Callahan's proposal targets disparity

BY DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Councilman Bryan Callahan introduced the local press corps and supporters to an amendment Jan. 31 that will make it illegal for employers to ask job candidates about their salary for past jobs.

He said he expects the measure, if approved by the city council, to be challenged in court by the business community.

Callahan's amendment would modify the existing ordinance Section 145.01, of the Codified Ordinances of the City of Bethlehem, which deals with human Resources.

According to Callahan, the measure is prompted by his conviction that the amendment to the city's Human Resources ordinance will tend to lessen the income disparity between men and women who do similar work.

"Women should be paid equal to men," Callahan said.

When asked if men face the same issue of being asked past wage history, Callahan acknowledged that they do.

The amendment would make it unlawful for an employer, employment agency, or employee or agent to "inquire about a prospective employee's wage history, require disclosure of wage history, or retaliate against a prospective employee for failing to comply with any wage history."

It further makes it unlawful to rely on a person's wage history to determine the wages at any stage during the employment process.

The amendment included some facts or "findings" to support the proposal. For example, "in Pennsylvania, women are paid 79

PRESS PHOTOS COURTESY NORTHAMPTON COMMUNITY COLLEGE

During his Jan. 26 commencement address to 594 Northampton Community College winter graduates, former congressman Charlie Dent commented on the current political climate. "Who would have imagined that we would question our involvement in NATO," he said, "or in the role of the press?"

DENT TO NCC GRADUATES 'Pursue your passions'

BY STEPHEN ALTHOUSE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

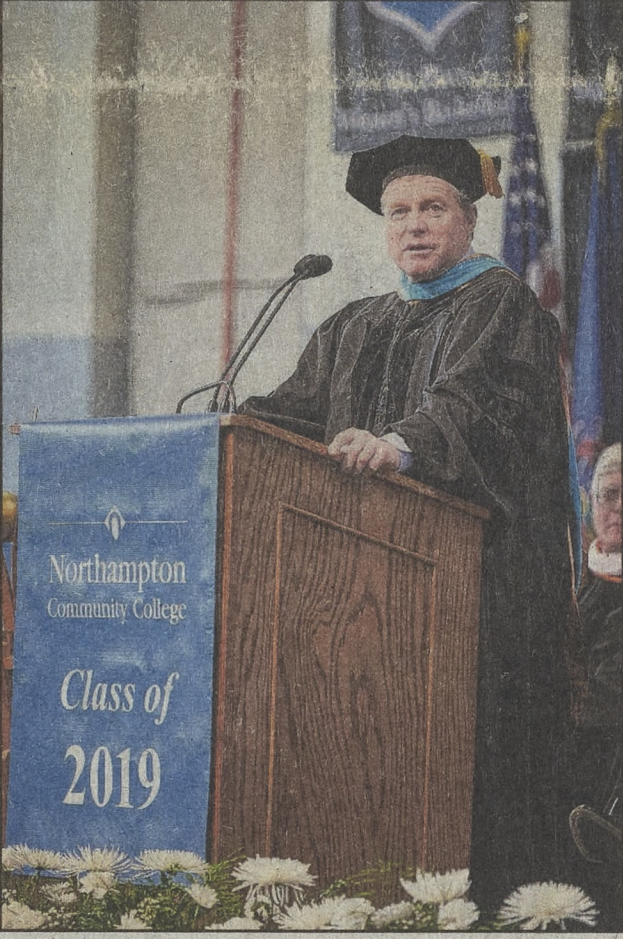

To hear Charlie Dent tell it, his father gave him some great advice when he was a young man about to enter college.

"My father thought I should study one of three things - science, medicine or engineering," he told an audience gathered Jan. 26 for the 2019 winter commencement at Northampton Community College. "I went to Penn State and started out studying industrial engineering, but I decided to switch majors to political science."

With a slight pause and a mischievous grin, Dent told the audience about how he informed his father about his new career path.

"I told him it was a science," he noted. "My father said, well, science, sure that's good. Then I told him it was political science and he replied, 'that's not what I meant!'"

The younger Dent knew well a career in political science was not what his father meant, but by all accounts the decision worked out just fine.

"I guess I'm not the black sheep of the family," Dent joked a few minutes later.

Dent's name is familiar to almost everyone in the Lehigh Valley. The Republican represented the 15th Congressional District from 2005 through May 12 of last year when he formally resigned his seat. The Allentown native's political career began in 1990 when he went door-to-door in Allentown attempting to win Pennsylvania's 132nd House seat. His attentive ear, congenial style and middle-of-the-road pragmatism launched a 14-year career in Harrisburg - the first eight in the House and remaining six as a senator representing the 16th District.

The 58-year-old told the 594 NCC graduates, ranging in age from 16 to 72, the story about his father's advice for a reason.

McNeill pleased with committee assignments

State Rep. Jeanne McNeill, D-Lehigh, has announced she has been appointed to serve on several key House committees for the 2019-20 legislative session.

Bill 897 clarifies law A2

McNeill will serve on the Commerce, Game and Fisheries, Gaming Oversight, Labor and Industry and Rules committees.

"I am committed to my constituents and these committee appointments reflect my constituency in the 133rd District," McNeill said. "These committees are consumer oriented and perform a vital function in the legislative process."

PA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

McNeill said the appointments put her in a position to discuss and formulate much of a bill's language before it is considered and voted on in the House of Representatives.

McNeill wanted to clearly explain each committee to her constituents:

Commerce - evaluates legislation involving the banking industry and financial services industries; reviews bills that control interest rates and wage and employment issues; and has oversight of the Department of Banking, Department of Community and Economic Development, Pennsylvania Housing and Finance Agency, the Securities Commission and the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority.

Game and Fisheries - reviews bills which affect the Game Commission and Fish and Boat Commission. Both commissions are independent entities and rely on licensing and use fees for a significant portion of their funding.

Gaming Oversight - works with the Pennsylvania Gaming Control Board to evaluate bills that affect gaming in Pennsylvania. This includes the types of gaming allowed in Pennsylvania, as well as rules for casino and using the proceeds of gaming in the state.

Labor - reviews legislation on issues such as the state's minimum wage, unemployment compensation, workers' compensation, building and construction codes, and workplace health and safety.

McNeill maintains a constituent service office at 1080 Schadt Ave. in Whitehall. The telephone number is (610) 266-1273 and office hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. She also has a satellite office at Fountain Hill Borough Hall, 941 Long St. with hours from 9 a.m. to noon every Friday.

African American women are paid only 68 cents to the dollar paid to a man, Latinas are paid only 56 cents to the dollar paid to men, and Asian women are paid 81 cents to the dollar paid to men."

Further, according to the proposed amendment, "the gender wage gap has narrowed by less than one-half a penny per year in the United States since 1963, when the Congress passed the Equal Pay Act, the first law aimed at prohibiting gender-based pay discrimination, according to the National Committee on Pay Equity."

The data cited in the amendment says that "in August of 2016, Massachusetts became the first state to enact a law prohibiting employers from seeking or requiring a prospective employee's wage history."

advice," Dent told them. "We need people to build things. But it wasn't good advice for me. That's what I want you to know. Your parents mean well for you, but sometimes what they want isn't what you want."

Instead of pragmatism in selecting career pursuits, Dent suggested another tack.

"Be passionate about what you do," he said. "Life is much more enriching if you pursue your passion."

Even though his time power-broking deal in the halls of the Rotunda has ended, Dent still is a political commodity. Last year Dent joined the Cable News Network as a contributor, where he offers his political opinions.

"Charlie has always been a centrist voice of reason," said Mark Erickson, president of Northampton Community College, during Dent's introduction. "...We could use you in Washington right now."

During his commencement address, the former congressman commented on the current political climate.

"Who would have imagined that we would question our involvement in NATO," he said. "Or in the role of the press?"

Bill 897 clarifies restitution law

State Sen. Lisa Boscola, D-18th, joined Governor Tom Wolf and state Sen. Pat Stefano, R-32nd, to celebrate the adoption of Senate Bill 897 at a ceremonial bill signing Jan. 30.

The legislation corrected a quirk in the restitution law by clarifying that government entities and nonprofits are eligible to collect restitution.

The measure was spurred by a local news account concerning Robert Kearns, who was convicted of stealing $832,000 from the taxpayers of Bethlehem Township. The state Superior Court ruled Kearns does not have to pay the money back because a municipality cannot qualify as a "victim" for the purposes of collecting restitution.

Calling the scenario "absurd," Boscola introduced this legislation to fix the loophole several times on the Senate floor.

"Those who steal from local government or nonprofits should have to pay it back," Boscola said. "It's just commonsense. Crime should never pay, but that's what the decision allowed."

After similar incidents occurred in Stefano's Senate District, Boscola and Stefano agreed to work on a bipartisan correction (Senate Bill 897) to the legal loophole. They worked closely with the statewide District Attorneys' Association and Office of Victim Advocate to draft legislation.

"First Love"
Jesus said, "...I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love" (Rev. 2:4). Are you a Christian who no longer feels the joyful glow of love for Jesus filling your heart? Check this list for evidence that you have left your "first love."
_ My delight in the Lord is no longer as great as my delight in someone else.
_ My soul does not long for times of rich fellowship in God's Word or in prayer.
_ My thoughts during leisure moments do not reflect upon the Lord.
_ I claim to be "only human" and easily give in to those things I know displease the Lord.
_ I do not willingly and cheerfully give to God's work or to the needs of others.
_ I cease to treat every Christian brother as I would the Lord.
_ I view the commands of Christ as restrictions to my happiness rather than expressions of His love.
_ I inwardly strive for the acclaim of this world rather than the approval of the Lord.
_ I fail to make Christ or His Words known because I fear rejection.
_ I refuse to give up an activity which I know is offending a weaker brother.
_ I become complacent to sinful conditions around me.
_ I am unable to forgive another for offending me.
Do you need to recover your "first love?" Jesus is ready to forgive and bless you if you will seek Him in prayer and repentance!

Collection breaks records

BY CINDY MELLINGER AND DEBBIE GALBRAITH
cgalbraith@nonline.com

Many soldiers serving our country in Kuwait, Afghanistan and Iraq had something to smile about in December 2018 as a result of the generosity of Blue Ridge Communications and Pencor offices and their customers, who embraced the Keystone Military Families' Stockings for Soldiers project.

Keystone Military Families, a nonprofit organization founded by Kyle Lord (a military mother of a soldier who served five tours of duty), began the project in 2002. This year the goal was to send 10,000 stuffed stockings from our communities to the dedicated troops who would not be able to enjoy the comforts of home during this holiday season.

"We at Keystone Military Families have been blessed by the way we have been embraced by this community," Lord said. "Every year you open your hearts to let those serving our great nation know they have not been forgotten back home. Our project could never happen without such generosity and Christmas spirit. To all the donors and volunteers at Blue Ridge Communications, the town of Ephrata and surrounding communities of central PA, and indeed everyone that had a part of this year's campaign, we cannot thank you enough. Your enthusiasm and dedication truly warms our hearts. These gifts will surely convey the spirit of Christmas and the best wishes of the holiday season to every military member who receives them. Thank you for your continued support over these last nine years."

Lord went on to say, "I hope and pray that as long as there are troops away from home and facing danger, our partnership of support will continue to show them we care, we miss them and we are forever proud of them. May all of you enjoy the blessings of this holiday season with family and friends and please say a prayer for those who cannot be with their families."

Cindy Mellinger, marketing/community relations coordinator for Blue Ridge Communications, said, "This year we broke all records with our collection, weighing in at close to four tons (8,000 pounds) in donations, including food, hygiene and other requested items, over 20,000 signed cards and $30,000 raised for shipping.

"Thank you to everyone who embraced this project. I can't thank everyone enough. A special acknowledgement goes to the many churches, civic organizations, schools, individuals and many businesses who took a personal interest in making the holidays brighter for this dedicated group of men and women.

"I have been privileged to be the project coordinator for this endeavor for the past nine years and each year I continue to be amazed by the overwhelming compassion shown by the Blue Ridge Communications' viewing area. Due to your generous support, our service men and women received a loving reminder from home over the Christmas season. These gifts will serve as powerful messages of joy and hope to our men and women serving around the world, as they are so appreciative of the outpouring of kindness. Thank you!"

Following the collection, Lord concluded, "I am truly honored to be able to work with such loving, giving people. Every year the support and enthusiasm grows bigger than the year before and more of our troops know that they are loved and supported back home. Thank you so very much for your continued support for our military and their families."

In the Lehigh Valley, Trudy Unangst, Unangst Tree Farms, LLC became a collection site for Christmas cards and donations. Many area churches and clubs participated as well. Seventh grade students at Salisbury MS made cards for the soldiers to go with the stockings.

The organization thanks all of those individuals and groups who contributed.

High-end gas station pitched

BETHLEHEM TOWNSHIP

BY BERNIE O'HARE

Special to the Bethlehem Press

Two new sketch plans were considered by Bethlehem Township Commissioners at their Jan. 21 meeting - a high-end gas station like a Sheetz or Wa-Wa on Nazareth Pike and a senior living facility along Freemansburg Avenue. These are basically informal presentations after which developers can determine whether to move ahead or go back to the drawing board. No action was taken.

GAS STATION

Arif Fazil, president of D'Huy Engineering and a well-known professional engineer, has decades of experience representing developers before local government boards. This time, he represented himself. He and Jack Muschlitz, vice president of Muschlitz Excavating, are pitching a project to convert the old Leiser Rental business, located at 3608 Nazareth Pike, into a high-end gas station.

The end user is still unidentified.

This is a 3.8-acre tract located along the northeast corner of Oakland Road and Nazareth Pike. It is next to commercial properties like Dunkin' Donuts and Josh Early Candies. It is also close to residential neighborhoods. The property has been vacant since Leiser's Rental moved two miles south to 3464 Linden St.

A sketch plan proposes a 7,600-square-foot convenience store, gasoline pump bay with canopy, parking for 97 vehicles and a stormwater management basin that will filter water across the street and into Monocacy Creek.

Both Nazareth Pike and Oakland Road are state highways, so highway occupancy permits will be needed from PennDOT for access. In addition, the state Department of Environmental Protection will have to issue what are called NPDES permits for the stormwater discharge.

Fazil, who lives nearby, pointed out that the combo gas station and convenience store is more than a permitted use. "There's definitely a need for a gas station in this area," he said. "The site was really made for this use."

"I agree it's needed," responded President Mike Hudak, who suggested that Fazil's real problems will be with PennDOT and the discharge of stormwater into a high-quality trout stream. Resident Tom Keifer was a bit more blunt. "You're going to pollute the hell out of the Monocacy," he charged.

Fazil disputed this after his presentation. "We're going to have less impervious coverage than is there now," he noted. He added that the water will be filtered before it ever hits a stream, and believes he can get the permits.

The engineer-turned-developer himself acknowledges that residential neighborhoods are close, and is proposing a buffer to protect neighbors. He was unable to say for sure whether the facility will be open for 24 hours, because an end user is yet to be determined.

Commissioner John Gallagher warned that people going from Oakland Road to Nazareth Pike will use the gas station as a shortcut to avoid waiting at the light.

Fazil and Muschlitz were unable to say when this project would start or the end cost, noting that would depend on the plan review as well as the ultimate end user.

SENIOR LIVING

Prominent local attorney Joe Bubba pitched Solebury Senior Living, a 7.8-acre parcel located along the south side of Freemansburg Avenue, between Wagner Drive and Farmersville Road. Heritage Senior Living is proposing a 70,000-square-foot facility with 120 beds. There will be parking for 65 passenger vehicles, stormwater management areas and walking paths. It has been called both a nursing home and life care center, both of which are permitted as "special exceptions" under the township's zoning laws. Township Engineer Brian Dillman is recommending that access from Freemansburg Avenue be limited to emergency vehicles.

VEHICLE POLICY

Based on multiple complaints from resident Barry Roth, Commissioners adopted a motor vehicle use policy for township-owned vehicles. Under this new policy, only three employees will be able to take township vehicles home. They are the chief of police, fire marshal and K-9 officer.

Roth agreed about the K-9 officer, noting a dog might "lose the scent" if police wait too long to unleash the hounds on a runaway suspect. But he said there was no justification for allowing the police chief or fire marshal to drive township vehicles home.

Commissioner Jack Gallagher was the sole vote against the policy. He said he wants these employees to fill out mileage logs, but Commissioner Malissa Davis countered that would be insulting to two police officers.

The wait is over!!!

The annual salary for the position is $123,136.

In other business, commissioners commemorated the long service of retiring Deputy Controller John A. Falk. He retires after almost 31 years service. "I will still stay busy," said Falk in a post meeting interview. He said he teaches at DeSales University.

Commissioners generally expressed high regard and admiration for Falk and his service to the County.

The board quickly moved to elect a replacement. Four individuals who have children in the school district submitted their resumes. The board ultimately named attorney Edward Andres to the board with a final vote of 5-2. The two no votes came from board members Sandra Miller and Mark Sivak. They supported another candidate, Robert Phillips, who often attends school board meetings.

Prior to the vote, Andres said to the board, "I'm interested in this position because I believe that I am able to achieve the goal of having an exceptional want a quality education for our kids," he said. "I believe that is for all the children, so whatever level you are, whatever grade you are, whether it's the strongest students or the ones that have the challenges, every child needs to be challenged at their level and needs to grow."

Board member Bryan Eichfeld voiced his support for Andres.

"My perception is really only one of the candidates have spoken of the taxpayer; that's the person I'm going to support at this point in time, because they all have very good backgrounds, but Edward really seemed to have the balance in his mind."

Board member Cedric Detmar spoke of the candidates thanking them for their interest in volunteering. He noted any one of them would do a great job on the board and he encouraged the remaining three to consider running for the positions that are going to be on the ballot in the fall, beginning with the primaries in May.

Commissioners consider refinancing

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Should Bethlehem Township refinance its $10 million debt, especially now that it is paying variable rate interest? At their Jan 21 meeting, commissioners heard a presentation from financial consulting firm PFM. The switch from fixed to variable rate of interest has already cost the township $75,000.

With a bank loan refinancing this debt, PFM estimates it can save the township $256,000. With a bond issue, the savings is estimated at $382,000. If the township authorizes PFM to proceed by late January, it estimates it can have a new loan in place within 90 days.

Commissioners took no action, but Malissa Davis said she always understand that loans in excess of $10 million should be by bond issue.

PFM already serves a number of local municipalities and school districts. These include Northampton County and Allentown School District and Bethlehem Area School District.

The Bethlehem Catholic wrestling team celebrated another District 11 team title after they knocked off Liberty in the finals.

Hawks emerge with gold

BY TOM WENBORG
Special to the Press

The Bethlehem Catholic Golden Hawks avenged their only regular season dual meet loss by defeating the Liberty Hurricanes 34-22 to win the District XI AAA team wrestling title.

The Hawks head to Hershey looking to claim their second consecutive state team championship and their third in four years.

Beca reached the final on the strength of 41-13 win over Northampton in their semifinal. Liberty got a final bout pin at 152 by Jason Rezac to get by Nazareth 26-24 in the other semi.

In their regular season meeting, the Hurricanes swept the final four bouts at the 170-220 pounds weights to erase a 13-point deficit and come out on top 32-30. The district final started at 182, so Liberty figured to be able to build an early lead.

At 182, Kevin Hennessey started the Canes off with a pin of Henry Pavis in 3:58. Damen Moyer (L) took a 6-3 decision over Joe Kurtz at 195. Jake Ahmad's (L) hyperaggressive attack was effective to rack up a major decision over Jarius Rosado 13-4 at 220.

The 285-pound class saw a momentous shift from the regular season match as Jase Crouse

(BC) not only avoided being pinned, he came out on top of Jaden Freeman 2-1.

Dante Frinzi (BC) matched his earlier pin of Conner Werner at 106. Tal-Reese Flemming (L) won by decision over Matt Mayer 9-4 at 112. At 120 Matt Maloney (L) beat Nate Lackman 7-5.

The 126-pound bout was hotly contested. Dillon Murphy (BC) was clinging to a 2-1 lead over Mike Torres when Murphy was penalized for stalling just before the final buzzer. The sudden victory period expired without any points. Torres scored a reversal and three near-fall points in the first tiebreaker period to secure a 7-2 decision.

Although Liberty led 22-9 at that point in the match, their fans knew that Beca was heavily favored in the next 5 bouts.

Head coach Jeff Karam admitted after the match,

"I felt really good after 126 to be honest with you," head coach Jeff Karam admitted after the match.

At 132, Kenny Herrmann (BC) won a 5-0 decision over Travis Brown. Matt Lackman (BC) pinned Christian Reid in 17 seconds at 138. Jason Rezac (L) was able to hold the nation's top-ranked 145-pound wres-

FHS hockey knocks off Parkland again

BY JEFF MOELLER
Special to the Press

Freedom's hockey team is playing a different role in the Lehigh Valley Scholastic Hockey League (LVSHL) this winter.

That's what happens when you're undefeated and knock off the defending nine-time, defending champions twice during the regular season.

Beginning this week, the Patriots had an unblemished 13-0 mark, scoring an incredible 113 goals and allowing a minuscule 12 goals. They downed perennial power Parkland 3-0 on Oct. 22 and 5-1 Dec. 17, breaking their undefeated regular season streak of 115 games.

"Anytime everyone is talking about your team all the time and not Parkland as much, that's good," said Freedom head coach Mike Kearns. "We had a recent break and it really didn't hurt us.

"Our kids just love being on the ice. They have stay focused and have done everything that they needed to do. They have kept their heads in the game, and we basically have been injury free."

Team captain Luke Day, who is the league's leading scorer with 31 goals and 22 assists for 53 points, envisions his team making a deep playoff run.

"I believe that the team has come a long way this season," said Day, who has been playing organized hockey for 12 years. "As the season has progressed, we have become much stronger as a team."

"Our passing has been improving with every game, and we look to carry that into the playoffs."

"Coach Kearns has been very inspirational to a lot of guys, and he explains how to play the game the right way. I believe he will be carrying the same mentality throughout the rest of the season and into the playoffs."

Along with Day, eight other Patriots are in double-figure scoring. Those above the 20-point mark are Max Kontir (18-16-34), John Musella (14-12-26), Matthew Ranzazzo (15-6-21), and Dominic Augello (12-8-20).

Joshua Millan has been in the nets for 11 of the 13 games and has a 0.87 goals against average with five shutouts.

The Patriots have three regular season games remaining, a stretch that began with Southern Lehigh Monday. They will meet Phillipsburg Friday and then have a rematch with Southern Lehigh Monday.

Pate girls beat BC

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Freedom's girls' basketball game against Bethlehem Catholic could have gone either way, but with the Patriots' scrappy play and having fouls to give in the fourth quarter, Freedom came up victorious, 49-44, last Thursday night at Freedom.

"The game's never really over until it's over, so we couldn't think for a second we won," said Freedom guard Corrin Gill. "It helps when my teammates are really aggressive also, and putting pressure on the ball, and it helps me with reading where they're going to pass, and then I take away passing lanes and the steals are there."

The Hawks won the first time the two teams faced off this season with the game at Bechahi.

"I think we prepared better for them this time," said Patriot guard Yasmine Herrera. "We knew who their shooters were, we knew we needed to get rebounds, and we couldn't be tentative. I kind of just read their eyes, and I anticipated a lot of the time, and I felt really competitive today. It was an important game, so I was fired up."

While the Hawks were successful at shooting threes, three by Isabelle Rosario, two by Kourtney Wilson, and one apiece by Abby Brown and Keyara Walters, the Patriots were successful at creating turnovers and staying out of foul trouble.

"When we play like we did halfway through the third quarter, attacking the zone and getting to the free throw line, that's how we play," said Freedom coach Dean Reiman. We have to be attacking the rim and sharing the ball against the zone or man, it doesn't matter. I think good things happen for us and then we can press and speed teams up, and that's the way we have to play."

Herrera wasted no time creating turnovers early in the game, and Gill, along with Brenna Ortwein had consecutive buckets on steals in that all-important third quarter.

The score remained close throughout the game, however, and when the Hawks scored six unanswered points in the fourth, Freedom called a timeout. The Patriots took the lead for good with 1:40 remaining in the game on an inbounds play when Ortwein scored.

"They're smart players. I have confidence in them. Sometimes they just need to be reminded and then go ahead and execute," Reiman said. "When it was winning time, they had a good understanding of how they were to attack."

Patriot girls defeat Liberty

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Two times in two days, Freedom's girls' basketball team defeated both city rivals, and on Friday night in the first game of a girl-boy doubleheader, the Patriots topped Liberty, 56-26, at Liberty.

"Tonight was another cross town rival and it was good to beat them both in a row," said the Patriots' top scorer, Jennifer Kokolus, who had 18 points against the Hurricanes. "I tried to run the floor as hard as I can. My teammates always find me. They're always selfless."

The Patriots led 28-12 at halftime, but the disparity did not cause Freedom to back down.

"We needed to come out and rebound because their guards started crashing the boards, so we tried to adjust that. I think we did that well in the second half. Rebounding was our big focus," Kokolus said.

Hawks are on top

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Bethlehem Catholic coach Scott McClary still feels like his Golden Hawks have room for improvement and that may be a scary proposition for opposing teams heading into the post-season.

The Hawks (17-3, 13-1) enter the final week of the regular season first place in their division and the top-seed in the East Penn Conference with games against Dieruff (3-16) and Allen (11-7) this week.

With Bechahi in prime position to head into the EPC playoffs with the number-one seed and only one regular season loss, McClary is taking it all in stride.

"It's not so much grabbing the top seed, as it is winning the regular season championship," said McClary. "I have always said that winning a regular season title should be celebrated more than it is. It is the hardest thing to do as you must be good for a longer period of time versus a higher number of opponents than just winning a tournament in three games. Winning the EPC is hard to do and if we are able to pull it off, we will be very proud."

Last week was an exclamation point endeavor or for the Hawks too, as they recorded a 73-71, overtime win over Freedom, a 77-66 win over Easton and a 78-70 victory over Pocono Mountain East in the span of three days against three teams that are playoff bound.

All three wins helped push them to the top of the conference and also provided a bit more cushion in the Steel Division.

"Playing three games in three days against very good teams was really tough," McClary said. "I expect all three of those teams are going to be in the EPCs and districts. To go 3-0 is quite an accomplishment and a testament to the players. They prepared well and showed a tremendous amount of heart and physical effort."

With the EPC tournament slated to get underway this weekend, McClary is hoping his team can keep raising their level of play.

"I do not feel as though we are playing our best basketball right now," he said. "I am guessing every team feels the same way. We are constantly looking at ways to make today a lit-

SPEED FREAKS

A few questions we had to ask ourselves

Anything from the offseason get your attention?

GODSPEAK: Keeping on eye on veteran drivers Kurt Busch and Ryan Newman starting over with new race teams.

KEN'S CALL: I'm intrigued by Daniel Suarez's desire to prove Joe Gibbs wrong for replacing him with Martin Truex Jr. And the Jimmie Johnson-Chad Knaus separation.

Which team and driver most need a big Speedweeks?

GODSPEAK: Jimmie Johnson could use an early-season boost. Will a new crew chief and sponsor spark his performance?

KEN'S CALL: Denny Hamlin, just to pocket some good vibes early after an off year in 2018. Not that a good Speedweeks translates to a good season, but still, it can't hurt.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

KYLE BUSCH VS. BRAD KESELOWSKI

OWSKI: For whatever reason, these two drivers just rub each other the wrong way. They are not fond of each other. When their paths cross, it usually causes sparks.

GODWIN KELLY'S TAKE: Two NASCAR champions who don't care for each other, and they carry that into 2019. "Sometimes you just don't like a guy," Busch said. This is NASCAR's most heated rivalry.

GODWIN'S PICKS FOR CLASH AT DAYTONA

WINNER: Chase Elliott
REST OF TOP 5: Jamie McMurray, Kyle Larson, Joey Logano, Denny Hamlin
FIRST ONE OUT: Alex Bowman
DARK HORSE: Erik Jones
DON'T BE SURPRISED IF: Chevrolet comes out of the chute with guns blazing after being down — way, way, way down — in 2018.

DAYTONA

THREE THINGS TO WATCH

NASCAR fans from around the country will flock to Daytona International Speedway for stock-car racing over the next two weeks. [NEWS-JOURNAL/JIM TILLER]

1. Fire 'em up

The 2019 NASCAR Cup Series officially starts at 10:30 a.m. Saturday when the stock cars will appear on pit road to run the first practice of the season at Daytona International Speedway. Once those engines turn over, they won't stop until mid-November at the season finale at Homestead-Miami Speedway. After nearly three months of hibernation, race teams are ready to roll once again.

2. Last plate

The Daytona 500 is a big race, but on Feb. 17 the 200-lap run over Daytona International Speedway's 2.5-mile tri-oval will have additional historical value. It will be the final restrictor-plate race in NASCAR history. The plates are used to zap horsepower from the big V-8 engines. NASCAR can do that now by using tapered spaces, which have rendered the plates obsolete. Plates have been used since 1988.

3. A big gulp

Toyota unveiled a new Camry in 2017 and won only twice in the first 17 races. Chevrolet introduced the Camaro to Cup Series competition in 2018 and had only four victories for its efforts, including a five-month gap between its first and second wins of the year. This year Ford has scrubbed its successful Fusion body for the classic Mustang, and everyone at the "Blue Oval" is taking a deep breath going into Daytona.

— Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

THREE THINGS WE LEARNED THIS WINTER

1. Late signing

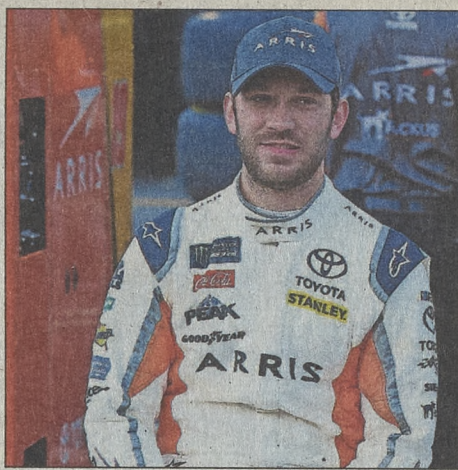

It's never too late to get a high-quality ride. Just ask Daniel Suarez. He was cut from Joe Gibbs Racing and just a few weeks ago inked a deal with Stewart-Haas Racing to wheel the No. 41 Ford vacated by Kurt Busch.

2. Package delivery

NASCAR has started the process of testing the new engine-aero package it will use at race tracks longer than a mile. Half the Cup Series regulars showed up for a two-day test at Las Vegas. "We're all trying hard," driver Clint Bowyer told media. "We all have high expectations."

3. Disappearing act

Drivers are taking their offseason time seriously. Generally, you will see a driver pop up here or there for a sponsor obligation or even a charity event, but this winter most competitors went into hiding. With a grueling

Driver Daniel Suarez was cut by Gibbs Racing but took the Arris sponsorship with him to Stewart-Haas Racing. [AP/WADE PAYNE]

10-month schedule, drivers are taking downtime seriously.

— Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Is this the Pack Era?

We'll soon learn, but first we spend a couple of weekends at the place that co-created — with sister track Talladega — the crazy thing known as pack-racin', which is kinda-sorta formally known as plate-racin'. Of all the things they say about plate-racin', they don't call it dull. In an effort to cater to modern entertainment needs, NASCAR will take that show on the road to all ovals a mile or longer.

But without the plates?

After one last plate race at Daytona, the engines will be hamstrung by "tapered spacers," which basically do the same job — hamstringing horsepower. And that basically does the same job: Bring the field much closer together, eliminate runaway leaders and make contenders of teams that would otherwise finish 15th at best. It won't necessarily reward the best team and driver each week, but it may reward those who spend a few hours watching, and that's the name of the game.

William Allen's girls' basketball team had a 40-39 lead over Freedom with possession and less than 30 seconds left in the game, but two forced turnovers by Patriot forward Kailey Turpening resulted in four quick points for Freedom and secured a 45-40 victory over the Canaries on Monday night at Freedom.

"I wasn't right up on my girl because our coach told us to deny certain people, but then I didn't realize I had to deny that girl and he started yelling 'deny deny deny' so I ran and somehow the ball landed in my hands," Turpening said. "I thought they were going to go long, but they didn't."

The first time, Turpening passed the ball to Brenna Ortwein who scored. The second time, Turpening passed to Rachel Sanchez.

"Kailey got another steal, passed it to me, I went to go up, but they fouled me," said Sanchez. "Our coach told us we needed to get to the basket more, especially in a zone. That's the most important thing, getting to the basket. They have bigger girls which shouldn't stop us."

multiple stops in the third quarter, holding the Patriots to three points all on free throws.

"We definitely were having difficulty getting the ball inside today, so we had to work on outside shots," Turpening said. "When the first one went down, it set a good pace."

Turpening, a freshman, had two threes in the first half and one in the second.

While the Canaries held the Patriots to the perimeter in the third quarter, Freedom's first points came with 3:22 left in the period.

"In the first half we were really aggressive, and then we stopped and that gave them momentum," said Sanchez.

Allen freshman T'Nyah Riggins poured on the defensive heat while senior Asha Talib scored 14 points for the Canaries. Jakayla Wise had 11 points for Allen before fouling out with 2:40 remaining.

"I just think we needed to stay calm and do what we did in the first half, but going to the basket, we knew we could come back," Sanchez said. "Rebounding was a big factor because we're a smaller team."

Giant begins deploying robots

BY SUSAN BRYANT
sbryant@tntonline.com

Following successful pilots that improved in-store efficiencies and freed employees up to better serve customers, Giant Food Stores announced Jan. 14 the introduction of a new robotic assistant to all of its 172 stores.

"Marty," a tall gray robot with googly eyes, will soon be working alongside associates, thanks to a partnership between Ahold Delhaize USA services company Retail Business Services, Giant and Jabil subsidiary Badger TechnologiesTM.

Over the past year, Giant has been piloting Marty and the in-store robotic program in its stores located at 4211 Union Deposit Road, Harrisburg, and 255 Spring Garden St., Carlisle.

"Bringing robotics and A.I. from a research lab to the sales floor has been a very exciting journey, and we were thrilled by the customer response in our pilot stores," Giant Food Stores President Nicholas Bertram said. "Our associates have worked hard to bring this innovation to life with amazing partners."

The in-store robots, which move around the store unassisted, are being used to identify hazards, such as liquid, powder and bulk food items spills and provide reporting that enables quick corrective action.

The robots' efforts free up associates to spend more time serving customers.

They also help stores mitigate risks caused by such spills.

Giant will be deploying Marty to its 172 Giant and Martin's Food Markets stores in waves over the coming months, with expected completion slated for mid-2019.

LAWMAKERS, OTHER OFFICIALS GET AUTOMATIC PAY BUMP

Just like clockwork, Pennsylvania legislators received a 1.6 percent pay adjustment on Dec. 1, raising their base salaries about $1,600 to $88,610. Our legislators are the second highest paid in the nation at the moment, next only to California, but that might change, depending on what happens in New York state.

The salary of legislators in leadership positions, such as Sen. Pat Browne, R-Lehigh, chair of the powerful Appropriations Committee, increased to $118,796.

Those making the most money are House Speaker Mike Turzai, R-Allegheny, and Senate President Pro Tempore Joe Scarnati, R-Jefferson, at $138,327. Caucus officers are now earning between $104,040 and $128,385, depending on the position.

On top of this, legislators get generous pensions (after only 10 years of service), health care, travel allowances and other perks.

Legislators do not have to go through the messy and sometimes embarrassing ordeal of publicly voting on their pay raises. They passed a state law in 1995 giving themselves automatic cost-of-living adjustments, effective every Dec. 1.

To make these measures more palatable, executive branch officials and state judges were also included in the COLA that is based on the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers in the Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland region.

Five times during this 24-year stretch, legislators received an increase of 3 percent or more, but twice they received nothing because the CPI was negative or showed no increase.

In the early morning hours (2 a.m.) of July 7, 2005, they passed pay increase legislation without public review or comment, and it was quickly signed by then Democratic Governor Ed Rendell. Salaries were increased between 16 and 34 percent, depending on position. After much public backlash, these pay raises for the legislative and executive branches were rescinded four months later.

Several legislators pointed out that their pay increase this year is less than the 2.8 percent hike that Social Security recipients are enjoying, but don't feel too sorry for the 203 state representatives and 50 state senators, whose salaries are considerably more than double the average base salary paid all state legislators nationally in 2017.

Meanwhile, if a proposal clears legal challenges, New York legislators will become the highest paid in the nation. The New York state Compensation Commission approved the first pay increase in 20 years, and it was a whopper that was set to take effect this month, but legal action by a number of organizations is holding it up.

The proposal would increase rank-and-file salaries from $79,500 to $110,000 this year, $120,000 in 2020 and $130,000 in 2021. The salaries of the governor, state judges and others would go up, as well.

At the moment, California, with 133 fewer legislators than Pennsylvania, pays their rank-and-file members $107,241, the highest in the nation.

Other Pennsylvania officials also received raises, these as of Jan. 1, including Governor Tom Wolf. He received a $3,100 increase to $198,000, but Wolf has donated his salary to favorite charities since he first took office in 2015 and said he will continue to do so through the end of his current term in 2022.

The highest-paid state official is Republican Supreme Court Chief Justice Thomas Saylor, whose salary rose by about $3,400 to $217,000.

The salaries of county court judges in Carbon, Schuylkill and Monroe counties will rise to about $183,000; the president judge in each county will receive a little more. Lehigh and Northampton are home-rule charter counties, so these judicial salaries are handled a bit differently.

Newly elected Lt. Governor John Fetterman, who ran on the Democratic ticket with Wolf, will receive $166,300. He was sworn in this week shortly before Wolf was sworn in for his second term.

With the increase, the three elected row officers – Attorney General Josh Shapiro, Auditor General Eugene DePasquale and Treasurer Joe Torsella, all Democrats, are now making $164,700.

The heads of Wolf's cabinet departments also get raises, with the chiefs of the largest agencies, such as Education and Labor, making the most at $158,400.

Student runs for school board seat

BY HANNAH MCMULLAN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Freedom HS senior Kyle Miceli has announced his candidacy for an open position on Bethlehem's school board in the 2019 election.

Miceli decided it was time for a change after observing the effects the school board's decisions have had on students' lives over the last four years.

His focus for his Student First Campaign is to shift the board's priorities to the students before any other issues.

He said, "The board is out of touch with our students' needs. They haven't even been to a high school in years. I believe I can fix these issues – I can be the one to make a difference on the board."

Miceli has strategized a four-step plan to raise Bethlehem schools to higher standards.

His plan includes making schools safe from potential threats, competing with charter schools, motivating the faculty and staff to be enthusiastic educators, and protecting taxpayers' investments by ensuring the budget is used to support students' education.

He has personally experienced the lack of funding towards students' needs during his time at the BASD. For example, he had a bus arrive 30 minutes late every day, due to the lack of staff running the transportation department.

Miceli directly addressed this issue to Director Craig Neiman, but nothing was done about it.

BETHLEHEM AREA SD

"The board is out of touch with our students' needs. They haven't even been to a high school in years."

Candidate Kyle Miceli says he wants to give students a reason to want to go to school. The board, he says, needs to communicate better with staff and students.

During his time at BASD, he believes the board is missing the point and is out of touch with what the teachers and students truly need to have a fulfilling experience at school.

He believes the board needs to communicate with its staff and students to truly and effectively support them. Teachers would be more motivated if they were given the necessary supplies to do their job, such as updated textbooks.

Above all, Miceli wants to give students a reason to want to go to school.

"I will not agree to any budget plan that neglects students," says Miceli. "I would especially never agree to any plan such as outsourcing $100,000 on a new logo, when we are dealing with school lunch debt."

He has faith that the students would enjoy the idea of school if they felt the board cared about them and gave them the tools to be successful.

Miceli has seen a great deal of support from his peers and teachers.

Many of his teachers have praised him for his maturity and passion for making a difference in his community. They claim they haven't seen anything like his campaign in their years of teaching.

If he were to obtain a seat on the school board, he hopes to bring a fresh perspective as a young person that will bring innovations to become more in touch with the district's needs.

In his campaign he has reached out to several organizations and departments in a "listening tour" to hear different perspectives and achieve a better insight into the needs of the people in the community. The driving force behind his campaign is his willingness to listen to sit down with the people and thoroughly what they need.

He has talked to groups such as the Bethlehem Education Association, Department of Student Resource Officers and his high school faculty to learn what specifically needs to change.

Miceli claims the force of positive responses he has received from the public in these listening tours is what inspires him in his campaign and gives him the motivation to continue.

After graduating high school, Miceli plans to study computer science and business at Northampton Area Community College.

"If I get elected, its going to be a lot of work, of course, but I am going to 100 percent maintain my position on the board," Miceli said, "I don't want to let anyone down and I want to make a mark with the board. Most of all, I want to make students first."

Miceli will be holding his official campaign kickoff at the Madison Farm's clubhouse at 3 p.m. Feb. 23. He will be giving his announcement speech, in which he will give a summary of his "listening tours" and a concrete platform on his policy positions.

For more information on Miceli's Student First Campaign, visit his website at www.miceli-campaign.com.

Reynolds announces re-election bid

J. William Reynolds has announced that he will be seeking re-election to Bethlehem City Council in 2019. "Bethlehem continues to be a model of what a city can be in the 21st century – progressive, diverse, and economically strong. I am asking the people of Bethlehem for their support for another term so we can continue the important progress we have made in the areas of climate action, neighborhood revitalization, open and transparent government, and economic development."

Reynolds said he is proud of everything that has been accomplished during his previous four years on city council, including the successful implementation of several initiatives proposed in his "Bethlehem 2017" legislative agenda.

- Proposing and leading the creation of Bethlehem's first climate action plan

- Northside 2027 – a unique partnership and revitalization strategy for neighborhoods involving citizens, the Bethlehem Area School District, and Moravian College

- Bethlehem's first open data effort to improve access to public data in an effort to spur innovation and entrepreneurship

- Financial Accountability Incentive Reporting (F.A.I.R.) – an initiative designed to increase transparency and efficiency of economic development incentives

- Working with the administration and city council to improve the city of Bethlehem's financial standing, currently reflected in Bethlehem's recent upgrade to an A+ bond rating from S&P

- Being a vocal advocate for state legislation related to environmental protection, equality, marijuana decriminalization, and increased funding for the Bethlehem Area School District

- Attending block watch meetings and remaining accessible to citizens for neighborhood issues and concerns

If re-elected, Reynolds' priorities would include continuing to implement and execute Bethlehem's climate action plan, further develop Northside 2027, extend Bethlehem's open data initiative, as well as

- Continuing to support economic redevelopment and revitalization efforts throughout the city.

- Working to keep Bethlehem the safest mid sized city in Pennsylvania.

- Focusing on improving governmental communication, including modernizing Bethlehem's social media channels in an effort to increase the efficient delivery of basic city services.

- Continue to build cooperative strategies with the Bethlehem Area School District in an effort to combat issues currently affecting Bethlehem's most vulnerable children.

Crampsie Smith seeks council seat

Grace Crampsie Smith, a Democrat and longtime Bethlehem resident, has announced her candidacy for Bethlehem City Council.

Crampsie Smith, who has lived in the city for 28 years, is a school counselor at Easton Area HS.

"I was raised in a family that took its civic responsibilities very seriously," said Crampsie Smith. "I want to continue the legacy of my parents who instilled in me and my six siblings the desire to contribute to the communities where we lived, worked, and played. They fostered in me a strong sense of duty to use my skills and education for the betterment of not only my family but our neighbors."

Crampsie Smith's father was a police chief of Summit Hill, PA, and her mother was a nurse.

BETHLEHEM

"They taught me early the importance of discipline and compassion," Crampsie Smith said.

She said she decided to run for office now because her three children, Shannon, Bridget, and Brendan, are in law school, medical school, and college, and she has the time to devote to the many challenges and changes that face the city as it grows and continues to be a vital part of the Lehigh Valley area.

"I want to contribute to the city that I have called home and ensure that smart growth is achieved for the benefit of residents, employees, and visitors," Crampsie Smith said. "It is important to maintain a balance between preserving the city's past, honoring the people and businesses that built this city and achieving progress in our diverse community. Bethlehem is a city that has never been stagnant but has constantly re-invented itself in the arts, education, and business, while never losing sight of its heritage."

Crampsie Smith has a master's degree in education and school counseling from Lehigh University and a bachelor's degree in sociology and social welfare from Bloomsburg University.

She was a member of the adjunct faculty at Lehigh-Carbon Community College and also worked as an addictions counselor and coordinator of community and early intervention services for the office of Lehigh County Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities.

Crampsie Smith said the advocacy skills she has honed in her job will help her to represent the residents of Bethlehem. "Council members must be mindful that our community is made up of people from all walks of life who have varied incomes, educations, and skills but all want the same things – to provide for their families and have a good quality of life."

She said her personal and professional experiences taught her to be fiscally responsible, to negotiate with fairness, to be objective and pragmatic, and to have passion for justice. Her top priorities, she said, include the health, safety and welfare of residents and employees, budget efficacy and

Grade: 12

Family members: My family includes Jennie Freeman (Mom), Hector Garcia (stepdad), Sean Freeman (brother), Jaevon Freeman (brother) and Jaylanie Freeman (niece).

Favorite subject: My favorite subjects are history and math. I love studying history because it helps us understand change, and how the society we live in came to be. Math is another favorite subject because I am good at it and I like money.

Activities: I am on three varsity teams at Liberty. I play defensive tackle in football, I am a heavy-weight wrestler and I am part of the track and field team where I do shotput and discus.

Next steps: My plan after high school is to attend a four-year college, hopefully with a scholarship to play football or wrestle.

Career goals: Once I complete my bachelor's degree in criminal justice, my goal is to become an FBI agent or police officer.

Heroes: My hero is my mother. She is always there for us when we need her. She is a single parent who took on the role of mother and father. She works hard to keep food on the table and provides anything my brothers or I need. My mother attends all my sporting events, and she is my biggest supporter.

Hobbies: My hobbies include fishing, cooking and drawing.

Volunteer/community work: Aside from volunteering at my church, I enjoy volunteering every year with the Special Olympics at Liberty. Also, the Liberty football team gives back to the Bethlehem community in various ways throughout the year. I participate and help as often as I can.

Likes: I like going to haunted houses, spending time with my family and friends, and I like eating different types of food.

Dislikes: I dislike lasagna.

Greatest accomplishment (so far): My greatest accomplishment is making it this far, only a few months away from graduating high school, and making my mom proud by staying out of trouble and making good decisions. I'm making it in the classroom and on the field. I will always represent my last name and my family with pride and respect, and never give anyone a reason to say anything negative about either of them.

Advice for peers: Mistakes are unavoidable but you can learn from them and use them to avoid repetition.

Student profile subjects are selected by faculty and administration at the individual schools.

'Do what is right'

Kids, volunteers celebrate MLK

BY DENNIS GLEW
Special to the Bethlehem Press

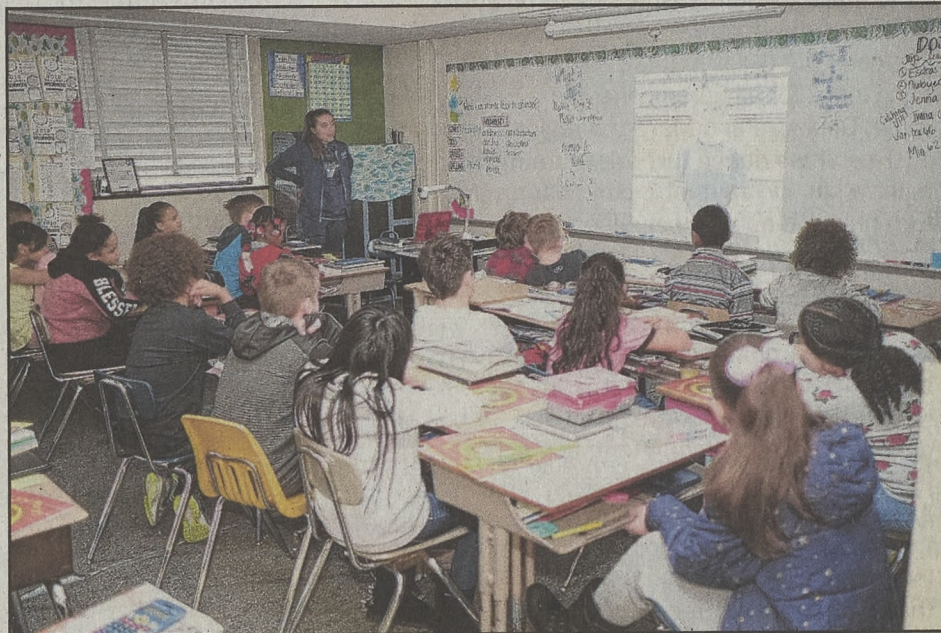

Though postponed by severe weather, the principle, "Do what is right," is too important to let lapse.

It was the theme to which students and teachers at Fountain Hill ES welcomed community volunteers for a morning of education and reflection of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Jan. 25.

Part of the Cops 'n' Kids Literacy Program, the event was supported by a grant from PPL that provided an age-appropriate book for each student at the school - 580 in all. Under the direction of Fountain Hill Elementary Community School Director Paige Hoffman, the morning's activities engaged all the children in every class. After a brief orientation, volunteers fanned out to the classrooms, carrying copies of books that would spark conversations about respect and cooperation. The agenda was the same everywhere: the volunteer read the book to the class, then asked the kids to comment on its content and its possible meaning to their school and themselves. Finally, the children drew pictures illustrating the meaning of cooperation. These were collected to make a display of the school's commitment to Dr. King's message.

The volunteers included 11 employees of PPL, 19 players on Moravian College athletic teams (men's and women's basketball, women's soccer, and football), and three Moravian College coaches. A visitor was impressed at how relaxed the undergraduates seemed. They had done this before, they explained. This year they visited Thomas Jefferson School and William Penn School. Also, Moravian teams Brooke Santy of the Lady Greyhounds compiled a video of all the Moravian basketball players explaining their dreams for life after college. The fifth-graders are very interested.

Volunteers include members of the Moravian College men's basketball team: Matt O'Connor; Mike Martino; Nicholas Casazza; Addis Ralph; Keith Otto; and C.J. Barnes.

Hands up for C.J. Barnes, who asked if "ordinary Mary" - the hero of the story he read to a third grade class - knew that her kind deed would come back to her one day. She didn't, the kids decided.

Rally opens quarter

February is a very busy month for students, full of planning and organizing for many different activities for the upcoming months.

February 1 marked the Second Quarter Pep Rally for Lehigh Valley Academy students. The event was designed like the Olympics, with each grade representing a different nation. Seniors represented Japan; juniors represented Italy; sophomores represented Spain; and freshmen represented Germany. The winner of the gold medal was Spain.

The Drama Club announced that its upcoming musical will be "Freaky Friday." Rehearsals are already in full swing in preparation for performances April 13 and 14. This is Lehigh Valley Academy's second musical production. Students are excited to participate in and attend the play and look forward to having spring musicals become a permanent program.

February is also the month of love, as Valentine's Day is Feb. 14. National Honor Society students are creating Valentine's Day cards for the elderly who are residents at facilities like Senior Life and Atria Senior Living. They will be getting hand-made cards from the students between Feb. 10 and 15.

High school students will also visit Senior Life Feb. 15 to sing and perform for the residents. The Tri-Music Honor Society, led by senior President Isabella Trauger, will bring its members to Senior Life, as it does every year, to perform for and greet the senior residents. In addition to patriotic songs that most seniors recognize, the students will sing old favorites like "Sixteen Tons" and "You've Got a Friend in Me".

LVA's Mini-Thon is a little less than three months away, with its 12-hour event that raises money for Four Diamonds, a cancer research center in Hershey that supports children with pediatric cancer and their families. The goal for this year is $10,000. April 27 is the Mini-Thon date, and faculty, students, families, and the community are all welcome to join in the fun! There will be face painting, a dance floor, a bounce house and many more activities.

Lehigh County to get DCNR grants

Pennsylvania's Department of Conservation and Natural Resources has approved four major grants for Lehigh County. These grants, totaling $469,900, will provide additional resources to countywide efforts to improve quality of life and enhance outdoor recreational experiences.

"Lehigh County is committed to maintaining and improving our open and green spaces. We know that they are integral to continuing to attract new residents and families to the Lehigh Valley, and they provide significant economic and environmental benefits to our region," Lehigh County Executive Phillips Armstrong said.

The DCNR grants and projects are listed and described below:

- Catasauqua D&L Trail gap closure plan - $250,000 received. The grant will contribute to the development of the D&L Trail in Hanover Township and Catasauqua Borough. Work will include the construction of approximately 1.5 miles of trail from the Lehigh County border in Catasauqua Borough to an existing pedestrian bridge in Hanover Township.

- Master site plan for Trexler Nature Preserve - $50,000 received. The grant will enable Lehigh County to develop a master site development and stewardship plan for the 1,108-acre Trexler Nature Preserve and adjacent 400-acre county land in Lowhill and North Whitehall townships.

- Mountain bike trails in Trexler Nature Preserve - $128,000 received. The grant will contribute to the development of mountain bike trails at Trexler Nature Preserve in Lowhill and North Whitehall townships, Lehigh County. The construction will include the development of approximately 1.5 miles of trail within the North Range section of Trexler Nature Preserve.

- South Mountain land acquisition - $41,900 received. The grant will serve as a payment toward the acquisition of approximately 18 acres in Upper Milford and Upper Saucon townships, which will form a connection to the South Mountain Greenway. This will be done in cooperation with Wildlands Conservancy.

Boscola announces bridge grant

State Sen. Lisa M. Boscola has announced the approval of a $219,640 Multimodal Transportation Fund grant to Lower Saucon Township to replace the Lower Saucon Road Bridge.

"I am pleased that state dollars will be used toward this project that will enhance safety in Lower Saucon Township," Boscola said. "Assisting municipalities improve the flow of traffic and enhance safety for motorists, cyclists and pedestrians helps keep the Lehigh Valley a great place to live," Boscola continued.

The multimodal project will allow Lower Saucon Township to proceed with the replacement of the Lower Saucon Road Bridge, a two-lane culvert-style bridge.

Funding for the project was approved by the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation. The Multimodal Transportation Fund was created as part of Act 89 to promote economic development and ensure that a safe and reliable system of transportation is available throughout the commonwealth.

have participated in Martin Luther King Day events at Fountain Hill ES for three years. Ms. Hoffman commented that Moravian has become a "school partner" of Fountain Hill.

What happens when a tall young man squeezes himself onto a third-grade size chair and tells 20 kids, "I'm going to read you a story"? When C.J. Barnes did it, the room very quiet. All eyes were on C.J. and the picture book he held up for everyone to see. The book tells the story of an ordinary child - ordinary Mary - who steps up to help several neighbors, five in all. Each person is so grateful that he/she decides to help another five people. The process spreads until eventually billions of people (the book says) are involved. Appropriately the book's title is "Ordinary Mary's Extraordinary Deed."

When C.J. put questions about the story to the class, lots of hands went up. The final question seemed to generate the most interest: "If you do a kind thing for one person every day, how could it make our school/world a better place?" Adults may consider that impossible, but the students in Ms. Christine Andrew's third-grade class were ready with ideas.

RICK Levy

Memoir charts his career in rock 'n' roll

Literary Scene

BY KATHY LAUER-WILLIAMS
 Special to The Press

Like many teens in the 1960s, when Richard "Rick" Levy first saw the Beatles, he was inspired to start his own band.

But unlike most youths, Levy went on to not only play guitar in various rock 'n' roll bands, but also to manage some of the era's biggest pop-rock artists, including Herman's Hermits, Tommy Roe, Freddy Cannon, Jay & the Techniques, The Tokens and Bo Diddley. He is now the manager and a guitarist for Memphis legends The Box Tops.

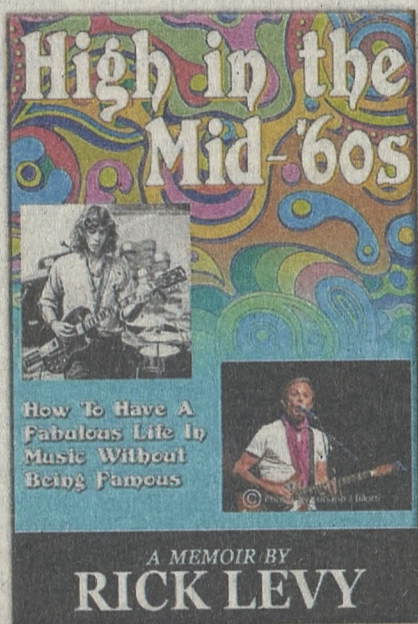

The Allentown native's unexpected journey in the world of popular music is documented in his recently-released book, "High in the Mid-60s: How to Have a Fabulous Life in Music without Being Famous."

Says Larry Klein, executive producer of Dick Clark Productions' "American Music Awards," of Levy's memoir, "Rick is one of those lucky people who has made his love his life ... and his vocation ... and it shows in the way he performs and respects the artists and music."

Of Levy's book, Dick Barley, nationally-syndicated radio personality, says, "There's a wealth of wisdom, honesty, fun, sharp observations, great stories and good advice in these pages ... A must read for Top 40 era music lovers ..."

was a sort of "everyman."

"Because I was never a star, yet continued to move forward, the reality set in that, indeed, the journey has been the goal," he says.

Levy says he was first introduced to music as a child by his "Uncle" Elliot Wexler, who was head of Columbia Records Distribution.

"He gave me my first Elvis Presley album and that was like an

"I'm kind of shockingly amazed at the life I've led," Levy says in a phone interview from St. Augustine, Fla., where he resides. "This is what I always wanted to do. But how did I get here?"

He says the idea of writing a book had its beginnings 15 years ago when he was asked to put together a new band for Herman's Hermits and tapped a bunch of musicians from Allentown. He also was playing with the group and decided to start writing a journal to learn why his life took the path it did. Levy realized he epiphany for me," he says. "I would go up and stay in New York on the weekend with him. I remember records all over the place and a piano and lots of stuff."

Levy says the 1960s was a great time to be a teen who loved music in the Lehigh Valley.

"It was pretty rich history in the '60s here," he says. "There was an incredible youth culture with under-21 clubs and live bands."

The non-alcoholic "teen night-clubs," as they were dubbed, included The Purple Owl, off Union Boulevard, and The Mad Hatter, Lehigh Street, both Allentown; The Mod Mill, Rt. 378 and Rt. 309, Center Valley, and King Arthur's Court, Rt. 309, Quakertown. There were also regular teen dances at the Allentown Fairgrounds, run by WAEB DJ Gene Kaye, and "The Hub" at the Allentown YMCA, run by WHOL and WSAW deejay Jerry Deane, and live bands at Castle Garden, Dorney Park, and Illick's Mill, Bethlehem.

Inspired by the Beatles, Levy first started a band called the Outcasts, and then later started the garage-rock band, The Limits.

"That [The Limits] became an important band for me," he says. "We all wanted to be rock stars. I became the manager. I was already learning about management, booking, cutting records and royalties. It was a great training ground."

"High in the Mid-60s," in 1982.

Cleopatra Records released a compilation CD, "The Limits: Garage Nuggets '65-'68," about 10 years ago, and "Songs About Girls," also by The Limits.

The Limits plays at a multi-year William Allen High School reunion, 6-9 p.m. Oct. 26, MainGate, Allentown. The Limits perform a 7-8 p.m. concert. The event is open to Allen grads. The lineup for the Limits includes original members Chris Jones, Rook Jones, Irwin Goldberg, Hub Willson, and Levy.

After graduating from Allen High School in 1967, Levy attended University of Pennsylvania, receiving a BA in Sociology in 1971.

In Philadelphia, he joined a rock band, Wax.

"Wax was very popular, and on my 21st birthday we signed a big deal with a $50,000 advance but we never saw a penny of it," he says.

In addition to Levy, guitar, Beau Jones, bass, Wax included Rob Hyman (later of The Hooters), keyboards; Rick Chertoff, drums, and David Kagan, vocals.

"We were young, excited and headed to New York to record in the famed Record Plant. While we were in the small studio, John Lennon and The Who were in the big ones on either side.

going to be stars, but a few weeks later the Internal Revenue Service shut the label down for not paying taxes and our dream turned into a nightmare."

Levy says the experience made him more determined than ever to control his own destiny.

"If you're going to be in the business, you need to run the show," he says.

In the mid-1980s, Levy got a call from Jay Proctor, lead vocalist and founder of Jay and the Techniques, who was looking for a guitar player.

In 1967, "Apples, Peaches, Pumpkin Pie," the debut single by Jay and the Techniques, an Allentown-based interracial pop band (unusual at the time), reached No. 6 on the Billboard Hot 100 chart.

Levy started managing the group and booking its concerts.

"We always did it with a handshake," he says. "It was like a small fraternity. I knew all the [talent] buyers."

Then Peter Noone asked him to put together a band.

Noone is lead singer of Herman's Hermits, an "English Beat" rock band founded in Manchester, England, in 1964, with its hits including "I'm Into Something Good," "Mrs. Brown, You've Got A Lovely Daughter," "I'm Henry the Eighth, I Am," "Can't You Hear My Heartbeat," "Silhouettes," "Wonderful World" and "There's A Kind Of Hush."

"We did 100 dates a year," says Levy. "That was the busiest time of my life."

Levy started to be more well-known as a manager.

"It has been a learning experience for me," he says.

"The book is really about me reinventing myself for the last 50 years."

Most recently, Levy has been performing with The Box Tops, with founders Bill Cunningham and Gary Talley.

The Box Tops, founded in Memphis, Tenn., in 1967, is best-known for the hits, "The Letter," which reached No. 1, and "Cry Like A Baby," which reached No. 2, on the Billboard Hot 100 chart.

"In just three years since reforming, we've hit the top echelon of our genre," says Levy. "The Box Tops are dream guys to play with."

Last year, The Box Tops was inducted into the Memphis Music Hall of Fame.

"I was so honored and humbled to be part of this thing," Levy says. "It was a transcendent moment."

Levy was determined not to self-publish and found a publisher in Crossroad Press for which the book was the top-selling paperback in December 2018.

Although he now lives in Florida, Levy says, "Allentown took me to where I am."

As for The Limits' upcoming reunion gig, he says, "I need to bang out a few old tunes with the boys again."

Upside of 'The Upside'

The upside about the movie, "The Upside," is that it's entertaining, thought-provoking and uplifting.

Kevin Hart plays Dell Scott, whose parole officer mandates that he find a job.

Bryan Cranston plays Phillip Lacasse, a wealthy self-help author who is a person with a disability, quadriplegia, after being injured in a para-glider accident.

Dell Scott is hired to be Phillip Lacasse's in-home health-care worker, much to the dismay of Nicole Kidman, who plays Yvonne Pendleton, Lacasse's home office manager.

"The Upside" has a fish-out-of-water movie plot: The character played by Hart is in a new environment.

"The Upside" is also a buddy movie in the tradition of Hollywood movies where the buddies are from opposite sides of the tracks and must overcome personality differences to achieve a mutual understanding.

There are several subplots in "The Upside."

Dell is estranged from Latrice (Aja Naomi King), mother of his son Anthony (Jahi Di'Allo Winston), because Dell hasn't been making child-support payments.

Phillip is corresponding, by letter no less, with Lily (Julianna Margulies), a woman he's never met.

Yvonne is emotionally aloof from Phillip and almost everyone she's in contact with.

Symbolically and literally, Phillip is in a shell. Dell has no shell, or boundaries. Latrice has her guard up. Yvonne has created an emotional shell.

"The Upside" is a fascinating character study and a look at unusual friendships, with life lessons to ponder, and some fine performances to savor.

"The Upside" is a remake of the 2011 French film, "The Intouchables," based on the real-life story of Philippe Pozzo di Borgo and Abdel Sellou (seen in the 2003 documentary film). The screenplay by Jon Hartmere (his theatrical film screenplay debut) is based on "The Intouchables" screenplay by Eric Toledano and Olivier Nakache, who co-directed "The Intouchables."

"The Upside" director Neil Burger (director, "Divergent," 2014; "The Illusionist," 2006) creates a satisfying mix of drama and comedy. One minute you might be aghast at some of the comments. The next minute you might laugh out loud. After that, you may shed a tear over the emotions expressed by the actors.

Cranston (Oscar nominee, actor, "Trumbo," 2016; TV's "Breaking Bad," 2008-2013) is a revelation as Phillip. Cranston is in a wheelchair, which he controls with a chin lever. Cranston expresses a range of emotions using only facial expressions, eye movements and his voice. Cranston does so with droll eloquence and sparkling brilliance.

This is a breakthrough role for Hart ("Jumanji: Welcome to the Jungle," 2017; "Ride Along," movies, 2014, 2016) as Dell. Hart, a popular standup comic, mines the humor in several scenes to great effect. Hart reaches deeper than in his previous films, showing a reflective side quite different from many of his stereotypical roles.

Cranston and Hart are terrific together.

The relationships in "The Upside" are operatic, exemplified by the soundtrack, which includes Puccini's "Nessun Dorma" from "Turandot," sung by Luciano Pavarotti and also sung by Aretha Franklin. You can also hear some of J.S. Bach's "Mass in B Minor."

"The Upside" has an unlikely premise for a drama comedy. The upside is that "The Upside" works.

Protecting one's personal space in line

Dear Jacquelyn, I get very uncomfortable when I'm standing in a line and the person behind me is standing too close. When I try to put a little distance between me and the other person, the person always seem to move closer. How close should you stand next to someone in a line?

RESPECTFULLY YOURS
By Jacquelyn Youst

es good social etiquette. The person might be totally unaware he or she crossed a line and entered your personal social bubble.

When someone is too close to you in line, you might have the urge to turn around and say something like "Back up." Proceed with caution. This shouldn't be your first line of defense. You may very well end up with a bigger problem. Think twice before potentially causing an altercation.

As difficult as it may be, my best advice is to pretend not to notice.

If you honestly can't bear another minute with the person breathing down your neck, offer to let the person go ahead of you.

You can also try non-verbal defenses to protect your personal space. Turn and face the counter. This avoids having the person directly behind you.

Creating the illusion of a larger personal space by having a wider stance and making a larger footprint protects your personal space.

Personal space preferences vary from person to person and situation to situation. Some people may push beyond your personal space limits because they are distracted, preoccupied, or just unaware of the sensitivity of others.

When someone is crowding you, stick to the high road. Do your best to remember that this is only a temporary situation.

What makes it a wonderful world?

I have always liked the song "What a Wonderful World."

The older I get, the more I find myself nodding in agreement at the sentiments expressed in the classic song.

As I do my early morning walk each day I hear the welcoming chorus of birds and look around to see palm trees swaying in the breeze and dozens of ibises digging for breakfast. The bucolic scene often brings to mind the words to that song.

Sometimes I find myself humming it as I am filled with the pleasures of another beautiful day.

The short, simple verses say so much:

"I see skies of blue and clouds of white, bright blessed day, the dark sacred night.

"And I think to myself what a wonderful world."

Many of us do more than hear the words. We feel them too.

The irony to Louis Armstrong's "What a Wonderful World" recording in 1967 is that the president of ABC Paramount Records hated the song and banned the company from putting any effort into promoting it.

Despite that, the recording first soared to popularity in Britain, reaching number 1 on the charts before working its way into the hearts of the American public.

It's become one of the most uplifting, life-affirming songs of all time.

Few songs have the power to retain popularity through the decades as musical tastes change.

"What a Wonderful World" stays popular because of the truth behind its timeless message.

What a wonderful world.

The older I get, the more I keep acclaiming that truth.

In addition to the beauty of this world, I believe it's a wonderful world because of the good people in it.

I often look around me in gratitude at the way so many people reach out to help others.

This week my friend Suze reinforced that belief on her Facebook page as she recounted the way strangers came together to help each other.

Suze is one those nice people willing to help others in any way she can.

When she saw on Facebook that a casual acquaintance posted a request for the use of a pontoon trailer, she immediately offered to lend them her trailer.

"In turn, they wanted to get me something as a show of their appreciation. I told them that was not necessary because that is the way we do things around here. We help one another," Sue said.

When the couple learned Suze was totally exasperated with her inability to get her 2000 Kawasaki started, they told her they would be right over, even though it was late at night. She told them there was no rush because she was trying for months get the motorcycle started and one more night wouldn't make a difference.

WARMEST REGARDS
By Pattie Mihalik
newsgirl@comcast.net

The grateful couple came right away, and they did get it started. They then took it for a ride and put it through all its gears to make sure it was working right.

"They have no idea how utterly delighted they made me. I had been wanting to ride that bike for such a long time. Motorcycles have been a significant part of my life for such a long time so it was a huge blow to me when couldn't ride. I am thrilled to be back in the saddle!" Suze said.

She thinks the couple's kindness illustrates the adage, What goes around, comes around.

I think it's just one more example of people willing to help others.

A while back a handyman in our area was returning home from the supermarket with a full grocery order, including frozen food. When his old truck broke down, he had no idea how he could get home with his groceries.

He took a chance and went on our community Facebook page, asking if anyone would be willing to pick him up.

My friend Andy immediately answered in four words: "I'll be there shortly."

When a woman posted she needed help getting her paralyzed mother to a doctor's appointment, a big guy didn't worry about liability like some might. He just went to help.

That's how it is around here. People respond whenever there is a need.

I think it's like that in a lot of areas because people are basically good and they welcome the chance to help when they can.

When a woman posted on our community page that her sickly dog wandered off, she asked if anyone could help her look. Many joined a search party for several days until the dog was safely back with its owner.

Little acts of kindness might not seem like such a big deal. But all those little acts of kindness combine to make this a better place in which to live.

So come on. Believe! Believe in the goodness of people who make this a wonderful world.

And, while you're at it, sing along with me.

"The colors of the rainbow so pretty in the sky
So are also on the faces of people going by,
"I see friends shaking hands saying how do you do,
"They're really saying I love you."

If you're like me once you start thinking about the song, you might have a hard time getting that melody out of your head.

But that's OK, because it's always good if we can have a reminder that it really is a wonderful world.

Daughter's strategies to cope with bullying

Q. My daughter is only seven-years-old and she is already being bullied. I thought that kids didn't start this until middle school. She is being teased on the bus for everything from her backpack to her clothes. Almost every day she comes home crying, and now she does not want to ride the bus anymore. What can I do to help her stand up for herself?

THE FAMILY PROJECT

are involved together to have a discussion," said Wallace.

A guidance counselor has the tools to help the daughter, said Stalsitz, who noted that the daughter might not be the only one who is being bullied.

Addressing ways to help the daughter defend herself against bullying, panelist Denise Continenza suggested that the mother work with the girl to develop positive responses to the teasing. For example, the girl could say, "I really like my backpack. Don't you wish you had one like it?"

Wallace said that bullying behavior often comes from a person who doesn't feel good about himself or herself, or from someone who may be jealous. Sharing this with the daughter might help her take the teasing less seriously.

When the child being bullied starts to cry or act out, Continenza said the child is giving the bullies what they want. "The mother and the guidance counselor could teach the child more effective reactions to the bullying."

Other suggestions were to ask to have the daughter's assigned bus seat changed, or to give the girl an option of not riding the bus for a few weeks while the mother helps her daughter build up her self-esteem.

One way to do this, Continenza said, would be for the mom to create opportunities at home to give the daughter a pat on the back.

Wallace suggested getting the girl involved in sports or a school extracurricular or community activity that she is good at so that she receives positive feedback from others and makes new friends.

This week's team of parenting experts are: Pam Wallace, Program Coordinator, Project Child, a program of Valley Youth House; Wanda Mercado-Arroyo, educator and former school administrator; Denise Continenza, extension educator, Penn State Extension, and Erin Stalsitz, Lehigh County Children and Youth Casework Supervisor.

A little bit of chocolate goes a long way

Q. I eat a little chocolate every day. How bad is that for me?

HEALTHY GEEZER
By Fred Cicetti
fred@healthygeezers.com

You didn't say how much chocolate you eat daily. If you eat a chocolate Easter bunny a day, there is an obvious risk of becoming overweight. However, a little chocolate has health benefits.

A recent Harvard study suggested that a bit of high-quality dark chocolate one to three times a month may protect women from heart failure.

The authors studied the chocolate-eating habits of 31,823 Swedish women, ages 48 to 83. Women who ate about one ounce of chocolate per month reduced their risk of heart failure by 32 percent. More than one ounce eliminated the benefit. The risk increased with additional amounts of chocolate.

Other studies have found that moderate amounts of chocolate seem to lower blood pressure. The blood-pressure reduction was considered one cause of the reduced heart-failure risk.

The heart benefit of dark chocolate also could be caused by flavonoids, or antioxidants, that can smooth heart function. You can also get flavonoids from citrus fruits, onions, green tea and red wine.

Eating chocolate may decrease your risk of stroke. One study with more than 44,000 participants found that those who ate a weekly serving of chocolate were 22 percent less likely to suffer a stroke than those who ate no chocolate.

Here are more health benefits discovered by recent research about consuming chocolate:

A 2008 study found that people who ate one quarter of an ounce of dark chocolate a day had lower levels of a protein that is associated with inflammation in their blood.

Other studies have found that blood platelets clump together more slowly in chocolate-eaters. Clumping platelets can lead to the formation of blood clots, which can cause a heart attack.

Chocolate consumption may help prevent formation of artery plaques and improve blood flow.

Chocolate may also have anti-cancer benefits because the flavonoids in chocolate may help reduce cell damage that can spur tumor growth.

The beneficial flavonoids are bitter, so they are removed from most commercial chocolate. Darker chocolates tend to have higher levels of flavonoids. Milk chocolate has lower levels of flavonoids. White chocolate does not provide flavonoid-related benefits.

By definition, white chocolate is not chocolate. White chocolate contains cacao butter, a product of the cacao bean that produces chocolate. The butter is blended with milk, sugar and often other flavoring ingredients such as vanilla.

Here's a bit of chocolate history:

Many modern historians estimate that chocolate has been around for about 2,000 years. For most of that time, chocolate was a beverage.

Etymologists trace the origin of the word "chocolate" to the Aztec word "xocoatl," which referred to a bitter drink brewed from cacao beans. The Latin name for the cacao tree, "Theobroma cacao," means "food of the gods."

Sweetened chocolate didn't appear until Europeans discovered the Americas. Chocolate didn't suit the foreigners' taste buds, but once it was mixed with honey or cane sugar, it quickly became popular. By the 17th century, chocolate was a fashionable drink throughout Europe.

In 1847, the chocolate bar was invented by Joseph Fry. By 1868, the Cadbury company was marketing boxes of chocolate candies in England.

Nestle introduced milk chocolate a few years later.

selected as King and Queen of 2019 Allentown St. Patrick's Day Parade.

Phil's parents, Patrick and Marian Ferguson, were King and Queen in 1991, and Phil's brother and sister-in-law, Sean and Wendy Ferguson, were King and Queen in 2010.

Phil's Irish roots run deep, and he has traveled to Ireland many times with Kim and family, but nothing compares to the last trip with his father in 2015 when they were able to connect with family in County Mayo. There, he learned about his family history, going back to his great-great-grandfather.

Phil, a member of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and Hogan's Social Club, has been active on the Parade Committee since he was a teenager, and is Vice-President-Operations Director.

Kim, also of Irish descent, was born in Bethlehem and raised in Nazareth. She is an active Parade Committee volunteer who has not missed a parade in 18 years.

When they married eight years ago, Phil became stepfather to Kim's children.

Jessica and her husband, Jeff Hudak, are teachers, working toward masters degrees. They reside in Quakertown with their silky terrier, Donatello.

Nathan is a junior, majoring in Finance with a Political Science minor at The Pennsylvania State University, University Park. This summer he plans to work at UBS Group AG, New York City, as an Incoming Investment Banking Summer Analyst.

Kim, a graduate of Nazareth High School, is Office Manager, Ian D. Webb Insurance. Kim was a youth Cheerleading Coach and Treasurer for CYCA when Jessica was in school.

Phil, a William Allen High School graduate, works at KidsPeace. He is a former route-sales manager for Stroehmann and Frito Lay. He coached CYAA and Connie Mack baseball for many years and was Operations Director for the Allentown Flag Day Association and several military parades.

Carl Billera elected GLV Realtors president

Carl Billera, broker for Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Valley Partners, Emmaus, is the new president of the Greater Lehigh Valley Realtors (GLVR).

Billera succeeds GLVR President Sean LaSalle, a Realtor with Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices Fox & Roach, Macungie.

The president of GLVR holds the position for one year. He or she is elected by a nominating committee, which consists of the past president and two directors.

"[The presidency] means a great deal and it is an absolute honor to follow in the footsteps of past presidents who have done such an incredible job of keeping our association respected and in a continued leadership role for such a long time," Billera said at the Jan. 17 induction ceremony at Homewood Suites by Hilton, Center Valley.

"I will do my best to keep things moving in the direction as set by my predecessors," Billera said.

"The missions I've set for 2019 really focus on continued and improved cooperation and communication between our 2,500-plus members," said Billera.

"This ultimately will enhance the customer-client relationship and experience throughout the entire transaction.

"As typically the largest purchase or sale of someone's life, we, as real estate professionals, take our responsibilities in guiding the process for our clients very seriously, and we must ensure cooperation when multiple agents and companies are involved."

Each year, the GLVR president may focus on a charitable foundation. Billera will focus on the Boys and Girls Club.

"The children are our future," Billera said. "But they were given circumstances not created by themselves. They deserve every chance to succeed and be happy.

"If we can help, even a little, I would be so proud and happy to do so with the continued help of our association and members."

Concluding his speech in front of 240 members and staff, Billera said, "My door is always open. It's open for not only complaints, but real ideas and solutions in an ongoing effort to continue to make our association strong, respected and always in a leadership role.

"We simply, at the very least, owe this to our communities throughout Lehigh, Northampton and Carbon counties and beyond," Billera said.

Billera received a degree in business management from Moravian College.

Billera acquired a real estate license in 1993 and a broker's license in 1996.

Billera previously owned Grille 3501 and The Buckeye Tavern.

He owns House and Barn and The Burgery Company, both in the Emmaus area.

LVHN, Cetronia Ambulance partner on mobile stroke unit

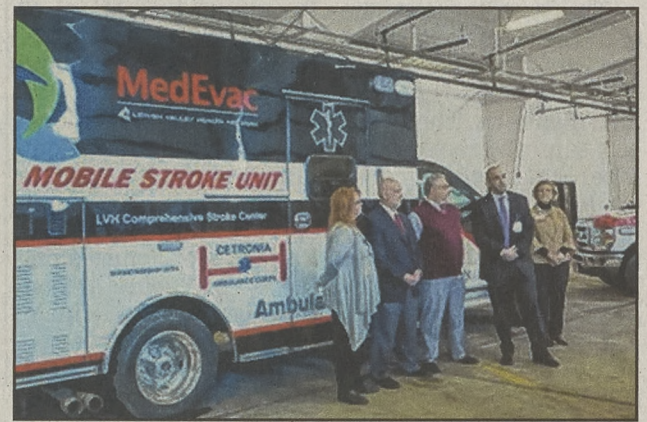

Lehigh Valley Health Network (LVHN) and Cetronia Ambulance Corps have announced a jointly-operated new mobile stroke unit, said to be the first in Pennsylvania.

The mobile stroke unit will allow evaluation and treatment sooner, potentially preventing damage to the brain while the patient is transported to a stroke-certified facility like Lehigh Valley Hospital (LVH) - Cedar Crest's Comprehensive Stroke Center.

"Mobile stroke care could improve intervention time by up to 20 to 30 minutes, which could have a significant impact on the outcome for the patient," said neurologist Yevgeniy Isayev, MD, Director of the Comprehensive Stroke Center at LVH - Cedar Crest.

The Stroke Center was certified in 2012 by The Joint Commission as the first Comprehensive Stroke Center in Pennsylvania, the highest level of certification. LVHN's Comprehensive Stroke Center cares for more than 1,500 stroke patients annually.

The mobile stroke

unit, expected to become operational in mid-April, will be stationed at Cetronia headquarters, South Whitehall Township, where its emergency communications center will manage deployment.

LVHN and Cetronia will provide clinical staff, including EMTs and Paramedics from Cetronia, and neurologic physicians from LVHN.

"Cetronia is proud to partner with Lehigh Valley Health Network on this latest innovation in rapid response care for stroke victims," said Larry Wiersch, CEO, Cetronia Ambulance Corps.

"As a leader in emergency medical services, we see this as yet another meaningful opportunity to advance the quality of pre-hospital care for families in our community," Wiersch said.

Isayev said the mobile stroke unit will be equipped with computed tomography (CT) and video and telehealth technology to help caregivers determine what type of stroke the patient is experiencing and begin treatment before arriving at the hospital. The unit equips qualified first-responders with clot-busting and blood-thickening medications to administer to the patient enroute.
