HEALTH NEWS

ST. LUKE'S HN New therapy program offered

Lutathera, an innovative radioactive therapy for gastroenteropancreatic neuroendocrine tumors, is now available at St. Luke's University Health Network.

The drug targets GEP-NETS, which are found in the neuroendocrine cells of the pancreas and parts of the gastrointestinal tract, including the stomach, intestines, colon and rectum.

Lutathera, approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Admin-istration in January 2018, is a radiopharmaceutical from a new class of drugs called Peptide Receptor Radionuclide Therapy (PRRT), used to target and kill tumor cells. Lutathera is the first PRRT ever approved in the United States

While it is not a curative agent, Lutathera halts progression of the cancer. In fact, studies show a 79 percent lower risk of cancer spread, growth or worsening and its effects are expected to work for up to 18 months with some cases up to four years out.

Lutathera consists of four infusions on an outpatient basis, spaced eight weeks apart, for a total of four doses. Treatment is administered through IV in a lead-lined room under the guidance of a radiologist at St. Luke's University Hospital - Bethlehem.

Network named to Top 100

St. Luke's University Hospital, Bethlehem, has been named one of the nation's 100 Top Hospitals in the Major Teaching Hospital category by IBM Watson Health for the fifth year in a row and for the seventh time. St. Luke's Anderson Campus was named a 100 Top Medium Community Hospital.

IBM Watson Health's 100 Top Hospitals list is based entirely on an independent, scientific review of objective data from government and other publicly available sources. "The 100 Top Hospitals award recognizes an organization's ability to thrive regardless of the constantly changing environment of today's health care industry and national imperatives that continue to require the highest value of care," said St. Luke's President and CEO Richard A. Anderson.

Chairman Roger Hudak announced at the March 26 Mayor's South Side Task Force meeting that final preparations for the Spring Southside Cleanup are underway. The annual event is scheduled for April 13 from 10 a.m. - noon, with breakfast provided at 9:30 a.m. The task force, in partnership with Lehigh University and other organizations, sponsors the event. Volunteers are to meet at Farrington Square, rain or shine.

Hudak happily related that progress was being made on the conversion of a former ice house into apartments at the corner of Fourth and Adams streets. The building, previously utilized for storage by Lehigh University, has been renamed "Brinker Lofts." He expressed concern for the future of the other buildings in the block that are for sale or had been recently purchased by developers. With several residen- Stephanie Augello, tial projects underway south of the Lehigh River, Hudak said he thinks a parking garage with 585 spaces will eventually be built at Third and Polk streets. Janine Santoro from the Bethlehem Area Public Library Southside branch promoted the branch's upcoming used book sale, starting April 30 through May 4. The library is closed on Fri-days. She listed several upcoming programs that are free, including "A Poetry Reading & Writing Workshop with Matt Wolf" for April 15, "Glass Painting for Grown-ups" on April 18, and an "Introduction to Gardening" led by master gardener Lynn Dautrich for April 20. She said May events include making Mother's Day cards on May 11 and Burkhart mentions three fairy tale story time events May 14, 21 and 28. Some of these programs require registration. City to revamp Christmas display

BY STEPHEN ALTHOUSE Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem residents made their wish lists and checked them twice when contemplating how to make the Christmas City's annual display just a better gift.

They had a chance to share their opinions during a public presentation April 2 with David Weiner, principal with New York-based David Weiner Design.

Since 1937, Bethlehem has marketed itself as 'Christmas City USA" and the city is looking to revamp the display, paying Weiner and his company to come up with a more festive celebration to mark the birth of Jesus Christ.

Weiner offered photos and videos of other displays across the world,

Former ambassador dishes on life as a diplomat

GREAT DECISIONS

BY STEPHEN ALTHOUSE Special to the Bethlehem Press

The first thing a for-eign diplomat has to learn is, don't drive the same route to the office every morning.

Patricia Butenis didn't know this or much else when she joined the United States Foreign Service in 1980, but her ignorance worked out well. After 34 years, she retired in 2014 with the rank of career minister after having served as U.S. ambassador to Bangladesh, Maldives and Sri Lanka. She loved her career choice.

"I only had the vaguest idea of what I was getting into," she said during a "State of the State Department and Diplomacy' presentation March 24 as part of the Great Decisions Foreign Policy Lecture series at Kirkland Village. "It remains an exciting career of service to our country.

Many Americans know little about the ac- vice if that's what the matter," she said with a tivities of the State Department and even less about the life of diplomat.

is offering her opinions about the condition of the State Department and the Trump administration's foreign policy. In her assessment, many people at State suffered from damaged morale with President Trump's appointment of Secretary of State Rex Tillerson. That situation has improved under current Secretary Michael Pompeo, who, Butenis asserted, is thought by some to have the respect of the president in the same way the Henry Kissinger did with President Nixon.

Butenis deployed some humor during her Great Decision speech, saying that many people think diplomats "just host cocktail parties and dinners.'

While that is an exaggeration, she said, it is true "soft diplomacy" is certainly part of the job description. Moreover, Butenis said, "You'd be surprised how much business can get done over dinner."

Patriots wading through EPC West

BY PETER CAR pcar@tnonline.com

Freedom's start to the season has been slow, but it's not discouraging for head coach Tony Fabrizio.

The Patriots are off to a 2-3 start, playing in the EPC West for the first time and while losses to Easton and Emmaus have been early blemishes on their mark, Fabrizio is happy with the progress so far this season.

The Pates fell to Easton 11-7 and suffered a 14-5 setback to Emmaus. Both programs are perennial contenders for the league and district crown and playing against the best only strengthens what the Patriot program hopes to become.

We're used to playing the top-tier teams,' Fabrizio said about playing up this year in the EPC. "I think it's showing with the scores. We had a tight game with Easton, and kept the game with Emmaus competitive, despite having our faceoff guy out for the game. SPEED FREAKS

A few questions we had to ask ourselves

New guesses on when the Penske/Gibbs domination ends?

GODSPEAK: Kyle Busch wrecks on Lap 1 and wins at Bristol? I think Gibbs/ Penske has the Midas touch. This will continue until a June swoon. KEN'S CALL: It lasts through Richmond this week, then the off week, but ends at the wild-card Talladega race. With Aric Almirola winning, by the way.

Was that really Ty Dillon grabbing a stage win at Bristol?

GODSPEAK: Those playoff points are valuable, if you get into the playoffs - you know what I mean? KEN'S CALL: Yes, it was, and ... hey, look! There's a blind squirrel in my backyard that just stumbled over a nut!

FEUD OF THE WEEK

ARIC ALMIROLA VS.

WILLIAM BYRON: Byron wrecked into Almirola on the first of 500 laps, then Almirola retired after being scored for three laps at Bristol.

GODWIN KELLY'S TAKE: This one may come back to haunt Byron - this weekend. "He lost it under me and wiped us out," Almirola said. "I'm pretty frustrated

RICHMOND THREE THINGS TO WATCH

Hall of Fame driver and Fox television announcer Darrell Waltrip, left, shares a laugh with Jeff Gordon before announcing his retirement from broadcasting. [AP/WADE PAYNE]

1. D.W. done

2. Catching up

Darrell Waltrip announced he will retire as a Fox racing analyst when the first half of the Cup Series is over. His last "Boogity! Boogity! Boogity!" will be heard on June 23 as the green flag is shown at the Sonoma road course. "For 60 years of my 72 I've been behind the wheel," he said. "I was holding onto something. I was holding onto a steering wheel for 30 years. I let go of that wheel, I grabbed hold of a microphone."

Joe Gibbs Racing and Team Penske have won the first eight Cup Series races this season, turning the marquee stock-car tour into an intramural contest. But other top teams feel they're closing the gap. Clint Bowyer, who won twice for Stewart-Haas Racing in 2018, is optimistic. "We've got work to do," Bowyer said. "We know that." Four of the top five finishers at Bristol were part of the duopoly.

3. About Richmond

The Gibbs/Penske combination

Kyle Busch was punted off the course on the first of 500 laps around Bristol, and yet he worked through the damage to win for the third time this season. He got the lead on Lap 482 when race leader Joey Logano pitted under yellow. "Awesome to snooker those guys," Busch said.

should be tested at Richmond. Over the past 10 years (20 Cup races) there have been 10 different winners. With that said, Gibbs/Penske drivers have won 12 times. Two of those Joe Gibbs Racing drivers, Matt Kenseth and Carl Edwards, no longer drive. But the bad news for most everyone in the garage is that super-hot Kyle Busch swept both Richmond races in 2018.

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling guestions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Who takes DW's place in the booth?

How about no one? Or maybe a whole lot of someones? Either way, let's rule out Kevin Harvick. Yes, he says he'd someday like to move upstairs to the AC and buffet, and yes, he's at an age (43) which has recently become old enough to retire. But no thanks, he says, and he's made it clear he'll continue racing, Frankly, why does anyone have to replace Darrell Waltrip for Fox? What's wrong with a two-man booth? It works for the NFL.

Or ...?

Bring in a different nonracing personality each week, preferably someone with celebrity appeal. Larry the Cable Guy, Sheryl Crow, Randy Moss ... or try to steal Tony Romo for a Sunday afternoon and let him tell us every time someone is about to make a pass or blow a tire.

Liberty baseball slams the Trojans

BY PETER CAR pcar@tnonline.com

Liberty suffered their first loss of the season last weekend and then they went out and gave Parkland its first beating of the season on Monday.

The Hurricanes (7-1) pounded out 13 hits on the road to post a 12-3 rout over the Trojans (6-1).

Head coach Andy Pitsilos relished the opportunity to play the Trojans on Monday, as the contest was considered a nonleague affair.

BY CHUCK HIXSON Special to the Press

After rolling through their first five games with a margin of victory of 64-17. Liberty ran into the Parkland Trojans and the two teams battled hard until Parkland was able to put up four runs in the sixth inning to take a 5-1 win over the Lady Hurricanes.

Paige Zigmund was impressive the on mound, especially in keeping her composure through a tight and sometimes erratic strike zone. Even with those struggles, Zigmund struck out 11 batters in the game. Liberty (5-1 overall, 4-1 EPC) was also uncharacteristically erratic defensively. committing four errors that led to three unearned runs in the game.

"We've played pretty well defensively this year and when we have had some miscues, we were able to cover them up with our offense," explained interim coach Barb Wismer. "Today we had some struggles defensively, but I'm not concerned about our defense going forward. We just ran into a really good with a really good pitcher and couldn't overcome them today.

Zigmund and the Hurricanes also had to battle opposing pitcher Kelly Dulaney, who struck out nine and walked two. Dulaney opened the game by retiring the first nine batters before Alanysse Solomon doubled to open the fourth inning. Solomon hit a long fly ball to left and didn't stop while round-to stretch the hit into a triple. The throw from left beat her to third and she was tagged out. Dulaney then rebounded to strikeout the next two batters.

Meanwhile, Parkland (8-1, 5-1) was able to get runners on against Zigmund, but had trouble coming up with a big hit to put the game away and stranded 12 runners on base in the game. They broke through for a run in the fourth when to right and another error on the play allowed from first base to make it 1-0.

BRIEFLY KIDS CLOSET

Annual consignment event April 16-18

The 2019 Spring-Sum-mer Kids Closet Sale will be held April 16 through 18 at Penn's Peak, 325 Maury Road, Jim Thor-

The sale, 5-9 p.m. April 16, is for VIP passholders and new moms. The sale will be open to the public 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. April 17 and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. April 18.

The longtime community resource that helps families save money on children's necessities has a new owner.

The Times News and Lehigh Valley purchased the Press Kids Closet Sale from Danielle Andreas, who started the consignment sale nearly a decade ago, and will build on Andreas' vision this April. The paperwork was finalized Tuesday.

"We've been talking about getting into hosting events for a few months, and when Danielle posted that after nine years, she was giving (the Kids Closet BY ALLI POCZAK Sale) up and if anyone was interested to contact her, I thought it was a sign," Jennifer Benninger, advertising director for the Times News, said. "It is family oriented. We thought it was a great fit.

'Loud at the library' BAPL open house showcases new recording studio

Special to the Bethlehem Press

The growing presence of music and arts in Bethlehem took another step forward as the Bethlehem Area Public Library opened its new recording studio for tours Feb. 23. Studio 11 is located in the basement floor of BAPL's Main Library and during the Saturday open house the studio was filled with eager musicians ready to start learning and collaborating.

Music lovers of all ages gathered to sing lyrics such as, "I can be loud at the library," with the accompaniment of instrumentalists utilizing the studio's locally donated equipment. Instruments, including a drum kit, piano, keyboard, acoustic and electric guitars, microphones, all of which one interested in using the can be used by the public. studio can sign up for the Creative projects from library's regularly offered studio orientation. These orientation sessions allow for new users to learn how to use the recording software and digital mixer in the studio.

Studio 11 was a project which Josh Berk, BAPL executive director, described as a "place for musicians of all ages to visit, create, and just enjoy the space." Thanks to a great partnership between Lehigh University's South Side Initiative and Mellon Digital Humanities Initiative, Studio 11 had the ability to develop from an idea to a funded project and operating studio.

Springtime flurry

As March ends and April brings spring weather, students begin outside projects and activities.

The 11th grade Music and Film classes took a field trip to New York City April 5. In addition to exploring Manhattan, students attended Broadway musical "Wicked" to study musical performance and theatre production. This adaptation of Gregory Maguire's novel features the "Wizard of OZ" Wicked Witch of the West's perspective and takes place several years before the tornado that brought Dorothy to the land of Oz.

Upcoming events in the Jaguar calendar include the early Mini-Thon. This 12 hour dance marathon is mod eled after Penn State's Panhellenic Dance Marathon. It is a fundraiser that raises awareness about pediatric cancer. Mini-Thons all over Pennsylvania bring hope to families in need and allow students and their families to contribute to their communities. LVA's fundraising goal is $10,000 this year. Mini-Thon takes place April 27 from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. in the K-3 auditorium. Seniors are looking forward to a Lehigh Valley Academy tradition: The Senior Graduation Walk. Graduating seniors will walk through all of the school hallways May 1 to the applause of faculty and students. 'Lara Bly' fashions can fancy up window sign

BY ED COURRIER Special to the Bethlehem Press

Fashion designer Lara Bly-Allaik was granted a certificate of appropriateness for window signage for her shop at 321 S. New St. at the Bethlehem Historic Conservation Commission March 18 meeting in the Rotunda. The vote was unanimous on this one agenda item.

The off-white vinyl lettering for "Lara Bly" is in a cursive font, with "designs" in a sans serif typeface. The commission's generally prefers a serif font for historic district signage. Since this is her company logo, the commission okayed the design. The company slogan, "A fashion design studio & boutique," in the same sans serif font runs along the bottom of the shop window.

The applicant was encouraged to return with a proposal for a door sign posting business hours, address and contact information.

The three-story brick commercial building is owned by Newco Holdings and dates back to the 1890s

The Bethlehem HCC is charged with the task of determining if new signs or other alterations to a building's exterior would be an appropriate fit for the neighborhood in one of three designated historic districts. Hearings are regularly scheduled on the third Monday of the month.

Obtaining a certificate of appropriateness is only a first step for business owners and residents in a designated historic district who wish to make alterations to a building's exterior. The BHCC's recommendations are later reviewed, then voted on by City Council before any project is allowed to proceed.

True to life Chazz Palminteri brings his 'Bronx Tale' to State Theatre

BY CAMILLE CAPRIGLIONE Special to The Press

Renowned actor, producer screenwriter. and playwright Chazz Palminteri brings his legendary one-man show, "A Bronx Tale," which spawned a critically-acclaimed film of the same title, to the State Theatre Center for the Arts for one performance, 7:30 p.m. April 12.

The 1993 movie that starred Robert De Niro, who directed the film, is based on Palminteri's 1989 play, directed by fourtime Tony Award-winner Jerry Zaks.

"A Bronx Tale" is a coming-of-age story about Calogero Anello, an Italian-American boy in 1960s-era Bronx who meets a local mob boss and is torn between the temptations of organized crime and the values of his honest, hardworking father.

Charles Isherwood of The New York Times called the play "a rejuve-nating act of faith in the powers of acting and storytelling." The Associated Press described "A Bronx Tale" as "enormously entertaining. A vibrant, warmhearted saga. Pal-minteri conjures up a parade of appealing characters with humor, great affection and more than a little heartbreak."

Born Calogero Lorenzo Palminteri in the Bronx,-N.Y., the actor was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actor in "Bullets Över Broadway" (1994).

Lona Farr, David Voellinger chair Community Music School Gala

BY KATHY LAUER-WILLIAMS Special to The Press

The move to a new home and a remembrance of the late founding director is the focus of Community Music School Lehigh Valley & Berks' (CMS) annual Spring Brunch and Si-lent Auction fundraiser, noon-3 p.m. April 28, Le-high Country Club, Low-er Macungie Township. CMS will present an afternoon of music and reflections on the transformational move to the school's new location, 1544 Hamilton St., Allentown, and honoring the memory of Martha Maletz, the inspirational founding director of the school, who died March

"The annual brunch is our one large fundrais-ing event of the year," says Lisa M. Hopstock, CMS assistant director. "The goal is to raise at least $35,000 to support music education programming, scholarships and financial aid for deserving students, who otherwise would not be able to reap the life-long benefits of music study.

She says the event, which usually attracts around 220, has been called "one of the best Gala-type events in the Lehigh Valley.'

Honorary chairs of the Gala are long-time CMS supporters and Lehigh Valley philanthro-pists Lona Farr and Da-

During the 2017-18 year, CMS provided more than $69,000 in financial aid and scholarships for music study. Support of the annual brunch helps the school to continue to provide the opportunity for those in the area's diverse community to achieve excellence in music education, Hopstock said.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Diffender-fer of Columbia, Lancaster County, announce the engagement of their daughter, Katlyn, to Kyle Sorensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Sorensen of New Tripoli, Lynn Township.

The bride-elect is a 2010 graduate of Lancaster Catholic High School and a 2014 graduate of DeSales University, Center Valley, receiving a Bachelor of Science in Sports and Exercise and, in 2017, a Doctorate of Physical Therapy. Her fiance is a 2011 graduate of Northwestern Lehigh High School and a 2015 graduate of DeSales University, receiving a Bachelor of Sci-ence in Sports and Exercise and, in 2018, a Doctorate of Physical Therapy.

The couple is planning September nuptials.

Two very different worlds My favorite event is a unique fusion show sponsored by St. Vin-cent DePaul. The event sells out all 800 tickets when they go on sale. What can possibly be so special about a fashion show?

I'll try to explain. Ten women are assigned to a table. They come up with a theme then decorate accordingly. The women supply all dishes, glassware, plate chargers and decorations.

You have to see it to believe it. The Great Gatsby table, for in-stance, included gold charger plates, ornate gold plated dishware and a full-size, formally dressed Gatsby dummy.

I put several miles on my sneakers walking around the huge convention hall to see each spectacular table.

But the best thing about the fashion show isn't the decorations or even all the gently used clothes that came from donations.

We all flock to that fashion show because it helps SVDP help the poor. It's their biggest fundraiser of the year.

As each model paraded down the runway, the announcer told real-life stories about how SVDP turns lives around by helping the poor.

Through my newspaper interviews I know a lot of those inspirational stories because I heard them from grateful people who were helped.

Many of us have the wrong impression about "the poor" who come for help. Some think they have nothing because they are too lazy to work. The truth is many are what we call "the working poor."

Take Chris, for ex-ample. He has worked for 12 years as a hospital orderly. It's hard work that requires a lot of lifting, but Chris is grateful to have a job, even though it only pays slightly more than mini-comfortably bidding $1,000 and more on restaurant meals, spa packages and resort stays. Some of the bidding reached $1,700.

I wondered who in the world had that kind of money to spend. Then I thought of the income levels of those who would be helped by the auction.

There's an old song that says: "Two different worlds. We live in two different worlds."

At no time did I relate to that as much as I did at the fundraiser.

Let me say this: It's those generous souls that bid big bucks at the auction that help SVDP to help others.

They know how fortunate they are and they want to help others as much as they can.

The SVDP president tells audiences, "Maybe you didn't work at our food bank and maybe you didn't sit here interviewing those who come for help.

"But if you donated money to SVDP, you helped us help the poor."

As I said, it's my favorite charity and I try to give generously. But I feel guilty that I don't have the time to work at the SVDP center.

Some of my friends volunteer so many hours it's the equivalent of a full-time job.

They load boxes with groceries, sort clothing, move furniture and do everything they can to help. They do it because they believe in the cause.

I can't say I ever experienced constant hunger like the children in some homes. But that's only because I had a mother who could turn a quarter, a bag of flour and a few staples into a week's worth of meals. I didn't know the extent of her sacrifices when I was a kid. I didn't know she went hungry so she could save the food for my father who worked in the mines. Knowing all this now. I have a special heart to help those in need. One woman at the fashion show said she, too, likes to help the poor. "But to tell the truth, I don't know anyone who is truly poor. Not in my town," she said. It's another case of two different worlds. One world knows the despair of not having enough money for the basics. The other world lives in a cocoon of all that money can buy. The big hope, of course, is that those ity. When the furniture who have been blessed are more willing to help those who are struggling. That's what happens at that fashion show. It's one more reason why I love it. If we each do what we can to help others, our world will be better for it. And so will we. Contact Pattie Mihalik at newsgirl@comcast. net.

Dumb and 'Dumbo'

The live-action "Dumbo" movie is an entertaining comedy-drama that the entire family should enjoy.

Movies rated PG or G movies are typically in the minority of theatrical feature movie releases, and "Dumbo" is one of them.

Based on a report by Motion Picture Association of America (MPAA), which administer's movie ratings, more than 50 percent of movies released since the rating system went into effect 50 years ago received an R rating, that is, 17,202 films. That compares to 5,578 films rated PG, 4,913 films rated PG-13 (implemented in 1984), and 1,574 films rated G.

That said, "the elephant in the room," or in this instance, "the elephant in the movie theater," is "Dumbo."

"Dumbo" is a restrained feature film from the metaphysically-antic director Tim Burton, a two-time Oscar nominee for animated feature for "Frankenweenie" (2012) and "Corpse Bride" (2015), who also directed "Ed Wood" (1994), "Edward Scissorhands" (1990), "Batman" (1989) and "Beetlejuice" (1988).

"Dumbo" reteams two actors Burton directed in "Batman Returns" (1992), Danny DeVito (The Joker) and Michael Keaton (Batman), who was also in "Beetlejuice." DeVito plays Max

"Dumbo" also stars

The screenplay is also credited to Helen Aber-son and Harold Pearl, writers of "Dumbo," the 1941 book that Walt Disney Studios turned into the classic 64-minute animated feature film of the same title released in 1941.

The screenplay invokes beasts on the loose, prohibited imported animals and don't mess with natue themes from "Jurassic Park" (1997) and "King Kong" (1933, 2005). Visually, the production design is reminiscent of "The Rocketeer" (1991) and "Dick Tracy" (1990).

The live-action "Dum-bo" uses some of the plot elements of the original animated feature, including a feather, or feathers, that motivates Dumbo to fly

Horror R not 'Us'

"We have met the enemy and he is us.'

"Pogo" comicstrip, Walt Kelly, 1953 "Us" is not an alto- By Paul Willistein gether bad film.

It's quite good in direction, performances, cinematography soundtrack.

That said, "Us" is a disappointing sophomore effort from writer-director Jordan Peele, following his critically-acclaimed hit and bigscreen directorial debut, 'Get Out" (2017).

Whereas "Get Out" explored socio-ecnomic themes layered upon the leitmotif of a horror film. "Us" lacks overarching intellectual plumbing.

Instead of plumbing the depths, "Us" shows us the plumbing. "Us" is a straight-out horror film.

That's not necessarily a bad thing. It's a disppointment, though. Perhaps my expectations were too high.

"Us" has its share of jump cuts and will have you scared, anxious and tense during much of its overly-long run time (there are two too many endings). Along the way, some sequences border on the ludicrous, mawkish and downright dopey.

Despite the hype, overwhelming positive audience response and most critics' rave reviews, "Us" can be compared to "The Blair Witch Project" (1999). It's like the carnival-show barker who cajoles you into dropping your hardearned money only to be disappointed once you get inside the sideshow tent.

To quote the late, Tallulah Bankgreat head: "There's a lot less here than meets the eye."

The plot for "Us" is important words in horror flms and real estate: location, location, location. In this instance, it's Allentown native Tim the time-worn house in Heidecker (TV's "Tim the woods by a lake, here and Eric Awesome the Santa Cruz, Calif., Show, Great Job!," 2007) ent, supporting actress, and "12 Years A Slave," 2014, who was also in "Black Panther," 2018, and "Star Wars: Episode VII," 2015) in the lead role of Adelaide Wilson-Red.

Nyong'o is one of the cinema's most-striking screen presences. The Yale School of Drama graduate has the acting chops to bring intrigue to every scene. Her face transports the movie-goer to her inner emotions. That she plays the dual role of Red, her nemesis, is all the more impressive in "Us."

Red, as with others in Adelaide's family, is described in publicity for "Us" as a doppelgänger, or double of a living person. The term "tethered" and shadows is also used.

Winston Duke ("Black Panther") is terrific as Adelaide's husband, Gabe Wilson-Abraham. With his index finger pushing up his glasses on the bridge of his nose, to his affectionate "Dadisms" and Dad jokes, to his fierce sheltering and defense of his family, Duke gives a wonderfully-contained performance.

Shahadi Wright Joseph (Zora Wilson-Umbrae), who is full of energy and absolutely delightful, and Evan Alex (Jason Wilson-Pluto), who is well-cast as her quieter introspective brother, have break-out roles.

After establishing the doppelgänger theme with some jarringly good scenes with the Wilson based on the three most family, "Us" veers off in a literal direction.

A neighboring family: none other than who brandish the big gold scissors when their doubles go into attack mode. They wreak havoc in their contemporary-design home to the original recording of the Beach Boys' "Good Vibrations." The ironic use of a happy hippy song to the tune of bloodbath violence is the film's most smugly shocking scene. It's then that "Us" becomes a big joke, akin to "Scary Movie" (2000) or, worse, devolves into a routine slasher movie or zombie flick. Peele invokes the very "Don't go there" trope of every ridiculously bad, cliched, predictable horror movie that he so expertly exploited in "Get Out."

"Us" gets stuck further in the sand when Times). Adelaide returns to her childhood horror of a seaside, mirrored funhouse, with the sign, "Find Yourself," which symbolically, one would think, gave her the nightdefined as an appparition mare doppelgänger to begin with.

Instead of sticking to psychologcal underpinnings that would seem to be the basis of "Us,' Peele makes the regrettable choice of making the horror literal, sending Adelaide down the rabbit hole (ala Lewis Carroll's 1865 novel, "Alice In Wonderland") to an underground dynamo, institutional-like barracks bunks, 1970s-era style hallway recalling a scene in director Stan-ley Kurbrick's "The Kurbrick's Shining" (1980), dozens of white bunnies skittering around the premises, a homeless man with a sign stating an endtimes Biblical quotation, Jeremiah 11:11 (akin to Samuel L. Jackson's Bible-spouting Jules Winnfield in "Pulp Fiction," 1994), plus the poster, song and image (in "Us," lines of folks in burgundy jump suits) of 1986's Hands Across America" when 6.5 million held hands for 15 minutes across continental United States, raising $34

scène that Peele is going for. He fails to connect the dots. Peele peels away the artifice of "Us" to reveal ... more artifice. It's too bad. "Us" has its moments, quite a few of them humorous (for example, a reference to "Home Alone," 1990), not unlike Peele's sketch comedy work on TV's 'Mad TV" (2003-09) and "Key & Peele" (2012-15) with writing and acting partner, Keegan-Michael Key

"Us" doesn't add up. A sketch comedy show does not a movie make.

We have met the antithesis of a solid horror film and it is "Us."
