Backpack Club gets $2,000 donation

BY MARIEKI-DACIA ANDRONACHE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Commissioner Ray Ortiz's passionate work and belief in the Backpack Club helped secure the passage of a motion to donate $2,000 to the Backpack Club during the July 11 Bethlehem Housing Authority meeting.

These funds will help provide breakfast and lunches, as well as school supplies, to children in our community who may need the extra help during school year breaks.

Acting Executive Director John Ritter told The Press that this is an important cause for Ortiz, who has been involved with the organization for years.

Vijay and Eshita Patel's dream of owning a convenience store came one step closer to reality as the Zoning Hearing Board granted their appeal at a special hearing July 13.

The proposed shop will be located at 1101 E. Fourth St. and will offer items such as food, tobacco products and lottery tickets.

Unlike the Patels, Valery Peters' dream of owning a bed and breakfast at 215 E. Church St. will not be happening anytime soon. After deliberating for just over an hour, board members denied her proposal. Among the points under consideration was whether the

New suicide hotline number aims to help those in need

BY CHRIS REBER

Calling 911 allows people to get help in an emergency.

A new three-digit number will enable them to get the help they need in a mental health crisis.

Dialing 988 will now connect callers to the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline, which is available to anyone experiencing a mental health crisis.

"It's not just for someone who's suicidal. It's for anyone who's having some emotional distress and needs someone to talk to," said Angela Romano-Lucky, director of crisis services for New Perspectives in Monroe County.

lifeline connects to a national network of counselors that are available 24/7 and are trained to listen, provide support and connect callers to available resources. Calls can be completely anonymous.

It has been available since 2005, fielding over 20 million calls during that time.

Previously, callers had to dial a 10-digit 1-800 number. Now, it joins other three-digit special dialing codes, such as 511 (traffic), 811 (underground utility safety), and 611 (phone services for the deaf and hard of hearing).

"It's a lot easier to remember 988. Especially if someone is compromised, they're struggling, they're having difficulty focusing and concentrating," Romano-Lucky said.

The switch to a three-digit number is expected to increase the number of calls the service receives. The Federal government committed nearly $300 million last year to expanding the program, adding text messaging and Spanish-language services, and increasing staff at call centers.

Callers the lifeline are usually directed to a local crisis center.

988 'solution' problematic locally

BY THERESA O'BRIEN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

In 2020, responding to increasing suicide rates, Congress passed the National Suicide Hotline Designation Act, creating an emergency number - 988 - that works nationwide to connect individuals in crisis with mental health resources. During late 2020 and 2021, the Federal Communications Commission, after conferring with the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, the Dept. of Veteran Affairs, and the North American Numbering Council, established rules compelling phone service providers to connect calls to 988 with the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline.

However, crisis intervention hotlines already existed in Lehigh County (610-782-3127) and Northampton County (610-252-9060). In fact, the new national hotline - while making it easier for people in underserved areas of the country to use a memorable number - will not route most Lehigh Valley residents to the closest support network.

As noted above, people who dial 988 will be connected to the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline network. Lisa Cozzi of Lehigh County Crisis Intervention explains why dialing 988 will result in a circular effort to get help.

"Lehigh County Crisis Intervention is not currently a member of the Lifeline network," she said. "Individuals who call 988 from Lehigh County will be connected to the Family Service Association of Bucks County [which will also cover] Northampton, Berks, Schuylkill, Dauphin, Lebanon and Delaware counties [...]. The Family Service Association is not a licensed Crisis Intervention provider and must refer all [Lehigh County] emergencies back to Lehigh County-based services, including mobile visits."

"We are not advertising the 988 number, and are asking our

Lehigh County Fake Lehigh County survey circulated

District Attorney Jim Martin is alerting residents of Lehigh County to ignore a survey they may receive in the mail entitled "Lehigh County Opinion Survey."

This mailing is not from Lehigh County and detectives with the Lehigh County District Attorney's Office are investigating the source of the document.

Upon further investigation, it has been determined that the survey appears to be political.

Northampton County Box fans available for elderly during heat waves

The Area Agency on Aging announces that box fans are available for free for older adults during heat waves. To obtain a fan, call AAA at 610-829-4540 or Information & Referral/Emergency Services (IRES) at 610-559-3270.

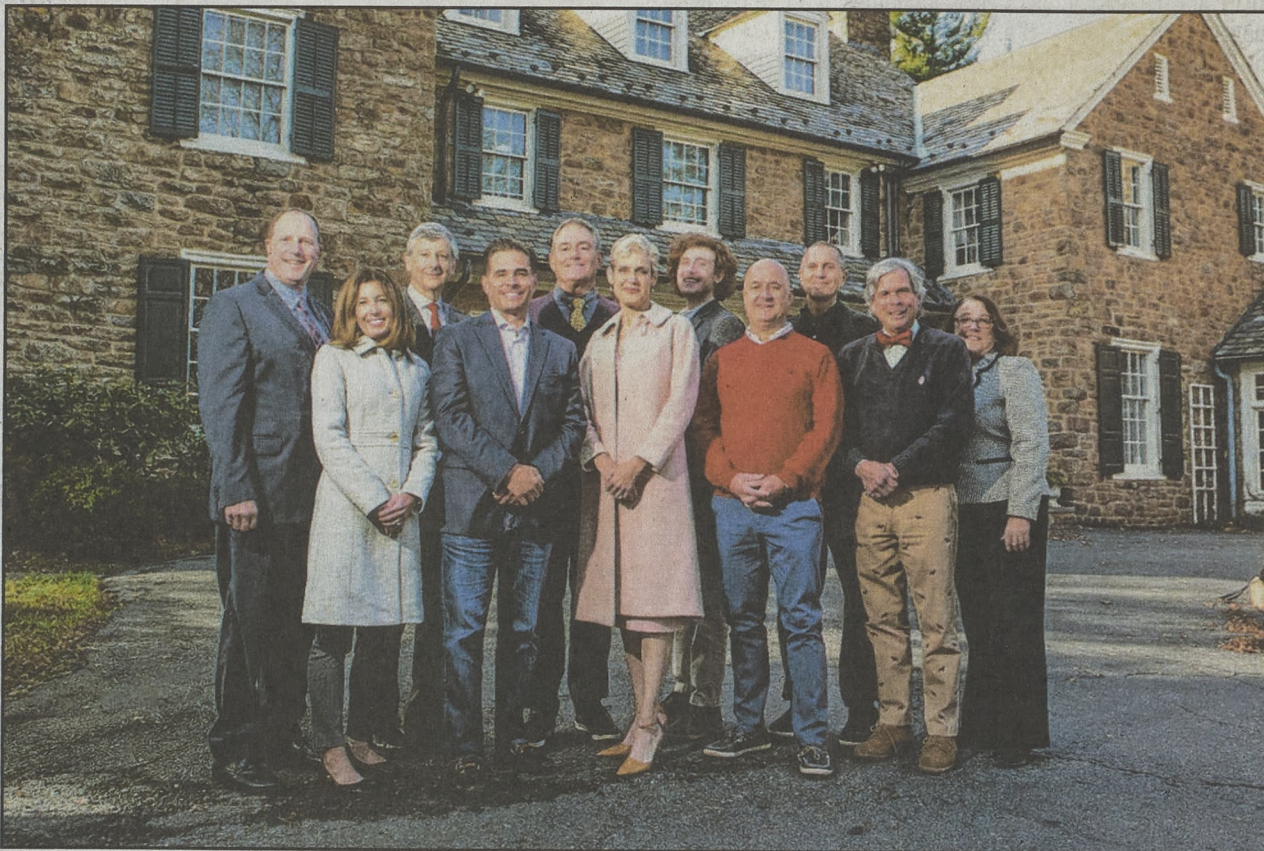

Older adults are more susceptible to heat-related illnesses, including heat stroke, even in temperatures below 100 degrees. It is important to remember to stay in a cool place, drink plenty of fluids such as water or fruit juice, and contact your physician or 911 if you have symptoms of heat-related illness such as headache, confusion, dizziness, or nausea.

Survey not associated with county

Executive Lamont McClure announces that Northampton County has no association with a misleading survey being mailed to residents. The address located at the bottom of the letter indicates that the mailing originated from Sequoia Research, LLC in Erie, PA.

"The company which mailed out this survey has no relation to Northampton County," said McClure. "We were never consulted about this survey, nor were we informed that it was going to be sent to so many of our residents. This mailing has caused a great deal of confusion, resulting in a lot of phone calls to county offices."

The name change comes during the Foundation's 70th anniversary year and recognizes the significant contributions of Helen Laros to the development of the foundation and its philanthropic mission in the community. stakeholders to continue providing the local crisis number [610-782-3127] to all individuals in need," she added.

Lehigh County, however, is working to ensure smooth transitions where necessary. "We are pleased that individuals across the country now have easy access to Lifeline," Cozzi said, "and we will be working with Family Service Association of Bucks County to coordinate services and share information about local mental health resources."

Becky Bartlett, a public information officer with Northampton County, said that the county's mental health task force is currently discussing how actively to promote the 988 number. She confirmed that the 988 routing for Northampton County is the same as for Lehigh County - to the national Lifeline, then to Bucks County Family Service Association, then back to local resources.

"Full implementation of 988 will not occur until next summer," she said, "so we are being cautious [...] We continue to advertise the full Lifeline number as well as our local county crisis number."

Outside the Lehigh Valley, the federal 988 "solution" may still be inadequate.

Eighty-eight percent of the U.S. population lives in counties (like Northampton and Lehigh) that have dedicated crisis intervention services. Roughly 50 percent of U.S. counties do not have these dedicated services.

"What happens when someone accesses the hotline and no crisis team is available?" Dr. Roy Perlis of Harvard Medical School asked in a recent JAMA editorial. "The safety net may be local police officers, whose level of training to respond to such crises can vary widely." Perlis argues that mobile crisis intervention units, funded by block grants through SAMHSA, may better serve Americans living in rural counties without dedicated crisis intervention centers.

The Great Allentown Fair seeks contestants

The listing for Agri-

Plex entries is available now.

The livestock entries book will be available online in early July.

Farmers, gardeners, antique collectors, crafters, bakers, cooks, photographers and more have the opportunity to compete for small monetary awards and prestigious Allentown Fair blue ribbons.

The vast number of award categories include over 175 types of fruits, vegetables and herbs along with 19 different varieties of organic vegetables that are judged and then on display inside Agri-Plex, the fair's main exhibit hall and "heart of the fair."

The fair typically exhibits more than 900 farm animals and more than 9,000 products from farms, gardens and homes, including arts and crafts.

As a special attraction, 11 culinary contests offer cooks and bakers extra incentives for whipping up favorite recipes or creating new dishes that are judged during the fair with an audience.

These sponsored contests are included in the Agri-Plex Premium List but require the completion of separate, individual applications providing important details.

New Bethany Ministries, a local nonprofit providing basic-need services, housing, and support that lift individuals out of poverty, recently appointed Cattima Millsap as the new director of social services.

In March 2022, Millsap began her journey with New Bethany Ministries' social services department. Her duties include assisting in grant writing and reporting for local, state, and federal homeless assistance and prevention funds.

Additionally, Millsap oversees compliance and is responsible for the supervision of all case management-based programming and staff at New Bethany Ministries, including Housing Assistance and the Elliott Center. Her role blends case management with community partnerships and financial assistance to help lead clients on a path toward housing and financial stability.

With over 10 years

years she has worked as a behavioral specialist consultant, a therapist, a tenant negotiator, and a director of homeless services. Millsap comes to New Bethany with the expertise and motivation needed to support the organization's goals. She is excited to continue to work with New Bethany Ministries and members of the Lehigh Valley.

"We are so happy to have Cattima on our team," said Veronne Demesyeux, associate executive director of New Bethany Ministries. "Housing assistance remains an immense necessity in our region. With Cattima's experience and knowledge, we're able to better meet the needs of our community."

Transitional Housing Program's facelift

New Bethany Ministries initiated change within the transitional housing program through grants awarded through five local organizations. The contributions directly benefit NBM's Transitional Housing Program and will help the organization continue to provide housing to clients in need.

The funding supports the ongoing makeover of units in THP. Building updates include new floors, paint, and general refurbishing of the spaces. Volunteer groups from St. Luke's University Health Network have already joined the renovation process, creating a brighter, inspiring and encouraging environment for guests. Additional volunteer groups will provide ongoing updates throughout the summer.

"New Bethany is committed to making its Transitional Housing Program a home for the families who live there rather than an institutional setting through which they pass," said Veronne Demesyeux, associate executive director for the organization. "Not only are families treated with the respect they deserve, but they feel valued and considered worthy of the investment. This is crucial to building the confidence and strength they need to end their homelessness."

The following organizations provided donations that directly contributed to NBM's transitional housing redevelopment plan:

- * Grow NORCO NHC - $50,000
- * R. K. Laros Foundation - $20,000

A VIEW: DEANA'S LAW

Justice served twice

BY DEB GALBRAITH
SPECIAL TO THE BETHLEHEM PRESS

It happened Feb. 16, 2019.

My niece's brother-in-law Chris Eckman and his wife, Deana Eckman, were driving home from a family party, close to their home in Delaware County, when a drunk driver with five previous DUI convictions crashed into their car head-on, injuring Chris and killing Deana.

Deana was only 45 years old.

A witness to the accident said he was traveling south on Route 452, a two-lane highway, and heard a loud engine behind him. He said he then saw the vehicle, which alternated between riding close to his bumper then coasting. The witness said he felt the driver was trying to run him off the road and believed he had no choice but to keep driving because if he pressed his brake, they would crash.

The driver finally shifted into the oncoming traffic lane and pulled up next to the witness, who said he thought the driver may pull a gun. Instead, the driver put his foot on the gas and took off at full speed in the northbound lane. That's when the witness heard screams and the crash.

Since this is extended family, I had socialized with Chris and Deana many times and was devastated when I heard the news.

The driver was sentenced to 24 to 51 years in prison in November 2021 following an appeal to his 2019 sentence.

Shortly after the crash, Deana's parents, Roseann and Richard DeRosa, began asking how a person with five previous DUI convictions could still be driving.

Channeling their grief into action, the DeRosa family began the task of ensuring something like this never happens again.

tion, the DeRosa family began the task of ensuring something like this never happens again. They began working with legislators to create a law to prevent repeat DUI offenders from driving.

On Aug. 28, 2019, state Sen. Tom Killion, R-9, introduced Deana's Law, also known as Senate Bill No. 773, which is numbered in honor of Deana's birthday. After multiple versions of this law, most recently by state Rep. Chris Quinn, R-168th, Gov. Tom Wolf signed the legislation into law July 15.

According to Quinn, the 30-year-old driver had been convicted of DUI five times in the nine years preceding Deana's death. He served sentences for his fourth and fifth DUIs concurrently, and his driver's license was suspended.

Quinn stressed the importance of the requirements for consecutive sentences included in the bill.

"Had the court imposed consecutive sentences on Deana Eckman's murder[er], he would have still been imprisoned the night she was killed. Had Deana's killer been sentenced consecutively, Deana would be alive today, and perhaps he would have gotten the help he needed while in prison."

"The criminal justice system failed our family because the driver was given concurrent, rather than consecutive, sentences on his fourth and fifth offenses," Roseann DeRosa said.

In a news release to The Press, AAA officials thanked the members of the Pennsylvania General Assembly for passing a bill to improve the safety and livelihood of Pennsylvania drivers against impaired drivers who threaten the lives of their fellow drivers every day. AAA supports enactment and vigorous enforcement of laws against driving under the influence of any intoxicating substance. Along with distracted drivers and aggressive drivers, motorists rank impaired drivers among their top concerns on the highway.

"It is an unfortunate, but true, fact that there are too many individuals who drive while impaired — either under the influence of a substance or under the influence of alcohol," Theresa Podguski, director of legislative affairs, AAA East Central, said. "We applaud the legislature for taking this step toward keeping Pennsylvania's roads safe for motorists.” According to AAA, Pennsylvania Department of Transportation crash statistics show that since 2016, alcohol-related crashes have claimed 1,823 lives, an average of more than 300 fatalities a year. Eighty-nine percent of the alcohol-related fatalities were drivers and occupants in the vehicle driven by the impaired driver; however, all highway users are at risk.

AAA said Deana’s Law does the following:

- Increases some of the gradings for DUI offenses and requires consecutive sentencing for certain repeat DUI offenders. This would mean that if an individual is sentenced for a DUI offense and the individual has two or more prior offenses, this individual would serve this sentence consecutively with any other sentence the individual is serving. Current law does not contain consecutive sentencing requirements for DUI convictions.

- An individual who refuses a chemical or breath test or takes the breathalyzer test and has a BAC of 0.16 or higher or is under the influence of a controlled substance and has the following number of prior offenses would commit the following: a third-degree felony for two prior offenses (no change from current law), a second-degree felony for three prior offenses (this is an increase in penalty from current law, as it is currently a third-degree felony) and a second-degree felony and a sentencing enhancement for four or more prior offenses (this is an increase in penalty from current law, as it is currently a third-degree felony).

This legislation was signed into law as Act 59 of 2022. The provisions set forth in the new law become effective Nov. 8.

“Our passion for Deana’s Law is to prevent this tragedy from happening to other families and bring awareness to the many people who drive impaired. Every DUI is a potential homicide,” Roseann DeRosa said after Wolf signed the legislation.

On behalf of my extended family, I thank the courts, for providing justice for the family by sentencing the driver to prison for a long time, and the legislators, for honoring Deana and taking one step closer to making sure this doesn’t happen to another family.

and angst however. As recently as March of this year it appeared that savings would be between 9 percent and 10 percent, but the market volatility since then caused the savings to crash below the 5 percent threshold just three weeks ago. The market rebounded just in time and the authority was able to lock in the interest rates necessary to achieve their goals before the market went south again just after the authority sold the bonds. Authority Executive Director Stephen Repasch credited the success of the deal to a lot of hard work by the authority’s and city’s advisors, the authority board and staff and city staff. And of course a little bit of timely luck with the bond markets.

HELLERTOWN

Fadem leads climate action

BY CHRIS HARING
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Two timely topics took precedence at the July 18 meeting of the Hellertown council: Climate action and public safety.

Council member Theresa Fadem and Hellertown resident Garrett Powell provided an update on a proposed borough Climate Action Plan. They have met twice since mid-May, mostly reviewing climate strategies developed by Bethlehem and Easton, she said.

While Bethlehem has set a lofty goal of a 60% reduction in greenhouse gas emissions by 2030, the group's proposed target for Hellertown would be significantly less, Fadem said.

When council member Matt Marcincin asked, Powell said that the first tangible steps in implementing a plan are data collection - statistics such as energy use and costs, he said - and establishing an "authority and accountability structure," such as Bethlehem's Environmental Advisory Council.

Council President Thomas Rieger suggested holding a forum to allow community members to weigh in and volunteered to offer his "time and talents. Fadem agreed, saying "I think it's essential" and noted that Bethlehem brought representatives from all of their departments to the drafting table, encouraging Hellertown to do the same.

The council also unanimously authorized four new hires by the Hellertown Police Department: Denis Connelly and Jaron Steinmetz as full-time officers, with Jada Roderick and Austin Signarovitz joining on a part-time basis.

Connelly and Steinmetz - initially hired together as part-time officers by the borough in June 2021 - were to begin full-time status Monday. Additionally, despite having "a couple of things they need to complete," Police Chief Robert Shupp asked the council to expedite Roderick and Signarovitz's conditional employment to fill those vacated part-time positions.

Engineer Bryan Smith provided an update on the new Public Works building. He said that the contractor, Pioneer Pole Buildings of Schuylkill Haven, is "scheduled to have a substantial completion" by July's end.

After a brief moment of chatter among the council, Rieger questioned the facility's readiness, as he and council member Earl Hill recently walked the site and found a "significant number" of issues, including gaps in the weather-stripping of door frames, he said.

Additionally, Smith noted that the location of a presumed leak in the building's fire suppression system still has yet to be found, with more testing needed. The Hellertown Borough Authority is working with Pioneer to determine whose responsibility the issue primarily is, he said.

However, Rieger expressed a degree of frustration, saying it sounded like the two parties were trying to "pass the buck" to each other. He further noted that without the fire suppression system's functionality, "substantial completion" will not be achieved without passing crucial code inspections.

Wawa coming despite some concerns

BY MARIEKE-DACIA ANDRONACHE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

After nearly four hours of hearing from township residents, witnesses and commissioners about the proposed Wawa and Falmer Drive Garden Apartments, the July 18 Bethlehem Township Commissioner's meeting was abruptly ended by President John Merhottein just before 11 p.m. Confusion about briefing notes, and the obvious toll the long evening was taking, led to this decision.

The night proved to be an engaging one as residents, both in person and on zoom, voiced concerns, primarily on the proposed new Wawa, to be located at 3608 Nazareth Pike. For nearly two and a half hours, traffic flow and congestion, pollution, and the questioning of the overall need for this commercial building were discussed.

Approval of a Wawa In an effort to alleviate the potential of environmental accidents, Wawa's Senior Environment Manager Joe Standen explained how the store will work on three daily shifts, with staffed trained for minor spills. For larger spills, Lewis Environmental's response team would be called in.

As for traffic flow and congestion, a two-direction driveway off Oakland is planned, as well as a right exiting one onto Nazareth Pike. Some residents pointed out that the proximity of this location to school bus routes has a factor of concern that should have been better addressed.

There was also discussion by all parties on improving the current buffer for residents who live behind Oakland Drive.

Most residents left the meeting when the commissioners gave a 4-1 approval for the new Wawa, which features a convenient store and 16-pump gas station. Located across from Dunkin Donuts and Josh Early Candies, it is expected to bring around 7,000 trips per day to the area.

After the vote, Commissioner Davis tried to address residents leaving the meeting but it was without success. A brief recess was called and the commissioners regrouped to continue with the evening's agenda.

Falmer Drive Garden Apartments

The Falmer Drive Garden Apartments was the evening's other main issue under discussion. The proposed three-story, 30 unit development, located near the Goddard School of Bethlehem, received a 5-0 preliminary and final plan approval.

Further discussion on this complex and a final vote is scheduled for the next meeting, scheduled for Aug. 1. It is expected that the remaining items of the July 18 meeting will also be addressed, including the appointment of a new corporal within the Bethlehem Township Police Force.

Richardson's senior year pays off in winter

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Jared Richardson's senior season was a mixed bag of results.

As quarterback of the football team, the fall is your domain and Friday night lights are what you remember the most.

Unfortunately, Richardson's senior season wasn't as successful as he'd hope for, as Bethlehem Catholic finished the campaign 2-7.

The University of Pennsylvania recruit admitted it wasn't the type of season to write home about, but the winter was a different story.

Richardson was a member of the basketball team and helped the Hawks win the District 11 4A title and reach the PIAA quarterfinals before bowing out to state powerhouse Neumann-Goretti.

As an integral member of the basketball team and the leader of the football team, Richardson is this year's Male Athlete of the Year for the Bethlehem Press.

While Richardson acknowledged the football season was difficult to endure through the losses, the joy of taking home a championship in basketball helped smooth over those wounds from the fall.

"Yes, it helped because my senior season wasn't defined by just a losing football season," he said. "I have a gold medal from basketball that helps relieve the pain of the football season."

Richardson took home first team East Penn Conference South honors in football as a punter and was named second team quarterback on the list.

He threw for 1,304 yards and nine touchdowns in an offensively challenged season by the Hawks, who averaged a shade under 17 points a game against EPC South competitors last season. He also rushed for 519 yards on the season.

The lone EPC South victory Becahi came away with last season was against city rival Liberty, a 28-21 victory in week five, where Richardson threw for 244 yards and two scores, as well as one rushing TD.

The other win the Hawks took home was a 55-7 romp over Pocono Mountain West, which pales in comparison to beating the Hurricanes.

It was a lone highlight in season filled with disappointment.

"I didn't have many enjoyable aspects of playing football last season because we were not very successful, but I enjoyed beating Liberty," Richardson said. "It was a very tough season. I was not used to

Boyle kept her teammates steady

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Multisport athlete Teighan Boyle is known for being a soccer midfielder and a catcher in softball, but what most people don't know is that the Bethlehem Press's Female Athlete of the Year from Bethlehem Catholic High School is also a wrestler.

Boyle placed third this past winter at the Eastern Regionals at Parkland High School, but her sport of choice, albeit by a narrow margin, is soccer.

"I've been playing soccer since I was little, and I play for a very good club team, Lehigh Valley United," Boyle said. "I just like the physicality of soccer."

This past fall, Coach Brad Kratzer took over Becahi's girls' soccer program and quickly recognized Boyle's leadership during one of the Golden Hawks' most successful seasons in recent memory.

"Teighan was a leader on the field," Coach Kratzer said. "She was a two-year captain and was the engine of the team last year. She was always motivational during practices, even our tougher cardio-based practices, to everyone around her."

Whether celebrating double victories over neighboring rival Liberty or lamenting double losses to Catholic school rival Allentown Central Catholic, including a district semifinal, Boyle was the one who kept the team's temperament steady.

"Even in the narrow loss to Central, who became the eventual state champions, she was nothing but supportive to everyone around her," said Kratzer.

Boyle was also instrumental in the success of Becahi's softball team that repeated as district champions this year and made a first-time appearance in the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference Tournament within the last four years.

In the district semifinal, Boyle's solo home run was the first run of the game in the Hawks' 10-5 victory over Tamaqua.

In the district final, Boyle's play at home plate prevented a possible loss to Northwestern Lehigh as Becahi right fielder Leah Chladny threw out a Northwestern runner.

"I was looking at the third base coach, and when [Isabelle Akelaitis] was rounding second, I didn't think she was gonna go, and I looked over, and [Coach Josh Zimmerman] was waving her, and I was

NW Bethlehem wins LV Connie Mack title

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@thonline.com

The Northwest Bethlehem Cyclones clinched the Lehigh Valley Connie Mack League championship after their 14-10 victory over Moore Township on July 16 at Northampton Area High School.

"We started really slow, but after that, we kicked it into gear," said Northwest catcher Mikey Mariano, Jr., whose RBI double in the third inning broke a 3-3 tie. "It put a charge in the offense at most. We started rolling after that. It was really big. We won last season, and I wanted to go back-to-back and keep this rolling for us."

True to his word, Mariano's triple in the sixth inning put the Cyclones even farther ahead, 13-6.

"It felt great off the bat," Mariano said. "He hung me a curveball, and I waited on it."

Through the first four innings, Northwest and Moore Township matched each other, run for run, but that would end after Northwest third baseman Justin Goire's triple to deep center field and designated hitter Kole Zellner's RBI double.

"I was just looking for any pitch I could get. I wasn't trying to wait or anything. Wherever it came, I was trying to get a hit. Oh yeah, I was really anxious; I really wanted to get home," said Goire, who also had 2 RBIs in the fifth inning. "I was thinking about getting those runs in. It wasn't my initial thought to hit a liner up the middle but it came off the bat like that, and I got to second safely, so I'm grateful for that."

Northwest pitcher Paul Erfle entered the game in the second inning, when he faced just four batters and struck out two.

"Every time I come in, I come to shut down and work to try and keep hitters off balance and do my job," Erfle said. "Curveball- that's my bread and butter. Every single time I've thrown that pitch, I can get a first strike or get a swing and a miss."

Moore Township appeared to be starting a rally in the bottom of the seventh inning when Redhawks catcher Isaiah Alicea reached first base on an error, got to second base, and stole third. Michael Jordan walked and then stole second.

But Mariano, who relieved Erfle in the sixth inning, forced three straight ground outs to end the game.

"I've been behind the plate all season and felt the pressure a little bit in the last inning," he said. "I was waiting for that (last out). I was so hoping he made that play, and everything felt relieved after that."

The Cyclones finished in second place in the regular season with a record of 18-4 behind Wilson, 19-1.

"We came in here hot," said Cyclones manager Paul Fiore. "We were hot after Wilson last night. That was a tough game. Moore is a fantastic team, and it's odd that it came down to us again. We always play each other well. I'm sure we're gonna see one of these teams in States again, so we gotta be ready."

Northwest's championship team also includes JJ Cruz, Dylan Pyle, Dylan Metzgar, Zander Frey, Angel Fuentes, Zander Lynn, Gatlin Giering, Ethan Fleck, Ezra Figueroa, Tristan Strawn, Luke Pirapavel, Tommy Coughlin, Dominick Fiore, Adam Unangst, and Miguel Diaz Rivera, along with assistants Dave Pyle, Bryan Wald, and Tim Frey.

"All-in-all, we did great. They've been on a high. They wanted it. They had to win all three games last week to get here, and they didn't mess around," Coach Fiore said. "The season ended a little rough for us; we ended with two straight losses, and we had a forfeited game against us, so we had a little break. We were only able to throw in one practice, so we were a little nervous going in, but maybe we needed the break."

Catty Corner takes summer league title

BY JEFF MOELLER
Special to the Press

James Snyder and his teammates worked with an old basketball adage to capture the Catty Summer Basketball League title, as Catty Corner edged Platinum Plus 56-51 in the championship game.

"We aren't the most talented team, and we aren't the most athletic team," said Snyder, a former Catasaquua standout and current boys' basketball assistant coach. "But we play the smartest and we play so well together."

"We're a very selfless team. We don't care about anything other than getting a 'W' on any given night."

League director and Catasaquua head boys basketball coach, Eric Snyder, thought it was an entertaining game.

"It was a very good game," he said. "It was a very tactical game. Both teams didn't want to make a mistake."

"It wasn't a high octane, typical summer league game."

Catty Corner led throughout the game until the final minutes when Platinum Plus took a two-point lead down the stretch. But Catty Corner responded and closed out the contest.

The elder Snyder also was impressed with Catty Corner's defensive play.

"They played the matchup zone well," he said. "Most of the guys know it very well. It really can drive teams crazy because it isn't something you typically see in a summer league game."

"That was a big difference in the game."

Recent Northampton grad Lucas Lesko led Catty Corner with a game-high 13 points, and former Catty standout Alex Parker added 12. Northampton grads Phil and Derek Hall shut down the middle and added 9 and 7 points respectively.

Former Whitehall star Zach Gilbert led Platinum Plus with 11, and former Emmaus standout Zach Sabol had 10.

Snyder stated the second annual "Battle of the Boroughs" likely will be held in a best-of-three series featuring the same two teams beginning Tuesday, Aug. 10. Game two will be Wednesday, Aug. 11 and Game three, if necessary, will be Monday, Aug. 15.

The veteran coach also stated that the high school team will play in the Awesome Fest Tournament beginning Friday with opening-round games against Roberto Clemente and Bethlehem Christian in the small school pod.

just screaming for it," said Boyle at the time. "It was a great throw, on line, one hop, and as soon as I looked, she was there, and I dove to tag her."

But as tough as Boyle is athletically, her compassion for the Northwestern softball team was evident after the game.

"I grew up at Northwestern. I played with those girls my whole life until I moved to Bethlehem, so I knew a lot about them, and it was kind of fun playing against my hometown team. My heart breaks for the seniors on that team that I grew up with because I know how it feels, but I wish them the best of luck because they deserve it," she said.

Boyle's regular-season batting average was .479 with 23 hits that included four doubles and two homers. Boyle also had 17 RBIs.

On Aug. 17, Boyle will continue her academic and soccer career at Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

"I was looking at small schools, and I wanted to be in the city. I loved it right away because it's a balance between social, academic, and soccer," she said.

Boyle is thinking about majoring in business, but as part of the Army ROTC program, is considering doing something psychology-related.

"Teighan's work ethic is incredible," said Kratzer. "She will excel at the college level because of her dedication to constant improvement. She was even still in the weight room all summer to continue her development for her first year at college. She spends countless hours alone, constantly improving her cardio and technical ability. She will be missed for certain, but she will once again excel at Catholic University this fall."

having a season as bad as last year and I felt as though we let a lot of supporters of the program down.

Following the fall, Richardson took to his role on the basketball team as an interior presence to help the Hawks finish the season 21-7 with district championship hardware.

Becahi earned the title with a 47-42 victory over Wilson in the district championship, but their 50-45 win over Central Catholic in the semifinals was the one that really punched their ticket toward a gold medal.

Richardson was a key component during the Hawks playoff stretch, as he registered eight points and seven rebounds in the win over the Vikings and then amassed 10 points and 14 rebounds against South Philly in their PIAA opener.

He followed up with nine points and 13 rebounds in their second round win over Lewisburg, before the team ultimately bowed out to eventual state champion Neumann-Gorretti in the quarters.

"My favorite memory was beating Central to reach the championship," Richardson said. "I enjoyed the basketball season very much because we won some hardware and the group of kids that I played with were special."

With Becahi in the rearview and Penn on the horizon, Richardson is excited for his next step in life and will always be fond of time on Madison Ave.

"I am beyond excited to be going to a great school, playing for a historic program," said Richardson of heading to Penn, where he'll be moved to wide receiver. "I take away a lot of things throughout my time at Beca, such as everlasting friendships, great coaching, and just a great support system from all the faculty. I am thankful for everyone at Beca because they played a role in my success on the football field, basketball court, and in the classroom. I want people to remember me as the kid who took care of his academics, as well as his athletics, and earned everything that I was fortunate enough to awarded."

LERTA, chicken issues advance

BY MARIEKE-DACIA ANDRONACHE

Special to the Bethlehem Press

The Southside II Local Economic Revitalization Tax Assistance Program passed 7-0 in an early reading at the July 17 city council meeting.

With the existing LERTA scheduled to expire

BETHLEHEM COUNCIL

at year's end, there was much discussion amongst council members, Mayor William Reynolds and city officials on the realistic timeline available to discuss and implement changes to the proposed program acceptable to everyone. As a reminder, this LERTA would be 85% smaller than the current one, primarily focused on developing the old Bethlehem Steel area.

Proposed amendments were raised at the meeting, including one from council member Hillary Kwiatek looking into penalties should an investor default.

Following concerns raised at the July 5 meeting pertaining to that what amount must be paid by developers if their project does not meet the affordable housing requirements, council member Grace Crampsie Smith presented an amendment to raise the payment from $26,320 to $52,320 – doubling the amount.

As is procedure, any amendments that wish to be discussed and voted on must first be presented to the clerk, who will then publish them for the public for 10 days.

Backyard Chickens Ordinance

A handful of residents spoke out in support of the Ordinance of Backyard Chickens during the Public Comments section of the meeting. Most pointed out to the chickens providing a source of food, notably eggs, for their family. A couple of individuals also raised the responsibility aspect, especially for younger members of family, to take care of the animals and the chicken coops and run.

Dr. Paige Van Wirt, sponsor of the ordinance, said more than once that this is a food security issue for some families. The ordinance states that no residents can have more than 6 hens or 10 Bantam chickens. She also raised the point of having this as a pilot project with 40 families.

Mayor Reynolds expressed concerns over the fact that unlike the LERTA, this ordinance had not been discussed in a committee. Citing the importance of transparency and that the public has been following the LERTA in the press, he questioned Van Wirt's approach on her ordinance in ensuring Bethlehem residents understand clearly the different aspects of what she proposing.

Although Van Wirt's amendment pertaining manure management passed, just like in the case of the LERTA, more amendments are expected to be table with the clerk's office, with the publishing timeframe of 10 days.

Other Business

Citations honoring retired Sergeant Kevin Conrad and retired Officer Michael Manfredo were given honoring their years to the residents of Bethlehem.

Two Public Hearings took place. The first pertaining to three zoning amendments from Darlene Heller, Director of Planning and Zoning.

The second hearing dealt with the proposed Ordinance Amending the Article 1501 to adopt the 2018 version of the International Fire Code.

Both ordinances received approval by City Council, as well as all resolutions on the agenda.

The next meeting is scheduled for Aug. 2 in city hall.

SHARKS!

 Which scares
 you more?
 A shark or

Most people are more afraid of sharks than bees. Yet bee stings have killed more people than sharks! Out of around 500 different kinds of sharks, most are not dangerous. The Great White shark is the most dangerous of all, but hardly anyone sees it. It likes to stay in deep ocean water where most people don't swim.

Wolf signs Pennsylvania budget

The administration said this budget builds on the governor's commitment to putting resources back into schools with a new $1.8 billion increase to benefit students from pre-K through college.

Governor Tom Wolf celebrated a budget July 8 that, according to a recent news release, solidifies his commitment to education at all levels with a historic $1.8 billion investment increase. The Wolf Administration said they have increased education funding by more than $3.7 billion since 2015, ensuring the opportunity for Pennsylvanians to succeed with a top-tier education without shouldering taxpayers with the bulk of the responsibility for funding schools.

"Since I took office, Pennsylvania's students and families have been my top priority. We have made long overdue investments in the people of Pennsylvania, including better education for all, safer communities and a brighter future," Wolf said. "Securing $1.8 billion for education in this budget furthers these efforts and results in a historic $3.7 billion in investments my administration has made in education at all levels over the last eight years. I'm extremely proud of what we have accomplished."

The administration said this budget builds on the governor's commitment to putting resources back into schools with a new $1.8 billion increase to benefit students from pre-K through college. This investment – which includes $850 million in reoccurring funding to allow school districts to invest in student learning while simultaneously cutting local property taxes – is on top of the already historic $1.9 billion increase in education funding Wolf secured in previous years for a total of $3.7 billion in new education funding during the Wolf administration.

This year's $1.8 billion increase includes:

- $525 million increase through the fair funding formula. On average Pennsylvania schools will see their funding increase by 8 percent.
- $225 million increase for Level Up to provide targeted support to the 100 most in-need school districts, ensuring every child in Pennsylvania has the opportunity to thrive and succeed through equal access to a high-quality education no matter their Zip code.
- $100 million increase for special education.

- $79 million increase for early education through Pre-K Counts and Head Start.
- $220 million for public higher education.

This budget prioritizes direct resources for Pennsylvanians and Pennsylvania families and makes legacy investments in state parks and the environment, including:

- $140 million in direct property tax relief to implement Wolf's proposed one-time bonus rebate through the property tax rent rebate program.
- $375 million for safe and affordable housing by creating new units, repairing existing units and funding home repairs.
- $90 million to stabilize the child care workforce through recruitment and retention payments.
- $25 million for a new child care tax credit to benefit Pennsylvania's working families with children in child care.
- $2 million for women's reentry to give reentrants the best opportunity to start fresh and reduce recidivism.
- $1 million for a Hunger Free Campus Initiative that will provide grants to higher education institutions to create or expand food pantries and further address college food insecurity.
- $100 million for adult mental health services and the creation of a dedicated Behavioral Health Commission to make recommendations for allocating the funds.
- $100 million for student mental health support to ensure Pennsylvania's youth have all the resources they need to overcome challenges and succeed through Ready to Learn Block Grants.
- $35 million to recapitalize the Student Loan Relief for Nurses Program.
- $696 million for conservation, recreation and preservation, including funding to support the creation of three new state parks and a new ATV park.

In addition to these investments, the budget supports a stronger business economy to bring new business and good paying jobs to Pennsylvania. This is a result of reforming Pennsylvania's Corporate Net Income Tax to ensure tax equality and fairness and reduce the CNIT to 4.99 percent by 2031.

This budget includes funding to help make Pennsylvania communities safer through increased security and grassroots violence interruption efforts, including:

- $250,000 increase for It's On Us PA to further combat sexual assault and make colleges and universities safer.
- $100 million increase for school safety grants to ensure children learn and grow in safe, healthy environments.
- $50 million for gun violence intervention and prevention programs to promote grassroots efforts for safer communities.
- $105 million for violence prevention, public safety and safer communities.
- $135 million for local law enforcement support.
- $5 million for nonprofit security grants to provide security grants to organizations targeted by hate crime.

When Wolf took office, Pennsylvania's Rainy Day Fund was down to its last $231,800. Over the past seven years, the governor has turned a $2.3 billion structural budget deficit into a multibillion-dollar budget surplus. Wolf will be the first governor since Dick Thornburgh, who left office in 1987, to turn over a budget surplus to his successor.

This budget builds on that foundation by:

- Depositing a record $2.1 billion into the Rainy Day Fund, building it to a historic balance of nearly $5 billion.
- Securing a $5.3 billion surplus, on top of the Rainy Day Fund balance, for Pennsylvania's future.
- Makes strategic investments to set up the commonwealth to support Pennsylvanians without raising taxes or creating a future fiscal cliff.

Local legislators laud Wolf budget

BY NATE JASTRZEMSKI
SPECIAL TO THE BETHLEHEMPRESS

State Rep. Jeanne McNeill said she applauds the historic $1.1 billion increase in education funding that was part of the bipartisan budget deal which passed the House of Representatives today. "Making investments in education means making investments in Pennsylvania's future and I am pleased to see such a truly historic investment in education in this year's state budget," said McNeill, D-Lehigh. "This funding will help ensure every student has a chance to succeed. The state budget process is never easy but spending plans like this one do not come that often. To be able to support these programs and still set aside funding in the state's Rainy Day Fund for emergencies means this is a great deal for Pennsylvania and I am proud to support it," said McNeill.

Rep. Bob Freeman said, "On the whole it was a very good budget. We did see a significant increase in funding for education – over $850 million and $200 million for school safety and mental health. That should help school districts considerably, particularly our most needy districts, including Bethlehem and Allentown. We didn't get everything I wanted for environmental programs but we did get money to clean up the Susquehanna River

Check COVID test expiration dates

Consumers should go online to check updated COVID test expiration dates before using the tests – or before discarding apparently expired tests.

The expiration dates on test packaging may NOT be accurate.

The expiration dates for many tests have been extended by the Food & Drug Administration after further review of test manufacturers' newly submitted data.

For tests whose expiration dates have not been extended, however, consumers should respect the dates on the tests' packaging. Expired tests do not provide reliable results.

"At this time, most people who need COVID tests are relying on over-the-counter, at-home tests, so it is extremely important that they understand how to properly evaluate expiration dates," said St. Luke's Infectious Diseases chair Dr. Jeffrey Jahre.

Local students participate in graduation ceremony

On May 26, Colonial Intermediate Unit 20 held its Special Education Graduation Ceremony at Colonial Academy. The Intermediate Unit serves 13 school districts and operates three of its own schools. Thirty-two students attended the graduation. Several more students completed their final year as IU20 students, but did not participate in the graduation ceremony.

IU20 Director of Special Education Jacqueline Bartek opened the ceremony.

IU20 Executive Director Christopher Wolfel shared words of wisdom, including a Paul Molitor quote: "Complaining is like vomiting. You might feel better after you get it out, but you make everyone around you sick." Wolfel told the graduates to enjoy the ride. He also spoke of his own childhood, running the halls of the Intermediate Unit office, where his mother worked as a secretary.

Lauren Emilia Dietrick, a member of the class of 2022 who lives in the Wilson Area School District and attended the IU20 Life Skills Support program at the Career Institute of Technology in Easton, was the class speaker. She reminded her classmates that "It is okay to ask for help."

"I have done things that are hard for me (to do)," she said. "My teachers and friends have helped me a lot."

Laruen has a job in the St. Luke's University Health Network system. She won a gold medal in equestrian competition at the recent Special Olympics Summer Games in State College.

Following Dietrick's speech, teachers were called to the podium, and the graduates received their certificates and diplomas. Each

Well-versed: Charles Kiernan's world

LITERARY SCENE

By Dave Howell

If you describe a place where cats are fierce warriors and rulers, many people would reply, "That's my house."

Charles Kiernan creates an entire world of feline adventurers in his book, "A Vacant Throne: Dreams of the Sleeping Cat" (159 pp; $8.95, print; $2.99, digital; 2021).

Sunny, an ordinary house cat, passes into the land of Trueterra, where his arrival has been foretold.

Sunny's name is changed to Solay, and he begins an exciting existence where he is trained for battle. He makes many friends and finds love, but he also takes on the responsibility of facing a mysterious opponent that he does not fully understand.

The book might be categorized as Young Adult (YA) and Fantasy. Complex themes are interwoven.

Kiernan says his book mixes legends, mythology, metaphysics and mysticism.

"There are actually more metaphysics as the book goes on, basically about the nature of reality," says Kiernan in a phone interview from Godfrey Daniels, 7 E. Fourth St., Bethlehem, where he is setting up to host "Story Circle," 7:30 p.m. second Wednesday, sponsored by the Lehigh Valley Storytelling Guild, of which Kiernan is coordinator.

The "Story Circle" is taking place in person and via Zoom, according to the Theatre Club and The Kennedy Center, and originating the title role in the world premiere of Wilson's "King Hedley II" in Pittsburgh, Boston and Seattle.

"Tony's versatility, artistry and craft as an actor, coupled with his rich experience with August Wilson's plays, will prove invaluable in plumbing the depths of this force-of-nature leading role," says PSF Producing Artistic Director Patrick Mulcahy.

"We are so pleased to have an actor of Tony Todd's caliber leading this cast as we bring this masterwork of the American theater to life this summer," Mulcahy says.

"Fences" was postponed for two seasons at PSF because of the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic shutdown. Todd was originally cast in the PSF 2020 season production of "Fences."

"Fences" is directed by Ryan Quinn in his PSF directorial debut. Quinn is co-founder and artistic director of Esperance Theater Company, New York City. He is a company member of Hudson Valley Shakespeare Festival.

Quinn's directing credits include "Twelfth Night," "Youth and Ambition" (a mash-up of "Romeo & Juliet" and "Macbeth"), "Esperance Theater Company," "Macbeth," two productions of "Romeo & Juliet," and "The Two Noble Kinsman," Hudson Valley Shakespeare Festival, and "So Thrive My Soul" (an adaptation of "Romeo & Juliet"), Milwaukee Repertory Theater.

Most recently, Quinn was seen Off-Broadway in Second Stage's world premiere of "Whorl Inside a Loop."

"Fences" depicts the yearnings and struggles of the Maxson family led by patriarch Troy, a former home-run king in the Negro baseball leagues, who supports his family as a garbage collector.

Set in 1950s' Pittsburgh against the backdrop of a rapidly-changing America, "Fences" is a timeless American story of fathers and sons, husbands and wives, dreams and realities.

"Fences" is the sixth in Wilson's 10-part "Pittsburgh Cycle." The play won the 1987 Pulitzer Prize for Drama and the 1987 Tony Award for Best Play.

Todd is joined by a cast whose combined credits boast an impressive list of Broadway, television and film roles.

Ella Joyce, who plays Troy's wife Rose, previously worked with Todd in "King Hedley II," and won a Jefferson Award and Black Theatre Alliance Award for originating the role in Lynne Nottage's "Crumbs From The Table of Joy." She is founder and a performer at The National Black Theater Festival, Winston-Salem, N.C. On TV, she is best-known for her starring role as Eleanor on "Roc."

"Fences" cast members include Tyler Funtleroy (Cory), Shane Taylor (Jim Bono), Brandon Edward Burton (Lyons), Brian D. Coats (Gabriel) and Ilan Annum (Raynell).

The July 30 performance of "Fences" has audio description and open-captioning. To reserve one of these services, call Box Office Manager Kyle Schumaker, 610-282-3654, ext. 1.

Also at PSF, daytime on the Main Stage, Erin Sheffield's high-energy "Shakespeare for Kids" returns July 29 - Aug. 6. The one-hour production, directed by Matt Pfeiffer, is intended for children ages 4 to 10.

Using a combination of songs, puppets and scenes from William Shakespeare's comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing," "Shakespeare for Kids" provides families with the opportunity to introduce their children to Shakespeare in a welcoming, child-friendly environment.

The Aug. 3 performance is a sensory-friendly show for patrons with sensory and communication differences, including individuals on the autism spectrum. Tickets: 610-282-3654, ext. 1.

"Rent," winner of the Tony Award for Best Musical, is based on Puccini's "La Bohème." The script follows a year in the life of a group of impoverished young artists and musicians on New York City's Lower East Side.

Conference calls require standard protocol

Dear Jacquelyn,
I am in the process of making the shift to working remotely from home. I haven't normally spent a lot of time on conference calls and could use a refresher. Can you please provide some guidelines for successful productive conference calls?

Dear Reader,
When you are not typically used to handling business communication via conference calls, it might seem uncomfortable and overwhelming.

By following basic protocol, conference calls can be just as productive as face-to-face meetings.

Start preparation be-

RESPECTFULLY YOURS

By Jacquelyn Youst

fore the conference call starts. Check your conferencing device and be sure it's charged and be sure to choose a quiet area for the call.

If you are the moderator, make sure everyone has the right number to call to avoid confusion, and make sure to inform all the participants about who will be attending the meeting.

This way, people will know who they will be talking to and what they need to prepare. Just like any meeting, prepare an agenda. An agenda is key and a guide for discussing everything on topic.

During the conference call, respect everyone's time. The same way you would be on time in real life meetings, a conference call is also a meeting. Treat conference calls similarly, be on time.

When starting a conference call introduce yourself. It's important that people know and understand who is talking. While talking, pause regularly. This will give an opportunity for participants to ask questions or clarify something.

If you leave the conversation, let other people know since it will be rude if somebody talks to you and then finds out you left the call. When it's time to wrap up the conference call, use this time to say a final word or ask questions.

Preparing your at-home work environment is more than downloading the appropriate software to do your job. It's also about following simple etiquette guidelines to make the transition as seamless as possible.

Respectfully Yours,
Jacquelyn

Meet Miss Sunshine

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik
newsgrl@comcast.net

listen to her joy when we talked on the phone. I'm sure it was their destiny to be together. Their only regret was that they didn't do it years ago.

They made up for lost time by sharing every moment together. It wasn't a case of each one going off to do their own thing. They sat holding hands while watching TV and never ran out of things to talk about.

Walt had a successful career that allowed him to have a comfortable retirement. While he had plenty, Kay gave him something he didn't have as she filled his life with sunshine.

True to her innate character, nothing got her down. When Walt needed heart surgery and countless hospitalizations Kay was his strong support system.

They aged with grace, counting their blessings of having each other.

For eight years, every phone conversation I had with Miss Sunshine was upbeat. She often mentioned how happy she and Walt were together.

Kay talked with her son in Florida almost daily. Sure, she told him about each of Walt's physical problems. But because she never complained it was a shock when she told her son she needed him in Nashville. He got there five days before Walt died.

Every story has an ending and it's not always the one we wanted.

Friends and relatives told Kay they were sure she prolonged his life by several years.

I gave her a plaque when they first got together that said: True love never dies.

She told me she still treasures the plaque. Her love for Walt will never fade, she says.

A long time ago I learned the truth behind the belief that the more we love, the more it hurts when our loved one is gone.

Everyone who goes through it has to walk through that pain. We all do it differently and it's never easy. Kay is doing it in a way that is uniquely her.

She still focuses on the joy of each day of life. She is still Miss Sunshine, which doesn't mean she hurts any less. Old age is hard. And it's harder when we are alone.

Yet, even when her grief is still so raw, she says she is filled with gratitude for the life she has had, especially the eight years she had with Walt.

Miss Sunshine has always been a beacon of inspiration for me as she tries to focus on what she still has, not what she lost.

We all need her special kind of sunshine.

Types of anesthesia for surgery discussed

Q. I'm a senior who's having surgery and the one thing that scares me more than anything else is the anesthesia. Can you tell me anything to reduce my fear?

There are probably several sources for your fear.

The first is that you're older and wonder if you're at greater risk than someone younger.

The second is that anesthesia can be dangerous to anyone.

The third is that you'll lose total control when you're under.

I hope some of the facts about anesthesia will help with all of your fears.

Anesthesia is risky, but today it is safer than ever for all age groups. Your age is not as important a risk factor as your medical condition and the type of surgery you are having.

Safer drugs and major advances in the monitoring equipment doctors use in surgery have reduced anesthesia complications. In the last decade, deaths caused by anesthesia have dropped 25-fold, to 1 in 250,000.

Shorter-acting drugs, more specific drugs and new intravenous drugs can minimize the nausea and vomiting that sometimes occur after anesthesia.

There are three main types of anesthesia: general, regional and local.

General anesthesia makes a person unconscious so that the entire body is pain-free.

Regional anesthesia is used to block sensation in one area of your body.

Local anesthesia numbs a small part of your body.

General anesthesia is used for extensive surgeries. The drugs used in general anesthesia are given intravenously or are inhaled. They act as hypnotics, painkillers and muscle relaxants, and they block your memory of the surgery.

Regional anesthesia is injected around a single nerve or a network of nerves that branches out and serves an area. For example, spinal, epidural and caudal anesthesia are injected into or near the spinal fluid, effectively numbing nerves that serve the lower half of your body.

Local anesthesia may be used to numb only a small area of nerves at the site where the surgeon plans to operate, such as for cataract surgery. Local anesthesia is also used for minor procedures such as skin biopsies and stitching a cut.

During local and regional anesthesia, patients often receive intravenous drugs for sedation so that they can be comfortably drowsy during surgery and remember little of their time in the operating room.

Before your surgery, you can also expect questions from your doctors regarding your anesthesia. The following have to be considered: medical problems you might have, medications you take, whether you smoke or drink alcohol, any allergies you have, previous negative experience with anesthesia, and adverse reactions to anesthesia by other family members.

The information collected by your doctors guides them in their treatment. For example, smoking or alcohol consumption can influence the way an anesthetic works in your body during surgery. Knowing whether you smoke or drink alcohol allows your anesthesiologist to choose anesthetics that are suited to you.

Some anesthetics include components of certain foods, such as albumin from eggs. Discussing food and drug allergies beforehand helps your anesthesiologist make important drug choices.

How and when to water outdoor plants

July is typically the hottest month of the year in the Lehigh Valley. We must help our plants by watering them.

It is best to water between 6 a.m. and 10 a.m. This prepares the plant for the day and the plant has time to dry before the sun goes down.

Evening watering is not recommended because water tends to rest in the soil, around the roots and on foliage, which encourages rot, fungal growth and insects.

Water the roots, keeping the nozzle close to the ground. Don't hold the hose and spray the entire plant.

Mulching helps to retain moisture. Add mulch to your garden where needed.

When purchasing bulk mulch or compost, use a reputable produc-

GROWING GREEN

L.C. Cooperative Extension

er that has heat-treated the material to a temperature of 130 degrees for at least three days to destroy the cocoons of jumping worms. Or buy bagged mulch.

Flower gardens require only one-inch of water each week. If you do not have a rain gauge, put out a straight-edged can and a ruler to give you the same information.

Knowing when to water flowers in hot weather can be tricky. If you think they are not getting enough moisture, check the top three inches of soil. It should be consistently moist.

Be careful not to over-water your plants. When you over-water, you are putting your plants at risk of fungal pathogens which can lead to root rot and other problems. The plant's colors dull and turn yellow, then become soft and break easily. As the roots decay, plants will eventually die.

Provide water for birds, butterflies: Plants are important for attracting native wildlife and insects. Water is also a wonderful and necessary attractant to wildlife.

Birds need a place for drinking and preening. They need to keep their feathers clean to stay alive.

Male butterflies use water for "puddling," in which they get needed nourishment for mating.

Use a soaker hose or daily water a spot, keeping the soil moist.

Native bees also need water, but they will drown in a birdbath. Put out a shallow water container and fill it with pebbles. The bees will sit on the pebbles when they drink.

Don't forget about yourself. Drink plenty of liquids and take regular breaks from the sun when you are gardening.

Butterfly buffet: Every gardener welcomes the sight of beautiful butterflies floating above their flowers. Along with being a visual treat, butterflies play an important role in the environment. They pollinate flowers and are a food source for other animals.

Keep weeding: Weeding is a never-ending garden task, even during hot July days. It is essential to remove unwanted plants that compete for water and soil nutrients. Weeds are easier to pull when the soil is damp, so it can be better to weed immediately after watering the garden.

Deadhead, cut back flowers: Native flowering perennials should be deadheaded in July. Simply cut off or pinch off spent blooms. A perennial plant's goal in life is to propagate; plants propagate from seeds, and flowers make the seeds. By deadheading perennials, flowers will continue to bloom profusely for several weeks. More flowers also mean more benefits to pollinators.

Cut back your annuals so they won't look

the artistic treasures of Bethlehem's City Art Collection to share with our community. From over 130 works of art by 80-plus artists, this show comprises nearly a third of this valuable art collection," says Begbie.

"The Japanese Teahouse in April" (2012; Oil, 18 in. x 24 in.) by Donna Haney depicts the structure adjacent to the Bethlehem Area Public Library. According to Chair of the City Art Collection Denise Stangl, Bethlehem-based artist Haney donated her impressionistic painting to the city collection in 2018 to honor of the 50th anniversary of Town Hall.

Haney's painting is grouped with three landscapes of Bethlehem, including the oils, "Main Street at Night" by Sergei Yaralov and "Spring on Conestoga Street" by Diane Hutchinson, and a watercolor by the late Fred Bees, "West on Church Street."

Stangl fondly recalls taking watercolor lessons from Bees as a youth. Stangl retired in 2019 after working for Lehigh University Art Galleries (LUAG) for nearly 40 years. She is the BFAC treasurer.

Calling attention to Alexander Calder's "Les Etolles" lithograph (circa 1972), Stangl says, "This is an unusual piece of artwork, because it is one of his works on paper." Calder (1898 - 1976) is known primarily for his tapestries and sculpture.

One of the oldest pieces on view is "Hungarian American Farm" by Grace Albee (1890 - 1985). The etching was printed circa 1942 - 1943.

Much of the artwork in the collection was donated by artists. Other pieces were given to the city by collectors and corporate benefactors.

"We feel that the importance of art must not be discounted, but celebrated. And this show allows us to spread the word," says DePietro.

"It is through the arts that we have the ability to see our ever-changing world, imagine its possibilities, and reflect upon its sense of awe and wonder," DePietro says.

"Highlights of the City Art Collection," through Aug. 12, Rotunda Gallery, City Hall, 10 E. Church St., Bethlehem. Hours: 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. Monday - Friday, Closed weekends, holidays. Information: www.bfac-lv.org

website, <https://lvstorytelling.org>

Kiernan, a professional storyteller, is well-versed in fairy tales, presenting one every month on his blog: <https://chaztales.net>

Kiernan is noted in the Lehigh Valley and beyond for his lively telling of tales from the Brothers Grimm, and a series of Americana tales based on the fictional backwoods village of Lost Dollar.

Kiernan's shock of white hair and mustache gives him a resemblance to Mark Twain, which serves him well when he flamboyantly recreates Twain's life and stories for audiences at libraries, festivals and coffeehouses.

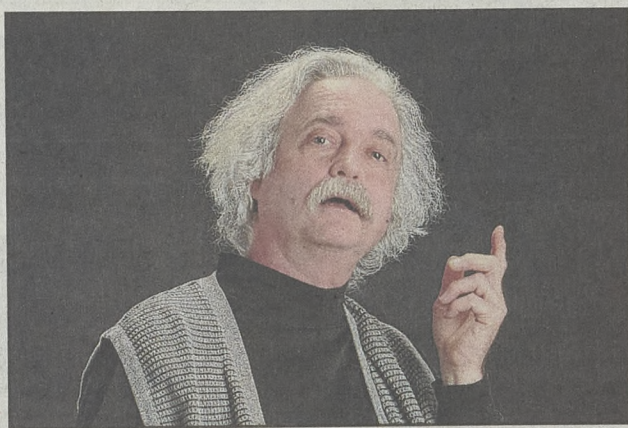

"A Vacant Throne" has separate tales and poems within its narrative. "There are a lot of stories within the main story," Kiernan says.

At the book's conclusion, there is a link to download a free version of "Stories and Poems of Truettoria," a "never-ending book of stories and poems" that will be expanded with new versions made available to readers.

Kiernan is even making a map of Truettoria. And he plans a sequel where descendants of the original characters travel to find a lost object from the first book.

Readers of fairy tales will find some familiar elements in "A Vacant Throne":

"There are themes from medieval sources and Celtic legends. There are genealogies of kingdoms that foreshadow the challenges faced by the main characters.

Charles Kiernan, author, "The Vacant Throne."

"The inheritance of the kingdom is something I took right out of 'The Golden Bough,'" he says, referring to the classic comparison of mythology and religion by Sir James George Frazer.

Puzzles and riddles are interspersed throughout the storyline, aspects also found in ancient and medieval literature.

It is theorized that heroic fantasy literature can inspire readers to face challenges in their own lives. Kiernan does not want such obvious connections:

"Using cats takes things one step removed from reality. It allows people to observe without immediately relating to their own life experience."

"It gives the reader the chance to reflect and compare Truettoria to their own world, seeing similarities and differences."

"The Vacant Throne" is Kiernan's first book. After 20 years of storytelling, he says, "In writing, you, the teller, are not physically present. You have to find a way to emphasize through the written word, not through presence and gestures."

Kiernan calls himself a "pantster" instead of a plotter, meaning that he prefers to write instinctively from the "seat of his pants" instead of closely following a preconceived plot.

In "The Vacant Throne," the characters can take on a life of their own. One of the cats in the story was not in the first version, but "jumped off the page" to insert himself, he says.

The idea for "A Vacant Throne" came from stories Kiernan told his children while riding in the car. His daughter Emily also became a storyteller. Kiernan made storytelling a part of her home-schooling.

The Dior of perception

AT THE MOVIES

By Paul Willistein
pwillistein@tnonline.com

"Mrs. Harris Goes To Paris" has a delightful title for a delightful film paced by a delightful performance by Lesley Manville in the title role of Mrs. Ada Harris.

Paris is the backdrop for a Cinderella story about Mrs. Harris, a London cleaning woman who fancies herself in need of a high-fashion dress from the House of Christian Dior.

The film, "Mrs. Harris," takes place in 1957 at the dawn of the mass-merchandising of designer labels. The world of fashion orbited around Paris. The House of Dior discovered its name alone could propel fabulous frocks off the racks and onto the backs of women stepping out at the country club, fancy restaurant or swanky soiree.

In "Mrs. Harris Goes To Paris," Mrs. Ada Harris (Lesley Manville), a widow, dutifully goes about her job cleaning houses in London, often surrounded by luxury furniture and clothing.

She returns to her drab London flat, dreaming of the luxe life. When she receives a World War II war-widow's pension windfall, she throws all caution to the wind and flies to Paris where she finagles her way into an exclusive showroom preview of the latest Dior line.

Mrs. Harris charms her way into the inner-circle of the House of Dior, despite rebuffs by a disapproving Dior director, Claudine (Isabelle Hubert in an unusually steely turn). There's a particular plot twist, which is hilarious and wins the day, bringing the film to an emotional and satisfying conclusion.

The world of mid-century modern is brought to life by director Anthony Fabian (director, "Louder Than Words," 2013; "Skin," 2008).

Fabian wrote the screenplay with Carroll Cartwright (screenwriter, "What Maisie Knew," 2012; "Dungeons & Dragons," 2000; "Where The Money Is," 2000) and Keith Thompson (screenwriter, "The Sapphires," 2012).

The film is based on the novel, "Mrs. Harris Goes to Paris" (1958), as first of four books based on the title's female character, written by Paul Gallico (1897-1976), author of "The Snow Goose" and "The Poseidon Adventure."

Lesley Manville ("Ordinary Love," 2019; "Phantom Thread," 2017) is charming beyond belief as Mrs. Harris.

"Mrs. Harris Goes To Paris" should be chiefly enjoyed by fashionistas, mid-century modern style aficionados and fans of fashion-theme movies: "Prêt-à-Porter" (1994, Robert Altman, director); "Coco Before Chanel" (2009, starring Audrey Tautou) and "Phantom Threads" (2017, Paul Thomas Anderson, director; starring Daniel Day Lewis). "Mrs. Harris" wore it better.

"Mrs. Harris Goes To Paris," MPAA rated

PG (Parental Guidance Suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.) for suggestive material, language and smoking; Genre: Drama, Comedy; Run time: 1 hour, 55 minutes. Distributed by Focus Features.
