Catholic's Mike Labriola did to long time District 11 official Bob Kern on Saturday night in the Northeast Regional AAA finals.

Labriola was a take-down machine in his 23-11 major decision victory over Edwin Morales of Mariana Bracetti Academy in the 170-pound finals.

The take 'em down, let 'em up style exhausted Morales and Kern at the same time.

"This kid is exhausting me," said Kern of Labriola during the second period of Saturday evening's win.

And that is something that Labriola prides himself on.

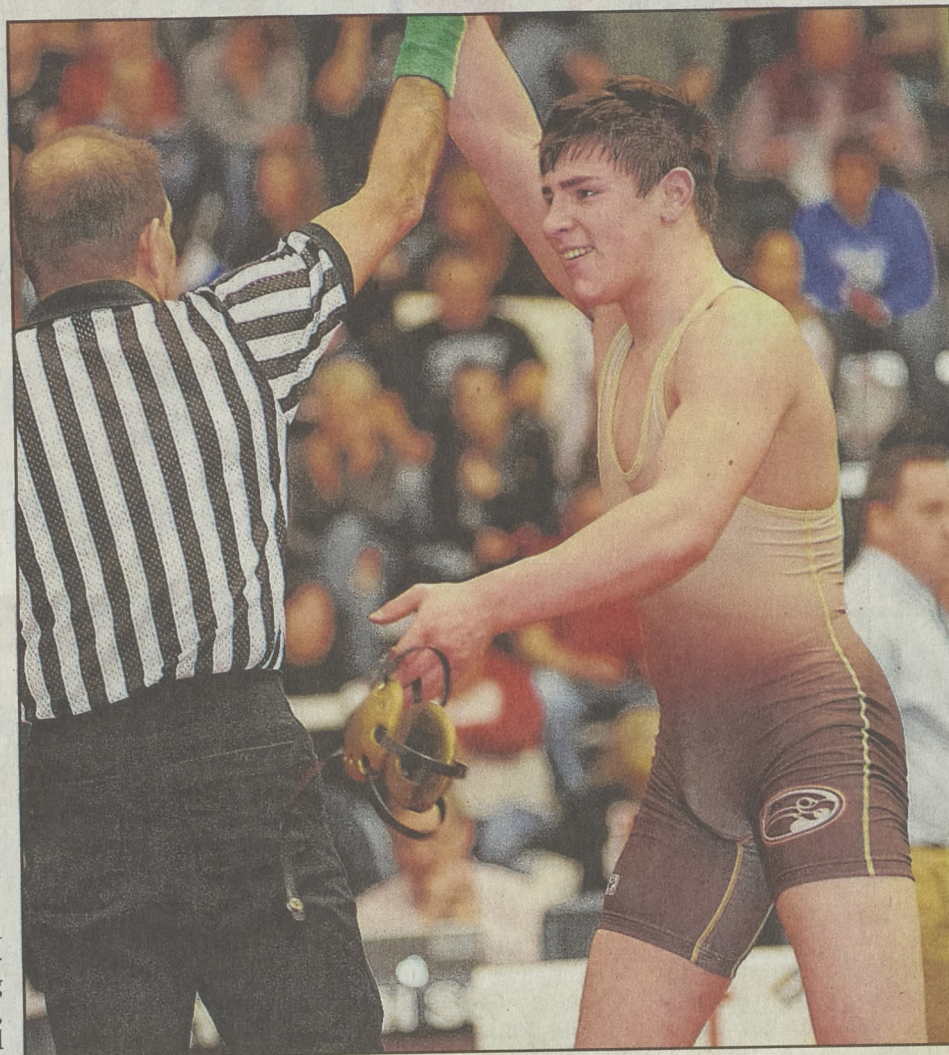

"I'm pretty well conditioned, but it's more of a mental thing for me to keep going out there," said Labriola. "You just got to tell yourself you'll be fine, but that's funny the ref said that."

The Hawks were full of smiles leaving regionals, as they advanced nine wrestlers to this week's PIAA tournament at the Giant Center in Hershey.

Labriola was one of three champions for Becahi, joined alongside Luke Karam (126), who became the first wrestler in Becahi history to win four regional crowns, following a 16-1 technical fall over Northampton's Devon Britton. Adam Soldridge (182) kept his postseason momentum going as well, picking up gold following a 4-3 decision over Cole Dixon of Dallas.

The Hawks pulled away for the team title again, outpacing Nazareth 167.5 to 133.5, but the Blue Eagles did come away with four champions, leading the contingent of all teams See BECAHI on Page 10

BETHLEHEM WRESTLERS: ON THE ROAD TO HERSHEY

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

The PIAA state wrestling championships will kick off this Thursday at the Giant Center in Hershey and run through Saturday night.

Bethlehem school's will have 13 competitors taking part in the AAA championships, as Bethlehem Catholic's Luke Karam, looks to cap off his senior season with his third state title.

Karam (126), along with teammate, Mike Labriola (170) and Liberty's Andrew Gunning (HWT), enter this week's final wrestling stage as top contenders to come away with gold medals in their weight classes.

Listed below are the representatives from each school, as well as the AAA wrestling schedule in Hershey for this week.

Gunning, Fenstermacher golden again

BY PETER CAR

KJ Fenstermacher is on a roll and he hopes his streak of two straight gold medals can extend one final weekend of the wrestling season.

Fenstermacher (120) won the Northeast Regional AAA crown on Saturday following a 3-0 decision over Northampton's Dan Moran, making it two straight weeks he's topped his longtime rival.

Rivalries aside, Fenstermacher (38-1), alongside teammate Andrew Gunning (HWT), are proving that they are contenders for this week's PIAA tournament in Hershey, as both enter the tournament as regional champions, riding waves of momentum.

"I feel like I keep pushing the pace and I'm not even really getting tired," said Fenstermacher of his current form. "I think I'm wrestling phenomenal, but nothing really matters until next weekend."

The same could be said for Gunning (38-0), who kept his undefeated mark going with a 9-3 decision over LaSalle's Vincenzo Pelusi in the heavyweight finals on Saturday.

Gunning was mobbed with photographs after capturing his regional crown, celebrating another ride to the state championships, but he knows that he won't be fully satisfied unless he comes home this weekend with another gold medal in his hardware.

"I just want to keep going hard because I know I'm almost there," Gunning said. "It's the last step in the process, so I'm excited. I'm not really worried about who's out there in the state, I'm just going to focus on what I need to do this week to prepare and be ready for Hershey."

Fenstermacher was fully aware of who he needs to worry about this weekend, as Franklin Regional's two-time state champion, Spencer Lee (8-0), is the heavy favorite to win the 120-pound weight class again.

Fenstermacher was just hoping to be seeded on the opposite bracket as his western PA counterpart, so he could get Liberty swimmers, Robert Negron and Nolan Vannata were gold medalists at the District XI Class AAA Swimming Championships this past weekend at Parkland High School.

Negron clinched gold and a district record in the 50 free with a time of 20:53. The Hurricane sophomore also won a gold medal in the 100 free with a time of 46:33.

"I just kind of went in trying to swim fast," Negron said. "I felt real loose. A medal was my main goal."

Vannata's gold medal came in the 100 breaststroke with a time of 58:63.

"Before, I was thinking about the hard work at practices," said Vannata. "Being seeded second was absolutely on my mind ever since the psych sheets came down."

Vannata tore off his goggles and pounded the water twice upon looking at the scoreboard.

"I was thinking how great it felt," he said. "It was nice to have a good friend up there on the podium with me."

That good friend was Chris Chambers, who won a fourth place medal in the same event with a time of 1:02.85.

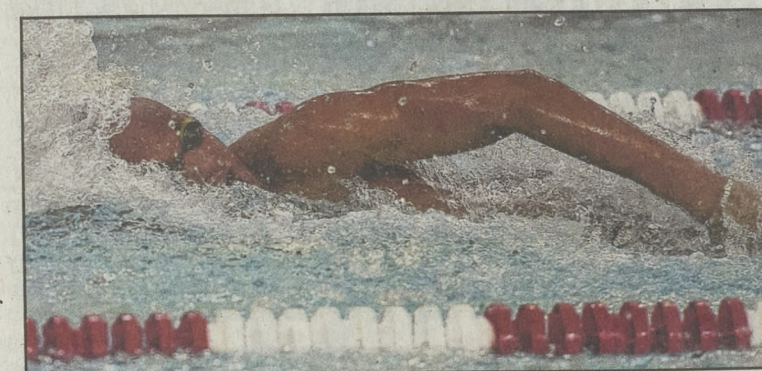

Vannata also won a fourth place medal in the 200 IM with a time of a crack at him in the finals.

Fortunately for Fenstermacher, that's how it worked for him, as he's at the top of the bracket and Lee sits in the bottom half.
Lee was out for the most part of the season following shoulder surgery and upped his career record to 105-0 following a 17-2 technical fall over Pine-Richland junior Hunter Baxter at the WPIAL/Southwest AAA regional over the weekend.

"To be the best you got to beat the best," Fenstermacher said. "I hope I can get to the finals and just throw everything I got at Lee. If not, it would be a pretty good tournament to take second, but I would really want to get to the finals."
Liberty moves three wrestlers to the state tournament, as Luke Werner (37-8) took third at 113 with a 7-0 decision over Parkland's Nick Dolak in the consolation round at regionals.
Freedom advanced only one wrestler to Hershey, as 220-pounder Evan Callahan took second after falling to Pleasant Valley's Trent Thomas 3-1 in overtime during Saturday's finals.

After winning the district title matchup over Thomas 4-3, Callahan felt he took his foot off the pedal coming into regionals.
"I think he wanted it more this week," Callahan said of Thomas. "I didn't prepare myself like I usually do. I didn't go through my normal routine, but I give him credit. I'll be ready for states."

from the tournament.
Still, head coach Jeff Karam comes away from the tournament encouraged to advance nine wrestlers, but at the same time, wanted more.
"Obviously, I wish we could send a couple more," Karam said. "Jody Crouse lost a tough one in the consy semis and Ryan Anderson still burns me. I think he would be moving on to Hershey too. We got nine guys, that's a good number to send the most kids from the district. If you want to have a chance to win that team [state] title, you need to send as many guys out there as possible."

Joining to the three Becahi champions in Hershey include: Zach Glenn (third at 106), Luke Carty (third at 120), Joey Gould (second at 132), Stephen Maloney (third at 138), Cole Karam (third at 152) and Niko Camacho (third at 285).
The Hawks are obviously targeting more hardware this weekend, as senior Luke Karam (33-3) hopes to win his third state championship, while Labriola (38-3), a junior, hopes to pick up his first taste of PIAA gold.

PIAAs only a junior but we don't want to wait until next year," Karam said of Labriola. "I think he's the best kid in the state and until someone can prove me wrong, that's what I believe. He just gets stronger as the match goes on. First three minutes you might be able to hang with him, but he just wears you down."

Boys relay breaks LHS school record

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcaldonald@tnonline.com

The Emmaus boys' swim team are known for their dominance in the 200 medley relay, but Liberty's boys broke that domination and a school record when Alexis Calderon, Nolan Vannata, Reid Rossi, and Robert Negrón clinched the gold medal at the District XI Class AAA Swimming Championships on Friday night at Parkland High School.

"It was crazy," said Calderon, who was the first Hurricane off the block. "I felt really fast, and the other guys felt fast too. [Patrick McAllister and I] finished at the same time, and then Nolan gave us the lead. We were definitely planning on winning."

Vannata was the second Hurricane off the block.

"There was so much adrenaline, I couldn't really comprehend what was going on," Vannata said. "Absolutely, it was so hard to watch the other two. Words can't describe this."

Rossi dove in after Vannata.

"I saw that Alexis had the best 50 of his life. Going in, we were all at our peak," Rossi said. "I've been swimming for 14 years, and it feels really good to top it off like this, and we broke the school record by three seconds. I've never been more happy."

For the last 50, all eyes were on Negrón, the anchor.

"We came in, knowing what we were capable of," said Negrón. "I like going last. I like the pressure on me. It feels a lot better on the podium with your teammates."

The Hurricanes' time in the 200 medley relay was 1:35.06. Emmaus's time was 1:36.55.

Later that evening, the Hurricane boys struck gold again when Brice Kessler, Jake Evert, Vannata, and Negrón took first place in the 200 free relay.

"I know I had to go against some of the fastest swimmers, so I was focused on making sure I didn't get caught up in the wave," said Kessler. "I was really trying to put it all out in the pool."

Liberty's time was 1:26.85, and Emmaus placed second with a time of 1:29.34.

"It's one of the best feelings, and the adrenaline was crazy," said Evert. "I felt really fast with the shave and everything, and I could have easily passed the flags. I knew they couldn't beat Nolan and Robert. It's such a feeling of accomplishment."

In the 400 free relay, Anthony Delcorso, Evert, Kessler, and Christopher Chambers won a fourth place medal with a time of 3:20.50.

The Liberty girls took second place and the silver medal in the 200 medley relay with the team of Sabrina Krotzer, Julia McCarthy, Kayla Drago, and Maggie Walters.

"When I dove in, we were in fourth place, and I kind of went blank," said Walters. "When I looked at the scoreboard, I looked in the wrong lane, but then Kayla said we got second, and I was so happy. I'm so grateful to share this experience with Kayla, Sabrina, and Julia."

The Hurricane girls' time was 1:50.54, and Parkland's time was 1:47.59.

In the 200 free relay, Kendra Smith, Jocelyn Baker, Anna Lehr, and Walters won the bronze medal with a time of 1:41.42, and Lehr, Smith, McCarthy, and Drago also won bronze in the 400 free relay with a time of 3:40.55.

In District XI Class AAA team results, Liberty's boys placed second, and Liberty's girls placed third.

"We knew for two weeks we'd be fast today, and we knew coming in we were going to be good," said Liberty coach Reik Foust. "The girls medley relay sets the tone for the whole meet, and then the guys come in and ... I'm very happy for the kids. Jeff [Matyus], Evan [Kocon], and I work together really well, so when everything comes together, it's a good weekend."

Freedom's boys won a fourth place medal when Colin Burnette, Brandon Burnette, Al Bell, and Brian Seitz swam the 200 medley relay in 1:42.57.

Tyler Higgins, Brandon Burnette, Nick Carbonara, and Andy Conzola placed 11th in the 200 free relay in 1:36.10, and Bell, Colin Burnette, Seitz, and Higgins placed seventh in the 400 free relay in 3:25.95.

For the Patriot girls, Linda Mao, Reilly Ward, Andie Graney, and Alex Koehl placed ninth in the 200 medley relay in 2:00.87.

Ward, Graney, Koehl, and Rileigh Ellis placed sixth in the 200 free relay in 1:44.17, and Ellis, Emily Justice, Megan Schupp, and Bridget Tarnowski placed tenth in the 400 free relay in 4:11.88.

Early Retirement Distributions and Your Taxes

IRS Tax Tip

Many people find it necessary to take out money early from their IRA or retirement plan. Doing so, however, can trigger an additional tax on top of the income tax you may have to pay. Here are a few key points to know about taking an early distribution:

1. Early Withdrawals. An early withdrawal normally means taking the money out of your retirement plan before you reach age 59-1/2.

2. Additional Tax. If you took an early withdrawal from a plan last year, you must report it to the IRS. You may have to pay income tax on the amount you took out. If it was an early withdrawal, you may have to pay an additional 10 percent tax.

3. Nontaxable Withdrawals. The additional 10 percent tax does not apply to nontaxable withdrawals. They include withdrawals of your cost to participate in the plan. Your cost includes contributions that you paid tax on before you put them into the plan.

A rollover is a type of nontaxable withdrawal. A rollover occurs when you take cash or other assets from one plan and contribute the amount to another plan. You normally have 60 days to complete a rollover to make it tax-free.

4. Check Exceptions. There are many exceptions to the additional 10 percent tax. Some of the rules for retirement plans are different from the rules for IRAs.

5. File Form 5329. If you took an early withdrawal last year, you may need to file Form 5329, Additional Taxes on Qualified Plans (Including IRAs) and Other Tax-Favored Accounts, with your federal tax return. See Form 5329 and its instructions for details.

Eight area residents were recognized for their service to youth in scouting as recipients of the 2016 Silver Beaver Award at the Boy Scouts of America Minsi Trails Council's recognition dinner and annual business meeting Jan. 29.

Comprising well over 100 combined years in scouting, the honorees were William Brodniak Jr. from Easton, Allen Edelman Jr. from Whitehall, Richard Kloss from Allentown, Eileen Leicht from Nazareth, John Lyman from Pocono Lake, Alejandro Marti from Kres-geville, Vincent Muller from Orefield, and James Swain III from Bethlehem.

In addition, retired Allentown firefighter Claude Kohl was honored as the Council Alumnus of the Year and received his 70-year Veteran Award Certificate and pin from the Boy Scouts of America. Nyles Possinger and Jerry Still received Outstanding Eagle Scout Awards, and Eagle Scout Jason Herring was recognized for his outstanding service with the Medal of Merit.

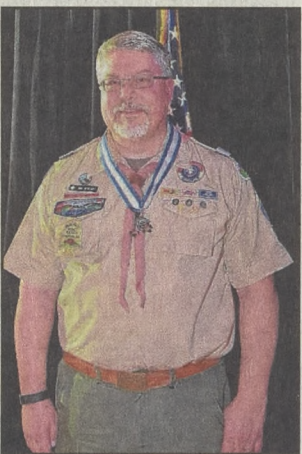

Approximately 200 scouting officials and supporters were in attendance at the event held in the East Hills Moravian Church community room.

Whitehall resident Allen Edelman Jr. was among the Silver Beaver Award recipients at the Minsi Trails Council recognition dinner and annual business meeting. Edelman has been involved in scouting for 27 years and has been the Troop 79 scoutmaster in Coplay since 2006.

Eagle Scout Austin Herring (with his father, Jason, and mother, Robin) receives the Medal of Merit for his actions when he and his mother came upon a vehicular accident scene. Herring, who resides in Canadensis, had his mother call 911 and proceeded to free the driver who was trapped inside an overturned van. He administered first aid and calmed the driver until emergency services personnel arrived on the scene.

James Swain III of Bethlehem achieved Eagle Scout rank as a youth and has been involved in scouting as an adult for 18 years. Swain has served as both a scoutmaster and assistant scoutmaster, and currently holds the latter position with Troop 318 at Rosemont Church.

Attendees enjoy a buffet dinner prior to the meeting.

The Municipal Market House

Four years after the Borough of South Bethlehem was incorporated, President Ulysses S. Grant decided to run for a second term in 1869. At odds with his political policies, anti-Grant Democrats and liberal Republicans nominated New York Tribune editor Horace Greeley as their presidential candidate.

In 1872, Greeley supporters held presidential campaign meetings in "The Wigwam," a 40-by-115-foot one-story wooden frame structure, which they constructed on the corner lot flanked by E. Third, Birch (now Adams) and Mechanic streets in South Bethlehem.

On Nov. 29, 1872, before the electoral college convened, Horace Greeley died while in the care of his personal physician. President Grant won a second term.

Without any further use of the "Wigwam," the building was sold in 1874 at auction for $150 ($3,200 in today's money). Those who invested in the building had recently formed the South Bethlehem Market Company, and renamed the "Wigwam" the Market House. Open early on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday mornings, the first Market House featured a middle aisle paved in brick that ran the length of the building from East Third to Mechanic streets. Farmers and vendors drove off the streets and parked alongside the Market House, where their horse-drawn wagons were unloaded. Exterior doors gave them access to stands in partitioned stalls, where they sold meats, poultry and fresh produce.

In 1878, the borough leased the building from the South Bethlehem Market Company at an annual fee of $100. The company paid taxes on the property and water use. When the building lease expired in 1881, the borough purchased the wooden Market House for $1,000 ($23,900 today). Though business continued as usual, the borough enacted an ordinance "pertaining to the Market House" that was passed by the town council. This meant the Borough controlled all activities in and around the market – and while it protected the consumer, it ultimately helped the borough earn revenue. Five years later, the borough purchased the Market House and the property outright.

In 1885, through the General Borough Law of South Bethlehem, the town council repealed the earlier ordinance pertaining to the public market and subsequent amendments. Revised by borough solicitor J. Davis Brodhead, the new ordinance was enforced by the Market House Committee. The Market Ordinance permitted the Market House to continue its existence within the wooden structure at East Third and Birch (now Adams) streets. The Market House remained open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, from 5 a.m. until 9 a.m. (later extended until noon). The ordinance allowed farmers and vendors to sell meat, poultry, fish and produce for domestic consumption. A borough council clerk was appointed to oversee the removal of waste, rubbish and stale produce, tainted meats or fish in and around the Market House during and after market days. The clerk's inspection also assured accuracy of weights and measures, which prevented vendors from cheating patrons.

Outside the Market House, the ordinance curtailed competition. It prohibited peddlers or vendors from selling goods in neighborhoods when the market was open. The ordinance also applied to non-borough residents, who were prohibited to peddle or hawk any breads, cakes, pretzels, cloth, medicines, jewelry, coal oil, tin ware or like merchandise from door-to-door or upon public streets, alleys or highways – unless a license was procured from the chief burgess. The license was issued on a monthly basis and the cost was set by city council. Violators were fined.

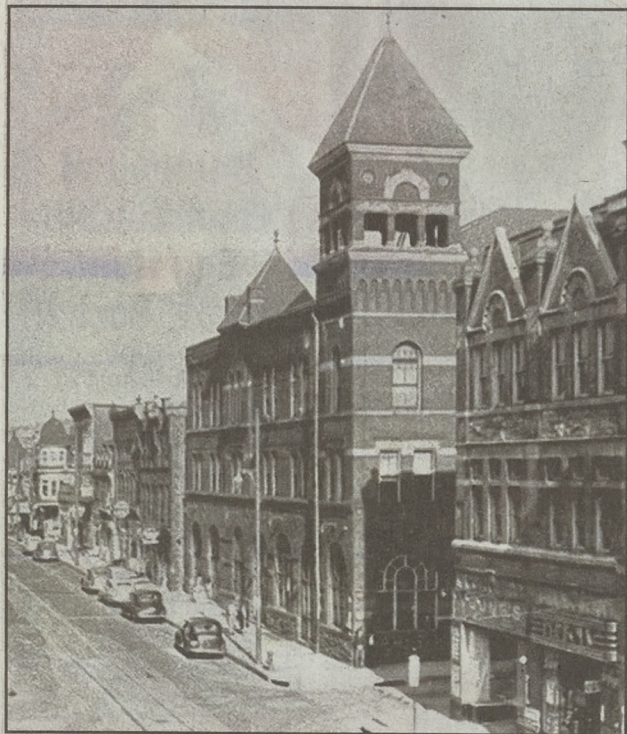

The Market House Committee levied any number of fines on anyone in violation of the ordinance. The committee also had the power to fix and change the rental terms and rates in the market stalls. Those who violated the Market Ordinance faced prosecution by authority of constables or borough police.

As the population of South Bethlehem increased, the Market House proved inadequate for the number of vendors and patrons. In 1890, the borough took action. The old wooden Market House was razed and the adjoining lot was purchased. The borough hired architect A.W. Leh to design, and Bethlehem contractor Josiah R. Wilt to build a substantial three-story brick Municipal Market House at a cost of $40,000.

Incorporated within the northwest corner of the Market House, architect Leh designed a tall square tower, visible from all corners of the borough. On the first floor, the walls of the Market room were covered with white ceramic tiles. Electric light fixtures suspended from the ceiling and tall, wide arched windows illuminated the 136 stalls, rented semi-annually. This brought the borough $5,000 in revenue.

The second floor contained offices, including that of the mayor, the police station and borough officials; the third floor was set aside for use by the public for meetings. The stone basement contained the lock-up (jail) and the boiler room. In all, the new structure offered vendors, patrons and office workers modern electric service, radiant heat, hot and cold running water and public rest rooms.

133RD DISTRICT McNeill seeks re-election to House

BY AL RECKER
Special to The Press

State Rep. Dan McNeill, D-133rd, surrounded by family and friends, announced he is seeking re-election for the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, a seat he has held for the past two terms. The kick-off announcement was held at Palace Pizza, Hokendauqua, Jan. 27.

During his re-election announcement, McNeill said paychecks for legislators should be put on the back burner if a state budget fails to pass by June 30. He said for the second time he has proposed legislation on this matter.

McNeill first introduced the bill June 17, 2015, but was able to get only two co-sponsors, so he pulled the bill. Since the budget has dragged into a new year and forced school districts and human services agencies to borrow money to stay open, he is hopeful more members will be willing to sign on to the bill to prevent a similar impasse in the future.

"We still have a lot of work to do, including passing two budgets, which is the fiduciary responsibility that I was elected to do," McNeill said. "We need to properly fund our schools so that every child in the state receives the quality education that they deserve.

"I'm tired of the partisan politics that runs Harrisburg, and I'm committed to serving the residents of the district and passing legislation that helps working families in the Lehigh Valley.

Molony begins run for House seat

BY PAUL CMIL
Special to The Press

Catasauqua business owner David Molony officially announced his candidacy for representative of the 133rd Legislative District at a Feb. 23 kickoff meeting. During the meeting with his campaign supporters, Molony, a nationally recognized acupuncture specialist and Chinese medicine practitioner, gave a short speech outlining his agenda.

This will be Molony's third attempt to secure a seat in the legislature. He is a Republican, running unopposed on his party's ballot in the April 26 primary election. The seat is currently held by Democrat Daniel T. McNeill, who is running for re-election.

"This is the year when voters are expressing their dislike for the way the establishment runs things, doing the same old things and expecting different results," Molony said. "The district was drawn to protect Democrat Party candidates. Only 26 percent of the district is Republican. Luckily, we have quite a few independent thinkers voting and people seem to understand why I am running. My last time out I had 45 percent of the vote. This time I want to convince another 5 percent to vote for something other the same old answers to the same old problems."

Molony alluded to the corruption charges in Allentown as indicative of how establishment politicians act in their own interests, or at least in the best interests of the special groups they represent. He echoed the call of all politicians that he stands with the people.

"I'm not beholden to special interest groups like my opponent," he said. "This is a time to differentiate between representatives of special interest groups and those who truly represent the voters who elect them."

In his policy statements, Molony had two key ideas.

"We need to eliminate property tax as a way to fund schools," he said. "Putting all the funding with the state is subject to corruption even worse than what we see now. Collectively, we must look at creative, economical ways to educate our children."

Molony claims current practices are not effective. "Schools should not be held hostage to the whims of the governor, nor should our students have anything less than a well-rounded education that prepares them to be contributing members of society," he said.

Molony is opposed to a small decrease in property taxes, as proposed by Gov.

Thomas Wolf.

"If you don't eliminate the tax, then they will just creep back up again," he said. "Gambling revenue was supposed to reduce property taxes. It didn't. And no one, especially our senior citizens, should lose their home because they can't pay the tax man."

Molony's second idea raised some eyebrows for its boldness.

"We have a large Syrian Christian community in the valley. We should be asking the governor to send Syrian refugees here and let the churches verify that they are legitimate refugees," he said. "Syrians are being terrorized for their Christian religion and the war in their neighborhoods."

Molony referred to a history of churches helping to support refugees.

"The system is in place and we can do so much good to get these oppressed people functioning as productive members of the community," he said.

Molony likes to mention he worked with the state Legislature to pass three bills related to acupuncture and oriental medicine, all of which were passed by a Republican-led legislative branch and a Democratic governor.

LEHIGH DA WARNS

'Puffers' attract car thieves

CONTRIBUTED ARTICLE

Lehigh County District Attorney James B. Martin, the Lehigh County Auto Theft Task Force, the Pennsylvania Auto Theft Prevention Authority (ATPA) and the American Automobile Association (AAA) are warning drivers not to leave their cars unlocked, unattended and running, or "puffing," this winter.

Police are distributing ice scrapers with a prevention message and offering free posters to local businesses, especially convenience stores, to help raise awareness.

More than 399 vehicles were stolen in Lehigh County last year.

"The Lehigh County Auto Theft Task Force is one of the most active anti-theft units in the state," Martin said. "Auto theft has decreased 17 percent from 2014. That is attributable in large part to the task force's high-tech, coordinated effort to identify and eliminate organized theft rings. We're asking the public to help us minimize these highly preventable thefts, which are crimes of opportunity, in all neighborhoods."

The task force is one of the only ones in the state that tracks statistics on vehicles that are stolen with the keys inside. In 2013, 48 vehicles were stolen with keys inside; in 2014, 162 vehicles; and in 2015, 129 vehicles. From December 2015 to January 2016, 27 vehicles had

"Locking your car is the first line of defense," said Steve Wheeler, ATPA executive director.

"It's common sense but not common practice. About half of all of Pennsylvania's stolen cars were left unlocked, many with the keys inside, and some running and unattended."

Martin said a recent case highlights why the puffing campaign is so important and why the public should heed the message.

An Allentown woman had left her 2016 Toyota Corolla running on West Chew Street the morning of Feb. 18. She had left the car running for about 10 minutes. When she left her home to go to the vehicle, she discovered it was missing.

Allentown police received the report of a stolen vehicle just before 8 a.m. As police reports were being prepared, Whitehall Township police reported that there was a crash on the Sixth Street Extension by Jordan Park.

Police determined that the vehicle had been stolen. The driver fled the scene.

Police determined that it was the vehicle that earlier had been stolen from West Chew Street. The vehicle had heavy front end damage and was not drivable. The case is still under investigation.

Auto thefts have a ripple effect. Stolen vehicles often are used to commit other violent crimes. When motorists leave mail, bills, work files, other sensitive, personal and identification information, house keys and garage door openers in their vehicles, they are vulnerable to identity theft and burglaries, Martin said.

AAA urges motorists to ask their auto insurance agents about discounts for anti-theft or vehicle recovery devices. "Pennsylvania is one of nine states that requires insurers to provide car owners with discounts on comprehensive insurance rates for anti-theft devices," said Jana L.

MARKET

Of all the drawings that went into his architectural designs – including schools, churches and private residences – none compared to the number of drawings, or to the extent of detail Leh lavished on the Municipal Market House. Perhaps one reason Leh retained these drawings throughout his career was because they were a reminder of the building's importance to the community.

In the twentieth century, the convenience of trolley service on East Third Street enabled great numbers of riders from both sides of the Lehigh River to shop in the Municipal Market House. In 1930, Robert Pfeifle brought a new presence to the mayor's office through his efforts to control vice and lawlessness on the Southside. Listed in the 1932 police blotter, for example, Pfeifle enforced the Market Ordinance – five men from Philadelphia were arrested for peddling without a license, found guilty, paid a fine and were discharged on July 20.

Up to and beyond the World Wars, the Municipal Market House offered farm-fresh produce, meats, fish and poultry on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, while around South Bethlehem, privately-owned butcher shops and bakeries also did business with no shortage of patrons.

The Municipal Market House stood for nearly 70 years and served the community well. Once the new city hall was built on Church Street during the 1960s, all offices vacated the Municipal Market. It remained idle and was considered an eye-sore by a new generation which never quite understood the significance – or the history – behind this beloved Southside landmark.

The convenience of corporate supermarkets, superhighways, jet planes, truck deliveries, refrigeration and new methods of food processing had made an impact on small farmers selling to fewer patrons. The Municipal Market House went the way of most inadequate buildings: neglect, abandonment and lack of support for reinvesting in a second use. The building was finally razed in the 1970s, ending a local tradition and the demise of yet another Bethlehem icon.

WARNS

Tidwell, manager of public and government affairs for AAA Mid-Atlantic. "This discount is applied when the vehicle has an activated factory or after-market recovery device or tracking system such as GM's OnStar system, LoJack or Teletrac. Such devices have been quite successful in recovering stolen vehicles, in leading law enforcement to chop shops and in thwarting the export of stolen cars."

If the anti-theft device was factory installed, the VIN number should trigger the discount, according to Pennsylvania state insurance guidelines. If the anti-theft device was installed after market, proof of installation, usually in the form of an installation receipt, is required to receive the discount.

AAA reminds motorists that puffing doesn't enhance a vehicle's ability to perform on the road. "Today's automobiles have fuel injection systems rather than carburetors, so they do not need a long warm-up time to keep from having drivability concerns," Tidwell said. "Even in very cold temperatures, modern vehicles – those built after 1990 – require no more than 10 to 30 seconds to get oil moving through engines."

Following these simple, common sense tips at home, work and on vacation can spare motorists the hassles and expenses of having their vehicles stolen:

- Lock vehicles and take keys every time. For most drivers, it's a habit to leave the keys in the vehicle or to take them with them. Motorists should double check that they have their keys as they walk away from their vehicle. No places are safe from vehicle thefts, not even driveways.

- Do not leave vehicles "puffing" – running and unattended. It is tempting to leave heaters on to keep vehicles warm, especially when motorists leave for short periods of time to go into convenience stores or to make quick stops. However, it takes a thief only a few seconds to steal a vehicle. It also is illegal to leave a vehicle running and unattended on a public road in Pennsylvania.

- Don't leave valuables in vehicles. Leaving cell phones, mail, garage door openers, wallets, computers or other devices or valuables in a vehicle attracts thieves and invites identity thefts and burglaries.

The public can view surveillance video of puff-ers and stolen vehicles on ATPA's website, www.watchyourcar.org.

Created in 1994 by the General Assembly, ATPA combats auto theft by providing grants statewide to law enforcement agencies, conducting public education initiatives and providing specialized training. Since ATPA's inception, the Commonwealth has had a 73 percent decrease in vehicle thefts, compared with a national decrease of 53 percent.

'Journeys' a destination at Easton's State Theatre

BY ED COURRIER
Special to The Press

"Life is a journey, not a destination."

- Ralph Waldo Emerson

The Easton Hospital Gallery at the State Theatre Center for the Arts, Easton, provides ample room for Sandra Corpora to display examples of her artistic travels across time, space and genres.

"This retrospective exhibition of oil paintings explores a variety of motifs and evolution of style in landscape, figurative and still life. Throughout all the pieces, work is based on study from life and plein air painting on location.

"The paintings are inspired by the beauty of the natural world and the way light reveals form and color," explains Corpora about her solo exhibit.

"Sandra Corpora: Journeys" continues through March 24 in the gallery at Fifth and Northampton streets, Easton.

From her freshly-sliced "Arrangement with Red Pears" and delicate "Antique Roses in Blue Glass" to her whimsical "Open Door Self Portrait," where Corpora poses with paint brush in hand and an impish expression on her bright face, the still life and portraiture work is representative of her "painterly realism" style. The paintings are oil on linen, canvas or panels.

GALLERY VIEW

Corpora received a BFA in Painting from Kutztown University, receiving the prize for top fine arts graduate. She has studied in workshops with Nelson Shanks, John Osborne, T.M. Nicolas, Kenn Backhaus and Scott Jennings.

Corpora is a member of Oil Painters of America, where she won an Award of Excellence; American Impressionist Society, American Women Artists, and the Portrait Painters of America. Her work is in private and public collections in Italy, Canada, Norway and the United States. She is represented by Gross McCleaf Gallery, Philadelphia.

Corpora's landscapes are stunning in size, detail and atmosphere. Her geographical journey begins with "Town of Steeples," where church steeples poke up through the trees of South Bethlehem.

"Bright Winter at Burnside" offers a crisp view of this Lehigh Valley landmark and the Albertus L. Meyers Bridge occupies the "View from the Little Lehigh."

Other highlights along this journey include "Spry Point, Late Afternoon" a lush green field between stands of pines on Cape Breton Island that measures 60 in. by 40 in.

Several paintings, created during and after multiple trips to Sicily, include intimate portraits of the people there, breathtaking scenery and even some Sicilian livestock.

Another of the 60 in. by 40 in. paintings is a coastal scene of the Sicilian town of Cefalù near where Corpora's husband, Pat was born, as well as a favorite place to paint. "Fishing Boats at Day's End" provides a sweeping vista of brightly colored boats in the foreground, then continues through the sun-drenched ancient buildings of the town and into the greens and blues of vegetation on the distant hills.

In creating these large works, Corpora says "... many of the big ones are based on smaller paintings I did outside on location ... many places I've gone to numerous times and painted, so I know the places very well."

"Fishing Boats at Day's End" is an example of this.

"The painting with the boats, I painted maybe five times ... at different times of day, with or without boats, with bathers, with the sun setting, the sun rising ... and I painted it all very small, eight inches by 10 inches."

When asked whose works influenced her, Corpora says that, among many, "John Singer Sargent, of course, is one of everybody's favorites. A contemporary artist that I really admire is Richard Schmid. He is a fabulous painter."

Of her own work, she says, "Solid drawing is important to me. But, I want to have the brush strokes, the brushwork say something in itself. I want it to be beautiful to look at in itself ... It's more interesting and it also draws you in when you can see little things happening with the paint itself ... So, it gives you another kind of perception as you look at the piece."

As a talented master of landscapes, figurative, still life and portraiture, Corpora shares her skills with students at her Wall Street studio in Bethlehem.

The Fab Faux is known for its painstaking recreations of Beatles' songs, including "Strawberry Fields Forever" and "I Am the Walrus" performed in complete part-perfect renditions, or such harmony-driven songs as "Because," "Nowhere Man" and "Paperback Writer," reproduced not only note-for-note, but with extra vocalists to achieve a double-tracked effect. The Fab Faux was founded in 1998 by Will Lee, bassist for Paul Shaffer's CBS Orchestra on the "Late Show With David Letterman," and includes Jimmy Vivino, music director-guitarist for "Conan"; lead-singer-drummer-producer Rich Pagano; guitarist Frank Agnello, and multi-instrumentalist Jack Petruzzelli. Fourth St., Bethlehem, in celebration of his 12th studio album, "Bright Side of Down," out now on Red House Records. The first release in more than four years from the acclaimed songwriter widely regarded as "one of contemporary folk music's leading talents" has guest vocals by Red House labelmates Lucy Kaplansky, Eliza Gilkyson, Claudia Schmidt and Michael Johnson. The 11 original songs and one cover (by Bill Morrissey) explore themes of winter-to-spring, unforgiving edges, saving beauty and being at the mercy of larger forces. The album opens with uptempo "Holed Up Mason City" and ends with a reflection on spring, "Really Spring." Gorka experiences the "Procrastination Blues," shares the charming "Honeybee" and the timely story of "High Horse." "I think my experience living in Minnesota has brought a certain perspective to this record," Gorka says. "You'll find it in the images but also in the idea that in spite of bitter cold and wind, people find ways to hold each other up and keep going." Tickets: godfreydaniels.org, 610-867-2390

"This one always sells out," says Traci McGinty Langer, Marketing Director, Fegley's Brew Works, of the "Cask Beer Festival" 3-4 p.m. March 19 "VIP Hour," capped at 200 attendees.

"This is one of our favorite festivals for food. We do a really nice Celtic-themed buffet," McGinty Langer says. With St. Patrick's Day two days before, there's entertainment by step dancers from the O'Grady Quinlan Academy of Irish Dance, Easton.

Upcoming at Fegley's Allentown Brew Works: "Fegley's Chocolate Festival," 3-6 p.m. April 16; "Whiskey Festival," 4-7 p.m. Oct. 15, and the "Craft Beer Festival," VIP, noon-1 p.m., Session A, 1-4 p.m., Session B, 5-8 p.m. Dec. 3. "That's our biggest festival. That's the granddaddy of them all," says McGinty Langer of the 10th annual "Craft Beer Festival."

Fegley's Brew Works bottles 13 beers. "Those are our flagship distribution beers. And then we have a whole bunch of seasonals," says McGinty Langer. According to Fegley's Brew Works Brew Master Beau Baden, approximately 5,000 barrels are brewed annually. "Arctic Alchemy" is a 2014 gold medal recipient, Great America Beer Festival, Denver, Col.

Fegley's Brew Works Executive Chef Thomas Rutherford came on board in November 2015. Look for a new menu in April. Menu fare, including beef and vegetables, is locally-sourced whenever possible. "The owners are big environmentalists," says McGinty Langer.

Fegley's Brew Works owners are Rich Fegley, founder-co-owner; Jeff Fegley, co-owner, and Peg and Dick Fegley, husband and wife owners.

Fegley's Bethlehem Brew Works celebrates its 18th anniversary in April. Fegley's Allentown Brew Works celebrates its 10th anniversary in June 2017.

"I'm amazed at when these craft breweries and brew pubs come into a town and city, how much it helps build communities," McGinty Langer says. "It seems the entire community around it flourishes."

Jump into the 'Deadpool'

There's a reason why "Deadpool" was No. 1 at the box office three weeks in a row.

It's phenomenal film-making on multiple levels.

"Deadpool" takes the comic book superhero formula, puts it in the Mixmaster and tosses it up on the big screen unlike anything you've seen in the genre.

"Deadpool" breaks all the rules. It's a wild ride of cartoon action violence with a wise-cracking sentiment at its center that lets you in on the joke.

"Deadpool" is to superhero movies what "Scream" (1996) is to horror movies.

From the fake opening credits ("Directed by an overpaid tool," it's stated over freeze-frame scenes) to the direct-to-audience commentary by Deadpool (Ryan Reynolds) to the creative sendup of what is a formulaic storyline, "Deadpool" is so far one of this year's most entertaining movies.

Be forewarned, parents: "Deadpool" is not a superhero film that you will want to see with your pre-teen. You may not even want your teen-ager to see "Deadpool," which is rated R, unusual for this type of film, which usually has a PG-13 or PG rating.

I could have done without the graphic representations of violence, the hyper-sexuality of some scenes and the profanity-laced dialogue. That said, this is somewhat the point with "Deadpool": It pushes the boundaries of cinema, especially those of the comic-book superhero genre.

Deadpool, aka Wade Winston Wilson, is a Marvel Comics character created by artist-writer Rob Liefeld and writer Fabian Nicieza, first appearing in "The New Mutants" No. 98 (February 1991). In the 2004 Marvel Comics series, "Cable & Dead-

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistain
pwillistain@nronline.com

pool," Wilson refers to his scar-covered body as "Ryan Reynolds crossed with a Shar-Pei." Reynolds first portrayed Deadpool in "X-Men Origins: Wolverine" (2009).

In the "Deadpool" movie, Wilson is diagnosed with thyroid cancer. He falls in love with Vanessa (Morena Baccarin of TV's "Gotham"). Wilson undergoes an experimental treatment administered by Ajax, aka Francis (Ed Skrein), and Angel Dust (Gina Carano) that seems to cure or stop his cancer, scars his face and body and gives him superpowers, including the ability to heal and lizard-like regrowing of limbs.

Deadpool becomes known as "the Merc (as in mercenary) with a Mouth," befriends Weasel (T.J. Miller), teams with Colossus (voiced by Stefan Kapicic) and Negasonic Teenage Warhead (Brianna Hildebrand) to seek revenge on Ajax, and lives off the grid with Blind Al (Leslie Uggams. Yes, that Leslie Uggams.).

Tim Miller, in a dazzling big-screen directorial debut, works from a screenplay by Rhett Reese and Paul Wernick (co-screenwriters, "G.I. Joe: Retaliation," 2013; "Zombieland," 2009) based on the characters by Nicieza and Liefeld. The movie's humor extends to a soundtrack of pop hits ("Mister Sandman," The Chordettes; "Calendar Girl," Neil Sedaka; "Angel of the Morning," Juice Newton; "Careless Whisper," George Michael; "You're The Inspiration," Chicago) played for ironic effect.

"Deadpool" is deadpan parody, with wince-inducing violence and snarky pop-culture references. The dialogue is quippy and quick-witted, with send-ups of Marvel films and Ryan Reynolds himself ("You think Ryan Reynolds got this far on a superior acting method?").

Well, yes, he did. Reynolds is dead-on, alternately playful and sexy or mean and over-the-top, often in the span of a few seconds.

"Deadpool" works because it doesn't take itself seriously. Many big-screen adaptations of comic book superheroes are dead serious, too serious. Comic books are supposed to be fun. So are the movie adaptations. "Deadpool" is dead-on fun, alive with entertainment for young adults and fans of the superhero movie genre.

Credit Readers Anonymous: Stan Lee, Marvel Comics co-creator, has a cameo as a club deejay. Stay to the very end of the credits to see Ryan Reynolds in a "Ferris Bueller's Day Off" (1986) homage about the "Deadpool" sequel (in production for 2017 release).

5. "Gods of Egypt," $5 million, $22.8 million, two weeks; 6. "Ris-

Missing my friend, Routine

Once upon a time, I had a friend. But I didn't recognize I had that friend. Nor did I think that friend was worthwhile.

Often, when we have something or someone, we take it for granted and don't give it much thought. Or, we have no special feelings for that friend.

Until it's gone. Then we begin to know what we had as we look back on how that friend played an important part in our lives, even if we didn't know it at the time.

That's exactly what I'm doing now with my friend, Routine.

Most times, I took Routine for granted. Other times, I hated her.

I hated that I had to do something at a specific time when what I really wanted was freedom — freedom to do what I wanted every single day.

I wanted freedom from Routine.

Fast forward to a period in time that is now mine. It's called retirement.

I believe retirement is a gift, a gift that is given to us each day we open our eyes knowing the day is ours to do as we want with it.

For so much of our lives we live by the calendar and by the clock as we earn a living. There is lots of routine and lots of structure in most jobs, regardless of how much other freedom the job holds.

"Work" usually means certain things have to be done according to a time frame or schedule. We have to get to work by a certain time and we're expected to work a set number of hours. In retirement, we are free from that routine of work — free to replace those hours any way we want.

Some people struggle to fill their time when they no longer have the routine of work. Some hate the struggle so much that they end up taking a job of some sort to help fill their hours.

My neighbor just talked about that very thing this week. Newly retired, he said for a while he enjoyed his freedom from routine — a short while.

"I got so bored with all those empty hours. There has to be more in life than golfing or sitting on the sofa watching TV," he said.

He told me all that as a way of explaining why, as a retired electrical engineer, he is now working in the produce department of a local supermarket.

After years of semi-retirement, I am totally enjoying my freedom from routine. I'm happily living what I call my second childhood. In many ways it is actually better than my first childhood, and that one was pretty darn good.

While I often say a thank-you prayer for the freedom to choose how I spend each day, so many times I find myself questioning why I can't get much done.

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik
newsgrl@comcast.net

I work only two days a week meeting my writing deadlines for Pennsylvania and Florida newspapers. The rest of the time I can do what I want.

So why in the world can't I get as much done as I did when I was working 40 or 50 hours a week?

After giving that some serious thought, it dawned on me that by not having to stick to a routine, I limit what get done.

My newspaper deadlines are set in stone. So I alter my activities to make sure I meet those deadlines. When there are no deadlines or time restrictions and I can do what I want, I'm not compelled to get something finished. I can tell myself I'll do it tomorrow.

Most times I don't do it tomorrow because my friend Routine isn't there dictating what I should do.

To tell the truth, I often don't know what day of the week it is on days when I don't have to follow a routine.

Routine gives structure to our days. It dictates what we will accomplish each day.

I've discovered having no routine can be as bad as having too much routine.

My mother thought there was no such thing as too much routine. Sticking to a strict routine marked her days.

Like many women in her time, she did the wash every Monday, hanging it on the line to dry. If it rained Monday, she didn't postpone washday until Tuesday. She simply hung the clothes in the cellar.

Mom had a set routine for all of her household chores. Thursdays she cleaned the living room, Fridays she scrubbed the kitchen floor, Saturdays she scrubbed the porches.

There was a time when a doctor was scheduling an important medical procedure for her. He told her he would do it Friday.

"I can't be there on Friday," she told the doctor. "That's the day I have to scrub the kitchen floor."

She was dismayed at the thought of altering her routine.

She also followed a strict routine when it came to cooking. I knew that every Wednesday we would have spaghetti, every Thursday we would have steak and every Friday we would have fish.

I used to poke fun at her absolute adherence to a set routine. But I'll tell you this: She got a heck of a lot more done each day than I do.

Maybe I need to see a little more of my old friend Routine.

When your heart attacks

First of three parts
Q. If you think you're having a heart attack, should you take aspirin?

A blood clot in a coronary artery narrowed by cholesterol and other substances is the usual cause of a heart attack. Aspirin keeps blood moving through constricted arteries. Paramedics may give aspirin when they respond to an emergency to treat a heart-attack victim.

Aspirin reduces mortality from heart attacks. Taking aspirin is a subject you should discuss with your doctor. Aspirin could hurt you if your symptoms are caused by a different health problem.

Doctors call a heart attack a "myocardial infarction." Loosely translated, the term means heart-muscle death. The clogged artery prevents oxygenated blood from nourishing the heart. This can lead to pain, the death of heart cells, scar tissue and fatal arrhythmias.

About 1.1 million Americans have a heart attack every year. About 460,000 of those heart attacks are fatal. About half the fatalities happen within one hour after symptoms begin and before the victim gets to a hospital.

How do you know if you're having a heart attack? Here are six common warning signs:

1. Most heart attacks involve discomfort in the center of the chest that lasts more than a few minutes. It may pause for a while and then restart. The discomfort can be in the form of pain or pressure. Some experience a squeezing or feeling of fullness.
2. Pain in shoulders, arms, back, upper abdomen, neck and jaw
3. Shortness of breath
4. Cold sweat
5. Nausea
6. Lightheadedness
7. Anxiety

Angina pectoris is the medical term for chest pain or discomfort usually caused by coronary artery disease. Angina (pronounced "an-ji-nuh" or "an-juh-nuh") is not a heart attack. However, there's a higher risk of a heart attack if you have angina.

It is often difficult to tell the difference between a heart attack and angina. If you get angina, you should get medical attention immediately. Exertion brings on angina. It's usually relieved by resting or taking angina medicine.

A heart attack can happen anytime, during exertion or at rest. Some heart attacks are like the ones you see in films and on stage; they're sudden and dramatic. Most heart attacks build gradually over several hours. Many heart-attack victims have symptoms days or weeks in advance.

If you think you're having a heart attack, call 911 immediately. There are drugs that break up clots and open arteries; they work best when given within the first hour after the onset of an attack.

If emergency medical services are not available, ask someone to drive you to the hospital. You shouldn't drive yourself, unless you have no other choice.

While it may seem macabre, planning for a heart attack is intelligent. Having a basic plan in place could save time and a life. Map out your steps if an attack happened at home or at work.

For example, decide who would care for dependents.

Discussing the use of aspirin with your doctor in advance will give you a clear course of action if you have a heart attack.

LV Auto Dealers pledge $100,000 from Gala for Children's Hospital at LVH-Cedar Crest

The Greater Lehigh Valley Auto Dealers Association (GLVADA) has announced a multi-year pledge totaling $100,000 for the Children's Hospital at Lehigh Valley Hospital. The pledge is GLVADA's largest charitable gift ever.

This year's auto show preview gala, "Gear Up For Excitement," 6-10 p.m. March 16, Goodman Campus, Lehigh University, Bethlehem, features a St. Patrick's Day theme with Irish fanfare and entertainment, including Kids in Kilts Lehigh bagpipers, Celtic and American folk music, bagpipe rock 'n' roll and Irish folk singers.

The auto show opens March 17 and continues through March 20 at the Goodman Campus.

"This year, we felt compelled to make the largest donation in our history," said Rob Bennett, chair of GLVADA's charitable contributions committee. "The gift will be used to support the transfer of the pediatric cancer and infusion center from Lehigh Valley Hospital - Muhlenberg to the Cedar Crest Boulevard location of the Children's Hospital at Lehigh Valley Hospital.

J. Nathan Hagstrom, MD, chair, Lehigh Valley Health Network (LVHN) Department of Pediatrics, said the support from the auto dealers association will help the Children's Hospital at Lehigh Valley Hospital to create a child-friendly waiting area for the Children's Cancer and Infusion Center at the new location. Construction of the center has not begun.

"Our cancer patients will visit our outpatient center over 30 times before they are finished with their course of treatment. Cancer patients can spend hours and sometimes the entire day in the outpatient center," said Dr. Hagstrom.

"For these reasons, we want our new center to be child and family-centered. We want it to feel comfortable, positive and fun to the children and their families," Dr. Hagstrom said.

"Kids, cars and community say it all for the Greater Lehigh Valley Auto Dealers Association," said Tom Kwiatek, GLVADA executive director. "The proceeds from the auto show each year are used to support many important community organizations, but the money we raise at the preview gala is always dedicated to a specific charity or charities that do vital work for children."

Children's Hospital at Lehigh Valley Hospital provides family-centered care for children, including inpatient and ambulatory care, a children's ER, subspecialties in 28 pediatric specialties and child-specific services such as rehabilitation and burn care as well as general pediatrics.

The Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) offers medical and surgical care for newborns and premature infants. The NICU, the region's only Pediatric Intensive Care Unit (PICU), a seven-bed unit devoted to the care of critically-ill or injured children, and the Pediatric Specialty Center are at the Cedar Crest campus.

The Pediatric Ambulatory Surgical Unit (PASU) is at the LVH-Muhlenberg campus. The outpatient pediatric clinic at LVH-17th Street in Allentown handles more than 33,000 visits a year.
