

Redline, Charles

Ex-Newsie a Naval Ensign

Horatio Alger's heroes had nothing on Charles Redline, who carried papers for the Globe-Times for ten years until he entered college and who today received his commission as an ensign in the United States Navy—a regular Algerian saga, indeed. Ensign Redline is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude S. Redline, 819 Tombler Street, Fountain Hill.

ENSIGN CHARLES REDLINE
(U. S. N. R.)

He graduated at Liberty High in 1935 and was employed by the Young Drug Stores, Inc. He did post-graduate work at Fountain Hill High School and in 1936 entered the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, from which he graduated in 1940. Thereafter, until November, 1940, he was employed by the Dennis Drug Co. at the Main Street store.

He enlisted in the U. S. N. R. in 1940 and was called up for duty on March 1, 1941, and was stationed in the pharmacy of the U. S. Naval Hospital at Philadelphia as a pharmacist until October 1, 1942, when he went into training in the Naval Officers Reserve at Notre Dame University. There he received his commission in exercises today.
