Hansell touts county's fiscal stability

By TYLER D. MARTIN
tmartin@tnonline.com

Lehigh County Executive Bill Hansell highlighted financial stability and resident safety in his "State of Lehigh County" program at Brookside Country Club March 28.

Hansell said the county has endured through the fiscal downturn in previous years and has remained financially viable.

"Any way you measure it, the state of our county finances is strong," Hansell said.

He said county employees have participated more fully in their own healthcare through the past seven years, saving money for county residents. He also said 143 full-time positions have been reduced in the same period.

These reductions and adaptations have been accepted by employees without arbitration or unresolved contract disputes.

Hansell said he is a "strong believer in continuous improvement," telling the audience there is always more work to be done.

He said his administration would like to implement a performance management program for all departments of county government while working on priority based budgets in the future.

Hansell proudly highlighted a report by the Fourth Economy Community Index saying Lehigh County is the seventh best large-sized county in the nation for growth in 2012.

He said the county government has been able to be successful while reducing its size.

"The budget is $50 million lower than 2010," Hansell said.

'Hands off' says council

By ANDREW CASS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem City Council removed two buildings from a demolition protection ordinance at its April 2 meeting.

Council member Michael Recchiuti made a motion to remove Martin Tower and Lehigh and New England Rail Road Freight Warehouse at 15th Avenue and Gary Street, which was approved unanimously by the council.

Recchiuti said several council members were contacted by representatives of Martin Tower's owner, who said he would like the building taken off the list. Recchiuti added that he was told that the owner has no plans to tear the building down.

"I don't believe that building should come down," Recchiuti said. "I hope they can refurbish it, but at the same time I understand the concerns that it is a barrier to redevelopment of the entire site."

Recchiuti also said that if a plan comes along for redevelopment of the entire site, he doesn't want a future board to have to make a decision based on something the

Kids Count Overall, Pennsylvania youngsters are doing OK

By CHRIS PARKER and NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzowski@tnonline.com

A recent Kids Count study, released by the Annie E. Casey Foundation, determined that Pennsylvania ranks 14th out of 50 states in terms of children's overall well-being.

Children's health and education are provided for; but several years of economic turmoil have undermined the family and community health of Pennsylvania's children: About one-fifth of the children in the Commonwealth lived in poverty in 2010, and the numbers of children living in households that were "food insecure" at some point during the year grew by 12.8 percent between 2005 and 2009. The numbers of children in families in which neither parent has full-time, year round employment increased by 13.5 percent between 2008 and 2010.

On the plus side, the numbers of teenagers who have abused drugs and alcohol has dipped from 7 percent to 6 percent. Math and reading scores are up.

Kids Count study

The study looked at 16 indicators within four domains: Education, health, economic well-being, and family and community. Each state was ranked on how well its children fared in each of the domains. The District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands were not included because they are not states and therefore comparisons on many indicators of child wellbeing are not meaningful, the study authors say.

The education domain ranks preschool opportunities, reading and math proficiency, and whether high school students graduate on time. The health domain considers the percentage of children who lack health insurance, child and teen death rates, low-birth weight babies, and alcohol or drug abuse among teens. Economic well-being looks at data related to child poverty, family employment, housing costs, and whether older teens not in school are working. The family and community domains look at percentage of children living in high-poverty areas, single-parent households, and education levels among heads of households, as well as teen birth rates.

How did we do? Pennsylvania scored eighth in the education and health domains; but 17th in economic well-being and 23rd in family and community, according to the study.

Still, that's not too bad, says Joan Benso, president and CEO of Pennsylvania Partnerships for Children. The nonprofit organization aims to better the lives of children in the commonwealth.

Charter school expanding Plans new Southside facility

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzowski@tnonline.com

The Lehigh Valley Charter High School for the Arts is dancing its way down Easton Avenue toward the Southside.

In an April 2 press conference, administrators at the East Broad Street school invited government representatives to promote fundraising for a new $5 million facility at Third and Polk streets. The school is marking its 10th anniversary.

Executive Director Diane LaBelle said the project is encouraged by the accomplishments of the last decade. The school boasts a 99 percent graduation rate and about 96 percent of those graduates are accepted into advanced and college programs. "Our students excel in academics and the arts and continue to make us proud with their achievements, awards and accolades."

The new 87,000-square-foot building is undergoing design by the Southside group Artefact, Inc. and will provide educational space for 200 more students in a deeply academic and artistic neighborhood. It will include a 350-seat theater, a

KIDS

Benso, who has been keeping an eye on how well children fare in Pennsylvania for 20 years, weighed in on the study results.

"The latest Kids Count data clearly show the lingering effects the recession is having on Pennsylvania's kids and families. A third of Pennsylvania's children are in households in which parents are unemployed or underemployed, and one out of five of our children lives in poverty," she said.

"On a more positive note, Pennsylvania holds relatively strong national rankings in education and children's health. Kids Count data has us eighth in each of these two categories, reflecting the fact those areas have been priorities for state leaders over the years. The challenge now is not to backslide on that progress," Benso said.

Tim Eiler, press secretary for the state Department of Education, was pleased with the study results on education.

"The department is pleased to be recognized for the work the state is doing to ensure that students have access to quality educational programs," he said. "Gov. (Tom) Corbett is committed to ensuring that quality early education opportunities are provided to families; these include, Pre-K Counts, the Keystone Starts Program and Head Start Supplemental Assistance."

But the state must keep the momentum rolling, Benso said.

"Improving the lives and well-being of children has to be a multifaceted approach. You have to address multiple aspects and not become focused only on one. This means we need a strategy that addresses the quality of and access to early childhood education, health care, child care for working parents, and other supports that keep kids healthy, safe and nurtured. But the most important thing is to make sure we keep moving forward on the road map and not slipping backward," she said.

"In a tough economy, it might be tempting to save money by cutting funding to programs that help kids, but that sets us back and ultimately costs more money down the road. As stated above, the challenge is to not backslide by cutting programs that help kids stay healthy and learn. We need to build on what works, not retreat from it," Benso said.

The study also ranked smaller regions, such as counties.

The Lehigh Valley

Jane Irvin, with Community Services for Children, Inc., said of particular concern to her is the Lehigh Valley's lagging behind statewide Head Start participation.

"The Lehigh Valley needs to invest more in pre-k to serve more kids," Irvin said. "Statewide, only about 17 percent of three and four-year-olds have access to publicly funded pre-k. But the numbers are even worse for the Lehigh Valley. In Lehigh County, only 13.9 percent of three and four-year-olds have access to publicly funded pre-k, and in Northampton County, that rate is just 6.7 percent."

"We know investing in quality early-childhood education saves our taxpayers money in the long run. It reduces costs for things like special education and remedial instruction, increases the likelihood of graduation and college enrollment, and decreases dropout rates, crime and incarceration," Irvin said.

He said $20 million is set to be saved through the recent courthouse renovation, with tax dollars also coming in through projects such as Coca-Cola Park and the Trexler Nature Preserve.

Hansell said more than 20 bridges have been repaired and more than 20,000 acres of farmland have been preserved in the county in the past seven years.

"One of the things that has made this job a real pleasure is the cabinet," Hansell said.

He said Lehigh County is Pennsylvania's largest county, with "over 350,000 residents, tens of thousands of businesses and over 125,000 properties."

With 25 different municipalities in the county, he said there can be confusion between responsibilities of the county versus municipalities. He also said there are challenges with land use development and safety.

"We have made a commitment to public safety and justice," Hansell said. "We want Lehigh County to be a safe place to live."

He said 70 cents of every tax dollar in Lehigh County goes toward safety and crime reduction.

He said Central Booking has streamlined the system for officers, getting police back on the street quickly after making an arrest.

ing an arrest.

Hansell also talked about the county's new state of the art 911 Center which is designed to reduce response time to county residents, getting the proper agencies to the scene as needed.

He said there will be a new county Lehigh County Detoxification Center operated by White Deer Run to help county residents with drug related issues. Hansell said no tax dollars were put in to this new facility.

Hansell also said the water system is set to be a major issue in the future. He said privatization has worked well in other areas, but with essential services, such as water, it is important to avoid a monopoly.

The program was sponsored by the East Penn Chamber of Commerce and the Western Lehigh Chamber of Commerce.

current council enacted. An attorney for the owner of the Lehigh and New England Freight Warehouse attended a council meeting last month requesting council to remove the building from the list.

"The only reason the warehouse is on the list is because of the connection to the railroad, and I don't see much purpose to keeping it on a list the owner doesn't want it on," Recchiuti said.

Council member Karen Dolan proposed a separate motion that would have created significant changes to the ordinance, which would have required it to go back before the planning commission. Dolan wanted an exception removed from the ordinance that would allow council to approve the destruction of a building if it is part of a larger neighborhood redevelopment plan.

"If there's a big hole that a truck could drive through, it's a useless ordinance," Dolan said. "To basically say that it's part of a bigger development that would affect a larger area than the building in question is the opposite of why we developed this ordinance."

Dolan failed to get a second on her motion, but was told that it was something that the board would look into again in the near future. Council member J. William Reynolds said he supported Dolan's idea, but said passing the ordinance was more important at this time.

"Rather than send it back through the whole process, if we pass it and take a look at that particular language we would be able to kill two birds with one stone," Reynolds said.

Both Dolan and Reynolds agreed that no items listed on the ordinance were in immediate danger of being demolished.

Twenty-four items remain on the demolition protection list, which passed first reading April 3, including Burnside Plantation, Illick's Mill and the main commons of Liberty HS.

Council will vote on final passage of the ordinance April 16 at 7 p.m. in Town Hall.

CITY POLICE

Wanted

Police making a traffic stop April 3 discovered the driver was wanted on previous charges, and had to chase the man down on foot when he fled.

According to police, Francis Perez, 28, of Amplex Street, was stopped as he drove near Aharts Market on Montclair Avenue around 1:30 a.m. He leapt from his car and ran off, but was located shortly thereafter.

Perez is charged with driving while suspended, possession and possession with intent to deliver, DUI and escape.

Threats

Colonial Regional Police responded to a reported domestic dispute in Hanover Township around 12:25 a.m. March 31.

According to police, a woman on Kathi Drive alleged her husband threatened her with a gun to her head and told her not to call police. He said he would shoot her and himself.

Ian Cantor, 46, was arrested and charged with harassment, terroristic threats and simple assault.

Tax Tips from IRS.gov

Top Six Tax Tips for the Self-Employed

When you are self-employed, it typically means you work for yourself, as an independent contractor, or own your own business. Here are six key points the IRS would like you to know about self-employment and self-employment taxes:

1. Self-employment income can include pay that you receive for part-time work you do out of your home. This could include income you earn in addition to your regular job.
2. Self-employed individuals file a Schedule C, Profit or Loss from Business, or Schedule C-EZ, Net Profit from Business, with their Form 1040.
3. If you are self-employed, you generally have to pay self-employment tax as well as income tax. Self-employment tax includes Social Security and Medicare taxes.
4. If you are self-employed you may have to make estimated tax payments. People typically make estimated tax payments to pay taxes on income that is not subject to withholding. If you do not make estimated tax payments, you may have to pay a penalty when you file your income tax return. The underpayment of estimated tax penalty applies if you do not pay enough taxes during the year.
5. When you file your tax return, you can deduct some business expenses for the costs you paid to run your trade or business. You can deduct most business expenses in full, but some costs must be 'capitalized.' This means you can deduct a portion of the expense each year over a period of years.
6. You may deduct only the costs that are both ordinary and necessary. An ordinary expense is one that is common and accepted in your industry. A necessary expense is one that is helpful and appropriate for your trade or business.

No One Cares Like Jesus

Charles Weigle was an itinerant evangelist and song writer. After returning home from an evangelistic crusade, he found a note left by his wife of many years saying that she did not care for the life of being an evangelist's wife and that she was leaving him. It was a time of despair for Weigle, and he became so despondent that at times he contemplated suicide. Gradually his spiritual faith was restored, and he again became active in ministry.

One day he was thinking about how the Lord had loved him so much and how good He had been to him during those darkest periods of his life. He began to express his thanks to the Lord and felt compelled to sit down and play the piano. Within 20 minutes, from a heart that had been broken came the beautiful words and tune of the gospel favorite, "No One Ever Cared For Me Like Jesus!"

1. I would love to tell you what I think of Jesus, Since I found in Him a friend so strong and true; I would tell you how He changed my life completely—He did something that no other friend could do.

Chorus: No one ever cared for me like Jesus; There's no other friend so kind as He; No one else could take the sin and darkness from me—O how much He cared for me!

2. All my life was full of sin when Jesus found me; All my heart was full of misery and woe; Jesus placed His strong and loving arms around me, And He led me in the way I ought to go.

3. Every day He comes to me with new assurance; More and more I understand His words of love; But I'll never know just why He came to save me, Till some day I see His blessed face above.

Regardless of what you are going through, I encourage you to take your problems to Jesus as the Bible tells us, "Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (1 Peter 5:7).

"This is where our creative young people need to be," LaBelle said.

Gifts and pledges have already accrued about $3.5 million toward the project, the majority of which is part of a grant approved by Governor Tom Corbett's administration.

To show her support, the governor's wife, Susan, was present at the press event.

Pennsylvania's First Lady said she's seen firsthand in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia the community revitalization possible by investment in the arts.

And after a tour of the charter's current facility, she said she realized that with only two windows - it's inadequate for the terrific students' needs.

"Every child can benefit from exposure to the arts," Corbett said, "Studying music, theater, art, dance, can be an important way to learn self-discipline, gain self-confidence, self-esteem and a sense of accomplishment."

Corbett said other children simply need a place like Charter Arts to fully develop their creative intelligence and be accepted for who they are.

Mayor John Callahan said, "We are a city of talent and creativity ... and that's really no more apparent than at this school. Here we see the reach of the arts that extend beyond tourism."

FHS-LHS baseball to play at Coca-Cola Park

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It's always a big week when Liberty and Freedom battle in any sports.

This week, however, it's on a bit of a grander stage. The 'Canes and Pates square off at 7 p.m. Friday night at Coca-Cola Park.

The only problem with that may be the waiting period for both teams, as they gear up for a week of LVC action before the derby hits the grand stage over the weekend.

Liberty (4-1, 3-0) have won four straight since a season-opening loss to Wilson West Lawn and have proved to again be one of the top teams in the conference this season.

But a four game slate on the agenda this week can answer more questions for the 'Canes, as they took on Whitehall yesterday, Parkland Thursday, followed by Freedom and Hazleton on Friday and Saturday.

"We have a big week playing four tough teams," said head coach Andy Pitsilos. "This year's start is a testament to our guys working hard and preparing themselves well for games. It's a great group of talented kids, who've answered a lot of questions."

Ed Albertson has led the way on the mound with a 2-0 start and 2.33 ERA. He's struck out 15 so far and will be needed this week, as the team takes on four games in five days.

After a 5-0 start to the spring, Freedom (5-2, 2-1) has lost two straight, both by 6-5 affairs to Parkland and Stroudsburg.

Head coach Nick D'Amico doesn't feel his team have driven off the road in their slump, they just need to field better.

The Pates had leads in the final two innings of both contests, but have committed 11 errors over the past two games.

"I told them that the good thing is we know what we need to fix and that is our fielding," said D'Amico about the message to his team. "We fix that and we are fine."

"We have to win the battle of the freebies (walks, hit by pitch, and errors) too. We haven't done that in the last two games."

Freedom takes on Central and Allen this week before Friday's matinee.

"Liberty is always a tough game and it's a big rivalry and the kids get excited about the game," D'Amico said. "We need to make sure we stay composed and don't let our emotions take over the game."

Bethlehem Catholic (1-4-1, 0-3) has struggled to find form this season, as the Hawks lost their last four games by an average of five runs per contest.

They'll try and turn that slide upside down this week against Allen, Central and Easton at 4:30 p.m. Friday at Coca-Cola Park.

Pates rally to top LHS

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Becca Herman's first-ever home run at the varsity level lifted Freedom over Liberty last week, 6-2.

"It felt really good. It felt good to get them early in the season," said Herman.

The Freedom shortstop's homer was hit between leftfield and center. Earlier in the game, Herman hit a double in the same spot.

Freedom leftfielder, Dana Pollock, who had been misidentified as Dana Morgan in the Bethlehem Press last month, was 2 for 4 with a run scored.

Patriot coach Nora

Borger said, "Dana Morgan was with us in the off-season, but then she got a job. We also have Morgan Lukievs... I told Dana [Pollock] that I would make it up to her."

Emily Gundrum was the winning pitcher for the Patriots.

"My adrenaline was going the whole game. [Catcher] Corrine [Kline] did a great job. She kept me in it. They definitely have a really strong offense. We knew it would be a challenge, but we kept our defense sharp and clean," Gundrum said.

Freedom second baseman, Carly Deichman, ended the game with a

Hawks down Rovers

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Bethlehem Catholic received its first challenge of the season from the Easton Red Rovers, but the Hawks landed on top, 2-0, last Friday.

"We played fine, but we didn't hit the ball like we can, and we'll work on that. The Easton pitcher [Taylor Barna] kept us off balance," said Becahi coach Rich Mazza.

Scoreless until the sixth inning, Becahi shortstop, Emily Brandstetter, hit a double and scored on a single by catcher, Jean Markovic.

"I was just thinking about getting on base, hoping to spark the team, and I knew that Jean was up next, and she was hitting really well," said Brandstetter.

Becahi scored its second run in the seventh inning on a bases loaded walk by Marissa Merriman. Markovic said, "It was our first taste of a competitive game. We knew we could do better, but we got the job done."

Joelle Morey was the winning pitcher for the Hawks.

"We had to keep our focus against Easton because we knew they could come back at any time," Morey said.

New this year for the senior pitcher is Becahi's catcher.

"I love working with Jean. When it comes down to it, I know we'll get it done," said Morey.

The Hawks also got it done on Saturday, defeating Notre Dame, 5-0.

"They were giving us good pitches. I led off both times [that I had hits]," said Becahi second baseman, Jackie DeSarro.

DeSarro had a double to left center and a single up the middle that was an RBI for the Hawks.

"Everything's clicking pretty well. We're sticking together, and when we're not hitting, we're counting on Joelle," she said.

Liberty still rolling

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It was a blessing in disguise in one book and a sign of what belief can do for another group.

Bethlehem Catholic entered the spring as the area's top team, but Liberty believed they can be that as well.

Even after the Hurricanes (4-0, 3-0) opened the season with a five-game victory over defending state champion Bethlehem Catholic (3-1, 3-1), both teams have used that result in different manners moving forward.

For Liberty, the win is a sign of what they can become, as well as staying humble amidst a long regular season.

"We faltered in the semifinals of the Easton tournament at the beginning of the season, losing to Northampton," said Liberty head coach Neiad Ammary. "I think that was a clear reminder that nothing can be taken for granted, and we will have to work hard for everything this year. We pride ourselves on remaining humble and working hard, and that loss to Northampton motivated us to get more focused and perform better in our matches early on."

The Hurricanes haven't looked back since, but find themselves with another gauntlet week on the schedule with Whitehall, Parkland and CB West this week.

The Zephyrs and Trojans are two of the best in the league and Saturday's battle with a District One opponent on the road gives Ammary a week full of challenges.

"We definitely have not realized our full potential yet," Ammary said. "Humility is a key part of our program, and we wholeheartedly believe our greatest challenges are still forthcoming. The win over Becahi was energizing because it confirmed that the processes and values we have established within our program do, in fact, lead to better performance on the court."

Hawks' head coach Jeff Koch has taken the opening loss in stride and hopes it will produce beneficiary results in the future.

"We are taking the loss against Liberty as a blessing in disguise," Koch said. "Liberty is a great team and they put a lot of pressure on us. Pressure that we have not experienced in a long time. When that pressure was on us we mentally were too nervous thinking about the what if we lose thought?"

"We couldn't recover to pull out a victory. What we learned from the loss is that we have to remain calm mentally in tight match situations."

Becahi only has Allen this week, but battled at the prestigious Bobcat Tournament over the weekend, where they lost to state powerhouse and eventual tournament champion, Northeastern in a best-of-three matchup.

Northeastern took the three games by a 15-12, 11-15 and 15-8 margin, but Koch took a positive approach away from the weekend.

Liberty's girls and boys track and field teams, both currently 2-0, had recent victories over Northampton and Allen last week.

The Lady Hurricanes defeated Northampton, 91-58, and Allen, 113-36.

Although the K-Kids took first place in all sprinting and distance events, the Hurricanes came back with first place wins in all relays.

Aleesha Gordon, Rynisha House, Gabby Pastor, and Asia Wright won the 4x1 relay (53.4), Olivia Georges, Sienna McNett, Justina Uliana, and Sarah King won the 4x4 relay (4:48), and Delaney Davis, Ally Lynott, Rachel Finn, and Samantha Parks won the 4x8 relay (11:14).

Gracie Hargrove took first place in the shot put (36-5 1/2), Alexis Renshaw placed first in the discus (75-10), Casey Harewood won the high jump (5-3), and Finn won the pole vault (7-0).

Hargrove repeated in the shot put against Allen (37-7 1/2) and also won the discus (119-1). Nicole Capuano won the javelin against the Canaries (87-7), Pastor took first in the long jump (16-9 1/2), and Lauren Hess placed first in the triple jump (32-9).

Harewood and Finn were also repeat winners against the Canaries, taking first place in the high jump (5-3) and the pole vault (9-0), respectively.

The Hurricane boys defeated Northampton, 91-58, and Allen, 112-38.

Sprinting and distance results were relatively even between the two teams, but first place finishers for Liberty were Adam Uliana in the 100 meter (11.4), KJ Williams in the 200 meter (22.8) Roberto Marrero in the 800 meter (2:09.0), and Alex Fitch in the 3200 meter (10:58).

Michael Stefanik and Sean Frankenfield won the 110 high hurdles (17.0) and the 300 intermediate hurdles (43.5), respectively.

Freedom's boys track and field team scored its first victory over Central Catholic, 79-70, last week.

Distance runners for the Patriots had 1-2-3 finishes in all events against the Vikings.

Jason Lopez was first in the 800 meter (2:21), followed by Robbie Bogardo and Tommy Salerno, Chris Kelly was first in the 1600 meter (4:47), followed by Doo Park and William Alpaugh, and Kelly also took first place in the 3200 meter (10:37), followed by Park and Alpaugh.

Distance coach Bob Thear said, "I'd like to think we were a big part of it [the win]."

Aaron Alleyne was a double event winner in the 100 meter (12.0) and the 200 meter (23.9).

The Patriots swept all relay events as Devin Milligan, Victor Gonzalez, Joseph Santos, and Alleyne won the 4x1 (47.02), Alexander Rivera, Skyler Freyling, Baidy Ba, and Cole Donatelli won the 4x4 (3:51), and Bogardo, Alpaugh, Park, and Lopez won the 4x8 (9:12.7).

Becahi defeats K-Kids

Stephen Rossi and Kevin Hamilton lost their singles matches but teamed up to win at number-one doubles.

Bethlehem Catholic handed Northampton its first tennis loss in the Lehigh Valley Conference, defeating the Konkrete Kids, 5-2, last Tuesday.

For the Hawks, it was the doubles teams that pulled through for the victory.

Becahi's Kevin Hamilton and Stephen Rossi avenged their losses at number one singles and number two singles, respectively, to win at number one doubles, 6-2, 6-3, against Northampton's Geoff Rybitski and Josh Schoenberger.

At number two doubles, Paolo Turco and Marcin Boraganli defeated Andrew Burger and Tyler Nicholas, 7-6, 6-3.

"In the first set, we were up 4-1, and they came back, and they were winning 6-5. We would hit shots that were winners, and they just got to everything. We won [the next game] 6-6, and went into a tiebreak. What really happened was that they started lobbing the ball a lot, and we were hitting a lot into the net and becoming tentative," said Turco.

Turco and Boraganli, who have been a doubles pair for three years, came back in the second set with more ease.

"They made mistakes, and after we won the tiebreak, it made us less tentative, and we won the second set," said Boraganli.

At number three doubles, Niko Franekic and Luke Mesko defeated Justin Burger and Andrew Szerencits, 7-5, 6-3, and at number four doubles, Peter Demyan and Chris Landolfi defeated Dave Galloway and Nate Xander, 6-2, 6-0.

Becahi's Ryan Schmidt won his match at number three singles against Northampton's Dave Wasilko, 6-1, 6-1.

Five days earlier, on March 28, the Hawks earned a 5-2 victory over Central Catholic. It was Becahi's first win over the Vikings since 2007.

Clinching the win was Stephen Rossi at number two singles. The Becahi senior defeated Gabriel Velez, 7-6, 5-7, 6-2.

Also victorious for the Hawks were Charlie Varga and Mike Mintzer at number one doubles, Turco and Boraganli at number two doubles, Mesko and Franekic at number three doubles, and Demyan and Landolfi at number four doubles.

Another close win for Freedom tennis team

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

The Freedom Patriots survived another close call, defeating Nazareth, 4-3, last Tuesday.

Andrew Sinai, Bill Leeson, and Ross Sonnenblick won their matches at singles for the Patriots, leaving the team match in the hands of the number one doubles team of Sinai and Sonnenblick.

Sinai, a sophomore, and Sonnenblick, a freshman, defeated Nazareth's Mike Fishler and Andrew Wahlgren, 6-2, 6-1.

"Ross is in the same position I was last year [being a freshman]. He just handled the pressure really well, and he was hitting all his shots really well. He's great to have as a partner. He'll keep the ball in play, and I'll go ahead and finish the point," Sinai said.

Earlier in the day, Sinai defeated Wahlgren, 6-1, 6-1, and Sonnenblick defeated Fishler, 6-2, 6-2.

"I just try to go out there, play consistent, and hit a lot of shots," said Sinai.

Leeson, who arguably had the toughest challenge of the day, defeated Mike Palmeri, 6-7, 6-3, 6-3.

Sinai said, "Yes, I did see his match. His hand was bleeding the whole match. He fell on the court three or four days before.

He was mad, but he was still able to win."

All of Freedom's doubles teams had close matches, two of which went to three sets, and one which went to tiebreak twice.

At number two doubles, Nazareth's Jon Piperato and Marc Suhr defeated Evan Anthony and

Doug Leeson, 7-6, 7-6. At number three doubles, Nazareth's Calvin Carpenter and Jorey Ferraro defeated Matt Ashton and Jack Fried, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, and at number four doubles, Nazareth's Dylan Castantinah and Andrew Osterlof defeated Matt Connors and Ben Loh, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3.

FHS pacing girls lacrosse squads

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Korey Ream knew that Freedom's girls' lacrosse team needed to be pulled together if they wanted success this season.

Ream has slowly been doing that as the Patriots stood at 2-4 as of this week in their second season of lacrosse in the Lehigh Valley Conference.

The Patriots have knocked off Liberty and Central Catholic for their two league wins, including last week's 10-8 victory over the Hurricanes.

Now they'll try and keep building off that moving forward.

"As a team we want to become closer than we have been the past few years," said Ream. "We plan on knowing each other very well and feeling comfortable and confident with each other on and off the field."

Back in the fold for the Pates include three returning juniors including Natalie Rold (attack), Erin Healy (midfield) and Macey Walker (midfield), who scored six goals in the win over Liberty last week.

"I have about 20 girls this year with most of them having two to four years experience," said Ream. "The biggest obstacle I face is being a new coach and making this team bond. I feel like when I came into this club the team seemed to be all on different levels. My own personal goals is to make this team a team. And not just three key players."

Liberty head coach Amy Sette enters her second year at the helm of the Hurricanes and currently sees her team at 0-4. Sette wants the team to improve from last year's 4-10 mark.

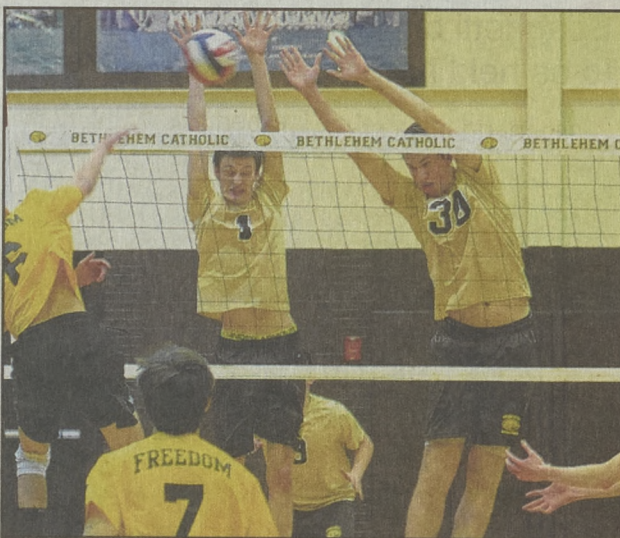

"We want to improve from last season's record by two games," Sette said. "We haven't started out the season like I've hoped, but I think with time we'll get better."

Senior Beth VanHorn (midfield) and juniors Rachel Becker (midfield) and Melissa Peters (defense) round out the top players on Sette's radar.

Now it's about finding wins on Liberty's radar.

"We have 15 players on varsity that have experience and that helps a lot," said Sette. "We just need to get through some of the basics in order to move forward."

selves that we can compete against the better teams in the state," said Koch. "We still have to play more consistent throughout the entire match, and become better defensive players by moving our feet to the ball at all times."

Freedom (1-3, 1-2) has had a rough start to the year, with a win over Easton being their only victory up to this point.

The Pates take on Allen and travel to CB West on Saturday as well, as they look to turn things around.

Becahi track falls to Emmaus

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Bethlehem Catholic's boys track and field team just missed a victory over Emmaus, losing 76-74 to the Hornets last week.

First place winners for the Hawks were Donovan West in the 100 meter (11.1) and the 200 meter (23.6), Austin Biege in the 400 meter (54.0), and John Donchez in the 1600 meter (4:52.8).

Donchez said, "We really wanted to win. I think we're more talented as a team, but they pushed us."

Tyler Horton broke the school record in the 300 intermediate hurdles (39.2) and tied his own school record in the 110 high hurdles (14.6).

The Hawks swept all relay events as Antwan Keenan, Kyle Arrington, Mike McDaniel, and West won the 4x1 relay (46.4), Horton, Joseph Curreri, Biege, and Freddie Simmons won the 4x4 relay (3:40.8), and Donchez, Mike Duffy, Angelo Degaetano, and Andrew Schaeffer won the 4x8 relay (8:32.7).

"We ran together last year, well, we had Rob Leeson, but we're used to each other, and we trained all winter, and we work each other in practice, so it's been good so far," said Donchez.

Emmaus took first place in all jumping and throwing events except the high jump, won by Horton (6-0).

Bethlehem Catholic's girls track and field team also fell to Emmaus, 85-65.

First place winners for the Hawks were Mara Blanchard in the 100 meter (12.9), Lexi Reightler in the 200 meter (26.7), and Jade Kubitsky in the 400 meter (1:01.6).

Reightler also won the 300 intermediate hurdles (47.2). New to the event, Becahi coach Gary Mohylsky noticed Reightler's good form and suggested she try it.

"If you stutter step, it slows you down, so you need to speed up," said Reightler. "It feels good. I wish I had started earlier, but right now, it's good."

Megan Tucker, Reightler, Katie Altpeter, and Erin Schmidt combined to win the 4x4 relay (4:25.5).

Lauren Posch took first place in the long jump (15-05 1/2) and the triple jump (30-6).

Blanchard placed first in the pole vault (10-6).

Coach Mohylsky said, "It was our first meet, and we wanted to introduce new events to our kids, but it would have been nice to beat Emmaus."

John M. Mack

Mack (1715-1784) was born in Wurttemberg, Germany. He arrived in America in 1735 to assist with the Moravian settlement in Georgia. Mack traveled with the group to Bethlehem in 1741, when the Georgia site had to be abandoned. He founded Nain and Gnadenhutten, two Native American Christian settlements near Bethlehem.

In 1742, he married Jeannette Rau and was assigned to Shecomoco mission. Rau's familiarity with the Mohawk language made her a valuable assistant. Both Mack and Rau accompanied Count Zinzendorf to Wyoming in 1742. In 1760, Mack was sent to the West Indies to preach to the slaves of Saint Croix, Saint John, and Saint Thomas. In 1770 he returned to Bethlehem, where he was consecrated a bishop. He was married four times, his last wife passed away two years before he died in the West Indies in 1784.

David Zeisberger

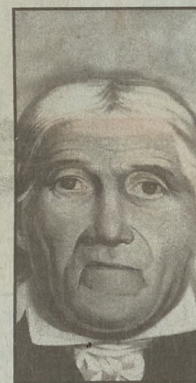

Zeisberger (1721-1808) was born in Zauchtenthal, Moravia. As a young boy, he moved with his family to the Moravian community of Herrnhut in Saxony, in 1727. After completing his education, Zeisberger joined his family in the Georgia Moravian settlement, in 1738. From there they moved to Pennsylvania, and assisted in the settlements of Nazareth and Bethlehem. In 1745, Zeisberger lived among the Mohawk and became fluent in the Onondaga language. He assisted Conrad Weiser in negotiating an alliance between the English and the Iroquois in Onondaga. Zeisberger was ordained as a Moravian minister in 1749. He spent 62 years as a missionary among the Indians. Zeisberger produced dictionaries and religious works in Iroquoian and Algonquian. He died in 1808 at Goshen, Ohio.

John G. Heckewelder

Heckewelder (1743-1823) was born in Bedford, England, in the Moravian community of Fulneck. At age 11, Heckewelder, with his parents and three younger siblings, sailed on the ship Irene to America. They joined forty other Moravians who traveled to Bethlehem. At age fifteen, Heckewelder was apprenticed to a barrel maker. At age eighteen, Heckewelder volunteered to assist the missionary Christian Frederick Post to teach Native American children of Ohio to read and write. For the next twenty years, Heckewelder lived for long periods of time with the Lenape and Mohicans, learning their language and culture. In the early 1770s, Heckewelder and fellow Moravian missionary David Zeisberger established the Christian Lenape villages of Schoenbrunn, Gnadenhutten and Lichtenau in eastern Ohio. In 1786, Heckewelder moved back to Bethlehem with his wife, Sarah Ohneberg. He wrote about his years as a missionary in several publications. Author James Fenimore Cooper based his Leather-Stocking Tales upon Heckewelder's writings.

ANOTHER VIEWMarcellus Shale and its link to lung cancer

By GREGORY KLEPEIS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Every year around 2,300 deaths in Pennsylvania are related to radon gas exposure, causing lung cancer. Radon inhalation is the top cause of lung cancer for nonsmokers, and the second leading cause for smokers. Radon is a colorless, odorless, tasteless and invisible radioactive gas that is present in natural gas. Natural gas from the Marcellus Shale has three times more radon when compared with natural gas obtained off the Gulf of Mexico.

Residential homes located in Northampton, Berks, Lehigh, Franklin, Cumberland, and Lebanon counties are located in an area known geologically as the Reading Prong. The Reading Prong is known for having elevated concentrations of uranium which creates radon gas when decaying.

Living in the Reading Prong means you may be exposed to a dangerous amount of radon gas. Radon gas enters a home through cracks in walls, floors, and foundations. Also if your home uses natural gas derived from Marcellus Shale, more radon inhalation is possible from using your stove or heater.

"No radon gas" is the safe level of radon gas. The Environmental Protection Agency recommends that homeowners take action to reduce home indoor radon levels of 4 pCi/L (Picocuries per liter) or higher. The average indoor concentrations of radon gas in Pennsylvania basements are about 7.1 pCi/L and 3.6 pCi/L on the first floor.

Testing your home for radon is easy, and some radon reduction systems can reduce radon levels in your home by up to 99 percent, according to the Environmental Protection Agency. An owner of a residence may purchase a radon tester or a radon tester kit which you may mail to a lab for accurate results. Radon test kits range from $15 to $140, but what is the price of your health?

LETTERSOrdinance offers little historic protection

Dear Editor:
Bethlehem's revised, proposed ordinance on "Landmarks and Historic Resources" is something of an improvement from the last version. But there are still two huge gaps in the protection afforded, making the ordinance much too developer-friendly. Fortunately, there is a simple and effective remedy.

The list of 26 landmarks is admittedly not exhaustive. But who has the resources today to go through the process to add more than one or two buildings to the list? And once a developer sets his sights on a significant building, there is no way that anyone can complete the documentation and lengthy process to achieve landmark status before the building is demolished. But age is something of a proxy for historical worth. (Historical structures tend to be old.) So let age be a filter, such that the demolition of any structure of a certain age cannot occur without city council approval.

The other huge gap concerns structures that are not landmark quality but contribute nonetheless to the historical atmosphere. As an example consider stone houses, which are scattered throughout the city. Each one increases the historic atmosphere of the city. But under the proposed ordinance, there is open season on stone houses that are not landmarks. Again, let age be a filter to trigger council review. (This does not mean that every old structure would have to be saved by the council.)

What age should be the trigger? A case can be made for anything from 50 years on up. (50 years is the minimum age required for a national landmark.) Certainly, as the absolute barest minimum, anything older than 200 years should require council review. Hopefully the council can do better than that before it passes this ordinance.

The desirability of such an ordinance was first raised before the destruction of Broughal Middle School, some years ago. The time to act is now, before development pressures heat up again in an improving economy.

LVPANEWS

Spring schedule busy

The calendar for the spring months at LVPA is crammed with performances and exhibits. Not only are the students in each department busily preparing, but the faculty is, too. On April 6, the Lehigh Valley Charter High School for the Arts held its Gala of Dreams at ArtsQuest's SteelStacks Center for the Arts. The gala is the largest fundraiser of the year and will also serve to celebrate the 10-year anniversary of the school's existence.

Students from each artistic department were present and assisted in the night's festivities, which included live music performed by small ensembles and caricatures drawn by the visual artists. A chamber ensemble concert will be held in the Black Box Theater April 11 at 7:30 p.m. The concert will feature a variety of students and instruments in duos and small ensembles.

On April 17, three students will have the privilege of traveling to Erie, Pennsylvania to participate in the four day PMEA All-State festival. From the instrumental department, Mitchell Cheng and Patrick McGee will be performing in the state jazz ensemble and Gwendolyn Herman will be taking part in the state wind ensemble. The pianists will be featured in the spring piano recital on May 7 at 7:30 p.m.

On May 16 at 7:30 p.m., senior instrumental majors will be performing in a senior instrumental recital to fulfill their graduation requirement. Both concerts will be held in the Black Box Theater.

The music department's spring concert series will be performed at Foy Hall May 20 and 21 at 7:30 p.m. The first night will include the orchestra, directed by Ms. Julie Bougher, and the Touring Choir and 11/12 Choir, directed by Mr. David Macbeth. The second night will feature the Wind Ensemble, under the direction of Mr. Andrew Bauer, Percussion Ensemble, directed by Mr. Matthew Wells, and Women's Choir and 9/10 Choir, directed by Ms. Ellen Ditrner.

On May 31 the year's final jazz ensemble concert will take place in the Black Box Theater at 7:30 p.m.

April 17 will feature the women's choir being given the opportunity to sing the National Anthem at a Phillies game. The Phillies will play the Pittsburgh Pirates at 1:05 p.m.

Also that day, LVPA will present The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee. The musical will feature Haley Stephon, Halle Barret, Megan Schadler, Pierce Campion, Victor Abreu, James Egbert, Raquel Macias, Fabian Gomez and Jacob Crisafulli. It will run from April 17 through 21.

The theatre department will host the senior theatre showcase in the Black Box Theater May 11. This showcase will give each senior in the theatre department the opportunity to perform and will also assist them in meeting their graduation requirements.

"Young Choreographers in Concert" is an annual performance by the dance department. Senior dance majors choreograph original pieces and put together ensembles to perform them. YCC will run from May 3 through 5. On May 18 the dance department will present "Quilt," which is a show performed by students and choreographed by faculty.

Senior art majors will have works on display at the Antonio Salemme Gallery in Allentown at their Senior Art Exhibit from April 26 through May 26 at 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The Artists' Cafe will take place at the Fowler Art Gallery on May 17 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Original artwork as well as classroom assignments will be displayed and caricatures and refreshments will be available for sale.

On April 2 Executive Director Diane LaBelle announced the launch of The Redefining Lives, the Community and the World Through Art capital campaign. The campaign has been launched to help raise $5 million to construct a new building for the charter students. So far, $3.5 million has been raised through gifts and pledges.

Work on the new 87,000-square-foot building in South Bethlehem will begin this summer and it is predicted that this year's current sophomores will spend their senior year within the finished building.

The new school will have multiple performance venues and ample amount of space for students to work and practice in. A few of the mentioned additions include a 350 seat theater, a rooftop venue, another performing venue with 200 seats, a recording studio, a visual arts gallery, and four dance studios. Accompanying the finalization of the building plans, as of July 1st, the school's name will officially be changed to The Lehigh Valley Charter High School for the Arts, nicknamed "Charter Arts." The word "performing" was dropped from the

Gas main repair to begin

By BILL TATTERSALL
Special to the Bethlehem Press

At the March 20 workshop meeting of Fountain Hill Borough Council, a representative of UGI Utilities Inc. said the company plans to replace 20 percent of the borough's cast iron gas mains this year.

Daniel Adamo, business development director-east region told council that 4,054 feet of cast iron pipe running under Delaware Avenue will be replaced. The borough has a total of 3.9 miles of cast iron pipe. The replacement will be done before the borough starts the Delaware Avenue repaving project this summer.

As part of UGI's settlement with the Pennsylvania Utility Commission for the Allentown gas explosion in February 2011 at 13th and Allen streets, the company has to replace all cast iron mains in 14 years.

Adamo said the company also plans to replace all the mains that run under Broadway sometime toward the end of this year or early next year. That project will include replacing some bare steel pipe. There are only 1.2 miles of bare steel pipe in the borough.

During the Delaware Avenue project, UGI will keep all emergency routes to St. Luke's Hospital open.

Holly Edinger, director of the Lehigh Valley Economic Development Corporation also made a presentation to council about Envision Lehigh Valley which is a collaboration of several public sector organizations to develop a sustainable community plan for the valley. She told council they are currently looking for public input which can be done on the website www.envisionlehighvalley.com.

In other business council turned over how much to charge for returned checks to the finance committee for review after several council members were not sure the current $20 covered their costs.

The brand new Pierce fire pumper will be housed in the Schweder Firehouse on East Fourth Street and its primary response area will be Southside Bethlehem. After discounts, the engine cost $520,000 and was funded with a combination of federal, county and city money. Crews from the Schweder Firehouse responded to 1,350 calls in 2012.

New engine on the Southside

Bethlehem's new 2013 Pierce engine will be on the front line of duty by the end of April. Purchased through Glick Fire Equipment, the new pumper has a number of features that make it safer and more effective. According to Fire Chief George Barkanic, the new cab is roomier and provides a better view through the front windshield. The engine includes an independent front suspension, has side-curtain airbags for firefighter safety, and has gearing that limits its top speed to 55 mph. A smaller turning radius will also make it much easier to maneuver on the narrower Southside streets, Barkanic said. The 1994 E-One pumper it is replacing has already had its chassis inspected and it will be refurbished and converted into a rescue vehicle.

Lucie: She's home!

'Latin Roots' concert salutes Desi Arnaz, Lucille Ball

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Focus Editor

Lucie is home. Lucie Arnaz's home — and life — is on stage with "Latin Roots," 8 p.m. April 20, State Theatre for the Arts, 453 Northampton St., Easton.

"Latin Roots" is a music tribute to Arnaz's dad, Desiderio "Desi" Arnaz, with video tributes to her mother, Lucille Desiree Ball, and their family.

"It's a really fun show," Arnaz says in a recent phone interview from Palm Springs, Calif., where she and her husband of 32 years, actor Laurence Luckinbill, plan to relocate next month from Connecticut.

"Latin Roots," Arnaz explains, is a hybrid version of "Babalu: A Celebration of the Music of Desi Arnaz and his Orchestra," performed, along with Raul Esparza and Valarie Pettiford, in 2010 as five sold-out shows for the Lyrics & Lyricists series at the 92nd Street Y, New York City.

Arnaz has presented "Latin Roots," which is based on her CD of the same title, with a 16-piece band and Desi Arnaz Orchestra original arrangements, in Miami and for the 60th anniversary of the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C.

"Lars, what's the name of that auditorium?" she calls to Luckinbill. He replies that it's the Coolidge Auditorium, which is in the Thomas Jefferson Building at the Library of Congress.

"We had lots of offers to do that show, but we couldn't get the team together," she says of "Babalu."

"When Tommy Tune came to see this show, it inspired me to go back and do a smaller scale," Arnaz recalls.

At the State Theater, Arnaz reprises her show presented at Feinstein's at Loews Regency, New York City, singing and accompanied by music director Ron Abel, piano, and a bass player and drummer.

"Latin Roots," Arnaz says, "includes some of dad's arrangements and all kinds of stories of my family on video shown at the top and during the show."

The show includes songs by Cole Porter, Irving Berlin and Johnny Mercer and tunes by Agustín Lara, Rafael Hernández and Margarita Lecuona.

Said Michael Feinstein of Arnaz's show: "She captures the energy and spirit of her father's music and puts her own inimitable stamp on it. She's an original and a treasure."

Last month, Arnaz performed "Latin Roots" at the Annenberg Theater, Palm Springs Art Museum, in a benefit that raised $450,000 for the Betty Ford Center's Children's Program.

"I'd love to set the show ['Latin Roots'] down in Vegas for three or four weeks," Arnaz says.

Lucie Desiree Arnaz and her brother Desi Jr., of rock band Dino, Desi and Billy fame, had walk-on parts in "The Lucy Show" (1962-'68). Lucie had a role in "Here's Lucy" 1968-'74). During the 1970's, Arnaz guest-starred on a number of episodic TV shows. Her own series, "The Lucie Arnaz Show," was on TV in 1985.

Arnaz has had numerous stage roles, including her 1979 Broadway debut in "They're Playing Our Song." In 1986, she won an award for her international tour with Tommy Tune in the musical, "My One and Only."

Her most notable movie role is opposite Neil Diamond and Laurence Olivier in "The Jazz Singer" (1980), for which she received a Golden Globe supporting actress nomination.

She received an Emmy for her 1993 documentary, "Lucy and Desi: A Home Movie."

In 2008, Arnaz and Turner Classic Movies host Robert Osborne were part of a Lucille Ball tribute at The Paley Center For Media, New York City.

"I've done all of it," Arnaz says of her career. "I've probably jumped around too much. You try to do a little bit of everything, but one gets in the way of the other. Not a lot of TV shows are calling for me now. I'm very happy doing what I do. If I get a call for a Broadway show, I'd be happy doing it."

"Concerts are a way of make a living and a great way to live. It didn't take you away every single morning. Once you've done television or a movie, you see how it takes away from you children or kids."

Arnaz and actor-writer Luckinbill, with whom she has appeared in many stage shows, have three children, Simon, Joseph and Katharine. Luckinbill has two sons from a previous marriage: Nicholas and Benjamin.

Arnaz's latest projects involve each of her parents.

The Comedy Hall of Fame is proposed for Lucille Ball's hometown, Jamestown, N.Y.

"There's never been a comedy hall of fame and they're building it in Jamestown, New York, and naming it after my folks," says Arnaz.

The Lucille Ball Desi Arnaz Museum & Desilu Playhouse, which houses the Lucy Desi Center for Comedy in Jamestown, holds the Lucille Ball Comedy Festival, Aug. 1-4, around the time of Lucy's Aug. 6 birth date. Arnaz appeared at last year's festival.

Doug Roth: The other side of D Smash

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
pwillistein@tntonline.com

It was Dougie Roth's last show.

And, true to form, it was Dougie's show all the way.

Family members recalled a talent raw and near-genius, a personality at once hilarious and often off-putting and, in the end, a brother, a son, an uncle and brother-in-law who, after being a brother in arms — seemingly railing against the world — achieved an apotheosis of, if not contentment, then peace with family, friends, and so it seemed, himself.

There were tears, plenty of those, yells of approvals, applause, guitar-strumming sing-alongs, out-loud laughter and, as the 300 attending the funeral service filed out of the Bachman, Kulik & Reinsmith Funeral Home, 17th and Hamilton streets, Allentown, there was the blaring sound of Dougie singing and playing all the parts on a rap-influenced song he wrote, "Tear It Up," with the lyrics: "They got a Wanted Poster of me at the Pearly Gates."

Douglas C. Roth died March 25, during Passover on the Jewish calendar, after battling a year-long illness. He would have been 51 on April 20.

About one year ago across the street from the funeral home, Dougie was in a medically-induced coma for three months in the Intensive Care Unit of St. Luke's Hospital — Allentown. He then spent 10 months in rehab at Manor Care. He went home to Allentown to live with his mother Selma about three months ago.

Party was a verb for Dougie and friends on many a night at an Allentown house dubbed "The Melt-down," immortalized on the eponymous Blissters' EP.

"He became D Smash. He became a little bit too much like D Smash. D Smash didn't want to live to be old," said brother Kyle Roth.

D Smash was Dougie Roth's stage persona as founding member of The Blissters (1976-present), a Lehigh Valley classic rock-punk band that included during its existence guitarist-lead singer Scott Fehnel, bass players Tony Mancino and Dennis "Dego" DeLong, drummers Duane Martis and Gary "The Animal" Pavlick and keyboardist Louie Kovacs.

"In all those years, the one constant was Dougie," said Mancino, who attended the funeral. "He was my partner, my brother and my friend and they'll never be another one like him. The Blissters was like a freight train and he was a true showman."

"Douglas was the Peter Pan Complex in a nutshell. He never wanted to grow up. Douglas was a kid at heart through and through," said brother Adam Roth, The Blissters' first drummer.

The Blissters was the "house band" for post-game parties for the Allentown Blues rugby team.

"Douglas was the first I knew to buy a Blue Oyster Cult album at Phantasmagoria. The Blissters opened for Blue Oyster Cult at Airport Music Hall — also Step-penwolf," Adam said.

During the funeral service, nephew Alex Roth brought Dougie's beat-up acoustic guitar to the podium. "He was a rock star to me. The Blissters to me were like the Grateful Dead to my parents."

Alex played "Punk Rocker" by Iggy Pop: "Oh I'm a punk rocker, yes I am," as some began clapping and singing along.

Sister-in-law Penny Roth said a part of John Cleese's eulogy for fellow Monty Python Graham Chapman could apply to Dougie: "He had enough fun for all of us."

"When he played his guitar, he was expressing his soul — kind, but troubled. He was a craftsman, whether it was music or carpentry," said Cantor Kevin Wartell of Temple Beth El.

Dougie was a member of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local 600.

"He looked at the world and said, 'There has to be something better.' And there is. And now he found it," Cantor Wartell said.

"He did grow up. He did come to terms with his other demons," Cantor Wartell said.

"He was a giver. He made an emotional difference in our lives. He will be remembered," said Cantor Wartell.

With that, the song "Tear It Up" began to play.

"But tear it up with kindness, compassion and love," Cantor Wartell said.

Since 1991, the Lucy Comedy Fest has featured performances by Lewis Black, Ray Romano, Ellen DeGeneres, Paula Poundstone, Joan Rivers and Bob Newhart. The festival attracts more 10,000 visitors annually.

The Lucy Desi Center for Comedy offers courses in improv, sketch and stand-up.

On display at the museum are "I Love Lucy" sets that traveled the United States in 2001-'02 to celebrate the 50th anniversary of what's regarded as the most popular TV show ever, as well as props, costumes, photographs, videos, audio, the Tropicana Room for events and a souvenir shop.

songs, "El Cumbanchero," in Spanish, accompanied by a symphony orchestra.

"It's the silliest song," says Arnaz. "It's the guy who plays the drums. It goes round and round. But then it's interesting. The last line ... it's a carnival song ... there's a conga line. I touch my chest and mouth and point to the sky. 'There he goes,' Arnaz says she now can't perform the song without being overcome with emotion. "There he goes," she repeats.

Whereas, Lucille Ball's upbringing was in a small town in southwestern New York state, Arnaz grew up in Hollywood.

"Jimmy Durante and Jack Benny — it wasn't like these people are on TV and they're coming into my home, but that they were friends who happened to be on TV. It was a business for my parents. They were two working parents. It took them away from home too often.

"You are a product of your environment. My mother was a product of her career. She lived where she had to live for her work. She couldn't live in that town [Jamestown]. She was too big for that room. She was bold and audacious. They didn't treat her well at all."

Arnaz gets into some of the more serious aspects of life with her parents as part of a lecture series, "Unique Lives, Unique Experiences."

Lucille Ball was the first woman to run a television studio, Desilu Productions, which she and her husband founded.

Says Arnaz, "None of that came because she was aiming for it. She got out in front and did what she did when she was younger. Her family was a mess. At 15, she went to New York."

"She went to Hollywood and raised her hand for every bit part. 'Yes, I'll fall down.' She went with the flow. She just put one foot in front of the other and let life lead."

Arnaz said her mother's philosophy is promulgated in the Kander and Ebb song, "Say Yes."

"She was that kind of person."

After their divorce in 1960, Lucille Ball bought out Desi Arnaz's share of Desilu. "She couldn't wait to get out of it," Arnaz says.

Arnaz reflects on her dad's story and gives him his props with "Latin Roots":

"Here's a guy who comes over from Cuba and he marries this redhead and they start this show and she gets pregnant and she has me."

There's a "Meet & Greet" with Lucie Arnaz after the April 20 State Theatre "Latin Roots" show, with complementary champagne and strawberries, to benefit the non-profit State Theatre.

Debating a parent's influence

How much longtime influence does a parent have on the actions of an adult child?

Your answers could vary between "not much" and "more than you think."

When I'm together with friends and new acquaintances, that subject often comes up.

Sometimes, it's because a parent is saying: "We always took our children to church every week but now that they're on their own, they don't go."

Then, nods around the table indicate it's a common problem.

The bottom line is a parent can give a child material possessions but he can't give the child faith. Often, it seems that no matter how faithful the parents have been in sharing their faith with their offspring, once the kids are out on their own, they stop going to church.

Many young adults claim they stopped believing at all.

My friend Peg is one of the most faith-filled women I know. She raised six kids, teaching them about God and taking them to church. But her best example has been in giving service to others.

Of her six adult children, none are believers, or so they say.

My friend just smiles her quiet, contented smile. "Sure they are," she says. "Just wait."

This week, four of the adult children came home to help her pack up her house and move. When they sat down to eat, no one picked up a morsel of food. Instead they looked at Peg and said: "Well, aren't you going to say Grace?"

"Should I?" she tested, knowing how they used to complain when she said grace before every meal.

Of course, came the chorus.

Throughout the weekend, my friend said she kept smiling inside as her kids gave their viewpoints and talked about their lives. "It was like listening to myself years ago. Without being aware of it, they were echoing some of the things I tried to teach them."

Best of all, they are following in her footsteps in helping others. Even the longtime alienated son, a recovering alcoholic, is dedicating himself to a life of helping others.

"When we went out deep sea fishing on our boat he took his cell phone because he promised a few guys he's helping that he'll always be within reach," she says.

Tonight, I listened to a relative complain that her daughter rejects everything she says. "She wants nothing to do with my opinions or ideas and I don't think I have any influence on her," she complains.

I told her many kids go through the same thing. It's called a rite of passage.

When I was growing up, I didn't know my future but I knew I would be nothing like my mother. After all, we were opposites in everything.

The more the years go by, the more I realize I am more like her than I ever thought I would be, thank God.

When I was young, I never appreciated the stoic way she held us all together through adversity. I never gave her credit for working two jobs in order to raise two children single-handedly.

In fact, I'm ashamed to say, I criticized her for it, saying she was gone from home so much and was never there for me. I claimed I had to raise myself.

I'm surprised at the number of people who tell me similar parent-adult child tales. They were always there for their children but that's not how the young adults remember it.

Children's eyes see everything but they don't assimilate it into their thought process. Not until much, much later.

Did you ever wish you could take words back decades after you said them? There have been plenty of times when I wish I could reach beyond the grave to tell my mother, "You were right. Thank you for teaching me."

I tell my friends who are struggling with adult-child relationships not to get upset. It's all part of the growth process.

When we're confronted with a problem, a family problem or any problem, it's hard to take a long-term view. But when you get older, you realize it's not only the best option. It's your only one.

I interviewed a woman today who told me she never appreciated her mother as fully as she should have while she was alive.

Now, looking back, she says she has been able to become financially secure because of the simple lessons she learned from her mother as she watched her scrape by.

"I never made more than $20,000 a year. Neither did my husband," she claims. But they were able to buy 14 rental properties, she says, by following her mother's example of save, save, save in every way, every day.

I have my mother to thank for the same skills. Did I ever thank her?

Not unless she's in heaven and can hear me now.

I'll bet my mother never thought she had much influence on me. All I ever told her was how we were so different from each other. Different values. Different goals. Different lifestyle preferences.

Or, so I thought.

There's an old two-sentence story that proclaims the truth of it all: "When I was a child, I thought my parents didn't know anything. When I got older, I wondered how they got so smart."

How much influence does a parent have on offspring?

My answer is twofold: Not as much influence as you would like. But a whale of a lot more than you think you have.

It's a question of balance - literally

Q. I'm 79 and I've taken a couple of spills in the last few months. I'm concerned that I might not be as steady on my feet as I used to be. What should I do about this?

About one in 10 over 65 experience difficulty with balance. More than 40 percent of Americans will go to a doctor complaining of dizziness. Getting older is only part of the problem. Inner-ear disturbances are the primary cause.

Losing balance when you're older is serious stuff. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports that each year more than one in three over 65 years suffers a fall.

Falls are the leading cause of injury deaths among older adults. And, even if the fall doesn't kill you, you could fracture a hip and then a whole bunch of problems can cascade over you: limitations on activities, isolation, loss of independence and depression.

Not all balance problems have the same cause. Here are several major ones:

Benign paroxysmal positional vertigo (BPPV): This is one of the most common causes of balance problems. You get vertigo when you change the position of your head. You may also experience BPPV when you roll over, get out of bed, or when look on a high shelf. BPPV is more likely in people over 60.

Labyrinthitis: an infection or inflammation of the inner ear. The labyrinth is the organ in your inner ear that enables you to maintain balance.

Ménière's disease: intermittent hearing loss, a ringing or roaring in the ears, and a feeling of fullness in the ear.

Other causes may involve another part of the body, such as the brain or the heart. Aging, infections, head injury, certain medicines, or problems with blood circulation may also cause problems with balance.

Blood-pressure medications and some antibiotics can cause balance problems. If you are taking drugs in these categories and feel off-balance, it's worth discussing with your doctor.

Some may have a balance problem and not know it. Balance disorders can be difficult to diagnose because patients sometimes can't describe their symptoms well.

Balance disorders can be signs of other health problems, so it's important to have them checked out.

If you can answer any of the following positively, discuss the symptom with your doctor.

Do I feel: Unsteady? Disoriented? As if the room is spinning? As if I'm moving when I'm still? As if I'm falling? As if I might faint?

Also, do you ever lose your balance and fall? Or, do you experience blurred vision?

Persistent balance problems are not something you should pass off as a harmless part of the aging process. They should always be examined carefully.

A kind of 'Croods' charm

"The Croods" has its own kind of, ahem, "crod" charm.

Yes, there's lots of punching and smacking, fighting, rolling around, chasing, ugly faces, insults and — did we say? — fighting.

And that's just the Crood family of cavemen — or is it cave persons? — and doesn't include the prehistoric creatures.

Admittedly, I resisted seeing "The Croods." It was a case of 3D-animation feature overload. Also, I may have been wondering how "The Croods" could improve upon TV's "The Flintstones" (1960-'66) for me the tabula rasa of prehistoric humor.

So, I saw "The Croods" in 2D. After all, it was $17 at the multiplex for the first-run "Oz the Great and Powerful" — which wasn't.

However, I was pleasantly surprised by "The Croods," which will be enjoyed by the under-10 crowd.

And, while "The Croods" doesn't have the wink-wink, nod-nod jokes, double entendre jibes and snarky dialogue of most contemporary animated features, parents nonetheless will be impressed with the quality of the DreamWorks' animated feature.

My favorite line in "The Croods" is Gran Crood describing her first love: "He was a hunter. I was a gatherer."

"The Croods" is gorgeous to view. When the journey to the huge twin-peaked mountain (not unlike the Emerald City in "The Wizard of Oz" or Cinderella's Castle at Walt Disney World or Disneyland) begins, the colors are vivid. The flora and fauna are delightful. The sense is that of a Maxfield Parrish painting.

The characters are something to behold. The skin texture, hair stylings and those chic cave-person fur-covered outfits are wonderfully detailed. The facial expressions are very believable.

Nicolas Cage is especially great voicing Grug, father Crood. Cage's voice is engaging and intimate with careful enunciation, for which he's often been chastised in his live-action roles. With animation, where vocal inflection, emphasis and expression is key, Cage is well-cast.

Less memorable but fine are the voices of Ryan Reynolds as Guy, the boyfriend; and Emma Stone as Eep, the daughter, who is more or less the film's protagonist.

When Eep and Guy meet, it's fight at first sight.

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein

Well, this is prehistoric dating.

In supporting voice roles for the Crood clan are Catherine Keener as Ugga, Cloris Leachman as Gran, Clark Duke as Thunk, Chris Sanders as Belt, and Randy Thom as Sandy.

The symphonic score, with original music by Alan Silvestri, enhances the quest.

"The Croods" begins with interesting 2D animation with a clever take on prehistoric cave paintings.

The language is modern. "You're grounded," father Grug tells daughter Eep.

The film is written and directed by Kirk De Micco ("Space Chimps," 2008) and Chris Sanders ("How to Train Your Dragon," 2010; "Lilo and Stitch," 2002), based on a story by De Micco, Sanders and John Cleese of Monty Python fame.

The film does a bit of philosophizing about "following the rules," of which, Eep says, "This one's painted on a cave wall in our home."

There are some bromides about taking risks, courage and "following the light."

The storyline is somewhat clichéd: father pitted against the boyfriend. There are scary monsters at every turn. It's also the end of the world as prehistoric man knew it.

The screenplay hits on a number key points without which civilization would not have marched on: fire, flying, shoes, and pets. You can't have civilization without being civil. Even the Crood family realizes that.

The movie theater lobby poster for "The Croods" trumpets "The journey begins."

"The Croods" is a big hit. DreamWorks, you might say, struck "Crood" oil.

Expect a sequel. This is one family, I would like to see evolve.

"The Croods," MPAA Rated PG (Parental Guidance Suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children) for some scary action; Genre: Animation, Adventure, Comedy, Family; Run time: 1 hr., 38. minutes; Distributed by 20th Century Fox (the first DreamWorks animated feature to be distributed by 20th Century Fox).

Credit Readers Anonymous: Stay to the very end of the credits for "The Croods" to see three animated blue elephants cavorting and honking their snouts. "Shine Your Way" by Owl City is heard during closing credits. Fleetwood Mac's "Tusk" is heard on the soundtrack.

Box Office, April 12: "Evil Dead" opened at No. 1, $26 million, with "The Croods" holding at No. 2, $21.1 million, $125.8 million, three weeks, and "G.I. Joe: Retaliation" dropping from No. 1 to a tie at No. 2, with $21.1 million, $86.6 million; and the re-release of "Jurassic Park" in 3D opening at No. 4, with $18.2 million, $375 million;

5. "Olympus Has Fallen," $10 million, $71.1 million, three weeks; 6. "Tyler Perry's Temptation: Confessions of a Marriage Counselor," $10 million, $38.3 million, two weeks; 7. "Oz the Great and Powerful," $8.1 million, $212.7 million, five weeks; 8. "The Host," $5.2 million, $19.6 million, two weeks; 9. "The Call," $3.5 million, $45.4 million, four weeks; 10. "Admission," $2 million, $15.3 million, three weeks;

Unreel, April 12: "42," Rated PG-13. With the start of Major League Baseball season, here's one to root for: It's a biopic based on the story of Jackie Robinson and his breaking the so-called color barrier when he played for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Chadwick Boseman plays Robinson. Harrison Ford plays Dodgers executive Branch Rickey.

"Scary Movie 5," You know the drill. A pop culture commentary masquerading as a horror-movie spoof. What's really scary about is that Charlie Sheen and Lindsay Lohan co-star.

"To the Wonder," R: All you need to know is that iconoclastic Terrence Malick directed it. Did you see "The Tree of Life"? Oh, and "To the Wonder" stars Ben Affleck, Olga Kurylenko, Javier Bardem and Rachel McAdams.

This review is dedicated to the memory of Roger Ebert, the well-known and highly-regarded newspaper and television film critic, who died April 4 at age 70.

Odyssey lands 'Ulysses' on Bethlehem Greenway

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Focus Editor

For its next production, Touchstone Theatre is again takin' it to the streets.

While the Lehigh Valley theater troupe won't be stopping traffic on the streets of Bethlehem's South Side, it may turn pedestrians' heads on the South Bethlehem Greenway.

Touchstone Theatre is inaugurating the Bethlehem Greenway Amphitheater for the world premiere of its latest outdoor extravaganza, "Ulysses Dreams: an exploration of origin and destiny," noon, 4 p.m. April 13, 14, 20 and 21.

The one-act, one-hour and 20-minute show is based on Homer's "Iliad" and "Odyssey," with original music and text by Jp Jordan and Christopher Shorr and choreography by Bill George, Gus Ripa and the 10-member Touchstone cast.

According to a Touchstone press release, "Ulysses Dreams" finds the title character aged and reflecting on his legendary life. From playing by the sea in childhood, to going off to the Trojan War, to his journey home again, his dreams and visions revolve around women who altered the course of his life, including his mother, his wife, nymphs, sirens and other gods and mortals. As he remembers, these dreams come to life before his eyes.

In addition to Touchstone Ensemble Members and Apprentices, the "Ulysses Dreams" company includes Jack Armstrong, who starred in Touchstone's "A Resting Place"; Teague Fernandez, a Lehigh Valley Charter School for the Arts student; Susan Chase, a former Touchstone Ensemble Member; and Felix Mayes, a recent Muhlenberg College graduate.

There's also a six-person band led by Music Director Kevin O'Boyle (Touchstone's "Christmas City Follies").

In the press release, Touchstone Managing Director Lisa Jordan says that, with "Ulysses Dreams," "Touchstone returns to form with outdoor, movement and music-based ensemble production."

Jp Jordan, Touchstone Artistic Director, oversaw direction of the project, from co-writing the original text and music, to co-designing the production elements, to overseeing music rehearsals.

"It's set up as a song cycle. There are seven songs. There are seven segments," says Jp Jordan.

The song cycle, a genre which originated in classical German music, entails a group of songs designed to be played together in sequence.

"Ulysses Dreams" began as a glimmer in Bill George's and Gus Ripa's eyes about one and one-half years ago.

"Bill and Gus Ripa of Lehigh had been talking about putting together a one- or two-person show on the 'Odyssey,'" Jp Jordan recounts. "We put it through the Touchstone devising process."

"We starting heavily work-shopping it in September. There was a time when we were work-shopping this, rehearsing ['Christmas City] Follies' and running ['The Pan'] Show."

Jp Jordan describes the odyssey of "Ulysses Dreams":

"We had the entire text of the 'Odyssey.' I asked Bill [George] to whittle it down to 12 chapters. My challenge to the Touchstone ensemble was that I wanted to see four variations on each of the chapters Bill came up with. This was in late August [2012].

"We had these 48 scene fragments, or proposals, that we looked at — Christopher and I — and then we went into writing. The big question was: 'How do we frame this?'"

"We imposed the song cycle idea. We wrote the songs."

"We imposed the poetry idea. We wrote the poems."

"And we imposed the idea of the female energies. Basically, what we came up with was the vehicle to tell the story and what became the new source material."

"With all that imposed — that was given back to the ensemble."

Jp Jordan and Shorr wrote the words and music during the December 2012 holiday break.

"The Ensemble had another chance to propose ideas."

At the end of February, Jp Jordan asked George "to take each of these new proposals and choreograph fully each of the songs."

"Bill choreographed to the music each one of the seven songs. We got them up on their feet and we started crunching that."

In "Ulysses Dreams," seven women portray the "female energies." Bill George, as Old Ulysses, is the storyteller. Kyle Lewis is the Young Ulysses. There's a chorus of four men and four women.

Observes Jp Jordan of "Ulysses Dreams": "It directly relates to 'The Civil War Project.' People like when Touchstone's outside. We're sort of uniquely poised to give them this type of show."

"It's not just 'Shakespeare in the Park.' It's distinctly Touchstone — an ensemble-created, movement-based company and a street-performance company."

Previously, Touchstone presented "Don Quixote" (2010) and "A Resting Place" (2012), the latter part of "The Civil War Project" connoting the war's 150th anniversary.

"These really energize the community. There's really something beautiful about. Hopefully, it says 'Let's keep our parks clean' and make good use of public space."

"It's at the center of what we do. How can we energize a community? I think kids seeing this kind of thing outdoors — to me, it offers hope. That there's something more than watching TV. Bethlehem's such an awesome place for that."

In the press release, Touchstone Ensemble Member and co-founder Bill George, stated, "I'm particularly excited about the cast of 10, working out of doors and the effectiveness of strong visual elements in a mildly abstract style supporting a vibrant and powerful musical narrative."

"Touchstone hasn't worked like this in, I don't know, over 15 years at least. It's great to see us dusting off these techniques and taking them to another level, integrating the talents of the Ensemble into a more powerful and poetic dramatic form," George stated.

Touchstone's origins are rooted in tradition of street theater and outdoor performance. Over the years, its repertoire has grown and expanded to include community-based works, adaptations of classic texts and original plays.

Looking ahead, Touchstone plans another community-based project.

"Journey from up the East" is a two-year exploration of the influx of Chinese in Bethlehem, largely the result of Sands Casino Resort Bethlehem-bound gamblers from New York City and the casino hiring of Chinese employees.

Jp Jordan said Touchstone, partnering again with Moravian College, is working with Constance Cook, Lehigh University Professor of Chinese, Director Lehigh in Shanghai Program, and Mary Wright, who will direct a piece in April 2014, and on a subsequent production to be presented in April 2015 at the Chinese Harmony Pavilion along the South Bethlehem Greenway.

For "Ulysses Dreams," an area at the South Bethlehem Greenway along Mechanic Street in the vicinity of the multi-tiered South Bethlehem Greenway near Polk and Taylor streets, will be cordoned off where those who purchase tickets will be provided seating.

'Dance Emerge' showcases Muhlenberg choreographers

Jeffrey Peterson and Teresa VanDenend Sorge are co-artistic directors for the concert.

Delaware & Lehigh Trail wins award as Pennsylvania's best

The Delaware & Lehigh (D&L) Trail was recognized as Pennsylvania's best trail project by the Keystone Recreation, Park and Conservation Fund at the organization's 20th anniversary celebration in Harrisburg.

"The D&L Trail is more than just a trail. It's truly a platform for education, conservation, interpretation, economic revitalization and recreation," Delaware & Lehigh National Heritage Corridor President-Executive Director Elissa Garofalo said in accepting the honor.

"It's a privilege to accept the Keystone Award on behalf of the D&L staff, past and present, as well as our many partners, volunteers and 1.65 million visitors and residents who love the D&L Trail," said Garofalo.

Robert Griffith, former executive director of the Pennsylvania Recreation & Park Society and one of the Keystone Fund's early champions, noted that the Fund has invested $1.3 million in the D&L Trail over the past two decades.

"The D&L Trail interprets one of the nation's early transportation corridors and contributes nearly $20 million to the regional economy annually," Griffith said. "It provides convenient recreation for 1.65 million residents in five counties and connects 60 communities from Wilkes Barre to Philadelphia."

The March 18 event at the State Capitol Rotunda included the release of a report by The Trust for Public Land, which included a finding that every $1 invested by the Keystone Fund in land and water conservation returns $7 in economic value of natural goods and services. The 44-page report can be accessed online at vresp.com

Awards went to the most deserving project in six Keystone Fund categories: Historic Preservation, Trails, Libraries, Parks and Recreation, Conservation and State Parks.

The awards were presented by the Pennsylvania Growing Greener Coalition, Pennsylvania Land Trust Association, Pennsylvania Library Association, Pennsylvania Parks & Recreation Society, and Preservation Pennsylvania.

The Keystone Fund was established by the Pennsylvania Legislature in 1993. The agency distributes revenue from the state's realty transfer tax, through grants, to community parks, trails, green spaces and libraries to improve the livability of Pennsylvania communities and providing recreational and educational opportunities.

Krancer wrote: "Your dedication and effort to promoting the protection of the natural resources in Pennsylvania through The Seed Farm New Farmer Training Program has not gone unnoticed."

An award ceremony showcasing the work of The Seed Farm and other honorees will highlight the Pennsylvania Environmental Council's Annual Dinner, April 17, Harrisburg.

Here's how to plant herbs outdoors

Herbs are some of the easiest plants to grow because they tolerate a variety of soil types and have relatively few insect and disease pests. Herbs can be incorporated into any garden, planted in spaces between shrubs and trees, or be grown formally in a garden of their own.

Select the herbs to be grown based on the light exposure of the site they will be planted in. This information can be found on seed packets or plant labels. For example, chervil (Anthriscus cerefolium) grows best in full shade, thyme (Thymus spp.) will grow well in partial shade to full sun, and sage (Salvia officinalis) grows best in full sun.

It is best to plant herbs in soil with good drainage. If water remains pooled on the top of the soil several hours after watering or a rain event, then the soil drainage is poor and should be amended to improve water infiltration.

To correct this problem, remove the top 12 inches of soil from the area that will be planted in the early spring prior to planting. Mix peat, horticultural sand, vermiculite, and/or compost in with the soil, backfill the area and then level the soil.

This is also a good time to remove any weeds from the soil. Removing the entire weed, including the roots, will prevent weeds from vegetatively propagating.

Herbs should be planted based on the recommendations on the seed packet or plant label. Seeds and transplants are commonly purchased at garden centers. When purchasing transplants, pick plants free of insect and disease pests and that look healthy. It is difficult to impossible to improve plant quality.

Some herbs do not transplant well and should be directly sown from seed. These include: anise (Pimpinella anisum), chervil (Anthriscus cerefolium), dill (Anethum graveolens), cilantro-coriander (Coriandrum sativum), cumin (Cuminum cyminum), parsley (Petroselinum crispum), fennel (Foeniculum vulgare), caraway (Carum carvi), and borage (Borago officinalis).

When planting, space herbs according to the recommendations on seed packets or plant labels. Proper spacing will facilitate optimal plant growth. Avoid overcrowding because it can lead to favorable environments for insect and disease pests.

Label the herbs individually or at the end of a row as a reminder of what was planted. A good trick is to cover the seed packet with plastic (plastic wrap or baggies work well) and staple it to a wooden stake or use the ready-made plant label that came with the purchased plant.

Herbs do not require large amounts of fertilizer and will lose flavor when over-fertilized. Fertilization should be based on soil test recommendations. Stop fertilizing perennial plants when fall temperatures are around freezing.

Fertilizing promotes plant growth, which can make the plant vulnerable to damage or death from cold winter temperatures. Check soil moisture using a trowel, moisture meter, or your fingers and irrigate when the soil is dry a few inches below ground. When needed, irrigate until the top six to eight inches of the soil are moist. Avoid over-irrigation, as herb flavor may be negatively affected.

Several perennial herbs will benefit from division including: tarragon (Artemisia dracuncululus), sweet woodruff (Galium odoratum), horehound (Marrubium vulgare), oregano (Origanum spp.), chives (Allium spp.), lovage (Levisticum spp.), mints (Mentha spp.), lavender (Lavandula spp.), and thyme (Thymus spp.).

Divide herbs in early spring or fall when the plant becomes too large or the center dies, usually every two to four years. Use a shovel to cut the plant into sections taking as much root as possible. Sections can be replanted in new locations.

Be sure to water the sections after replanting to aid in establishment. The woody or dead center of the plant can be removed and placed in a compost pile.

The cold temperatures of winter may damage or kill some perennial herbs. Mulching at least four inches deep at the base of the plant can increase soil temperatures enough to prevent cold damage to the herb roots. Good sources of mulch include bark chips, straw, and leaves.

For answers to your garden questions, call the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension Office, 610-391-9840, or Northampton County Cooperative Extension Office, 610-746-1970, and ask to speak with a Master Gardener. Volunteers staff phone lines several days a week, Monday - Friday.

Growing Green is contributed by Lehigh County Cooperative Extension Office Staff and Master Gardeners.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ZONING HEARING BOARD OF BETHLEHEM TOWNSHIP,
NORTHAMPTON COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA
APRIL 24, 2013

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE FOLLOWING APPELLANTS HAVE FILED AN APPEAL FOR A PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE ZONING HEARING BOARD OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BETHLEHEM, A HEARING TO BE HELD AT 6:30 PM ON WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 2013 AT THE TOWNSHIP MUNICIPAL BUILDING, 4225 EASTON AVENUE, BETHLEHEM, PA 18020. THE MEETING, AMONG OTHER ISSUES, CONCERNS THE FOLLOWING ZONING APPEALS:

Appeal # 05-2013 Ryan Dhyuvetters and Emily Adams, 4745 Henry Street, Bethlehem Township, PA seek dimensional variances from Section 275-49E of the Bethlehem Township Codified Zoning Ordinance, as amended, for permission to install two structures in the front yard setback on a corner lot property along Indiana Avenue. The applicants wish to install a 6-ft high solid body privacy fence 6 feet from the property line along Indiana Avenue, as well as a garage addition that will be 12 feet from the property line along Indiana Avenue. Zoning Code requires a 25 foot front yard setback for any principle or accessory structure. The applicant proposes a front yard setback of 6 feet for a fence and a front yard setback of 12 for the proposed garage addition. Therefore variances of 19 feet and 13 feet, respectively, are being sought. The real estate constitutes a "Corner Lot" as defined by the zoning code at page 275:54. As a result, special lot and yard requirements may become applicable as reflected at Section 275-171B(3) of the code. Specifically, setback areas equal to the minimum mandated front yard setback may be required. Furthermore, the zoning hearing board may, pursuant to Section 275-190D(7)(b)(1)(b) also review how placement of a proposed fence on a corner lot complies with the code. The property is located in the Medium Density Residential Zoning District (MDR). The property maintains the Northampton County Tax Parcel Identification number M8SW2 16 13 0205.

All interested parties are invited to attend and be heard.
