Corporal Paul Jani Recovers From Wounds

Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Jani Sr., 719 Broadway, are in receipt of a letter from the War Department stating that their son, Paul J. Jani Jr., several weeks ago promoted from private, first class, to a corporal in the United States Army in North Africa, had recovered from a slight wound received on May 6 while in action in North Africa.

The parents, at the time they received the first message from the War Department that their son was wounded on May 6 in action, were told since by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Webb, of Broadway, that their son, Harold Webb, who is also serving Uncle Sam in North Africa, had come across Paul, and that on May 6 he was wounded in the leg by a piece of shrapnel, but not seriously.

Corporal Jani was graduated from Liberty High School in June, 1941. After his eighteenth birthday, January 23, 1942, he was inducted into service, being sent first to Philadelphia and then to Camp Wheeler, Ga. In May, 1942, he was sent overseas to England and Ireland. His troop was the first to be sent from Ireland to North Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. Jani have another son, Francis, 21, who is in the service, stationed at Camp Campbell, Ky. He was inducted into the service December 28, 1942.
