Navy Men Meet
In South Pacific
And Exchange "News"

Nov 10 1943

"Gee Dad, it's swell to meet a fellow from your home town."

That is what John Ilkovich, petty officer first class, U. S. Navy, told his father, John Ilkovich of 130 East Fifth Street, in a recent letter.

On duty "somewhere in the South Pacific," he told his father he met John Pulley, former Bethlehem policeman, who is doing his stuff for the U. S. Coast Guard, and both of them had some time to do some reminiscing.

His brother, James, radioman third class, U. S. Coast Guard, is on duty "somewhere in the Atlantic," letters received from him indicate.

The two brothers were members of the Red and Blue varsity football eleven, each playing opposite sides of the line.
