Southside goes for arts walk

By BERNIE O'HARE
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

Would you like a safer Southside? One that grabs the attention of the 20,000 visitors who pass through it each day? One with a fresh appearance and vibrant neighborhoods? That's the point of a Community Benefit District proposed by a coalition that includes Lehigh University, Northampton Community College, St. Luke's Hospital, Arts Quest and several Third and Fourth streets businesses.

During a June 25 meeting at Comfort Suites, landscape architect and Planner Carter Van Dyke provided about 25 residents with a sneak preview of some of the plans under consideration. Everything will be connected by an "Arts Walk" with colorful paving, festival lights, parklets and art.

Van Dyke, stating "There's more to Southside than Third Street," wants to draw visitors into the nooks and crannies between Third and Fourth streets. He proposes transforming portions of Vine, Morton, Webster and Fillmore streets into festival destinations, with outdoor dining, interactive kiosks, green links and parklets. South New Street, near Third, would have a festive streetscape with lighting that could be seen from City Hall.

This idea, Van Dyke said, is based on the Indianapolis Cultural Trail, a world-class urban bike and pedestrian path that connects neighborhoods, cultural districts and entertainment amenities. He explained that, done right, an arts walk would capture the character of the community. He added that parklets, created by having businesses surrender a parking spot here and there, would increase their sales 20 percent. He also proposes reducing the widths of some streets, like 40-foot wide Morton Street. At Five Points, he'd plant trees to offset "so much pavement" in that area.

Van Dyke said he wants to give people two reasons to come to Bethlehem instead of one. He Brilliant burts light up the former Bethlehem Steel blast furnaces at Bethlehem's traditional Independence Day fireworks show, which began at about 9:15 p.m. and lit up the sky over the Lehigh River.

Nearly 100 Lehigh Valley residents gathered on Bethlehem's Payrow Plaza the morning of Independence Day to reflect on and listen to the second annual public reading of the Declaration of Independence. The 10 readers included Emil Giordano, Christine Bongiorno, Glenn Eckert, Antonio Simao, Seth Vaughn, Hayden Phillips, Sal Rizzo, John Brown, Chris Morales and Lou James. Tom Carroll presided over the event.

Historic zone proposal revised

By ANDREW CASS
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

A public hearing on an amendment to an ordinance protecting historic buildings not located in historic zones from demolition will be held Aug. 20 at 7 p.m. in City Hall.

The ordinance was passed in April, protecting buildings such as Illick's Mill, Burnside Plantation and the main commons of Liberty HS.

At the time of the vote, council member Karen Dolan expressed concern over a section of the ordinance that would allow council to approve the destruction of a building if it is a part of a larger neighborhood redevelopment plan. Dolan said that section was the "exact opposite" of what the ordinance was developed to do.

Dolan made a motion at the April 2 meeting to make significant changes to the ordinance, but failed to get a second. Had Dolan's proposed amendment passed, the bill would have been sent back to the planning commission and the process would have started over again.

Marking Independence Day

Local NAACP officials critical of recent Supreme Court decision

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

It may have been Independence Eve, but the Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton NAACPs planned no celebrations.

"Enjoy yourselves tomorrow, as they celebrate their holiday," Bethlehem NAACP President Esther Lee told a group of 15 civil rights leaders. They met at Bethlehem's Payrow Plaza to protest a recent 5-4 Supreme Court decision that overturned key provisions of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Designed to ensure ballot access and combat racial gerrymandering, the Voting Rights Act requires mostly Southern states to get clearance from the Justice Department before making even minor changes, such as moving a polling place. But Chief Justice John Roberts complained that the latest version of the Act, adopted in 2006, is "based on 40-year-old facts having no logical relationship to the present day."

Contending that the Voting Rights Act is designed to protect the rights of all people, Lee said, "This is not a partisan issue, it is an American issue."

Allentown NAACP President Dan Basket and his Easton counterpart, Verna Howard, echoed Lee.

There was some mild disagreement over the Voter ID Law. Basket called it a disenfranchisement of the minority vote, while Howard has issue with producing an ID.

One onlooker, on his way out of the nearby library, argued the Southside should be its own destination, not a "stepchild" to North Bethlehem.

The concern raised by most residents is cost. Half of its $500,000 annual budget will come from a tax on property owners, tenants and businesses.

Chris Morales, a Republican candidate for City Council, called the streetscape enhancements a "fantastic idea," but questioned the cost and the funding mechanism. He also questioned whether it's such a good idea to make streets narrower in an area known for traffic congestion.

Lehigh University's Dale Kochard responded that cost options will be explored more closely at their next meeting, currently scheduled for July 10. One unidentified resident, who stormed out after speaking, wants nothing done at all.

"I know this area better than you do," he said, adding he owns four properties. "We have a major gang problem here. You can put out as many planters as you want. When they drink in the bars, they'll come out and knock the planters over." Van Dyke responded that this will change as people care more for their property.

Peter Crowell criticized the "contrived" appearance of the artwork on the plans, and Van Dyke agreed that whatever is produced will be more organic and will require the efforts of "many, many people."

Van Dyke said there will likely be at least one a demonstration project.

Council member J. William Reynolds said he supported Dolan's idea but it was more important to pass the bill first and then amend it later.

"Rather than send it back through the whole process, if we pass it and take a look at that particular language we would be able to kill two birds with one stone," Reynolds said in April.

The bill was eventually reviewed by the community development committee at a June 24 meeting. The committee unanimously approved the deletion of the concerned section from the ordinance.

In addition to a public hearing, Reynolds said the amended ordinance will also go before both the city planning commission and Lehigh Valley Planning Commission.

The next city council meeting is July 16 at 7 p.m. in City Hall.

'He was a joy to know'
Bench dedicated in Kenny Staples' memory

By DANA GRUBB
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Kenny Staples died tragically in an Allentown bus fire 10 years ago, yet the friendly 47-year-old who battled cerebral palsy has not been forgotten. On June 24, friends and family gathered in a grassy area along the Monocacy Creek in Johnston Park to dedicate a bench in his memory, a location that is visible from the apartment unit in the Bethlehem Housing Authority's Monocacy Tower, in which he once lived.

Authority Executive

Director Clara Kendy spoke about Kenny's love of God and music, calling him the "coolest DJ."

"He was a joy to know," said Kendy.

Deputy Director Mark Iampietro added that it was Staples' practical joking that won him over.

"To get to know Kenny was to lose pity," Iampietro said.

Staples' mother, Dona Reynolds, held up a photograph of her son and shared a number of notes that had been crafted by him, showing a mother's pride over a specific one he had written that read, "I am independent."

As evidence of Staples' positive impact on others, UPS driver Ron Kotash, who had delivered a voice translation box to Kenny, appeared at the ribbon cutting.

After unveiling the memorial plaque that is affixed to the bench, Reynolds was the first to sit down on it as she read the plaque out loud to those in attendance.

"We wanted to honor his memory," Iampietro said, "and we wanted something a little more permanent."

Kenny Staples' mother, Dona Reynolds, holds up a photograph of her son during her remarks at the bench dedication.

Tom Staples, Kenny's younger brother, takes a few photos of the memorial plaque to take with him. He drove to Bethlehem from the Lancaster area for the dedication. "It was worth the trip," he said after the ceremony.

Zoners nix basement apartment

BETHLEHEM

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem Zoners have ruled against a Southside property owner who relied on the city's own assurances that he owned a four-unit apartment building.

Following a contentious

June 26 hearing, they upheld an enforcement notice requiring Richard Smith to discontinue leasing a basement apartment at 311 East Fourth St.

"The layout of the apartment is hazardous," argued Zoning Officer

Suzanne Borzak. "If there's a fire in the apartment, people will die."

Smith was represented by Bethlehem Attorney Steve Shields. He established that when Smith first bought the property in 2004, it was listed as a four-unit apartment building. He received a certificate of occupancy for a four-unit building. After that, the property was inspected on several occasions, and was identified as a four-unit building. Smith also pays water bills and recy-

Burglary

Employees of the 1525 Easton Ave. Subway sandwich store reported an alleged burglary around 6:50 a.m. June 28.

According to police, a side window was forced open and the entire cash register drawer was taken. A metal lock box was also opened.

Police said about $350 in cash and change was stolen.

Disorderly conduct

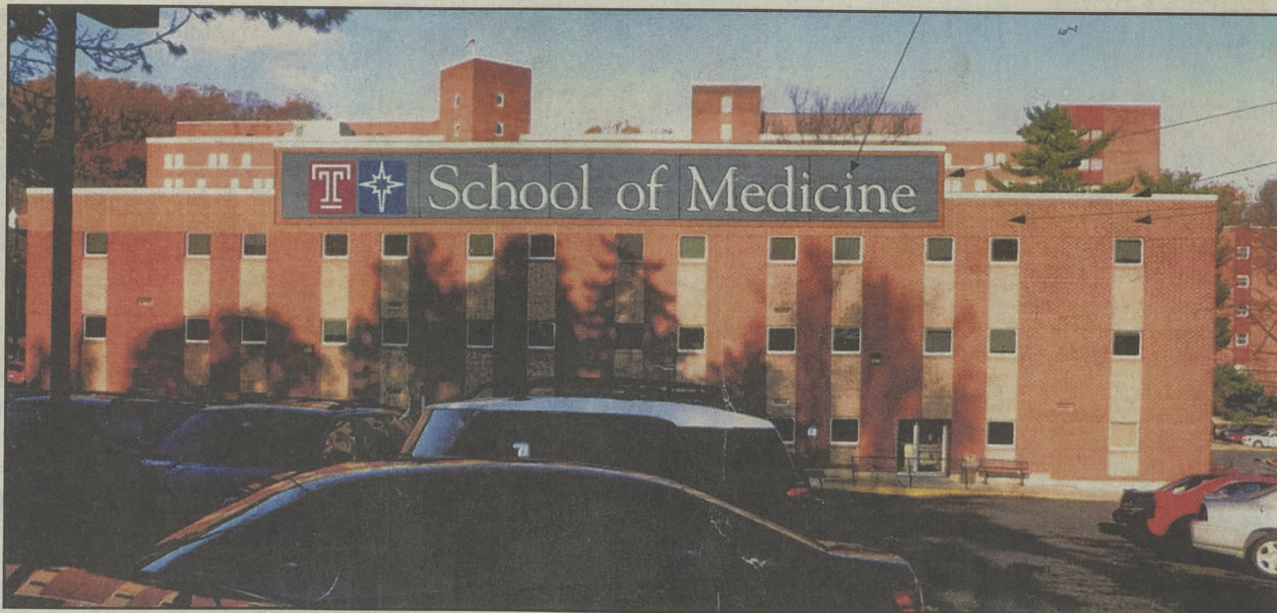

Police arrested 27-year-old Michelle Flaska, for several charges regarding public disturbance around 6:35 p.m. June 28.

And again at around 8:35 p.m.

According to police, Flaska, of East Union Boulevard, was screaming and causing a disturbance in the street outside her home for unspecified reasons.

Officers returned two hours later to find Flaska throwing items from her second story apartment window down into the street.

Flaska is charged with counts of disorderly conduct, harassment and reckless endangerment, and was transported to St. Luke's University Hospital for evaluation.

New hospital sign on the way

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI

FOUNTAIN HILL

Borough Council made a number of decisions in late June, from pools to grants, but some residents, namely Councilwoman Helen Halleman, were preoccupied with a sign.

Zoners and council, after more than a year of debate, voted to allow St. Luke's University Hospital to install a new sign proudly proclaiming its affiliation with Temple University in view of Delaware Avenue.

Halleman and Zoning officer Suzanne Poroszlai were confounded by the final decision and the sign's necessity. They each said a small, tasteful sign at the Ostrum Street Estes building is visible from Delaware Avenue and perfectly useful.

The hospital will now also install a massive, billboard-like sign on the building that Halleman says will look like a commercial eyesore, and Poroszlai said it will still not be visible from the more heavily-trafficked Route 378. "So why bother?" she asked.

Construction is now inevitable, she said, and added the hospital would likely erect it as soon as possible.

In regular business, Council President Larry Rapp said a $131,000 grant proposal to Northampton County Gaming Commission for borough emergency services equipment had passed its first vote for clearance.

Rapp also reminds the community Delaware Avenue reconstruction was to begin July 9, and to consider drive times and routes when passing through.

clinging fees for a four-unit unit building. Smith also pays water bills and recycling fees for a four-unit building.

Then in May, he received an enforcement notice from the zoning office, telling him he had to evict his basement tenants. He called this a hardship to them and to him, and Shields argued that Smith had every right to rely upon Bethlehem's previous assurances.

Zoning Officer Suzanne Borzak acknowledged that the city had mistakenly listed the property as a four-unit building.

"The reason there's erasers on pencils is because we all make mistakes," she explained.

A 1997 Zoning Hearing Board decision denied the basement apartment over parking concerns. But the decision was misplaced in the back of a file drawer and was only recently discovered.

Over Shields' objections, Housing Inspector Rich Oscavich was allowed to testify that there are "continuing issues" over the building. Shields argued that code questions are totally irrelevant to zoning, but Oscavich was allowed to go on and state the property had been condemned three times.

"If it wasn't an approved apartment, why were you inspecting it?" Shields asked. He also lashed out at Borzak, who had sent the enforcement notice.

"If you had been doing your job, we wouldn't need this," he told her.

Borzak, herself a former inspector, explained she has only been the city's zoning officer for a year.

Neighbors Santiago Rivera and Jill Lutz spoke against the fourth apartment, citing the demands it would place on parking. But Shields pointed out that his client only wants to continue doing what the city has already allowed him to do since 2004. In addition, his client testified that conditions have changed since the 1997 zoning decision, and there is a huge parking lot only 80 yards from his building.

Following testimony, zoners voted to uphold the enforcement notice in a 4-1 vote. Michael Santanasto dissented. Then zoners unanimously voted to deny the variances that would make a fourth apartment possible.

Smith and Shields are mulling an appeal.

In other business, the board unanimously granted dimensional variances to Lehigh Valley Industrial Park for a billboard near Route I 78. A variance was needed because the sign will be only 260 feet from a residential district. Attorney Jim Preston argued that the residential district was along the centerline of a four-lane highway.

Preston had an unusual ally, Planning Director Darlene Heller.

"Had we taken closer look, it would not go down the middle of the highway," she conceded. "We feel the request is appropriate."

Zoners also allowed a 37-foot-high sign instead of the 25-foot-high signs authorized by the zoning ordinance because a dip in the highway obstructs the line of sight.

Finally, the board voted 3-0 to authorize Bill Shafer to replace a porch at his 111 E Washington Ave. home, which he told zoners was first built in 1895, before there was a zoning ordinance. The porch was done in by Hurricane Sandy. Attorney Santanasto recused himself because Shafer is a client. ZHB member Jim Schantz also declined to participate in the matter.

Parking woes kill 'Loft' project

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

In reaction to favorable Supreme Court rulings, marriage equality advocates rallied outside Bethlehem's town hall on a hot evening June 25. But inside, it was business as usual for the Zoning Hearing Board. Thirty-five people were rallying for and against dimensional variances and special exceptions in four different matters.

Most of them were in an increasingly hot rotunda to speak against Garrett Benner's proposed conversion of a vacant, three-story warehouse at 18 West Goepf St. into nine urban lofts with 15-foot-high ceilings. Under the city's new zoning ordinance, residential use is permitted. But Benner, represented by father Dennis, still needed variances.

His apartments would be only 867 square feet, below the 1,200-square foot minimum. But what really bothered a small army of Goepf Street residents was parking. He proposed 10 spots instead of the 16 required.

Benner explained that he spent $375,000 to buy the old sewing factory building. Because it's in poor condition, with broken windows and a crumbling retaining wall, he's planning on $761,000 in renovations for three apartments on each of three floors. He's already started the exterior work, and told zoners he would be ready for business by October.

But neighbors uniformly complained about parking.

"Dear God in heaven, somebody has to come look at our streets; we have no parking now," exclaimed Lorraine Foulke, who suggested Benner move to the vacant Martin Tower. She accused Benner of "trying to get richer" with nine apartments.

Mark Traupman made the "slippery slope" argument, asking what would prevent his neighbor from converting his home into a 3-apartment dwelling.

Deb Lyons stated the building needs to be torn down, noting that vandals frequent the abandoned building.

"Kids are still gonna come and break those windows in that alley," she predicted. "I feel sorry for you."

Another witness, Helen Lakatos, has photographed people defecating in the alley.

"More people equals more noise," she added.

Presenting a petition signed by 105 neighbors opposed to the apartments, Lisa Arechiga noted that her bedroom window faces the parking lot.

"Would you want to live with round-the-clock noise and people literally right outside your bedroom?" she asked.

But Attorney Benner pointedly asked her, "Have you thought about the value of your home if this building is allowed to continue to deteriorate?"

"I don't think it would increase it," she conceded.

Benner noted that his son is willing to spend a lot of money to fix what is a really bad problem.

"It might be impetus for further redevelopment of the area," he said.

He added that the number of tenants living there was less than the 25-30 people who worked there 10 years ago.

After hearing both sides, zoners voted unanimously against the proposal. Benner had told zoners it was economically unfeasible to go with six apartments at the site, but he will rethink his options.

Board rejects full-time position

By MARK RECCEK

The Saucon Valley School Board has decided to refrain from hiring a full-time kindergarten teacher.

During the June 25 board meeting, school board members voted down district Superintendent Sandra Fellin's proposal to turn a part-time kindergarten teacher into a full-time position. Board member Charles Bartolet made a motion to support Fellin's recommendation, which failed 4-3. Voting in opposition were board members Susan Baxter, Bryan Eichfeld, Edward Inghrim and Michael Karabin.

To date, there are six kindergarten classes in the fall with a total of 146 students, with class sizes averaging 23-24 students. Fellin said her proposal would reduce student numbers to 20 or 21 students.

"Our kindergarten numbers are starting to get a little higher than we're used to in Saucon Valley," Fellin reminded board members.

Fellin stressed turning the position into full-time would make kindergarten classes "much more reasonable."

The money for the full-time position would have been generated by pulling roughly $40,000 from the district's fund balance.

Board member Lanita Lum said she supported Fellin's proposal due to the kindergarten numbers possibly changing

Edgboreans celebrate Independence Day

By DOROTHY GLEW
Special to the Bethlehem Press

On the Fourth of July, residents of the 1800 block of Sycamore Street and roughly five surrounding blocks got together for the 13th anniversary of their annual block party. About 40 old and newer neighbors chatted while keeping an eye on their children and pets until it was time to take their places at festively decorated tables to hear readings of the Declaration of Independence and the Gettysburg Address. The event turned lighthearted when about 20 attendees competed in the ever-popular water balloon toss, which was followed by a potluck dinner. Neighbors lingered long after the meal was over catching up on news and enjoying each other's company on a beautiful day outdoors.

"If this is something you think you need for this year, then by all means I certainly support it," Lum said.

Eichfeld then made a motion to move the home economics teacher back to part-time and convert the kindergarten position to full-time. Bartolet asked Eichfeld why he didn't initially vote for the position when the motion was on the floor.

Eichfeld said he regretted his previous vote on the home economics teacher.

"So, yes, I had a change of thought," Eichfeld said. "One of the reasons I voted for it is I really like and respect Julie Garvin, the teacher. That's why I was swayed. But, in retrospect we're not hiring her, so it was not a correct vote in my mind. So, I look at this at an opportunity to change it [vote]."

Board member Sandra Miller commented another vote on the issue was not appropriate.

"These are two separate issues ... it's inappropriate at this time, a month later ... to change our minds," she said.

Eichfeld's motion failed 4-3, with Bartolet, Karabin, Lum and Miller voting against the measure.

The board will again discuss whether to keep the kindergarten teacher part-time or convert the position into full-time at the next school board meeting July 23.

In other business, the school board voted 5-2 to appoint Mark Sivak to fill Sandra Stack's vacancy on the board. Sivak currently serves as the Bethlehem Area School District director of budget and finance.

Stack, who resigned from the board last month, relocated to Texas due to her husband's new job opportunity.

"I think he (Sivak) would make a good appointment for the school board," commented Inghrim.

Bath third seed in playoffs

Matt Unangst and the Bath Legion team heads into the NORCO playoffs as the number-three seed.

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

The NORCO legion playoffs kickoff this week with defending champion Bath looking to make it back-to-back title campaigns.

The playoff brackets officially came out Sunday night following the completion of the Hellertown-Freemansburg contest, which decided the final seed in the eight-team tournament.

Hellertown won the contest over Freemansburg 11-3 to win the division, grab the eighth seed and send Freemansburg packing for the summer.

Bath (14-6), on the other hand, enters the tournament as the third-seed and takes on sixth-seeded East Stroudsburg (13-7) in the best of three series opener.

Head coach Gene Sostarecz and company lost to East Stroudsburg 1-0 early this season when Bath was missing seven starters in the lineup.

Sostarecz hopes things go differently this week, as they look to put themselves back in position to win NORCO and make a run at regionals.

"We had a rough stretch during the season where we were missing guys and lost a few games, but we still have very high hopes for this team," said Sostarecz. "Pitching is going to be key for us, but we have all our guys now and we've been able to get some timely hits."

The Birches (16-4) have the top-seed in this year's tournament, as they take on Hellertown (10-10) in the opening round.

Kemp Post (14-5-1) and Nazareth (11-7-2) square off in the two-seven matchup, while Northampton (13-6-1) and Nazareth (13-7) are the four-five pairing.

Lehigh-Bethlehem Connie Mack got off to a good start in their quest to make two Lehigh Valley titles in three years.

They opened the championship series Monday night at home with an 11-1, five-inning victory over second-seed Nazareth. The team will have a chance to clinch the best-of-three series with a win on Wednesday night in Nazareth at 6:30 p.m.

"The team hit the ball hard and was able to take advantage of the opportunities they were given," said head coach Keith Lehman. "The team had a good defensive game only allowing three hits. It was a good team effort all around."

Jim Downey got the start and went three innings before Mike Krawchuck closed out the final two innings.

Both Connor Vanderbush and Sean Kelly were 2-for-3 with three RBIs in the victory. Tyler Erney was also 2-for-3.

Both Lehigh-Bethlehem and Nazareth will automatically advanced to the state playoffs next week at Limeport Stadium against teams from the Bucks-Montgomery Connie Mack League. Four other teams who win their best-of-three series from the Lehigh Valley

Stellar kicks off this week

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

The Stellar "Catch a Rising Star" Basketball Showcase is set to tip off this Thursday through Saturday at Allentown's Cedar Beach and defending champion Freedom will have plenty of work to do in order to defend their title.

Head coach Joe Stellato is certainly aware of the difficulty that comes with the tournament, as well as the dubious task to repeat as champions.

With all three local Bethlehem teams squaring off in summer league action at Cedar Beach, the real preview of what teams may have this winter comes this week.

"We know it's going to be very difficult to win this tournament again," said Stellato. "We have a team that is returning two starters from last year, so we're still trying to find ourselves as well. The one thing we have in common with last year is that we weren't playing well throughout the summer until we got to Stellar. I hope that's something that can happen again."

Liberty head coach Chad Landis has his team near atop the summer league standings at 6-1 and will use this weekend as a true gauge for his overall talent.

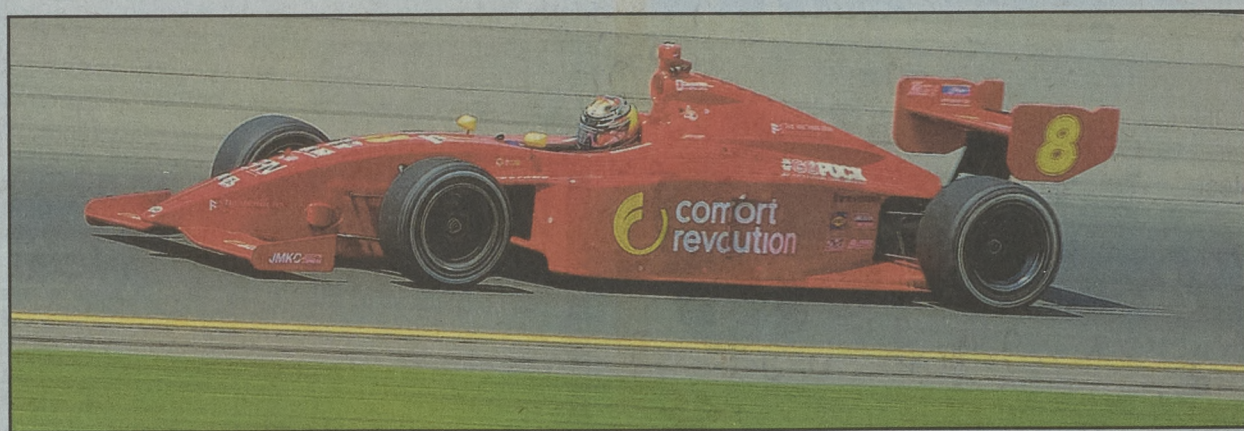

"Stellar is always a great tournament and one that our kids look forward to playing in," said Landis. "It's a good opportunity to see what we have improved on so far this summer and what we need to get better at."

Bethlehem Catholic is getting its full plate of summer basketball, as the Hawks are 4-2 at Cedar Beach and 5-3 in the men's league at North Catty.

This weekend, however, will be a big test for Becahi, as they look to keep momentum going from last seasons achievement of reaching the District 11 3A championship.

"You really get to test where your team is mentally and physically," said

Nazareth's Sage Karam was disappointed to finish third in front of his hometown crowd.

Karam third at Pocono 100

By PATRICK MATSINKO
pmatsinko@tnonline.com

Expectations were high for Sage Karam entering Saturday's Pocono 100, and for good reason.

The Nazareth Area High School senior, and son of Liberty wrestling coach Jody Karam, entered the race with the points lead in the Firestone Indy Lights Series after claiming the previous two races at Milwaukee and Iowa, respectively.

The event had additional significance for Karam, one of two Americans in the field, who was racing close to home on the Fourth of July weekend.

Karam did well to qualify second behind Andretti Autosport's Carlos Munoz, the man chasing him in points entering the weekend, and put himself in position to be in contention on race day.

But as the race unfolded,

Munoz pulled away and left little doubt that he was in charge, leading all 40 laps en route to a dominant win.

It was the third victory of the season for Munoz, driving the No. 26 Dyal-Ser car for Andretti Autosport, and fifth overall (second on an oval). He's led all the race laps in the victory. It also was the third victory in five starts from the pole this season for the 21-year-old Colombian.

Including bonus points for the Sunoco Pole Award and leading the most laps on the 2.5-mile tri-oval, Munoz takes a four-point lead over Karam into the race next week on the streets of Exhibition Place in Toronto.

"My team, my engineers, my mechanics, everyone did an amazing job giving me this great car," Munoz said. "I was flat out the whole way and it's really nice to be back in victory circle after our weekend in Iowa, where we finished eighth after starting on pole."

"I was really motivated to come here and race on this oval. Looking forward to continue our momentum in Toronto."

Behind Munoz, who won by over 16 seconds, Karam battled teammate Gabby Chaves for second. See Karam on Page A10

Local volleyball players named all-state

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Seven local seniors were named to the PIAA 3A and 2A all-state volleyball teams last month to wrap up the boys' season.

Bethlehem Catholic's Evan Blair (OH) and Bryan Brown (setter) both were named to the 2A team, while Emmaus' Gabe Shankweiler (OH), Collin Stanton (OH), Nazareth's Galin Swigart (OH), Parkland's Michael Lewis (setter) and Whitehall's Nick Kuti (OH) rounded out the 3A contingent.

Becahi head coach Jeff Koch was pleased to have two of his seniors walk away with the accolades for their work over the past four seasons.

"It's a great honor for Evan and Bryan to be named to the all-state team," Koch said. "Both players have such decorated careers and this is just icing on the cake for them. It's a great way to go out as seniors with this honor. The Bethlehem Catholic community is very proud of them."

Last month's all-state announcement commenced the volleyball season, as the girls' 3A and 2A teams were named last fall.

Bethlehem Catholic's Lauren Hess (OH) and Maddie Titus (setter) helped Becahi toward capturing the District 11 2A title last fall. They were both 2A selections, which is something that head coach Paul Abi-Daheer was proud of.

"Both of them are well deserving and I'm not surprised they were nominated," said Abi-Daheer back when the girls selections were made. "Individual stats don't mean much in the grand scheme of things, because as long as the team is successful, the individual will be recognized."

"Anytime you get recognized, it's a great feeling of accomplishment. The more Becahi is recognized, the better it is for the program."

Liberty's Brooke Priestas, who is only a junior, was named to the 3A squad as an outside hitter, along with Freedom's libero Rylie Haas.

"Being named all-state this year was such an honor. It's great to know hard work pays off," Priestas said. "None of my achievements would be possible without my friends and teammates. Their support has gotten me this far and I'll continue to work hard."

Of the 50 selections in 3A, Priestas was one of 15 underclassmen to be named to the team.

Other local selections included Parkland's trio of Taylor Krause, Alicia Weigel and Kelly Robertson. Emmaus' Lisa Walitsch, Nazareth's Jane Lukas and Southern Lehigh's Melann Amory and Nicolette Yates round out the 3A representatives.

Notre Dame's Mary Paige Nesfeder and Darcy Wolf of Central Catholic also were named to the 2A squad.

head coach Mike Frew. "It's a long weekend of hoops. We hope to be playing basketball on Sunday and then anything can happen. Like a lot of teams, we feel this is an attainable goal, but you have to bring the intensity every game."

That will be true for everyone, which is something that Freedom is certainly aware of after getting through the gauntlet last year.

"I don't know what to expect from our guys this year outside of them playing hard," Stellato said. "That's all I want to see from this group."

Tuesday and run consecutively on Wednesday and Thursday (if necessary).

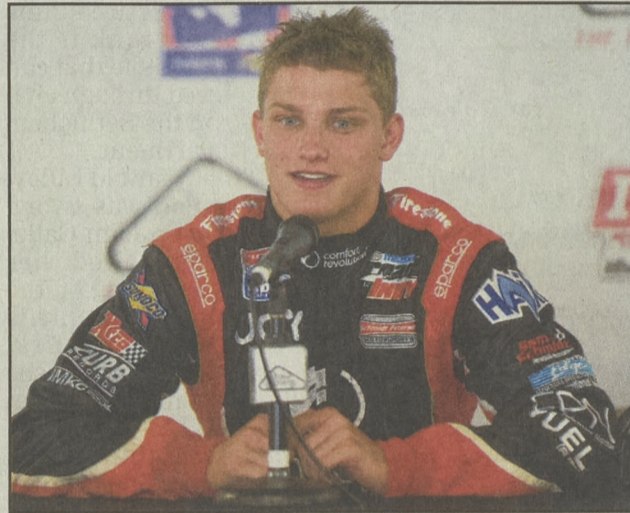

Matt Leon will get the starting nod for Bath in the opener, as all the games of the first round series will be played at Bath, since East Stroudsburg doesn't have a home field.

Sostarecz hopes that home field advantage, along with his team peaking and experience can be the momentum they need to carry themselves through the playoffs.

"We have most of the team back from last year, so the experience these guys have from that championship is valuable," he said. "They know what it takes to win and this is when it all starts."

Hoop teams take to courts

By JOE ZEMBA
Special to the Press

In the Catasauqua Girls Varsity Basketball League the Liberty Hurricanes got by the Wilson Lady Warriors 43-36. Cailey Sanchez scored 11 points in the victory.

In more hoops action, Bethlehem teams played in the mens league in Catasauqua on Monday night and Monday and Wednesday up in North Catty.

G & S Fastening Systems of Bethlehem and Whitehall beat P.J. Whelihan's by a wide margin, 70-28, as former Emmaus High School's Dough Spadt racked up 18 points.

North Catty play on Monday night saw Orange Julius paced by Kevin Michevious, a former Emmaus and Lehigh Carbon Community College player, put up 22 points in a 49-36 win over Stellar Construction.

Pammer Chiropractic of North Catasauqua sneaked by P.J. Whelihan's 50-49 as Paul Pammer, former DeSales University player, pumped in 18 points.

Borderline Diner of Bethlehem defeated Stew's Tire of Schnecksville, 56-53, as Bethlehem resident Ralph Padilla scored 14 points.

Pammer led Pammer Chiropractic on Wednesday night in the North Catasauqua Summer Basketball League with 25 points in a 70-57 win over Stew's Tires.

Brady's Buncha Sports (Catasaqua High School) bettered Bucketz by nine points 54-45 as rising senior Derek Bond scored 15 points for Brady's.

Soto Santi of Bethlehem fell to Northampton Alumni 56-45. Brian Wildrick scored 22 points.

At North Catty Playground in a battle for Bethlehem basketball supremacy, P.J. Whelihan's edged Team Holmes, made up of many former Liberty High School players as Joe Munley. Munley racked up 28 points. Holmes had Brandon Holland drop in 22 points as well.

In the Catasauqua Adult Summer Basketball League, the Nites of Bethlehem won another all-Bethlehem matchup, 59-48, over P.J. Whelihan's. Jamie McCants led the Nites with 22.

ond in the final 10 laps of the caution-free race. They traded second position four times, with Karam overtaking Chaves' car in Turn 1 on Lap 39. Chaves crossed the finish line seven tenths of a second behind Karam.

The disappointment was obvious for Karam, who wanted to deliver a win in front of his family and friends.

"Yeah, I was excited for this race knowing it was my hometown crowd," Karam said, "I just had a lot of people here and wanted to bring home a big win for them and just did what I could."

"Carlos (Munoz) was really fast and I could not keep up with him. I was flat out the whole race, didn't lift once, just had nothing for him."

The battle with his teammate got dicey near the end of the race. But Karam knew Chaves would race him clean.

"I had a good battle there with Gaby (Chaves) at the end," Karam said of the duel. "It was really fun, because we've raced each other since we were in go-karts at ten years-old. So we know each other like the back of our hands and we know we were going to race each other with respect and clean."

"But we actually had some contact there a little bit and I think I damaged his front wing, which got my left rear tire. But it was pretty cool the last ten laps."

With Munoz taking such a commanding win, Karam did what he could to minimize his losses and keep himself in the hunt for the championship as the season rolls along.

"You know, we just had to do what we could, and if we couldn't beat him, the next best thing was to finish right behind him and that's what we had to settle for," Karam said.

A much deserved promotion

Bethlehem's first female firefighter now an assistant chief

By DANA GRUBB
Special to the Bethlehem Press

For Jackie Lilley-McCammon each step of her career in the Bethlehem Fire Department has been a groundbreaking one. Her most recent came July 3 as she was promoted from captain to assistant chief, taking one more step up the trail-blazing career path that she has followed since she was hired as Bethlehem's first female firefighter in May 1988.

Lilley-McCammon joins three existing assistant chiefs, replacing Ken Jones who retired June 1. Her new rank is the highest possible that can be achieved through civil service in the Bethlehem Fire Department.

The 48-year-old Lilley-McCammon was sworn in by Mayor John Callahan, who called her "much deserving of the promotion." Not only is she Bethlehem's first female firefighter, but she is one of only 3.7 percent of firefighters who are female in the United States, according to Callahan.

Lilley-McCammon, who became a lieutenant in March 2006 and captain in March 2010, said that she's been striving for this promotion her entire career.

"I'm very excited to have been given this opportunity," said Lilley-McCammon, who sees the opportunity to make her assigned platoon run even more efficiently and effectively.

Lilley-McCammon also sees herself blazing a trail in the firefighting field for women.

"I hope I am a role model for other women," she said. "I hope that I inspire kids, mainly the girls, that they can grow up and do whatever they put their minds to."

Fire Chief George Barkanic, whose own daughter Mary Alice Maquire is a recently hired firefighter in the Bethlehem Fire Department, called Lilley-McCammon's promotion a big accomplishment.

"She's done all of the jobs and come up through the ranks," Barkanic said. Lilley-McCammon's husband, Marvin McCammon, also attended and pinned the assistant chief's badge on the lapel of his wife's uniform.

Callahan also presented her with an Executive Fire Officer Certification, which Lilley-McCammon earned through master's degree-level coursework from the National Fire Academy in Emmitsburg, Md.

A $300,000 'green' solution

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

BETHLEHEM TOWNSHIP

At their July 1 meeting, Bethlehem Township Commissioners went with a green solution to a stormwater drainage problem that's source is the Bethlehem Square Shopping Center.

This environmental approach will require even more green of a different sort - $300,000. But most of this could be coming from the state. By a 4-0 vote, T and M Associates' Gregory Duncan was given a green light to seek a Watershed and Protection Grant, with the township providing a 15 percent match.

From the busy shopping center, stormwater collects and ultimately passes under Route 191 and into what's left of a concrete lined swale which has fallen into serious disrepair. From there, the waters, sometimes mixed with road salt and gravel, cascade into a Class A wild trout stream.

Duncan wants to replace the broken-up concrete liner with articulated concrete blocks connected by steel cable. This will promote proper drainage, provide erosion control and even allow for natural vegetative growth. Articulated concrete blocks will also handle heavy velocities.

State Senator Lisa Boscola has already given her support for this project, and Duncan is currently seeking approval from state representatives Bob Freeman, Marcia Hahn and Joe Emrick. Though the township must provide a 15 percent match, it can be in the form of soft costs, such as labor or administrative processing.

Resident Barry Roth asked whether Bethlehem Square will also be asked to contribute.

"Not at this time," answered manager

Howard Kutzler. "If we don't get the grant, I'm not sure we can afford this," he added.

In other business, the commissioners approved a Coordinated Health proposal for a three-story, 49,000-square-foot medical facility next to Outback Steakhouse, on Emrick Boulevard, with 217 parking spaces. Attorney Tom Stitt, representing the Outback, had urged planners in March, "Don't just rush this through." But three months later, neither Stitt nor anyone else voiced any concerns.

Finally, Chetwin Terrace resident Wayne Kresge complained about storm waters coming from William Penn Highway, across the bike path and onto his property. Township engineer Ronald Gawlick advised the board that he visited the site and is preparing a report to address the matter.

Because he was occupied by other township business, Commissioner Tom Nolan was absent.

Commissioners will meet again on July 15, 7 p.m., at 4225 Easton Ave.

Spirk named peace essay winner

Maria Spirk, of Bethlehem, was the winner from Pennsylvania of the National Peace Essay contest (NPEC) sponsored by the U.S. Institute of Peace (USIP). The topic was "Gender, War, and Peacebuilding." In addition to the $1,000 academic scholarship, she spent a week in June in Washington, D.C. by invitation as the state winner. While there, she studied the essay topic in depth through simulations and attended briefings with foreign policy officials and practitioners and meetings with state elected representatives. Hope
Death is considered by much of humankind as the end of all hope. It is the time when all plans, dreams and aspirations come to an end. It is also the great equalizer. From the richest to the poorest, from the lauded to the unknown, it is common to all of us.

The Bible speaks of death as an appointment. It is one that, while it may be dreaded, must be kept. While we may postpone an appointment with the dentist, our time to die will certainly come. Hebrews 9:27 tells us, "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment."

The judgment is our accountability to Our Maker. Our loving Designer, Almighty God, has given us His standards, laws, and commandments. These are for our happiness, contentment, and fulfillment. Unfortunately, none of us has kept them. We have disobeyed His commandments. This is what is called sin. God's word tells us that each one of us has fallen prey to sin. "There is none righteous, no not one" (Romans 3:10). Isaiah 53:6 declares, "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the LORD hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." It is sin that makes death so dreaded. And rightfully so! The Bible describes a terrible place of eternal and fiery torment for those who are guilty sinners. Revelation 20:15 says "Whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire."

God's sinless Son took our deserved punishment, so through faith in His completed work, we can be found guiltless! 1 Corinthians 15:22-23 states, "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." We shall be "Christ's at His coming" only through trust in His work upon the cross, not by baptism, church membership, good works, religious ritual or ANY human effort.

BETHLEHEM HISTORYRiver islands

Karen M. Samuels
Columnist

Before there were cars, air conditioning or the Internet, Bethlehem residents took their recreation on the islands of the Lehigh River. The cool breezes from the river provided for a pleasant summer afternoon.

Sand Island (Bethlehem)

In 1743, the Moravians established a laundry and a saw mill on this 20-acre island, conveniently located next to the main settlement of Bethlehem. The Lehigh Canal, built in 1829, brought much more traffic to the island. Several industrial mills and factories were constructed on the island. The inns, "Noah's Ark" and "Little Item," and the three-story brick Keystone House were built for the increased tourist trade. The Keystone House, built in 1851, is now headquarters for Fritch Fuel Company. The arrival of railroad service in 1850 squelched the canal traffic. A damaging flood, in 1862, wiped out several businesses on the island. It would have been a lovely spot for recreation in the later half of the 1800s, but was used instead as a dump by Bethlehem residents. A few Bethlehem leaders stepped in to improve the island. William Doster renamed the island "Wampanoag Island" in 1895 and built steps from the New Street Bridge directly to the island. He cleaned up the debris and promoted boating and swimming there; however his new name didn't stick. In 1938, T. M. Dodson built 11 clay tennis courts on the island. The city has recently spruced up the Charles Brown Ice House on Sand Island. The ice house is a performing arts center venue where the Mock Turtle Marionettes perform regularly.

Calypso Island (Bethlehem)

The 13-acre Calypso Island was a favorite destination because of the variety of flora and fauna that grew there. On a summer day, hundreds of visitors would arrive on the island by small steamboats, rowboats or canoes. In a grove of Catalpa trees, a natural spring bubbled from the ground. Calypso Island was owned by the Moravian congregation. They built a wooden octagonal pavilion, a carousel and several picnic tables for the enjoyment of the community. Miles of paths spanned the island. In 1903, the congregation sold the island to the Lehigh Valley Railroad, which filled the channel between the island and the shore on the south side of the Lehigh River, to straighten out a curve in the rail line.

Jones Island (Bethlehem)

Jones Island was used as the crossing point on the Lehigh River on the Minsi Trail where Lenni-Lenape built rafts to cross the river. Jones Island was annexed to the mainland by Bethlehem Iron company in 1888. At the time, the company was expanding its business from producing just iron rails to heavy steel forgings. The Minsi Trail Bridge, built and named by Gen. William E. Doster in 1914, was where the island was located.

Islands near BethlehemFreeman Island (Freemansburg)

If you follow the towpath trail in Freemansburg to the bend of the river near the Locktender's house, at lock #44, you will find Freeman Island. It was settled in the 1740s by the Laubach family. The island offered 100 acres of rich farmland. The family prospered there until the loss of their small daughter Cara, to the swift rapids of the Lehigh River. Today the island is a part of the Delaware Lehigh Canal trail and owned by the borough of Freemansburg.

Adams Island (Allentown)

In the 1820s, Adams Island was formed when the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co. was digging the Lehigh Canal. In 1907, the Allentown Swimming and Boating Club, formed by Gen. Harry Trexler, Judge Frank Trexler and Max Hess Sr., purchased the island and over the years sold 100 parcels for construction of year-round and summer homes.

Island Park (Wilson Borough)

Located west of the Chain Dam, an amusement park was built on the 100-acre Island Park in July 1894. Until the park closed in 1919, people came to ride the figure-eight-style toboggan roller coaster, a Ferris wheel, and pony rides. Entertainment of concerts, vaudeville shows, minstrels, silent movie matinees and plays were enjoyed in the Casino Theater or the band shell. John Phillip Sousa made an appearance at the band shell. Today, the park is a part of Hugh Moore Park and is a sanctuary for wildlife.

Oberly Island (Easton)

Oberly Island and a nearby site on the river's banks yielded more than 50,000 artifacts when archeologists for John Milner Associates studied them in the early 1990s. They found pottery, arrow tips and tools used for chopping. The team had to dig through five feet of coal dust before finding the artifacts. The excavation was done before the building of the Route 33 bridge.

Bargain hunters lined the street prior to the opening of The Great Southside Sale.

Southside Sale tops $16,000

Lehigh University raised a record $16,000 at its 15th Annual Great Southside Sale held June 1 at St. John's Windish Lutheran Church parking lot. The line of customers formed down the sidewalk onto East Fourth Street. Everything left behind by the students but the kitchen sink was on sale, including clothing, appliances, books, exercise equipment and many other items. All proceeds benefit children and youth programs in South Bethlehem. The Move-Out collection and subsequent sale is the brainchild of Carrell Smith and her husband and fellow history professor, John Smith, who took note of the volume and caliber of the items discarded by departing students. Mindful of the needs of many in the community, the couple started the drive 15 years ago by having receptacles placed in key locations around campus and urging students to donate rather than discard items that could be put to better use.

Natalie is the first customer in line, showing up at 6:41 a.m. for the 10 a.m. start of the sale.

ANOTHER VIEWNot a sport; a disgrace

Sports Illustrated magazine for a while ran a regular feature called "Sport - Not a Sport" in which they debated whether certain activities, such as cheerleading, ice dancing or synchronized swimming were really a sport.

While whether those examples are sports is certainly debatable, at least they all involve some level of physical proficiency and effort. But there's one activity that is televised, on ESPN2, no less, every Fourth of July that is most emphatically NOT a sport - the disgusting spectacle called the

columnist

Hot Dog Eating Contest.

I often watch ESPN and ESPN2, but I stay as far away as possible from my TV during that broadcast. Unfortunately, it's still all too easy to catch highlights, or 'lowlights,' of it later that day on Sports Center or even the network news.

Sadly, it seems to be popular enough to have made Joey Chestnut (see, even I know his name) and his ilk very wealthy, solely because they have developed a 'talent' for stuffing a huge number of hot dogs down their throat in 10 minutes.

What does this say about our culture? At a time when obesity is becoming a burgeoning health issue, what kind of example does this set for our children? While the odds of any child growing up to be a professional athlete are miniscule, I'd certainly rather see them aspiring to play professional basketball, hockey, tennis or golf (I'm not so sure about football, given our increasing knowledge of the health risks associated with that sport) than aspiring to eat 60 or 70 hot dogs in a very short sitting.

Oh, I know eating contests as part of our culture go way back, to pie eating contests at county fairs and similar affairs (like Paul Newman eating hard-boiled eggs in "Cool Hand Luke"), but the Coney Island travesty is an eating contest probably literally on steroids.

I don't get any fun out of watching it, and I don't know how anyone could get any fun out of doing it, so stop the madness!

Freedom Assistant Principal William Cecchini and his daughter, Emily, watch as a few butterflies take flight upon their release. Funds raised will benefit a local cancer charity in memory of Robin Cecchini, the Cecchini's wife and mother.

Robin Cecchini remembered

Students at Freedom HS held a Freedom to Fly Butterfly fundraiser in early May in memory of Freedom Assistant Principal William Cecchini's wife Robin, who recently lost her battle with cancer. Students purchased butterfly cards which were posted throughout the halls at Freedom with the student's name and the names of any family members who had been victims of cancer. For each card donation a butterfly was purchased for the release. Nearly 2,000 butterflies were released and proceeds from the event benefit the Cancer Support Community of the Lehigh Valley. The class that raised the most money also received a trip to Dorney Park, an honor that went to science teacher William Safrank's Astronomy 2 class.

Freedom HS students arrive on the school's practice football field wearing their Freedom to Fly T-shirts to enjoy the afternoon's butterfly release, refreshments and carnival style games.

Freedom junior Shannon Rivera enjoyed having one butterfly land on her arm. "It's nice," said Rivera who expressed her disappointment that more of the butterflies did not take flight.

Freedom HS head of student activities Joe Stellato donned butterfly wings and antennae to help spread the butterfly spirit.

Most of the nearly 2,000 butterflies found the grassy field their preferred landing spot.

The cast of sing for America's production of "Shrek The Musical," 7 p.m. July 11 - 13, 18-20; 2 p.m. July 14, 21, Broughal Middle School, 114 W. Morton St., Bethlehem.

'Shrek The Musical' makes Valley debut in Sing for America benefit for veterans

By DIANE BAKOS
Special to The Press

"Shrek The Musical" makes its Lehigh Valley premier this summer.

It's the latest offering of Sing For America, the group composed of five siblings — Taryn, Teara, Tasia, Jewel and Jorne Gilbert — well-known for their elaborate stage productions and vocal performances in the Valley.

But what really makes Sing For America stand out from other area theater companies is that all of the profits go directly to the local chapter of the Blue Star Mothers of America, Inc., to help military families.

Sing For America, founded by the Gilbert family of Easton, has raised more than $30,000 for families of active military since 2005 through performances. In 2011, the group began producing musicals, which have included "Cinderella," "White Christmas" and "The Wiz."

The Gilberts are sure that Shrek, the green ogre noted for his appetite for eyeball jelly on toast and for brushing his teeth with swamp slugs, should be a great draw.

The cast of more than 50 takes the stage in the Tony-winning "Shrek The Musical," 7 p.m. July 11 - 13, 18-20, and 2 p.m. July 14 and 21, Broughal Middle School, 114 W. Morton St., Bethlehem.

Licensing for the "Shrek" show has just been released for community theaters and Sing for America will be staging the first area production of the familiar tale.

"We were looking for a show to do this summer," says Taryn Gilbert. "This show became available for licensing in June, so we just applied for it for the heck of it. We never thought we'd get it, because we figured so many people were applying for it. Only a few days after, we got notice that we'd gotten the rights."

She calls the script "hilarious."

The musical, which ran on Broadway 2008 - '11, was nominated for nine Tonys. DreamWorks' 2001 blockbuster movie "Shrek" is recreated on stage with the addition of humorous songs by the Tony-nominated composer Jeanine Tesori, and book and lyrics by David Lindsay-Abaire. The cast recording of the show was nominated for a Grammy for best musical show album.

The movie "Shrek, based on William Steig's 1990 book "Shrek!, was a huge hit for DreamWorks and received the Oscar for best animated film in 2002.

The characters, including the cantankerous green ogre Shrek voiced by Mike Myers and Donkey voiced by Eddie Murphy, became a part of pop culture. The movie spawned four sequel movies, television shows and the musical.

The musical features the tunes "Big, Bright Beautiful World," "I Know It's Today," "Don't Let Me Go," "Freak Flag," "What's Up, Duloc?" and "I'm a Believer," the Neil Diamond-written song that was a hit for The Monkees and which is featured in the film.

The musical features jokes about the theater. Look for references to "Lion King," "Gypsy," "Les Miserables," "A Chorus Line" and "West Side Story."

Says Taryn, "We were afraid the script wouldn't be as good as the movie, but we're really happy with it. And the music is really good. The melodies are really good and the lyrics are excellent. They're funny, they're fun and they're really catchy."

The cast includes Taryn Gilbert as Dragon. Teara Gilbert, seen in last year's Muhlenberg Summer Music Theatre's "Hairspray," plays feisty Princess Fiona.

Juan Padilla, who played the scarecrow in Sing for America's "The Wiz," is the evil Lord Farquaad.

Donkey is being played by Christopher Ryland, a Lehigh Valley Charter High School for the Performing Arts graduate who received a bachelor's degree in theater-pre-medicine from Franklin & Marshall College and a masters in theater from the University of Houston.

And Shrek? He's played by Freddy nominee and Liberty High School graduate Josh Simpson, who was in Liberty's "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum."

Also featured are Jewel Gilbert as Pinocchio, Jorne Gilbert as a Musketeer and a knight, and Rhys Williams as Gingy.

The Gilberts insist on being all-inclusive in their casting, ignoring ethnicity. "Art is color blind," Taryn says. Age isn't an obstacle, either, with the cast ranging from eight to 51-years-old.

The Gilberts share production tasks, with Tasia directing this time and Teara handling most of the costume design. Costumes are handmade by cast members and parents, who also help with special challenges, like creating "fat suits" for Shrek and Donkey.

"But then for the fairy tale creatures — there are a whole bunch of fairy tale creatures, some that aren't even in the movie — we got to be creative with the fairies," smiles Taryn.

The family and volunteers build the sets, which include a forest and a tower that turns. The Gilberts say this will be their most challenging show to date.

Previous shows have been at The Charles A Brown Ice House, but the Gilberts are happy with their new location. Taryn says Bethlehem Area School District and Broughal officials have been very supportive with access to Broughal.

"Their auditorium is beautiful. It's a beautiful stage with all new equipment. It's a great space. We're happy with it."

And Taryn is optimistic that you'll be happy with "Shrek."

"It's one of those shows that's for everybody, for all ages, one of those shows that everybody can enjoy."

"And it's the Lehigh Valley premiere, and that makes it really special. We have such an incredibly talented cast that we're really proud of. You're gonna come there and leave happy."

Going inside at Pa. Shakespeare Fest

Theater creates the opportunity to live twice. If you are hooked on "Downton Abbey," perhaps part of the attraction is going inside: a beautiful castle, beautiful yet complicated and fragile lives, and a mesmerizing world from another time that is otherwise unavailable to us.

At the Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival (PSF), you can live many lives: yours and the life of a famous English King, a novice nun in Vienna, an Oklahoma cowhand, a Victorian matriarch, a spy novel hero on the run, all in the same summer season.

Shakespeare's plays and other world classics invite us in, too; inside ourselves,

Behind the Scenes

By Patrick Mulcahy

and into a world of ideas that fascinates, a kaleidoscopic humanity that makes room for us. When we go in search of penetrating insights translated into poignant and elevating experiences, Shakespeare is our man and his canon has even more rooms than Downton.

This season brings the rare opportunity to see two more of Shakespeare's captivating works, "Henry VIII" and "Measure for Measure," in which rival thirsts for power and belonging become spell-bindingly entwined.

The famous quote from "Measure for Measure" is "Virtue is bold, and goodness never fearful." Should a novice nun sacrifice her virtue to save her brother's life when a strict authority figure discovers that he too is prone to moral weakness?

In "Henry VIII," a man known best for weddings and beheadings maneuvers through the political landscape of Tudor England, hastening the rise and fall of cardinals and queens. The play is an extravaganza and gives us a chance to imagine what it must have been like to stand squarely at the crossroads of the divine right of kings and the primacy of Rome.

"Oklahoma!" and "The Importance of Being Earnest" provide pure delight and refreshing escape to entrancing environs, while the quick-change comedy, "The 39 Steps," has laff-riot imaginative fun with genres known for taking themselves fairly seriously: spy novels and Hitchcock films.

Another opportunity to "go inside" at PSF: the chance to see industry leading artists at work, to join them in the same room. In recent seasons, our company of artists has included artists from Broadway, television and film, national tours and regional theater, some of them winners and nominees of the Tony, Emmy, Obie, Drama Desk, Helen Hayes (D.C.), Barrymore (Philadelphia) and Jefferson (Chicago) awards. In other words, these are artists that the industry has determined to be the best of the best.

This summer you can see Steve Burns of "Blues Clues" fame in "The 39 Steps"; Alexie Gilmore, who starred opposite Robin Williams and Matthew McConaughey in feature films, in "The Importance of Being Earnest"; Zach Robidas, who played Richard Gere and Susan Sarandon's son in "Arbitrage," in "Measure for Measure," and Christine Negherbon, who has been in national tours produced by Cameron Macintosh and starring Ann-Margret, as Laurey in "Oklahoma!"

We invite you to spend your time with these wonderful artists and with Shakespeare, Wilde, Hitchcock, and Rodgers and Hammerstein. We invite you to "ascend the brightest heaven of invention" with family and friends this summer at PSF. A season of life memories awaits you here: inside.

Video games take the stage in concert

By REBEKAH HAWK
Special to The Press

"Video Games Live," a concert featuring music from the most popular video games of all time, will be performed at 7:30 p.m. July 14, Miller Symphony Hall, 23 N. Sixth St., Allentown.

The show, with a 30-date tour that includes stops in Shanghai and Beijing, China, and the first Middle East video concert in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, began June 27, and was created and is produced by Tommy Tallarico, who hails from Springfield, Mass.

Tallarico, on guitar, will accompany the Allentown Symphony Orchestra, Concord Chamber Singers and soloists.

Emmanuel Fratianni will conduct the orchestra, with guest touring solo musicians, including Martin Leung and Lee Ann Leung, pianos; and Laura Intravia, flute.

There will be three large video screens for synchronized footage, and a rock concert light show.

"Live performance is my button for me because of the adrenaline and I connect to audiences all over the world," says Tallarico, "The music is meant to be enjoyed by the whole family, not just gamers."

Those attending should plan to arrive early for pre-show events, including a favorite video character costume contest; meet-and-greet with Tallarico and Jack Wall, creators of "Video Games Live"; games competitions ("Guitar Hero II," "Space Invaders"), and give-away prizes.

"Video Games Live" debuted July 6, 2005, with the Los Angeles Philharmonic at the Hollywood

Bowl, Los Angeles. "Video Games Live" has been presented throughout the United States, as well as in Canada, New Zealand, Chile, France, Mexico, Poland and Japan.

Most of the music played, including that from "Halo," "Sonic," "Metal Gear Solid," "Mario," "Zelda," "Warcraft," "Tomb Raider," "Myst," "Tron," "God of War" and "Medal of Honor," had never been performed live.

Tallarico has been a video game composer for more than 23 years. He is regarded as changing the game industry from bleeps and bloops to music.

Tallarico was the first musician to release a video game soundtrack worldwide, "Tommy Tallarico's Greatest Hits Vol. 1" (Capitol Records). He was one of the first to use guitar and 3-D audio in a video game ("The Terminator").

The "Video Games Live: Volume One" album (EMI Classics), the first video game compilation album from a major label, was released in 2008 and debuted at No. 10 on the Billboard chart.

The Second Time Around

Years ago, I always loved the song, "Second Time Around."

But at the same time that I liked listening to Frank Sinatra croon that song, I always hated the lyrics.

I hated what it implied. Married to Andy, I never wanted a second time around. I just wanted what I had forever, thank you very much.

Life doesn't work that way. We don't always get what we want and I didn't get the forever with Andy that I wanted.

When I was going through the grief of losing him, I never thought there would be other incredible chapters in my book of life — unexpected chapters that would give new meaning to the "Second Time Around" song.

Now, I smile when I sing it.

I bet you know the words. Sing it with me:

"Love's more comfortable the second time you fall,

Like a friendly home, the second time you call.

Who can say what brought us to this miracle we've found?

There are those who'll bet love comes but once and yet,

I'm oh so glad we met, the second time around."

Growing together in a first marriage is a special time that can never be duplicated. Those memories deserve to be honored and cherished.

A second marriage has its own charms, its own strengths and specialness. We might take marriage for granted when we're younger but few Second Time Around couples do that. They know the song is right — it's somewhat of a miracle.

When I talk with Second Time Around couples, they all say the same thing as they grow older: they are so much more aware of the blessings of marriage.

They all say a second marriage is more comfortable primarily because they are smarter now. They learned a lot of life's lessons over the years, lessons that make them appreciate marriage — lessons that compel them to work hard to keep the union strong.

"I could never take this marriage for granted," says my friend Wanda who married for the second time in her late 60s. Both she and her husband lost their spouses years ago and went through some lonely years before they found each other.

"I can be a barracuda," says Tom truthfully, "but I am so much nicer now because I've mellowed with the years." He admits he treats Wanda much better than he did his first wife.

"We grow smart with age," he says. "And because we do, life is more fun than it ever was before."

I watched that happen with several of my friends of insect infestations. For example, plant squash as early as possible to avoid borers, which lay eggs in July.

Remove infected leaves from diseased plants as soon as you observe them.

Dispose of severely diseased plants before they contaminate others. Clean up crop refuse as soon as harvesting is finished.

Staking or planting in wire cages prevents the fruit from touching the soil. It also helps prevent fruit rots.

Caging helps reduce sun scale often seen in staked tomatoes, since caged plants do not require as much pruning, leaving a heavier foliage cover.

Boards or a light, open mulch such as straw, placed beneath melons, will prevent rotting.

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik

and even with my own father. When he was married to my mother, my dad had a trigger temper that often erupted in violence directed at my mom.

When my mother finally left him to get away from the violence, he couldn't stop crying, saying he learned his lesson.

He did. Both parents went on to wonderful second marriages. I was pleased when my father turned into a gentle husband the second time around.

Plenty of couples are like that. They have strong marriages because of what the partners learned in earlier marriages that failed.

"I'm not the same person now that I was during my first marriage," said my friend Jim. He's honest about taking responsibility for his failed first marriage and says he learned from his mistakes.

One night when we were out dancing, I realized the four couples at our table were each enjoying second time around marriages. From what I observe, they have happy, vibrant marriages.

They all agreed with Jim, saying they are not the same person as they were with their first spouse. They're better.

They say they are more accommodating, more willing to please each other and more determined to protect each other's feelings.

Maybe all that can be filed under "what age teaches us."

I recently interviewed an older couple that just got married for the second time after they each lost spouses. What impressed me when I went to their home was what they call their "memory corner."

One side of the living room mantle has photos of her late husband and her family. The other side has photos of his late wife and their three children.

"We honored the past," Jackie said, "but we treasure the present."

I love that sentiment because David and I feel the same way. We honor our past while we thank God every day for what we call Second Blessings.

I always tried to be a good wife but I admit I'm more easy going now and so is David. Life teaches us what is important and what's not. And the most important thing is loving each other.

When David and I married, we made our own private vow on our wedding day. We vowed to always treat each other gently. It's one vow we've both kept.

When we get second blessings, we cherish it for the miracle that it is.

Dave Koz brings 'Summer' to the State

By JERRY DUCKETT
Special to The Press

Internationally-known saxophonist and eight-time Grammy nominee Dave Koz, and three of his most talented and trusted colleagues, Gerald Albright, Richard Elliot, and Mindi Abair, celebrate his latest Concord Records CD, "Dave Koz and Friends Summer Horns," 7:30 p.m. July 13, State Theatre for the Arts, 453 Northampton St., Easton.

The 22-date "Summer Horns" tour, which began June 22 and includes a concert next month at the Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles, and the CD include songs made famous by Sly & the Family Stone ("Hot Fun In The Summertime"), Tower of Power ("So Very Hard To Go"), Chicago ("25 Or 6 To 4"), Stevie Wonder ("You Haven't Done Nothing") and Herb Alpert ("Rise").

Koz, 50, still lives in Woodland Hills, Calif., where he was born and raised. His mother played piano, wrote songs and sang. According to Koz, she forced him, his brother and sister to play piano, too, but no one liked to practice. Koz was about six or seven and at age 10, he says, he rebelled and tried to play the drums.

"I remember those times vividly," says Koz. "I had a very scary issue one day when I overheard my teacher take my Dad aside and tell him, 'You might want to think of sports for your son.'"

"I always thought I had a musical ear and that I had talent, and something really clicked when I picked up the sax I loaned from school. "By this time I was 13. I experienced a totally different kinship with my new-found instrument. It was like finding my voice, and having everything fall into place.

"I really pushed myself because I wanted to get into my older brother's band. They didn't have a sax player. So, over the course of the next year my father first rented a sax, and then bought me one.

"I was 15 and the guys in the band were all older than me — in their late teens — but it was great, because their experience taught me so many things. We played all types of music, and I remember how angry I was at my first gig with them, which was a wedding. They got $100 each and I got $10."

Koz continued playing frequently in the Los Angeles area, met a lot of people, and became well-established. Two weeks after graduating from the University of California at Los Angeles, he auditioned for Bobby Caldwell's band, and got the job. Next, he did a tour with keyboardist Jeff Lorber; then a 14-month tour with pop singer Richard Marx.

Koz was signed by Capitol Record's Bruce Lundvall in 1990, and released the self-titled "Koz," which became a hit. His career took off. Since then he has sold "between two and three" million albums as a Capitol and Concord recording artist.

"Summer Horns," with Abair, Albright and Elliot and his 14th album, already debuted at No. 1 on Billboard's contemporary jazz album chart. The first single, a version of The Beatles' "Got To Get You Into My Life" inspired by the hit 1978 cover by Earth, Wind & Fire, charted at No. 1 on one of the adult contemporary charts.

"This was the first shot for us," says Koz. "We have known each other for many years, but never worked together until now. They were the sax players I immediately thought of to do this CD, followed by the tour.

"It's like, we walked into the studio for the first time together; and said, 'What are we gonna do?'"

Also featured on the new CD are Rick Braun, Brian Culbertson, Michael McDonald, Jeffrey Osborne and Jonathon Butler.

Koz also continues his syndicated radio show, "The Dave Koz Radio Show," which he started in 1994, and is heard on hundreds of stations in the United States and around the world.

"Back then when I was called and asked to do the show I told them I had no broadcast experience, and they told me that's exactly what they wanted. Since then we have had almost everyone who makes contemporary music on our show."

Koz also leads a yearly "Jazz Cruise." This Sept. 22 - 29, he's off to Rome and the Greek Islands.

Ways to reduce pesticide use in garden

Home gardeners often use more pesticides per square foot in their gardens than farmers do in the fields, thinking that if a little is good, more will be better.

This is a serious mistake and a misuse of pesticides.

Pesticide overuse has a number of adverse effects:

It makes food less safe to eat, especially if there are residues at harvest time.

It makes handling plants dangerous.

It may harm or kill beneficial insects, earthworms, birds and pets.

Each time gardeners spray, they are exposed to dangers of inhalation or absorption of the toxin. Pesticides may leach through the soil into groundwater and contaminate water supplies. Pesticides used near ponds may kill aquatic life.

Continuous use of certain pesticides may induce resistance in pests, requiring the use of more toxic substances. Some pesticides break down slowly and can remain in the environment for years.

Because a home garden-

GROWING GREEN

L.C. Cooperative Extension
LehighExt@psu.edu

er does not have to live up to perfect market standards, pesticide use may be reduced to a minimum with a little research and effort.

If the choice is between minor insect damage and possible pesticide residue, consider accepting the visible blemish that can be removed. Proper soil preparation, careful plant selection, and good garden practices can be combined with biological and mechanical controls to reduce the need for conventional chemical control.

Maintain a slightly acidic soil (around pH 6.5). If in doubt, purchase a soil test mailing envelope from the Extension Office for analysis done through The Pennsylvania State University.

The appropriate pH allows vegetable plants access to all the necessary soil nutrients and provides a suitable environment for earthworms and microorganisms. Till the soil in the fall to expose pests that live near the soil surface to natural enemies and weather and to destroy insects in crop residues. If you do not till in the fall, do so early enough in the spring to give remaining vegetation time to degrade before planting time.

Plant crops suited to the soil and climate of our area. Use disease-free, insect-free, certified seed if available. Select disease- and insect-resistant or tolerant species and varieties. Select plants that are sturdy and have well-developed root systems.

The most effective and important of all practices is to observe what is going on in the garden. Many serious pest problems can be halted or slowed if you visit the garden regularly for the purpose of inspecting plants.

Here are more tips for reducing or eliminating pesticide use in your garden:

Do not grow the same kind of produce in the same place each year. Use related crops in one site only once every three or four years.

Avoid placing plants of one kind together. Alternate groups of different plants within rows or patches. If an insect lays eggs or otherwise attacks a particular species, the presence of other species in the area can interrupt progress of the attack by diluting the odor of the preferred plants. This can also slow the spread of diseases and pests, giving you more time to manage them.

Thin young plants to a proper stand. Overcrowding causes weak growth and subsequent insect and disease problems.

Water in the morning, so plants have time to dry before the cool evening when fungus infection is most likely. To prevent spreading diseases, stay out of the garden when plants are wet. For plants susceptible to fungus infections, such as tomatoes, leave extra space between plants to allow good air flow.

Time plantings in such a way that the majority of the crop will miss the peak

'Monsters U' gets incomplete

The best things about "Monsters University" occur before and after the animated feature film.

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistain

"The Blue Umbrella," a film short preceding "MU," is many of the things that "MU" is not. "Blue Umbrella" is imaginatively to the point, original and thoroughly entertaining.

After the credits conclude for "MU," there is a scene about a snail character, introduced early in the film as he makes his way slowly to class. The outcome of his progress is in the post-credits scene, which is also many of the things that "MU" is not. The scene is very funny, clever and efficient.

"Monsters University" is billed as a prequel to the critically-acclaimed and commercially-successful "Monsters, Inc.," which is about how monsters invade the dreams of children when they are asleep in their bedrooms.

"MU" takes Mike Wazowski (voiced by Billy Crystal) and James P. Sullivan "Sulley" (voiced by John Goodman) back to college, where, with a bunch of their pals, they enroll in the Scare Program.

They get kicked out of the program. To get back into the Scare Program, they enter the campus "Scare Games," with the winning team granted entrance into the Scare Program.

The fraternity of Mike and Sulley, that of OK, as in Oozma Kappa (yes, you can buy the T-shirt), is pitted against a sorority and several frat, notably Roar Omega Roar (ROR).

The OK fraternity is composed of not particularly scary monsters. The ROR frat boys behave like bullies, not unlike those in countless campus storyline movies, especially recalling the bullying teens in "Back to the Future" (1985) and the shenanigans of "Animal House" (1978). "Monsters U" could have been titled "Bully U." It takes a lot of plot to fill up one-hour and 44-minute, which is the length of "Monsters U," which is particularly lacking in the kind of humor parents and children expect in an animated feature film.

"MU" continues some interesting concepts from the first film, including that of doors, as in doors of perception, or portals of entry to children's nightmares. It's never fully explored.

Another concept, that of Scream Energy, is utilized to good effect. However, it occurs too late in the plot.

Before that, the majority of the storyline in "MU" has to do with the "Scare Games." While not exactly "The Hunger Games" (2012), this plot device seems all too unoriginal. In the "Scare Games," contests include an obstacle course, Hide and Sneak, scaring teens, and the finale, a Simulator Scare, whereby children in bed are scared.

I found my attention drifting to the backgrounds in "MU," which lavishly recreate a college campus in wonderful detail. The animation is superb. The lighting, the renderings and the character movements are all amazing. The film was seen in the 2D format for this review. I don't think it's necessary to see "MU" in 3D.

Dan Scanlon, in his animated feature film directorial debut, directs "Monsters U" from a screenplay and story he wrote with Dan Gerson ("Monsters, Inc.") and Robert L. Baird (Disney-Pixar screenplay contributor).

Billy Crystal is a standout as the voice of Mike. There's a scene where the character's back is turned and Crystal's distinctive voice makes it work.

John Goodman is similarly memorable as Sulley. Even so, I found myself not fully enrolled in "Monsters U." It's almost as if I was nodding off. And you don't want to fall asleep in class at "Monsters University."

"Monsters University," MPAA Rated G (General Audiences. All Ages Admitted); Genre: Animation, Adventure, Comedy, Family, Fantasy; Run time: 1 hr., 44 min.; Distributed by Disney-Pixar.

Box Office, July 5: For the July 4 holiday weekend, "Despicable Me 2" opened at No. 1, with $82.5 million and $142 million since opening July 3. The total is ahead of "Toy Story 3" which was the previous animated movie five-day recorder holder at $141 million. "The Lone Ranger" opened at No. 2, with what is regarded as a disappointing $29.4 million and $48.9 million since July 3.

"The Heat" dropped from No. 2 to 3, $25 million, $86.3 million, two weeks.

"Monsters University" dropped from No. 1 to No. 4, $19.5 million, $216.1 million, three weeks;

5. "World War Z," $18.2 million, $158.7 million, three weeks; 6. "White House Down," $13.5 million, $50.4 million, two weeks; 7. "Man of Steel," $11.4 million, $271.2 million, four weeks; 8. "Kevin Hart: Let Me Explain," $10.1 million, $17.4 million, opening; 9. "This Is The End," $5.8 million, $85.5 million, four weeks; 10. "Now You See Me," $2.7 million, $110.4 million, six weeks

Box Office, June 28: "Monsters University" ruled, two weeks in a row at No. 1, with $45.6 million, $170.4 million, two weeks, keeping the heat on "The Heat," opening at No. 2, with $39.1 million.

3. "World War Z," $29.7 million, $123.6 million, two weeks; 4. "White House Down," $24.8 million, opening; 5. "Man of Steel," $20.7 million, $248.5 million, three weeks; 6. "This Is The End," $8.7 million, $74.6 million, three weeks; 7. "Now You See Me," $5.5 million, $104.7 million, five weeks; 8. "Fast & Furious 6," $2.4 million, $233.3 million, six weeks; 9. "Star Trek: Into Darkness," $2.1 million; $220.5 million, seven weeks; 10. "The Internship," $1.4 million, $41.7 million, four weeks

Verizon 4G hits 500th market

Verizon Wireless has announced that during the past eight months, 100 new markets have been added to the 4G LTE footprint, bringing the total number of markets served by the Verizon Wireless network to 500.

With Parkersburg, W.Va., as the 500th market and Alaska launching next month, Verizon serves more than 298 million in the United States with the 4G LTE network, including 94 percent of the Philadelphia region, which includes the New Jersey Shore, Delaware, Harrisburg, Lehigh Valley, Scranton/Wilkes-Barre, Lancaster and more.

More than consumers are taking advantage of the Verizon Wireless 4G LTE network. Small businesses and organizations, like animal rescue center Cat Tales in Bucks County; hospitals, including Northeastern Pennsylvania's largest health care provider, Wilkes-Barre General Hospital; and sports arenas such as Lincoln Financial Field, rely on the Verizon Wireless network.

Non-profit organization Greater Philadelphia Search and Rescue use the Verizon Wireless 4G LTE network to help them perform in remote locations in the region.

Since 2000, Verizon has invested more than $1.6 billion in the Philadelphia Tri-State region network, with $186 million designated in 2012.

The introduction of 4G LTE has made high-speed, high-quality wireless an option regardless of location for the latest gadgets such as cameras, cars' systems and health devices.

Coordinated appoints officer

Coordinated Health has announced that Joohyun Ro was named its Chief Information Officer.

Ro is responsible for reengineering Coordinated Health's information services teams to support a growing IT infrastructure, software applications and project implementations. He will also manage the company's cross-functional IT Applications, Business Intelligence and Risk Management departments.

Prior to joining Coordinated Health, Ro served as the head of a global IT department. Ro has extensive information technology background in several industries, including aerospace, packaged foods, consulting and electronics.

Joohyun Ro

"The health industry is experiencing a renaissance as the adoption of electronic health records allows patients greater control over their health choices," Ro said. "I am excited to join such an influential and dynamic company during this era of change."

Coordinated Health CEO and President, Dr. Emil Dilorio, said, "We are excited to have Joohyun join our management team as CIO. His extensive technology background from industries outside healthcare will be an asset as we take the lead on the reforms the federal government is demanding of healthcare."

Ro received a Bachelor of Science degree in Electrical Engineering from Drexel University and a Master of Business Administration with a concentration in Operations Management from Carnegie Mellon University.

Calories key to losing weight

Q. If you want to control your weight, is it better to eat three meals a day, or should you eat more, smaller meals?

There is no scientifically proven answer to this question. Until there is, I'd suggest simply reducing your total food intake for each day until your weight goes down.

I've struggled to keep pounds off all my life. I've learned that calories count.

You take in more than you burn; you gain weight. You burn more than you eat; you lose weight.

Exercise helps, but the calorie burn-off usually doesn't amount to much. The best exercise is pushing yourself away from the table.

Eating several small meals a day instead of breakfast-lunch-dinner has been written about in the popular media right now, which means you should be hearing "fad alert" in your head. Here are some of the claims:

The body burns calories to digest. Eating six to eight meals a day enables your body to use more calories to aid digestion.

Eating lots of meals rather than three will boost metabolism and control blood sugar.

recent study that indicated we may be better off eating only three meals a day. The study was done on mice, so the findings have to be confirmed by tests on humans.

Satchidananda Panda, a regulatory biologist at the Salk Institute in La Jolla, led the study published by the journal Cell Metabolism.

Panda and his team put groups of mice on different eating regimens for 100 days. Mice in two of the groups ate high-fat, high-calorie food. Half of them were allowed to snack throughout the night and day. The other mice had access to food only for eight hours at night, when they were most active.

The mice that ate only for eight hours were almost as lean as mice in a control group that ate regular food. But the mice that ate around the clock became obese, even though they consumed the same amount of fat and calories as their counterparts on the time-restricted diet.

Tapping into tunes at Hotel B

By BATHSHEBA MONK
Special to The Press

Remember your mother telling you if you played the piano you'd always be welcome at parties?

A crowd would gather round, the singing would start and the party would begin?

No, I didn't practice enough to make that dream come true either, but I'm always grateful when somebody like CJ Steinway did.

CJ, a Fountain Hill native and Moravian College Class of '91 graduate, was with friends celebrating the holidays at the Hotel Bethlehem last Christmas when he began picking out some tunes at the grand piano in the lobby.

A crowd gathered around to sing along and Kathleen Brown, Director of Food and Beverage at the hotel, noticed the excitement and fun and booked him for the Tap Room through the spring and summer. He's there 6 - 10 p.m. July 14 and 21.

Like all good music accompanists, CJ offers a lively sensibility that puts Tap Room patrons in a party mood without overwhelming them with sound. He incorporates a mix of today's music along with the standards loved by his older fans.

At any one of his gigs, guests will hear songs by Cole Porter, Irving Berlin and George and Ira Gershwin, followed by Jason Mraz, Bruce Springsteen, Norah Jones, and yes ... even Lady Gaga. This has led to the development of fans at his gigs ranging from ages 25 to 85.

Besides being a professional performer — he played on Dina Hall's CD "Logic and the Heart" — CJ is a sought-after private piano and voice coach in suburban Philadelphia.

He sees making music as something everyone should get to experience.

He encourages audience members to croon a few tunes, either solo or with him in a duet, so they can show their friends what they can do while sharing a few laughs. At a recent Tap Room performance, two children got up to strut their stuff, including CJ's lovely daughter, Maddy, 7, who added a hilarious twist to the old standard, "Let's Misbehave."

CJ and his wife, Kristen, also have a son, Maxwell, 12.

CJ's enthusiasm is catching on with attendance growing steadily since the Tap Room piano bar's inception in February.

He'll be back for a string of Tap Room gigs Aug. 3, 4 and 6 during Musikfest. CJ has already brought his piano bar gig to several places in the region, including the Clinton House in New Jersey; Lola's in New Hope and Dalia's in Philadelphia.

24th Moravian Music Festival

Seven days of concerts will be presented for the 24th Moravian Music Festival, 7:30 p.m. July 14 - 20, Central Moravian Church, 73 W. Church St., and Moravian College Hurd Campus, Main and Church streets, both Bethlehem.

Moravian Music Festivals, last held in Bethlehem in 1992, are held every four years and feature almost 300 Moravian musicians from the United States and Canada.

The festival is presented by Lehigh Valley Moravian churches and coordinated by Rebecca Kleintop Owens, Central Moravian Church director of music. Concerts are preceded by a half-hour of brass and woodwind players chorales. The schedule:

July 14: Lovefeast, Central Moravian sanctuary, Lutheran and Episcopal churches choirs, Moravian Unitas choir, Central Moravian Church Choir. Guest organists and directors: Gwyn Michel, Moravian Church; Clint Miller, Episcopal Church; Linda Maule, Lutheran Church. Rev. Nola Reed Knouse, speaker

July 15: Organ concert, Central Music Director Becky Owens, Central Moravian sanctuary

July 16: Tim Zimmerman and the King's Brass, Central Moravian sanctuary. Reservations: 610-866-5661, ext. 206

July 17: "Easter Cantata" by E. W. Wolf, Festival Choir Concert and Orchestra, conducted by Dr. John Sinclair; Central Moravian sanctuary, Pre-concert lecture: David Blum

July 18: Festival Band Concert, directed by Allen Frank, Foy Hall, Moravian College Hurd Campus

July 19: Closing Music Festival and Johnston Memorial Festival Concert, Festival Choir and Orchestra, directed by Dr. John Sinclair

July 20: Closing Festival Singstunde, Festival Trombone Choir, Festival Handbell Choir and chamber ensembles, 10 a.m., Central Moravian sanctuary

CIVIC THEATRE
Town meeting seeks input

Ted Swenson and Jennifer Shropshire of Swenson & Associates of Philadelphia will facilitate a "town meeting" about Civic Theatre of Allentown, 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. July 11, 19th Street Theatre, 527 N. 19th St., Allentown.

The board of directors and staff of Civic Theatre of Allentown have embarked on a strategic planning process. The facilitators are looking to discover what local residents are seeking in the future from Civic Theatre of Allentown, and what concerns Lehigh Valley residents may have about the organization and its place in the Lehigh Valley cultural community.

RSVP: Amanda, 610-432-8943. Walk-ins are also welcome.

Share the Moment in COLOR!

Having a 'HayDay' at Jerusalem Bible School

CONTRIBUTED PHOTO

Jerusalem Evangelical Lutheran Church of Eastern Salisbury was the place to be for "HayDay! Growing in Friendship with Jesus" the curriculum for this year's Bible school. Approximately 25 students attended Bible school learning Bible verses describing friendships. Bible school included hog wild games, Bible adventures, crafts and more. ABOVE: Students have fun at Jerusalem's Bible school learning "Jesus loves us no matter what."

Vacation Bible School volunteers Pat Peters, Julie Swoyer, Louise Stephens, VBS Director Lisa Holmgren, Samantha Moyer, Emerald Spangler and Mary Peters sit next to the mascot "Mocille" at Jerusalem Evangelical Lutheran Church of Eastern Salisbury.
