17 towns, townships low on road salt

By BERNIE O'HARE
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

Though winter weather is far from over, 17 Northampton County municipalities have exhausted or are "in dire need of salt." That's what Executive John Brown told county council at its Feb. 6 meeting. He indicated he would be meeting with Emergency Management Services (EMS) officials in the next day to look for a way to solve this crisis.

"Bushkill Township is a mess," remarked council president Peg Ferraro, "and I can verify that." So can everyone living in the Nazareth Area School District. All their schools had to be closed because of the icy roads last week in Bushkill Township.

Council member Scott Parsons complained that PennDOT, which has a salt supply located just a quarter mile from Pen Argyl Borough Public Works, has refused to share its supply.

"Cooperation seems to be lacking," he observed.

A veteran prosecutor who is also state-certified to defend death penalty cases is Northampton County's new public defender. Easton Attorney Bob Eyer, a 1992 graduate of Dickinson School of Law, was unanimously confirmed at county council's Feb. 6 meeting. Though nominated by a Republican executive, his biggest cheerleaders on council were Ken Kraft, who "strongly recommended" Eyer, and Lamont McClure, who asked that Like many area municipalities, the City of Bethlehem is beginning to feel the burden of multiple snowstorms during the current winter. And, within the first 30 days of becoming mayor, Robert Donchez has already declared two snow emergencies in an effort to be proactive when dealing with this weather.

Public Works Director Mike Alkhal says that both the emergency declaration and no declaration demand that the same amount of resources be put to work, but plowing priorities change with a declared snow emergency.

"Remember that the difference is we push curb to curb on snow routes," Alkhal says about snow emergencies being declared.

In addition, Alkhal points out that other factors, such as weather predictions, temperature, depth and weight of the snow and equipment breakdowns factor into the city's ability to deal with plowing and snow removal throughout the city. In addition, sometimes equipment must be diverted to other city operations such as water main leaks or sinkholes, according to Alkhal.

In general, Alkhal says predictions of eight inches or more are the trigger for declaring a snow emergency.

Like a winter wonderland postcard, snow-covered trees frame the Monocacy Park suspension bridge and waterfalls after eight inches of snow fell Feb. 3.

"It would create significant access issues until we plowed back further without declaring and/or removing," Alkhal says.

"Temperatures obviously are the key," explains Alkhal. If the snow is cold and fluffy, Alkhal says snow plows easily unless already compacted by traffic.

"Near freezing often causes the wet heavy snow," says Alkhal. He notes that temperatures dropping after a wet heavy snow become a problem because the snow then freezes and hardens, which is tougher on the equipment.

The frequency of snowstorms this winter has also depleted supplies of salt.

"We are at about a third of where we try to maintain in salt on hand, so we are short and a bit nervous about that," says Alkhal. He said salt deliveries are on back order and the city is regularly checking on the status of those deliveries.

Winters like the current one, with frequent snowstorms and icing also challenge city budgets. Alkhal explains that both overtime and supply accounts are about $150,000 over what was originally budgeted. He also reminds that in addition to the winter weather Bethlehem has faced to date in 2014, the city also has to be prepared to deal with any additional snow or ice that comes in November and December at the end of the year.

How does the current winter stack up against others that Alkhal and his staff have had to deal with?

"It's one of the worst but not the very worst so far, at least judging by any single event," Alkhal says. "I have had winters when a single event was as much as 22 inches and we hauled snow for days."

Reuscher seated as new member

By ANDREW FOX
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

City Council's Feb. 4 meeting began with a swearing in ceremony for new City Council member Cathy Reuscher. Reuscher was recently elected to fill Robert Donchez' seat after he resigned from council to serve as city mayor.

Reuscher, a long time resident of the city, founded the Bethlehem Co-Op in 2012, which offers, "healthy, affordable, locally-focused food and informational workshops in a convenient neighborhood location," according to a statement on the company's website.

Several members of council spoke in support of Reuscher at last week's meeting, publicly voicing their confidence in Reuscher's ability to contribute to the city going forward.

Fellow Democrat Adam Waldron was also recently elected to fill an additional vacancy left on council.

Several citations were issued by council after Reuscher's swearing in. Of those present at the meeting, resident Jacqueline Lilley-McCammon was acknowledged for her service with the Bethlehem Fire Department.

Last Wednesday's fast-moving storm dropped more than two inches of snow on top of recent accumulations. The wintry mix of snow, rain and ice with a temperature range of 27-34 degrees, according to Accuweather reports, combined for difficult clean-up conditions. Wearing various types of winter apparel, shovelers were challenged by the frozen snow. LEFT: Bundled up for frigid work conditions, Tyler Krisher of Allentown clears a path through ice-cruled snow on a side-the vote be unanimous. Eyer currently maintains a private practice at Goudzousian Law Offices. He will be paid a $57,920 salary for this part-time position. In addition to his work as a prosecutor and defense attorney, Eyer clerked for Judge James Hogan and was Chief Law Clerk to Superior Court Judge Robert Freedberg. He also managed the asbestos case docket for judges Jack Panella and Edward Smith.

Executive John Brown's first choice for this position, Bob Sletvold, was far more controversial because of his marriage to a sitting judge. This would have prevented her from hearing any matters involving the public defender's office. Brown withdrew Sletvold's nomination on Jan. 22, when it became apparent that Sletvold lacked the five votes needed for confirmation.

SALT

This road salt shortage was first reported here last week. At that time, Hanover Township had enough road salt for just one pass. Other townships reported similar problems. The winter storms increased demand, but International Salt, which supplies most Lehigh Valley municipalities, was temporarily closed down as the result of a workplace fatality.

Municipalities muddled through the first snowstorm last week (Feb. 3). But right before the second storm (Feb. 5), three Northampton County municipalities - Hanover Township, West Easton Borough and Pen Argyl Borough - advised EMS they had run out of salt. Hanover Township declared a state of emergency Feb. 6, looking for state assistance.

Eight other municipalities have quickly followed suit.

These disaster declarations authorize municipal officials to act as necessary to meet the demands of the current situation. They can hire temporary workers, rent equipment and purchase supplies without having to follow procedures established by law.

Director of Emergency Management Services Robert Mateff stated, "Emergency Management officials will continue to advocate vigorously to the state on behalf of municipal needs."

Fire destroys Bethlehem law office

An early morning three-alarm fire Feb. 9 destroyed 68 E. Broad St. and caused apparent smoke and water damage to the adjoining structure at 70 East Broad St. Both buildings house the Leeson and Leeson Law Offices, those of several other attorneys and an insurance company. Dozens of firefighters and other city public safety personnel worked to get the blaze under control as brothers William Leeson, current city solicitor, and Joseph "Jay" Leeson Jr., former city solicitor and councilman, and their families watched in disbelief. Bethlehem firefighters directed water onto the blaze at 68 E. Broad St. from an aerial bucket while others worked inside next door to contain the fire and prevent further damage to the adjoining offices. ABOVE: Bethlehem firefighters in an aerial bucket attack flames shooting out of the roof at 68 E. HBP's Donchez-Mowers receives Sun Inn award

By TIM GILMAN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Historic Bethlehem Partnership President Charlene Donchez-Mowers has been recognized for "her outstanding achievement in securing" the designation of Historic Moravian Bethlehem as a National Historic Landmark District. The Bethlehem native "worked tirelessly for almost 10 years" to research and develop a nomination application which was finally approved by the National Park Service of the U.S. Department of the Interior in October 2012.

"It's one of the most challenging and rewarding projects I've been involved with," commented Donchez-Mowers, who started her 14th year of leading HBP. The partnership also operates under the name Historic Bethlehem Museums and Sites.

The HBP was also credited by Sun Inn Preservation Association for supporting Donchez-Mowers in her long-time quest to achieve National Historic Landmark District designation for a 14-acre area of historic Bethlehem in recognition of "Bethlehem's remarkable 18th century heritage for its Moravian architecture and town planning."

Donchez Mowers also said the recognition "brings national significance to Bethlehem and its incredible community history."

Historic Moravian Bethlehem is one of eight National Historic Landmark Districts in Pennsylvania which are among a select list of 150 nationwide districts, according to National Park Service records.

The champion for historic Bethlehem and its preservation also announced to the gathering of some 75 guests at the Sun Inn that a 12 by 14-inch bronze plaque is to be unveiled on a yet-to-be-determined spring date and site within the 14-acre Historic Moravian Bethlehem, a National Landmark District.

She displayed an enlarged photo of the plaque, which is in storage at HBP.

The National Park Service plaque, which recognizes Historic Moravian Bethlehem as a National Historic Landmark District, reads, "This site possesses national significance in commemorating the history of the United States of America."

According to James Miller III of HBP, the 14-acre area is outlined on an official City of Bethlehem map entitled Historic Moravian Bethlehem, which was part of the National Historic Landmark District application process. The site includes the Colonial Industrial Quarter operated by HBMS along the Monocacy Creek and historic Church Street, where 18th century Moravian buildings remain since the founding of Bethlehem in 1741.

The plaque further states, "Moravian settlers from Europe established a communal society here ... The surviving buildings and industrial structures are outstanding examples of German colonial architecture and Moravian town planning."

Several old Bethlehem buildings within the Historic Moravian Bethlehem District, such as the 1741 Gemeinhaus on Church Street, have previously been named National Historic Landmarks, a distinction by the National Park Service for individual buildings.

The Tribute to Historic Preservation award recipients were also honored by Congressman Charles W. Dent, State Senator Lisa Boscola, State Representative Steve Samuelson, Bethlehem Mayor Robert J. Donchez and other local dignitaries. SIPA president Seth Cornish and event chair Jean Kessler, both of Bethlehem, were also present for the celebration.

Board adopts regional recycling

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

At their Jan. 28 meeting, Hanover Township Supervisors voted 4-0 to adopt a regional approach to recycling. They authorized Hough Associates to pursue a multi-municipal approach to the township's annual recycling grant. This regional approach is expected to result in increased revenue.

Township Secretary Lori A. Stranzl told supervisors that the annual Department of Environmental Protection Recycling Performance Grant has dropped from $109,000 five years ago, to just $40,300 last year. Ryan Ingham, representing Hough, explained that his firm would turn that around. "We have a staff dedicated to doing this all year round," he said.

Hough, which represents 60 municipalities throughout the state in multi-municipal groups, referred to what he calls the Lower Macungie Group as an example. That consists of Hellertown and Bethlehem, South Whitehall and Lower Macungie Townships. South Whitehall's recycling award jumped from $57,000 to $81,000. Lower Macungie jumped from $55,000 to $126,000.

By working together, municipalities get a higher performance grant from the state.

In addition to preparing a multi-municipal grant application, Hough also increases the grant award by contacting haulers, processors and brokers to maximize all residential and commercial recycling data. Township staff can work on other matters.

Hough will be paid one-third of whatever additional revenue it can generate beyond the $40,300 paid to Hanover last year. If no additional revenues are received, Hough gets nothing.

In other business, Township Manager Jay Finnigan told supervisors that he has been elected chair of both the County Tax Collection Committee as well as its Gaming Board.

"They see the same thing we do," noted Chairman John Diacogiannis. "What's that, a sucker?" wisecracked Supervisor John Nagle.

Supervisor Steve Salvesen, recuperating from a leg injury, was absent.

Flat Iron owner seeks more changes

By DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem's "Flat Iron" building at 301 Broadway will get a new drive-through canopy for the Wells Fargo bank that occupies part of the building, if the owner gets his way.

Stowe Eighmy represented the family business, Sycamore Hill Farms LP, at a meeting of the Historic Conservation District at the Banana Factory Jan. 27.

Eighmy said the company wants to keep the existing bank drive-through canopy and redevelop it as a coffee shop such as a Starbucks. He said the plan would cost 10 to 15 parking spaces. "We're not looking for approval tonight," Eighmy said. "We're looking for your expertise on [appropriate] materials."

Commission member and City of Bethlehem employee Philip Roeder suggested the owners talk to the zoning board before doing any more planning on the project. Commission members decided to table the matter pending a review by the zoning board.

The building's solar heating dish, which drew the ire of members of city council when the dish was first installed, has been temporarily removed,

Eighmy said. The dish had been a prototype which will be replaced with a more stable design, he explained.

He said the solar energy collector heats oil which circulates throughout the building, warming the offices.

In other business, the owners of the duplex at 202-204 E. Fourth St. had another disappointing session with the commission. They again were seeking a certificate of appropriateness that would allow Louis Inhle and his business partner James Byszewski to replace windows in the building with vinyl windows.

Byszewski repeated arguments he made at commission's last meeting to support the cheaper windows. However, commission members were unwavering in their negative opinion of the durability of vinyl windows.

The commissioners prefer to see wood or fiberglass replacement windows. They did approve, however, a three-option resolution that would include the option to replace some existing vinyl windows with vinyl as they are grandfathered in the applicable zoning ordinance.

"It sets a bad precedent to approve the use of vinyl windows," Roeder said.

Tax Tips from IRS.gov
Report Name Change before You File Taxes

Did you change your name last year? Did your dependent have a name change? If the answer to either question is yes, be sure to notify the Social Security Administration before you file your tax return with the IRS.

This is important because the name on your tax return must match SSA records. If they don't, you're likely to get a letter from the IRS about the mismatch. And if you expect a refund, this may delay when you'll get it.

Be sure to contact SSA if:

- You got married or divorced and you changed your name.
- A dependent you claim had a name change. For example, this would apply if you adopted a child and that child's last name changed.

File Form SS-5, Application for a Social Security Card, with the SSA to let them know about a name change. You can get the form on SSA.gov by calling 800-772-1213 or at an SSA office.

You can file Form SS-5 at an SSA office or by mail. Your new card will have the same SSN as before but will show your new name.

If you have an adopted child who does not have a SSN, use a temporary Adoption Taxpayer Identification Number on your tax form. You can apply for an ATIN by filing Form W-7A, Application for Taxpayer Identification Number for Pending U.S. Adoptions, with the IRS. Get the form on IRS.gov or by calling 800-TAX-FORM (800-829-3676).

Freedom HS astronomy students taught by William Safranek have gone above and beyond by raising more than $10,000 for pediatric cancer research, and the astronomy class that raised the most had the pleasure of dyeing Safranek's recently grown beard as their reward. The winning class chose the color "pink fetish." Fundraising was accomplished through the students' production of a weekend planetarium show that was designed by students, led by sophomores Abigail Burnett and Emily Clark. Each show was sold out. Sponsorships, a T-shirt sale, candy sales and student contributions aided in hitting the $10,000 mark. The fundraising effort by Freedom students was undertaken as part of the Bethlehem Area School District's mini-THON initiative, which benefits pediatric cancer patients at the Hershey Medical Center's Children's Hospital. ABOVE: William Safranek's astronomy students apply hair dye to his freshly grown beard as a reward for raising the most money for pediatric cancer research. LVCHSANEWS

Much activity, despite weather

The Lehigh Valley Charter High School for the Arts' calendar is full of activities and events this season, despite the weather's antics lately.

From concerts to master classes, our multi-colored halls are teeming with busyness and excitement. Here is an overview of some of Charter Arts' recent news and some upcoming events.

Recently, the Student Council held the annual "Winter Ball" at "The Meadows" in Hellertown. With great music, food and dancing, the students were able to relax and have fun with their friends. Additionally, the National Honor Society began selling Gertrude Hawk Chocolate Bars to fundraise for the club and possibly even a trip to Washington, D.C., this year.

The music department held a "Pink Floyd Night" at Godfrey Daniels Feb. 6 providing a unique opportunity for students to explore the genre of rock, as opposed to the usual focus on jazz and classical music.

Sheridan Brodhead, Elizabeth King and Noah Diggs were chosen to participate in the PME Regional Orchestra this year. Albert Nelthropp and Kate Miksits will also move on to the Regional Chorus Festival Feb. 13-15 in Chambersburg.

Instrumental music majors had a fantastic master class recently with the legendary drummer, Albert "Tootie" Heath, who has worked and recorded with John Coltrane, Wes Montgomery, Herbie Hancock among others. Students admired his energy, obvious passion and wise advice.

Charter Arts students fared well at the Scholastic

Art and Writing Awards this year. In the visual art category, gold keys were distributed to Devante Cordero, Ariel Posh, Lexi Schnabel, Adam Beauchner, Sarah Fiedler, Justin Orlick, Bria Pickel, Anthony Recinos Hernandez and Lara Zarzosa. Silver key winners included Luciana Arce, Alba Fernandez, Thomas Marzella, Ariel Posh, Gwen Stark, Lara Zarzosa, Amanda Hodes, Ana Raiola and Anthony Recinos Hernandez.

A special congratulations to Thomas Marzella and Alba Fernandez for receiving the Juror's Awards and also to Ariel Posh for winning the Affiliate Director's Choice Award. In the writing category, a gold key was given to Amanda Hodes. Silver key winners include Jacquelyn Fiorillo, Karisa Fulmer, and Tilleen Meitzler.

Several Charter Arts choirs will be performing with Official Chorus of the U.S. Air Force Feb. 15 at 3 p.m. at Gwynedd Square Presbyterian Church in Lansdale. There will also be a Jazz Café at the school March 20 at 7 p.m.

A "Second Stage" (our student-run theatre company) production of Shakespeare's "Richard II" runs from March 6 to 9. It has been edited by senior theatre major Savannah Murphy and will include a five-person ensemble. Word has it that this performance is a must see.

The Figure Skating Ice Show, "Move," March 6 at 6:30 p.m. at the Steel Ice Center will feature contemporary solo and ensemble works. Also, the 2014 "Gala of Dreams" to benefit the school will be held April 5 at 6:30 p.m. at the Arts Quest Center at Steel Stacks. Tickets are available for purchase now at the charterarts.org.

Pediatric fundraiser hits $10,000

Sophomore astronomy student and planetarium program director Abigail Burnett outlines the fundraising initiative undertaken by William Safranek's astronomy students.

The finishing touches are given to William Safranek's beard, now a bright pink. Safranek said he would wear the pink beard for three days and then shave it off.

Becahi installs new board

By AMY HERZOG
Special to the Bethlehem Press

The Diocese of Allentown has instituted a new board designed to help guide schools' success in a competitive market at Bethlehem Catholic HS.

Diocesan officials tested and implemented the board at several other local Catholic schools, including Central Catholic HS in Allentown. Becahi is one of the remaining schools to implement the Board of General Jurisdiction to their operations, along with three other high schools, 10 elementary schools and special learning centers by the end of the year.

The Board of General Jurisdiction is designed to operate like a board of directors at a college and follow a governance model designed by the Diocese.

This new governing body will tackle topics such as school sustainability with committees being formed to address the areas of financial management, marketing and enrollment, fundraising and accountability. A committee to focus on strategic planning will be developed as the board progresses, according to a press release.

"We are very grateful to the focused leaders who have stepped up to serve on our board. In selecting board members, we looked to match the needs of the school with the skills and expertise of the individuals we asked to serve, as is evidenced by the talent, acumen and strong moral character these individuals bring with them," said John Petruzzelli, Bethlehem Catholic principal, in a press release. "We are confident that with this new board leadership, BECA will continue to grow, to overcome challenges and to carry out our mission of developing tomorrow's leaders."

Current day-to-day operation of the school, student and parent issues, and faculty oversight will still be maintained by the current administration.

Partnering with the Healey Education Foundation and utilizing its signature initiative, the Catholic School Development Program, a nonprofit organization whose mission is to sustain and grow Catholic schools by "helping schools help themselves", Bethlehem Catholic hopes to find success.

The foundation provided training to the board along with providing ongoing support to ensure the board is as successful as possible. They are also providing ongoing consulting services to the administration, which is responsible for the focus areas of the board, according to a press release.

"Our efforts will be squarely focused on creating sustained growth in enrollment and marketing the school as a viable and profound choice for higher education in the Lehigh Valley," David J. Griffith, board president, said in a press release. "We look forward to further advancing the great vision that's been established by school administrators."

As part of the process to form the board Bethlehem Catholic and the other schools in the Diocese have filed for nonprofit organization status in Pennsylvania. Bethlehem Catholic will become Bethlehem Catholic HS, Inc. The first meeting was held Nov. 12. The board plans to provide quarterly updates on their activity in conjunction with state of the school style meetings.

Hawks win fourth-straight state title

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

As people complain about the success Bethlehem Catholic's wrestling program has achieved over the past four years, the Golden Hawk family celebrated Saturday night as the Hawks won their fourth-straight PIAA 2A team championship.

It may have been the easiest ride for head coach Jeff Karam and company, as Becahi rolled through the state tournament posting scores of 73-0, 62-0, 59-3 and eventually 41-15 over Reynolds in the state championship Saturday afternoon.

There never was a real doubt if the Hawks would come away with their fourth-straight team title over the weekend, as they eclipsed Reynolds, who they defeated 43-16 in last year's state finals, for the most 2A team titles in the 16 year history of the tournament.

Making history is one thing, enjoying it is another for Karam and his wrestlers.

"This is a great opportunity for all of us to sit back and really enjoy this," Karam said, as the Hawks stormed to a 15-0 mark on the season. "We have great kids and the seniors on this team have won state titles every year they've been here. They'll look back and realize how special this is."

Karam always stresses how each season is a new campaign that can land different results.

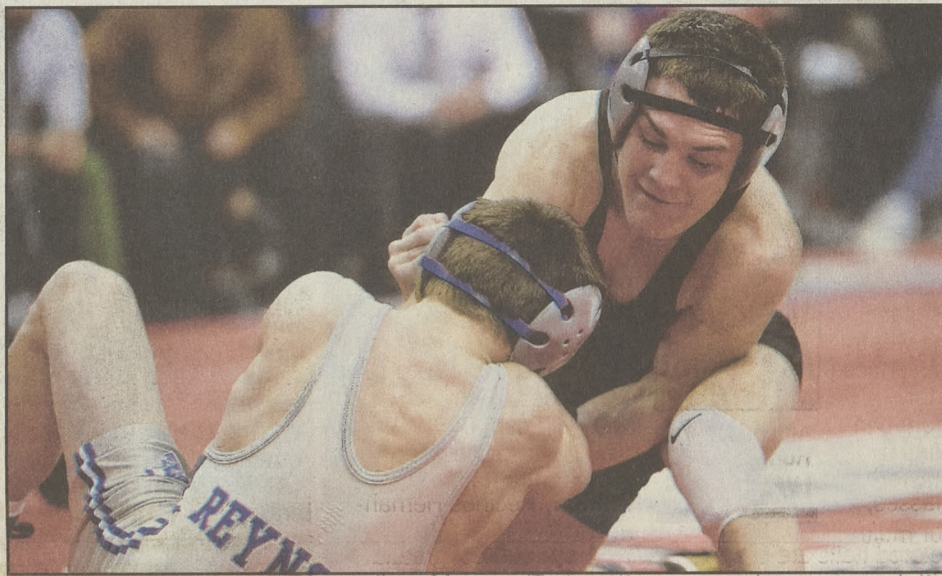

Many onlookers probably didn't envision this type of domination by Becahi in their seven district and state tournament victories, registering three shutouts, giving up only three points in three respective bouts until Reynolds finally won four bouts against the Hawks in the finals.

Debate about which of the four state championship teams is the best can now begin, but Karam understands that every year is different and every year has continued to build the legacy of the program.

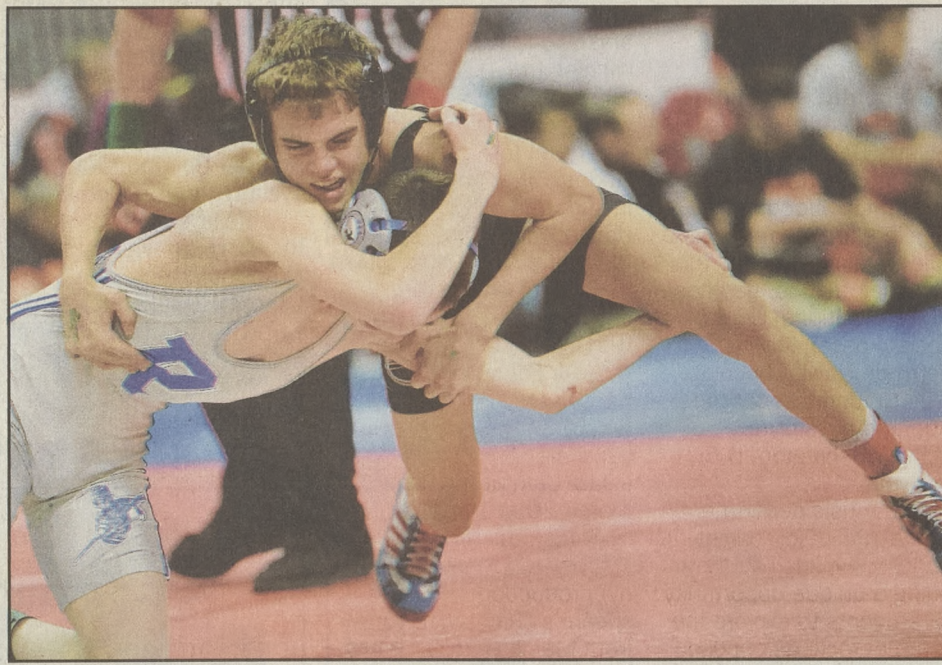

"I think people look at the team we had two years ago and say that was probably our best team," Karam said. "We had four guys [Zeke Moisey, Randy Cruz, Darian Cruz and Elliott Riddick] in the state finals that year. How this group stacks up to the other three teams doesn't really matter in my eyes. This group created their own legacy and they've become a very well balanced group."

Winning never gets old, even if it came as handily as it did for Becahi this

Bethlehem Catholic's wrestling future is now

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

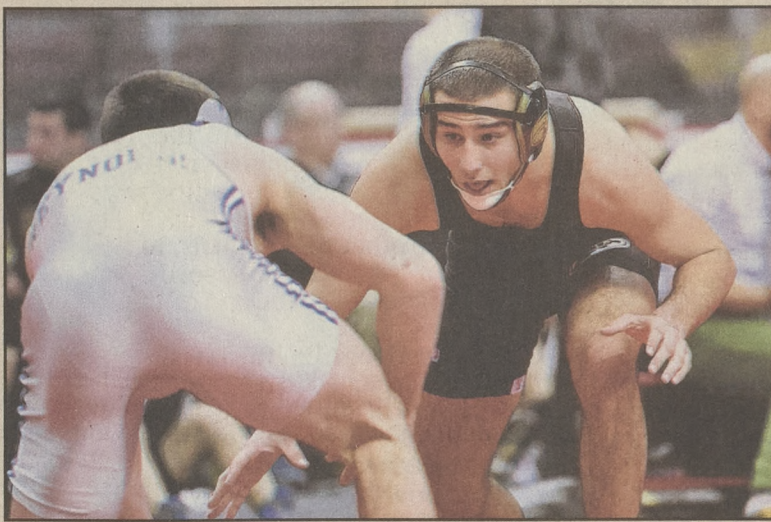

When asked what's next for Bethlehem Catholic wrestling, Jeff Karam responded with "Liberty."

The Hawks and Hurricanes were slated to meet Tuesday night (past Press deadlines) in the final home match of the season for Becahi seniors Zeke Moisey, Jose Ortiz and Nick Cortopassi.

A victory would give Becahi its third-straight Lehigh Valley Conference championship after securing their fourth-straight state title over the weekend.

With all the talk of what Becahi should do next for their wrestling glory, Karam preferred to think in the moment when everyone else appears to be peaking over the horizon.

"I remember when we had to wrestle Easton a couple years ago after winning states in our home gym for the LVC title," he said. "We lost that match and the LVC title. I didn't want to wrestle Liberty after states. We have a chance to add another trophy this week, but I would have preferred to have this match before states."

Nick Cortopassi, right, and the Hawks were still scheduled to take on Liberty for the LVC title after winning states this past weekend.

The bout was previously postponed due to weather, which has hampered the area all winter, and you should have certainly expected a storm on Tuesday night as brothers Jeff and Jody Karam brought their sibling rivalry to the main stage.

But with so much dialogue occurring about what the Hawks should do as a team in the future, whether it may be stay in 2A, or bump up to 3A, it's fair to say that they won't make people happy either way.

Should the Hawks stay in 2A, which Karam points out is where they belong, they could face a similar path to the title they breezed through this year. A jump to 3A would certainly bring the scorn of local fans from the borders of Easton, Nazareth or Parkland, who would undoubtedly find themselves swimming through murky water just to qualify for the PIAA team championships.

There really is no easy answer for the Hawks and the position their success has brought them in. Fans would like to have them compete in a separate parochial or prep category when it comes to the postseason, but that's not going to happen either.

A jump to 3A also appears unlikely.

"I'm going to do what's best for our kids and our school," said Karam about a possible leap into the big school category. "People need to look at the whole body of work, not just a team event. We're wrestling the tough-

Hawks face Vikes in LVC playoffs

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

After two straight losses heading into the Lehigh Valley Conference playoffs, Bethlehem Catholic head coach Mike Frew isn't too worried about his team's chances.

The Hawks (11-11) entered last night's opening round of the LVC playoffs as the fourth-seed, taking on top-seeded and undefeated Central Catholic (22-0) in the night cap at Memorial Gymnasium.

The results of those games are past Press deadlines, but Frew was reveling in the opportunity to take part in a contest on such a grand stage, despite the Hawks recent results with losses to Easton and Pottstown, where they've given up 72 and 81 points respectively in back-to-back fashion.

"We're in the [LVC] tournament for the first time since 2007 and we're thrilled about the opportunity," Frew said. "Two years ago we had five wins and now we're one of the top four teams in the league playoffs. I'm happy with the position we've found ourselves in."

Second-seeded Parkland (17-4) battled third-seeded Emmaus (16-6) in the opening round match-up at Liberty on Tuesday, as winners will advance to Friday's championship game back at Liberty.

Frew knows that if his team wants to mount the biggest upset of the season, they need to do a better job defensively against the Vikings, who have beaten teams on average this year by double digits.

"We don't have a very good winning percentage when we allow the opposition to score over 70 points," said Frew, "so we had practice on Sunday to reestablish our defensive identity. We want to dictate what the opposition does offensively and we need to shrink the court against Central. We can't allow them to dribble penetrate. It's a tough task because they are such a talented team, but we've worked hard all year for this."

Becahi lost to Central 60-42 in their only meeting this season, as the Vikings used a 20-3 second quarter burst to blow the game open.

"We actually won the third and fourth quarters, but we just couldn't get a handle on things in the second quarter," Frew said. "We need to keep things close as long as possible. We like playing in close games and I think we're more comfortable in that scenario, so it's going to be big for us to stay within striking distance."

Parkland knocked off Emmaus 62-55 this season and Tuesday's clash should be an entertaining match-up between both programs, as the Trojans have won three straight, while Emmaus has slipped a bit as of late, winning two of their last four games to end the season.

Liberty knocks out Freedom But Hurricanes fall short in a loss to Pocono Mt. West

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It was a regular season game billed as a playoff contest when Freedom traveled to Memorial Gymnasium last Friday to take on rival Liberty.

Both teams needed wins to keep their playoff hopes alive and Liberty did that, for at least one night, following a 56-45 victory on their home court.

Jaevan Dobbins scored a career-high 22 points to help give the Hurricanes (10-11, 6-8) life for one more night, as they needed to defeat the Patriots (8-14, 6-8) to keep their playoff hopes alive heading into last Saturday's contest against Pocono Mountain West (more on that later).

"This was the way a locker room was supposed to sound after a win," said Liberty head coach Chad Landis about the 'Canes enjoyment after beating Freedom. "We have to turn the page very fast because if we don't win [against PMW], it'll be short term joy. We know that and we've talked about that for the last couple weeks."

And for as well as Liberty knew that, the result and their end of season run didn't come to fruition, as the Hurricanes joined the Patriots on the sidelines of this year's District 11 tournament, as Liberty fell at Pocono Mountain West 86-60 Saturday afternoon.

Liberty trailed 59-51 heading into the final quarter on the road on Saturday, but a 27-9 fourth quarter run by the Panthers put out any hope of the Hurricanes qualifying for districts.

It was the same feeling that Freedom head coach Joe Stellato had after Friday's season-ending loss.

The defeat kept the Patriots a game under .500 in the LVC and gave them a bitter sweet ending despite how far this team fought over the course of the season.

"These four seniors that we had this year were unbelievable and I wanted to keep coaching them," Stellato said. "They'll learn from this and become great young men. We didn't get many rebounds and we went 4-for-20 from behind the arc, so you're not going to win a game like that when those two things go against us."

Liberty led 21-19 at the break against Freedom, but started to establish themselves in the interior right out of the gate, getting inside buckets from DeShawn Oyenyi (12 points) and Dobbins to lead 25-21.

Nigel Long, who was the only consistent source of offense for Freedom on the night, led the Pates with 18 points and his second triple of the night gave Freedom a 26-25 lead in the third, which started a mini string of three-point shots for the Pates, as they connected from behind the arc on three straight possessions, giving them a 32-31 lead with 3:30 in the third.

But that was all the offensive momentum Freedom would get the rest of the way, as Liberty outscored the Pates 19-13 in the fourth quarter and carried a nine-point lead over the final three minutes en route to a comfortable win.

Obviously, the comfort level for Liberty dropped on Saturday, as it's the first time in Landis' six-year tenure that the Hurricanes haven't made the district tournament and the first time since the 2004-2005 basketball season that Liberty will not be involved in the postseason.

Liberty qualifies for districts; Hawks in LVC playoffs

Last Friday night, there was more on the line for Liberty and Freedom's girls basketball teams than a rivalry win, because at the end of the night, only one team would qualify for district playoffs.

It was the Hurricanes who prevailed on their home court, 56-45, advancing to the district tournament, which begins next week.

Regarding a recent losing streak, Liberty senior, Dominique Oyenyi, said, "We were kind of thinking about that. Some people were down on us, but we worked hard and talked about those games."

Whether it was the rivalry factor or the district playoff factor, the Hurricanes started the game with a bang, taking a 15-5 lead by the end of the first quarter. The Patriots, however, scored 15 points of their own in the second quarter to pull within five by halftime.

"At first, we were concerned because usually we get a lead and other teams come back, but we kept our intensity up and kept pushing the ball," said Oyenyi, who scored four points in the third quarter.

Maddie Capuano and Torie Zerbe hit a three pointer apiece to widen the Hurricanes' lead.

The Patriots tried to shift the momentum at the end of the third quarter when Taylor Garza had back-to-back layups.

Garza later hit a three pointer, along with teammates Brenna Dosedlo, who had two, and Tori McCaslin, but Liberty refused to let their rival shrink the gap by less than seven points.

LHS girls top Emmaus

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Liberty's girls swimming team knew that last year's tie with Emmaus was good, but an all-out victory would be better, so the Hurricanes took first place in eight events, surviving close calls in five, to score a 99-87 victory over the Hornets last Thursday.

"Especially because we tied last year, we were so excited the week before. [Defeating Emmaus] was one of our main goals," said Liberty senior, Rachel Rider.

Rider was first in the water for the Hurricanes, leading off in the 200 medley relay, the first event of the day.

"I didn't want to let my team down, and I wanted to give my team the lead," she said.

Julia McCarthy was in the water next, followed by Emily Cecchini, and Kayla Drago, who out-touched Emmaus's Brooke Vanim for the Hurricane win with a time of 1:55.07.

Emmaus's time was 1:55.97.

"I think it set the tone for the rest of the meet, and the streak continued. We won all the events except four," said Rider.

Liberty's Jocelyn Baker won the 200 free in 2:00.85, and Emmaus's Natalie Schaeffer placed second in 2:00.93. Drago won the 100 free in 55.29, and Emmaus's Casey Young placed second in 55.39.

Rider had two close races of her own, winning the 100 butterfly in 1:02.03, out-touching Emmaus's Claire Frank, who was second in 1:02.66, and winning the 100 backstroke in 1:01.43, out-touching Emmaus's Tori Bingham, who was second in 1:02.22.

Rider said, "I was really nervous [in the fly]. It's one of my favorite events. On the third turn, I saw I was ahead, and that was motivating. [In the backstroke] I was nervous for that too because in the medley relay, I had barely beat the girl in their medley relay. I just focused on that one."

In other individual events, Baker took first place in the 500 free in 5:18.88, and McCarthy took first place in the 200 IM in 2:13.59.

As the meet began to wind down, the Hurricanes realized they would need to win the final event of the day, the 400 free relay, or take second and third place in the same event to guarantee the victory over the Hornets. "That was a lot of pressure," said Rider.

Rising to the occasion, Drago, Anita Kundu, Baker, and McCarthy won the 400 free relay by almost five seconds, with a time of 3:45.65.

"We couldn't believe it. That was our last home meet, so that was a good way to end it," Rider said.

On Wednesday, the Hurricanes will visit the Freedom Patriots for arguably the friendliest rivalry matchup in Bethlehem. This meet was moved up a day because of potential for snow Thursday.

Boys lose unbeaten season

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

The Emmaus boys swim team may have put an end to Liberty's undefeated season last Thursday, but the Hornets could not take away the Hurricanes' pride in their 2013-2014 season.

Liberty captain, Brandon Merkert, said, "We're still 12-1. We still have a good record. Knowing they were really fast, we just decided to swim as fast as we can. We said to watch the kids in the lanes next to you and hope for the best."

Individual event winners for the Hurricanes were Reid Rossi in the 100 butterfly with a time of 55.42, Sean Vannata in the 100 backstroke with a time of 57.09, and Meryum Okumus, diving for the boys team, with 153 points.

Liberty's Jacob Jones was out-touched in the 50 free, as Emmaus's Andrew Bond placed first in 22.96. Jones's time was 23.19.

Hurricane swimmers, Brandon Hlavaty, Nolan Vannata, Merkert, and Evan Smith also won the 200 free relay with a time of 1:34.07. Emmaus placed second with a time of 1:34.27.

Merkert said, "We started out with the lead, and when I went, we still had the lead. The kid from Emmaus started catching Evan Smith, and then Evan pulled ahead at the end."

This Wednesday will be the long-awaited Liberty versus Freedom meet, scheduled to take place at Freedom High School's Natatorium this year.

"We know they're fast, and they're our rivals. We definitely want to win, but we have to work hard and swim our best times to do it," said Merkert.

This meet was moved up a day because of potential for snow Thursday.

Freedom boys win two

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Heading into the final meet of the regular season, Freedom High School's boys swimming team scored two victories last week, a 93-82 win over Central Catholic and a 103-66 win over Moravian Academy.

Individual event winners for the Patriots in the meet against the Vikings were Connor Harrigan in the 200 free with a time of 1:52.26 and the 100 butterfly with a time of 57.27, Sam Magnan in the 100 free with a time of 50.38, Peter Conzola in the 500 free with a time of 4:56.32, and Andrew Conzola in the 100 backstroke with a time of 1:06.07.

The Patriots also won all three relays, events which score the most points.

Peter Conzola, Brandon Burnette, Harrigan, and Magnan opened the meet with a 1:47.77 victory in the 200 medley relay. Peter Conzola, Shjon Watlington, Harrigan, and Magnan later won the 200 free relay in 1:36.01, just .21 seconds ahead of the relay team from Central.

Magnan said, "Pete had the lead, and I'm pretty sure Shjon held it. A Central kid passed Connor, and then I dove in about a body length behind and caught up to him, and out-touched him."

The 400 free relay was just as close.

Tyler Higgins, Magnan, Peter Conzola, and Watlington won the last event of the day in 3:30.57, just .37 seconds ahead of the relay team from Central.

"We didn't think it was going to be that close, but we still got the job done. It was exciting because it was the last event," said Magnan.

In the meet against Moravian Academy, Harrigan, Trevor Watlington, Peter Conzola, and Higgins led off with a 200 medley relay victory in 1:51.74.

Higgins took first place in the 200 free with a time of 2:00.94, and Cameron Bell placed first in the 200 IM with a time of 2:18.48 and the 100 backstroke with a time of 1:06.47.

Peter Conzola out-touched Magnan in the 100 butterfly with a time of 57.77, and Magnan out-touched Moravian Academy's Daniel Weekes in the 100 free with a time of 50.02.

Shjon Watlington won the 500 free with a time of 5:15.22, and Trevor Watlington won the 100 breaststroke with a time of 1:09.63.

Freedom's final meet of the regular season is scheduled for Wednesday, when they will host the Liberty Hurricanes.

This meet was moved up a day because of potential for snow Thursday.

Patriot girls end with a victory

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Freedom High School's girls swimming team survived an 89-81 victory over Moravian Academy last week after suffering recent losses the week prior.

Freedom junior, Helen Hsu, said, "Three meets before, they were tough ones. We knew that going in, so we were just trying to do our best. It was nice to finally come out on the winning side."

Hsu won the 50 free in 24.46 and the 500 free in 5:16.01.

Other individual event winners for the Patriots were Carly DelFranco in the 200 IM with a time of 2:17.61, and the 100 free with a time of 57.94.

Hsu, Kelly Kopko, DelFranco, and Reilly Ward also took first place in the 200 medley relay with a time of 1:59.36.

"We had some opportunities to race other swimmers, and we were trying to focus on individual times," said Hsu.

Also last week, the Freedom girls defeated Central Catholic 103-74.

DelFranco, Kopko, Hsu, and Shannon Howell opened the meet with a 1:56.03 victory in the 200 medley relay. Hsu, Howell, DelFranco, and Caitlin McCadden also won the 200 free relay with a time of 1:46.70.

Individual event winners for the Patriot girls against the Vikings were Hsu in the 200 free with a time of 1:55.51, DelFranco in the 200 IM with a time of 2:20.77 and the 100 butterfly with a time of 1:04.95, Rachel Giles in the 50 free with a time of 27.41 and the 100 backstroke with a time of 1:07.89, Reilly Ward in the 100 free with a time of 1:02.07, and Howell in the 500 free with a time of 5:33.39.

Wednesday, the Patriots will host crosstown rival, Liberty, for the final swim meet of the regular season.

This meet was moved up a day because of potential for snow Thursday.

Future

est schedule out there, whether it's wrestling in the LVC or going to the Beast of the East or Escape the Rock.

"We try to prepare our kids with the best competition possible, but when we go out to states and compete in the team tournament, we don't see those same schools at the tournaments we go to. Reynolds is really the only [2A] school we see when we travel, so there's a lot of work that goes into what we do. I'm in no hurry to move to 3A."

And Karam is in no hurry to think about next year either, as the Hawks also have a match against Freedom on Wednesday.

After that, it's focusing on the individual postseason with districts, regionals and states on the horizon.

So much talk of what Becahi should do or what should be done to them has become as a common as them winning.

The truth of the matter is, Karam is in a no-win situation with the current state of the Hawks when it comes to public opinion.

He seems to relish this window of opportunity his team is enjoying, because like he said after winning the district title two weeks ago, "I know we're not going to win forever."

People would like to believe that, but the pipeline of talent for Becahi's future will not be bar-ren.

And if that means Karam will have to collect another state medal next year, so be it.

The ones he's already accumulated are tucked away in a drawer, randomly popping up over the course of the year to serve as reminder of what the wrestling team has accomplished.

"I don't really take much into the medals," Karam said. "I keep them in a drawer and when I see them, it's a memory of what our young men have done."

Those memories still have another month of action left to unfold, so before people wonder about what Becahi can do next year, let's see how they can finish this year.

Four

season, but Karam understood that part of the process for an easier ride this season began with the ultimate qualifier format in the district tournament.

The trend continued in states when Fort LeBoeuf, who the Hawks shutout 62-0 in Friday's quarterfinals, essentially raised the white flag after falling behind early, as they looked toward wrestling in the consolation bracket.

Having his team not see everyone's best can be a trying aspect of the journey toward state glory and it's something that Karam doesn't enjoy as well.

"It does get annoying at times," Karam said. "The last thing I ever want to do is back away from competition. I understand why some teams try to do it, but it's not what we look forward to."

The Hawks journey to state gold may have given joy to the program and the wrestlers involved, but it certainly won't quell the detractors in their assessment of the program.

As easy as the title run was for the Hawks, it may have put them in a position to ponder if winning the district and state tournament in this fashion, by having teams essentially surrender, makes it all worth it?

Nobody knows what the future holds for Becahi, but one thing that's certain is that they're certainly content with where they're at.

"One thing I noticed the other day at school, was that they only have our state championship trophies in the trophy case," Karam said. "I was told they don't have room for all the trophies as of now so they have to build an addition."

"It takes a lot of work to get to where we're at and I really want to thank all the coaches and support we get from the administration and the parents. Each title you win is special, but the last one you win is always the one that sticks out the most and we're going to enjoy this."

Girls

The Patriots had one more change to clinch a berth on Monday night against Central, but lost.

Also last Friday, Bethlehem Catholic defeated Easton, 67-16. The Becahi girls will take part in the LVC playoffs this week, which take place after Press deadlines.

The Hawks are the tourney's top seed and were scheduled to face fourth-seed Nazareth on Tuesday at Liberty. If they win, the girls would face the winner of Parkland and Central on Friday in the finals, also at Liberty.

Really Terrible Orchestra, really good time

Amateur violinist Colleen Shoneveld plays during a recent concert by the Really Terrible Orchestra of Pennsylvania at the Bethlehem Area Public Library. The Bethlehem resident is credited with forming the local orchestra for amateur musicians in 2008 after hearing about the original Really Terrible Orchestra in Edinburgh, Scotland. The RTO-PA has grown to more than 50 musicians from the Lehigh Valley and claims to be the first of six similar orchestras in the United States.

Really Terrible Orchestra member Gary Glascom of Bethlehem plays cello during the annual holiday concert.

Fennell is a violinist with the orchestra and the conductor's wife.

Conductor George Fennell wears red for the holiday season as he directs the Really Terrible Orchestra. The retired music teacher from Allentown also conducts the Lehigh Valley Pops Orchestra and the American Legion Band of Bethlehem. "We are not good musicians trying to be bad, but bad musicians trying to do our very best," quipped Fennell during the concert by RTO amateur musicians who practice weekly at Kirkland Village in Bethlehem.

Out-of-state conference questioned

By MARK RECCEK

Special to the Bethlehem Press

Saucon Valley School District School Board members questioned the cost and worth of approving a conference at the Jan. 28 board meeting.

At issue for board members was Saucon Valley HS math teacher Elizabeth Allen's request to attend the NATM annual meeting April 1 in New Orleans. The board approved Allen attending the conference 6-2, with board members Susan Baxter and John Dowling opposed.

Baxter questioned the length of time Allen will be absent from the district.

"We are taking a math teacher out of the high school for three days," Baxter said. "I don't think a teacher [substitute] can come in and teach at the same level."

Board member Edward Inghrim questioned the type of technologies taught and utilized during the conference, which he said are not current.

"I personally feel very uncomfortable using taxpayers' money and sending them [Allen] to New Orleans, considering most of this technology has been around for years," he said.

High school Principal Eric Kahler said the conference teaches the participant to utilize math concepts in different ways, using technologies that are older to engage students.

Board member Ralph Puerta said while he does not support the conference, the board previously reviewed the agenda item.

"I'm not comfortable voting against something that had several approvals already," he said.

Member Bryan Eichfeld questioned why the majority of conferences are held during the academic year and not during the summer break.

According to district

Superintendent Sandra Fellin, $18,000 is budgeted for conferences, amounting to $6,000 each per school building.

"I want teachers to get out of the district and get new horizons and see how things are done," she said.

Board President Michael Karabin asked Fellin in the future to have those wanting to attend conferences present their reasons to the board prior to the board voting on approval.

SAUCON VALLEY SCHOOL BOARD

Gaming Authority accepting applications

By BERNIE O'HARE

Special to the Bethlehem Press

Though Pennsylvania has no money trees, it has the next best thing - casinos. Last year, the state's 12 casinos raked in $3 billion. At the top of this mountain of cash was none other than Bethlehem's Sands Casino resort. It had gross revenues of more than $176 million from table games alone. A big piece of this gambling pie funds local government, both in host fees and grants. Northampton County's nine-member gaming authority awards the grants, primarily to contiguous municipalities impacted by gambling. After a two-month break, the board met Jan. 27.

At this meeting, officers were elected: Jay Finnigan, chair; Joe Kelly, vice chair; John Dally, secretary; and Tom Nolan, treasurer. All votes were unanimous.

In addition, members unanimously agreed to appoint Northampton County Economic Development Analyst Karen Collis as their executive director. She replaces Alicia Karner, who resigned to take over Bethlehem's Department of Community and Economic Development.

Collis is currently seeking applications for gaming revenue grants. These requests are limited to municipalities contiguous to the city of Bethlehem, and must be in by March 3. Applicants are required to show how they've been impacted by the casino. After deciding on these requests, the board usually opens up the grant process to other municipalities.

According to Treasurer Tom Nolan, the gaming authority is currently sitting on $354,223 in "restricted" funds set aside for grants in process. There is also $446,403 in uncommitted funds.

Freemansburg Mayor Gerald Yob, who also sits on the gaming board, complained that his borough had to borrow money to pay for two police cars because the grant process is split into quarterly payments. Finningan and Kelly both told Yob that his grant was based on anticipated rev-

BETHLEHEM HISTORY
Love in bloom

Ken Raniere
Columnist

Love stories abound in South Bethlehem. Take, for example, the marriage of South Bethlehem's own "royal" couple in October 1880: Warren Abbott Wilbur, son of banker and Lehigh Valley Railroad president, E.P. Wilbur, wedded his first love, Sallie Packer Linderman, daughter of Dr. Garrett Brodhead Linderman.

The untimely death of Sallie in 1898 inspired Warren to donate funds for the bell tower which was built at the southwest corner of Cathedral Church of the Nativity. Inscribed on the east wall beneath the ceiling, Warren dedicated the bell tower to the memory of his wife, Sallie.

Three years later, widower Warren Abbott Wilbur married his second love, Kate Ellen, the daughter of long-time family friend, Charles Brodhead.

Shortly thereafter, Warren and Kate Wilbur moved into their spacious new residence at 531 West Third St. — a sprawling Colonial Revival mansion with a gambrel roof flanked by two sets of double chimneys, a mansion fit for a bank president.

Earlier in 1892, Warren Wilbur hired architect A.W. Leh, who designed a stable on a separate lot located around the corner on Cherokee Street. In 1912, Mr. Wilbur, as called by his servants, traded his carriage and prized horses for his new Pierce Arrow. In need of a personal chauffeur and mechanic, Wilbur hired 25-year-old George Weaver, an American of Irish descent. George resided in the adequate yet convenient living quarters on the second floor of the stable-turned-garage.

Wilbur lived his life according to a period of time whose years were numbered, a lifestyle to which he and his parents were accustomed during Fountain Hill's "Gilded Age." Financially sound, Wilbur made sojourns to exotic locations in the Caribbean, specifically to the island of Jamaica. In 1905, Wilbur and his wife were frequent guests at the rebuilt 400-room Titchfield Hotel, which overlooked Port Antonio. Invariably, chauffeur George Weaver would find himself driving Wilbur's Pierce Arrow on Jamaica's narrow and muddy roads.

During summer months, George would chauffeur the automobile at Alexandria Bay while Wilbur, his wife Kate and his mother Stella rusticated on their Thousand Islands summer retreat, Sport Island.

Sarah, a 16-year-old servant-girl hired by Wilbur's wife in 1910, traveled to South Bethlehem from Laurys Station, where she left behind her Irish parents, Patrick and Sarah (Maxwell) McNamara. Mrs. Wilbur considered Sarah an impeccable servant, a real "treasure." It was customary for Wilbur's servants to join him whenever he was away from his South Bethlehem mansion.

Wilbur gave his Irish servants the day off on Sundays to attend church services, a tradition started by his own parents, E.P. and Stella. On his day off, chauffeur Weaver enjoyed fishing with local sportsmen.

On several occasions, Weaver caught the eye of Sarah McNamara, second-floor maidservant. When their paths crossed again, each enjoyed the camaraderie of their company among their peers on Sundays during the summer. Before long, a romance budded and the couple became "an item," according to members of the Wilbur household staff.

Back home at the mansion at 531 West Third St., an unwritten rule among Fountain Hill gentry was to practice fairness in their treatment of servants, for any cruelty, intimate advances or unpleasantness toward them usually "got around" the neighborhood — eventually through town — and back to the family.

But servants' work was no picnic. They still had an extraordinary amount of work, from cooking to cleaning and washing sheets, clothes, tablecloths and napkins.

Eventually George Weaver married Sarah McNamara. In doing so, they left the Wilbur mansion and moved into a home on Cherokee Street. George and Sarah became the parents of a daughter, Dorothy, born in 1914 and in 1919, a son, Merritt, perhaps named in honor of Warren A. Wilbur's deceased brother. Though Sarah no longer worked as a servant, George remained Mr. Wilbur's chauffeur through the 1920s.

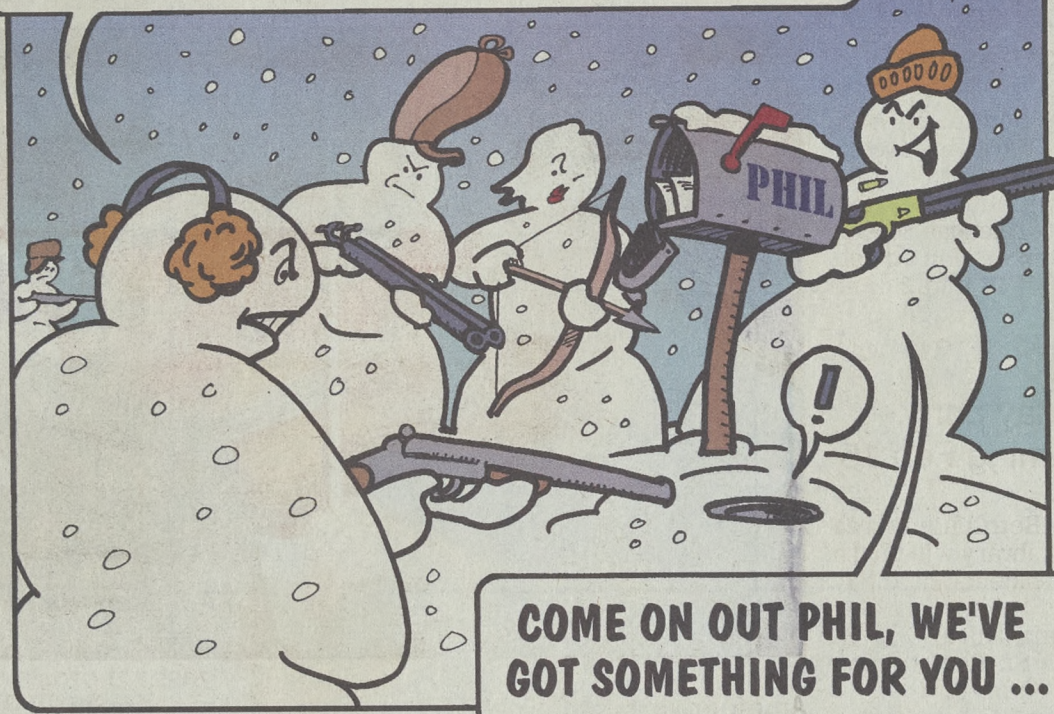

What remains of this tale are living descendants who survive George and Sarah and the place where they met and fell in love — at Warren A. Wilbur's mansion, which still stands at 531 West Third St. as an apartment house, along with the garage on Cherokee Street, just as Warren Wilbur and his wife Kate Ellen had left them.

PROPOSED STATE BUDGET

Some hopeful, some wary

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastzrzmki@tnonline.com

Governor Tom Corbett announced his proposed 2014-15 budget, at $29.4 billion, in an address Feb. 4.

Leaders and organizations statewide have responded with caution, criticism and apprehension.

State Sen. Lisa Boscola (D-18) said in a release she is still examining the fine print, but, "While budgets typically have things you like and do not like, I am cautiously optimistic that this spending plan uses scarce revenues well. I especially applaud the governor's investment in education and workforce development."

Boscola said she's in favor of the proposed $25 million "Ready to Succeed" scholarship program, and is pleased to see a 10 percent increase in rape crisis and domestic violence programs and funding for a newly-created Veterans' Trust Fund.

Rep. Ryan Mackenzie (R-134) said, "What we heard from the governor is that the state budget should be focused on creating jobs, strengthening education and protecting taxpayers, and I strongly agree. Getting there will be the hard part. Much of what the governor has proposed is dependent on legislators successfully coming to agreement on other issues, such as pension reform and liquor privatization. Doing so is not impossible, but it won't be easy."

The Pa. House Democratic Caucus disagrees. In a strident statement the caucus said the proposal continues failed policies and focuses on the wrong priorities. The plan will not undo the damage done by the nearly $1 billion in cuts Corbett made to public schools in his first year in office, which forced hundreds of school districts to raise property taxes, cut academic and extra-curricular programs and charge activity fees.

According to the Democratic Caucus, the plan does nothing to restore the more than 20,000 public school jobs lost through Corbett's cuts.

State Sen. Pat Browne (R-16), however, said in a statement the proposal calls for an additional $20 million for special education and an increase of $10 million for the Pennsylvania Pre-K Counts program. "I am certainly pleased that the governor recognized the importance of and need for investing in early childhood education programs and special education."

"These programs have a proven track record and produce the kinds of results that make a difference not only for those children, but also for our schools in the short-term and our society in the long-run."

Bethlehem Area School District Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy said he doesn't know what the increase in special education funding means to the district, but he is glad to see it.

Roy said increased funding from a "Ready to Learn" block grant may help, but he's as yet unsure how the money can be used.

He explained, "The very large question is whether we can use those dollars, No. 1, that's great and helps us balance our budget for next year. If the answer is No. 2, it does not help us balance the budget. A rough analogy to explain why; let's say a homeowner is struggling to make a monthly budget/ pay the mortgage, heating bill, etc. and someone (the governor) comes along and says, 'Hey, I have $500 for you to hire someone to cut your grass.' Well, you would probably use the $500 to get the grass cut — but that doesn't help you at all with your monthly budget issues."

Roy also said the budget is missing increases in reimbursement for bus transportation costs, charter tuition costs and construction costs.

Corbett cut the charter tuition reimbursement and the construction reimbursement (known as PlanCon) in his first year in office, Roy explained.

"The most helpful step the governor could have taken is to increase the state's contribution to general school district budgets/operations — known as the Basic Education Funding/Subsidy. That is the most direct way to help relieve the budget pressures on local districts and local taxpayers. Unfortunately, that didn't happen."

Roy said he hopes something is done to reduce the pension obligation for next year, and he's not alone in his worry over state pensions.

Pennsylvanians for Retirement Security released a statement saying, "Governor Corbett's plan to shore up the state's retirement system is to kick the can down the road, underfunding our pension plans and repeating the same mistakes that have jeopardized the retirement security of Pennsylvania's teachers, firefighters, police officers and thousands of other public employees."

PRS says the plan is full of false choices and ignores the billions of dollars worth of corporate tax cuts and loopholes

Corbett is giving away to big corporations. "The money we are currently losing to these corporate interests far outpaces the cost of responsibly investing in public pensions."

"Public workers depend on their modest pensions — an average $24,000 per year — to give them security in their retirement. It is unreasonable to expect these workers, who have dedicated their careers to serving their communities and who pay 6.25-7.5 percent of every paycheck toward their pension, to make needless sacrifices while the government continues to give billions of dollars away every year to big corporations."

Alan Jennings, executive director of the Community Action Committee of the Lehigh Valley, said the address showed improved rhetoric but no bold investments in our communities.

"On the most crucial issues of our time, too little is offered," Jennings said. "Stagnant wages that result in real people falling further behind; urban communities losing investment to the suburbs; our poorest citizens facing hunger and homelessness; our schools, especially in poor communities, lacking an aggressive commitment to our kids' education."

"I understand the concept of balance: We can't tip the scale so far that taxpayers flee the state, but we also can't afford to leave so many behind."

Corbett's besieged office is nine months from his try for a second term, and according to RealClearPolitics.com, many polls place him trailing his most popular competitor, Democratic U.S. Congresswoman Allyson Schwartz. As of last month his approval rating was about 23 percent.

ANOTHER VIEW

Nonprofits need closer scrutiny

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

A Northampton County Grand Jury recently painted a disturbing picture of the National Museum of Industrial History, which after 17 years, has yet to open its doors. It pays former Bethlehem Steel V.P. Steve Donches twice the going rate for an executive director. Board director Lee Butz has directed $2.8 million to his own construction management firm. But instead of being embarrassed by these findings, Donches and the NMIH board have circled the wagons, accusing Northampton County District Attorney John Morganello of "personal antagonism." Their reaction demonstrates the need for much closer scrutiny of area nonprofits.

First, salaries need to be monitored more closely by the state. Former Properties of Merit Executive Director

Sam Bennett once commanded an annual salary of $110,000 at a nonprofit whose annual budget was only $351,000.

Second, service on a nonprofit board should never be a vehicle for personal gain. It should instead be an opportunity for a director to give back to the community/institution/organization. When personal profit becomes the motive, board decisions are skewed in bizarre and negative ways. If personal gain is a by-product of "good works" on a nonprofit board, that board member should donate back the personal gain.

Third, service on a nonprofit board should be term limited. This prevents any one incumbent from becoming an unequal force and influence over other board members. It also prevents the nonprofit from becoming too comfortable and chummy. Board members should be prohibited from advertising membership on a board in any way that might lead to personal financial gain. They should also be barred from accepting contracts with or having a financial interest in any entity that does business with the nonprofit.

Donches and his supporters have pointed to a bad economy as a reason for his organization's failure. But over less time and in the same economy, Artsquest has blossomed on the city's Southside. Even though its focus has been music, it has done more to preserve this area's industrial history than the foundering museum. It is the logical and proven choice for preserving Bethlehem Steel history, and can accomplish that without giving any golden parachutes to the former steel execs whose bad business decisions resulted in the collapse of the area's largest employer.

Over less time and in the same economy, Artsquest has blossomed on the city's Southside. Even though its focus has been music, it has done more to preserve this area's industrial history than the foundering museum.

eneue that has not yet arrived from the casino. "You can't write a check if the money's not there," Finnigan explained.

Volunteer firefighter Kevin Kalman, who is associated with volunteer fire companies in both Free-mansburg and Bethlehem, complained that the board shows a "heavy slant toward the police departments," and a "less than proportionate representation of the fire companies."

Yob disputed Kalman's contention, noting that it is more difficult for fire companies to show they've been impacted by the casino. He added that a grant was recently obtained for defibrillators, which were then distributed to fire companies.

Finnigan sided with Yob, adding that Hanover Township was able to get a vehicle for its volunteer firefighters through a gaming grant.

Volunteer fire companies must apply for these grants through the affected municipality, Kelly cautioned.

As a final item of business, Solicitor Scott Allinson told the board that the terms of office have expired for members Timm Tenges and Tom Nolan. But he explained that, under the Municipalities Planning Code, a board member whose term has expired may continue to serve until he is reappointed or replaced.

Faith and Obedience #3

In the previous two columns, I emphasized that when God gave His unique blessing to Abraham, He required a response of faith and obedience from Abraham and Sarah (see www.naog.ws/pc.htm). "Get thee out of thy country...and I will bless thee" (Genesis 12:1-3). They believed God and obeyed, "and they went forth" (v.5). If they would have disobediently refused to leave Haran, they would NOT have received the blessing!

Through God's blessing to Abraham, revealed now in Jesus Christ, God promises us salvation from sin and requires a response of faith and obedience from us as Romans 16:25-26, states, "Now to him that is of power to establish you according to my gospel, and the preaching of Jesus Christ...according to the commandment of the everlasting God, made known to all nations for the obedience of faith." Repentance of our sins is the beginning step of responding in faith and obedience to God for He "commandeth all men every where to repent" (Acts 17:30).

As I pointed out in previous columns, the ultimate purpose of the blessing of Abraham was revealed through the seed of Abraham in Jesus Christ through the universal outpouring of the Holy Ghost upon all flesh as Galatians 3:14 states, "That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith." John the Baptist, speaking of Jesus said, "he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire" (Luke 3:16). Jesus required His disciples to obey His commands to wait for the baptism of the Holy Ghost, "I send the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high" (Luke 24:49). He "commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father" (Acts 1:4). After the Pentecostal outpouring, Peter emphasized the importance of their obedience when he referred to, "the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him" (Acts 5:32). Obedience to God is critical in receiving the Holy Ghost as I discovered at the age of 15 when God let me know that I had made an idol of a game I loved (see www.naog.ws/thirsty.htm and www.naog.ws/tv60.htm).

On the 'Eve'

Angelique Kidjo's latest album is tribute to women

By CAMILLE CAPRIGLIONE
Special to The Press

The world-renowned Angelique Kidjo has a vast musical career paralleled by her extraordinary humanitarian achievements and a passion for her homeland in Africa. She has a tireless advocacy for the women of Africa, traveling extensively for charitable projects. These include visits to Darfur and Kenya.

Kidjo, a UNICEF Goodwill Ambassador, was named one of the Top 100 Most Inspiring Women in the World by The Guardian, a British newspaper. Time magazine has called her "Africa's premier diva." London's Daily Telegraph named her "The undisputed Queen of African Music."

Kidjo performs at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 19, Musikfest Café, ArtsQuest Center, SteelStacks, 101 Founders Way, Bethlehem.

The Grammy Award-winner fled her home country of Benin in 1983. The Communist dictatorship there prevented Kidjo from being an independent music artist, so she lived in exile in Paris.

She has a 20-year discography and has performed thousands of concerts worldwide. Kidjo sings in four languages.

Music influences include Afropop, Caribbean zouk, Congolese rumba, jazz, gospel and Latin. She received a Grammy for World Music Album in 2007.

Her childhood idols include Miriam Makeba, Nina Simone and Aretha Franklin. She has recorded George Gershwin's "Summertime," Jimi Hendrix's "Voodoo Child" and The Rolling Stones' "Gimme Shelter."

She has collaborated with Dave Matthews, Bradford Marsalis, Philip Glass, Peter Gabriel, Bono, Carlos Santana, John Legend and Herbie Hancock.

Kidjo's autobiography, "Spirit Rising: My Life, My Music" (HarperCollins), published Jan. 7, has a preface by Desmond Tutu and a foreword by Alicia Keys.

Kidjo's latest album, "Eve" (Savoy/429 Records), was released Jan. 28.

Her United States tour includes concerts in Town Hall, New York City; Prince Theatre, Philadelphia; and in North Carolina and Georgia.

Kidjo lives with her songwriter husband, Jean Hebrailin, in Park Slope, Brooklyn. On the day before the phone interview, she had returned from having performed with the Luxembourg Philharmonic Orchestra.

To speak with Kidjo is to be whisked away to another place. Her high-spirited personality shines with resilience and hope, and her deep laugh is infectious.

Does her book reveal anything about Kidjo that her fans may not have known before?

"That I had a childhood like anyone else," Kidjo replies. "And," she adds with a laugh, "that I am overcoming my complex of having skinny legs. They wanted to put me in a dress [for the book cover] and I said, 'You can forget about that!'" Kidjo came to adore the dress that was chosen for her and agreed to wear it anyway.

Being a performer has enhanced Kidjo's role as a philanthropist. Of the two roles she says, "They are not separate. I am in service of the song. I'm a storyteller. We must tell the story of who we are. My grandmother used to say, 'If you say something, say it loud.'"

The album, "Eve," includes women's choirs from several African villages in Benin and Kenya, singing in several languages.

"It's not different because the same person created it," Kidjo says of the album in comparison to her other albums. "It incorporates all the women who made me who I am today. This album ['Eve'] is about the beauty and resilience of African women. [Media] portrays us in misery. But women are the backbone of the country."

Band members for "Eve" include her long-time collaborator Dominic James, guitarist and fellow Benin native Lionel Loueke, drummer Steve Jordan, bassist Christian McBride and Senegalese percussionist Magatte Sow, as well as guest musicians Dr. John and the The Kronos Quartet.

Kidjo's intriguing speech weaves a tapestry of words that pull you along her astonishing journey of her African heritage. "We were middle class. My father had one paycheck for 10 children. But I was not short of love, not short of support. I was spoken to as an adult.

"My father's family, my ancestors ... he was related to a king ... [my ancestors] were cut by rebels. They fought fiercely. That is why I am here today."

When asked where her favorite place is to relax and unwind, Kidjo replies, "Anywhere where there's no Internet, no phone, where I can reconnect with my inner self. Think about what I've done wrong, and done right. A place with no distractions, with good food, good people and good talk.

"We are beings who need to connect. Technology is cutting that off.

"That's why I love touring," Kidjo adds. "I love meeting people. Heaven and earth are the same for me."

Maurer's storied career

By ELIZABETH OUELLETTE
Special to The Press

Karen Maurer, a Bethlehem storyteller, brings her craft to the Lehigh Valley Storytelling Guild's "Winter Children's Series," 2 p.m. Feb. 16, Godfrey Daniels, 7 E. Fourth St., Bethlehem.

The series, held every first and third Sunday through the winter season at Godfrey's, highlights a different member of the guild for each session. Each session, which lasts about one hour, is part of the LVSG's mission to promote and celebrate the art of storytelling.

LVSG members are professional and amateur storytellers, actors and poets who have a love for the ancient art of storytelling. This year's Children's Series included Mary Wright, Larry Scourman and Robbi Kumalo. Upcoming in the series at Godfrey's: Ingrid Bohn, March 2, and Kristin Pedemonti, March 16.

"Storytelling is so important to literacy and to learning cause and effect," says Maurer, a retired librarian. "It's wonderful for person-to-person contact. It needs to be revisited."

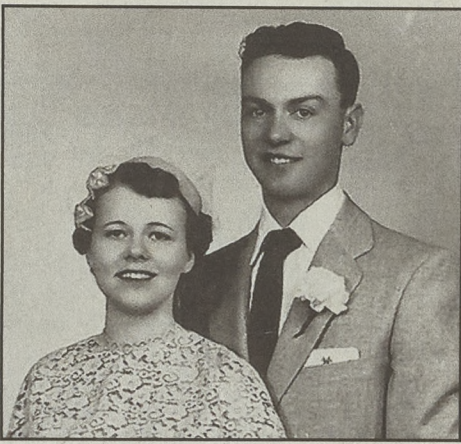

"The word 'storytelling' is in almost everything, in every magazine, in every commercial. It's just everywhere. It is a meme that has become pervasive in society. It's about one person interacting with an audience."

Maurer, always a voracious reader, became interested in storytelling as a girl. "I came from a large family," she explains, "and I would help my parents entertain my younger brothers and sisters with my tales."

Years later, she honed her skills in the local libraries where she worked. Maurer, originally at Easton Area Public Library and then for 22 years as librarian at Parkland Community Library, developed children's and intergenerational storytelling programs. Now, she brings her folk tales

Types of hepatitis detailed

Q. How many kinds of hepatitis are there?

Your liver helps your body digest food, store energy and remove poisons. Hepatitis is an inflammation of the liver that makes it stop working efficiently.

Hepatitis is usually caused by a virus. There are five main hepatitis viruses: types A, B, C, D and E. There are several other causes of hepatitis.

Some people who have hepatitis have no symptoms. Others may have loss of appetite, fatigue, nausea, vomiting, fever, muscle and joint pain, diarrhea, dark-colored urine, pale bowel movements, stomach pain and jaundice.

Hepatitis A: Hepatitis A virus (HAV) is in the feces of infected persons. It is most often spread through contaminated water or food. Hand-washing can prevent the spread of this virus. Many cases of HAV infections are mild. Most people with HAV make a full recovery and remain immune to it. However, HAV can be life-threatening. Safe and effective vaccines are available to prevent HAV.

Hepatitis B: Hepatitis B virus (HBV) infections range in severity from a mild illness lasting a few weeks, to a serious long-term illness that can lead to liver scarring (cirrhosis) and cancer. HBV usually gets better on its own after a few months.

It is transmitted through contact with infectious blood, semen and other body fluids from having sex with an infected person, sharing contaminated needles for injecting drugs, or from an infected mother to her newborn.

Hepatitis B vaccination is recommended for infants, older children and adolescents who were not vaccinated previously, and adults at risk for HBV.

Hepatitis C: Hepatitis C virus (HCV) usually causes a chronic condition that can lead to cirrhosis of the liver and liver cancer. Hepatitis C virus is mostly transmitted through exposure to infected blood. Sexual transmission is also possible, but is much less common. It can also spread from mother to baby during childbirth. There is no vaccine for HCV.

Usually, hepatitis C does not get better by itself. The infection can last a lifetime. Medicines sometimes help. Serious cases may need a liver transplant.

Hepatitis D: Hepatitis D virus (HDV) infections occur only in those who are infected with HBV. The dual infection of HDV and HBV can cause a more serious disease. Hepatitis B vaccines provide protection from HDV. HDV is transmitted through contact with infected blood. Hepatitis D is uncommon in the United States.

Hepatitis E: Hepatitis E virus (HEV) usually does not lead to a chronic infection. It is caused by ingesting fecal matter in contaminated water or food. HEV is a common cause of hepatitis outbreaks in developing parts of the world. It is rare in the United States. Safe and effective vaccines to prevent HEV infection have been developed but are not widely available.

Alcoholic hepatitis: Alcoholic hepatitis is likely to affect people who drink heavily for a long time, but all heavy drinkers don't develop it. Moderate drinkers can get alcoholic hepatitis. If you have this form of hepatitis, you must stop drinking; it can be fatal.

Women have a higher risk of developing alcoholic hepatitis than men do. Other factors which may increase your risk include: type of beverage (wine is less risky than beer or liquor), binge drinking, obesity and being African-American or Hispanic.

Toxic hepatitis: Toxic hepatitis is from exposure to over-the-counter pain relievers, prescription medications such as cholesterol-lowering statins, herbs and supplements, and industrial chemicals. Alcoholic hepatitis can be included in this category.

Autoimmune hepatitis: Autoimmune hepatitis is inflammation that occurs when your body's immune system attacks your liver. Untreated autoimmune hepatitis can lead to cirrhosis and liver failure. When treated early, autoimmune hepatitis often can be controlled with drugs that suppress the immune system.

Neighbors can make or break a home

My dear friend Jeanne moved on to a new stage of her life that meant buying her own home.

Bubbling with excitement, she took me to see the house as soon as she signed the papers.

When we pulled up to the house, she had tears in her eyes from happiness.

It's a grand new house, complete with soaring cathedral ceilings and a master bathroom her grandson thinks is big enough for a basketball team.

Faced for the first time with buying a home completely on her own, Jeanne did a good job of thinking about all the variables. She wanted a new home that wouldn't demand repairs or updating.

The home also appealed to her because it came completely furnished with nice furniture that fit with Jeanne's taste.

"I tried to think of everything and all potential expenses as I was picking a place," she said.

There was one thing she didn't check before she signed the papers: the neighbors.

Neighbors are important to Jeanne as they are for me. She relishes a friendly relationship with neighbors, just as she had in her old neighborhood where she made friends up and down the block.

I do have to say her old neighborhood was extraordinary with mostly lively, retired folks who were always finding excuses to have neighborhood parties.

When someone is going away, one of the neighbors volunteer to watch the house, take in the mail and water the plants. They share fruit from their trees and produce from their gardens.

Everybody in her old neighborhood always took a shine to easygoing Jeanne and I hope she will find the same kind of neighbors near her new home.

So far, she hasn't met a neighbor. There are homes up and down the block but Jeanne says the street seems devoid of people.

"I never see anyone coming or going. No cars, no movement," Jeanne says.

Some people would love that kind of place. They call it wonderful privacy. Many like to drive home, shut their garage door and enjoy privacy.

According to HGTV, a desire for privacy is high on demand from potential buyers.

Jeanne and I both prefer having neighbors that are, well, neighborly. We both like having people around.

Before I bought my homes in both Pennsylvania and Florida, I made sure I got to know my potential neighbors. In both instances, I was blessed with wonderful neighbors. There were plenty of times when I told myself if having great neighbors were a taxable asset, the taxes on my home would soar.

When I was considering buying the sweet little cottage I now own in Florida, I first asked the seller about the neighbors. She told me they are so wonderful she was reluctant to move away from them.

We laugh about that conversation a lot because when I asked her that question about neighbors we had no idea what would come next for her. After she bought a home in a more upscale part of our development, she eventually sold her big house and moved back to her old neighborhood. She now lives across the street from me and we are close friends — forever friends.

We would do anything for each other. Sometimes I cook something for her family so she can relax for a night. When I have an early morning doctor's appointment, Kay doesn't mind getting up early to take me. What a joy it is to have her back on "our block."

My neighbors are friendly and caring. But they are not intrusive. They tend not to visit unless invited.

I grew up in the coal regions where we didn't stand on ceremony and we didn't think we needed an engraved invitation to visit neighbors. But the world has changed since then and most people tend not to stop by without an invitation.

I often call Kay to have coffee with me in the morning, or, to be a guinea pig for a new recipe I'm trying.

She's my favorite neighbor, but fortunately, she's not the only nice neighbor on the block.

In late summer a storm with high winds blew down two trees in my yard. One fell across my driveway and had to be taken care of right away.

I went outside with big cutters to work on the tree. It was sweltering hot and my clothes quickly were soon soaked through.

Before I could get very far, Bob, my next-door neighbor appeared with an electrical saw. "You'll be there all day with those clippers. I'll take care of it for you," he offered.

He not only cut the two trees into manageable pieces, but he also hauled them away. That's the kind of neighbors I have.

People can make or break a neighborhood.

My friends Pat and Tom live in a great house but they have what they call the ultimate neighbor from hell.

The scary neighbor is forever screaming obscenities at neighbors or calling police to complain about imagined infractions.

When he threatened to shoot the neighbor on the other side, she moved away because she couldn't take his tirades anymore.

All it takes is one neighbor like that to ruin a neighborhood.

When people are buying a home, they hire an inspector to find any problem. Few thoroughly check the neighbors.

They should. Neighbors can enhance or take away from the desirability of a home.

Whether you're seeking privacy or friendliness, it's pays to know what you're getting.

'Her': Love at first gigabyte

"Her" is a brilliant, prescient and unsettling romantic comedy by director Spike Jonze (born Adam Spiegel; director, "Adaptation," 2002; "Being John Malkovich," 1999).

The "Her" of the film's title is an OS1 (as in "Operating System," the recorded voice within a phone, mobile device or computer).

"Her" takes place in Los Angeles of the not-too-distant future where Theodore Twombly (Joaquin Phoenix) works as a Cyber Cyranos, composing handwritten love letters for folks at a loss for words to express their feelings to their significant others.

Theodore downloads the OS1 app and quickly becomes enthralled with the voice on the other end of the earbud named Samantha (We can't blame him. The voice is portrayed by Scarlett Johansson).

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein

Johansson and Phoenix during the film, is nominated for an original song Oscar.

"Her" is also nominated for Oscars for picture, original screenplay (Jonze), original score, and production design. "Her" received a screenplay Golden Globe.

"Her" is hypnotic in its dialogue lure (Johansson's voice and Jonze's often poetic observations) and mesmerizing in his rhythmic editing.

Samantha is Tinker Bell with Theodore as Peter Pan. He'd follow her anywhere — even though she's emotionally unavailable, not unlike Hal 9000 from "2001: A Space Odyssey" (1968).

Go see, "Her." Then, we'll talk. Or maybe you'd rather talk to your hand, with your phone in it.

"Her," MPAA Rated R (Restricted. Children Under 17 Require Accompanying

The subplot has to do with Amy (Amy Adams, at first unrecognizable as a modest, unassuming young woman — and as remarkable an actor as ever) and her flesh and blood boyfriend.

Jonze scrupulously uses flashbacks to recount Theodore's relationship with Catherine (Rooney Mara), with whom he's going through a divorce.

Phoenix is remarkable as Theodore, shaping a relaxed upbeat happiness that masks his character's deep-seated loneliness.

The soundtrack is lovely. "The Moon Song," co-written by Spke Jonze and Karen O (Karen Lee Orzolek), and sung by

Box Office, Feb. 7: Movie-goers went to Legoland during the Sochi 2014 Winter Olympics opening weekend, with the animated movie about plastic building blocks opening at No. 1 with an impressive $69.1 million, keeping the live-action, fact-based "The Monuments Men" opening at No. 2, with $22.7 million, and passing "Ride Along," which parked at No. 3 after three weeks at No. 1, with $9.3 million, $105.1 million, four weeks;

4. "Frozen" (two Oscar nominations: animated film, song: "Let It Go"), $6.9 million, $368.6 million, 12 weeks; 5. "That Awkward Moment," $5.5 million, $16.8 million, two weeks; 6. "Lone Survivor,"

$5.2 million, $112.5 million, seven weeks; 7. "Vampire Academy," $4.1 million, opening; 8. "The Nut Job," $3.8 million, $50. million, four weeks; 9. "Jack Ryan: Shadow Recruit," $3.6 million, $44.4 million, four weeks; 10. "Labor Day," $3.2 million, opening, $10.1 million, two weeks

Unreel, Feb. 14: "About Last Night": The 1986 romantic comedy that starred Rob Lowe and Demi Moore gets a makeover with an African-American cast, including Kevin Hart, Joy Bryan, Regina Hall and Bryan Callen.

"RoboCop," PG: The 'bot reboot of the 1987 original and 1990 sequel stars Joel Kinnaman as the man in the gray-black titanium suit. Abbie Cornish and Gary Oldman also star in the sci-fi thriller set in 2028 Detroit.

"Winter's Tale," PG-13: Death, reincarnation and a cat burglar. This is not your classic Shakespeare play. This movie's based on a 1983 novel by Mark Helprin. Colin Farrell, Jessica Brown Findlay, Russell Crowe and Will Smith star in the fantasy drama.

"Endless Love," OK, all together now: Sing the title song from the 1981 weeper starring Brooke Shields and (10 points if you guess it) Martin Hewitt and you may forget this romantic drama starring Gabriella Wilde, Alex Pettyfer, Bruce Greenwood and Robert Patrick.

Is it me, or are there a lot of remakes opening this week?

ZONING HEARING BOARD OF BETHLEHEM TOWNSHIP, NORTHAMPTON COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA FEBRUARY 26, 2014

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE FOLLOWING APPELLANTS HAVE FILED AN APPEAL FOR A PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE ZONING HEARING BOARD OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BETHLEHEM, A HEARING TO BE HELD AT 6:30 PM ON WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 2014 AT THE TOWNSHIP MUNICIPAL BUILDING, 4225 EASTON AVENUE, BETHLEHEM, PA 18020. THE MEETING, AMONG OTHER ISSUES, CONCERNS THE FOLLOWING ZONING APPEALS:

Appeal # 01-2014 Nicholas J. Pugliese, 1072 Grand Street, Phillipsburg, NJ, seeks a dimensional variance from Section 275-34C of the Bethlehem Township Codified Zoning Ordinance, as amended, to ultimately develop 2 lots in which each lot will be 120 feet wide. The undeveloped real estate is located on the west side of Country Club Road with Knollcroft Avenue beginning on the east side. Zoning Code requires a minimum lot width of 125 feet in the RR Zoning District for residential construction. Therefore a dimensional variance of 5 feet is being sought for each of the two lots that will comprise the minor subdivision. Mr. Pugliese will appear before the planning commission for the purpose of subdividing the above property into two separate lots, should his zoning request be granted. The property is located within the Rural Residential Zoning District (RR). The property maintains Northampton County Tax Parcel Identification number M8 2 3-12 0205.

All interested parties are invited to attend and be heard.
